$25 Fine for Breaking Globes

Raynhard Berbeek, aged 19 years, employed at the Fore River shipyard was arrested by Inspector Goodhue late Monday night for breaking the light globes of the Electric Light Co.

During the past eight months the Electric Light Co. have been to an expense of $1,000 in replacing light globes that have been smashed. The greatest trouble the company have had has been in the Fore River district.

Private watchmen have been put on but were unable to detect the parties. Last Friday all the globes on Des Moines road were smashed and the copper hoods carried away. In doing this the wires were broken, and as a result that whole district was in darkness for that night.

Monday Inspector Goodhue was put on the case, and from information received he arrested Berbeek at his boarding house on Arnold street.

After his arrest Berbeek confessed to the officer that he was the party who broke the lamps, and in court he pleaded guilty.

A fine of $25 was imposed, and as he was unable to pay he will work for the county at Dedham jail for the next three months.

ELECTION OFFICERS

Mayor's Nominees Confirmed at Special Meeting Of City Council

A special meeting of the City Council was held Monday evening. There were four matters in the call: To draw jurors; To designate polling places for the caucuses, Sept. 22; To receive and confirm the appointment of election officers; and to act on a communication relative to granting the use of Council chamber for a tuberculosis exhibit.

Councilmen Abele, Bishop, Cantfill, Falconer, Hogan, Moir and Teasdale were absent.

JURORS DRAWN.

A venire was received for the drawing of five traverse jurors. The Mayor, City Clerk and Councilman Bryant drew the following: John A. Mahoney, Harry O. Parker, John B. McGilvrary, Edward R. Blanchard, Frances J. Hanrahan.

POLLING PLACES.

Councilman McGilvray offered an order designating polling places for the caucuses of Sept. 22.

Upon motion of Councilman Ferguson the polling place in Ward Four was changed from St. Mary's hall to the Hose House.

Councilman Beal moved to strike out Music hall as the polling place for Ward Six, and insert Precinct One, Edwards building and Precinct Two, Poland's hall.

Councilman McGilvray saw no need of having two polling places in that ward.

Councilman Beal said that Music hall was not central enough. Many do not atend as it is too far off.

Councilman Whiton—The argument convenience of the voter is thin ice. If a man wants to vote he will be willing to walk a little distance. It was no harder for voters there than in Wards One or Two.

The amendment was defeated. The order was then adopted.

ELECTION OFFICERS.

A communication was received from the Mayor apointing the following election officers which was confirmed.

In the list below the regularly appointed officers are at the beginning of the line and his deputy at the end of the line. The first named in each precinct is the warden, the second line the clerk, and the next four lines the inspectors:

CARRIES OUT THREAT

Fore River Co. Begins Construction Of Reservoir For Water Supply

W. F. Loud & Son of West Quincy began today the construction of a large reservoir which it is expected will supply the Fore River shipbuilding Company with all the fresh water it needs at its plant.

The location is on Des Moines road between Chubbuck street and East Howard street. At this point the land is lower than the streets, and there is a brook running through it which empties into Bent's creek. This brook rises in the vicinity of Glencoe place and Scammell street, and flows through the valley between South street and Quincy avenue until it reaches South street, just south of North street. The brook flows under South street at this point and again near the junction of Des Moines road, and then under Chubbuck street to the site of the reservoir.

The Fore River Company has owned the site for some time. It extends the whole length of Des Moines road between Chubbuck and East Howard streets. Also along Chubbuck street from Des Moines road to South street, and abuts property of Nelson & Ericson and Charles H. W. Tower. It contains 84,525 square feet.

The capacity of the reservoir is estimated at 10,000,000 gallons. It will be of clay construction with a dam near East Howard street.

For four or five years the Fore

The Observations In the Daily Walk

The last week of the school vacation.

Rural lodge has work for its September meeting this week.

Mrs. Rose A. Reed of South Quincy has gone to Providence, R. I. for a few days.

Perry Lawton and family moved this week from Foster street to their new home on Goffe street.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jenner of 275 Farrington street are enjoying a three weeks' sojourn at Annisquam.

William A. Brandau of New York is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Loud of Washington street for a week.

John W. Hall and wife of Hancock street have returned from their trip to New Hampshire ,having driven over the road and report a pleasant journey.

The September meeting of the Board of Trade will be held in the Adams building on Wednesday. The enjoyable outing has awakened new interest in the organization.

H. E. Hardwick and family of Revere road, returned Saturday from a two weeks' visit at the mountains, and have gone to their summer cottage at Kenberma for the month of September.

Mrs. William Alden of Chestnut street and her friend Mrs. Coes of Philadelphia will leave Thursday with the Appalachian club on their trip to Waterbury, Vermont. They will be accompanied by Charles H. Hardwick.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Vinton have returned from a four weeks visit at Princeton and Worcester. They report very heavy thunder showers early in August, the telephone in their house being put out of commission twice.

James Duncan of Quincy, one of the vice presidents of the A. F. of L. will speak at the Labor Sunday service at the Union Congregational church on West Newton street, Boston, next Sunday.

Randolph has added a stone to the date stones that are to be used in the Pilgrim Monument at Provincetown. The block is of Quincy granite on the polished face of which is the inscription "Randolph 1625."

Cards have been received announcing the marriage on Wednesday of Miss Charlotte M. Reed of Concord, Mass., and William Robbie of South Quincy. The wedding is to take place at the brides' home on Commonwealth avenue.

INDEPENDENCE PARTY ISSUES

Candidate Hisgen States Them In Speech of Acceptance

CALLS FOR DIRECT PRIMARY

Corruption of Money Must Be Eliminated to Obtain Genuine Popular Government--Jail Instead of Fines For Responsible Violators of Laws Regulating Trusts--Workmen Entitled to Right of Trial by Jury

New York, Sept. 1.—There was not room enough in the new clubhouse of the Independence party to hold the large crowd that gathered last night for the dual purpose of being present at the notification of Thomas L. Hisgen, Independence party candidate for president, and the house-warming of the club.

After stating that he regarded his nomination as a call to public service, Mr. Hisgen, in his speech of acceptance, went right into the main issues of the campaign and gave a vigorous outline of the principles and policies he stands for. He declared it was necessary to organize a new party to bring about needed reforms, and so the Independence party came into existence.

The candidate asserted that the present division of the reform elements had permitted the control of the government to slip from the hands of the pepople into the hands of machine politicians and party bosses, and he said that to take control out of their hands he advocated "direct nominations, the initiative, the referendum and the recall."

Mr. Hisgen said in part: "The direct primary is spreading rapidly through the states of the south and the west. Wherever the drect primary goes the party boss disappears. The party convention and its dummy delegates are the boss' tools. Destroy them and the boss is powerless.

"The right to initiate legislation, and, when occasion arises, to pass upon and reject legislation, is the purest popular government, and condemned only by those who have lost faith in the right and in the ability of the people to govern.

"Especially valuable is the referendum, when franchises and other public property are sought to be disposed of.

"Hand and hand with these measures of popular government goes the right of recall. When an official elected for a term of years demonstrates his unfitness or betrays the public trust early in his term there should be a speedy and simple way of recalling or getting rid of him instead of leaving his office working public mischief, and at the same time strengthening his hands by the use of patronage.

"To obtain genuine popular government the corruption of money must be eliminated.

"Given a genuine popular government, the question at once arises: 'What constructive measures and reforms do you propose to put into effect with it?' Here we are emerging painfully and slowly from panic and unnatural and unnecessary business depression. Impoverished investors, exasperated business men and idle working men will no longer be baited with shifty evasions, crafty straddles and empty promises.

"The first essential to prosperity should be economical and businesslike conduct of public affairs. Extravagant appropriations, due largely to a horde of unnecessary officials and logrolling legislation for purely political purposes, mean higher taxes; and all taxes, whether direct or indirect, as our platform declares, come out of the pockets of the people, and necessarily add to the ever-increasing cost of living.

"No business man has more reason than I to insist upon a strict enforcement of the law against oppressive trusts and criminal monopolies, but I would substitute conviction of criminals for reckless and disturbing threats and denunciations. I believe in jail for the responsible offenders instead of fines that are in reality imposed upon stockholders or collected from the consuming public.

"Our platform condemns the evil of over-capitalization and demands as a primary necessity for sounder business conditions the enactment of laws, both state and national, to prevent watering of stock, dishonest issues of bonds and other forms of corporation frauds. I believe that stock watering and dishonest financiering have been potent factors in bringing on the country's business troubles; I believe, furthermore, that stock watering has been both the means and the motive for the launching of nine-tenths of the great trusts.

"To the nation's workingmen the Independence party's platform proposes definite, plain and concrete measures, where the old parties deal in attempts to delude and mislead.

"I believe in organization among workingmen designed to increase the effectiveness of human effort and improve the conditions of human life and labor, and that such organizations should not be classed as in criminal restraint of trade. The American workingman is entitled to trial by jury before he shall be deprived of his liberty, and before a writ of injunction is issued.

"The criminal courts are competent to deal with criminal acts whenever occasion arises, and the civil courts should no longer be permitted to be used, even unconsciously, as instruments of intimidation, by writs procured upon one-sided affidavits whose statement of facts would never stand the light of a jury trial."

Mr. Hisgen told of constructive measures he proposes for the farmers. He said he believed in a national system of good roads to be built by national aid to states and counties and also advocated the immediate extension of the parcels post.

Bryan Assured of Johnson's Support

St. Paul, Sept. 1.—Satisfied that Governor Johnson, his leading rival for the nomination before the Denver convention, will loyally support him in the coming campaign, William J. Bryan left last night for Fargo, N. D., where he will speak today.

The meeting of the state central committee yesterday afternoon was a real love feast, in which Bryan and Johnson showered compliments and praise upon each other. Previously to the gathering of the committee Bryan and Johnson held conferences regarding the campaign and not only in regard to Minnesota, but the other northwestern states. They discussed organization and the question of speakers and these will be provided by the national committee. Johnson pledged his active support of the national ticket and will make numerous speeches between now and Nov. 3.

At the fair grounds Bryan spoke for an hour before an immense crowd. His principal topic was Republican extravagance. Addressing himself to the farmers, he declared that they had special reason for complaint because they paid more than their share of the taxes collected and received less than their share of the benefits which flowed from the expenditures of the corporations. He received a great demonstration upon being introduced by Governor Johnson, and in his preliminary remarks took occasion to laud the governor and urge his hearers to assist in re-electing him as their chief executive.

When Chafin Is President

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 1.—Eugene Chafin, Prohibition candidate for the presidency, in a speech delivered here, said that one of the first things he would do after inauguration, should he be elected, would be to "clean up" the District of Columbia. "There are few worse cities in the world than Washington," he said. "There are few with a viler lot of gambling dens or a worse 'tenderloin' section. What is called 'the division' is run wide open almost within sight of the Capitol and the White House. The last one of the different species of dens will have to close, even the one patronized almost exclusively by members of congress. All are run in violation of the law and the president has ample power to act."

Taft Eclipses Rival Anglers

Middle Bass Island, O., Sept. 1.—William H. Taft caught three black bass yesterday and his son caught one and a pickerel. No one else of the entire fleet of enterprising anglers got a single strike. Lake Erie was declared to be too warm and too smooth around Rattlesnake island, but the fishing expedition was not in vain, for besides furnishing the four bass for the candidate's supper table it showed on many photographic plates Taft's striking likeness as a fisherman to Grover Cleveland. It also furnished entertainment for a large audience.

Speakers' Bureau Director

Chicago, Sept. 1.—Senator Dixon of Mokana has been appointed by Chairman Hitchcock of the Republican national committee as the director of the speakers' bureau of the Chicago headquarters. Hitchcock began his political conferences within ten minutes after he reached the city from New York and disposed of a large amount of business brought before him by officials of the western campaign force.

Mack Has Chairman In Mind

New York, Sept. 1.—In the quest for a manager of the eastern Democratic campaign consideration has narrowed itself down to two or three well known eastern Democrats. While Chairman Mack of the national committee says that no definite decision has been reached, it is believed that the appointment will be made known today.

Longworth Will Be Busy

New York, Sept. 1.—Congressman Longworth of Ohio, son-in-law of President Roosevelt, has been drafted by the officials of the Republican national committee for services during the campaign. Beginning Sept. 17, he will speak practically every day until the election. He will tour the country.

Wu Has Not Heard of Recall

Washington, Sept. 1.—Wu Ting Fang, the Chinese minister, shown the dispatch from Pekin stating that the government was considering the question of his recall and mentioning the name of his probable successor, declared that the Pekin government had not in any way intimated to him that it was dissatisfied with anything that he may have said.

Wanted For Safe Cracking

Boston, Sept. 1.—The Boston police received word from the Denver police of the arrest in that city of Samuel Gordon, aged 36, wanted in this city for a daring safe robbery last December. It is alleged that Gordon was one of a gang that broke into a liquor store and, tipping the safe over, broke open the bottom and got away with $2500 in cash.

The Weather Forecast

AMERICANS ARE HONORED

Melbourne's Streets Crowded With Hundreds of Thousands

STRONG BOND OF FRIENDSHIP

High Government Officials and Admirals and Senior Officers of Fleet Exchange Felicitations at a Banquet--Picturesque Torchlight Procession Through Streets of Magnificent Splendor

Melbourne, Sept. 1.—The streets of Melbourne late last night were filled with surging, good-humored crowds numbering hundreds of thousands, all out to do honor to the visiting Americans who arrived here aboard the sixteen great battleships, and the scene challenged comparison with that of an election night in New York. The crush in the principal thoroughfares was so great that many women fainted and several persons were injured.

The entire day was set apart to jollification and the day will ever live in the memory of the inhabitants of Victoria.

The federal government last night tendered a banquet to the admirals and senior officers of the visiting warships at the parliament house, at which Lord Northcote, governor general of the commonwealth, and Prime Minister Deakin made speeches, throughout which prominence was given to the friendly feeling that exists between the commonwealth and the United States. Rear Admiral Sperry, replying in behalf of the American navy, declared that a rupture between the English-speaking nations would not only be a loss, but a crime. Admiral Sperry was presented with an address by the commonwealth parliament.

The city was a spectacle of magnificent splendor. All the public buildings were ablaze with electric lights, notable in this respect being the commonwealth state building and Prince's bridge of the Central Railway, where a striking illuminated picture of the battleships was displayed. The illuminations on shore were held in conjunction with an electric and searchlight display on board the warships in the harbor.

Earlier in the evening a picturesque torchlight procession was held, in which the metropolitan and country fire brigades, numbering about 2000 men, took part. Rain commenced to fall at a late hour, causing a precipitate retreat homewards. The dense crowds converging towards the railway station forced the women and children into perilous positions and many were extricated with difficulty after being considerably bruised. Two persons were seriously and several others slightly injured.

All records for passenger traffic on the railways have been shattered since the arrival of the fleet.

TERRIBLE FALL OF THREE MEN

Cable Supporting Scaffold High In Air Parted

New York, Sept. 1.—Three carpenters working on a temporary scaffold suspended on wire cables under the dome of the old custom house building on Wall street, now being remodeled for the National City bank, were hurled through the air to a skylight eighty feet below when one of the supporting cables parted. Two were killed almost instantly and the third was fatally injured.

Andrew O'Malley was dead when picked up. Charles Clark died a few minutes later. The third man, James Graham, received a fracture of the skull and internal injuries and was taken to a hospital in a dying condition.

The scaffold which fell was suspended by inch cables of steel, which hung from the dome of the building. The workmen, moving about on the scaffold, caused the cables to vibrate and one of the wire ropes which touched a projection was sawed partly through by the vibrations and snapped.

O'Malley's body tore through the skylight and fell to the stone pavement on the ground floor, eight stories below the scaffold, a distance of 125 feet. The bodies of Graham and Clark struck the iron frame of the skylight and were caught there.

Good Whaling Season

San Francisco, Sept. 1.—Advices from the Arctic state that twenty-five whales have been captured at the stations of Point Barrow, Point Hope and St. Lawrence island. Nearly all the vessels of the whaling fleet did well in the spring, and it is thought large catches will be reported when they return from their cruise to the westward.

Editors In Fatal Duel

Manzanillo, Cuba, Sept. 1.—In a street duel which was the outcome of a political quarrel, Manuel Elias, editor of the conservative paper, El Vigilante, was shot and killed by Manuel Estrada, editor of the liberal paper, El Reporter, and also Liberal candidate for congress.

LAND COURT.

To the Quincy Quarries Company, Hiram W. Campbell, Tobias H. Burke, Thomas F. Burke, John J. Cashman, William E. Badger, George L. Badger, Fred L. Badger, Annie W. Badger, Nettie A. Badger, John Cashman, Herbert F. Doble, Trustee, George H. Field, Trustee, Eben W. Sheppard, Trustee and Luigi Couchieri of Quincy, in the County of Norfolk, and said Commonwealth; and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by the Granite Railroad Company, a duly existing corporation having an usual place of business in said Quincy, to register and confirm its title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land situate in that part of said Quincy, called West Quincy, bounded as follows: For a description of the lot a reference line is taken beginning at a point on the boundary line of land formerly of Adams and land formerly of Fenno 179.55 feet South 58 degrees, 43 minutes, 30 seconds West from a stone post at the intersection of said boundary line with the westerly side of Willard street and 37.90 feet South 58 degrees, 43 minutes, 30 seconds West from a stone monument on said boundary line; thence at an angle of 73 degrees, 2 minutes, 30 seconds with said boundary line running South 43 degrees, 14 minutes East 266.93 feet to a point; thence at an angle of 155 degrees 43 minutes with this last mentioned line, running South 23 degrees, 57 minutes East 175.80 feet to a point; thence at an angle of 169 degrees, 33 minutes with this last mentioned line running South 13 degrees, 30 minutes East 41.30 feet to a point on the boundary line of land formerly of Hall and land formerly of Adams, which said point is 68.94 feet South 58 degrees, 19 minutes west from a stone monument at the intersection of the last named boundary line and the westerly side of Willard street, and the particular land of the Granite Railway Company is bounded and described as follows: Northeasterly by land of Hiram W. Campbell by a line partly straight and partly curved, the straight portions of said line being parallel to and 28 feet from the reference line hereinbefore described; southeasterly 45.26 feet by land formerly of Adams and now supposed to be of Tobias H. and Thomas F. Burke and land formerly of Adams and now supposed to be of The Quincy Quarries Company; southwesterly by land of Hiram W. Campbell by a line partly straight and partly curved, the straight portions of said line being parallel to and 15 feet from the reference line hereinbefore described; northwesterly 44.95 feet by land formerly of Adams and now supposed to be of The Quincy Quarries Company; containing 20,800 square feet of land, as shown on a plan filed with said petition.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition, and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the fourteenth day of September, A. D., 1908, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, Leonard A. Jones, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this seventeenth day of August, in the year nineteen hundred and eight.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

STORM CENTRE OF POLITICS

Great Interest Manifested in the Vermont Election

CRUCIAL TEST COMES TODAY

State's Attitude on National Issues Will Have Considerable Bearing on Conduct of National Campaign--Speculation Among Politicians as to What Inroads ndp ndence League Will Make

Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 1.—Final arguments in the political case in Vermont were made on the stump last night, and today the jury of the people, in choosing a governor, other state officers, two members of congress, and members of the state legislature, will decide on the merits of the various questions submitted to them during the recent campaign, many of which questions have been of national importance.

That a majority of the voters will favor Lieutenant Governor Prouty, the Republican candidate for governor, as well as other candidates on the party ticket, and thereby endorse the issues presented by the Republican leaders, is generally admitted by the managers of the opposing parties, but the size of Prouty's majority and especially his plurality over John E. Burke, the Democratic candidate for governor, is a matter of considerable conjecture in political circles about the state.

Both the Republican and Democratic campaign managers have fought the case with this end in view in Vermont this year, realizing that being the first state in the Union to hold an election this fall Vermont's attitude on national issues would have considerable bearing on the conduct of the national campaign during the next two months.

Every effort, therefore, has been made to arouse interest and enthusiasm among the party followers and induce them to come to the polls today. The Republicans have had considerable outside help in this work, but the Democratic national leaders have left the state managers to fight the campaign alone, confident that they would make every effort to reduce the size of the Republican plurality.

The chairmen of the two state committees are satisfied that everything has been done in the way of sound arguments and that it remains with the lieutenants and file closers in the little cities and towns to bring out the vote.

There is an added interest in the election this year by the active participation of the Independence League, whose candidate for governor, Quimby S. Backus, has made a vigorous campaign. In many of the places where he has spoken he has been received with enthusiasm and large audiences. The question which of the two leading parties will suffer more by the advent of the new party is also a matter of much comment among the political managers.

There are six cities and 240 towns in Vermont and at the election in 1904 all but four towns gave Republican pluralities. All the cities went Republican. The ratio of the Republican to the Democratic vote in the state in 1904 was about 74 percent. The total vote for governor in 1904 was: Bell (Rep), 48,113; Porter (Dem.), 16,556. The comparison this year will be made with the above vote.

Will Take Advice of Jerome

New York, Sept. 1.—After a conference with District Attorney Jerome in regard to the plan of prosecution to be adopted in the trial of Peter C. Hains, Jr., and his brother, T. J. Hains, charged with the killing of William E. Annis, District Attorney Darrin of Queens county said that he was going to be largely governed in his preparation of the case by Jerome, because of the similarity between the case of Harry K. Thaw, the prosecution of which Jerome directed, and that of the Hains brothers.

Assets of Over $4,500,000

New York, Sept. 1.—Charles E. Littlefield has taken charge as receiver of the affairs of A. C. Brown & Co., the brokerage firm which recently became involved in difficulties on the Stock Exchange. Attorneys for A. O. Brown & Co. say that the inventory of the assignee shows good assets of more than $4,500,000 against liabilities of less than $4,000,000. This inventory, it is said, will be the basis of the answer of the Brown firm to the insolvency charge in the bankruptcy court.

Withstood a Great Ordeal

New York, Sept. 1.—The Trust Company of America of New York, upon which a sensational run was precipitated during the financial panic of 1907, has managed its business so successfully as to be able to pay off the loan of $25,000,000 which it then effected in its entirety. The company, in point of assets and liabilities, was the second largest in the country, and the run which it successfully sustained exceeded any ever known in the history of America.

Appeal For Contributions

New York, Sept. 1.—An appeal for public contributions to relieve suffering caused by recent floods in Georgia and North and South Carolina has been issued by the New York state branch of the American National Red Cross society.

Beautiful Dahlias In Great Variety

It is said that George F. Elcock of 162 Copeland street has more dahlias in bloom than all others in Norfolk County together. Generally the culture of dahlias this season has been a failure, because of the continued drought in July, but somehow they always grow for Mr. Elcock, and each year sees a larger part of his pretty estate devoted to their culture.

This year Mr. Elcock has fully 500 plants and about 100 varieties of the choicest and richest dahlias in the country. There are the old favorites, the bride, the brunette, the black prince, the Mrs. Winters, the Mrs. Roosevelt and others. Some of the new ones are the J. H. Jackson, the best grown black cactus, also the duchess and the single dahlia. He also has pretty German gladioluses of different colors.

Everybody in West Quincy now protects the dahlias of Mr. Elcock, because they know of the generosity of the owner. They have only to ask for a flower and they get more than one, but he wants to do his own cutting, to protect his plants.

During the last two days Mr. Elcock has cut over 500 blooms yet the supply seems to be inexhaustible, and they are as beautiful as they are numerous. One is apt to think this one is the most beautiful until they see the next, and so on, each choicer than the other.

If other West Quincy people would take a little of the pride that Mr. Elcock does in his estate, Ward Four would become more beautiful and desirable for residence.

Two Chickens As a Sacrifice

Domenico di Parlo was arrested by Officer Crocker on Granite street early Sunday morning as a suspicious character. Parlo had a bag with him that contained two live chickens. Several hen roosts have been entered in that vicinity of late and Parlo was thought to be a hen thief.

The man could speak but little English and he was locked up. Sunday morning an interpreter was secured and through him Parlo told his story. He said that he was 37 years of age and lived at West Chelmsford. He left home to attend a "fiesta" in honors of a saint's day at West Quincy. He brought along two chickens which he intended to present to his host.

He was carried by Quincy and left the train at Braintree. The last train had gone and Parlo started to walk to Quincy. Then he fell into the hands of Officer Crooker.

After hearing his story the police released Parlo and allowed him to go on his way to the feast.

Prize Dog Missing.

At the Eastern Maine State Fair held at Bangor, Maine on Aug. 26 and 27 the Elmhurst Kennels late of Wollaston, now of North Weymouth, exhibited two cocker bitches, "Brynwood Merrymaid" winning first in the open class for black, also winners. "Silver Lake Sona" won first in the open bitch class for parti colors; she also won winners in any other color than black. The two also won first for the best team of cocker spaniels.

One very regretable incident in connection with the show was that "Brynwood Merrymaid" was spirited away just previous to the awarding of the all round specials, and up to the present no word has been received of her whereabouts. The dogs were were sent down in care of a reliable agent, Mr. Haupt, the owner being unable to go down. $50 reward was offered by the Fair officials and although the State detectives and Bangor Police are searching for her up to the present no clue has been received of her.

Grand Lodge I. O. O. F.

ON THE DIAMOND

Victories by Chicago and Pittsburg yesterday, while New York had an off day, closed up still more the gap between the two teams in the western division of the National League and the present leaders. So closely are the three clubs grouped now that only seven points separate the first and third clubs and a day's play may serve to change the positions of all. The standing of the leading clubs in the pennant race this morning is as follows:

| | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| New York | 69 | 45 | .605 |
| Chicago | 71 | 47 | .602 |

GRAND ARMY ENCAMPMENT

Toledo Entertaining Old Veterans at Forty-Second Gathering

Toledo, Sept. 1.—What with the marvelous illumination of the downtown streets, the "Venetian night" on the river and the public reception by the local committee and Commander-In-Chief Burton and numerous attractions marking the formal opening of the forty-second encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, the downtown streets were well-nigh impassable.

Riot of color is a cold and futile phrase when asked to serve as descriptive of the illuminations and decorations. With the formal opening of the reunion all their batteries of astounding color conceptions were turned loose.

The arrival of a delegation of veterans and their wives from Michigan and the manner in which they fell in behind one of the fife and drum corps brought about a scene which those who witnessed it will remember. As the old fifers marched off at the head of the column, the veterans, side by side with their white-haired wives, fell in behind. A cheer came from the crowd on the sidewalks, but it was a sob choked cheer, for tears had sprung spontaneously from hundreds of eyes.

Each passing hour serves to indicate more clearly that there will be a pretty fight on the convention floor for the office of commander-in-chief. The candidates are H. N. Nevins of New Jersey, L. T. Dickson of Illinois, former Governor Van Zant of Minnesota and General Adams of Nebraska. All have opened headquarters and are proselyting vigorously among the delegates.

Eight Thousand Miners Idle

Butte, Mont., Sept. 1.—Following the failure of the coal mine operators and mine workers to reach an agreement, all of the coal mines in the state of Wyoming under the control of the Mineowners' association of Wyoming were closed down last night and will remain closed for an indefinite period. About 8000 men are affected.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

September.

Labor day next Monday.

The pleasantest month of the year.

James Curtin of Atlantic street is taking a two weeks' vacation at home.

Miss Kate Birch of Squantum street has returned from a few days' visit in Fitchburg.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Thomas of of Newton street have returned from a weeks' outing at Princetown, Maine.

The F. D. Fellows Company has anticipated the demand for school suits, and are offering some dandy clothing at resonable prices.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy L. Davidson and daugnter Eleanor of Marion street have returned from Camdem, Maine, where they spent two weeks.

The scout cruiser Chester a sister ship to the Salem and Birmingham is reported to have arrived at the Azores on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Young and daughters Pauline and Rebecca of Hampton, Virginia, are guests of Miss Bessie Drew of Walker street.

Mrs. Walter Webster of Jamaica Plain is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gray of Botolph street, for a few days this week.

Miss Edith Armstrong of Warren avenue left on Monday for Harvard to be the guest for a week of her uncle Enoch S. Thomas' family at Elm Shade farm.

Mrs. Arthur C. Merritt, Ralph Merritt, Mrs E. A. Penniman and Mr. and Mrs. Ben French of Elm place are at Planting Island, North Scituate, for two weeks.

Daniel Guilfoy, a Quincy insurance agent, was taken suddenly ill in Weymouth Monday night. He was attended by Dr. Driscoll and a little later was able to come home on a electric car.

Sympathy of neighbors and friends are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Philip Burns in the loss of their only child, Philip Allen Burns in his fourth year. The funeral was held on Monday from their residence on Standish avenue.

Mrs. William Briggs, her daughter Miss A. Maud Briggs and her son Archie, of Appleton street, have returned from Hancock, N. H., where they have been spending most of the summer. Miss Maud Briggs is entertaining Miss Lila Whittemore for a few weeks.

The single great tree that marks the Atlantic beach along the boulevard has as yet been untouched by either beetle or moth and remains these late summer days as vividly green and magestic as ever. This tree has obtained a mammouth growth during the last few years and residents look upon it as one of the most attractive landmarks.

The windows of the new Quincy school are being washed and brightened this week and general preparations are being made to welcome the influx of scholars this fall. It is suggested of the feeling entertained by the youthful vacationists to watch them playing these early September days as far from the school yard as possible, when that particular spot has been the popular playground all summer.

Missing Woman Found in Weymouth

Mrs. Hannah Erickson, aged 63 years, who was reported as missing since last Friday, was found safe and sound Monday at the Weymouth town farm.

Mrs. Erickson, who does not speak English, has been in this country but two weeks. On her arrival she first went to Lynn, and later came to Quincy to visit her daughter, Mrs. Ellen Johnson, of 282 Water street.

Friday afternoon she started out for a walk. She evidently became confused and wandered further away from home that she intended, and became lost. Unable to speak English the more she walked the more confused she became, until she was picked up by the police in Weymouth and taken care of.

Newsy Notes at Houghs Neck

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Lane of the Hunnewell cottage entertained his brother George Lane and wife from Winthrop, Frank Jackson from Chocago, Doctor Jones and wife from Albany, Captain Egan of the speed boat "Forus," and Mr. and Mrs. C. Hatch of Newport, on Sunday.

Samuel Whitehead of South Boston was the guest of Secretary William P. Taylor of the Associates on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy McGrath and Mrs. Annie Cottage of Bell street, entertained Mr. and Mrs. Frank Driscoll last week.

Fine rooms and board at Midland Hotel by day or week. Home cooking, fish dinners, every accommodation, reasonable rates. 2t

Miss Mary Killion of 3 Bell street entertained a party of friends on Sunday.

Ex-Senator Timothy Sullivan of Roxbury was the guest of John H. Galvin on Sunday.

At Jason L. Harvey's water front cottage are Mrs. Charles Ashby and her two sons Masters Harold and Frank of Brockton, Mrs. Coughlan of Boston, and Mrs. Nellie Cotter of Stoughton.

Merle Leonard has returned to his home, the Pilot, after an extended visit at Virginia.

Henry W. Thorne, our alert police officer, started on his annual vacation Sunday. Henry says he is going to catch a lot of fish during his vacation.

Miss Margaret Smith of Stoughton is staying with Miss Annie McCormick of River road.

Mrs. Fred Scott of Bell street won the prize for ladies at the Pandora alleys last week. Alfred LaBrecque captured the first prize for gentlemen.

Parties seeking a pleasant holiday or week-end can be accommodated at reasonable rates. Large airy rooms with board at the Midland Hotel 2t

August Crime.

Probation Officer Francis A. Spear reports the total number of criminal cases before the district court during the month of August as 185. This number was considerably larger than the corresponding month last year, but 28 less than in the month of July. Of the August cases, 67 were for drunkenness; larceny 21, assault 15, automobile speeders 16.

The August record for the past seven years was as follows: In 1902, 129; in 1903, 156: in 1904, 197; in 1905, 176; in 1906, 203; in 1907, 139; in 1908, 185.

One Daily Ledger advertiser in the classified column received six answers in one mail this morning.

VETERANS INVADE BOSTON

Men Who Fought In Spanish War In Annual Encampment

Boston, Sept. 1.—Over 3000 veterans of the Spanish war have gathered in this city for the formal opening today of the fifth annual encampment of the United Spanish War Veterans. Nearly every state in the Union is represented, the Philippines being represented by a delegation that arrived by train from New York.

The chief event preliminary to the opening of the encampment was the banquet tendered by the state branch last night to Walter S. Hale of this city, the commander-in-chief.

Already there are two active candidates to succeed Hale, Captain C. A. Simmons of Rochester and Captain C. W. Newton of Hartford, each of whom has opened headquarters. For the next convention seat Tacoma, Wash., has already started a movement, while Oklahoma and Saratoga delegations have announced that their respective cities are in line for next year's honors as soon as the convention is regularly under way.

WITH REVOLVERS AND CLUBS

Panic-Stricken Crew Driven to Work to Save Steamer

Boston, Sept. 1.—With every man of her crew wearing scars that he will carry to his grave, part of a $1,000,000 cargo destroyed or damaged, the British tramp steamer Muncaster Castle, from Chinese, Japanese and Philippine ports, came into the harbor last night.

Overtaken by a fire which saw her crew forced to fight for their lives for many hours over red-hot decks, with wild animals running amuck between decks, and beset by a monsoon and other accidents, the steamer underwent a series of sensational mishaps.

After picking up thousands of bales of hemp at various ports in China, Japan and the Philippines, together with a quantity of rattan and a menagerie, including deadly pythons, leopards, bears, etc., fire was discovered in the hemp in No. 3 hold on the night of July 27, while the steamer was in the Red sea.

The Chinese crew became terror-stricken and leaped for the boats, while, to add to the confusion, the electric lights went out. Captain Watson, with his white officers and two American government surveyors, homeward bound from the Philippines, with revolvers and clubs drove the panic-stricken coolies from the boats which they had started to lower and forced them to fight the flames.

Water was unavailing against the fire and when an attempt was made to smother the blaze with steam it was discovered that one of the bulkheads was open. Engineer Fairburn, however, with a wet sponge in his mouth, entered the fiery hold, closed the bulkhead and saved the ship. The Muncaster Castle finally reached Aden, where she was surveyed. The loss was estimated at $50,000.

Crowd Threatened Chauffeur

Boston, Sept. 1.—While alighting from an electric car at the corner of Ruggles and Washington street last night with her 6-months-old baby in her arms, Mrs. Annie Richmond was struck by an automobile and knocked down, while her baby fell beneath the wheels of the heavy machine, receiving injuries from which it died. Mrs. Richmond herself was badly hurt. The automobile was operated by Thomas Cooney, 17 years old. A large crowd threatened bodily harm to the chauffeur, who was rescued by a strong detail of police and locked up.

Law Caused Loss of Money

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 1.—Judge Fuller, in the county court here, issued an order restraining the county commissioners from bringing suits against the Wilkesbarre and Hazleton electric railway for violations of the rate law. Since the passage of the 2-cent fare by the last legislature the company has been charging 2 cents a mile, but claims it was losing money. Fuller is satisfied that the contention of the company is correct. The company will now raise its rates.

Funds and Custodian Missing

Havana, Sept. 1.—A shortage of upwards of $10,000 has been discovered in the bureau of supplies and vouchers in the general postoffice, of which Senor Rodriguez is chief. Rodriguez has not been seen in Havana since Friday and secret service police have been searching for him, but without success. Rodriguez held the same post as Charles F. Neely, who was convicted of extensive frauds during the first American intervention.

Quincy Man For Superintendent

There have been many rumors from many sources during the last few months, says the Cook County School News, that should ill-health make it necessary for Mr. Cooley to relinquish the superintendency of city schools, Dr. A. F. Nightingale would probably be selected for the place.

We have no idea concerning Dr. Nightingale's views of the matter as we have not conversed with him, but we do know the county would illy spare him from the great work he is accomplishing.

We also know that in scholarship, in temperament and in administrative ability, few could be found who would excel him in the management of the schools of Chicago.

He has been eminent in the national councils of education, president of the Secondary Department of the National Educational Association, president of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, and chairman of a committee of thirteen ,appointed by the National Educational Association to report on college entrance requirements, which report accomplished much towards bringing into harmony the colleges and high schools without disturbing the character of the latter, as the schools of the people.

He is a courtyl, courteous gentleman, possessing a marvelous patience, yet persistent in his efforts for constant improvement in the schools. Always ready with words of encouragement and inspiration, he is a welcome guest at the schools, and teachers and pupils alike hail his visits with pleasure.

We would not put an obstacle in the way of his desires, but we do hope the county may, for many years yet, have the benefits of his wise counsels, and his masterly supervision.

Dr. Nightingale was a former resident of Quincy, Mass., and was probably born here.

Carries Out Their Threat

River Company has been the city's largest customer for water, and has had a rate of about eight cents per 1000 gallons. Their bill is about $7,000, annually.

Many have contended that the city at this rate of eight cents per 1000 gallons was selling water below cost, which is nearer fifteen cents per 1000 gallons. On the other hand the Fore River Company has desired a still lower rate, and has threatened to seek a supply of its own if more favorable terms were not granted. It seems now that it will carry out its threat.

Perhaps the city as well as the company will be the gainer, as the Metropolitan assessment for water will be reduced, and there will be a tax revenue from the reservoir.

At the meeting of the City Council April 6 Mayor Shea forwarded a communication from the Commissioner relative to water rates paid by the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. The Commissioner said that in 1907 the Fore River used 89,773,902 gallons which they paid for in the following manner: For all construction work out to the city mains and the connections therewith; for the cost and installation of meters, and they assumed the cost of maintenance on the above work. They paid in cash $7,-181.91. No specific agreement had been made for 1908. Placed on file.

Luce Headquarters Moved to Quincy

The members of the office force of the Luce Campaign, whose headquarters are at 211-214 Kimball building, Boston, held a very pleasant lawn party on Saturday afternoon and evening, at the home of one of the stenographers, Miss Dutton of Farrington street, Wollaston. The lawn was very prettily decorated with electric lights and Japanese lanterns. A supper was served at 5.30, after which various games were indulged in on the lawn and in the house.

In the evening a musical and literary program was rendered by a number of those present, which included cornet, piano and vocal solos, and a "Luce" reading. Incidentally it might be said that all present had more than ordinary musical talent.

Mr. Luce himself regretted very much his inability to be present, due to a previous engagement, but he was represented by his executive secretary and manager, Robert N. Turner, B. U., C. L. L. A. '06, Law '07.

Those present beside Mr. Turner were:—Walter F. Burt, Frank A. Ewart, Paul M. Foss, George K. Gordon, William J. Bannan Samuel Bailey, Miss Florence A. Burt, Miss Ednea M. Philbrick, Miss Jane L. Hentzi, Miss Louise Stucklen, Miss Rose M. Keane, Miss Nellie A. McCarthy, Miss Margaret K. McCarthy and Miss Mattie L. Dutton.

Refreshments were served before the party broke up, and all felt that the office force of the Luce Campaign had not changed its record as an active, "hapy family."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

SPEEDY DESTROYERS

Fore River Co. Ready to Build And Guarantee Thirty-Three Knots

The Fore River Shipbulding Company submitted five proposals on Tuesday at Washington for building two torpedo destroyers, and the fact that these proposals were for boats in excess of the speed requirement will probably enter into the award.

The Boston Journal says:—Substantial additions to the navy are contemplated in proposals which were opened today in the office of Acting Secretary Newberry for the construction of ten torpedo destroyers, for which Congress appropriated $800,000 each, and for three colliers, also provided for at the last session of Congress.

It is provided that not more than three of the destroyers shall be built by any one concern. Each of the destroyers is to have a trial displacement of about 742 tons, a speed of not less than 29 1-2 knots an hour, and apparatus for burning oil fuel, and turbine propelling engines. Two sets of proposals were called for, one on the department's plans and the other on the department's plan in every respect except the machinery, which may be on the bidder's design.

Five firms submitted bids for the construction of the destroyers under the government designs for the hull and machinery. They included the following:

The Bath Iron Works, two vessels at $644,000 each.

The New York Shipbuilding Company of Camden, N. J., two vessels, $665,000 each.

The Maryland Steel Company, two vessels at $708,300 each, and three vessels at $703,600 each.

The Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Company, two vessels at $620,000 each. All these proposals contemplate vessels having a speed of 29 1-2 knots.

Several bids also were made to construct the vessels under the government designs of hull and equipment, but with bidder's designs of machinery. These included:

The Bath Iron Works, who proposed to build two ships of 719 tons with a speed of 30 knots at $597,000 each or two of 30 1-2 knots of 700 tons displacement for $564,000 each.

THE QUINCY BIDS.

The Fore River Shipbuilding Company, submitted five bids under this class, two of 32 knots for $665,000 each.

Two of 33 knots at $688,000 each.
Two of 32 knots at $638,000 each.
Two at 29 1-2 knots at $610,000 each.
Two of 29 1-2 knots at $624,000 each.

The New York Shipbuilding Company offered to construct two vessels with the bidder's design of machinery at 30 1-2 knots each at $685,000 each.

William Cramp Sons two of 30 knots at $664,000 each.

And the Newport News Company two of 31 knots at $648,000 each.

BIDS FOR COLLIERS.

The collier proposals were submitted under a second call for bids under the appropriation act, which makes available $525,000 each for the purchase of three colliers of American registry. The colliers are to be of twin screw with a speed of twelve knots and a cargo capacity of 7200 tons of coal, on the bidder's own design, embodying certain chief characteristics to be laid down by the Navy Department.

William Cramp Sons offered three vessels of 7620 tons each for $525,000 each.

The New York Shipbuilding Company three vessels of similar toanage at $524,000 each.

The Maryland Steel Company three vessels of 7200 tons each under class one at $479,600 each and under class two three vessels at $498,600 each.

Accident to Granite Manufacturer

James F. Desmond, the well known granite manufacturer, had the misfortune to have his right leg broken this morning at his yard on Miller street. Mr. Desmond was superintending the hoisting of a large block of granite. Without warning, the inner fall broke, allowing the stone to strike Mr. Desmond. His right le was pinned between the block of granite and a post of the cutting sheds. Mr. Desmond's leg was fractured and the post snapped off short. He was atended by Dr. Reynolds and Dr. Armeno.

THE CUP TRANSFER

Royal Reception To C. F. Adams On Return of The Quincy Cup

The Quincy Yacht club challenge cup, which has been in the keeping of yacht clubs along the north shore for the past eight years, is now in Quincy again, having been formally transfered to the Quincy club Tuesday evening.

The occasion of the transfer from the Corinthian club was made one of rejoicing by the Quincy club. It was also the occasion of a rousing reception to ex-Commodore Charles Francis Adams, 2d, who sailed the Manchester to victory.

The committee of the Corinthian club, who returned the cup, included Commodore H. A. Morss, W. L. Carlton, E. H. Wiggin, A. G. Wood and Harold Wead. They, with ex-Commodore Adams, arrived at Houghs Neck during the early evening and were received by Commodore Robbins and ex-Commodores Eben W. Sheppard, Henry M. Faxon, F. F. Crane and Fred B. Rice and Paul R. Blackmur.

The party were entertained at dinner at Nortemans. While the dinner was in progress a good part of the 400 members of the Quincy Yacht club gathered at the club house. As the party started from the dining room toward the club house their pathway was brilliantly illuminated by red fire.

At the club house door there were cheers, loud and long, for Commodore Adams; for the Corinthian club; for the cup, and for Commodore Robbins, Capt. Ira Whittemore leading in the cheering.

The guests were escorted to the hall, and stood in front of a table over which a large American flag festooned, and on which the cup rest-was festooned, and on which the cup rested.

CHARLES F. ADAMS 2d

In the receiving line were Commodore Robbins, ex-Commodore Adams, the Corinthian club committee, and ex-Commodores Crane and Sheppard.

After the club members had been presented individually to the guests, song sheets were passed about. These contained the choruses of the "Stein Song," Corinthian Yacht Club Anthem, "Harrigan," "Afraid to come home in the dark," "Take me back to New York Town," "Grand old Flag" and "Honey Boy."

Elmer E. Ricker presided at the piano, and Mr. Tougie sang the verses of the Stein song, the audience joining in the chorus.

Commodore Robbins then said that this was a notable occasion in the history of the Quincy Yacht club. We are here to do honor to ex-Commodore Adams and to receive home the cup. He then introduced W. L. Carlton chairman of the regatta committee of the Corinthian club.

QUINCY CUP.

Taking the cup in his hand Mr. Carlton said, this cup is ten years old. It has been away eight years. Now Mr. Adams has brought it back, and it gave him great pleasure to present it to Commodore Robbins.

After the cheers had subsided, Commodore Robbins said it was indeed a pleasure to receive the cup. It has remained two years in the keeping of the Corinthian club who have given us most excellent races. He then spoke of the good races of the Corinthian club generally and extended the thanks of the Quincy club for the able management and for the courtesies extended by the Corinthian club. He hoped the cup would always be raced for and taht the Corinthian club would be one of the challengers.

The then introduced Commodore Adams. As he did so every man arose to his feet, and Mr. Adams was cheered to the echo.

Mr. Adams said he hardly came to make a speech. You children, he said can harly remember in 1875. If you do, you can recall the Dandelion, Red Lion and Rocket. It was pleasant to remember other races, old men and old times. There was a long string of pleasant occasions. Many a night he had laid tucked away on the weather side of a boat, and thought again of the many good times.

He was glad to have had a hand in bringing back the Quincy cup. It stood for good sportsmanship. He hoped it would always be as fairly contested, and that there would be as good races as those held with the Corinthian club. We are all glad to get it back, and he hoped it would stay a long time.

Ex-Commodore Henry M. Faxon was introduced as one who sailed the first races in defence of the cup, and who had built two boats.

Mr. Faxon said that he was in hopes that when Mr. Adams spoke he would tell us just how he won the cup. There seemed to be some doubts as to the ability of the boat to do it. He had sailed against Mr. Adams in many races. He has a habit of wiggling away to the windward mark. We would like to know how it is done.

Mr. Faxon then spoke of the history of the cup, and read a transcript from the club records from 1851 up to the building of the "Recruit" by Commodore Rice and the races since that time. He also spoke of the type of boats that had developed such as the "Hostess" and "Flashlight." He would offer a suggestion that a suit-

Special Detectives.

The Quincy Electric Light & Power Company, in order to maintain the high efficiency of the street lighting service, has been obliged to take measures to prevent the malicious breakage of its incandescent lamps located in different parts of the city.

The Company is co-operating with the Police department by employing a number of special detectives in citizen's clothes to patrol the one hundred miles of pole line owned by the company, in the city of Quincy. Although this entails a very large expense, the company, in justice to the public and itself, propose to continue this course until the malicious destruction of its property ceases.

PROUTY CARRIES VERMONT

His Ticket Wins by About 28,000

GAINS BY DEMOCRATS

They Reduce Republican Majority In the Legislature

THOUSAND VOTES FOR BACKUS

Prohibs a Close Fourth and Socialists Away In Rear

White River Junction, Vt., Sept. 2.—The Republicans defeated the Democrats in the state election by about 28,000. Lieutenant Governor George H. Prouty, who led the former ticket, received 41,432 votes, while James E. Burke of Burlington, his Democratic opponent, had 14,536 votes, with 23 small towns missing. These towns in 1904 gave a Republican plurality of 1789. The vote for the other candidates for governor with the same towns missing was:

Quimby S. Backus, Independence League, 1009; E. M. Campbell, Prohibition, 783; J. K. Dunbar, Socialist, 459.

The next legislature will stand as follows: Senate—Republicans, 29; Democrats, 1; house—Republicans, 210; Democrats, 30; Independence League, 6.

The total vote for the three minor parties was considerably larger than in previous years, but the gain was wholly by the Independence League, the Prohibition and Socialist vote falling off.

The plurality was the smallest on a presidential year since 1892, when it was 17,956 and was followed by a Democratic national victory, but it was larger than in 1888 and slightly less than in 1900. There was a falling off in four years of about 8 percent in the Republican vote, while the Democratic vote fell off about 2 percent. The Independence League appeared for the first time.

An unusually large number of local contests for members of the legislature, although bringing out a heavy vote and resulting in Democratic gains in the lower branch of the legislature, apparently had no bearing on the gubernatorial fight.

The Republicans elected to congress David J. Foster of Burlington for another term and Frank Plumley of Northfield for the first time, and chose a majority of the state legislature which will select a successor to the late Senator Redfield Proctor. The state ticket elected was as follows:

Governor, George H. Prouty, Newport; lieutenant governor, John A. Mead, Rutland; secretary of state, Guy W. Bailey, Essex; treasurer, Edward H. Deavitt, Montpelier; auditor, Horace F. Graham, Craftsbury; attorney general, John G. Sargent, Ludlow.

In an unusually large number of local contests the Democrats were as a rule successful. The Republican majority in the next house, therefore, will be considerably reduced. The voters were urged to support the Republican ticket by speakers of national importance who stumped the state during the past two weeks, discussing issues which will be heard in other parts of the country this fall. On the other hand, the Democrats fought the battle alone, James E. Burke of Burlington, known as the blacksmith mayor of that city, who headed the ticket, having only local talent in his support. The Democrats were also anxious regarding the strength of the Independence League movement, but the returns from a majority of the cities and towns showed that comparatively few voters supported Quimby S. Backus of Brandon, who headed the new party ticket. The Prohibition party ran a close race with the Independence League, while the Socialists were a poor fifth in the contest among the leaders.

The voters were favored with excellent weather, and despite the fact that the harvest was at hand they came to the polls in large numbers.

The local contests proved the feature of the election as far as the people were concerned, but the results seemed to have little effect upon the state as a whole as was expected. Burke ran exceedingly well in his own city, Burlington, reducing the Republican margin of 200 four years ago to 64 votes. He also ran well in Barre, but he fell behind in St. Albans and in several of the large towns.

On the other hand, the little towns up in the fastnesses of the Green mountains stood loyally by the Republican party as of old, rolling up majorities for Prouty that nearly counteracted the losses in the cities.

Election Watched With Interest

New York, Sept. 2.—Much interest was taken in the result of the Vermont elections in political circles here, and the returns had an attractiveness and interest beyond anything seen in former years. In the absence of Chairman Hitchcock of the Republican national committee, those in charge of headquarters here did not care to be quoted except to say that they were pleased with the result.

Chairman Mack of the Democratic national committee expressed gratification at the result. "The returns so far received," he said, "show that the Republicans lost about 8 percent in their voting strength since the last presidential election, while our loss is slight. This is a gain in percentage for the Democrats and this despite the fact that we spent no money for campaign purposes there. On the other hand, the Republicans had speakers of national reputation in the state and made a fight."

A Democratic Conference

New York, Sept. 2.—National Chairman Mack and eastern members of the Democratic national committee held a conference here and decided to establish various bureaus of the national committee in New York co-ordinate with those which have been established in Chicago.

The national committee has practically decided that each state committee shall decide upon what extent it will co-operate with negro organizations, as the conditions with regard to the negro vote are of dissimilar character in the different states. Mack says that he will announce the appointment of a vice chairman to manage the campaign in the east some time today. National Committeeman Hudspeth of New York is prominently spoken of as eastern manager.

Bryan In the Northwest

Grand Forks, N. D., Sept. 2.—William J. Bryan arrived here last night from Fargo. On the way from Fargo the train made many stops, which afforded an opportunity for the candidate to shake hands with hundreds of persons. In his speeches yesterday Bryan denounced the Republican party for its failure, as he said, specifically to meet in its platform the several issues of the campaign, and expounded again his views on the guaranteeing of bank deposits, charging that Taft "goes out of his way to predict dire disaster if that proposition should become effective." He discussed also the trusts, the labor question, publicity of campaign contributions before election and the election of senators by direct vote of the people.

Should Renominate Hughes

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Sagamore Hill was the scene of another political conference, the subject of which was the gubernatorial nomination of the Republican party in New York state, and President Roosevelt again made known, in words that could not be mistaken, his attitude on the nomination of Charles E. Hughes for governor. The president declared that it was absolutely necessary that the Republican party should renominate Hughes at the coming state convention.

To Make Strong Fight In Maine

New York, Sept. 2.—Arrangements are being made by the Republican national committee to make a strong fight in the state campaign in Maine, which closes with the election on Sept. 15, and Senator Borah of Idaho will leave immediately for Maine, where he will make many speeches during the next two weeks.

Populist Newspaper Backs Taft

Omaha, Sept. 2.—Bryan Democrats in Nebraska received a shock when the Schuyler Free Lance, the most influential Populist newspaper in Nebraska, advised all Populists to ignore Watson and vote for Taft. In an editorial the editor says the Populists have nothing to hope for from Bryan's election.

GERMANY VIEWED WITH SUSPICION

French Press Sees Effort to Get Upper Hand In Morocco

Paris, Sept. 2.—The desire of France and Spain to avoid international complications in connection with the Moroccan situation is apparent in an official announcement made simultaneously by the cabinets of Madrid and Paris, to the effect that these governments will not ask a mandate from the powers to treat with Mulai Hafid, but that they will for the moment limit their action to demanding certain guarantees of him covering their special interests. These demands, when formulated, will be submitted to the signatories of the Algeciras act, and each power will be left free to recognize Mulai Hafid or not and treat with him in conformity with the stipulations of the Algeciras act.

The suspicions of the French press that Germany is trying to take advantage of the complications in Morocco have been increased by the news that Dr. Vassel, the German consul at Tangier, has left for Fez, ostensibly with the object of gaining the ear of Mulai Hafid. The French government, however, profess to retain confidence in the uprightness of Germany and refuses to believe that the mission of Vassel is political.

The morning newspapers are unanimous in their outcry against the departure of the German consul for Fez. They see in this "a fresh act of German manevolence and a strange commentary on the emperor's peace speech at Strassburg."

DEMORALIZES DISCIPLINE

Thaw's Presence In Poughkeepsie Jail Is Objectionable

MONOPOLIZES THE INSTITUTION

Possible Fake Suits Which Permit Him to Take Trips From Quarters Which Have All the Fixtures and Paraphernalia of Business Office—Favors Which Result In Crowding Other Prisoners

Albany, Sept. 2.—In a report submitted to the state commission of prisons, Secretary McLaughlin protests against the further confinement in the Dutchess county jail at Poughkeepsie of Harry K. Thaw. The report says in part:

"He (Thaw) has been held in this jail for several months pending the outcome of litigation, which looks now as though it might be interminable. His presence in this jail is embarrassing to the sheriff and objectionable on many accounts. The sheriff has no room for him except in the padded cell; even this he needs for temporary uses, and it would be an entirely unfit place in which to confine a man for months. Having been adjudged insane with homicidal tendencies, the sheriff would not be justified in confining him with the other prisoners. He cannot keep him in the hospital room for two reasons, first, it is not sufficiently secure; second, it cannot be spared for the permanent occupancy of Thaw.

"The result is that the sheriff has to give him an entire corridor, with the thirteen cells adjacent, in the principal jail for men. He needs this room for his other prisoners. The want of it makes it impossible for him to properly classify the regular prisoners. He consumes a large amount of the time of the jailor in escorting him to Fishkill Landing, White Plains and other places to attend hearings before the court and before referees, time which the jailor needs for his other duties. There is a good deal of public talk that some of these hearings are on fake suits, instituted by his friends to give him these outings.

"His presence here demoralizes the discipline of the institution. He sleeps in the corridor, not in the cell. He has all the fixtures and paraphernalia of a business office. He orders his food from the hotel, which has to be brought to him three times a day. Silly people send him bouquets of flowers. He is allowed the use of a whole corridor, constituting one-quarter of the entire principal jail for men, while the other prisoners are crowded, two in a cell frequently.

"All these things are under the observation of the other prisoners and create dissatisfaction, and a belief that men with money constitute a separate class even in a prison. These things produce an ugly feeling of discontent and rebellion among the other prisoners.

"It would seem that a person who had been adjudged insane, but who is now conducting proceedings for his discharge on the ground of recovery, should be detained in an institution where he would be under the observation of experts, who could advise the court of his changed mental condition, if it has occurred.

"Certainly, neither the sheriff nor his jailor has any such expert training or knowledge as would qualify them for the proper care of insane people, and this commission should protest against the further continuance of Thaw in this jail."

Æronauts' Narrow Escape

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Fearing a storm on Lake Ontario, the crew on board the racing balloon Ville Dieppe tried to descend at Niagara Falls. The rip cord failed to work properly and as a result the three persons in the basket got a bad shaking up and narrowly escaped death in the Whirlpool Rapids. Captain Mueller, in charge of the balloon, suffered the most. He was taken to a hospital and may be internally injured. With Captain Mueller were Perry Gregory, 16 years old, and Gerald Gregory, 18 years old.

Must Explain $53,135 Shortage

Havana, Sept. 2.—Ricardo Rodriguez, chief of the bureau of supplies and vouchers in the Havana postoffice, who disappeared after the discovery of a shortage in that department amounting to $53,135, was arrested last night. He was in hiding and disguised. Rodriguez is 70 years of age and was employed for ten years in the Philadelphia postoffice, entering the Cuban service from that city at the time of the first American intervention.

Desperate Criminals Transferred

Thomaston, Me., Sept. 2.—Warden Norton of the state prison has transferred fourteen of the more desperate criminals from the Maine state prison here to the Augusta asylum for the insane. The United States government has given to the state the old arsenal grounds, and the buildings thereon are being fitted for the state's insane prisoners.

Japanese Show Postponed

Tokio, Sept. 2.—The postponement until 1917 of the Japanese International exposition, which was to have been held in 1912, is officially announced. The postponement is due to economical reasons and to lack of time to properly prepare for the exposition.

HOT RACE FOR PENNANT

New Yorks Get a Boost by Winning Double-Header at Boston

Baseball interest was again at white heat yesterday, with all three clubs fighting for the National League leadership in action and two of them playing doubleheaders. The important change was the fall of Chicago, beaten by St. Louis, from second to third place, Pittsburg winning a doubleheader from Cincinnati, gaining the second position. New York's two victories over Boston slightly lengthened the lead of the former club. The standing of the three leading clubs this morning is:

Politicians In a Mixup

Boston, Sept. 2.—A fierce fist fight between Alderman James Curley and ex-Senator Thomas Curley marked the filing of papers in the state contests at the temporary office of the Democratic city committee in the old Advertiser building on Washington street. Alderman Curley came out of the contest with a torn shirt, and Thomas sustained a cut lip. The fracas started when the crowd of politicians began to push towards the door, ready to make a rush the moment it was open. Anticipating a fight, the owners of the building had removed the glass from the door.

Excessive Probate Expenses

Boston, Sept. 2.—The finance commission, in its report on the investigation of the office of the register of probate, finds that the payrolls have increased 225 percent in fifteen years, the expense to the county having increased five times as fast as the business of the office. It also finds that the cost of administration has been excessive. The commission recommends that the number of clerks in the department be reduced and that all appointments be subject to civil service rules.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Gertrude Pickering, 6 years old, was fatally burned while playing with matches at Rockland, Mass.

Eugene Peva, aged 43, a farmer of Weeks Mills, Me., committed suicide by taking carbolic acid in a fit of despondency, due to ill-health.

The body of Clara Shean, aged 30 years, was found floating in Beverly (Mass.) harbor. It is supposed she committed suicide during a fit of temporary insanity.

A petition of voluntary bankruptcy was filed at Portsmouth, N. H., by the Portsmouth Forge company, with a recommendation from General Manager Morton that a receiver be appointed.

SEVEN LIVES ARE SACRIFICED

But Three Survivors of Party of Ten Who Had Planned Last Outing of Vacation Season--Women Weighted Down by Water-Soaked Clothing and Not One Was Saved--Were Prominent In Social Circles

Deer Isle, Me., Sept. 2.—A tragic close was brought to a happy summer spent on this island resort off the Maine coast when seven prominent vacationists out of a party of ten were drowned by the capsizing of a thirty-five-foot sloop in Penobscot bay. The drowned:

Miss Alice Tairo and Miss Eleanor Tairo, Washington, sisters; Miss Evelyn Kellogg and Miss Lutie Kellogg, Baltimore, sisters; Miss Elizabeth G. Evans, South Hadley, Mass.; Jason H. Hutchins, Billerica, Mass.; Mrs. Lucy S. Crawley, Philadelphia.

The saved are: Captain Haskell of Deer Isle; Professor Edward Crawley of Philadelphia, husband of Mrs. Crawley; Henry B. Evans, Mt. Holyoke, brother of Miss Elizabeth Evans.

All of the victims were among the best known among the summer people here and were prominent in social and educational circles in their winter homes.

With Captain Samuel Haskell the party of summer people started out for a sail in Penobscot bay. It was drawing near the close of the vacation season for some of them and they had planned this as their last outing together. The sloop was of the "open" variety and it contained no ballast, as the party of ten weighted the boat down quite heavily and Haskell thought the human ballast sufficient.

The party had scarcely been gone an hour before the wind freshened up, heeling the sloop well over and dashing the spray upon the occupants, much to their glee. There was no thought of danger until the afternoon was drawing to a close, when Haskell decided that the wind was too heavy for his boat and the sea too choppy, so he brought the boat around and started a tack homeward.

All the party were perched high up on the weather side, as the sloop cut through the waves with the water almost coming over the gunwales on the lee side when Haskell gave a shout of warning that he was going to tack, and then threw over the tiller. Just at this moment the boat rose high up on a wave. An unusually heavy gust of wind struck her and in a twinkling the sloop was over on her beam ends and the party of ten was in the water.

For one brief moment it was every one for one's self. Haskell, however, saw the boat's tender was still right side up and shouted to Crawley and Evans to make for the tender, doing so at the same time himself. Crawley, however, still clung to the overturned sloop, looking for his wife, while Evans was trying vainly to locate his sister.

In the meantime Haskell had gained the tender and had climbed aboard. Cutting it loose he brought the boat up near Crawley and Evans and helped them aboard. But the women were beyond help. Weighted down by their water-soaked clothes and chilled by the cold water they had been unable to keep themselves afloat. Some of them had grabbed the person nearest them by the neck and in some instances they had gone down together, clasped in each other's arms.

The upset had been seen from Eagle Island, not far from the accident, and as soon as possible a sloop was sent out to pick up the survivors. They reached the tender just in time and pulled the three exhausted men aboard. Of the rest of the party but two were in sight and the boat was headed for them. They were the bodies of Lutie Kellogg and Miss Evans. They were unconscious, and, although the rescuers worked vigorously over them, all efforts to restore life failed.

The calamity cast a profound gloom over this resort. This particular party of nine that went out with Haskell had formed one of the liveliest groups of merry-makers on this portion of the island, and, determined to make the last outing together one to be remembered, they had started out from the wharf full of high spirits, giving a ringing cheer to those left behind.

One Believed In Polygamy

Washington, Sept. 2.—Secretary Straus has approved the action of the local immigration officials at Boston in the so-called Mormon cases, wherein a number of immigrants were held up on the allegation of entering the country in violation of law. Straus says that the two cases of exclusion were on the ground, as to one, of admission of belief in polygamy, and, as to the other, of physical and other reasons. A number of other cases have been held up for further investigation.

Despondent Men Kill Themselves

Boston, Sept. 2.—Percy Myers, aged 29, committed suicide by taking morphine in his room on Columbus avenue. Denis Leary, aged 45, killed himself by cutting an artery in his arm at his lodgings in the South End. Despondency in both cases is given as the cause of the deeds.

"ORDER OF THE SERPENT"

Spanish War Veterans Take Two Hundred Within Its Folds

Boston, Sept. 2.—Perhaps the most unique feature of the annual encampment of the United Spanish War Veterans was witnessed last night in the grand conclave of the Order of the Serpent, a side issue with the veterans which dates from an ancient order among the Filipinos learned of by the veterans when in service on the islands.

Over 200 candidates were initiated at the First corps cadets armory and later a parade was held about Park square, when the initiated marched over the course supporting the body of an immense serpent, nearly 100 feet long. The degree team were arrayed in the fantastic costums of chieftains of Filipino tribes.

The initial step toward the merging of all war veteran societies in one great body as the United Order of United Veterans was taken at the convention of the United Spanish War Veterans in Faneuil hall.

When the Philippine delegate to the convention arose and spoke the one word "ratified" the declaration brought the entire assembly to its feet, amid ringing cheers, for it meant that hereafter the veteran army of the Philippines would be known as the veteran army of the Philippines, department of the United Spanish War Veterans.

SUFFOCATED BY POISONOUS GAS

Four Sailors Meet Death In Ship Anchored Off Boston

Boston, Sept. 2.—Succumbing to the deadly fumes of burning pitch and oakum deep down in the forepeak of the British bark Puritan as she lay at anchor in President Roads, four seamen were suffocated and a fifth was partly overcome before he was rescued by shipmates. The dead are Harry E. Oisen, Carl Morsen, Peterson Becks and George Sunblade.

The fire, which caused only slight damage, is supposed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion. The four bodies were brought up to the city, viewed by the medical examiner and placed in the morgue, while the injured man, William Roberts, was taken to a hospital. It is believed that Roberts will recover.

Medical Examiner McGrath declared that death was due to inhaling some kind of poisonous gas given off by the burning cargo. The homes of the four victims have not been learned. All were Swedes and had been in Boston and out of work for some time past. A thorough investigation is being made by the police into the circumstances surrounding the accident.

The Puritan had taken on a cargo of 14,000 barrels of tar, oil, pitch and oakum, and went down to the roads Monday, where she anchored, awaiting favorable winds to start her on a long voyage to Vancouver, B. C. The twelve men composing her crew were signed in this city only yesterday morning and were taken to the bark on a tug.

Bad Money In Boston

Boston, Sept. 2.—That a counterfeiting game is being played in the heart of Boston is the opinion of federal inspectors, who, within the last two weeks, have heard of four complaints from men who accepted alleged fake half dollars. The coins are not particularly good imitations and a close scrutiny would reveal the fact that they were counterfeit. They are merely iron tablets whitened by a chemical process and stamped with genuine coins.

Bidders For Naval Contracts

Washington, Sept. 2.—Shipbuilders and their representatives gathered at the navy department for the opening of bids for the construction of ten torpedo boat destroyers, not to exceed in cost $800,000 each, and for the acquisition of three colliers, not to exceed $525,000 each. All the proposals made were at a figure considerably below the congressional limit. It is likely that each of the five firms making bids will get a contract.

Mob Got After Wrong Man

Springfield, Ills., Sept. 2.—Mrs. Earl Hallam has signed a statement that George Richardson is not the negro who assaulted her on the night of Aug. 14. A warrant is reported to have been sworn out for the arrest of another negro, Ralph Buston. It was the assault charge against Richardson, followed by his arrest and removal to Bloomington, Ills., that precipitated the recent bloody race riot.

Memorable Event Recalled

Toledo, Sept. 2.—A civic parade and the dedication of the Fort Meigs monument at Perrysburg, twelve miles from Toledo, divided interest in the forty-second encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic. Forty thousand journeyed to the historic spot where General Harrison checked the ambitions of the British general, Proctor. Many speeches were made.

Locomotive Engineer Killed

Waltham, Mass., Sept. 2.—Engineer Matthew Henderson, aged 45, was killed when his engine, attached to a freight train, jumped a frog in taking a switch here. The engine plunged over on its side and Henderson was frightfully scalded and crushed. In the cab with him at the time were two firemen and a brakeman. They escaped by jumping.

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889
The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.
Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.
The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Quincy Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE ROAD TO A MAN'S HEART.

By JENNIE LEE.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Elizabeth Hardcastle Yorke of Richmond, Va., has moved to the exclusive town of Middleville. She was a widow of twenty-seven and was a descendant of the first families of Virginia, and never for a minute did she let you forget the deep blue of her blood, the devotion of her late lamented husband nor the amount of money she once had.

Middleville turned up its nose figuratively when she settled in its midst, while the inhabitants did the same thing literally. Elizabeth's manner was too imperious for their northern independence; she laughed too much for a widow bowed in grief, and the fact that her old colored mammy called her "Miss Lizbeth" made them almost doubt whether a Mr. Yorke had ever existed.

The only thing which could be said in her favor was that she attended church regularly and contributed liberally to all the festivals. Such was the tolerant situation when the Rev. Dr. Botcher called to make his parochial visit.

"I'm so glad you came to see me," Elizabeth was saying. "I always did love ministers. They're so old fashioned and queer."

The Rev. Dr. Botcher had been twirling his cane as an inspiration to starting an agreeable bit of conversation. At this speech he stopped twirling it and grasped its handle somewhat firmly.

"Really, do you?" was the sum total of his answer.

"Supper is just this minute ready, doctor," continued Elizabeth. "Lay down that foolish old cane and come in and have some of mammy's blueberry cakes. They'll just make you wish you never had to go home."

The man made some weak comment about not expecting to stay, but he was swept into the cool dining room and was eating cake and sipping iced tea before he could remonstrate.

"I really came to see about those flowers planted along the line of your lawn," began the doctor.

"Aren't they just too lovely?" chimed in Elizabeth. "My husband used to say I had a most artistic eye for color"—

"Yes, they are pretty; but, you see, they are planted on the lawn that belongs to Mrs. Murray—over your line, you see."

"Yes, I believe she has been saying something to that effect," said the charming widow. "But I thought it was awfully nice of me to fix up her place so prettily even if it was encroachment. Don't you?"

"Well, I hadn't looked at it that way," agreed her divine company. "But really I must be going home, as we have prayer meeting tonight."

Mrs. Yorke bade her visitor good night and urged him to drop in again any time he was hungry for cakes. Elizabeth was smiling to herself with something of satisfaction when she heard footsteps on her porch. She went to the open door and met Mr. Murray, husband, and evidently the much lesser half of Mrs. Murray, her next door neighbor.

"How perfectly lovely of you to call, Mr. Murray!" exclaimed Elizabeth as she extended her hand to add to her cordial welcome.

"Er—yes—that is, I came over about that row of dahlias you planted over there on our"—

"Oh, that's all right," interrupted Elizabeth. "You're quite welcome to them. You see, I have so many, and I want my neighbors to enjoy some of them. But, dear me, do sit down and I'll call mammy to give us something to eat." And she disappeared, to return in a few minutes.

At her heels came the dear old mammy laden with a tray of raspberry shrub and a huge cocoanut cake that looked like a ball of snow.

Mr. Murray found himself seated before an old hickory table in an armchair eating cake and drinking the shrub. "Finding himself" may seem an inadequate explanation of how he got there, but that is what he told Mrs. Murray on his return home.

Mrs. Murray was watching the couple from the corner of her own veranda, and when Mr. Murray returned smacking his lips and Mrs. Murray noticed a flake of cocoanut on his vest she called him to account for his fruitless call.

Saturday noon found Elizabeth digging among her flowers. Her sweet voice was humming "Way Down In Carolina," and as she flitted from one rosebush to another she looked almost like some white spirit among the gardens of earth. Her task was interrupted by mammy.

"Miss Lizbeth, de town mayor done call. Come right in, honey, and see what he want."

Elizabeth gathered up in her arms the roses she had been cutting for the house and walked around to the front of the cottage. The town mayor was good to look upon. The greatest compliment that Elizabeth could pay him was the silent comment she made to herself—that he did not look like the rest of Middleville.

"Is this Mrs. Yorke?" asked the man as she approached.

"It certainly is," acknowledged Elizabeth as she bowed before him. "And this is Mr.—Mayor—shall I call you?"

"My name is Waring," announced the mayor as he met the piercing gaze of the widow. "I came on a rather unpleasant errand. You see, I receive all the complaints of the townspeople, and Mrs. Murray, your neighbor, you know"—

"Isn't she a dear!" exclaimed Elizabeth. "Such a nice neighbor! But come along in to luncheon, for mammy's popovers will be spoiled if we stand here much longer."

Waring said he wasn't hungry.

"That's just the point," cried Elizabeth, with enthusiasm. "You will be if you come into the house the smell mammy's popovers, corn pudding and, best of all, ice cold mint juleps! Come right along and tell me your complaints at the table."

"But, Mrs. Yorke," interrupted Waring, "I couldn't think of imposing on a stranger in this way."

"Imposing!" echoed Elizabeth. "Lawdy me! If you knew how glad I am to have some one to eat with me!" She dropped into one chair at the table and motioned him to the other.

As a boy Waring had visited in the south and had never ceased talking about the corn pudding which even his mother could never make with any degree of success.

Mammy's corn pudding was the same kind as that which he had eaten in years gone by, and instead of the complaints of his townspeople the mayor told most interesting tales of his boyhood—how he had roamed from one state to another, how he loved the south and its people, how he had settled in Middleville and taken up polite farming to kill time and how the people had made him mayor.

Not until after luncheon, when the mayor and the widow were seated on the shady porch and Waring caught sight of Mrs. Murray leaning over the hedge of dahlias, did he remember why he was a guest of Mrs. Yorke. Believing in the eternal fitness of things, Waring realized that this was not the time to push his complaint, and he left after many hearty thanks and more complimentary speeches.

Sunday morning found the altar in the little church laden with dahlias—gorgeous red and white blossoms, hanging their heads in reverence to the text, taken from the twenty-third chapter of the Proverbs and the third verse, "Be not desirous of his dainties, seeing they are deceitful meat."

Waring attended church as part of the duties of his office, and this Sunday he walked home with his hostess of yesterday. He wanted to leave her at the gate, but Elizabeth protested.

"Do come in as an act of charity. You see, I've not been well, and our old home doctor ordered me to some quiet country place to rest up. So mammy and I landed here. But, oh, I'm just nearly dead with lonesomeness, although I do feel the change has done me good. Come along and have a bit of our fried chicken, won't you?"

He came that day, and he came again.

The women of Middleville were still skeptical of Mrs. Yorke, but in mixed debates the men stood up for her, and some of the married men went so far as to say disagreeable things to their wives.

The mayor was seldom at his office, he was seldom found at home, and the day came when he must be seen at once. Mr. Murray knew where to find him and hurried down the street toward Mrs. Yorke's little cottage. Just at the gate he met the Rev. Dr. Botcher, about to make his second call on the new parishioner. Together they walked down the broad lane. They were not disappointed. The widow and the mayor were on the porch together.

"We were just talking about you," exclaimed Elizabeth as she greeted the minister.

"Just in time," called out Waring, and the newcomers noted the blush that overspread the already pink cheeks of Elizabeth.

Mr. Murray lost no time in telling Waring what he wanted.

"But you know I resigned my office last week. You see, I'm going on a long trip," announced Waring.

"Trip!" echoed Dr. Botcher. "Surely you're not starting on another one of those lonely globe trotting trips of yours, Jack?"

"This one won't be lonesome, 'cause I'm going to take a wife along to cheer me up. That's what we were talking about when you came along. How about a little wedding in the church, eh?"

They could not see the beaming face of Elizabeth, for her back was turned to them. She was busily engaged in spreading a white cloth over the hickory table in the corner of the porch, and mammy was making various trips back and forth to her own mysterious storehouse.

Origin of the Postal System.

The wonderful postal system, which has reached out until it includes every country on the face of the earth, had its beginning in the mind of an ingenious Frenchman.

In 1658, early in the reign of Louis XIV., M. de Velayer established a private penny post. Boxes were set up at the street corners for the reception of letters, and offices were opened in various quarters of Paris. Collections were made once a day from the street boxes, followed many hours later by a tingle delivery, and thus the first post-office in the world was established.

M. de Velayer was so greatly encouraged by the success of his enterprise that in order to develop it still further he printed certain forms of billets or notes which were intended to cover all the ordinary requirements of business in great towns. These forms contained blanks which were intended to be filled up by the pen with such special matter as might be necessary to complete the writer's object. The idea at once became popular, and the printed forms accompanied the expansion of the postal service throughout the larger cities of France, and it was many years before they fell into disuse.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

Another day with noon temperature below 70.

Adams street near Rice's hill is being resurfaced.

Miss Abbie Livingston of Elm street has returned from a visit with friends at Scituate.

The Spanish War Veterans have a wet afternoon for their big parade in Boston.

The Quincy built submarines are taking part in the naval manoeuvres off Newport.

Herbert T. Whitman and family returned from their summer home in Maine on Tuesday.

The Spanish War Veterans will have a grand campfire this evening at the Mechanics building, Boston.

City Treasurer Curtis, wife and daughter were guests on Sunday of W. L. Hayward at Scituate.

The Quincy Yacht club challenge cup is to be placed on exhibition in the window of the Quincy Savings bank.

The new class of the High school will report at the school next Tuesday at 11 o'clock. All old pupils will report at 8.15.

Frank F. Courtney formerly of Quincy has been placed on the pension list of the Boston school teachers with nineteen others.

Mrs. Nellie Sweeney of Baxter street, with a party of friends has gone for an extended tour among the White Mountains.

Miss Josephine Wright and Miss S. E. Graves of Revere road have returned from Kearsarge after a delightful summer among the New Hampshire hills.

The National encampment of the United Spanish War Veterans will conclude tomorrow with excursions during the day, and a grand military ball in the evening.

Makaria goes to Reading Saturday to play thefast Reading team, who have shut out their opponents in the last three games, and who defeated the Quincys last Saturday 1 to 0 in 14 innings.

Mr. and Mrs. Herrick of Cincinnati, who have been guests of their daughter, Mrs. Henry Schulze of Bigelow street for four weeks, have returned home, with pleasant memories of the east.

The First church will be reopened on Sunday when Rev. E. C. Butler the pastor will preach. The pastor has been refreshed by his summer vacation spent in West Harwich, Amherst, North Sutton, N. H., and Quincy.

Headmatser Cleveland of the High school will meet parents and pupils to answer questions regarding the courses of study at his office in the High school building on Saturday, from 3 to 6 o'clock.

Charles F. Merrick, formerly a teacher in Quincy, has completed his probationary period as master of the Sherwin school of Boston, and will serve during the pleasure of the school committee.

The two games Labor Day between Makaria and Atlantic, at the Park in the morning and Atlantic in afternoon will be fast ball. Atlantic, smarting under the defeat of last Saturday is getting together the fastest talent obtainable and Makaria is trying to make it three straight games.

The electric cars to Hough Neck will run on half hour time through the winter months. This is stated on good authority. The entire credit for getting half-hour time belongs to the excellent and progression committee appointed by the Houghs Neck Associates at their last meeting. A. F. Baird is chairman of the commmittee and he seems to accomplish every thing he undertakes.

Attention Christian Endeavors.

Come to the rally to be held at Union Congregational church, Weymouth Landing, and hear one of the best Christian Endeavor speakers in the State. Come and enjoy a pleasant afternoon and evening Labor day.

Newsy Notes at Houghs Neck

George Morey of Taber avenue won the nightly prize at Brown's alleys on Mouday, getting a score of 281.

Fine rooms and board at Midland Hotel by day or week. Home cooking, fish dinners, every accommodation, reasonable rates. 2t

The voting power of the Neck has increased over 100 per cent up to date. There are 207 voters at the Neck.

The summer residents are starting to leave for their winter homes. The cold wave of last week frightened many. Few realize that the month of September is the best month of the year at Houghs Neck.

Parties seeking a pleasant holiday or week-end can be accommodated at reasonable rates. Large airy rooms with board at the Midland Hotel 2t

Bargain Hunters Out.

That advertising pays was illustrated today at the store of the Norfolk Credit Co., 1479 Hancock street. Long before the doors were opened this morning the sidewalk in front of the building became congested, and after the opening a large number of clerks were busy all day in taking the money of the customers who were quick to avail themselves of the bargains. On some of the small goods the number to a person was limited to the disappointment of many. But there are also bargains in clothing for men and women, and in household goods and furniture.

able base for the cup be added that would contain the names of winners of the cup.

Ex-Commodore Crane then moved, and it was voted, that a committee be appointed to consist of ex-Commodores Adams, Faxon, and Rice and Commodore Robbins, to raise funds for a suitable base for the cup.

Commodore Morss said he had not much to do with the cup, other than to be Commodore of the club that has held it for two years. What impressed him was the way it was won by the Quincy challenger. Mr. Adams was able to keep his boat on her feet and keep her going. He admired the sporting spirit in which the cup was offered. Much was learned under the original conditions, and it has developed a better type of boat. He thanked the club for the support given the Corinthian club races, and was glad to be present and help at the celebration. If any club was to win he preferred it to be the Quincy club.

Ex-Commodore Fred B. Rice said that the credit for the Recruit in the first race was due to Mr. Adams, for it was built on his designs. He then spoke of the early trials of the Recruit, and of its construction. The cup has made good. It has developed everything, and also developed what not to do. All the original boats were products of Quincy designers. He spoke of the good fellowship it had created, and hoped that it would keep moving. He did not want to see it go from Quincy unless someone could win it.

Upon motion of Paul R. Blackmur a rising vote of thanks was given to Mr. Adams for his skill in winning the cup.

Commodore Robbins then produced another cup which had just been presented to the club by Mrs. Lorenzo Packard of East Braineree, to whom it had come by inheritance. It was the first challenge cup offered by the Quincy Yacht club and was won in 1874, by Capt. A. A. Packard of the "Lightfoot."

At this point Mr. Adams took his departure and was again cheered by the yachtsmen. The cheers were so spontaneous that they almost lifted the roof.

Messrs Carlton, Tougie, Woods and Whittemore sang, the Corinthian club anthem, and the yachtsmen closed the evening with singing the songs on the song sheet.

Many regrets were expressed by the committee of the Corinthian club at the unavoidable absence of Vice Commodore Morton Smith. Mr. Smith represented the Quincy club on the board of judges for the past two years and as one of the Corinthian club stated, he is a polished gentleman whether his club wins or loses. It is perhaps not generally known that Mr. Smith is convalescing at Buffalo, N. Y., from an operation for appendicitis.

Won by Sonoma Girl.

Sonoma Girl, owned by Miss Lotta Crabtree of Squantum, and driven by Walter Cox of the Christian Hill stables, Manchester, N. The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Trustees to Repair The Point Bridge

The trustees of the Fore River bridge, composed of the chairman of the selectmen of Hingham and Weymouth and the Mayor of Quincy, met at City Hall this morning. The trustees meet the first Wednesday of each month. For some time they have been considering the matter of repairs to the Fore River bridge. Quite a lot of repairs are needed which would require considerable money. Just how much will be expended is a question. The trustees, however, voted to take immediate steps to put the bridge in repair and make it safe.

Physical Director Back at Y. M. C. A.

G. S. Maxwell who has been employed by the city of Salem to supervise three playgrounds in that city during July and August, finished his work there and returned Monday to resume his duties at the Y. M. C. A. in Quincy.

This was Mr. Maxwell's second year on the Salem playgrounds. Last year the work was carried on by the Y. M. C. A., and was such a success that the city fathers decided that the city should assume the responsibility this year. Accordingly $1,500 was voted by the city, and the management of the grounds given to the park department. This amount supplemented by generous private subscriptions enabled the park commissioners to do a splendid work for the children of Salem.

Work at the Y. M. C. A. is showing signs of reviving with the approaching cool weather. New members are coming in every day. Two star events are being planned in the athletic line, viz: A handicap athletic meet for Labor day, and a relay race to Brockton for Thanksgiving.

Itch cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Never fails. Sold by C. D. Harlow & Co., Druggists.

NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.

On and after September 16, we have decided

TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE

as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods

AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills over due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every day. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade, ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and ta kethem with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Now think this proposition over, and we feel confident that you can see it just the way that we do.

SOMETHING THAT IS NEEDED HERE IN QUINCY.

Water Rates To Shipyard

Commissioner Bainbridge when asked what effect the building of the reservoir at the Fore River shipyard would have on the city, said that he had been doing a little figuring. It was a little doubtful at the present time just what the reduction of the amount of water used by the Fore River Company would be. He had estimated that at first the reduction of the amount of water purchased from the city by the Fore River Co., would be one third.

The reduction of the amount paid the Metropolitan system by the city would only be reduced on a basis of two-thirds of the reduction of the amount of water used by the Fore River Company. The Metropolitan assessment is made up of one third on valuation, which in this case would remain the same and two thirds on consumption.

The city pays the State four and one-half cents per 1000 gallons for its water which it sells to the Fore River Co., for 8 cents per 1000 gallons.

This year the Fore River Company pays the city, in round figures, for water, $8,000. If their consumption is reduced one-third they will pay but $5,000 making a loss to the city of $3,000. On the other hand the city will save in its Metropolitan assessment for consumption, in round figures, $1,150. This would mean a net loss to the city of $1,850 per year.

Continuing the Commissioner said that of course if the consumption of water by the Fore River Company should fall off much the rate of eight cents per thousand gallons would probably be increased.

Commissioner's Work Appreciated

Editors Daily Ledger:

For the first time, at least within the writer's recollection, an intelligent and systematic effort is being made to put the leading thoroughfares of the city in good condition. Perhaps some will say that this innovation is a too expensive concession to users of automobiles, but this view should not be the general one, and would be untrue and unwarranted.

The first impression made upon strangers passing through a city is apt to be the condition of the main streets, and this alone, aside from the more important considerations of convenience and safety, would justify the expenditures.

Besides the constant experimenting in automobile construction will in no distant day reduce the cost to a figure low enough to allow their exclusive use in business transportation, and the abuse and suffering of the noble horse will be at an end. The Mayor is certainly deserving of credit.

That portion of Quincy avenue between Scammell's shop and the beginning of the fine macademized road, a short distance to the south, is extremely dangerous, and has been so for many years. It is one of the principal thoroughfares and deserves, and doubtless will in due time receive proper attention.

Some new method of surfacing roads used by automobiles will sooner or later have to be adopted, as a macademized road almost immediately begins to break up in holes, because the small crushed stones are dislodged.

I notice that one of the Milton park roads is being re-surfaced by a thick covering of screened gravel, which is rolled hard. I have observed that the old country gravel roads show but little comparative wear. A convention of roadbuilders abroad is now considering this important question.

Radley—Grant.

The marriage of Mr. Daniel Radley and Miss Mabel Grant of Atlantic took place on Tuesday at Providence, R. I. They were attended by Mr. Charles Travers and Miss Lizzie Rizzly, both of Atlantic. Mr. and Mrs. Radley left for a trip to Washington, D. C., and on their return will reside at the home of the bride's uncle, Royal Fratus, of 93 Hancock street.

Athletic Carnival For Labor Day

The final arrangements for the Copeland Club's athletic carnival, to be held Labor day at the Ward Four playgrounds, have been completed, and the committee in charge report that everything is ready for a whole day of sport and enjoyment.

For baseball, two games will be offered; in the morning the Knights of Columbus will cross bats with the Elks, and as each team has won a game a fine contest can be anticipated A handsome cup, emblematic of the championship of the city has been offered for a prize. In the afternoon the opposing nines will be the Copeland Club and the team representing the St. Mary's T. A. Society. This game will be a treat to the fans, as both teams have secured a fine line-up of baseball talent for the game, which means $100 to the winning team.

Between the baseball games the time will be occupied with a full line of athletic sports, including a 100 yds. dash, 220 yds. dash, 440 yds. dash, and a relay race of one mile between four of the local clubs. As a special attraction, a match race has been arranged between Powell, the crack sprinter from the Milton Y. M. C. A., and Joe Elcock of the Iroquois Club, for 100 yards. The well known speed and records of these men are such that a pretty race is bound to take place.

The program, as planned will not leave a dull moment in the day's sport, and everything will be kept on the jump from 10 A. M. till 6 P. M.

Celebration of 73d Birthday

Mr Adolph F. Gustafson of 39 Parker street celebrated his 73d birthday yesterday. Quite a gathering of friends assembled to congratulate him. Considering the rheumatism which has bothered him considerably of late, he said he was feeling O. K., and it gave him great pleasure and made him feel younger to see so many present. He was the recipient of many presents and flowers were sent in great quantities from friends in remembrance. One little two year old girl presenting him with a handsome bouquet. During the evening, coffee, cake and ices were served.

Mr. Gustafson is employed by the City and despite his years is able to keep his end up with the best of them.

He is a veteran of the civil war and a member of Grand Army Post 88, of this city.

Ladies Night Of the Elks

About 200 have signified their intention of participating in the ladies' night outing of the Elks held tonight at Paragon park. The outing is complimentary to the ladies who assisted at the carnival held last winter. Many others in addition to these will participate, so that the number will be fully that mentioned above.

Special cars for the park will leave City Square at 6 o'clock sharp. Arrangements have been made so that in case of stormy weather closed cars will be used.

George A. Dodge, the manager of Paragon Park, is a member of Quincy lodge, and has promised to give the party the best dinner ever served at Nantasket. This is a pretty big statement but those who know Mr. Dodge say that he will do as he promises.

After dinner combination tickets admitting to all the features at the park will be presented to the ladies. In case of a storm arrangements have been made so that these features will be brought to the dining room and seen there.

Anyone who knows the Elks, also know that they never do things by halves and there will be something doing every minute tonight, from the time of arrival until the departure for home.

Grand C. E. Rally.

Labor Day, Sept. 7, is of unusual interest this year to the young people of our city and county who are members of the Christian Endeavor Society, for at the Congregational church at East Braintree there will be a grand C. E. rally, commencing at 2.30 P. M., and continuing till 9 o'clock, with a banquet and postprandial addresses at 6. The afternoon session (2.30 to 5) is especially attractive, with twelve participants, among them are Dr. Hardy; Rev. A. R. Atwood, Rev. C. F. H. Crathern, and the presidents of Clark and Norfolks Unions.

Of interest to "License" Voters.

The last criminal statistics of the state of Massachusetts for the year ending Nov. 30, 1907, show that 27,718 persons were committed to prison during the year. Of these 27,718 persons, 26,628 were of intemperate habits. That is, 92 per cent of the criminals of our state last year, were intemperate people. Shall we license the saloon in Quincy and add to this class of intemperates and criminals?

School Repairs During Vacation

During the vacation season the usual amount of repairs have been made to the school buildings of the city. In most cases these repairs include the overhauling of the boilers, painting and repair of blackboards. This year, owing to requirements by the new State law, considerable extra work has been necessary to the boilers in all of the school buildings.

As for specific repairs the greatest amount of work has been done at the High school to comply with the requirements of the State inspector. There the exits to the fire escape from the hall have been made one and one-half feet wider, and the doors made so as to swing. An iron railing has also been placed around the balcony front. The exit signs have been wired on different circuits from that by which the building is lighted. The locks on all the doors have been changed. Fire extinguishers have been placed in the gymnasium. All doors that opened in have been changed so as to open out.

In all of the school buildings of the city as well, doors that opened in have been changed so as to open out. This has necessitated new locks and bolts being put on.

The only other school where specific repairs have been undertaken is at the Willard school. At this building a new iron fire escape is to be built on the Copeland street front. This has been ordered from the builders, but unfortunately has not arrived, so that it will not be in position when schools open next Tuesday.

This fire escape will be built on the outside of the building, and will be reached by large doors which will take the place of some of the centre windows. These doors open on the inside on the first landing of the front stairs leading to the second floor. On the outside there will be a wide platform with short flights of steps from each side leading to the ground.

—In the four cables of the Manhattan bridge, now being constructed over the East river, New York, there will be 23,100 miles of wire, weighing 12,570,000 pounds and costing $1,567,125.

ACKNOWLEDGES TAFT AS LEADER

Foraker Is Prepared to Plunge Into the Campaign

MEETING OF ERSTWHILE RIVALS

Grand Army Parade and Attendant Throngs Serve as Scenery For Dramatic Political Incident--Each Praises the Other In Speeches Delivered Later Before a Large Crowd In a Toledo Playhouse

Toledo, Sept. 3.—That Judge Taft and Senator Foraker are politically together is not only the public admission of both Taft and Foraker here, but also the political sensation of Ohio. Foraker is an avowed candidate for the United States senate to succeed himself and his services in the national campaign have been sought by National Chairman Hitchcock and the senator has promised to take the stump.

This rapid composition of political differences makes a "story" in politics which contains all the elements and phases of the science. The conflicting ambitions of both principals, as attested by the pre-convention strife, has constituted not only the official record, but the general impression in the public mind. Both this record and impression are now swept out of existence.

Mr. Taft left Middle Bass island yesterday on a small power yacht and upon reaching Toledo was taken to the Grand Army reviewing stand. Taft said on this journey that he knew of no arrangement whereby he was to meet Foraker, nor did he know of any endeavors to effect such an arrangement.

But the city of Toledo seemed to know all about it, and when, after the candidate had been in his place only a few minutes, a carriage which headed the parade stopped in front of the stand and discharged its passengers, there was a tremendous shout as the thousands who were within sight of the stand caught sight of the senior senator, his colleague, Senator Dick, Governor Harris and Mayor Whitlock.

Senator Foraker was the last of the little party to reach Taft's side, but when he did and each raised high his right hand, Taft saying, "Hello, Senator," and Foraker "I am glad to see you, Judge," and then shook hands long and heartily, there was a mighty shout from the crowd and then applause and cheers. The two sat down together and remained in earnest conversation for more than an hour, incidentally together receiving the plaudits of the marching veterans. Foraker left to keep a business engagement and Taft remained till the four-hour parade had passed.

Before Taft departed he shook hands for twenty minutes with a great throng. He reached the Lyceum theatre at 4 o'clock, where, when Taft had been cheered for a few minutes by an audience which filled the playhouse, Foraker made his appearance.

"It is a pleasure for me to be here with Senator Foraker," said Taft, "because, when governor of Ohio, he gave me really my first chance and took a good deal of risk in putting a man of 29 on the bench of the superior court of Cincinnati. We have entered a great oratorical campaign. It is a pleasure to think in his presence that we are going to stand in the campaign shoulder to shoulder, with the full strength of the Republican party."

Mr. Taft here went directly to a political argument, in which he repeated what he had previously said, that the real issue of the campaign was whether the voters of the country would give their endorsement to the Roosevelt policies and the deeds of the Republican party or turn to the Democratic party with its untried promises.

After the candidate had reviewed the tariff question, spoken of the present restoration to prosperity and taken a rap at the Democratic party he concluded with the sentence: "I did not come here to make a speech; I came here to attend the reception in which Senator Foraker, Governor Harris and other distinguished Ohioans are participating."

After a most glowing endorsement of Taft by Bishop Fallows, Foraker was introduced and was received with decided cordiality. He began by scoring the press to the extent of saying that there came near being a tragedy in his absence from the meeting during the first ten minutes of its duration, because the newspaper correspondents were preparing dispatches announcing the confirmation of "the feud and bad feeling that is existing between Judge Taft and myself." He continued:

"Under the circumstances I hope I may be pardoned if I say here that there neither is or has been, so far as I know, the slightest ill-feeling of any kind between Judge Taft and myself. And if there had been you could not lose me that way.

"If there is anything I have a right to claim claim beyond another it is that I am a Republican 365 days in the year. I have my preferences sometimes as to who should receive the honors of the party and everybody generally finds out what they are. But I am one of those old-fashioned Republicans who settles every such question at the convention. When the Chicago convention nominated Judge Taft to be the Republican candidate for the presidency this year, that instant he became my leader. He has been my leader ever since and he will be my leader until the polls close on the night of election.

"I want to repeat it," he said, "that by his experience on the bench, in the Philippines, as secretary of war, in the construction of the Panama canal, in all the positions has has filled, has been such as to qualify Judge Taft almost beyond every other man for the presidency. We are going to elect him and if he does not make a success of it it will be his own fault."

Senator Foraker followed this statement with a review of his early acquaintance with Taft and the favorable impression he then gained of him.

Senator Dick made an address in which he said that it would be a great loss to Ohio, to the country and to the senate if Foraker was not returned.

Mack's Appointments

New York, Sept. 3.—The organization of the eastern department of the Democratic national committee was completed late yesterday and National Chairman Mack announced that National Committeeman Hudspeth of New Jersey had been chosen vice chairman of the committee to manage the campaign in the east, with a sub-committee of twenty prominent Democrats of the east to assist him. John E. Lamb of Indiana has been made vice chairman of the executive committee and George W. Green of Rhode Island has been chosen vice chairman of the committee on club organization. Herman Ridder of New York has been made head of the publicity bureau in the eastern headquarters and John J. Kennedy of Buffalo has been selected as secretary of the national committee here.

Dupont and Penrose Denounced

Sioux City, Ia., Sept. 3.—Addressing a Democratic rally here last night, William J. Bryan denounced Coleman Dupont of Delaware and Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, members of the Republican executive committee, as not expected to become reformers, because, as he declared, all of their affiliations were with the trusts. Bryan traveled the entire night and day through Minnesota and a part of Iowa, where he received enthusiastic receptions. From the rear platform of the train at various points he made several talks. At Alton, Ia., he discussed at length the tariff and the subject of guaranty of bank deposits. He again charged Taft with not being satisfied with the Republican platform and with being forced to continually amend it.

Independence League Campaign

New York, Sept. 3.—Thomas L. Hisgen and William R. Hearst have started on a country-wide tour on behalf of the Independence party ticket. Both men will speak on Friday night at Indianapolis. From there they will go to Milwaukee, where both are scheduled to speak on Saturday, and then will start toward the south, speaking in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio on their way to Kentucky. John T. Graves, who has been resting in Virginia, will join the party in that state. After covering the south the party will work westward by way of Texas and out to the Pacific coast. The party does not expect to get back to New York state before the end of October.

Sharp Fight In Indiana

Chicago, Sept. 3.—Chairman Hitchcock of the Republican national committee has decided to visit both Indiana and Ohio on his return trip to New York. The Indiana situation is giving the officials of the national committee some concern and that state will receive special attention.

The national committee promised to supply whatever speakers are necessary in order to conduct a vigorous campaign in Ohio and the state will be given its full quota of funds in order to defray expenses.

Canal Bank Dynamited

Joliet, Ills., Sept. 3.—Unknown persons dynamited the bank of the Illinois and Michigan canal at Channahon. The breach made by the explosion is 100 feet long. The district is flooded and the entire section of the canal from Joliet to Channahon, twelve miles, is emptied of water. The dynamiting is the result of a fight between the state on one side and the villages of Channahon and Troy on the other side, over the bridge question. The state refused to build or repair broken down bridges.

Of Interest to Masons

Fitchburg, Mass., Sept. 3.—Charles H. Writer, who was on trial for five days, charged with unlawfully using the name of the Masonic order in organizing a Masonic lodge, was found guilty and held in $500 bonds upon his appeal to the superior court. The case was brought for the purpose of testing the constitutionality of the statute passed by the legislature to prevent the unauthorized use of the name of the Masonic order.

Fred Rustin Murdered

Omaha, Sept. 3.—Dr. Frederick T. Rustin, famous Yale athlete, the foremost surgeon of Omaha and of the west, was shot and killed just before daylight as he attempted to enter his home. There are no clues to the murderer, and the case is one of the strangest that has ever come before the Omaha police force for investigation. Rustin was well known in medical circles throughout the entire country.

Roosevelt Meets Brother Masons

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 3.—President Roosevelt last night came down to the village and attended the fall communication of Matinecock lodge, No. 806, of Free and Accepted Masons, of which he is a member and in which he took his degrees as a master mason while he was vice president. He had not attended a meeting of the home lodge in two years. The president made a short address to the members.

QUAKERS GAINING GROUND

May Soon Become a Factor In Race For the Pennant

Victories by Pittsburg and Chicago yesterday, while New York was forced to remain idle owing to wet grounds in Boston, brought the two rivals of the present leaders up closer to the coveted position. Meanwhile the observant baseball enthusiasts are keeping an eye on Philadelphia, which is winning with considerable steadiness while the three leading clubs are meeting successive reverses and not increasing their percentages. The standing of the three leading clubs is as follows:

BUT TWO LINES STOOD THE STRAIN

Torpedo Destroyers Towed From 'Frisco to Honolulu

Honolulu, Sept. 3.—The cruisers of the Pacific fleet, commanded by Rear Admiral Swinburne, finished the first stage of the cruise undertaken to test the practicability of towing torpedo boat destroyers when the West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Tennessee docked yesterday afternoon in the harbor and the remaining vessels, including the supply ship Solace, anchored outside. The arrival of the ships was witnessed by many residents of the islands and a hearty welcome was accorded the officers and men.

Except upon several occasions when the tow lines parted or became so chafed that alterations or stoppages were necessary, the fleet maintained the one point echelon formation taken outside the harbor of San Francisco until yesterday afternoon, when the torpedo boat destroyers were cast off and proceeded under their own steam to the anchorage off the harbor.

The destroyers Preble and Perry were towed the entire distance without break or delay of any kind. The Whipple's line once became chafed and her consort was obliged to slacken speed while repairs were made. Each of the other destroyers had one or two broken tow lines to its credit. In every instance the break was at the bow of the torpedo boat destroyers, which, as expected, proved the weakest point in the connecting line. The cruise was never attended with danger or difficulty.

Immigration Statistics

Washington, Sept. 3.—That there was a net increase of 209,000 in the population of the country as the result of immigration during the last fiscal year is shown by the reports of the department of commerce and labor. During the fiscal year the total immigration was 924,000, while the outward movement, the alien emigration, was 715,000.

SPARK IGNITED LEAKY GAS BAG

Balloon Caught Fire Five Hundred Feet In Air

AERONAUT DASHED TO EARTH

Tragedy on Central Maine Fair Grounds Witnessed by Twenty-Five Thousand Persons--Friends Not Surprised at His Fate, For Ærial Navigator Had Long Courted Death --Wife Saw His Awful Fall

Waterville, Me., Sept. 3.—In full view of 25,000 spectators, assembled on the Central Maine fair grounds here, Charles O. Jones of Hammondsport, N. Y., fell a distance of 500 feet to his death. Among the witnesses of the frightful plunge was Mrs. Jones and her child. The aeronaut expired about an hour and a half after the accident.

Jones had been at the fair grounds with his dirigible balloon "Boomerang," known as a Strobel airship, since Monday, the opening day of the big show. Yesterday he arranged to make a flight between 3 and 4 o'clock, but such a high wind prevailed that a delay was necessary. At 4:30 conditions had modified to some extent and he gave the word to have the machine released.

When the aeronaut reached a height of more than 500 feet the spectators were amazed to see small tongues of flame issuing from under the gas bag in front of the motor. At this time the balloon had passed out of the fair grounds. Many persons in the great crowd endeavored to apprise Jones of his danger, but several minutes elapsed before he noticed the fire. Then he grasped the rip cord and by letting out gas endeavored to reach the earth. The machine had descended but a short distance when a sudden burst of flame enveloped the gas bag, the framework immediately detaching itself from the bag.

Jones fell with the frame of his motor and when the horrified spectators reached him he was lying under it, about a quarter of a mile from the fair grounds. The gas bag, which fell nearby, was completely destroyed.

Among the first to reach the side of the aeronaut was his wife, who had seen the accident. The physicians who were in the crowd found that Jones had no chance to survive, as he was injured internally and his spine was broken. He died at 6:15 o'clock. Coroner Reddington will hold an autopsy.

Jones had trouble with his balloon Tuesday on account of cold weather Monday night, which caused a number of leaks through the contraction of the gas bag. The leaks were repaired and the balloon inflated, but the wind was so high that Jones considered it dangerous to ascend. It is thought that the bag leaked again yesterday and that a spark from the motor caused the disaster.

Was Considered Too Daring

New York, Sept. 3.—News of the death at Waterville, Me., of Charles O. Jones greatly shocked his friends in this city, but did not, however, surprise them, for Jones has literally courted death while giving exhibitions at amusement parks in the vicinity of New York.

No more daring sky-pilot ever made ascensions in this territory, and for a while scarcely a week went by in which he was not the victim of some hair-raising accident, due in great part to his utter fearlessness.

Only a few weeks ago he fell into the Hudson river from his airship. He was rescued and continued to give exhibitions. In a second accident he landed in his balloon on a network of highly charged feed wires. Friends warned Jones that he was too daring, but he would not abandon his flights. Just after this Jones attempted an ascension from a New Jersey park and his balloon broke away prematurely. The aeronaut narrowly escaped being dashed to pieces. He was carried across country toward the Sound and after a thrilling trip effected a safe landing at Throggs Neck. These are only a few of the exciting events of his exhibitions here.

Successful Army Balloon Flight

Washington, Sept. 3.—Three officers of the signal corps started in the new signal corps balloon No. 12, recently purchased from Captain Baldwin, from Fort Myer, Va., and landed near Pocoonoke, Md. Lieutenant Lahm acted as pilot, and accompanying him were Lieutenants Foulois and Selfridge. An average speed of twenty-five miles an hour was made and a distance of over 100 miles covered.

From Cinder Path to Vaudeville

New York, Sept. 3.—The withdrawal from amateur athletic ranks of John J. Hayes, winner of the Marathon race at the Olympic games in London recently, was announced in a letter written by Hayes resigning his membership in the American Athletic Union. Hayes has engaged to appear on the vaudeville stage.

Kicked to Death by Colt

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 3.—Frank Kelly of Yonkers, N. Y., who arrived here Tuesday night with a stable of thoroughbreds belonging to various local trainers, while preparing to exercise a colt yesterday, was thrown and kicked over the lungs by the animal, dying instantly.

SMOOT TO THE RESCUE

Trip to Boston Results In Release of Mormon Converts

Boston, Sept. 3.—United States Senator Smoot of Utah made a hurried trip to Boston yesterday and for several hours was closeted with Immigration Commissioner Billings and the board of immigration commissioners, inspecting the evidence in the case of the two score or more of Mormon converts who were held up by orders from Washington ten days ago, two of whom were ordered deported.

It is understood that, in addition to examining the evidence, Smoot was himself summoned as a witness before the board and gave evidence under oath. A long conversation with Washington took place over the telephone while the senator was at the immigration station, and very soon after twenty of the detained Mormon converts were released.

Asked as to his purpose in visiting Boston, Smoot declared that he had come to "find out what the immigrants had been held for." He then said he had found out.

"The statement that the Mormon church paid the fares of the converts to this country is absolutely false," said Smoot. "The immigrants may have had friends out there who paid their fares, but the Mormon church as such did not."

SPANISH WAR VETS DRAW COLOR LINE

Negro Camp of Washington Declared Unattached

Boston, Sept. 3.—The drawing of the color line in the organization of the United Spanish War Veterans was the most conspicuous feature of the fifth annual convention proceedings yesterday, being brought about through a resolution to declare the Charles H. Thomas camp of Washington "unattached."

Commander-in-Chief Hale left his chair to defend the resolutions detaching the negro camp from allegiance to the department of the District of Columbia and he was vigorously opposed by members of the negro camp from the floor. Hale explained that it was the policy of the national body to have all negro camps unattached until such time as they could have a department for themselves. He acknowledged that the charter for the particular camp, which was produced in the meeting, placed the camp on the same footing as white camps in the department of the District of Columbia, but explained that the charter had been granted by mistake, on account of which he had personally caused the offering of the resolution to declare the camp unattached to correct the fault.

After a long debate the resolution was adopted, and in the future the Thomas camp will pay its per capita tax direct to national headquarters.

Outside of the convention proceedings the big event of the day was the parade of 5000 of the veterans, who were given a grand ovation through the splendidly decorated streets of the city. A campfire was also held last night, but the veterans were disappointed at the absence of both General Miles and Admiral Schley, who were expected to be present.

Fire Swerves From Giant Trees

Stockton, Cal., Sept. 3.—The fires in the forest near the big trees has taken a direction northward and away from the grove. The fire fighters will check it in a few hours. The only big tree attacked by the fire was the fallen trunk of Mother of the Forest, and that is not damaged. The fire has burned over an area of four or five miles square and the grove seems to be no longer in danger.

Bullet Penetrated Boy's Heart

Philadelphia, Sept. 3.—Gustave Kromer, aged 13, was shot and instantly killed by Edward Smith, a private watchman in the storage yards of Vare Bros., city contractors. When Smith attempted to chase a crowd of boys off the grounds he says he fired a shot downward into the ground to frighten them. The bullet, glancing upward, penetrated Kromer's heart. Smith was arrested.

Parade of Grand Army Veterans

Toledo, Sept. 3.—The Grand Army parade was remarkable for the absence of accidents and cases of exhaustion, and for the good order which prevailed. Despite the crowd of 100,000 visitors, there were fewer accidents, fewer misdemeanors and less work for the police generally than on any average day of the year. There were about 12,000 veterans in line.

Was In Poor Health

Falmouth, Mass., Sept. 3.—The body of Edward Bacon, a cousin of Assistant Secretary of State Robert Bacon, was washed ashore on the beach at Falmouth Heights. Bacon mysteriously disappeared last Thursday. He was not in the best of health and it is believed he committed suicide. He was 41 years old and the son of Daniel Bacon of New York.

Miss C. S. Hubbard Retires from Business

Miss Caroline S. Hubbard, who has been in business in City Square for thirty-six years, retires from active business life this week, having sold her dry goods store to Mrs. George W. Wheeler of Avon, much to the regret of a large number of customers.

Miss Hubbard came to Quincy from Boston, and on April 1, 1872, opened a dry goods store in the front room of the building which she has occupied in recent years as a dwelling. Her venture was a success from the start, and the need of additional room was soon felt. A few years later the original building was elevated, and the present store built beneath it.

Miss Hubbard has personally supervised the management of the store during these years, and has kept it abreast with the times, so that today it is looked upon by Quincy's older residents as being the "Old Reliable."

Miss Hubbard feels that she has earned a long vacation, and she will make her home on Billings street, Atlantic.

With the retiring of Miss Hubbard from active business, almost the last of the business houses of City Square of the early seventies have changed hands. One by one the active business men of those days have turned the reins over to the newer generation.

In retiring Miss Hubbard takes with her the well wishes of her many business and personal friends. She was always an advertiser in the Quincy Patriot, and also with the Daily Ledger since the paper was started in 1890.

In the work of Bethany Congregational church, as well as her store, Miss Hubbard has been active.

Republican Contest In the Tenth

With the chances better for winning the district than in many years, says a Boston paper, the Republicans in the tenth district had to admit yesterday that they could not find a candidate of proper size upon whom all factions would unite. This leaves three candidates in the field, Charles H. S. Robinson of Ward 16, who will enjoin Mayor Hibbard from indorsing him if he hears of it in time; Lee M. Friedman of Ward 17 and J. Mitchel Galvin of Ward 20.

Candidate Friedman and Galvin held a conference with Secretary Herman Hormel of the city committee over at State headquarters yesterday afternoon and Friedman was willing to withdraw on certain conditions but Galvin, who is a converted Democrat, and as fervent as they all are, said he should stay in, so both are in. Secretary Hormel filed both their papers. It looks as if Friedman could win the primary, but the Republicans at large in the district don't believe he can win.

City Officials As Election Officers

The names of several city officials appear in the list of election officers appointed on Monday by Mayor Shea.

In Ward One, precinct one, William J. Walsh, chairman of the Board of Health is named as an inspector.

In Ward Two, precinct one, Councilman James B. Oakes is named as an inspector.

In Ward Two, precinct two, Councilman William A. Carey is named as a deputy clerk.

In Ward Six, precinct one, Assessor John A. Duggan is named as deputy warden.

In Ward Six, precinct two, Cornelius M. Duggan of the Board of Health, is named as an inspector.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

C. C. Foster has fish bait for sale.

No Daily Ledger will be published next Monday, Labor day.

Andrew Gregory of Field street, another Quincy octogenarian, passed away on Tuesday, in his 82d year.

Rev. A. R. Atwood of Quincy Point preached at the Congregational church at Winchester last Sunday.

Mr. Plummer, principal of the Woodward Institute can be consulted at the school Saturday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock.

Most of the yachts of the Quincy, Wollaston and Squantum Yacht clubs will take part in the annual rendezvous off Hull on Sunday.

Archer M. Nickerson, principal of the Lincoln and John Hancock schools, has returned from his summer vacation spent in Washington, Maine.

Miss Edith Crane of New Jersey, formerly of Quincy, who has been the guest of friends, leaves today for home, first going to Chelsea.

Evening services will be resumed at the Wollaston Methodist church Sunday Sept. 6, at 7 o'clock. Preaching by the pastor; music by the choir of boys.

A lengthy letter in arraignment of young women upon the streets and public places of Quincy has been received for publication, but has been forwarded to the Police department.

James H. and George F. Elcock of Copeland street have recently purchased 100 acres of the Hiram French estate at Braintree, which has a frontage of three quarters of a mile on Great pond.

The enthusiasm of guests from other states who visit the birthplaces of the Presidents on Franklin street is almost unbounded. Recently there have been parties from New York city, Buffalo and even Nebraska, and they found the old houses very interesting.

Base ball interest in Quincy is centered on the two Makaria-Atlantic games for Labor Day. The wise supporters of Atlantic say they have something up their sleeve and that there will be something doing Monday.

The famous old cup defender Puritan, which defended the American cup in 1885, has been sold and will be used as a passenger and freight schooner between Providence, R. I., and the Cape Verde Islands. Some years ago the Puritan was built over into a pleasure steamer at Quincy Point for Mr. Burnham.

Atlantic and Squantum residents are on the verge of again presenting a petition to the street railway company to have Edward Dunn as conductor of the Squantum cars. There is so much travel with heavy grips and suit cases on this line that Mr. Dunn's kindness in assisting passengers has sharpened the contrast with his successor.

Dr. Joseph B. Heald and family of Appleton street have moved into their new quarters on the corner of Squantum and Billings streets.

South Quincy patrons of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. are disappointed, for the price of 12-ride tickets is not $1.10 as at first reported but $1.15.

Dr. Harry Kolseth of Atlantic left last Saturday to join Mrs. Kolseth and his son Harold in Baltimore, where they intend to make their future home.

The residents of Ward Six who keep hens have not taken into consideration that while they enjoy the treat of fresh eggs, their neighbors fight off the rats that the hennery calls forth.

The gray and white cat who gives free operatic concerts in Atlantic between twelve and two A. M., is tempting providence in the guise of the owner of a handy shot gun. The high notes of the feline are particularly rare and penetrating.

If one was only inclined to follow the pursuit of stolen fruit, how the great red peaches abounding on the many fruit trees in Atlantic would tempt him. The very fact that this fruit is not molested is a good sign of the trustworthiness of the small—and possibly the large—boys. They may be mischievous, but that is harmless if it is free from maliciousness.

Newsy Notes at Houghs Neck

The Quincy Yacht Club held the regular weekly hop Wednesday night.

The Odd Ladies will be tendered a big benefit concert at the Palms Friday night.

Miss Harriet Baird of Sea avenue is entertaining a few girl friends this week.

Bowling tournament at the Pandora alleys tonight. Greenaway has the highest score at the Pandora alleys so far this week. His score is 284.

Unlawful Practice Of Medicine

Lieut. McKay returned from the White Mountains on Wednesday, having in custody Ronald S. Drysdale, whom he had arrested on a default warrant. Drysdale was in court some weeks ago on a complaint charging him with the unlawful practice of medicine. At that time a fine of $100 was imposed. An appeal was taken and the case was continued to allow him to procure bonds to prosecute his appeal. When the case again came up, Drysdale did not appear and he was defaulted. Nothing was heard from him until the police received a tip that he was summering in the White Mountains. Lieut. McKay went after him. He was arraigned on the default warrant and the court imposed a fine of $150. Drysdale appealed and was ordered to recognize in $500 for his appearance before the superior court. Mr. Drysdale when in Quincy was a nurse.

Daylight Break.

Thieves entered the residence of Henry A. Putman, 39 Oak street, Braintree, Wednesday afternoon and ransacked the house. The house had been left unguarded and entrance was made through a window. A neighbor saw the men leave the house but thought one was Mr. Putnam.

The break was made about 3.30 o'clock and the parties secured silver and jewelry to the value of $150. One of the men was quite tall and was dressed in a light suit. The second man was considerably shorter and was mistaken for Mr. Putnam by parties who saw them leaving the house. The descriptions of the two men answers that of the parties who are believed to have made a number of breaks throughout the county.

Jail Sentence.

John Strachan and Thomas K. Smith were arraigned in court for assault on Joseph Levowich at Quincy. Levowich who lives on Sumner street testified that Wednesday the two defendants were stealing his apples and that he tried to drive them away. Instead of going they jumped over the fence and assaulted him. The court found Strachan guilty and sentenced him to two months in the house of correction. Smith was found not guilty and was discharged.

TODAY'S COURT.

Axel Johnson was sentenced to a year in the house of correction for a felonious assault at Quincy.

Ronald S. Drysdale was brought in on a default warrant, and was fined $150 for the unlawful practice of medicine at Quincy.

Albert Collier was arraigned for felonious assault at Braintree, and was held in $500 for the grand jury.

John Strachan was sentenced to two months in the house of correction for assault on Joseph Levowich at Quincy.

GERMAN ACTION ON MOROCCO

Recognition of Claims of the Usurper Inflames France

UPSETTING OF ALGECIRAS ACT

Kaiser Accused of Attempting to Monopolize Situation In Which All Powers Are Interested--French Line of Conduct Will Not Be Modified--A New Complication Over Efforts to Get Lion's Share

Paris, Sept. 3.—The action of Germany in breaking up the concert of the powers with regard to Morocco by notifying the signatories of the Algeciras act that she considered the actual situation demanded the immediate recognition of Mulai Hafid, the usurping Sultan of Morocco, has fallen like a bombshell in Paris.

After an informal conference by the ministers and the exchange of telegrams with Premier Clemenceau, The Associated Press was authorized to announce that France intends to pursue the policy already mapped out and that the powers will be allowed to decide whether her course or that of Germany is preferable.

The tone of the newspapers indicates a conviction that the outside world will side with France. The Temps declares that Germany's move proves that she intends to play her own game in Morocco. "After demanding the intervention of Europe at Algeciras," this paper says, "Germany is now pursuing a policy in Morocco without regard to Europe."

Continuing, The Temps points out that France considers herself bound to view the situation from the general standpoint, even to the neglect of her own interests. Had she desired to take advantage of the situation, the concentration of a hostile army under one of Mulai Hafid's lieutenants on the Algerian frontier would have furnished an ample excuse to take only her military security into consideration.

Germany's note, this journal goes on, means nothing or it means that Germany demands the unconditional recognition of Mulai Hafid. If the latter, it is unacceptable. Germany has the right to pursue her own policy, but if she runs counter to the interests of Europe she must not be astonished if she finds herself isolated. It is certain the other powers have sufficient authority without Germany to exact the necessary guarantees. France's line of conduct is inspired by the general interest, and it will not be modified. "Perhaps when Dr. Vassel presents the olive branch from Wilhelms Strasse, Mulai Hafid may remember that the favors of this particular consul have cruel sequels; that Germany changes her proteges in Morocco as elsewhere, and that the promptest recognition is not always the most durable. If the interest of Europe is to treat unitedly with the Sultan of Morocco, whoever he may be, it is the interest of the sultan to treat with a united Europe."

The Liberte is of the opinion that this coup is aimed directly at France, but says that even Germany's allies must protest against this attempt on the part of Emperor William to monopolize a situation in which all the powers are interested.

The Journal Des Debats considers that Germany's move is useless and regrettable and sure to complicate the settlement of the Moroccan problem.

The cause of the trouble may be thus summed up:

The powers of Europe virtually agreed to allow France a free hand in Morocco. Acting on this backing, France recognized the rights of the sultan as against the usurper to the Moroccan throne and French influence has been thrown in his favor. The French right to police Morocco has been extended to that of bringing peace in that country if possible.

Germany now upsets the program by recognizing the rights of the usurper and thus throws the entire Moroccan situation into a decided tangle and deals a blow at France and the other powers.

But One Friendly Power

Tangier, Sept. 3.—The departure of Dr. Vassel, the German consul here, for Fez, which has caused such a sensation in Europe, seems to have produced a general impression among the Moroccans that Germany is the first power to recognize Mulai Hafid and the only power friendly to him.

As Viewed In Brussels

Brussels, Sept. 3.—The Independence Belge declares that in sending Dr. Vassel to Fez and in issuing her note to the powers, Germany has committed a double fault which is liable to cause new and dangerous complications.

No Bunking In Morgues

New York, Sept. 3.—To avoid further use of the city morgue as a sleeping place for homeless men and women, which was forced a week ago when the cool weather drove hundreds of poor persons to seek shelter, Comptroller Metz has given permission to use a number of unoccupied city buildings.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Friday, Sept. 4.
Sun rises—5:13; sets—6:14.
Moon sets—11:10 p. m.
High water—5 a. m.; 5:30 p. m.
It will be fair and cooler in New England.

Johnson Bros. And the Cash Trade

It will be very welcome news that Johnson Bros. are to cater in the future to the cash trade, which new business methods are demanding everywhere. Their new system is plainly and honestly stated in their three column announcement in this paper, and the reasons are convincing. Where people make their purchases at the store and take the goods home they will be allowed a liberal discount. The "Johnson quality" has held a large number of regular customers, but there are many who have to economize and make the dollar go as far as possible, so they must trade for cash with those who cater to the cash trade.

Johnson Bros. have contracted with the Daily Ledger for a large space for the next six months and in two weeks will begin to offer bargains for cash which will certainly increase their trade largely, and it will continue the popular store of the city.

Letter From the County Seat

(Special to Daily Ledger.)

Next week will see things liven up in the old shire town when the high courts will resume sessions after a month's recess. On Tuesday, Sept. 8, the grand jury for the September term of the Superior criminal court convenes, and the jury waived session of the civil court comes in, with equity suits, motions in law and divorce libels.

There are prospects that Dist. Atty. Groves will be kept pretty busy getting the cases ready in season to have the grand jury report the last of the week, as there are many matters for it to consider. The session of the superior criminal court comes on Monday, Sept. 14 for a consideration of the cases.

At the present time there are 105 inmates in the county jail. Most of the prisoners are employed in the prison itself, the greater part in the shoe shop making heels, and the others around the prison doing work in the various departments, such as kitchen laundry, engine rooms and taking care of the corridors. Others, the trusties are put to work on the farm, and the county has a respectable one too, raising crops of which Sheriff Capen is justly proud.

Among the names appearing in the papers in the Norfolk probate court this week are the good old fashioned ones of Thankful and Welcome, truly expressive of a happy state of mind on the part of the parents. Shakespeare said "What's in a name?" There may be a lot, and there probably was a lot in the olden days when naming a baby usually meant something more than merely a means of designation. They were then really "welcome" and the parents were truly "thankful." How often it is otherwise today. Too often I am afraid. Those were the days when Hope, Faith and Charity vied with Truth, Patience and other like names in popularity, and were expressive of beautiful thoughts in behalf of the bearers.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

September Meeting Board of Trade

A well attended meeting of the Quincy Board of Trade was held Wednesday evening in their rooms in the Adams building, and the coming year promises to be a progressive one for this organization. President Walter E. Piper was in the chair.

The report of the outing committee showed that their would be a small sum to turn into the treasury when all the returns were in, and the bills paid. This was good news as the night was very stormy, and prevented many from attending.

Upon motion it was voted to extend a vote of thanks to the committee on outing.

The query of a member of the Houghs Neck Associates was brought up, but no answer was deemed necessary, and a motion to answer was buried.

After discussion the president was authorized to continue the contract with the Telephone Company for telephone at the rooms.

There was an informal discussion of the work of the State commission on thoroughfares on land and water, and a public meeting will probably be held later.

Cigars were passed by Eugene R. Stone at the close of the meeting.

After adjournment several matters were discussed informally, including the inland sea, pilotage, schoolhouse lots, State highways, etc.

Building at Squantum.

Ex-Councilman George F. Sawyer, Jr., has sold a lot of land at Squantum, containing 10,000 feet, to James Ford Clapp, a well known Boston architect, who will build an artistic bungalow and occupy the same for a summer home. Mr. Sawyer has also sold to Edward C. Amazeen, of Melrose Highlands, a lot containing 11,-500 feet, at Squantum. Mr. Amazeen will build the coming winter.

"My titled marriage," sighed the first American heiress, "brought on me a countless horde."

"And mine," snapped the second, "was a baron waste."—Baltimore American.

LADIES' NIGHT

Elks Entertain Royally with Outing to Paragon Park

Four of the big cars, of the street railway were required Thursday evening to convey the Elks and their ladies to Paragon Park. It was an outing complimentary to the ladies whose efforts made the carnival held last winter a success. It was a success in every way, and was another witness to the off repeated statement that the Elks are royal entertainers.

The special cars left Quincy at 6.10, and it was as happy a crowd as one often sees. All the way down the air was filled with the music of all the popular choruses. Each car had its chorus leader. For instance past Exalted Ruler Dan Deasy led the singing in the first car, while Phil Sullivan, the well known vocalist of the Knockers club, performed the same function in the second car.

DANIEL F. DEASY.

Mayor Shea's musical voice led the singing in the third car. Just who led the singing in the fourth and last car is in doubt, but it was said to have been Dan Desmond.

Nantasket was reached in good season, and there the Quincy party was joined by the Hingham and Nantasket contingent which swelled the grand total to over 250.

The party marched direct to the Palm Garden, where they were welcomed by Manager Dodge. One end of the garden was reserved for the party, and it was not long before the long lines of tables were filled with laughing eyed, light hearted ladies, and Elks.

On the piazza was Maitlands band and in the balcony of the hall, Holden's orchestra, with H. F. Blancy and Johnny McGuire as soloists. Between these two musical organizations there was continuous music. While the band was playing, the members of the orchestra were casting admiring glances at the "deers," and when the orchestra played the band was gathering wind for the next selection.

The menu for the dinner contained the usual items that go to make up a good shore dinner.

After the dinner Exalted Ruler W. R. Thomas rapped for order, and extended the ladies a cordial welcome. He then introduced Daniel J. Deasy, who was the exalted ruler at the time the carnival was held. Dan apologized to the ladies for the delay of the Elks in showing them their appreciation for what they did to make the carnival a success. He said some other things, but only he knows what, for the music drowned out his voice.

Mayor Shea was then introduced as a brother Elk, as well as Mayor of Quincy. The Mayor said that he was proud to be an Elk, and he was pleased to see so many fair ladies and brave men.

Then the band struck up the Elks refrain, "We're here because we are here," and the balance of the Mayor's address will never be recorded in history.

Immediately after dinner combination cards admitting to all the side shows were presented the ladies. The party separated in groups and while the Mayor and his legal advisor, City Solicitor McAnarney went camel riding with two "deers," others took in the magic mirrors, merry widows, living roulette, roller coaster, a trip to Mexico, and the human laundry, while some were prevailed upon to slide the bumps.

WILLIAM R. THOMAS.

There was something particularly fascinating in the human laundry, and after they had once been through it required considerable effort to get some of the old Elks to move on.

It was announced that cars for home would leave at 11 o'clock, and a few minutes before that time quite a crowd gathered at the head of the street leading to the steamboat wharf to wait for the car. At that time the long glass covered walk near the Hotel Nantasket was dark, save for the reflection of the inside lights. Against one of the windows was the silhouette of a Romeo and his Juliette. It required but a suggestion from some one to send the whole party across the street and a serenade of the couple was in progress. The couple stood it for a few minutes and then the silhouette faded away.

It was 11.15 when the special cars pulled out of the beach, and at midnight they reached City Square. Special cars were then run to Neponset, Houghs Neck, Braintree, and West Quincy, so that all were taken near their homes.

The outing was a grand success in every way and the ladies all said they had the time of their life.

The committee in charge of the outing included: Exalted Ruler W. R. Thomas, William J. Coleman, Elmer Paine, Robert J. Williams, Jr., P. E. R. Daniel J. Deasy, P. E. R. Fred W. Tirrell, Edmund W. Courtney, Benjamin Johnson and Leo J. McMaster.

BUSY AT SHIPYARD

Work Starting On New Contracts And Working Force Is Being Increased

The indications now are that the Fore River shipyard will be a very busy place all winter. Material is arriving in large quantities for the sixteen new contracts recently obtained, and many additional men have recently been employed.

The company has contracts for eight small steamers to be used in the Artillery service of the United States overnment also an aceon going tug for the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, and seven large steel carfloats for the same company ,similar to those built for New York harbor.

Besides the mammouth battleship North Dakota and other vessels now building, the company expects to receive the contract for two or three torpedo boat destroyers under proposals opened this week, and several submarines and possibly another battleship.

The outlook is very encouraging for the employment of a large force of men all winter. Good times are therefore ahead for Quincy.

Representative Joseph Walker of Brookline and Representative Elmer L. Curtiss of Hingham were in town today the guests of Representatives Hultman. Mr. Walker will be the next speaker of the Massachusetts House.

Burglary on School Street

It was discovered Thursday afternoon that the residence of Mrs. J. M. Sheahan on School street had been entered by burglars. The family are at Post Island for the summer, but come to Quincy nearly every day. When they visited the house on Thursday the break was discovered.

Entrance to the house had been gained by smashing a small pane of glass on the side of the back door which permitted a hand being put through to throw back the lock.

Once inside the parties ransacked the house from top to bottom, turning everything upside down, even going as far as to open a bag containing the surgical instruments of the late Dr. Sheahan.

As far as ascertained at the present time nothing was taken. The break looks like the work of boys.

Handicap Athletic Meet.

An athletic meet will be held on the afternoon of Labor Day in the back field of Merrymount Park open to all the members of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. Each event will be handicapped in order to give every competitor a chance to win.

The following events will be run off starting at 2.30 P. M.

220 yard dash.
Running high jump.
Quarter mile run.
Running broad jump.
Shot put.
Mile run.

Good prizes will be given. All entries should be in tonight in order to be properly handicapped.

—Save the broken lens; we can match it. We grind them at 1473 Hancock st., Quincy. You may watch the operation. Williams Tel. 279-3

Newsy Notes at Houghs Neck

A children's carnival was held at Pandora hall Thursday evening. Over twenty of the little girls of the beach participated. The Misses Marion Heltz, Mildred Rogers and Dorothy McDonald were very good in a Hungarian dance. Evelyn Cahoon and Marion Keltz did a cakewalk very gracefully. The class danced a sailor's hornpipe and Spanish dance. The little girls who took part were: Mary Fish, Anna Reilly, Nellie Sweares, Margaret O'Brien, Katherine McDonald, Katherine Driscoll, May County, Beatrice Kent, Myra Wilson, Eva Slaunwhite, Helen Golden, Alice Fish, Florence Sweares, Hilda Keltie, Lestina Beal, Beatrice Lesuer, Theresa Golden and Gwendolyn Scammell. The children had practiced under the direction of J. A. Graham and did exceptionally well.

Considerable interest is being taken in the contest for the cup offered by the Pandora Alleys to the highest three string total for duck pins. The conditions are that the six highest bowlers up to September 11 roll off for the cup September 12. Some of the best bowlers of the beach have already signified their intentions of entering the contest.

The following bowlers have qualified for the weekly roll off at Brown's alleys tonight: Flynn, Scott, Burke, Greenaway, Hammond, Gregg, Kelly, Ritchie, I. Ritchie, Galvin and Victor Carpenter.

Miss Evelyn Cronin of Brockton is the guest of Miss Rose Coughlan of Rogers street for a few days.

A special meeting of the Quincy Yacht club will be held tonight at the club house.

Mrs. Annie Collins has returned to her winter home on Savin Hill avenue, Dorchester.

INVESTIGATE and ECONOMIZE.

NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.

On and after September 16, we have decided

TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE

as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods

AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills over due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every day. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and take them with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Now think this proposition over, and we feel confident that you can see it just the way that we do.

SOMETHING THAT IS NEEDED HERE IN QUINCY.

A HIGH GRADE OF GOODS SOLD AT LOW PRICES.

So Remember your 5 per cent discount.

Respectfully,

City Square, Quincy. JOHNSON BROS. Hancock Street, Corner Maple.

ACTOR'S AWFUL CRIME

Murders Wife and Dismembers Body

BONES FAIRLY STRIPPED

Placed With Skull In Furnace and Set on Fire

FLESH PACKED IN A TRUNK

Tragedy Revealed by Shrewd Work of a Hackman

Boston, Sept. 4.—The most horrible and brutal crime committed in Greater Boston since the Susan Geary murder of four years ago, and much resembling it in its details, was disclosed last night by the discovery of the dismembered body and sliced up strips of flesh of Mrs. Honorah Jordan, an actress, aged 30 years, of Somerville, in a trunk in a boarding house at 7 Hancock street, this city. Later the head and bones of the limbs were found in the furnace of the home of the woman in Somerville, while the scalp and hair and other parts of the body were found in the kitchen range of the same home. Chester R. Jordan, aged 29 years, of Somerville, an actor, made a full and complete confession of the crime, according to the police.

Jordan is a brother of Mrs. Jesse L. Livermore, wife of the well known stock and cotton speculator. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Phineas Jordan, and a sister, Mrs. Kendall, prominent in Somerville social circles, live in that city. Jordan is a large man, being 6 feet 3 inches tall and weighing 208 pounds.

According to Jordan's confession he accidentally killed his wife Tuesday night in a quarrel at their home and, becoming frightened at the consequences, cut up the body and placed it in a trunk. He then planned to take the steamer Harvard, which would have left according to schedule on Wednesday night for New York, and throw the parts of the body overboard. The fact that the Harvard was laid off, owing to an accident, disarranged his plans and he was obliged to hire a hackman to take the trunk to a Boston boarding house to await a more favorable opportunity.

Hackman Was Suspicious

The discovery of the crime was due to the suspicions of the hackman, George W. Collins, who had in mind the numerous robberies which have taken place in and about Boston recently, and believing the trunk he was carrying about contained silverware, notified the police yesterday afternoon.

Collins reported that he had first taken the trunk from the North station early in the day, it having come in from Somerville on a local train. It was first taken to the South station, where he left it. Later he was called upon by Jordan to carry the same trunk to Hancock street. Collins left Jordan and the trunk about 1 o'clock at No. 7. He then notified the police of station 3, which is nearby.

Jordan did not appear nervous or alarmed when commanded by Police Sergeant Crawley to open the trunk, but showed some delay, and it was not until after considerable argument on the part of the officer that he produced the key to the trunk and inserted it in the lock. Turning his head, Jordan threw up the cover of the trunk and then sank back on his knees, burying his face in his hands and sobbing.

A Horrible Disclosure

Sergeant Crowley staggered back, aghast at the disclosure, for the open trunk disclosed a horrible mass of hacked flesh, a woman's torso filling the greater part of the trunk, while chopped up pieces of flesh from other parts of the body were stuffed into the corners. There was no clothing of any sort over the remains of the body.

Jordan submitted without protest to arrest. Giving his name and address he declared the body in the trunk was that of his wife and appeared perfectly willing to tell the officials everything concerning the case that they desired.

For more than four hours last night Jordan was closeted with the police officials of Boston and Somerville and time after time went over the horrible details of one of the most brutal murders imaginable. While professing that he was in a daze when the crime was committed, by the clearness and conciseness of his tale it seemed apparent that whatever preceded the actual killing the most careful plans were laid for the disposal of the bod and the covering up of the crime.

Jordan's Story

Jordan stated that he was married in September, 1904, to Mrs. Honorah Eddy, whose maiden name was O'Reilly and whose home was in Somerville. He did not know who his wife's first husband was or what had become of him. The couple went on the vaudeville stage, Jordan taking the part of a tramp and his wife that of a nurse, in a sketch. Mrs. Jordan, according to her husband, had taken to drinking of late and, he claims, was associating with other men and he became jealous. It was in a jealous quarrel Tuesday night last that the trouble started which ended in he death of the wife.

Jordan declared to the police that after knocking his wife down stairs and finding that she was dead he placed the body in the kitchen and went to bed and to sleep. When he awoke in the morning he went to the kitchen, where he found his wife's body, denuded of clothing, lying on the floor. He says he did not touch the body, but cooked his own breakfast in the kitchen, eating it in the presence of the body of his dead wife. He then went to a nearby drug store and ordered an express team to come to his house and take a trunk to be shipped to the South station. He told the agent that there would probably be no one at the house, but that the door would be open and to walk in and get the trunk he would find there. He then went to a stationery store which he was soon to open, discussed plans for the opening with W. H. Mannix, whom he had hired to work for him and remained at the store until noon. He then returned to his home.

A Most Brutal Task

Wednesday afternoon Jordan coolly set about the brutal work of dismembering his wife's body. With a butcher knife, razor and shears he cut off her head, arms and legs and placed them in set tubs in the kitchen. With the knife, which he sharpened to a keen, razor-like edge, he carved off almost every particle of flesh from the bones of the legs and arms, while the parts were yet in the set tubs. The scalp was also removed from the skull and this with the hair he placed in the kitchen range. The bones of the limbs, with the skull, he took to the basement and placed in the furnace firebox. He started a fire in both stove and furnace, which, however, failed to consume the bones. The torso was then split open, the entrails taken out and placed in the stove on top of the scalp and hair.

The torso and the chunks of flesh from the set tubs were then packed into the trunk, which was closed and locked ready for the expressman. Jordan then busied himself, according to his confession, in washing his wife's clothes in the set tubs and cleaning up the blood splotches which covered the room and wash stands.

Trunk Shipped to Boston

The trunk was taken to the Somerville station and shipped to Boston on Wednesday. Jordan came to Boston and attempted to secure passage for New York on the Harvard, but learned for the first time that the steamer was not running that day, owing to an accident. The body remained at the North station over night, therefore.

Early yesterday Jordan engaged Collins to take the trunk to the South station with the idea of going to New York by train. He changed his mind, however, and, securing tickets on the Ivernia, which was to sail today, again called the same hackman and had him take the trunk to the Hancock street house.

Jordan then went off and bought a roll of wire, wire nippers and eight window weights and several sheets of heavy wrapping paper. With these, he stated to the officers, he intended to wrap up the flesh of the body of his wife, in chunks, weight them with the window irons and throw them into the Charles river, inasmuch as he had failed to secure passage on the boat for New York. The weights, paper and wire were found on a mantel in the room with the trunk.

At the Somerville Home

A search of the home at Somerville revealed the skull and bones of the limbs in the furnace firebox and the scalp, hair and entrails in the kitchen range. Two sets of false teeth were also in the furnace, one of the front upper teeth being set with a diamond, after the custom of actresses. The clothing of the woman was located in a tub in the cellar. Marks of blood were also found in the set tubs, where Jordan stated he placed the dismembered parts when cutting up the body and where he washed the woman's clothes to free them from blood stains.

For some weeks past "the Jordans," as they were known on the stage, have been appearing in their sketch of the tramp and the nurse at a moving picture theatre in this city.

Wholesale Poisoning In Hospital

Berlin, Sept. 4.—During a meeting of the municipal council the wholesale poisoning of officials and nurses connected with the Virchow hospital was made the subject of inquiry. It developed that more than 100 persons employed in the institution had been poisoned by bad meat. Several of these were seriously affected. The conclusion was reached that there was no proper supervision of the food served to the nurses and measures have been taken to prevent such an occurrence in the future.

Borah Talks to Bangor Folks

Bangor, Me., Sept. 4.—The first Republican rally here in this campaign was held last night, when an audience of about 1500 people heard speeches by Senator Borah of Idaho on national issues and by Warren C. Philbrook on state issues. Borah dwelt chiefly upon the accomplishments of the Republican party in the development of the country's resources and wealth, contrasting its record with that of the Democrats.

FOUR POLICEMEN ARE INDICTED

Failed to Do Their Duty During the Springfield Riot

ARE SCATHINGLY CONDEMNED

Failed to Use Club, Handle a Pistol or Raise a Voice Against the Mob --Assisted In Work That Brought About Destruction--Civil Service Commission Advised to Deal With the Alleged Offenders

Springfield, Ills., Sept. 4.—The special grand jury called to probe the recent race war adjourned last night after returning seventeen more indictments, this making a total of 117 during the session. Among those returned yesterday afternoon were indictments against four Springfield policemen, Oscar Dahlkamp, Joseph Ferendez, George H. Ohlman and George W. Dawson. They are indicted for alleged failure to suppress the riot when detailed for that duty. The report says:

"After the most diligent inquiry we condemn in unmeasured terms the cowardly, contemptuous action of those members of the police force who, having taken the oath of office, failed to do their duty; men who were paid from money obtained from the pockets of the people of this city to protect life and property; men who were ordered by the heads of departments of the police to go out and disperse the mob, and who not only failed to use a club, handle a pistol or raise a voice against the mob on the side of law and order, but some of whom are shown to have assisted by act and word in doing the work that has brought destruction to thousands of dollars' worth of property and has brought the blush of shame to every law-abiding citizen of this city; men who under oath were bound and who, had they acted promptly, could have driven back to the obscurity from whence it came the mob that for a time assumed to hold Springfield in its bloody grasp.

"We recommend that the civil service commission of the city of Springfield, without fear or favor, determine by fair trial who failed to prove himself a worthy member of the force and deal with him accordingly

"We further recommend that the civil service commission inquire diligently into the so-called 'third degree' or 'sweating process' said to be carried on in various cases in the city prison, and if it is found that after an arrest a prisoner is struck by hand or club or otherwise mistreated, either in the city prison or in any of the rooms connected therewith, that the same be stopped."

Tired of Formal Cer monies

Melbourne, Sept. 4.—Today completes a week's carnival, in which the entire population of Melbourne and tens of thousands of those living outside the city participated. The universal verdict is that the crowds and traffic on the railways and tramways far exceeded the record made at the time of the visit of the Prince of Wales in 1901. Very few of the Americans were present at the dinner which the federal government had arranged for 27,000 in the Exhibition building. Premier Deakin said that he thought the men had become tired of formal ceremonies.

Parker to Stump the East

New York, Sept. 4.—Alton B. Parker, who has just returned from a visit to the Pacific coast, where he made several speeches for Mr. Bryan, conferred last night with National Chairman Mack. Plans for a speaking campaign in the east by Parker were formulated. A report circulated was to the effect that Parker might be nominated for governor of this state. As to Democratic prospects generally, Parker said he was surprised at the show of early Democratic strength in the west.

Debs After Uncle Joe

St. Joseph, Mo., Sept. 4.—Eugene V. Debs, candidate for president on the Socialist ticket, spoke to 1000 people here from his "red special." He later left for Omaha. Debs arraigned Speaker Cannon of the house of representatives in severe terms. He said Cannon is worth $2,000,000 today and he didn't have a dollar when he entered congress.

Bailey Concludes to Accept

Ithaca, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Dean Bailey of the New York State College of Agriculture has accepted the appointment of President Roosevelt as the head of a commission of five which is to investigate the condition of farmers and report plans for the betterment of rural life. Bailey declined the appointment when it was first made.

Receivers Must Have $750,000

Minneapolis, Sept. 4.—The receivers of the Pillsbury-Washburn Milling company declare that unless they are empowered to raise $750,000 immediately, by means of an issue of certificates of indebtedness, the mills must close, which would result in a loss of established business.

Gives Divorced Wife $500,000

Chicago, Sept. 4.—W. D. Boyce, publisher of several papers and a holder of a million dollars' worth of real estate, has obtained a South Dakota divorce from his wife. Boyce yesterday transferred $500,000 worth of real estate to his former wife.

JAPAN WORRYING CHINA

Fear of Attack Renewed by Activity on Chientao Border

Pekin, Sept. 4.—Contrary to her agreement to maintain the status quo pending a settlement of the Chientao boundary dispute with China, Japan has recently done a number of things in this territory which arouses the apprehension of the Pekin government.

She has occupied the residency buildings recently completed at Yenchiting, in the disputed district.

She has brought into the town a joint civil and military commander and 1000 gendarmes, and she is proceeding with the reorganization of the existing system for the government of the Korean population.

China has protested to Tokio and to the Japanese diplomatic representative here, but with no result whatever.

Furthermore, two Japanese major generals and four staff officers are at present engaged in making a careful study of Chientao for strategical purposes, and the arrival of a battery of Japanese field guns near the border has renewed the fears of China that Japan purposes to precipitate some action.

China has protested also against the project to bridge the Tumen river at the Gensan railroad terminus.

BAKER POISONING IS RECALLED

Fight Over Will of the Boston Clubman Is Settled

Boston, Sept. 4.—The sensational fight over the will of the late Walter E. Baker, a well known clubman who died of poisoning at Bogota, N. J., Oct. 27, 1907, was ended by the filing in the supreme court of an agreement by the parties concerned as to a final decree which affirms the will as allowed in the probate court.

Baker's estate, it is estimated, amounted to nearly $500,000, of which he willed $5000 to his brother, Edward F. Baker of Boston, $10,000 to Mrs. Helen B. Hurd of Bogota, and of the residue one-third to Harvard university, one-third to the children of his brother and the other third to Natalie Hurd, the infant daughter of Frank H. and Mrs. Helen B. Hurd. Natalie Hurd died last spring and her parents inherited her share.

Edward F. Baker secured an investigation of the cause of his brother's death and had the body removed, after it had been interred here, to New Jersey for an autopsy. Chemical analysis revealed that the young man died of poisoning, but there was no evidence to lead to action on the part of the authorities. Baker then contested the will and appealed to the supreme court when the probate court allowed the will. The case was to have come up for trial this fall.

Not Generous to Relatives

Owego, N. Y., Sept. 4.—More than $4,000,000 is left to charitable institutions, the Metropolitan Museum of Art and Yale university by the will of Frederick C. Hewitt, a bachelor, who died at his home here last Sunday. To relatives and friends less than $500,000 is left. The estate is estimated to be worth from $5,000,000 to $8,000,000 and in addition to receiving a bequest of $1,500,000 the Metropolitan Museum of Art is made the residuary legate. Hewitt stipulates in the will that if any of his relatives or friends contest the will he or they shall forfeit his or their inheritance.

Wright Flies at Fort Myer

Washington, Sept. 4.—Orville Wright made a flight in his aeroplane at Fort Myer, Va., last evening. While making the circle of the drillgrounds, Wright pulled the lever which controls the planes in the wrong direction and he was compelled to descend in order to avoid running into some wires. The aeroplane was in the air for one minute and fifteen seconds.

Gun-Silencer a Success

Springfield, Mass., Sept. 4.—Hiram P. Maxim's gun-silencing device received its final test here at the hands of a board of officers attached to the United States armory, the test being to determine whether the device would afford protection to skirmishers or sharpshooters advancing on an enemy. The test is said to have been entirely successful.

Great Struggle Over Election

Boston, Sept. 4.—Captain Charles W. Newton of Hartford was elected commander-in-chief of the United Spanish War Veterans. The struggle to elect the head officer of the body lasted from 10:30 a. m. until 5:30 p. m. A total of 355 votes were cast, with 178 necessary for a choice. Newton had 182 and Charles W. Simmons of Rochester had 173.

Trio of Suspicious Characters

Lynn, Mass., Sept. 4.—Three Italians, giving Buffalo as their home, who were arrested by four Lynn police officers as suspicious characters, were held in $2000 bonds for the grand jury for having burglars' tools in their possession. The three men, upon being searched, were found to have pistols, a stiletto and burglars' tools.

Suicide of Wealthy Woman

San Francisco, Sept. 4.—Evading the vigilance of her nurse, Miss Helen Cullen, a young woman of wealth who had been ill, swallowed the contents of a bottle of iodine, made her way to a third story window and leaped to a courtyard below. She died a few hours later.

LEAGUE MEN INVADE INDIANA

Three Groups Especially Interested In the Election

HISGEN STATES THE REASONS

Tells of His Massachusetts Campaign and What Independence Party Will Do For Laborers, Farmers and Business Men--Hearst Calls Taft Roosevelt's Messenger Boy and Bryan a Political Juggler

Indianapolis, Sept. 4.—The Indiana campaign of the Independence party was opened here at English's Opera house, which was filled to its capacity. Thomas L. Hisgen, presidential candidate, began by telling about the growth of the new party in New England. He told of his campaign for governor of Massachusetts last year when he polled 76,000 votes, 5000 more than were cast for the Democratic party.

"This," he said, "was done in spite of the $10,000 automobile of Governor Guild, the Republican candidate, and the palace car of Henry M. Whitney, the millionaire Democratic candidate.

"There are three groups of citizens who are especially interested in this election—the laborer, the farmer and the business man.

"The laborer wants more work, better pay and shorter hours. He is one of the greatest factors in the production of the wealth of this country and we believe he should have his fair share of it.

"The farmer wants a better market for his produce and he demands the destruction of the combinations organized to control the price of his products. To this end our party demands the right of the farmers to organize so that they may be the better prepared to protect themselves from these monopolies.

"The business man demands an equal opportunity. He has not got it today because of the monopolies that were formed against him. The business man wants a business administration of the government and he does not get it today because of the unfaithfulness of public officials. With these conditions prevailing—with the prices of the necessities of life so high that honest workmen can hardly live—the two old parties responsible for present conditions come before you and ask for your votes.

"We aim to restore the government back into the hands of the people. Then the wrongs that are now perpetrated will be righted. Then we will have a government in reality of the people, by the people and for the people."

Mr. Hearst said in part:

"Indiana has been historic in times past as the battleground of the two old parties. We intend to make it historic today as the scene of victory for the new party.

"The Independence party platform declares that the power of government has been taken from the people by political machines and corrupt bosses and is exercised for the advantage of the privileged interests who control the machines and own the corrupt bosses.

"Our platform declares for direct nominations and for the total elimination of campaign corporation funds and for the initiative and the referendum and the recall. The Independence party platform declares for good wages and eight hours, and proper conditions of labor, and employers liability, and it declares against child labor and unfair competition of pauper labor and convict labor and Asiatic labor, and against blacklisting and against the misuse of the injunction and the abuse of the power to punish for contempt.

"Our candidate is as frank and honest as our platform. Opposed to this able business man of character and capacity we have on the one hand a sort of messenger boy, running errands earnestly for his recognized chief, but nevertheless a messenger boy whom Roosevelt is apparently only putting into the White House to keep the chair warm until he himself returns from abroad.

"Opposed to Mr. Hisgen, on the other hand, is the peerless prestidigitateur of modern politics, whose hand is quicker than the eye, who causes his principles to disappear and changes his politics in full view of the audience. Bryan has no set convictions. He has changed his opinions at every election, and if he is wrong so often we are justified in assuming that he is wrong again.

"I believe, on the other hand, that there is no man in the United States better fitted for the place than Thomas L. Hisgen."

Watkins Notified of Nomination

Ada, O., Sept. 4.—Professor Aaron S. Watkins was officially notified here of his nomination as the candidate for vice president by the National Prohibition party. The event was made the most of by the citizens and political partisanship was laid aside temporarily in the honoring of an esteemed townsman. When Watkins arose to respond the audience was on its feet, cheering and waving hats and handkerchiefs, while little girls presented the candidate with huge bouquets of flowers. The ovation lasted several minutes. When quiet had been restored Watkins made his speech of acceptance. He was frequently interrupted by applause.

Nevius Heads the Grand Army

Toledo, Sept. 4.—Colonel Henry M. Nevius of Red Bank, N. J., was elected commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic. The election occurred in first ballot, which gave Nevius 454, former Governor Van Zant of Minnesota 254, and L. T. Dickason of Illinois 90. The nomination of Nevius was made unanimous.

No Comment For Publication

Middle Bass Island, O., Sept. 4.—Neither Mr. Taft, General Corbin nor Representative Keifer will comment for publication on the Foraker incident of Wednesday in Toledo, with the exception of the general admission that the meeting between the candidate and the senator was brought about without the previous knowledge of Taft.

Fire Scorched Big Trees

Sonora, Cal., Sept. 4.—The forest fire which since Monday has threatened the famous Big Tree grove in this county has been brought under control. It is not thought many of the trees will die from the scorching, especially if the fall rains begin early.

Nomination Goes to Warner

Detroit, Sept. 4.—The Free Press concedes that J. B. Bradley, whom the paper supported for the gubernatorial nomination, has been defeated by Governor Warner by a plurality of 318. The official count of the primaries is not completed.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The body of John Murray, aged 75, was found hanging to the railing of a rear plazza at Pawtucket, R. I. The medical examiner pronounced it a case of suicide.

Rev. Joseph Jerge of Boston, a priest of the order of the Society of Jesus, died at St. John. He was born in Pennsylvania 67 years ago.

George O. Bowen, supervisor of music in the public schools of Stamford, Conn., was elected to fill a similar position by the Northampton, Mass., school committee.

Mrs. Marion Hamilton died at Sanford, Me., as the result of burns received by the explosion of an alcohol stove. She was 60 years old.

Young People's Union Swedish Babtist

The Swedish Baptist Young people's Union will hold a rally in the church, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, Sept. 5, 6, and 7.

A grand concert will be held Saturday evening, beginning at 7.30. Sunday morning Sunday school will be held at 9.30. Regular Sunday services at 10.45, when Rev. E. Lagerstrom will preach.

An afternoon meeting will be held from 3 to 5, when many speakers will take part. Quartettes from Worcester and Providence will sing.

At the 7.30 evening service Rev. E. Hallden of Providence will preach.

If the weather is fair on Monday a great gathering will be held at Bethel Beach, beginning at 10 o'clock Otherwise the meeting will be held in the church.

Rev. A. P. Hanson is the pastor of the church.

Prominent in Trolley Strike

William J. Walsh of Quincy, organizer for the street railway employes, is taking an active part in the present trouble between the men employed on the trolley lines of the New York, New Haven & Hartford R. R., and the managers. The trolley men have voted to strike. One of the principal bones of contention is the demand of the Union for the reinstatement of 54 of the Providence men, who it is said were discharged because they joined the Union.

In an interview with Mr. Walsh, published in a morning paper, he is quoted as saying:

"The strike if it comes, will be far-reaching. We will confine our efforts at first to the trolley road employes and if we find that we need outside help to win we will call out alied Unions of steam employes. We will win out in this question if we have to call out every union man in New England."

General Manager Punderford of the Connecticut division is reported to have replied:

"I guarantee that we will run the road. That's a duty we owe to the public. I can only say further that we are prepared to keep on doing our duty with the public if there should be any trouble."

William J. Walsh, who is an organizer for the National body, is well known in Quincy. He has been employed for a number of years as conductor for the Old Colony street railway, and has for several years been the president of the local street railway employes union. He is also chairman of the Board of Health.

Dahlia Show.

Preparations for the first exhibition of the New England Dahlia Society are going rapidly forward. The show is to take place at Tremont Temple, the 17th, 18th and 19th days of eSptember, and is expected to be one of the most remarkable flower shows ever held in America and possibly the most representative exhibition of dahlias ever attempted anywhere. It is to be noted that this show will be given right in the heart of the city, in the business district, and will be the first down-town flower show since the days of the old Horticultural Hall. The dahlia makes its appeal to all classes, but more especially to the average man and woman, who cannot afford to grow costly orchids or prodigious chrysanthemums. In short, the dahlia is the flower of the epole and correspondingly popular.

WANTED.

High School Graduate, 20 to 30 years, as assistant editor and reporter. Newspaper experience not necessary, but desirable. Good chance for promotion. Apply to FRANK F. PRESCOTT, City Editor, Daily Ledger.

Two Candidates In the Sixth

The fight among the Republicans in the Sixth district for the nomination as candidate for Representative to the General Court seems to have narrowed down to two candidates. Louis F. R. Langelier and ex-Representative Edward J. Sandberg. Both of these gentlemen were candidates for the nomination last year as were also ex-Councilmen Walter S. Pinkham and John E. Poland.

Mr. Langelier carried his own ward by a large majority, but the almost solid vote by Wollaston for Mr. Pinkham gave him the nomination. This year it is understood that neither

LOUIS F. R. LANGELIER.

Mr. Pinkham or Mr. Poland are in the contest.

It is claimed by the friends of Mr. Langelier that he has been promised the support this year of Ward Five.

It is almost certain that he will carry his own ward without opposition, which with the support of Ward Five, the Wollaston ward would give him the nomination.

West Quincy is expected to go for Mr. Sandberg as it did last year, and he has friends in other parts of the district.

Mr. Langelier has long been prominently identified with the Republican party. He has served his ward in the City Council, and for several years has done yoeman service as secretary of the Ward and City Committee. Mr. Langelier's many friends feel that he is entitled to the nomination, and they have every reason to believe from present indications that he will win out.

Brockton Fair.

The management of the Brockton Fair, always on the alert for the very best attractions for their patrons, have this year made a ten-strike in securing the racing stars, Sweet Marie, Major Delmar and George G., who will race for a special purse of $3,750; with $1,500 added if the world's half-mile track record is lowered. This feature is bound to be a big drawing card, and that it will be appreciated by the Fair's thousands of patrons goes without saying. Sept. 29, 30 and Oct. 1 and 2 are the dates this year. On the latter date the big Firemen's Muster takes place, with a list of 22 prizes aggregating $1,550.

Nomination Papers.

Up to this noon but two sets of nomination papers had been taken out for candidates for Representative to the General Court. These were taken out by William R. Thomas and William T. Spargo.

Democratic Caucuses.

NOMINATION PAPERS.

The Democratic City Caucuses for the election of delegates to the State Councillor, County, and Senatorial Conventions and one Congressional candidate from the tenth district, one candidate for Representative in General Court from 5th Norfolk District comprising Wards 1, 2 and 3, and for one candidate for Representive in General Court from 6th Norfolk District, comprising Wards 4, 5 and 6, will be held.

TUESDAY SEPTEMBER 22,

at such hours and places as designated by the City Council. Nomination papers issued in conformity with the laws may be obtained only from the office of Secretary of the City Committee at Room 4, Adams Building on and after Tuesday, Sept. 1, and must be filed with him between 5 P. M. TUESDAY, Sept. 8, and 7.30 P. M. Thursday, Sept. 10.

Wards are entitled to delegates to each convention as follows:

|---|---|
| Ward 1 | 1 delegates |
| Ward 2 | 1 " |
| Ward 3 | 1 " |

New Date for the Republican Barbecue

Tuesday, September 15, is the day finally settled upon for the big Point of Pines Barbecue, and all Republicans are commencing to turn their eyes in the direction of the seashore resort with happy anticipation of delicious roast steer, along with the many other pleasing and interesting events of the day.

With 17,000 tickets already paid for, and some 15,000 others out on sale, it seems as if the affair is bound to be one of the largest of the kind ever held in this section of the State if not in the whole country:

At a meeting of the committee held this week, it was definitely announced that Hon. James Wilson, of Iowa, Secretary of the United States Board of Agriculture; U. S. Senator William Alden Smith of Michigan; and U. S. Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, had accepted invitations to be present at the occasion. The committee on speakers further state that while definite assurances have not been given, it may not be at all improbable that the Vice President Candidate, James S. Sherman of New York, and Congressman Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, may be present at the barbecue. Hon. Eben S. Draper, candidate for Governor will preside.

The Salem Cadet Band has been secured for the day, which assures those present an excellent discourse of harmony.

The committee on Sports through their vice chairman, Col. George Billings of the Boston Athletic Club, inform the committee that many crack athletes of the State intend to participate in the athletic sports on that day.

General William E. Emery who will have charge of the feeding of the multitude has secured the services of Louis Arragoni, a well known chef, who will have immediate supervision of the roasting of the oxen, lambs and pigs.

Becouse of the closeness to the primaries which take place a week later, the various candidates for Lieutenant Governor and other State offices intend to be present.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The Social Realm

Lo! as beneath September stars
The dewy aster drips,
As through the viny autumn bars
The glow of summer slips,
So may your ebb of spousal days,
Though voice and footstep falter,
Ne'er lose the golden-threaded haze
That overspread the altar.

ENLARGE CLUBHOUSE

Important Vote Taken at Special Meeting Quincy Yacht Club

An enlarged clubhouse and increased yearly dues was the result of the special meeting of the Quincy Yacht club held at the club house last evening. There was an attendance of a hundred or more members and the general sentiment was in favor of both propositions.

Plans showing the proposed enlargement of the club house made by Fred E. Tupper, C. E., were shown by aid of the stereopticon.

The plans provide that the present clubhouse shall be moved outward 90 feet. A one story addition will be built on the shore front. In this new addition there will be 56 lockers. The present stairway leading to the hall will be removed. This will not only give a larger smoking room on the first floor but a larger hall whose dimensions will be about 30 by 40 feet.

The ladies room and parlor on the upper floor will also be enlarged.

Over the new part there will be an uncovered roof garden. Arrangements will be made for a passage way leading to Nortemans, so that dinners can be served there if desired.

On the water front instead of the present float in the centre there will be two floats, one on each side of the building, extending out to the deep water channel.

These two floats will be connected by a cross float. On the shore end of the southerly float there will be a workshop where members may work on their power launches. The gasoline tank now located near the building will be moved and the gasoline conducted to the shore end of the float by an underground water pipe.

The entrance to the club-house will be somewhat different from the present. Under the new plan, members will enter through a gate. From there a walk leads to the clubhouse. Stairs lead to the roof garden and there are entrances alongside of the southerly end to the locker room and to the office.

The estimated cost of the proposed addition is $5,425.

DUES INCREASED.

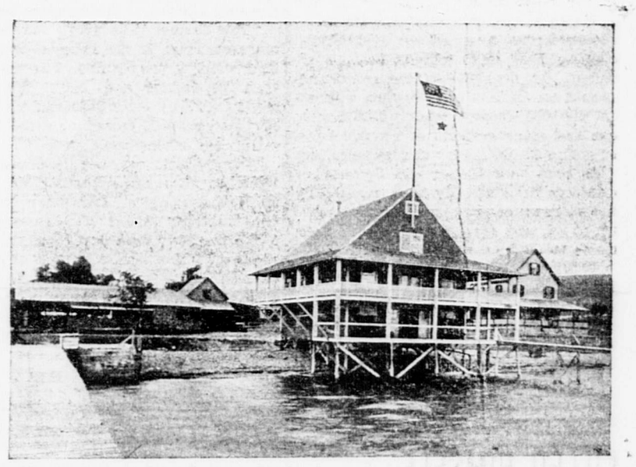

After the plans had been shown, they were accepted by the club. Councilman Whiton then started the ball rolling by a motion to amend the motion to increase the dues, so as to make the amount $10 per year. This brought an animated discussion. Then Mr. Whiton withdrew his motion. After some further discussion during which the treasurer gave some figures as to cost, etc., the motion as it appeared in the call was divided.

The club then voted to enlarge the club house, and to increase the dues to $8 per year.

During the first part of the evening Commodore Robbins awarded the season's cups and penants.

CUPS AWARDED.

The Class D championship was captured by the Arawak, Capt. Henry C. Nickerson, who was awarded the beautiful pair of silver Japanese cups, given by Willard D. Vose, who procured them in the Philippines.

In awarding these cups the Commodore stated that the Arawak had been successful in winning the championship for three consecutive years.

The cock of the walk pennant in Class D was also awarded to the Arawak.

The races in Class C. and the launch class are not completed so the Commodores cups in these classes could not be awarded.

The prizes in the club run to Marblehead were awarded as follows:

Commodore's cup in Class D, to the Busy B, owned by W. J. Coombs.

Commodore's cup in Class C, to the Beatrice, owned by James Hector.

Commodore's cup in the launch class to the Eleanor, owned by Gould & Hamlet.

Pennants for the best actual time in the club run to Marblehead were awarded as follows:

Class D,—blue pennant to the Arawak, Capt. H. C. Nickerson; red pennant to the Busy Bee, Capt. W. J. Coombs; white pennant to Iris, Capt. F. F. Crane.

In Class C,—blue pennant to Beatrice, Capt. James Hector; red pennant to Warwenock, Capt. F. E. Dawes; white pennant to New Orleans Capt. F. E. Winslow.

Launch class,—blue pennant to Hahdeen III, Capt. W. S. Hibard; red pennant to Alhambra, Capt. W. H. Reid; white pennant to Varita, Capt. H. L. Rose.

Capt. Emery of the Mudjekeewiss presented the Emery-Robbins power tender cup to Commodore Robbins of the Emeline.

UNION RAILWAY MEN'S DEMANDS

Rejection by Employers Will Result In a Great Strike

RHODE ISLAND STORM CENTER

New Haven System Will Be First Affec ed Should Strike Be Declared --It Grievances Remain Unsettled Other New Eng and Roads Will Become Involved, Resulting In the Calling Out of 32,000 Men

Providence, Sept. 5.—That the executive board of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America has declared itself in favor of a general strike of 32,000 members of the association in New England, and that delegates from fifteen divisions of the New Haven system have been instructed to gather at New Haven today to receive instructions regarding their future conduct, is the substance of a statement made here by General Organizer Walsh of Quincy, Mass., who has been in this city looking after the local interests of the street railway employes.

The whole controversy started some time ago in this city when fifty-four men on the Rhode Island company's street railway system, controlled by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, were discharged. The road officials stated that the men were released because of a breach of discipline. The union men, however, claimed that their discharge was the result of the beginning of a local branch of the association.

Walsh states that should a strike be declared the New Haven system, including 7000 men, will at first be affected. If, says Walsh, the grievances should continue to be unsettled, a strike on the Old Colony, Boston and Northern and other systems of electric lines, affecting 32,000 men, will also be called.

In both New Haven and Providence quarters have already been engaged by the railway companies to house strike-breakers, and arrangements have been made to feed an army of men.

Organizer Walsh states that his organization is determined to stand firm. Already throughout the New England states the individual branches of the union have promised their support. Today the ultimatum of the unions will be presented to the Rhode Island system and the demand made to reinstate the discharged men.

KILLED HIMSELF WHEN CORNERED

Desperate Man Had Fatally Shot Chief of Police

Ware, Mass., Sept. 5.—There are no hopes for the recovery of Chief of Police Maurice Fitzgerald, who was shot while questioning Frank E. Hennon, who committed suicide while trying to escape a crowd of pursuers.

Hennon registered at the Hampshire house in this town the first of the week under the name of Robert Robinson of Taunton. He seemed to have no particular occupation and attracted the attention of the police. Wishing to know more about the man, Fitzgerald questioned him and upon the officer's request for Hennon to show what he had in his pockets Hennon drew a revolver, shooting Fitzgerald four times and then fleeing through a back window down a fire escape. The crowd, attracted by the shots, pressed him so closely that Hennon turned his revolver upon himself, inflicting a fatal wound.

Hennon had come here from Leominster, where he had married Eva G. Cole, whom he later deserted. Hennon had been employed in a Leominster comb factory, and within a few days a warrant had been issued for his arrest on the charge of larceny.

Death of Frank Sargent

Washington, Sept. 5.—Frank P. Sargent, for the last six years commissioner general of immigration, died at his home here. The cause of death was a second stroke of apoplexy and a severe fall which he had several weeks ago. It is said of the former leader and friend of organized labor that no railroad magnate ever refused to see him while he was at the head of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen. Sargent was born in East Orange, Vt., in 1854.

To Deport Mormon Converts

Boston, Sept. 5.—Orders have been received from Washington for the deportation of seven more of the Mormon immigrants who came in on the Republic two weeks ago. They will be deported when the Cymric sails next week. There are several other Mormon converts at the immigration station whose cases have not been disposed of as yet.

Went Thirty Feet In Air

Washington, Sept. 5.—Orville Wright made another flight over the drill-grounds at Fort Myer, Va., in which he encircled the field five times. The total time consumed in flight was 4 7-4 minutes. Thirty feet from the ground was the greatest height attained.

FLEET LEAVES MELBOURNE

Natives Turn Out In Force to Bid American Sailors Farewell

Melbourne, Sept. 5.—Punctually at 8 o'clock this morning the Connecticut, flagship of Rear Admiral Sperry, weighed anchor and pointed her prow down the bay. With clocklike precision fourteen others of the white-hulled craft followed in her wake and began the cruise to Albany, Queensland. The New Jersey remained in the harbor to convey the American mail, which is expected shortly, to the fleet.

As the vessels passed down the bay in single file the hills and the town of Melbourne resounded again with the booming of salutes from the fleet and the batteries ashore. Scores of steamboats, yachts and launches, laden with cheering crowds, escorted the ships down the bay to the headlands, where they remained until the American vessels were lost in the fog.

The headland shores were crowded with spectators to witness the ending of the history-making visit, the full significance and potentialties of which, it is believed, have not yet been realized.

BRYAN'S ADDRESS TO FARMERS

They Should Have Greater Representation In Congress

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 5.—William J. Bryan yesterday made two speeches to his home folks. The first was at the State fair grounds, where he participated in the dedication of the new Auditorium, and the second was at the Tabitha home, where a new building was dedicated as a hospital for the aged. In his fair grounds speech, addressing himself to the farmers, he said:

"The farmer has very inadequate representation in the national congress. And what is the result? The result is that the farmer has been neglected more than any other man and his interest disregarded more than the interest of any other class.

"Our federal taxation is almost all collected through methods that bear upon consumption, and when we tax consumption instead of possession we make the poor man pay more than his share and the rich man less than his share. There has heretofore been a constant drain of the farms in the matter of collecting taxes, and when the taxes are appropriated and expended, the money is nearly all spent in the cities and very little of it upon the farms.

"The farmer, therefore, has not only suffered in paying more than his share to the tax collector, but he has been the least benefited directly by the expenditure of the money that is raised. With the exception of pensions I do not know of any large appropriation in which the farmer has anything like his share in proportion to his number.

"I believe that with more farmers in the councils of the nation, more farmers prepared to exert an influence upon public thought through the pen and pencil, and by the tongue, we shall have a change, and that that change will help to retard, if not to stop, the tendency now from the farms to the town."

Was Factor In Democracy

New York, Sept. 5.—Alexander Troup, one of the most prominent citizens of New Haven, died suddenly at the Grand Central depot. Troup was a member of the Democratic national committee and editor of the New Haven Union. He was born in Halifax in 1840, and came to the United States in 1856. He was educated in the public schools and was a printer by trade. He had held national, state and city offices and was a man held in the highest esteem not only within the borders of his own state, but throughout the country. He was a great factor in the councils of the national Democracy.

Rawhide's Disastrous Fire

Rawhide, Nev., Sept. 5.—Three thousand people homeless, a score or more injured and a property loss of over $750,000 is the result of a disastrous fire which started in the Rawhide Drug company's buildings. A subscription list was started and in a few minutes over $5000 was raised and a relief train started from Reno, carrying food and bedding. All the mining towns of the state came quickly to the assistance of the Rawhide sufferers with cash contributions. Before the ashes were cool plans were well under way for a reconstruction of the town.

Engineer and Friend Killed

Lawrence, Mass., Sept. 5.—Two men were killed and one slightly injured in a crash of freight trains at South Lawrence. The dead are Fred Duprey, engineer, and Frank McGowan, a friend of Duprey's, who was riding in the cab of the engineer. Both trains were switching in the yards and were running parallel to each other when one train took a switch, crossing directly in front of the other. Before the second train could be brought to a stop it crashed into the other, hurling the engine off the track.

Accused Man Talks of Blackmail

New Brunswick, N. J., Sept. 5.—William B. Burns, president of the board of education of Highland Park and a Republican leader, was arrested on serious charges brought against him by Nora Gilliland, 13 years old, whom Burns had taken in his employ as housemaid. Friends of Burns secured his release from jail by going on his bond for $3000. Burns declares it to be a case of blackmail.

MECHANICAL SHOVEL

Machine Used In Lead Mines Does Seven Men's Work.

MAY DISPLACE SPADE HANDS.

With Compressed Air as the Motive Power It Is Being Operated Near Joplin, Mo.—Its Capacity to Be Greatly Increased.

For years the "spade hand" in the lead and zinc mining district has been king. He has dictated to the boss, he has reveled in the best of wages and has done just as suited his fancy. Now there is a prospect of his dethronement, and a mechanical shovel in use at the mine of a lead, zinc and smelting company at Prosperity, near Joplin, Mo., is the agency that promises the revolution.

About a year ago Captain R. Thew of Lorain, O., visited the mining district and conceived the idea for an underground mechanical shovel to replace the cumbrous method of handling ore dirt in vogue at Prosperity. He had no precedent, and the machine now being tried out at Prosperity, with apparent success, is the only one of the kind in the world, says the Kansas City Star, and certainly the only mechanical shovel working underground.

The shovel is operated by compressed air, the inventor realizing that to attempt to burn coal in the mine drifts would be impossible. Three engines are provided, each driven by the compressed air conveyed to them through tubes from above ground. One engine drives the boom in its sweeps from side to side and up and down, one operates the dipper that picks up the ore dirt, and the third provides traction power for the machine to enable moving it from drift to drift, as needed, and to remove it from the danger zone when blasting is done. This latter feature is the one that comes nearest being a failure, the design now used being all but impracticable in moving the ten ton machine from place to place. A new idea is being worked out to overcome this.

In appearance the shovel is not unlike that used above ground, the most striking difference being the massive armor of steel surrounding all but the boom and the dipper. This is used to protect the machine from loosened bowlders that fall from the roof of the drift.

In practice the shovel does the work of seven men. In no sense does it replace the "cutters"—men who break the solid face of the drifts by dynamite and pick—but the great work of moving the shattered dirt, the work that has made the "spade hand" king, is done by the machine. This, with the prospect that the innovation will necessitate the introduction of mules and tram cars, gives the shovel the position of an invader threatening to revolutionize the methods of mining throughout the district.

When the dipper scoops up the broken dirt cut by the "face men" between 600 and 700 pounds are handled at each sweep. Two of the dippers full make a tub of dirt as it is hoisted from the mines at Prosperity. The machine makes about 400 grabs in a day of eight hours, or 200 tubs. The loaded tub is pushed by man power along the drift on a small car sitting on a track. The smallness of the track capacity and man capacity is a drawback.

At the shaft the tub is hooked on to the cable and hoisted out. In order to remove the dirt as fast as the shovel is able to handle it probably larger tracks and larger trucks, with a wagon holding a ton or more, will be found necessary, with a hoisting cage in the shaft instead of the simple wire rope cable now used.

It is this feature that makes the machine a really great menace to the dictatorship of the "spade hand." Eventually, if the machine proves entirely successful, the miner sees the installation of mine cages, the substitution of mules to move cars and the elimination of the "tub rustlers" as well as the "spade hand" from the operation of the mines.

DOUBLE DECKER POTATOES.

Connecticut Farmer's Plants Bear Tubers Above and Below Ground.

Samuel Wilson of Wolcott, near Waterbury, Conn., is raising potatoes both above and below ground on the same vine as a result of two years of experimenting.

A few weeks ago on looking over his new potato plants he saw little bud-like protuberances growing out from the bases of the leaves. These buds developed into well formed and good sized potatoes of the same kind as those growing at the roots of the plants.

The bush potato is a cross between the Beauty of Hebron potato and the Delaware. Those above ground grow from four to eight on a plant, one at the base of each leaf. Food experts report the hybrid to be far from nutritious than the Irish or sweet potato and much more easily grown.

Real Beds In Sleeping Cars.

The new sleeping cars of the L. and S. W. railroad in England are a distinct departure from the ordinary type of sleepers. Brass bedsteads take the place of the stuffy berths familiar to all who travel in the United States, and heavy upholstery is eliminated, says Popular Mechanics. This renders the cars more hygienic, and the woodwork can be kept clean. The car consists of seven single and two double sleeping compartments extending across the car, each of which has its own lavatory.

But Midway In Work Which Can Only Be Finished Through Success of Taft--Revision of Tariff and Establishment of Tariff Commission Considered Needful--The Labor Problem, Panic and Navy Discussed --Comparison of the Candidates

Youngstown, O., Sept. 5.—The Republican campaign in Ohio was formally opened in this city today with speeches by Governor Harris of Ohio, Governor Hughes of New York and Senator Beveridge of Indiana. Harris discussed state issues, dealing largely with the liquor question, while Hughes and Beveridge handled issues of the national campaign.

A huge crowd was at Wicks park, for the steel mills, which form the chief industry of the city, closed last night and will not reopen until Monday night. The steel workers and others marched in a parade this forenoon to the park and this afternoon the flood of oratory was loosed. Arthur I. Vorys, the Taft manager in Ohio, acted as chairman of the meeting.

Beveridge's Speech

Senator Beveridge was liberally applauded during his speech. He said in part:

Seven years ago we started upon the great work of modern and humane legislation that has made the Roosevelt period historic. In those years we passed the railroad rate bill, the meat inspection and pure food laws and irrigation law. We passed the employers' liability law, the safety appliance act, the Chinese exclusion act and the government employes' liability law.

All these are Republican laws, and some of them were not even thought of outside the Republican party. For example, even Mr. Bryan never dreamed of the meat inspection and pure food laws, yet the laws mean more to the health of the American people than all the curious devices he ever proposed.

In these seven historic years we have advanced the American name throughout the world, increased toward us the good will of nations and added to our lasting power in international affairs. At home and abroad our work already done has been so vast that the world speaks of it with praise and wonder; but we are midway in that work, and the question is whether we shall go on until we finish it.

The Tariff

Of the work that remains, the first is to revise the tariff. The tariff we shall make will protect American industries, and also open foreign markets to American products. The modern tariff is a maximum and minimum tariff—a high tariff to be applied to any nation that will not give us advantages in its markets, and a lower tariff, still protective, to be granted to any nation that will give us advantages in its markets. The Republican idea is to meet other commercial nations with their own weapons.

A double protective tariff will sell abroad many head of live stock, barrels of flour and manufactured articles, where one now is sold. This increase in trade means new employment for the laborers, new markets for the farmer. Prosperity depends on trade and trade depends on markets.

Nor will we stop there. Republicanism means advance. Tens of thousands of American citizens are demanding a tariff commission. A tariff commission has not a single friend among Democratic public men. Certainly Republican public men are against it too; but its only friends are Republicans. A Democratic vote is a certain vote against a tariff commission. A Republican vote is a possible vote for this businesslike reform.

The Real Labor Question

Every labor law we have passed and will pass is a part of that web of industrial questions which we call the labor problem. But, after all, the fundamental labor problem is the problem of employment and pay. More American workingmen own their own homes (and those homes have more comforts) than the workingmen of England, Germany, Japan and France combined. Had any political enonomist been told twenty-five years ago that carpenters, miners and steel workers ever would be paid the American wages of the present day he would have scoffed.

All this has come during Republican administrations. We plan to continue and increase it. The maximum and minimum tariff which we will enact will enlarge the markets for American products, as Germany in the same way has enlarged the markets for her products. Markets mean industries to supply them; industries mean demand for labor; demand for labor means high wages.

Recovery From the Panic

We are quickly recovering from the briefest panic in our history. Let workingmen contrast that panic with the one that occurred under the last Democratic administration and then answer this question for themselves: Will the election of Mr. Bryan or Mr. Taft best help the rapidly improving business of the country? And remember that active business means well-paid employment.

That Mr. Bryan and the opposition would make business practically impossible is proved by their national franchise plan which makes every president a four-years-czar with absolute power over the life and death of very business concern large enough to trade throughout the nation.

A nation without power is a nation without influence. A maritme naton's power is in her navy. Had our navy been as large in 1898 as it is today, Spain would not have gone to war and Cuba would have been freed by diplomacy; yet the actual cash, spent in that little war, would have built two navies as great as the one we have today and maintained them for a score of years.

Mr. Bryan and the opposition are against any navy except to protect our coasts. But with such a navy what becomes of the Monroe doctrine? The Monroe doctrine is not sanctioned by international law—it rests on the strength of our navy alone. We are no Parthian nation, shooting arrows behind us as we fly. A peaceful heart and a strong arm are the best preventives of war.

Campaign of Candidates

This is a campaign of candidates even more than of platform. The question is not which candidate is most upright, patriotic, brave, for both are equally so. Both mean equally well toward their country. The real question is which candidate will make the best president? Which is the wisest and steadiest? Which man would you choose as administrator of your estate? Which would you select to manage your business? Which has the best training and the most experience?

Mr. Bryan never has handled a single foreign problem. He has governed no Philippines, regenerated no Cuba, built no canal, avoided no alien danger, saved us from no threatening peril. Mr. Taft has done all.

In domestic affairs Mr. Bryan has written not one law, administered not a single department, advised no president—while lecturing all. He is a preacher of righteousness, but not an administrator of affairs. He never conducted the government of a city, a county, a state or a nation. William H. Taft has been judge on the bench governor of a people, administrator of a department. His hand has helped to shape most of the progressive laws we have passed in the last seven years, and his great heart and splendid mind are behind every law we propose today. The sought for counselor of three presidents—as different yet as wise as Harrison, McKinley and Roosevelt—fate has equipped him to be the trusted leader of the people who loved and honored these three chief magistrates. Almost it seems that here is a man prepared by Providence to be the captain of this chosen people.

Bryan a "Dreamer"

Let no man denounce Mr. Bryan. Such men are necessary to human progress. Always such men have been the voice of a protest, but never the statesman of a cause. Always they have been the urgers of reform, but never the doers of the work. Mr. Bryan is the storm of unrest which clears the atmosphere, but not the trade winds that carry to port the freighted ships of a people's hope.

Four years ago, in his own home, paying tribute to his character and mind, I called him a dreamer who beholds happy visions, but achieves no useful deed. His is the mind that thinks of the barren field bending with grain; but his is not the plowman's hand, the sower's craft or the gleaner's husbandry. The poet's dream of an undiscovered Utopia has cheered us all; but the Pilgrims, actually landing on Plymouth Rock, planted the real tree of liberty, beneath whose real shade we rest and by whose real fruits we live.

Taft Not an Astrologer

William H. Taft is of the Pilgrim stuff—his is the wisdom that makes the ideal vision a living fact. Tried in every realm of government, tested in every department of statesmanship, he never yet has failed. He is a skilled seaman of statesmanship who takes his reckoning by the fixed stars of human nature and experience—not an uncertain astrologer casting absurd horoscopes from imaginary signs and symbols. And not once on all his voyages has the reckoning he has made been wrong; not once has a single horoscope that Mr. Bryan has cast been right.

When the great commander who has guided our ship of state through storms of opposition and amid the rocks of hatred straight for the port of our higher hopes and our larger liberties voluntarily steps from the bridge and delivers to us his high commission, let us hand it to the ablest officer aboard and safely make the harbor of our heart's desire.

Special Train For Stumpers

Indianapolis, Sept. 5.—Chairman Hitchcock of the Republican national committee held a conference here with Vice President Fairbanks, the chief question discussed being the tour of the country which Fairbanks is to make under the auspices of the national committee. The directors of the speaking bureau of the national committee have in contemplation the question of sending a number of prominent speakers with Fairbanks and giving them a special train or car for an extended tour. If made, the trip will begin soon after Oct. 1 and will occupy two weeks or more.

The Weather Forecast

Moon sets—12:07 a. m.
High water—7 a. m.; 7:30 p. m.

It will be fair and slightly warmer in New England.

THE GRAMPUS GOURMET.

This Marine Monster's Prey Is the Bowhead Whale.

"Of all the gourmets on land or water," said the captain, "commend me to the grampus."

The ladies at the captain's table looked with inquiring smiles at the handsome sailor.

"The grampus," he went on, "is a kind of overgrown shark or a kind of undersized fighting whale. You can take your choice. At any rate, he is a terrible creature to meet with if you happen to be aquatic.

"He and his mate travel together. Sometimes they have a friend along—big, fine, strong chap, as such friends usually are. And their game is the bowhead whale.

"When they find a whale they go at him. They stick to him invincibly. They punch and thump till he is as limp as a rope of seaweed with exhaustion. Then, by means of one horrible deed, they show their unexampled gluttony.

"They take hold of the whale's lower lip; they hang their weight on it until it drops open. Then in go their heads, disappearing inside that great red mouth, that warm, moist cavern of scarlet, and they eat in there the whale's tongue, a tender tidbit, very rich and delicate.

"The tongue consumed, they go on their way again, leaving the whale to die slowly."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

WHITE ISLAND.

Its Strange Lakes, Sulphur Fumes and Clouds of Steam.

White island, a New Zealand natural wonder, derives its name from the clouds of white steam in which it appears to be continually enveloped. Its area is only 600 acres and its height about 880 feet above the sea level.

In form and color it is like a reposing camel, while its interior, with its gray, weather beaten, almost perpendicular cliffs, recalls the Coliseum at Rome. Overhanging the southern landing place stands a column of rock closely resembling a sentinel, which has been dedicated to the memory of Captain Cook. The water of the island is of a pale green hue, and anything dipped into it becomes of a red brick color. The fumes of sulphur are always plainly perceptible.

On a fine moonlight night a wonderful sight is afforded to any one who will sit in an open boat in one of the lakes of the island. Covering an area of fifty acres is an immense caldron, hissing and snorting and sending forth volumes of poisonous steam, while all chances of egress appear to be denied by the steep, silent and gloomy cliffs.—British Australian.

Flying Fish.

Interesting are the habits of the flying fish, that queer denizen of the sea found principally in the region of the trade winds. "Does it rise from the sea like a bird?" you ask. No. It shoots out of the waves like an arrow, and with outspreading wings sails on the wind in graceful curves, rising sometimes, one might say, to the height of fifteen feet, but not often so high, and then, lowering, it again touches the crest of a wave and renews its flight. This operation may be repeated till it covers a distance, say, of 500 yards in the case of the stoutest on the wing, though very often not half that distance is covered. A ship sailing through the trade winds will often be visited on dark nights by flying fish which hit the sails or rigging and fall on deck, where of course they soon give up life.—St. Nicholas.

Sponges Are Sunstruck.

The sponge being an animal, it is necessary to kill it. This is done by exposing it for several hours on the broad decks of the boats. In summer sponges soon die, but in winter take a long time owing to weaker force of the sun. After death they are brought ashore and put in the cradles. These are inclosures made on the seashore by setting stakes a little apart from each other. The ebb and flow of the tide wash the animal matter from the sponges, and the work is completed by manual labor. They are then taken to the packing house, graded, strung, baled and dispatched to their destination.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Perfectly Correct.

A shopkeeper had stuck up a notice in glaring colors and very large letters: Selling Off! Must Close on Saturday!"

On Friday he was asked by a friend: "What! Are you selling off again?"

"Certainly. All the shopkeepers are selling off, ain't they?"

"Of course they are. But you say, 'Must close on Saturday.'"

"Certainly I must. You would not have me keep open on Sunday, would you?"

Effective at All Hours.

"I've got the finest gardens in this part of the country," boasted the newly made millionaire. "Right in the center of them is the most expensive sundial in the world."

"A sundial is all right during the day," remarked a listener. "It's useless at night."

"Mine isn't," retorted the millionaire proudly. "I've got mine surrounded with electric lights."—Bohemian Magazine.

Stones and Bricks.

Mrs. O'Hoolihan—This payper says there do be ser-rmons in sthones. Phwhat d' yez think av thot? O'Hoolihan—Oi dunno about the ser-rmons, but many a good ar-rgument has coom out av a brick, Oi'm thinkin'.—Exchange.

BRYAN AS PROPHET FAILS TO QUALIFY

Disasters He Foretold Never Come to Pass.

OPPOSITE IS ALWAYS TRUE.

Gold Standard Does Not Slay, Nor Does It Write Future In Blood.

As a prophet William Jennings Bryan has never been a success. The calamities which he has foretold would have brought unlimited disaster to the country if they had ever been realized. But they never came to pass. The harrowing pictures which he painted were merely figments of his imagination, based on absolutely no foundation whatever.

It is well to have Americans remember that prophecies uttered by the orator of the Platte must be discounted fully 100 per cent, for all signs indicate that he feels the fates once more and is about to begin prophesying again. A male Cassandra, Mr. Bryan might by this time have learned that the forecast of evil will never be believed by those who have found that in the past his vaticinations have been but empty air.

"Driving Country to Ruin."

For instance, when Mr. Bryan was a member of the house of representatives in 1892 he was absolutely certain that protection was driving the country headlong to rack and ruin, and in his speech delivered March 16 of that year he drew the following agonizing pictures:

"Protection has been our cannibal tree, and as one after another of our farmers has been driven by the force of circumstances upon that tree and has been crushed within its folds his companions have stood around and shouted, 'Great is protection!' * * * Thus in every state, so far as these statistics have been collected, the proportion of home owning farmers is decreasing and that of tenant farmers increasing. This means but one thing. It means a land of landlords and tenants, and, backed by the history of every nation that has gone down, I say to you that no people can continue a free people under a free government when the great majority of its citizens are tenants of a small minority. Your system (protective tariff) has driven the farm owner from his land and substituted the farm tenant."

How far this picture portrays the America of today or the America of any year since he made that speech any American can answer. Even in Mr. Bryan's own state he can find an answer right at his doors, for the farm lands of Nebraska have doubled in value.

"Murderous Gold Standard."

But during the four years succeeding that speech Mr. Bryan's agitation grew no less nor did the demon which he had raised in his own imagination hide with diminished head, for in 1896 he again saw destitution threatening the country. He had a remedy for it, a panacea, a fetish which he held up for worship—free silver. Here are some of the things Mr. Bryan said would happen if the gold standard were continued:

"I reply that if protection has slain its thousands the gold standard has slain its tens of thousands." — From Speech at Democratic National Convention July, 1896.

"Do not let the Republicans beguile you about the future. The future is written in blood crushed out of you by gold."—From Speech at Erie, Pa., August, 1896.

"Ah, my friends, there is another reason why people have gone into the cities and left the farms. It is because your legislation has been causing the foreclosure of mortgages upon the farms. * * * Mark my words! If the gold standard goes on and people continue to complain the gold standard advocates instead of trying to improve the condition of the people will be recommending that you close your schools so that the people will not realize how much they are suffering." — From Speech at Monmouth, Ill., October, 1896.

But whom has the gold standard slain? What future did it write in blood? What district schools did it close? Again the condition of the country makes a calm reply confuting the impassioned orator.

Campaigning again in 1900 Mr. Bryan decided that imperialism was another danger to the country. If it were continued the Fourth of July would be forgotten by all Americans and the "spirit of '76" would become a thing of the past. Speaking at Lincoln Mr. Bryan said:

Sees Death of Patriotism.

"The fight this year will be to carry out the sentiment of that song we have so often repeated. 'My Country, 'Tis of Thee.' If we lose, our children and our children's children will not succeed to the spirit of that song, and celebrations of the Fourth of July will pass away, for the spirit of the empire will be upon us."

Is there any spot in these United States where the spirit of 1776 is dead and forgotten and the Fourth of July a meaningless date on the calendar?

One of the most ridiculous of these prophecies was contained in a speech Mr. Bryan made in support of Judge Parker during the campaign of 1904, when he attacked President Roosevelt bitterly. This prophecy had it that military despotism was sure to follow the decrease in the size of the standing army. In this speech Mr. Bryan also emphasized the fact that he was then and always would be a firm believer in the principle of free silver. He summed up his position on this question in the following sentence:

"I believe today in the principles set forth at Chicago and Kansas City (16 to 1) and shall continue to fight for those principles."

LABOR WORLD FOR TAFT.

Characterizes Him as True Friend of the Workingman.

[From the Concord (N. H.) Monitor.]

The Labor World comes out strongly in its advocacy of Mr. Taft. It characterizes him a true friend of labor and declares that the unfair attacks of Mr. Gompers will have little or no effect in alienating from him the labor world. It says: "That Secretary Taft is a true friend of labor is certain, and all the untrue, ungenerous, vicious attacks that President Gompers or any one else may make on him cannot prevent him from continuing to be the friend of the wage worker. Organized labor cannot afford to have itself split up into factions on this political issue. That President Gompers is wrong in forcing this most ominous fight is certain, and intelligent wage workers will certainly came to this conclusion."

JUDSON OUT FOR TAFT.

Chicago University's Head So Notifies Chief Bryan Organ.

To the Editor of the New York World:

I shall vote for the Republican electors because I believe, on the whole, Mr. Taft's equipment for the administration of the federal government, based on his ripe and successful experience, makes it desirable that he should be the successor of Mr. Roosevelt. Further, on the whole, the policies which I believe that Mr. Taft will carry out are more nearly those which I approve.

HARRY PRATT JUDSON,
President Chicago University.
Chicago, Aug. 12.

Anti-injunctions.

Attorney General Wade H. Ellis of Ohio, who was a member of the committee on resolutions of the Republican national convention, makes the following reply to the criticisms of the platform made by W. J. Bryan. The attorney general says in part:

"The charge made by Mr. Bryan that the Republican declaration with respect to the use of the writ of injunction was designed to 'deceive the laboring man' is unworthy of a candidate for president, and the further charge that this plank merely declares the existing law and will give no relief in those cases in which there has been an abuse or discretion or the apprehension of it is unworthy of any lawyer who has examined the question.

"The anti-injunction resolution is a frank, clear statement of the Republican party's position on a question on which others have been attempting to deceive labor. The sole basis of any rational complaint as to the issuance of injunctions in labor cases has been the use of the writ without notice and the long delays in some instances which have intervened before a hearing of the case.

"The present statute does not require any notice at all before the granting of a temporary order, and it is entirely within the discretion of the court to postpone to any time the judge may see fit the hearing upon the question of an injunction. The Republican plank simply declares that notice shall always be given unless an irreparable injury will result from delay, and in that case there shall be a speedy hearing provided. It will meet the approval of every right thinking man, whether an employer or an employee."

Taft and Labor.

When on the bench Judge Taft said:

That employees have a right to form labor unions.

That such unions are a benefit to labor and to the public.

That they have the right to join with other unions.

That the accumulation of a fund to aid in a strike is right.

That employees have a right to strike whenever any of the terms of their employment are unsatisfactory.

Mr. Gompers says Judge Taft is opposed to organized labor. Mr. Gompers has done a lot of talking in his time and has been a very prolific writer, but in all he has said or in all he has written he has never given organized labor a more unqualified indorsement than Judge Taft gave when on the bench.

"An aggregation of experimental malcontents and theorists," Mr. Sherman's description of the Democratic party, is a phrase that hits the target right in the center.

Honors are easy again. Every time Mr. Taft buys a new horse Mr. Bryan mounts a new hobby.—Omaha Bee.

But He Runs on Forever.

[From the New York Sun.]

What will Mr. Bryan say
After next election day?
Mr. Bryan will insist
That he is an optimist.
Beaten three times! What of that?
He's the one great Democrat
Willing for his fellow men
To be beaten once again.

Read the Commoner and learn!
Mr. Bryan, Mr. Kern,
Sail together on this trip
In the old, oft stranded ship.
(They have quarters in the stern!)

In this antiquated craft,
While they gaze at Mr. Taft
Miles ahead—the race near done
And by Taft and Sherman won—
Mr. Bryan, ever wise,
Doubtless will philosophize
And to Mr. Kern recite
That remark, already trite,
All prepared and often sprung:
"Beaten? Yes, but I'm still young!
I can wait another four Years, then try the race once more.
I have got this thing down pat.
I'm the one great Democrat!"

—Julian Durand.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

EDITORIAL.

The August 31 figures of City Auditor Fairbanks are encouraging in water receipts. The water income of the first eight months of 1908 amount to $92,842.25, which is the best eight months yet, and $3,574.29 larger than for the same period last year. Of course the bulk of the water bills have been paid as bills are sent out only twice a year in January and July. The figures for three years follow:

|---|---|
| Year 1906 to Aug. 31, | $90,590.96 |
| Year 1907 to Aug. 31, | $89,267.96 |
| Year 1908 to Aug. 31, | $92,842.25 |

SEWER RECEIPTS.

The collections from the sewer assessments are the smallest of recent years as will be seen below:

| Year 1906 to Aug. 31, | $12,886.75 |
| Year 1907, to Aug. 31, | 9,902.29 |
| Year 1908 to Aug. 31, | 7,113.94 |

TAX RECEIPTS.

The tax receipts are almost wholly for taxes of other years as only the poll tax bills of 1908 have been issued. They are about $8,000.00 larger than last year at this time, but smaller than in 1906. The three years follow:

|---|---|
| Year 1906 to Aug. 31, | $167,224.87 |
| Year 1907 to Aug. 31, | $158,531.16 |
| Year 1908 to Aug. 31, | $166,736.02 |

AUGUST EXPENSES.

The total expenditures of August were $81,648.57, about the same as in July when the total was $80,169.76. It included these items:

|---|---|
| Pay roll, | $21,405.42 |
| Bills, | 22,798.21 |
| Interest, | 7,994.94 |
| Bonds redeemed, | 29,450.00 |
| | $81,648.57 |

Two Alarms Last Evening

The alarm from Box 153 at 6.26 last evening was for a fire in the house of Fred L. Bent, at 86 Farrington street. Mr. Bent while on a couch lighted his pipe, using a snap match. As he lighted the match the top flew off, and before he realized it the couch was on fire. There was some lively work for a few minutes. Before the fire was extinguished the lace curtains were burned as well as the couch and some of the carpet. The damage will not exceed $50.

Trouble on the fire alarm circuit caused a number of blows to be struck on the bells shortly after 5.30 last night. The blows registered 21 on the indicator at the Central station, and the apparatus located there respond to that box. There was no fire.

—Japan's goernment expenses for educational purposes last year was seven million dollars, besides what municipalities paid for same purposes.

—Time is of more importance in New York evidently than elsewhere, for there are more clocks in the streets there than in London and Paris combined.

PRESIDENT MAY COME

Launching of Big Battleship North Dakota Of the New Navy

The launching of the new 20,000 ton battleship North Dakota being built at the Fore River will probably take place Monday, Nov. 9.

It is possible that President Roosevelt may be present to witness the launch of the first of this class of ships to be launched.

Should the President decide to be present at the launching the event should be made a gala day for Quincy.

Serious Accident To Granite Cutter

Toco Aronen, residing in the Finn hall on Arthur street was seriously injured Friday afternoon at the stone yard of James R. Qualey & Co. on Brook road, South Quincy. The man, who has been in this country but a few months, was at work hoisting a four ton block of granite on the hand derrick.

Suddenly the brake wheel broke, and he was caught by his hands and arms in the machinery. His right hand was practically crushed off, and his left hand was almost torn off. His left arm was also badly lacerated. He was attended by Dr. McClellan, who ordered his removal to the City Hospital where he was taken in the police ambulance.

Itch cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Never fails. Sold by C. D. Harlow & Co., Druggists.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

J. F. Wentworth resumes his duties at the Navy Yard next week.

Tax Collector Carey sold 93 parcels of property at auction this morning for unpaid taxes.

Amos K. Damon, of the well known firm of Sanborn & Damon, is taking his annual vacation.

An office grill and other furnishings are advertised for sale by the Quincy Real Estate Trust.

The Sunday school of the First church will not open tomorrow but a week from Sunday.

First Church Sunday school will begin sessions a week from tomorrow; Sunday Sept. 13th at 11.50 A. M.

Miss Louise Poore of 73 South Central avenue, Wollaston, will receive pupils in vocal music after Oct. 1.

John W. Walsh has been greeting customers at the store of H. L. Kincaide & Co., this week after a vacation spent in Maine.

Miss E. Marion Harris a graduate of the Lucy Wheelock school, will open a kindergarten Oct. 1 in the Johnson building, and is now booking pupils.

It is reported that Joe Mecurio, an Italian fruit pedler, was held up on Water street one night recently and robbed of $15. The robbery was not reported to the police.

Mrs. Franklin Jacobs and son and Miss Kittie Cahill of Washington street are leaving town today for Winchendon, where they will spend the winter.

William L. Cook of Arlington has purchased from Sarah Ayre the large house adjoining the land known as the James Gay estate for improvement and occupancy.

There will be a teachers' meeting in First Church chapel next Thursday evening at half past seven. Supt. Johnson will outline the work of the year.

First church which has been closed for a month will reopen on Sunday morning with service at 10.30. Rev. E. C. Butler will preach and there will be music by the church quartet.

Lee M. Friedman, who was mentioned as one of the Republican candidates for Congressman from the Tenth district, has dropped out of the contest. The fight for the nomination is now between J. Mitchel Galvin and Charles H. S. Robinson.

The marriage of Mr. Radley reported this week was without any foundation in fact. A letter purporting to be signed by the father was sent to the Daily Ledger, but it was a forgery. If it was a joke it was carried too far.

Notice is published today of meetings to be held by the Registrars of Voters for adding names to the voting lists. Two meetings will be held before the caucuses on Sept. 11, and Sept. 18. Both will be in the Council chamber, City Hall.

Mrs. G. W. Wheeler is the new proprietor of the dry goods store so successfully conducted for so many years by Miss C. S. Hubbard. She advertises today a clearance sale to continue four days next week, when some excellent values will be offered.

Mrs. Cushing Lane of Goffe street has recently purchased of the Morse estate a large tract of land fronting on Goffe street and is to commence immediately the erection of a large colonial house. Dimock & Patten are the contractors. This firm has just completed a house for Mr. and Mrs. Perry Lawton, also one for Miss Annie L. Prescott, and have another well under way for Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Wadsworth.

Telephone Talks

Household business before pleasure. party line "telephone visits" need not be curtailed, but your service would be improved if they were made in conventional visiting hours.

"Rush Hours"

No other public service is called upon to meet such extraordinary fluctuations of demand as is the telephone. The "rush hours" of trolley and steam roads represent, by comparison, a demand that is steady and moderate.

Moreover, during the transportation "rush hours" crush some people must stand, or, if they insist upon having a seat, must wait for less crowded cars.

In telephoning, however, the simile would be applied by stating that each "passenger" must have, not a seat, but a "special car," and that this car must have a "special motorman and conductor," and the absolute right of way over a "special pair of rails" from the point where its journey begins to the point where it ends.

In telephone exchanges the "rush hours" usually are those between 8.30 and 11 A. M. It is during this period that party line subscribers are apt to be most troubled by "busy" reports.

It would materially help the service of subscribers on such lines if calls that are not imperative—social calls, for example—were deferred to the afternoon, leaving the morning hours free for domestic business calls.

It would be well if party line users would keep in mind this fact—that while any one subscriber on it is talking, it is closed to every other person connected therewith, and also to every person desirous of communicating with him or with any other person on that line.

INVESTIGATE and ECONOMIZE.

NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.

On and after September 16, we have decided

TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE

as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods

AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills over due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every day. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and take them with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Now think this proposition over, and we feel confident that you can see it just the way that we do.

SOMETHING THAT IS NEEDED HERE IN QUINCY.

A HIGH GRADE OF GOODS SOLD AT LOW PRICES.

So Remember your 5 per cent discount.

Respectfully,

Woman Believed to Have Been Killed by Being Struck on Head With a Blunt Instrument, Besides Being Strangled--Carefully Cleaned Carving Instruments--Surprises Sheriff by His Coolness

Boston, Sept. 5.—Startling evidence, throwing new light on the probable manner in which Honorah Jordan of Somerville, known on the stage as Irene Shannon, was killed, was revealed, it is claimed, by the medical examiner for Suffolk and Middlesex counties and surgeons who have been engaged in the gruesome task of performing an autopsy on the mutilated mass of flesh which until last Tuesday night was the living body of the wife of Chester S. Jordan, the actor.

Jordan, in his confession to the police, stated that his wife was killed by being knocked down stairs and that he then cut up the body and placed it in the trunk in which it was found Wednesday afternoon by the police on Hancock street in this city.

While neither Medical Examiner McGrath of Boston or Medical Examiner Durrell of Somerville will state their findings, it was learned from a reliable source that the examination thus far seemed to show that Mrs. Jordan met her death by being struck with a blunt instrument, possibly a flatiron, on the top of the front of her head, causing a fracture sufficient to cause death. Then, it is claimed, she was strangled, the tongue protruding between her teeth being cut.

No flatiron can be found in the home, it is claimed. The police have in their possession, however, the breadknife, sharpened to a keen edge, a pair of shears twelve inches long, and a razor, which Jordan claims he went out and purchased Wednesday and used in cutting up his wife. There was no blood on the instruments, Jordan, in his confession, stating he had washed them carefully at the same time he did the clothes of his wife.

The authorities will make a microscopical examination of the neck to determine more closely the character of the wounds. Dr. Swan of Cambridge and Dr. Leary, assistant medical examiner of Boston, assisted in the autopsy.

Jordan, who is 29 years of age, 6 feet 3 inches tall and weighs 203 pounds, a fine looking fellow withal, was yesterday arraigned in the Somerville court on the charge of murdering his wife, and pleaded not guilty. He seemed calm and collected when the case was called. Counsel Sullivan asked for a continuance of one week. The government representative, Acting Chief of Police Perry, offered no opposition, and the court agreed to let the case go over until Sept. 11 for hearing on probable cause to hold the defendant for the grand jury of Middlesex county at its next sitting. Jordan was held without bail.

Jordan reached the Middlesex county jail at Cambridge in a closed carriage. He was handcuffed to Inspector Damery and Patrolman Rae, and he appeared to be the coolest man about the place. Sheriff Fairbairn is quoted as saying that many a man has been brought to the jail for some petty crime who exhibits a much more disturbed state of mind than Jordan. During the time he was being booked he chatted with those about him in a most unconcerned manner.

Atlanta Wants Encampment

Toledo, Sept. 5.—After the installation of the newly elected national officers, the Grand Army of the Republic delegates decided upon Salt Lake City as the next meeting place. Vice Commander-in-Chief Scott notified the encampment that Atlanta would be in the field for 1910. His only fear was that Atlanta could not care for all the Johnnies who would come to greet them from three states. This was greeted with great applause.

Wilhelmina to Her Fighters

Amsterdam, Sept. 5.—Queen Wilhelmina has sent a telegram to The Netherlands cruiser Friesland, which sailed yesterday for the Caribbean, as follows: "In view of the circumstances under which the Friesland is starting for the West Indies, her majesty hopes that you—both officers and men—may have good fortune in the task reserved for the warship you man."

Holy Synod Against Tolstoi

St. Petersburg, Sept. 5.—The holy synod has addressed an appeal to all believers not to participate in the celebration next Wednesday in honor of Count Leo Tolstoi's 80th birthday, on the ground that honor rendered an opponent of the church would be a stumbling block to youth and persons of weak faith. The encyclical is marked for its bitter language.

Drowned Woman Identified

Boston, Sept. 5.—The body of the woman found in the Chestnut Hill reservoir last week was last night identified as that of Miss Louise M. Percy, aged 30 years. Miss Percy had been a cashier in a restaurant in this city and between times was a dressmaker. She appeared despondent for some days before her disappearance

HIGH TIME.

By CONSTANCE D'ARCY MACKAY.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"Then I suppose it's no use to argue?"

"Not the slightest. When a Millard makes up her mind it stays made up, and I made up my mind yesterday, Bobbie."

"You mean your Aunt Isobel made it up for you," Robert Ashton answered, looking at Katherine Millard as she perched beside him in the bow of the boat. The wind blew her hair into distracting ripples. She put back a strand of it as she faced him, rep'ying:

"She did have a good deal to do with it, I'll admit. But, after all, she has lived much longer in this world than I have and has gained more wisdom."

"Yes, worldly wisdom."

"Isn't that often another name for common sense? Besides, there are moments when I feel that she knows me better than I know myself. I do love the et ceteras of life so, Bobby! Love in a Harlem flat would never do for me. I want all the pate de fois gras of existence and none of the rye bread. And you know from the first I've never given you the least cause for hope. I've always been perfectly frank with you, haven't I?"

"Always."

"Then I can't see why you should protest so much."

"Well, for one reason I hate to see you flinging yourself away on old Senator Rathbone."

"Thank you!"

"And, for another, what man gives up the girl he loves without a struggle? It isn't human nature to forego a thing simply because it's beyond your reach. And then there's a third reason. We could be so gloriously happy!"

The girl averted her eyes.

"Couldn't we?" he persisted.

"I don't know"— she faltered.

"Ah, but you do know! You know we're one in everything. That's why I dare to 'persist so much.' We like the same things. We like the same people. We have the same sense of humor—except in the case of Senator Rathbone!"

"Bobbie, if you make fun of my friend I won't take you sailing again."

"But, Katherine"—

"Now, Bobbie!" For a second time she faced him squarely. "I've told you my mind's made up, and I mean what I say. You've been a good friend to me, and I've enjoyed the times we've had together. But if we're to be good friends still this kind of thing can't keep going on. Don't you see how hard you are making it for me? Either you must promise me not to mention it again or I'll have to give up seeing you entirely."

"All right," he replied, with that characteristic boyishness that women always found so adorable in him. "I'll be good."

He nodded at her smilingly, and she told herself that, after all, he was only a boy with a boy's ardor—twenty-five and not yet grown up! But that was because she was looking at his smile and not at what lay in his eyes.

She let out the main sheet of the White Lady until the spray dashed across the bow of the trim little craft. It was a gray day, with a hint of rain in the air and the sea gulls hovering inland—such a day as sends the usual summer resorter to a cozy chair by flickering logs with a novel close at hand and the fisher folk out to open sea with the promise of a heavy catch.

Between gray green water and slate gray sky the White Lady seemed the only thing afloat as she skimmed and tacked and lifted on the crest of the waves. They were racing to windward now, and the homes of the shore dwellers faded in the distance. Here and there stood the solitary houses of fishermen; then these, too, became fewer.

The shore rose to bare, rocky headlands capped with stunted pines—gaunt, jagged rocks with the water creaming at their base. Islands rose mere specks in the distance, only discernible because of the surf that played about them or the dwelling or two that reclaimed them from utter loneliness. The White Lady throbbed and flew, so tense, so alive, so seemingly a part of the elements, that it was hard to believe her a thing of wood and canvas.

"Look out!" sang Ashton as the boat came suddenly about. "That was a pretty close shave."

"Who sails with me holds life in fee," laughed Katherine, intoxicated with wave and wind and foam.

"There is such a thing as common sense," quoted Ashton.

But the wine of the sea was in Katherine's blood. She rounded another flat rock triumphantly.

"Careful!" cautioned Ashton.

"Afraid?" she taunted, with uplifted chin, and then laughed as scarlet surged across his keen young face.

"Sail where you like! I don't care!" he cried.

"You think," she scoffed recklessly, "that just because I'm a girl I can't manage my own boat. Why, rounding these rocks is a perfect game for me! I've done it lots of times. Of course I know the summer people are warned against it. But I'm not a summer person at heart. I'm what Captain Davy calls a regular salt, and I allow no mutiny on the part of my crew. So there! And whoever accepts my invitation to sail accepts the risks that accompany it. Sing ho, sing ho, for a sailor's life, sing ho, sing ho, for a"—

They both knew what had happened when the boat jarred from bow to stern, knew it before the bitter sea water dashed in their faces as they struggled toward a flat rock that uprose from the sea. When they reached it, it was the girl who spoke first.

"Well?" she said gamely, and then beneath her breath, "If I had had sense enough to obey!"

"If I had only jerked the tiller from you!" he said in answer. But neither of them spoke what was uppermost in their minds.

No hope to try for the shore, with its steep cliffs where the water rolled and eddied, and the rock on which they stood was always covered at high tide. Already the water oozed and gurgled about its crevices. With every wave it rose a fraction higher. The tide was coming in.

"If only some one would see us," whispered the girl, "some passing boat or"— The words died in her throat. The lonely expanse of water showed no hopeful sail. Ashton was staring at a speck that showed in the far distance—Deerhaven island. When he spoke all the boyishness was gone from his voice.

"There's only one way, Katherine. Would you rather I tried for it, or shall we stay here together?"

"I'd rather you tried for it," she said bravely, seeing as well as he that there was not a moment to lose.

"You can watch my coat and shoes till I come back." His voice rang cheerfully. "I'm in splendid practice; swam a couple of miles only the day before yesterday." He did not add that Captain Davy had followed with a dory. "Keep up your heart, girl!" he cried, with a touch of his old gayety.

"And you"— She would have cheered him on, but words failed her.

"I'll remember that it's for you I'm swimming. The biggest breakers in the world won't make me forget that."

He waved her goodby as if he were off for a pleasure jaunt, and she watched him as he struck out squarely, making every stroke count.

The long swing of the seas rolled between them, widening the space until her straining eyes could discover him no longer. The water lapped and gurgled about the rock on which she stood, rising ever higher. There was something hungry in the way the little waves crept up, reaching greedily. She tried to think of other things, to watch for a sail. From far away came the sound of surf breaking slowly against the reefs and now and again the mournful, lonely note of the bell buoy.

Slowly the water rose. It touched her ankles, her knees. The lift of each oncoming wave nearly took her off her feet. At that new panic seized her. If she were swept from the rock, what then? Gropingly and numb with cold she reached for the long growths of seaweed with which the rock was covered. Lengthened out they came almost to her shoulders. She twisted her hands in them and waited.

There came the moment when the water reached her shoulders, and each new wave made her shut her eyes and breathe gaspingly. She had long since given up hope of rescue. There remained but one thought—that whatever came she must stay where they would find her.

After all, drowning was not so hard. After the first deep strangling breath she felt herself slipping into unconsciousness. Snatches of past events, trivial and vivid, shone before her for a moment; then all merged into the blackness that closed her round.

When she opened her eyes she met the anxious gaze of Ashton bending over her. She wondered dimly if he belonged to the old life, and then his voice, perturbed and human, came to her as from a great distance.

"A moment more," he was saying, "and we would have been too late."

Then with a start it all came back to her—all that had occurred. She raised her head. Captain Davy was sitting in the stern of the rescuing boat looking both triumphant and concerned.

"Guess your aunt will be pretty glad to have you back," he beamed. "And so will that senator they say you're engaged to."

"But I'm not engeged to him," she protested fainly. She appealed to Ashton. "Tell him," she commanded.

"Tell him"—

"That it isn't so and never will be."

"Katherine!"

"You say that as if you thought I was overwrought and speaking wildly. But I'm not. I never was surer of myself in my life than I am this minute. Oh, Bobbie, can't you see that in that hour alone out there I learned everything, the heights, the depths, the things that don't count and the things that do?"

And then as she saw the amazed delight in his eyes deepen to the rapture of certainty she held out both her hands to him. "For once a Millard has changed her mind," she whispered.

And Captain Davy, scanning the horizon with tactful scrutiny, heaved a sympathetic sigh.

"Looks as if we were in for a spell of fair weather ahead," he muttered. "Winds turned, clouds are liftin', and all's well!"

The College Game.

Silas Whipperwill had not been in college over a month until he began using all the student slang in addition to university mannerisms. Then he wrote his father like this:

Dear Father—This college game is certainly expensive. I can't stay in it without more cash. It is hard to get good results without the necessary money. I am a stranger here, and my credit is no good. Your loving son SILAS.

By the next mail he received this:

Dear Silas—Quit the game. Your father never could play poker, so I don't see no use in your trying to win. Your loving FATHER.

CITY OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace Of Two Burial Place Of Two

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grandfather of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

BIRTHPLACES OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace of John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States, Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Admission charged.

Birthplace of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of the old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponsit river.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) at Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural momuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. The funeral of John Quincy Adams was held in this church. Beneath the entrance is the Adams tomb, reached by stairways from the vestibule. Near the tomb is the box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams, also the old town hearse. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock cemetery across the street from First church contains many old stones. Among the old graves are those of Henry Adams founder of the Adams family who died Oct. 5, 1646; Rev. William Thompson, 1st pastor over the Braintree church who died Dec. 10, 1666; Rev. Henry Flint who died Oct. 11, 1668; Rev. John Hancock father of the Patriot who died May 7, 1744 and many other notable people.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

DOROTHY Q. HOUSE.

Hancock street, corner Butler road, Quincy, Old Quincy homestead in which Dorothy Q was born. Owned by the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames. Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting feature. Open free to the public on Saturdays, from 11 A. M. until 4 P. M. Other days admission charged

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 30, 1621, guided by the Indian Tisquantum.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

Conservative Business Situation

New York, Sept. 5.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: The steady decrease in percentage of idle machinery and number of idle freight cars swells the amount of money distributed among wage earners, and gradually increases the volume of retail trade. There is more confidence regarding the future, but conservatism still dominates the situation, and many plans will not materialize into anything tangible until the election uncertainty is removed two months hence.

Cummins After Senatorial Toga

Des Moines, Sept. 5.—The resolution providing for the election of a United States senator to succeed the late Senator Allison to be held Sept. 9 carried by a vote of 58 to 1 in the Republican caucus. The "standpatters" did not make good a threat to bolt the caucus in a body unless Governor Cummins eliminated himself from the short term contest. "It is evident to me," Cummins said, "that my friends want me to make the race and I am in the hands of my friends."

Goff Does Not Seek Honor

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 5.—In a telegram sent here from Milwaukee, United States Circuit Judge Nathan Goff states that his name positively must not be used as a compromise candidate to settle the Republican factional fight over the governorship in this state. It was reported that the representatives of the Swisher and Scherr factions had agreed to withdraw these two men as gubernatorial candidates and substitute Goff as the head of a harmony ticket.

Paid $5000 For Cheating Uncle Sam

Washington, Sept. 5.—Victor G. Bloede of Baltimore, jointly indicted with Edwin Van Dyck, former ink expert of the bureau of engraving and printing in this city, for alleged conspiracy to defraud the government in connection with contracts for supplying the government with ink, pleaded guilty and was fined $5000, which was immediately paid. Van Dyck will be tried later.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Schooner Nadezhda, manned by students of a naval school, was wrecked off Petropavlovsk, Russia. There were no fatalities.

Needed the Cork.

John Simmons had been a twenty years' abstainer, but fell from the ways of grace and worshiped the vinous god with all the fervor of a pervert. Feeling the need of recuperation, he sent his boy to an adjacent hostelry for a bottle of whisky.

"But," cried the hotel proprietor, "who's it for?"

"For my father."

"Nonsense. Your father is a total abstainer and has been, to my knowledge, for longer years than you've lived."

"Well, at all events, he sent me for it."

"What does he want it for?"

"To let you into a secret," said the boy, ashamed to tell the truth, "he's going fishing, and he wants the cork to use for a float!"

THE PASSING OF WAR.

Down the dark future, through long generations,
The echoing sounds grow fainter and then cease,
And like a bell, with solemn, sweet vibrations,
I hear once more the voice of Christ say, "Peace."

Peace, and no longer from its brazen portals
The blast of war's great organ shakes the skies,
But beautiful as songs of the immortals
The holy melodies of love arise.
—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

His Narrow Escape.

"Once," related the tall tragedian with the Shakespearean hair, "I was stranded in the wilds of Georgia. Night came and still I had sighted no help. Suddenly I found myself surrounded by a drove of razorback hogs. Ah, gentlemen, when morning came"—

"Hold on," interrupted the fat comedian, "don't spring any such yarns as that on the innocent. Razorback hogs are known to be exceedingly vicious, and if you had been surrounded by a drove of them you would have never seen morning. They would have eaten you up, even to the pawn ticket for your watch."

The tall tragedian scratched his chin in deep meditation.

"No, me lord, you are wrong," he said finally. "There are exceptions in all cases. You see, these happened to be safety razorback hogs."—Chicago News.

Mixed Berries.

A young tailor named Berry, who had succeeded to his father's business, once sent in his account to Charles Matthews somewhat ahead of time, whereupon Matthews, with virtuous rage, wrote him the following note:

"You must be a goose—Berry to send me your bill—Berry, before it is due—Berry. Your father, the elder—Berry, would have had more sense. You may look very black—Berry and feel very blue—Berry, but I don't care a straw—Berry for you and your bill—Berry."

Worried.

"Why," asked the good man's wife, "are you so thoughtful? You look as if something disagreeable had happened."

"Perhaps," he replied, "I am foolish to feel as I do about it. My congregation has raised a purse for the purpose of sending me to Europe."

"And are you sorry it isn't large enough to enable you to take me with you? Don't let that cause you to feel depressed. It will be very lonely here without you, but I know you need the rest, and I shall be cheered by the thought that you will return refreshed in mind and body."

"It is very good of you to look at it in that way, my dear. I appreciate your feeling. But the gentleman who made the presentation speech said he was sorry the amount that had been raised was not larger so that I might be able to remain away longer, and somehow it seemed to be that the applause was more hearty at that point than anywhere else in the course of his remarks."

Would Have Done the Same.

Rev. George B. Macdonald, a Wesleyan clergyman, was Kipling's maternal grandfather. It is related of this bright Macdonald that in the days when he was courting the lady whom he afterward married the father-in-law to be—an aged Methodist, with extremely strict notions in regard to the proprieties—was injudicious enough on one occasion to enter the parlor without giving any warning of his approach. The consequence was that he found the sweethearts occupying a single chair.

Deeply shocked by this spectacle the old man solemnly said: "Mr. Macdonald, when I was courting Mrs. Brown she sat on one side of the room and I on the other."

Macdonald's reply was: "That's what I should have done if I had been courting Mrs. Brown."

The Retort Worthy.

Major Throckmorton, an innkeeper of Louisville in ante bellum days, was one of the most interesting characters that ever helped to make life worth living or history worth reading. He ejected Charles Dickens, the great English novelist, from his hotel, and he made at least one retort worthy to be handed down from generation to generation.

"Get this man's horse," said the major to his hostler (the man had insulted one of the major's guests)—"that little Arkansas pony."

"I'll let you know," shouted the man, "that I am not from Arkansas, and my horse is no Arkansas pony, either!" And then in a still louder tone he called out, "I'll let you know that I am a gentleman!"

The major answered, "And I'll let you know that I am a gentleman!"

"And I'll let you know," yelled the big man, "that I am Colonel Wilson of Woodville, Mississippi."

"And I'll let you know," vociferated the major, "that I am Major Aris Throckmorton of the Blue Licks, Kentucky."

"And I'll let you know," screamed the big man, "that I run for the state senate in my deestrick last summer, and that I was beat four votes!"

"And I'll let you know," shrieked the major, "that I ran for the state senate in this district last summer, and that I was beat 400 votes!"—Harper's Weekly.

A French Joke.

"Our French Independence day," said a Frenchman, "is July 14. We make quite a day of it, too, I assure you. You don't outdo us at all in patriotism and enthusiasm on that day. We have a good joke in Paris that we play on our cabbies on July 14. You know how one asks a cabby if he is disengaged. "Cocher, vous etes libre?"—'Driver, are you free?' Well, the joke is to hail a cab and say:

"'Cocher, vous etes libre?'

"'Oui, monsieur,' the man answers, pulling up.

"Then you give a loud laugh and say as you hurry off:

"'Moi aussi. Vive la liberte!'—'So am I. Hurrah for freedom!'"

The Arbitrators at Work.

He was a man of peace, and he came upon two youths in a back street fighting. Accordingly he pushed through the crowd and persuaded the combatants to desist.

"Let me beg of you, my good fellows," earnestly besought the peacemaker, "to settle your dispute by arbitration. Each of you choose half a dozen friends to arbitrate."

"Hurrah!" yelled the crowd. "Do as the gentleman sez, bhoys."

Having seen the twelve arbitrators selected to the satisfaction of both sides, the man of peace went on his way rejoicing in the thought of having once again prevailed upon brute force to yield to peaceful argument.

Half an hour later he returned that way and was horrified to find the whole street fighting, while in the distance police whistles could be heard blowing and police seen rushing to the spot from all quarters.

"Good gracious! What is the matter now?" asked the peacemaker.

"Shure, sorr," was the reply, "the arbitrators are at work."

Both Helped.

Zimmerman, the eminent physician, was sent from Hanover to attend Frederick the Great in his last illness. One day the king said to him, "You have, I presume, sir, helped many a man into another world?"

This was rather a bitter pill for the doctor, but the dose he gave the king in return was a judicious mixture of truth and flattery:

"Not so many as your majesty, nor with so much honor to myself."

Blaine's Tart Retort.

When James G. Blaine was a member of the house of representatives he once had a spicy debate with another member who was doing some filibustering. The remarks exchanged grew warm, and the argument finally culminated in this remark by the frate filibuster:

"On another occasion I shall ask the gentleman from Maine to take supper with me in hell."

There was a moment's silence, and then Blaine bowed low as he replied:

"I thank the gentleman for his kindly invitation. I have had many invitations in my life, but this is the first time I have ever been asked to visit Democratic headquarters."

Two Large "Ifs."

An optimistic sort of a chap, who made the best of everything, got lost in the Maine woods with a companion on a hunting expedition. As night came on they made camp, but, although they were hungry, they had shot no game and had nothing to eat. With a perfectly serious face this fellow looked at his companion and said:

"If we only had some ham, we'd have ham and eggs, if we only had some eggs."

We Are Made For Co-operation.

Begin the morning by saying to thyself: I shall meet this day with the busybody, the ungrateful, arrogant, deceitful, envious, unsocial. All these things happen to them by reason of their ignorance of what is good and evil. But I who have seen the nature of the good, that it is beautiful, and of the bad, that it is ugly, can neither be injured by any of them—for no one can fix on me what is ugly—nor can I be angry with my neigbor nor hate him. We are made for co-operation. To act against one another, then, is contrary to nature, and it is acting against one another to be vexed and turn away.—Marcus Aurelius.

His Epitaph.

Hilary Harkness was a politician of the lowest type, and unsuccessful at that. His whole life was devoted to office seeking. He spent thirty-seven years vainly seeking a $5,000 office—hours 10 till 2—while his wife and daughter supported him by keeping a candy shop. Well, Hilary died at last. A modest shaft was put above his remains, and the executor asked the editor of his town paper to suggest an epitaph to go upon the shaft.

The editor thought a moment. Then he smiled, and, slipping a sheet of paper in his typewriter, he clicked off, "Here lies Hilary Harkness, in the only place for which he never applied."

Newsy Notes at Houghs Neck

A monster benefit was given the I. O. O. L., Manchester Unity, of Weymouth, at the Palms last night. The big hall was crowded with Odd Ladies and their guests. Operator Max put on the largest show ever given at the Neck. The state police refused to allow local talent on the stage and the show consisted of illustrated songs and moving pictures. After the show the invited guests were treated to a splendid collation by Mrs. Charles F. Cook and Mrs. Nat Max. The committee in charge of the affair included Past Noble Grand Anna J. Gould, Mrs. Charles F. Cook, Vice Grand Mrs. Charles Olsen, and Noble Grand Mrs. Emma Eddy.

Greenaway won the weekly roll-off at Brown's alleys last night with a score of 261. Fred Scott was second high man, and should have won but the pins broke bad.

The children's carnival at the Pandora hall Thursday night was such a big success that the management was requested to hold another. The carnival will be held next Tuesday night. To keep the undesirable class out, the admission to the hall will be twenty-five cents which includes dancing.

The Mt. Pleasant Outing club of Roxbury will hold an open air concert on the veranda of their house on Atlantic avenue Sunday evening.

Fleet captain, Ira M. Whittemore of the Quincy Yacht club feels very greatful to the anonymous friend who has presented the Almira a cup. The cup which is about one-half inch in heighth came in the morning's mail wit a card marked "Hard luck Whit—consolation." "Whit" says it is the largest cup the Almira ever won.

BARN DANCE.

Chief Fire Engineer Frank O. Whitmarsh of Braintree, entertained a company of associates and friends on Tuesday evening. The occasion was the opening of his new barn recently built by contractor G. R. Dobson of Hayward street. The barn with a fine cemented floor was a capital hall, and the merry party included the Braintree fire department, with ladies, officials from Quincy, Boston and other fire departments in the state.

Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Whitmarsh in most hospitable fashion welcomed the guests, and when the savory clam chowder, delicious ices and cakes were enjoyed, all had a right good feast. Altogether it was a happy, hearty informal affair, filled with downright pleasure to all present. Chief Whitmarsh is a genial host as well as an efficient fire fighter.

AMUSEMENTS.

Keith's Theatre.

For the week beginning Labor day, a bill has been arranged at Keith's theatre, which in respect to head line features and general excellence will surpass anything given so far this season, notwithstanding that the new idea of five and one-half hours shows has developed an entirely new improved class of entertainment. Unquestionably, the most notable feature will be "The Love Waltz," a Vienesse Light Opera, written especially for vaudeville and following the line of the waltz operas that are now the craze. The production was made by Jesse Lasky and is one of the best ever given outside of legitimate play houses. It was produced about the time the Merry Widow arrived and created as much of a sensation among the patrons of vaudeville as the German opera did on Broadway. Another notable attraction will be Nat Wills, the most famous of comedians who up to this season has been at the head of his own company; Les Silvas, a Portuguese Company, who have a distinct novelty in a ladder balancing act and the Keith special program which includes moving pictures musical selections by an excellent choir of singers and the picturesque side of current events.

Boston Theatre.

The coming season at the Boston Theatre promises to be one of the most important in the history of that famous playhouse, judging by what is already known of the plans of Mr. B. F. Keith, the proprietor and manager. As a preliminary to the season of the Boston Theatre Stock Company he has secured for a four weeks engagement, Mr. Deman Thompson will appear as Uncle Josh in "The Old Homestead" the play with which his name will always be identified. This engagement begins on the afternoon of Labor Day, Sept. 7. It is nearly four years since Mr. Thompson has been seen in the part in Boston, and the production for this occasion will be perhaps the most elaborate ever given of the famous play. It will be given with the wonderful scenic effects the realism that has probably never been duplicated.

For the Stock Company season the players who made such a wonderful success last season are coming again with others of equal note and popularity, the company including Eleanor Gordon, Wilson Melrose, Mary Sanders, Rose Morison, Beverly West, Walter Walker, Frank Mosse, Dudley Hawley, William J. Hassan, Marry Edwardes, John Ceary and Joseph Sullivan. Mr. Keith has secured all the greatest successes of Charles Frohman, David Belasco, the Lliebler Company, and is preparing to put them on in a manner that will be a revelation to playgoers, being able to do this with the splendid facilities of the Boston Theatre.

Colonial Theatre.

It is pleasant to record the success of "Commencement Days," the new play of college girl life which John Cort is presenting at the Colonial theatre, Boston. This new piece, the joint work of Virginia Frame and Margaret Mayo, has met with a hearty and healthy approval. The story of "Commencement Days" is simple, yet dramatic and compelling. "Commencement Days" is a play of types, the wholesome, rollicking life that abounds in American college life, the romping, lovable girls that combine innocent merriment and aptitude for higher education, the girls to whom the whole world doffs its hat.

John Cort has given the play every advantage that managerial tact and resources can command. The mounting is said to be unusually lavish and attractive, the company a carefully selected one, and the details of production worked out to a complete nicety.

Castle Square Theatre.

No such tremendous dramatic sensation as "The Devil" has been known in years. It was the European success of last year. At the present moment it is being played in various theatres in Europe, and New York, is witnessing rival productions at two rival theatres. Its first performanaces in America outside of New York will be given at the Castle Square theatre, Monday afternoon and evening, September 7, and it will be repeated twice a day throughout the entire week. In its English version, as well as in the original "The Devil" is filled with wit and ingenious complication, and the central character, with all its malevolence is an original stage figure, offering opportunities for striking impersonation and powerful acting. The play contains three acts, and in each the dramatist sets forth the passions of the human soul. All though, the Devil in the person of a very modern up to date gentleman, appears to be laughing at hte very weaknesses he is betraying. The plot is skillfully worked out. An artist is in love with the beautiful wife of a wealthy merchant. She, too, loves, but her duty as wife causes her to restrain her passion. Miss Lillian Lawrence has been especially engaged to play the part of the heroine in "The Devil."

Orpheum Theatre.

Williams and Walker, who open the season at the Orpheum in Boston tonight in their greatest musical comedy success, "Bandanna Land," bring as one of the special features a new dance of Salome which is at the present time a veritable craze in New York. Aida Overton Walker, the greatest dancer of the American stage, interprets the dance according to her original conception. Special music has been written for this dance by Joseph Jordan, and new electrical effects, costumes and scenery have been arranged. "The Dance of Salome" is only one feature, however, of "Bandanna Land," for Williams and Walker are themselves better than they have more opportunities, and their songs, dances and comedy situations are decidedly up-to-date.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

GRAND CARNIVAL

The Elks and St. Marys Win At Field Day of Copeland Club

Under the most auspicious conditions, with ideal weather and a crowd of over a thousand men, women and children, the Copeland Club of West Quincy held their first annual field day and athletic carnival at the Ward Four playground.

As early as 9.30 the crowd began to arrive to witness the first feature of the day's sport, a red-hot base-ball game, the third and rubber game for a cup, between the Elks and the Knights of Columbus. The game was interesting from the start, and at the end of the regular nine innings each side had twelve runs. Extra innings were necessary and in the tenth each scored two runs. In their half of the eleventh the Elks batted hard and with the help of a few errors, scored four more runs. The Knights, were unable to connect with McMasters, the Elks' twirler, and Leo retired the side in order.

The final score was Elks, 18; Knights, 14.

After this game came the big feature of the day, a match race between Joe Elcock, a Quincy boy, running under the colors of the South Boston A. C., and Powell, the colored flyer from the Milton Y. M. C. A., for the 100-yard championship of Norfolk County.

This match had created widespread interest and each man had plenty of backers. The odds were in favor of Elcock. It was a pretty race to watch, and Elcock showed his superiority by leading from the start and crossing the tape an easy winner by three yards, in the time of 10 2-5 seconds.

The 100 yards dash, open to all, was the next event on the program. Elcock Powell and McIntosh qualified for the final. Elcock beat Powell again, with McIntosh third. Time, 10 2-5 seconds.

The 220-yards dash was next, and in this event Powell beat Elcock about a foot. "Joe" is stronger in the 220 than in the 100, and a match race between the two at this distance would create a lot of interest, and be a big boom for track athletics in Quincy.

There was much interest also to see if "Tom" Elcock could beat Powell in 440-yard dash. Tom was strong from the start, and the Milton boy was run off his feet in 300 yards. Tom won by 50 yards, time 54 seconds.

The final track event was a half-mile team race for the championship of Quincy, between the Iroquois Club and the Quincy A. C. The race was close and exciting and ended in a fast race between Ford and Sullivan. They came down the stretch abreast, but in the last ten yards, Ford forged ahead and won by about a foot.

Gold medals were given to the first men and silver medals to the second men.

The following men officiated at the track events:—John D. Smith, starter; Joseph Monahan, timer; George Berry, Harry Boyd and Edward Desmond, judges.

The big carnival was brought to a close by a baseball game between the Copeland Club and St. Marys, for a purse of $100. The game was interesting till Desmond went up in the air in the fifth, passing 5 men. This together with a triple to deep left by Burke, gave St. Marys three runs, and they held the lead till the end, winning by the score of 6 to 2. The features of the game were the batting and fielding of Burke for St. Marys, and the batting and base running of McTiernan for Copeland.

Refreshments, tonic, cigars and candy were for sale all day on the grounds, while there were amusements for all, both young and old.

This carnival was a grand success, due in large part to John D. Smith and his corps of assistants. The committee of arrangements consisted of John D. Smith, chairman, Harry Boyd, Frank Hebert, A. R. Elcock and Edward Desmond.

Many of the city officials were present including Mayor Shea and City Solicitor John W. McAnarney.

Real estate dealers tell us that many people working in our city are obliged to live out of town because of the impossibility to secure desirable and cheap rents here. Thus Quincy merchants and mechanics are losing trade and money, for could these men find rents for $15 to $22 their families would live here and our business men would be the financial gainers.

Baptist Outing Bethel Beach

Over 500 were present on Labor day at the outing under the auspices of the New England Young People's Union of Swedish Baptist church, held at Bethel beach, Germantown. Delegates were present from Lynn Lowell, Newton, Providence, Brockton, New Bedford and other New England cities and towns.

Meetings of the union were held during the morning and afternoon, at which addresses were made by Rev. A. P. Hanson of Quincy, Rev. G. W. Linstrom of Brockton, Rev. Mr. Wolberg of Manchester, N. H., Rev. Mr. Zetterwall of Lynn, Rev. Mr. Linblom of Lowell, Rev. Mr. Ostrom of Concord, N. H., and Rev. J. Haldin of Providence, R. I.

During these meetings there was singing by the male choruses under the direction of John Herbert of Quincy. There was also a series of field sports during the day.

Bethel beach is a beautiful tract of land containing 35 acres, situated off Palmer street, Germantown, and was recently purchased by a corporation composed of members of the Quincy Swedish Baptist church.

Several house lots have already been sold, but quite a large tract has been reserved upon which a tabernacle will be erected, where conferences will be held.

The Y. M. C. A. Handicap Meet

On the afternoon of the holiday before a good company of spectators at Merrymount Park a very successful athletic meet was held for Y. M. C. A. members. Handicaps were given in all the events so that each had a chance to win.

The competitors ranged in age from twelve to twenty-five. The running of William Hall, age 14, who won the 440 yard dash from the 50 yard mark, and George Jennings age 12, who led the field for 6 1-2 laps in the mile run was particularly noteworthy:

The summary:

100 yd. dash,—P. Griffin first; A. Coffin second, A. Osborn third.

220 yd dash—J. J. Floyd, first; A. Coffin second, W. Hall, third.

Broad Jump,—R. Hatfield, first; H. Histen, second; R. Picard, third.

Shot Put (12 lbs.)—H. Histen first; 40 ft. 6 in.; B. Lupton second, P. Griffin third.

440 yd. run,—W. Hall first; J. J. Floyd second; R. Hatfield, third.

Mile Run,—A. Coffin, first; J. J. Floyd, second; G. Jennings, third, Referee and starter, G. S. Maxwell.

Scorer, Howard Pratt.

Judges,—J. L. Hall, H. W. Hatfield and J. M. Wilson.

Inspectors,—R. Crane, R. C. Blake, and E. D. Debies.

Solid silver medals were offered as prizes which were paid for by kind friends of the Association.

The Quincy High.

An army of nearly 800 reported at the High school building this morning, and it is expected that the total enrollment of the school will reach 850 before the time for entering expires. Of this number nearly 300 entered the freshmen class twelve of this number coming from out of town schools.

Woodward Opened.

The indications at the Woodward Institute this morning were that the school would be as large this year as last year, if not larger. The freshmen class to enter this morning was 45. This number is larger than the entering class the first day last year. There are a number of others who have signified their intention of entering the school, but have not rereturned from their vacations. The freshmen class will probably number 60.

Motor Boat Explosion.

The engine of a home-made power boat blew up in Neponset river Saturday afternoon. The explosion was plainly heard in Atlantic. James McCarthy, the owner of the boat, escaped by jumping into the water. Another passenger opened the seacock and the craft was saved by sinking.

New Pastor at Calvary Baptist

Rev. R. J. Davis of North Swansea began his duties as pastor of the Calvary Baptist church on Sunday. At the morning service he preached on the necessity of having a fixed purpose, to find out what that purpose was, and to apply one's self to accomplishing those things which that purpose demanded. After the service he was surrounded by his people, meeting each person personally.

By Accident In Australia

Michael Michaelson of Quincy, a member of the band on the battleship Vermont, now on the cruise around the world, died last Thursday at Melbourne, as the result of injuries received by being runover by a coach.

Michaelson, who has resided in Quincy for the past ten years, came from Fitchburg. He was 37 years of age and a native of Finland. He leaves a widow, Mrs. Sofia Michaelson, who resides on Smith street, at Brewers Corner. Mrs. Michaelson has been notified by the authorities at Washington of her husband's death and is almost prostrated by the blow, and is now under the care of a physician. It is possible that the body may be shipped to Quincy.

Auto Accident.

Ex-Councilman Eugene R. Stone and family had a narrow escape from a serious automobile accident early Sunday evening on Washington street. The family had been out several hours and were returning to their home on River street. Mr. Stone's son was running the machine, and while going down the hill just north of Canal street the machine skidded on the wet road, and before it could be brought to a stop it struck the curbing. The front and rear wheels were wrenched out of place and the occupants of the car considerably shaken up. Fortunately, however, none of them were injured.

Shipyard Accident Fatal.

Edward J. Carroll one of the three men injured at the Fore River shipyard, on Saturday, Aug. 22, by a porter bar falling upon him, died Sunday morning at the City Hospital. Carroll's head was crushed in and it was necessary to remove some of the bones and insert a silver plate. He was 45 years of age and resided on Broad street, East Weymouth, He leaves a widow and three children. The other two victims of the accident Daniel Ahern and Riccordo Palma are rapidly recovering.

Quincy Socialists.

The Socialists of the Fifth Norfolk Representative district met in Keating's hall on Saturday evening, and nominated Charles W. Hanscom as candidate for Representative. Mr. Hanscom is an organizer of the Electrical Workers' union. The Socialist conventions to nominate candidates for senator councillor and county officers will be held at Keating's hall Thursday, Sept. 10.

The City Council Committee are getting down to work again. Meetings of the Street Committee and Public Buildings committee have been called for Friday evening.

An important meeting of Quincy lodge of Elks will be held tonight. Several candidates will be initiated, and ballots taken on several applicants for membership.

The grand movement of summer residents at the beaches toward their winter homes has commenced. All day long Monday loads of furniture were moving toward Boston.

The baseball games on the Atlantic playgrounds every Saturday afternoon are becoming popular. They are attended by large crowds and good plays are enthusiastically cheered.

Mr. and Mrs. Cephas Drew of Walker street, have returned from Hancock, N. H., where Mrs. Drew has been spending the month of August , and Mr. Drew has enjoyed two weeks.

The grounds around the new Quincy school have been laid out in first-class shape and graded artistically. It only needs a fresh crop of green grass to put on the finishing touches.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Wood of Webster street, left Friday for a steamer trip to Augusta, Maine, from there they will go to Portland to visit Mrs. Wood's parents, and return home on the Portland boat.

The funeral of Andrew Gregory of 64 Field street was held Sunday afternoon from Christ church. Services were conducted by Rev. A. Edwin Clattenberg. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

Robert Eronen who was severely injured at the granite yard of James R. Qualey at South Quincy Thursday afternoon by the breaking of the brake wheel of a derrick, died Saturday afternoon at the City Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hillman Eggleton, who have been the guests of Mrs. Isabell Cameron of Quincy street, left on Monday night for their home in Cleveland, Ohio, but will return in the near future and make their home in the East.

There was a good crowd in attendance all day Monday at the land sale at Adams shore. Teel's band was present all day and gave concerts. There was a series of sports and lunch was served. Some lots were sold.

REMARKABLE GOOD FORTUNE

No One Hurt In Automobile Contest For Ames Trophy

CAPTURED BY LEWIS STRANG

Covered 254.4 Miles Over Public Roads In 4:40:34, Leading His Nearest Competitor by More Than an Hour and a Half--One Circuit of Course of 10.6 Miles Made Inside Eleven Minutes

Lowell, Mass., Sept. 8.—Racing at breakneck speed and with remarkable good fortune over the roads of this city and the adjoining town of Tyngsboro for more than 250 miles, Lewis Strang, in a 60-horse power car, left all his competitors far in the rear and easily won the automobile road race for the Butler Ames trophy. The exact length of the run was 254.4 miles, comprising 24 circuits of a course measuring 10.6 miles. The winner's time was 4 hours, 40 minutes and 34 seconds.

Harry F. Grant finished second, more than an hour and a half after Strang, and at intervals of a few minutes thereafter William Bourque finished third and George H. Robertson came in fourth. Of the three other cars which started, those driven by Frank L. Lescault and Charles L. Basle withdrew, owing to slight accidents, and that of Robert Berman was disqualified because outside assistance was accepted in making repairs after an accident.

None of the mishaps in which the various cars figured resulted in any injury to the occupants. Strang was presented by Ames with the $1000 trophy for the manufacturer of the winning car and also with $500 for himself from the Lowell Automobile club, under whose auspices the race was held. Grant received $250 and Bourque $150.

Strang took the lead early in the race and kept it throughout, tearing around lap after lap with utter disregard of the sharp curves, scarcely slackening his speed even at the dreaded "hairpin turn," the most dangerous spot on the course. Steadily drawing away from the other cars, he completed the race while his nearest competitor was still on the 20th lap. His fastest circuit of the course was made on the sixth lap, when he covered the 10.6 miles in 10 minutes and 53 seconds. During one hour, early in the race, he covered 53 miles. Strang was the only one of the drivers to go through the contest without a single accident to his machine. Once only he stopped for a few seconds to investigate a threatened trouble, but this was his only halt.

The great throng of spectators who crowded close to the road all along the route found the greatest interest in watching the contest. A force of 500 special officers maintained order in the crowd without great difficulty, and the ambulance corps had nothing to do.

The summary:

| Driver | Car | Time |
|---|---|---|
| Strang | 60 h. p. Isotta-Fraschini | 4:40:34 |
| Grant | 60 h. p. Berliet | 6:14:38 |
| Bourque | 38 h. p. Knox | 6:33:29 |
| Robertson | 50 h. p. Fiat | 6:38:32 |

Hearst Not Considered a Factor

Chicago, Sept. 8.—William J. Bryan was asked if he had read the Labor day speech of William R. Hearst. He replied that he had not, but that he understood that Hearst made some criticism of him. "I am fighting Mr. Taft," said Bryan. "Either Taft or I will be elected. If Hearst will declare that he is endeavoring to help elect Taft and Taft will endorse Hearst as a representative of Republican ideas and Hearst's methods of campaigning, I will answer Hearst; otherwise I do not feel called upon to do so."

Yielding to Strikers

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 8.—The Canadian Pacific Railway company will put the mechanics who are on strike back to work this week in their old positions on the wage scale agreed upon by the majority report of the board of conciliation held here, pending further investigation by a second board on some points now in dispute. This indicates an unexpected concession by the company.

Think Laws Too Severe

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 8.—At a meeting of fifty of the largest taxpayers and hotel men last night, the excise question was thoroughly gone over and the decision was reached to make a direct appeal to Governor Fort and the legislature for laws of a less stringent nature governing hotels. It was the concensus of opinion that the entire state is ready for less severe laws.

Papke Knocks Out Ketchel

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 8.—Stanley Ketchel of Michigan, former middleweight champion of the world, was knocked out in the twelfth round by Billy Papke of Illinois, who is now middleweight champion of the world. Both men entered the ring in apparently perfect condition and neither had ever been knocked out.

Hamburg Belle Makes Records

Hartford, Sept. 8.—For the first time in the history of the Charter Oak classic, the $10,000 trot, a Connecticut bred horse, Hamburg Belle, won the event. In doing so she not only broke the track record for the race, but also established the world's fastest three-heat time, 2:04 3-4. This feat was witnessed by 25,000 people.

DID NOT BURN STOMACH

Jordan Consigned Part of Wife's Internal Organs to Sewer

Boston, Sept. 8.—One of the internal organs of the body of Mrs. Honorah Jordan was found floating in the Somerville sewer within a quarter of a mile of her home by employes of the sewer department searching yesterday afternoon under the direction of the police.

This confirms the theory of Medical Examiner Magrath of Suffolk, who doubted that Chester S. Jordan had burned the viscera of his wife's body as was at first stated. Magrath declared it as his opinion that Jordan had disposed of them by flushing them into the sewer through the bowl in the bathroom.

The search of the sewer is to be continued. The stomach, with a section of the small intestine and the aesophagus attached, was found yesterday. Both Medical Examiner Durell of Middlesex and Medical Examiner Magrath of Suffolk declared that it would have no bearing on the medical investigation of the case, as the long immersion in the sewer would make the chemical analysis of no value.

REMINGTON NAMED FOR GOVERNOR

Rhode Island Prohibs Put a Full Ticket In the Field

Providence, Sept. 8.—Louis E. Remington of Providence was nominated for governor of Rhode Island by the Prohibition state convention, which held its sessions in this city. State Chairman Read of Woonsocket presided. The national platform and the national candidates were heartily endorsed, and Read urged the members to get the Independent vote this year, calling their attention to the fact that the Prohibition platform contained much of interest outside the usual prohibitory clauses.

The state ticket was chosen as follows: Governor, Louis E. Remington, Providence; lieutenant governor, J. W. King, Charlestown; secretary of state, W. G. Lawton, Cranston; attorney general, C. L. Kneeland, Providence; treasurer, E. P. Read, Woonsocket.

Presidential electors: J. H. Chace, Providence; G. C. Soule, North Kingston; T. H. Peabody, Westerly; J. H. Kinder, Middletown.

Representatives to congress: First district, S. A. Welch; Second district, J. G. Chase, Pawtucket.

Four Deaths In Factory Fire

New York, Sept. 8.—Four persons were burned to death last night in a fire, supposedly of incendiary origin, which destroyed a seven-story factory building on Water street. The bodies, burned beyong recognition, were found on the sixth floor of the building some time after the fire had been extinguished. Three of the victims were men and the fourth a woman. There were rescues of nearly a score of workers in the building, who were removed from the fifth floor by means of ladders after flames had cut off their escape. The loss on the burned building is about $100,000.

A Count of No Account

Antwerp, Sept. 8.—Nicholas E. Savine, also known as Count de Toulouse Dautree and Prince Savine, was arrested here on the charge of cashing stolen coupons. The count protested against his arrest, claiming to be an American citizen and displaying naturalization papers issued in Illinois. An investigation showed that he had recently been released from Siberia after having been extradited from Bremen and had also been expelled from Spain. He has a long record of adroit swindles in various parts of Europe.

Threat of Socialist Leader

Glasgow, Sept. 8.—The Socialist leaders in the agitation among the unemployed still maintain a threatening attitude, necessitating constant vigilance and the employment of a large extra force of police. Last night one of the leaders threatened that, unless the municipal council did something practical for the unemployed within a month, he would reveal all the secrets of the Masonic organization and put every man, woman and child in Glasgow in possession of all the tokens, grips and passwords of the order.

In Probation Officer's Care

Exeter, N. H., Sept. 8.—Allen E. Hall, aged 14, charged with killing his 16-year-old sister, Flossie M., with a shotgun, was released from jail yesterday under the delinquent children's law. Under this law children under 17 years of age may not be confined in jail or given a trial in a courtroom. Hall was therefore placed in custody of a probation officer and given considerable freedom.

Miners Tired of Loafing

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 8.—Despite the fact that it was Labor day, a large number of men returned to work in the mining district yesterday. The effort for a general resumption of operations in the Alabama coal mines is now on, and it is estimated that during this week no less than 10,000 men will have returned to work after an idleness of over two months.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Wednesday, Sept. 9.
Sun rises—5:18; sets—6:05.
Moon sets—3:47 a. m.
High water—10 a. m.; 10:30 p. m.

Fair and warmer weather is indicated for New England.

Future Residence In Washinghton

A pretty wedding took place on Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William Laing, Trafford street, when her daughter, Margaret and Mr. David Cady Davis of Washington, D. C., formerly of Springfield and Quincy, were married by the Rev. Dr. Edwin N. Hardy of Bethany Congregational church.

The ceremony was performed at 1.30 o'clock in the presence of relatives only, representing four generations of the Bridgroom's family.

The bride was attired in a white embroidered robe and carried white roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Catherine Laing. The bridegroom had as best man, his cousin Fred Cady Davis of Sommers, Conn.

Miss Isabella Laing, a sister of the the bride, acted as flower girl, and Miss Williamina Laing, also a sister of the bride, carried the rings. The house decorations were white asters, ferns and autumn leaves.

Mr. Davis, the bridegroom is a 1906 graduate, with honors and degree of B. A. of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and is now in the service of the United States government as assistant examiner of patents in the patent office at Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Davis, the bride, is a Quincy young lady being the eldest daughter of the late William Laing of Trafford street. She has been very prominently identified in the work of the Bethany Congregational church of which Dr. Hardy is pastor. She is vice president of the society of Philathea and has also taught in the Bible school and officiated at the organ. Mrs. Davis is a member of Unity circle, King's Daughters.

The bride was the recipient of a large assortment of handsome and valuable presents. After the marriage ceremony the bride and groom were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Laing, mother of the bride.

After luncheon Mr. and Mrs. Davis, amid a shower of confetti and rice, were driven off in a carriage, later to take an automobile for the Berkshires, where they will spend a few weeks before proceeding to Washington, D. C., where they are to reside. Mrs. Davis travelled in Cophenhagen blue.

After November 1, Mr. and Mrs. Davis will meet friends at their home 3441 Oakwood terrace, Washington, D. C.

WANTED TO SEE ROOSEVELT

Crank Got on the Grounds of President's Home

SPOTTED BY SECRET SERVICE

Slid His Hand Toward Pocket Containing a Bulldog Revolver When Held Up, but Is Overpowered and Arrested--Apparently Crazy Man Wanted to Enlist President's Aid In Suppressing Crime at Boston

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 8.—A crank, armed with an antiquated "bulldog" revolver, was caught near the president's house yesterday afternoon. The man described himself as John Coughlin, a detective, and when stopped by the secret service men presented a card upon which was inscribed his name and the word "officer." He said that he had come to ask the president to order out 10,000 troops to catch yeggmen who had been terrorizing Boston.

Coughlin is supposed to have reached Oyster Bay on the 12:19 train. He walked the three miles to Sagamore Hill, appearing in the grounds shortly after 2 o'clock. One of the rules for visitors at Sagamore Hill is that no one shall come on foot, so when Secret Service Agent Adams caught sight of Coughlin he guessed that something was wrong and motioned for the man to go back. Coughlin kept right on and Adams ran down the road to meet him. In response to Adams' demand as to his business, Coughlin produced his card and explained that he had come to confer with President Roosevelt concerning the recent outrages by yeggmen in Boston and to lead back such troops as the president thought fit to order out.

The secret service man tried to explain that the president was not seeing visitors at the moment, hoping to get him quietly out of the grounds. Coughlin hesitated a moment, glanced furtively about and then slid his hand toward the back pocket of his trousers. Adams took the hint and grappled with his man without further parley. Coughlin is a slightly built man and Adams had no difficulty in holding him until Agent Sloan, chief of the president's guard, came to his assistance. Sloan searched the prisoner and found in his hip pocket a 32-calibre revolver of the "bulldog" type. The weapon was wrapped in a woolen bag and, according to the secret service men, was not loaded.

The secret service men, without alarming the president's family, called one of the government automobiles and carried Coughlin down to Oyster Bay town hall, where he was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Franklin on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. Franklin committed Coughlin to the county jail at Mineola and he was taken there at once. Coughlin will be examined as to his sanity.

According to the secret service men, Coughlin told them that he had been confined for three years in an asylum for the insane at Walpole, Mass. He declared that his enemies had placed him in the asylum because of his cleverness at detective work. In a hand-satchel which Coughlin carried were found a bundle of Boston papers, in all of which the principal news item was the recent chase of a gang of yeggmen in which 500 policemen were engaged at one time. Coughlin talked about the articles in a rambling way and declared over and over again that he must see President Roosevelt and enlist his aid in suppressing crime in Boston.

Coughlin appeared so wandering in his mind that the secret service men were not inclined to regard him as at all dangerous.

The news that an armed crank had attempted to reach the president started a series of the usual rumors accompanying such an incident. The one most widely circulated was to the effect that a shot had been fired at the president while he was out horseback riding last Saturday. Guard Sloan emphatically denied the story, and his denial was echoed by the other operative who was said to have been with the president. President Roosevelt had returned from a horseback ride only a short time before Coughlin appeared at Sagamore Hill.

Reached Top of Huascaran

Lima, Peru, Sept. 8.—Miss Annie S. Peck of Providence has succeeded, on her second attempt within a month, in reaching the summit of Mt. Husacaran. She calculates that the height of the summit is 26,000 feet. A Swiss companion of Miss Peck had a foot and both hands frozen, which caused gangrene to set in, and an Indian guide was miraculously saved from death after falling 1000 feet down a ravine.

Battleship Fleet Deserters

Melbourne, Sept. 8.—As the search of a patrol from the American fleet for the men who failed to go aboard their ships when the battleships left here Saturday for Albany has not met with much success, rewards have been offered for the apprehension of 221 stragglers.

Sensational Æroplane Flight

Paris, Sept. 8.—Leon Delagrange has beaten his world's aeroplane record made Sunday. He circled the field at Issy eighteen times at an average height of thirteen feet and remained in the air thirty-one minutes.

COST OF CITIES

State Report Makes Interesting Comparisons Between Cities

"The Cost of Municipal Government in Massachusetts" is the title of the first annual report on the comparative statistics of cities and towns of Massachusetts, issued by Charles F. Gettemy, chief of the Bureau of Statistics of Labor, under the new law of 1906. Massachusetts is the second state in the Union to have such a law, Ohio being the first.

Some points of interest to Quincy are the following: The average debt per capita of the 33 cities in the state is $61.61. Quincy, with $61.68, is the lowest of six which are above the average, Boston being first with $111.90.

Quincy is one of the 16 which spend more for their fire departments than for their police departments.

Quincy stands fourth of the nine cities which spend more for public health and sanitation than for police or fire, the others in order being Worcester, Waltham, and Somerville. Worcester spends 13.25 per cent. of her total outgo for this object and Quincy spends 12.33 per cent.

Taking all the cities together, their average percentages of expenditure under the different heads are as follows.

Education, 28.06.
Highways and bridges, 20.62.
Police, 10.11.
Public health and sanitation, 9.01.
Fire, 8.81.
General administration, 7.60.
Charities and corrections, 6.10.
Recreation, 4.92.
Libraries and reading rooms, 2.03.
Protection of life and property other than fire, 1.80.
Soldiers' benefit, 0.94.

In the discussion of different features of city expense Quincy comes in occasionally. Here is one mention:

"There is a difference of about 2,400 in the population of Taunton and Quincy and a proportionate difference in their expenditures for the maintenance of their fire departments, hence their expenditure per capita is the same, namely, $1.17. Taunton, however, covers a greater area than any other city in the Commonwealth, nearly 49 square miles, while Quincy has less than 17 square miles within its corporate limits; that is to say, Quincy has a population of 1,739 per square mile as against Taunton's 646."

PUBLIC HEALTH.

Under the item of public health and sanitation is this mention: "There is a difference of less than 100 in the density with which Newburyport and Quincy are populated, yet Quincy spends $1.66 and Newburyport only $.44." This is in relation to the expense per square mile.

All of the 33 cities appropriate money for observance of Memorial day, but 15 of the 33 appropriated nothing for the observance of the Fourth of July, and Quincy was one of them.

EXPENSES.

Quincy ranks No. 21 of the 33 in point of population, as estimated for 1906. Its per capita of current expenses was $13.45 against $26.69 for Boston, which was the highest, and $9.58 for Chicopee, which was the smallest.

The per capita of valuation is $925.48, against $2127.47 for Boston, the highest in the state, and $499.55 for Chicopee, the lowest.

The percentage of aggregate current expense to valuation was 1.45 for Quincy, against 2.15 for Chelsea, which was the highest, and 1.25 for Boston, the lowest.

SOME PERCENTAGES.

The general administration of Quincy cost 8.66 of its total expenses. Different items of proportion, by percentages, are as follows for Quincy:

Police department, 6.79.
Fire, 8.71.
Other protection of life and property, 0.73.
Public health and sanitation, 12.33.
Highways and bridges, 21.29.
Charities and corrections, 3.04.
Education, 32.21.
Libraries and reading rooms, 1.68.
Recreation, 3.63.
Soldiers' benefit, .093.

PER CAPITA.

The aggregate per capita expenditures for Quincy for the year mentioned, 1906, was $13.45 and for different department the percentages were as follows, with the rank named, in that respect, among the 33 cities of the state.

General administration, $1.16 expense per capita, with rank 12.
Protection of life and property, $2.18, with rank 25.
Combined cost of health and sanitation $1.66, rank 6.
Highways and bridges, $2.86, rank 20.
Charities and corrections, 41 cents rank 30.
Education, $4.33, rank 17.
Libraries and reading rooms, 23 cents rank 27.
Recreation, 49 cents rank 8.
Soldiers' benefits, 30 cents, rank 22.

DIFFERENT DEPARTMENTS.

The expenses of Quincy for general administration are divided as follows between the different departments of the city government.

Legislative, 5.05 per cent.
Executive, 2.97.
Financial, 40.75 and other general departments, 31.39.
City hall and other property, 8.45.
Election and registration, 6.87.
Printing and stationary, 0.57.
Miscellaneous, $3.95.

Danced in Barn At Freedom Party

On the occasion of his twenty-first birthday, George T. Craig entertained a large unmber of his friends at his home on Independence avenue Friday evening, Sept. 4.

The large and spacious barn was transformed into a dance hall. For elaborateness, picturesqueness, and novelty, for magnitude and perfectness of detail, it eclipsed anything given in South Quincy for many months. The decorations were carried out in red, white and blue. Electric lights in red and white gleamed throught the Japanese lanterns hung around the walls with delightful effect.

Solos were contributed by E. J. Collins and William Henderson, who were encored with choruses.

Dancing was enjoyed throughout the evening, Miss Helen Troupe and S. D. DeForest, Jr., officiating on the piano. A dainty collation was served.

Mr. Craig was presented a beautiful signet ring, and a scarf pin set with forget-me-nots, as tokens of respect and esteem, for which he thanked them all most heartily.

Among those present were:—

Misses Anna Giles, Jennie G. Grassick, Helen Troupe, Georgie Michael, Alice Joss, Edith Jenkins, Robina Hall Nellie Drummond, Katie McCormack, Lillian McIntosh Isabel Murray, Ruth Kemp, Jennie Cumming, Susan Tytler, Jennie Beer, Mamie Warmington.

Messrs. William Troupe, John Giles, J. E. Collins, Irving Kemp, James Stewart, S. D. DeForest, Jr., Charles E. Grassick, A. J. M. # INVESTIGATE and ECONOMIZE.

NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.

On and after September 16, we have decided

TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE

as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods

AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills over due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every day. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and take them with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Now think this proposition over, and we feel confident that you can see it just the way that we do.

SOMETHING THAT IS NEEDED HERE IN QUINCY.

A HIGH GRADE OF GOODS SOLD AT LOW PRICES.

So Remember your 5 per cent discount.

Respectfully,

City Square, Quincy. JOHNSON BROS. Hancock Street, Corner Maple.

YOU don't get a pound of dirt with every shovelful of COAL you buy from us.
No!—ALL COAL is more or less dirty when it leaves the mine; but every pound is well screened before we deliver it.

CLEVELAND CLIMBS UP

New Yorks and Detroits Still Lead In Their Respective Leagues

Pittsburg in the National and Detroit in the American League were the two clubs which came out of the baseball struggles of Labor day with the greatest net gain.

Except in Pittsburg's case, honors were easy in the National League race. New York and Chicago each won and lost, the former club, however, still holding first place by a good margin on the return to the home grounds in spite of Pittsburg's double victory over St. Louis. The New Yorks this morning have nine points the advantage over Pittsburg, which gained markedly over Chicago, now twelve points behind, in third place.

In the American League Detroit clinched her hold on first place by winning twice from St. Louis, which fell back badly, as did Chicago, twice beaten by Cleveland. Cleveland's two victories bring that club well up with the contenders for first position.

The standing of the leaders in the two leagues, Monday's games included, is as follows:

National League

| Club | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| New York | 76 | 46 | .623 |
| Pittsburg | 78 | 49 | .649 |
| Chicago | 77 | 51 | .602 |

American League

| Club | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| Detroit | 73 | 51 | .588 |
| Chicago | 71 | 55 | .564 |
| St. Louis | 70 | 55 | .560 |
| Cleveland | 69 | 58 | .543 |

FOUGHT WITH RECKLESS COURAGE

Arabs Sustain Terrible Losses at Hands of French Troops

Colomb-Bechar, Sept. 8.—Dispatches from Colonel Allix, the commander of the reinforcements that went to the relief of Boudenib, a French post on the Algerian frontier, where the garrison of 6000 men was surrounded by Moors and in danger of annihilation, state that he has completely crushed the Beraber tribesmen, estimated at from 15,000 to 20,000, capturing their camp and all equipment.

The column of 5000 men under Allix marched out from Boudenib yesterday morning in the direction of the enemy's camp at Djorf. When half the distance had been traversed the French encountered the Arabs, who hurled themselves upon the front and flanks simultaneously, seeking to cut off Boudenib, but the artillery kept up a terrible fire, in the face of which the Arabs were unable to approach to close quarters.

They returned again and again to the charge, leaving their dead in heaps, but finally became discouraged and retired. Allix followed up his advantage and occupied the camp, completely routing the enemy, who dispersed in all directions, hotly pursued by the French cavalry. The total French loss was twenty-two wounded, of whom only three were seriously wounded. The enemy's loss totals far into the hundreds.

A Youngster's Thrilling Act

San Jose, Cal., Sept. 8.—Accepting a dare from a young woman, Fred Biaggi, 18 years old, made a daring aeronautic ascent. Running forward just as W. I. Warring, a professional aeronaut, cut loose from the ground, Biaggi sprang into the cordage at the mouth of the bag and was carred upward to a height estimated at 6000 feet. Warring, with his parachute, cut loose at an elevation of 2500 feet and with Biaggi as its solitary passenger the balloon drifted over the hills of the coast range. His weight prevented the sudden escape of the gas, and after two hours of suspense from his friends he returned to town, having landed without injury.

Sacrificed Life For Others

New York, Sept. 8.—Though badly burned, John Tuck, a retired real estate dealer, returned to a burning apartment in Brooklyn for a missing child and saved it, but at the expense of his own life. He had already rescued the mother, Mrs. William Clampet, using his coat to protect her as he carried her down the stairs and receiving serious injuries. On his second trip he was unable to prevent his own clothing from taking fire. When he laid the child in its mother's arms he collapsed and soon died. Neither Mrs. Clampet nor her child received serious injuries.

Brutal Assault on a Child

Cliffwood, N. J., Sept. 8.—Charged with luring the 4-year-old daughter of his friend, Dominick Sciento, from her home where he was a guest, and murdering her after he had criminally assaulted her, Gisanto Rosino, a 36-year-old Italian, is being sought by the police of half a dozen nearby towns. The child's body, bearing marks of brutal mistreatment, was found in an isolated gully not far from her home.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Harry G. Sargent of Concord, N. H., mayor of that city in 1901 and 1902 and a member of the state tax commission, died of apoplexy, in his 59th year. He had been solicitor of the city of Concord and of the county of Merrimack.

Asa Sewell, the builder and carpenter, has started a new industry in the manufacture of cement tiles and bricks. This is the second attempt of this kind in our city, as a plant at South Quincy recently did quite a business in that line. Cement seems to be one of the coming building materials in quite general demand.

Several broken windows and smashed derbies were the result of a free-for-all fight in the smoker of the 11.27 train in the South station Saturday night. The trouble was started by two men in a drunken dispute and soon spread through the car. For about fifteen minutes the toughs had it their own way, but upon the appearance of an officer things quieted down. Several onlookers received slight injuries from flying glass.

Officers Rib Broken.

Officer Lyons was rather roughly used Saturday evening while attempting to place Lewis Wright under arrest for drunkenness. Wright was on Wharf street at the time and turned upon the officer, who would have fared hard, but for timely aid that came to his assistance. Officer Lyons was quite badly used up. Although suffering considerable pain Officer Lyons did not give up duty until Sunday afternoon. Then the pain becoming unbearable he consulted a physician, who discovered that one of his ribs had been broken during the assault. Wright was fined $25 in court for the assault.

Wins Again.

Ex-Mayor Charles Francis Adams, 2d, sailed the Yacht Manchester to victory again in the special open race of the Eastern Yacht club off Marblehead on Saturday. The only other cup challener that participated in the race was the Bandit, which finished in fourth position.

Open Race of Squantum Club

The yachting season in Quincy practiually ended on Saturday, with the open race of the Squantum Yacht club. The race was sailed in a brisk southwesterly breeze off the clubhouse at Wollaston beach. Owing to the lateness of the tide it was after 4 o'clock before the first class got away, and it was late before the summary was figured out. Thirty -six boats participated and the racing was marked by several mishaps and two protests. While the wind was strong near the shore, it was puffy outside, and most of the yachts were obliged to tuck in reefs before the race was over.

In Class B the Eleanor carried away her peak halliard block, but remained in the race. The Scout was protested by the Winona, the captain of the latter claiming that the Scout fouled the Nut Island buoy. The protest was sustained.

In Class S there was a lively race between the Peter Pan and I. X. L. the two boats finishing but four seconds apart.

In Class D the Cape Cat race there was some lively work, the Dartwell coming up from the rear position and finishing first. She was beaten at every turn until the last run for home. John T. Cavanagh then took the tiller for the balance of the race and finished first. She was protested, however, by the Marion which was dismasted during the race. The skipper of the Marion claimed that the Dartwell crowded him while the Marion was on the starboard tack. He claims that he shouted to the Dartwell for more room but they still kept on crowding him until the Dartwell struck him and carred away the port shroud, causing his mast to collapse. Garrett one of the crew of the Marion was carried overboard with the sail and was nearly smothered before he was rescured. The judges will give a hearing on the protest at a later date, as none of the Dartwell's crew could be found after the race.

The judges were composed of representatives of all the clubs in the Interclub Yacht Racing Association, and percentage count in the M. Y. R. A. The summary:

Locked in Store.

A telephone message was received at the police station Sunday afternoon that burglars were locked in the store of J. A. Anderson on Granite street. The wagon was sent to the scene, and the officers found a crowd athered about the building. On the inside with their faces close to the door were two youngsters who were crying for home and mother. The lads were 9 and 10 years old. They said they had gone into the store while the door was open, and some one had slammed it springing the lock.

The Makaria Win and Lose

The Makaria and Atlantic teams divided honors on Labor day in two interesting and closely contested ball games. In the morning at Merrymount park, the Makaria won by a score of 4 to 3. In the afternoon at the Ward Six playgrounds, the Atlantics administered a coat of white wash the score being 3 to 0.

On Saturday at Reading, the Makaria team was defeated 3 to 1.

Cranch, 9; Newton A. A., 5.

Cranch A. A. won again on Labor day at Merrymount park, defeating the strong Newton A. A. by a score of 9 to 5. The features of the game were the battery work of Smith and Berluchi, fast fielding of Houston and Connolly and good batting of Halloran.

Newsy Notes at Houghs Neck

Three members of the Walkover bowling team of Brockton came down to Houghs Neck thinking to beat everything in sight. Lewis the captain ran into Greenaway of the Yannigans and quickly challenged him to a three team match. Greenaway told him that it was a shame to trim them with candle pins and said that he would get Hammond and Scott and they would bowl the three members of the Walkovers not with candles but with the Brockton teams regular pins, namely the Brockton ducks. Well honest, it was a shame to see the way the Yannigans rubbed it into the Brockton team. The Yannigans won the first and third strings by good margins.

Someone telephoned police headquarters about 7.30 Monday evening and said that a big fight was going on at Quincy woods. Officers Avery and Dewey who were doing duty at Houghs Neck were quickly notified and rushed to the Palmer street woods. When the officers arrived the place was deserted except for two drunks and a few empty half barrels. The drunks were arrested but released at the station.

Eagles Clambake.

The weather was not just right for an outing and clambake on Sunday, but the John Adams aerie of Eagles, No. 1180, did not let this dull their enthusiasm in the least. About three hundred were present, including guests from Boston, Brockton, Rockland, Quincy and other surrounding towns. Mayor William T. Shea was the guest of honor, and made a short address.

Dr. John Galvin of Boston Aerie, No. 45, entertained with a few original jokes and stories, while the musical members of the local aerie obliged with songs.

The clambake, served by Fallon Bros of Quincy Point, was first class and was enjoyed by all. The crowd broke up about six o'clock.

Jennie Wins In Q. Y. C. Race

A race for power boats and for the Class B boats of the Quincy Yacht club was held Saturday afternoon off the clubhouse at Houghs Neck. The yachts were sent over a four-mile course and the power boats over five-mile course.

The Water Lily finished first in Class B, but as the boats have not been measured corrected time cannot be given.

In the power boat class the Jennie was the first to cross the line at the finish, and corrected time did not change her position.

.... Scottish Clans Picnic.

The Scottish clans of Boston and vicinity held their annual games and picnic on Monday at Caledonian grove, West Roxbury. The attendance was larger than at any previous time within recent years. Thomas Johnston of this city was ringmaster. There were the usual athletic contests, dancing etc.

A spectacular feature of the exercises was the marching around the ring of fifteen pipers playing in unison the war charge known as "Cock of the North."

Jessie Macdonald of Norfolk Downs daughter of A. D. Macdonald, was awarded first prize for juvenile sword dancing; also a price for executing the Highland fling dance.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Over 55 Years In Newspaper Work And Made It a Success

Editor George W. Prescott Of Patriot and Daily Ledger Stricken With Heart Failure And Passes Away Today

Just at dawn this morning surrounded by his wife, sons and daughters, and grandchildren, George Washington Prescott passed peacefully to his last rest. Because of his connection for 55 years with the Quincy Patriot and Quincy Daily Ledger, he was one of the best known and most respected citizens of Quincy; a business man of the strictest integrity, who by close attention to his work early and late, and incessantly with few vacations, has made newspaper publishing a success.

Early on Monday, the 10th of August, he fainted at his office, but pluckily continued his work until noon. Early Tuesday morning he was again at his post, continuing until noon; but he had difficulty in walking to his residence on Spear street.

Wednesday morning he was up between 6 and 7 intending to go to his office, but he was stricken with heart trouble before he had dressed. Because of robust constitution he rallied after a week or two, and was considered convalescing. He ventured out doors a little, but got no further than the Public Library one day last week. That proved too much of an exertion however, and again he was stricken down.

From that date he gradually failed. It was not expected the end would come so soon, but the heart was unable to perform its functions. He was conscious to the last, and kept in touch with affairs of the city and his business.

Mr. Prescott was in his 74th year. He was the son of the late Abram and Abigail Hayden (Marsh) Prescott, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in 1875, and died in Quincy in 1880 and 1882 respectively, aged 82 and 78. They had four sons: John Marsh, who died at the age of nine; Lyman Reed who was a California, pioneer, and died in that state a few years ago; and William Gardner who passed away in this city Dec. 15, 1897.

Mr. Prescott was married at West Dedham, now Westwood, in 1859, to Miss S. Abbie Fisher, the only daughter of the late Joshua and Eliza W. Fisher, who observed their golden wedding in 1884, and lived to be 83 and 86 years of age respectively.

Had Mr. Prescott lived until May 8 next he also would have observed his golden wedding anniversary. The union was blessed with two sons and three daughters, and all are now living. Over 49 years without a break in a family of seven is a good record. Both sons, Frank Fisher and Eben were associated with their father, the former as general manager of the Quincy Daily Ledger and the latter as editor of the Braintree Observer and Reporter. One daughter, Miss Annie L. Prescott is also an editor of the Quincy Patriot. The other daughters, Miss Etta M. and Miss Alice K. live at home, the latter having recently returned from a tour of Europe.

As a newspaper publisher Mr. Prescott was well known throughout Massachusetts and New England. He was one of the original members of the Massachusetts Press Association, the New England Press Association, the Suburban Press Association, and the Republican Editorial Association, and for several years has been a delegate to the National Editorial Conventions held in different states. Almost annually he has taken an excursion with some of these associations, which took him into every state of the Union, and also Mexico and Canada. He was also very regularly in attendance at the meetings of these associations. He might have been president of the Massachusetts or Suburban Association, but he never cared for office, and was content to be first vice president for several years.

On the date of his fiftieth anniversary as a newspaper man in May, 1903, Mr. Prescott had as his guests at Quincy the members of the Suburban Press Association, and editors from five states were present to accept his hospitality. They visited City Hall, the Church of the Presidents, the Public Library, the residence of Mr. Prescott on Spear street, the office of the Quincy Patriot and the Daily Ledger, the birthplaces of the Presidents, the Fore River shipyard, and a dinner followed. On that occasion L. W. Brewster of Portsmouth, N.H., a brother editor and friend for many years, in a complimentary speech, presented Mr. Prescott a beautiful gold headed cane.

In connection with his long newspaper work it is fact worthy of note that the Daily Ledger was never called upon to pay a fine in a libel suit, and the Quincy Patriot but once when the amount was one cent. It was never the intention of Mr. Prescott to print a libelous statement, and his newspapers maintained a high standard for cleanliness, being papers for the home.

The same was true of Mr. Prescott locally. He was a staunch Republican, but never cared for office. At one time he was a Knights of Pythias and an Odd Fellow, but secret societies did not attract him. When a young man he was a member of the Hancock Light Guards, a Quincy militia organization.

In the days of the old hand engines, Mr. Prescott was a member of the John Whitney Hall H. and L. Co., then located on Canal street, now Revere road, since remodelled for Warren T. Arnold.

Early in life he identified himself with the First Universalist church of Quincy, of which his father was one of the founders on the 10th of March, 1831. During all his lifetime he was one of the most regular in attendance and faithful in support, having been regarded in late years as one of its "pillars."

Aside from his newspaper work, and interest in his church, about his only diversion was a trolley trip or a game of cards. He was for several years a member of the Granite City Club, among whom he was known as "Uncle George," and generally respected by all. He served on the board of trustees. Many will recall the Christmas gathering of the club last year when Santa Claus presented gifts to Mr. James T. Penniman and Mr. Prescott with a sentiment in verse, which was very pleasing to both gentlemen.

It read in part:

"And here they are, 'round eighty now,
As young as when at six I trow;
For in their hearts they're young as when,
They fancied old folks old at ten.
'Tis true their hair is somewhat gray,
But eyes as bright as ours today.
Perhaps a little wiser grown,
Perhaps an old illusion flown.
Not wondering now, since years have rolled,
When is it that a man grows old?
The years for them have little part
They know that youth is in the heart."

For several years Mr. Prescott has been a director of the Quincy Cooperative bank, and one of its largest shareholders.

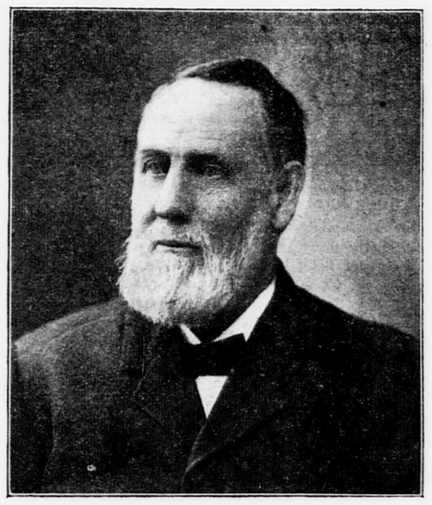

Mr. Prescott enjoyed excellent health up to a few weeks ago, and previous to Aug. 12 had not lost two weeks from his newspaper office because of sickness during all the 55 years he was with the Quincy Patriot. His last sickness was heart trouble, of which his family were ignorant until the affliction came.

Mr. Prescott was the dean of Norfolk county journalism, and one of the oldest publishers in the country, his active newspaper work covering a period of over 55 years, and he was a newsboy previous to that. He was not a brilliant editorial writer, and did not aspire to be a leader, but was a practical printer and successful publisher. He believed in giving all the news without bias, leaving it to his readers to form their own opinion.

It is the intention of the Daily Ledger to publish tomorrow a lengthy auto-biographical sketch of Mr. Prescott.

He leaves a widow, two sons, three daughters, and six grandchildren.

Funeral services will probably be held Sunday afternoon, when the interment will be in the family lot at Mount Wollaston.

Many of School Buildings Crowded

The first day of the public schools found several of the buildings overcrowded. This is particularly true at the Adams, Coddington, Lincoln and Washington school buildings.

At the Adams building the rooms are very crowded, and it may be necessary to place the first grade pupils on half time.

At the Coddington school the sixth grade has been transferred to a room in the High school building where they will remain until the new building is completed. The first grade has also been put on half time.

The Lincoln building is also much overcrowded. The first grade has been placed on half time, which will give some relief.

The Washington school is also crowded and the first grade has been placed on half time, which will give additional room for the other grades.

At the High school it is expected the enrollment will be 825.

At all the other buildings the pupils are comfortable accommodated.

All of the masters meet Superintendent Parlin this afternoon at which time the enrollment of the several buildings will be reported.

Official Visitations.

OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams Street, Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

E. H. Lowe is remodelling and painting his house on Washington street.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Spargo spent the holiday at Stony Creek, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Bain of Prospect avenue returned Saturday from East Orleans.

Dr. and Mrs. F. S. Andrews have returned from their vacation trip to Lake Champlain, Vt.

Miss Blodwen Walters has returned from a month's vacation in New York State and Vermont.

Cyril F. Randall of Winter street returns soon to Middleboro to take up his duties as schoolmaster.

Colen Kennedy of Beacon street is employed as a foreman in the carpentry business at East Weymouth.

Walter Jones, has let his house on Bay View street and moved to Watson terrace, where he has bought a new home.

Mrs. Annie Copeland of Dorchester has rented the house on Winthrop avenue, corner Marion street, and taken possession.

William E. Birmingham of Morton street, West Quincy is the guest of his sister Mrs. Alice Birmingham King at Newport, R. I.

The Laing boys were out on an all-day cruise Labor Day, with a large party of friends, in their beautiful launch, the Micmac.

C. F. Letteney and family of Webster street, Atlantic have returned from a two months' residence at their summer home at Ashney Grove.

Papers are being circulated in Wards One, Two and Three for Walter E. Piper as Republican candidate for Representative to the General Court.

Thomas Buckley and Francis Howley, both of West Quincy, return to Boston College this week. The former will be a senior this year, and the latter a sophomore.

Ernest Henchey of Washington street, who for the past three or four weeks has been confined to his home with scarlet fever, was out Tuesday and is rapidly regaining health.

Miss Ethel Humphrey of Baxter street and Miss Agnes Henchey of Washington street, both of Quincy High school, 1908, will enter Bridgewatre Normal school this fall.

A meeting of the Wage Earners club will be held tonight at Wilsons hall. Officers will be elected and a committee appointed to interview the candidates for the Legislature.

John Starr, the popular keeper of the bathhouse at Quincy Point, says the "brownies" have only about two weeks more to swim. The bathhouse closes September 15 for the season.

The use of the old steam derrick at the South Quincy freight yard has been ordered discontinued. The travelling crane at the new freight yard works to perfection and is handling very large shipments.

Samuel C. Melville of East Howard street, has returned to his duties as clerk for the Electric Boat Company, after a two weeks' vacation, spent in cruising along the North shore in his launch the "Adest."

MACHINERY OUT OF GEAR

Young Aeronaut's Unexpected Trip In Dirigible Balloon

MOVEMENTS BEYOND CONTROL

What Was Planned to Be a Sail Around Maine State Fair Grounds Became a Twenty-Five-Mile Trip, a Landing Being Safely Made by Moonlight--Three Batteries Were Thrown Out to Lighten the Craft

Lewiston, Me., Sept. 9.—Fred Owen, a youthful aeronaut of Haverhill, Mass., had a thrilling experience last night in a dirigible balloon, which made a flight at the Maine state fair grounds here.

Owen intended to circle about the fair grounds and give an exhibition of his skill for the benefit of the thousands of spectators who had been patiently waiting throughout the latter part of the afternoon for the wind to diminish, but he had trouble with his machinery, and before he could control the airship's movements he found himself over a dense forest near Bowdoin Centre, twenty-five miles distant. Owen landed safely in a field near that place at 9 o'clock.

Professor Laroux is the owner of the balloon, but when the air cooled last night he found that the machine would not carry his weight, so he called upon Owen, aged 18, who is his assistant, to take up the airship. The weather conditions became favorable at 6 o'clock and the balloon was cut loose.

Shortly after it left the ground Owen found that one of the cylinders of the two-cylinder engine did not work properly, and he was unable either to put it in order or descend. The balloon disappeared in a southeasterly direction towards Brunswick, and as this type of balloon is not readily controlled in a stiff wind, even with the machinery in order, it was feared Owen would be carried out to sea.

At times he estimated that he was 2500 feet above the earth. Finally he found himself over a thick forest, and the airship gradually settling. He threw three batteries over to lighten the craft and sailed three or four miles further. By a change in the wind he was able to come about.

By the light of the moon he was able to make a safe landing in a field near Bowdoin Centre, assisted by several of the villagers who heard his shouts for assistance.

CARRIED DYNAMITE WHILE SMOKING

Italian and Two Others Killed and Many Injured

Springfield, Mass., Sept. 9.—Sixty pounds of dynamite, which Joseph Bello, an Italian, employed on the Provin mountain section of the Little River water system, had just placed on a ledge, exploded, killing him and two companions, Mitta Antonio and Richard Plater, terribly lacerating Frank Lovett, Frank Lopez and Joseph Brannan, and injuring a dozen others.

Lovett will not recover, but physicians who attended the injured men say that Lopez and Brennan have a fair chance.

About twenty men were working within a few feet of the dynamite. The dynamite had previously been placed on hot steam pipes. Bello, who carried the explosive to Plater, who was preparing for the blast on the ledge, was smoking at the time, and it is believed that a spark from his pipe ignited the dynamite.

Bello was leaning over it when the explosion occurred. His body was blown to atoms. His feet and arms were picked up at a distance of 300 feet from the ledge.

Wright Makes Two Flights

Washington, Sept. 9.—At Fort Myer last evening Orville Wright made the two greatest aeroplane flights ever made publicly in this country when he remained in the air for over eleven minutes on his first flight and for nearly eight minutes on his second. Throughout both flights Wright apparently had the machine under perfect control, rising at times to sixty feet and making sharp turns.

Charged With Big Swindle

New York, Sept. 9.—Frederick A. Salamon, who claims to be a broker, was arrested on complaint of James H Bryan of Knoxville, who charges that Salamon swindled him out of the title to $65,000 worth of lumber land in Marion, S. C. Salamon was arrested in the offices of lumber dealers here, after Bryan had identified a picture in the rogues' gallery as that of the alleged broker.

Hughes Has Good Lead

New York, Sept. 9.—A count of the "Hughes test" ballots cast in the Republican primary election in the Thirty-fifth assembly district showed that out of the thirty election districts twenty-eight gave Hughes 528, with 354 votes against him. The vote of the two missing election districts will not change the result.

DETROIT GETS A SETBACK

Chicago and St. Louis Close to the American League Leaders

All the leading clubs in the National League won their games yesterday, the feature of the day's play being New York's eleven-inning 1 to 0 victory over Brooklyn, through which the present leaders retained their hold on first position. The loss of the game would have meant a practical tie with Pittsburg for the lead. The standing of the teams is as follows:

| Club | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| New York | 77 | 46 | .626 |
| Pittsburg | 79 | 49 | .617 |

Schoolship Disaster Explained

Rambouillet, Sept. 9.—An investigation of the explosion on board the French schoolship Couronne, in which three men were killed and five others wounded, showed the accident to have been due to the breach of the gun striking the percussion cap prematurely. This ignited the gases remaining in the gun from the previous discharge and the fatal explosion followed.

Consuls Again In Good Standing

Washington, Sept. 9.—The Honduran government has agreed to temporarily revalidate the exequaturs of American Consul Linard and Vice Consul Reynolds in order to afford opportunity for the two governments to consider the charges heretofore made against those officers of having intervened with the revolutionists on the occasion of the recent attack on Ceiba.

Railroad Manager Killed

Seattle, Sept. 9.—Cabell Whitehead, general manager of the Seward Peninsula railroad in Alaska, died at Nome as the result of an accident. A car in which Whitehead was riding was overturned and he fell into a shallow body of water. While the depth of the water was only two feet, his head was held under the surface for two minutes.

In Accord on Moroccan Note

Paris, Sept. 9.—Foreign Minister Pichon announces that Spain and France have reached complete accord with regard to the Moroccan note, and that this communication will be distributed to the powers in a few days.

Telephone Talks

Household business before pleasure. party line "telephone visits" need not be curtailed, but your service would be improved if they were made in conventional visiting hours.

"Rush Hours"

No other public service is called upon to meet such extraordinary fluctuations of demand as is the telephone. The "rush hours" of trolley and steam roads represent, by comparison, a demand that is steady and moderate.

Moreover, during the transportation "rush hours" crush some people must stand, or, if they insist upon having a seat, must wait for less crowded cars.

In telephoning, however, the simile would be applied by stating that each "passenger" must have, not a seat, but a "special car," and that this car must have a "special motorman and conductor," and the absolute right of way over a "special pair of rails" from the point where its journey begins to the point where it ends.

In telephone exchanges the "rush hours" usually are those between 8.30 and 11 A. M. It is during this period that party line subscribers are apt to be most troubled by "busy" reports.

It would materially help the service of subscribers on such lines if calls that are not imperative—social calls, for example—were deferred to the afternoon, leaving the morning hours free for domestic business calls.

It would be well if party line users would keep in mind this fact—that while any one subscriber on it is talking, it is closed to every other person connected therewith, and also to every person desirous of communicating with him or with any other person on that line.

VERBAL COMBAT OVER LILLEY

Serious Breach In the Camp of Connecticut Republicans

PROTEST OF MANUFACTURERS

Their Adoption of Resolutions In Opposition to Lilley Stirs Fighting Blood of Head of "Machine," Who Says He Will See That They "Pay Their Just Share of Taxes"--Tongue-Lashing In Hotel Lobby

New Haven, Sept. 9.—A scene never before witnessed during the excitement of a Republican convention in this state occurred late last night, which is taken by many to be indicative of the feeling of the delegates over the gubernatorial nomination which will be made today.

Railroad Commissioner Fyler, who, while not holding office in it, is recognized as the head of the Republican organization, met President Keeney of the Hartford Life Insurance company in the lobby of the New Haven house, which is the headquarters of Congressman Lilley, and asked him if he attended the meeting of the manufacturers in the afternoon, which had adopted resolutions of protest against Lilley's nomination. Keeney, who favors Mr. Lake, replied that he was there. Fyler told him that he should use his influence to call off those men who are making threats to raise money "to corrupt the electorate of Connecticut" in case Lilley is elected.

General Keeney said that the men who were in that conference believed that Lilley should not be nominated. A bitter argument followed and the anger of both men caused a large gathering of delegates. Fyler said that the manufacturers had the impudence to tell him that they would fight against the man whom two-thirds of the Republicans at the caucuses had said they wanted. Said he:

"Those men owe their success to the tariff. Do you suppose the people of Connecticut believe that congress is going to punish them because Lilley is to be governor? Do the manufacturers insist upon that threat? If they do we will see that they pay their just share of the taxes of this state. General Keeney, you had better call off those men, or we will line up on the issue whether the manufacturers of this state are our masters or the masters of the Republican party."

General Keeney replied that he was the only one in the conference that asked the manufacturers not to fight Lilley after he was nominated. He said he believed in fighting a man before the nomination.

In the course of further argument Fyler said that if the manufacturers were going to line up he would line up the workingmen of the state and he would show that they are for Lilley. The argument was fast and furious and then Joseph L. Barbour, a lawyer of Hartford, who had just come from the committee on resolutions, came along and stopped to asked Fyler a question.

Fyler tried to avoid an answer, apparently, and made a remark about lawyers' fees. To this Barbour replied, making an attack upon men who hold public office and draw their salaries, but put all their energies into running political campaigns. Fyler made a reply and Barbour gave him a tongue lashing which brought delegates from all directions.

Barbour contended that he was as good a Republican as anybody and he several times had been called to the platform to help out the party when his physician had warned him that to do so would shorten his life. This was made in answer to Fyler's statement that he always had noticed that "Joe Barbour always took his $50 for speaking at a rally."

Barbour said he did not want to vote for a man for governor when the nominee for vice president of the party had expressed his opinion of him in a congressional report. In a voice which could be heard outside the hotel, Barbour, with a clenched fist, said: "If you nominate George Lilley there will be hell to pay in this state."

Barbour left at once and Keeney having retired, saying he would not indulge in personalities, the delegates separated and Fyler went to his room.

TAFT TALKS TO OHIOANS

Decides to Make an Extensive Tour of the Country

Cincinnati, Sept. 9.—That William H Taft will make a complete and extensive tour of the United States before the November election may be announced as the personal determination of the candidate. He will rely on the record made by himself yesterday during his trip from Sandusky to his home city as proof of his ability to make good in a campaign of travel.

Mr. Taft said in his first and principal speech of the day at Sandusky that, if elected, he would devote his best energies to constructive recommendations to congress for legislation which would clinch the Roosevelt policies of business honesty. At the same time he made it clear that the regulation by the government of interstate business should be not only sound in legal principple, but that the interpretation and enforcement of the law should be both clear and speedy, to the end that legitimate aggregation of capital should not be prevented or discouraged, and that confidence in the commercial stability of the country should be on the firmest possible basis. He also pledged himself to further the policy of government supervision of the issue of stocks and bonds of interstate railways.

Later in the day Taft declared that the Republican party had made the best record in labor legislation during the past seven years of all other previous records since Washington's time.

PERFECT ORGANIZATION

All That Is Needed, Says Bryan, to Insure His Election

Chicago, Sept. 9.—William J. Bryan told the members of the Democratic national committee at their meeting here to discuss campaign plans before the candidate makes his swing through the eastern states, that with a perfect organization to conduct the presidential fight the victory for Democracy's cause was assured. Bryan said that he and Kern had presented the issues carefully and that he was absolutely confident that he would be elected if there was a strong organization to hold the ground that had been gained. The outlook for victory, said Bryan, was much brighter than it was a month ago.

Twelve hundred precinct committeemen recently elected in the primaries were addressed by Bryan last night. The meeting represented an innovation in politics in Chicago and was to put into effect the call of the Democratic national committee for a campaign club in every voting precinct in the United States.

Mr. Bryan opened by referring to the primary system and declared that it had revolutionized politics. "An authority now comes from the voters," he said, "instead of some central authority." The committeemen, he said, had been selected by the people of their several communities and been entrusted by the voters with authority to represent them in the party organization. Bryan emphasized the importance of the position which the committeemen occupied and declared that no candidate will win success if the work of organization is neglected.

"We may have a majority, as I believe we have," he said, "but if that majority is not made effective at the polls it counts for nothing. It will be your business to see, first, that every Democratic vote is registered; second, that every Democratic vote is cast third, that every Democratic vote is counted, and fourth, that false registration and repeating are prevented."

PILLSBURY IN THE LEAD

Will Probably Be Nominated For Governor of New Hampshire

Manchester, N. H., Sept. 9.—Incomplete returns from the Republican caucuses held throughout the state last night indicate that Rosecrans W. Pillsbury of this city is leading in the contest for the gubernatorial nomination. The exact standing of the various candidates may not be definitely known until the convention, as there are quite a number of unpledged delegates. In the convention a majority vote is required to nominate.

Pillsbury claims 295 of the delegates thus far reported and places the number favoring Henry B. Quinby of Laconia at 194. Bertram Ellis of Keene is credited with 50, while 24 are unpledged or doubtful. Pillsbury carried nine of the ten wards in Manchester and many of the towns in Hillsboro county.

Cassidy's Popularity Is Lost

Ithaca, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Owen Cassidy of Schuyler county was defeated for renomination to the state senate by the Republican senatorial convention in the Forty-fifth district convention held here. He received only five votes from the delegates from his own county, those of Chemung, Tioga and Tompkins voting against him. The candidacy of Cassidy for renomination attracted more than local interest, because of the fact that his vote was regarded as that which decided, temporarily at least, the fate of the anti-gambling bills at the time of their defeat by the senate last spring. He was an avowed opponent of several of the measures recommended to the legislature by Governor Hughes. Instructions in his favor by the spring conventions were afterward rescinded.

McCarren Is Still Boss

New York, Sept. 9.—By carrying eighteen of the twenty-three assembly districts of Brooklyn, Senator Patrick H. McCarren has maintained his political control of Kings county, only four of the seven revolted districts returning anti-McCarren leaders. Despite charges of fraud made in advance of the polling by both sides, only forty arrests were made for attempted illegal voting, and at no time was it necessary to send out the platoon of police held in reserve.

Low Wants Hughes Renominated

New York, Sept. 9.—Former Mayor Low of New York visited Republican national headquarters and concluded arrangements to make a number of speeches in middle western states in support of Taft and Sherman. Low said he was heartily in favor of the renomination of Hughes for governor of New York state. "Failure to renominate him," he said, "would be interpreted disadvantageously throughout the country."

Stand-Patters Fighting Cummins

Des Moines, Sept. 9.—By deadlocking both houses, the stand-patters declare they have defeated Governor Cummins for election to the short term as United States senator from Iowa. Seventy-six votes are necessary to elect, and the stand-patters claim Cummins will not get more than the number he was able to poll yesterday. 65.

INVESTIGATE and ECONOMIZE.

NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.

On and after September 16, we have decided

TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE

as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods

AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills over due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every day. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and take them with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Now think this proposition over, and we feel confident that you can see it just the way that we do.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

The German Seltzer Mfg. Co. are now manufacturing Tonics of all flavors. Try them.

Miss Beatrice B. Walker of Quincy, arrived in Palo Alto, Cal., last week. She will take charge of the physical culture and elocution classes of the preparatory school, for the Leland Stanford University. the school year ending May 10, 1909.

A man who gave his name as William Littlewood, and his residence as Quincy, was before the Hingham court on Tuesday for operating an automobile in a reckless manner while under the influence of liquor. He was sentenced to two months in the house of correction.

Officer Olson found a man early this morning helping himself to the pears which hung so temptingly from a tree on the Betts estate on Washington street. He placed the man under arrest and the court imposed a fine of $10. The man gave his name as Joseph Nash.

Mr. George J. Haupt of Elmhurst Kennels made a flying visit to Bangor, Maine, on Friday evening to bring back the black cocker bitch stolen from the Eastern Maine State fair on Aug. 26, which had been located running loose in the woods, and succeeded in getting her and brought her home Saturday.

At the 6th annual open air show held by the Revere Kennel club at Cresent Park, Labor day, Elmhurst kennels had four entries which succeeded in winning 4 first, 3 winners, also best two in the show, also best four in the show, "Merry maid" also won special for best bitch in the show. These kennels have a large entry for Framingham on Sept. 16 also at Riverside on Sept. 17.

The Hospital Assault Case

The continued case of John Dowd, for assault on Daniel Keniley, Jr., at the City Hospital, was heard in the district court this morning. The evidence for the government was that Dowd, who was a representative of the street railway, visited the hospital a few days after the accident whereby Keniley had part of his foot taken off. It was alleged that Dowd grabbed the boy by the wrists in an effort to take a paper away from him and shook him.

Dowd claimed that he went to the hospital to get a statement from the boy as to how the accident happened. As the boy told the story of the accident he wrote it down. He then passed the paper to the boy for him to read, to see if the statement was correct, and then sign. In other words it was simply a statement of facts.

When he handed the paper to the boy the latter began to tear it up. He then grabbed him by the wrists to prevent the further destruction of the paper. Dowd denied shaking the boy.

The court found that Dowd was technically guilty of an assault and imposed a fine of $5. An appeal was taken.

Quincy Bride Philadelphia Groom

The residence of Mr. James Joss was the scene of a very pretty home wedding on Tuesday evening when his daughter, Louise Elizabeth, was married to Mr. Frederick Leighton of Ithaca, N. Y., Cornell '04. The grounds were illuminated with Chinese lanterns, while the house decorations were bride roses, golden-rod and ferns. The ceremony was performed at 7.30 in the presence of relatives by the Rev. N. J. Sproul, of the First Presbyterian church.

The wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Mr. Charles Edward Joss. Miss Jean Isabel Joss, sister of the bride was maid of honor, and Mr. Henry Leighton of Albany, N. Y., Cornell '06, brother of the groom, was best man. The bride's gown was of white lace with rose applique over white taffeta, worn en train, and she carried a shower bouquet of bride roses. The maid of honor wore white silk over pink taffeta, and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses.

A reception followed the ceremony, and the bridal party were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. P. Leighton, Miss Mary Margaret Joss and Mr. James Joss. The ushers were Mr. Charles Edward Joss, Mr. John A. Hay of Bellows Falls, Vermont., Miss Alice Forbes Joss, and Miss Louise Catherine Hay of Bellows Falls, Vermont. A buffet lunch was served during the reception.

Guests from out of town were Mrs. Helen Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. P. Leighton of Canandaigua, N. Y.; Mrs. George Redfield Strong, Buffalo, N. Y.; Mr. Henry Leighton, Albany, N. Y.; Miss Louise Catherine Hay and Mr. John A. Hay of Bellows Falls, Vermont; Mr. and Mrs. John Lobban and family of Milton, Mass.; Mr. Carl L. Fife, West Somerville, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. William Robb, Roxbury, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. John Craighead, Malden, Mass.; and Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Edson of Brockton, Mass.

The groom is a member of the class of 1904 of Cornell University. Since graduation he has been an instructor in the physics department of that University. After the wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Leighton will reside in West Philadelphia, Mr. Leighton having recently accepted a position as physics instructor at Drexel Institute, Philadelphia, Pa.

Sudden Death.

Mrs. Lizzie Chandler Russell, widow of Frank H. Russell, died suddenly Monday morning at her home on Park street, Wollaston. Mrs. Russell had been enjoying remarkably good health up to 2 o'clock that morning, when she had a shock and passed away a few hours later. She was 52 years of age. Mrs. Russell's husband died a few years ago. She had no children, but leaves a brother and sister, Mr. Albert Chandler and Mrs. Moses A. Boynton, all well known at Wollaston.

Joseph De Lara Galvin, the Boston business man and mining Engineer, who was killed in a runaway accident at Dorchester Tuesday night, received his early education at Adams Academy.

—New York state is richer by $667,000 paid by the Russell Sage estate as an inheritance tax. The old financier was worth over $66,000,000.

—Maine will elect a Governor, a state auditor, four congressmen, a new state Legislature and county officers on Monday, Sept. 14.

Railroad Fares At West Quincy

West Quincy people are thoroughly aroused over the price of the new twelve-ride books between that station and Boston, and they feel that they have been discriminated against. As the price of the 25 ride tickets were the same from this station as from Quincy, the residents had reason to believe that the price of the twelve-ride tickets would be the same. Instead of that the price of the twelve-ride books are $1.15, while the price from Quincy is $1.10.

The Republican ward committee have taken up the matter and will bring it before the City Council at its next meeting.

Ex-Representative Edward J. Sandberg will also take up the matter with the Board of Trade.

It is proposed to have the City Council and Board of Trade appoint committees to confer with the railroad in regard to the matter.

The sale of the 25-ride tickets, however will be continued at the old price.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Enlargement of Grain Plant

F. H. Crane & Sons are making a number of improvements at their grain elevator at South Quincy, which when completed will give them an up-to-date plant in every way.

The hay sheds which were on the north-westerly side of Liberty street have been moved across the street, and placed parallel with the railroad, a spur track from which runs close to the building, enabling them to easily unload cargoes of hay. The roof of this building is to be covered with Portland cement making it proof against any sparks from passing locomotives.

This hay shed is being connected with the elevator building by a new structure, which will be used as a flour building. The office will also be located there. A porch extends from the hay shed building on the Liberty street side, so that teams can load in all kinds of weather without danger of the goods being wet.

The firm occupy all of the property formerly used by McGilvray & Jones for granite manufacture, so that they have considerable yard room. It is their intention to erect a brick stable building on the lot. Work on this building will be commenced at once.

—We examine in our dark-room with modern instruments. If we find disease we send you to a reliable oculist. Williams 1473 Hancock street.

Newsy Notes at Houghs Neck

Miss Mae Harvey of the water front is entertaining a few friends from Brockton this week.

John Sullivan of Manet avenue has the record so for this week for smelt catching. A haul of thirty pounds is considered poor by him.

Mr. and Mrs. Nat Max are entertaining relatives from Boston at their cottage on Charles street.

The contest for the beautiful loving cup offered for the highest three-string total by the Pandora alley for duck pins is getting hot. The scores of nearly every one in the contests are high. The six highest men up to Friday night will roll off Saturday night for the cup.

The summer season at Houghs Neck came to an end Labor day. The day was a perfect one and the beach was crowded with hundreds of people. In the morning the Quincy Yacht club held a motor boat race, the summary can be found in another section of the paper. During the afternoon and evening the great crowd entertained themselves by bowling, bathing, boating, dancing and with numerous other amusements to be found at the beach.

The season was a huge success as far as good weather was concerned but the business people, those that have been at the beach for many seasons, claim that though there have been more people this year than any year in the past, money was very tight. If any business man could show where he was ahead of the game he would be considered very lucky. Two of the moving picture houses have closed, and a score of small places will close week days, opening Sundays during the remainder of this month, hoping for good weather on Sundays to help them square themselves.

The beach has never been better policed than this year. The outing clubs have given little or no trouble. The only trouble the police had with a club was with the Orient club, which they raided and arrested eight of the members.

In another week all the summer residents will have gone and the natives will begin to plan for good times during the cold winter months. The Associates will have a fine club house in Pandora hall, where the men folks will while away the cold evenings playing smudge, pool or bowling. Frequent nights will be set aside for the ladies. Last winter the women folks were given two nights and they enjoyed themselves so much that they want more this winter. This will be possible as the Associates will have a home of their own, where last winter they depended upon the charity of the owners of the various places. Let us hope that the Associates will be as active this winter as last and continue to get improvements.

Good Endorsement.

The last issue of the Hyde Park Gazette has the following to say of the candidacy of ex-Representative Edward J. Sandberg:

"We are pleased to note that there is a movement among the Republicans of Quincy to give ex-Representative Edward J. Sandberg another term. It has been customary to give a worthy representative three years, but last year he was defeated for renomination, and the result was a Democrat was elected in a strong Republican district. During his two terms in the General court, Mr. Sandberg was an able and influential member, and he enjoyed not only the esteem and confidence of his associates, but the executive department as well. We hope the Republicans of Quincy will give him the nomination."

TODAY'S COURT.

Joseph Nash was fined $10 for larceny of fruit at Quincy.

Sam Hendrickson and Ida Isaacson were arraigned for lewdness at Quincy. Cases continued under $500 bonds until Friday.

NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.

On and after September 16, we have decided

TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE

as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods

AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills over due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every day. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and take them with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Now think this proposition over, and we feel confident that you can see it just the way that we do.

SOMETHING THAT IS NEEDED HERE IN QUINCY.

A HIGH GRADE OF GOODS SOLD AT LOW PRICES.

So Remember your 5 per cent discount.

Respectfully,

City Square, Quincy. JOHNSON BROS. Hancock Street, Corner Maple.

CITIZENS' ASSOCIATION

Important Matters At First Meeting Of the Season On Wednesday

A regular meeting of the Citizens' Association was held Wednesday evening. Previous to the meeting the directors met and appointed a committee to report a list of names for officers to be voted for at the annual meeting.

At the meeting H. G. Fay, of the committee on revision of the City Charter, reported that the committee had discussed plans and that a report might be expected at the next meeting.

E. W. Branch of the grade crossing committee reported that the Mayor's committee had presented plans to the commission and that another hearing would be held Sept.26.

In reply to questions, Mr. Branch said that he was working on a plan for Water street. His plan proposed elevating the tracks and lowering the street so that it would pass under the tracks. School street would be retained but the grade raised. He thought the cost would be about the same as by plan presented by the city. Under his plan the track entrance to the new freight yard would be from the north.

A communication was received from the Mayor in regard to the commission that was considering improvements in the highways, docks, railways, etc., in cities and towns of the State, and suggested that the association take up the matter.

E. W. Branch said the commission were investigating necessary improvements. It was an important thing for Quincy to get into touch. A number of cities had presented plans, showing what they needed. It seemed wise that the city be informed of the scope of the commission by a public meeting.

James F. Burke moved a special committee of five be appointed to act with the Mayor, and cooperate with a committee from the Board of Trade, to arrange for a public meeting to be addressed by some one from the commission.

Dr. Welch doubted if much public interest could be aroused by such a meeting. Was it not more of a matter for those especially interested in the progress of the city? He disliked public meetings with only a handful present. He questioned if more could not be accomplished by joint meetings of the committees of the two associations with the Mayor and officials.

Mr. Branch said the object of a public meeting was educational. We all need enlightenment. Then have the committee present to the commission in a concrete form just what was needed.

Mr. Burke said his idea was that the committee should work with the Mayor. The two committees could go over the matter carefully and get the wants into shape.

H. G. Smith—In view of the short time we must consider how to get the report before the commission. We should have some idea of our own as to what was needed. The joint committee could discuss what was needed and put it into proper shape for presentation to the commission.

The motion was then amended by Mr. Pinkham so as to read, "and take such other action as may be deemed wise to bring to the attention of the Commission the needs of the city.

The motion was then adopted and the president appointed the following as the committee: Dr. J. F. Welch, Paul R. Blackmur, F. F. Crane, James F. Burke and Herbert T. Whitman.

Henry L. Kincaide suggested that the secretary invite the public to send any suggestions it might have to the committee.

Commissioner Bainbridge, who was present, was invited to speak on streets.

The Commissioner said something has got to be done to hold the top surface down as the big automobile sucked the top off the streets. The city was waiting until such time as the experiments now going on should determine the best method. Oil holds down some roads and others it tears up. Tar however was a good thing. There would be no need of watering with that on the streets. As it is now, one minute the streets are muddy and the next they are dusty.

Dr. Welch asked if oil did not make the best protection.

Mr. Kincaide said it seemed to him as though the experiment might be applied to some of our new streets.

The Commissioner replied that it was still a question if oil was the proper thing. Where oil is used it is applied every two weeks, and costs $40 per mile.

Mayor Shea said the city had no money for oiling streets. The budget called for $7,000 for street watering and he did not think that could be used for oil. The time to take up this matter was in the spring when the budget was being considered. Next year we would be in better condition to know what was best.

James F. Burke brought up the matter of the 12-ride book between West Quincy and Boston. He felt West Quincy and South Quincy were not being used right. The price of 12 ride books to Quincy, West Quincy and South Quincy should be the same.

He moved and it was voted that the committee on Transportation take up the matter with the Railroad Commissioners.

The meeting then adjourned.

County Budget Grand Jury Sitting

Next Monday the September term of the Norfolk Superior criminal court comes in. From the present indications the grand jury now sitting will not have finished its findings by that time, and some cases already acted upon will be sent into court for trial. There are an unusually large number of cases before the grand jury, so many in fact that it is felt that it will not be ready to report until next week. If this is the case the liquor cases will probably be taken up by the court as has been done in a similar situation once before.

Louis A. Cook, Jr., of Weymouth, second assistant clerk of courts of Norfolk county, appeared on duty this week, after a summer's rest. Mr. Cook who had a severe attack of rheumatic fever last winter is slowly recovering, and is much improved although it is a long road to complete recovery.

It was naturalization day at the court Tuesday and ten applicants were granted their second papers, and taking the oath of office because full fledged citizens of the United States. Of these Norwood furnished four, Dedham and Hyde Park two each, and Medfield and Franklin one each. Two, both from Dedham, failed to qualify. One from Canton is deceased and one from Hyde Park did not show up.

The jury waived session came in on Tuesday with a list made up of the following: motions, 5; equity suits, 7; law points 29; naturalization, 14; and divorce libels, 27, of which 10 are contested and 17 uncontested.

There has been a great improvement in the county treasurer's office. Heretofore a grating of wide brass strips has run along the top of the desk between the public and private compartments. This has been replaced with plate glass in the various sections much neater and more artistic. The brass was bad for the eyes as there was a continual glare from the brass.

The opening of court brought the court officials together again after the summer recess. Most of them have had a season of vacation and returned with renewed vigor. Those on duty this week were Sheriff Samuel H. Capen of Dedham, Edward E. Wentworth of Cohasset, George H. Field of Quincy, William Wragg of Hyde Park, Oscar D. Capen of Canton, Charles C. Henry of Wellesley and Charles W. Pond of Wrentham.

CHURCH WEDDING

Miss Claflin Becomes Bride of Alvah H. Pierce Of Hyde Park

One of the prettiest of the early fall weddings was that of Miss Helen Holbrook Claflin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rupert F. Claflin of 106 Greenleaf street, and Mr. Alvah Henry Pierce son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Pierce of Hyde Park, which took place Wednesday evening at the First Church. Rev. Ellery C. Butler, pastor of the church, was the officiating clergyman, and the ceremony was witnessed by a large gathering of the relatives and friends of the bride and groom.

Miss Alice L. Claflin, a sister of the bride, was the maid of honor, and Mr. John J. Clingen of New York city the best man. The ushers were Mr. Alan Howland, Mr. Gerald Howland and Mr. Philip M. Clark of Cambridge, Mr. Paul R. Manahan of Boston and Mr. William P. Thompson and Mr. Henry P. Dowst of Quincy.

Promptly at 8 o'clock, while the melodious strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin filled the church, the bridal party entered and proceeded slowly down the centre aisle. First came the ushers who were followed by the maid of honor, then the bride leaning upon the arm of her father. Arriving at the altar they were met by the groom and best man. As the bridal party left the church the organ pealed forth the inspiring notes of Mendelssohn's wedding march.

The bride wore an imported gown of hand-embroidered silk, Brussels lace with pearls, and carried a bouquet of white roses. The gown of the maid of honor was pink marquisette.

The ceremony was followed by a reception from 8.30 until 10 o'clock at the home of the bride, the bridal party being assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Claflin and Mr. and Mrs. Pierce. Mrs. Claflin wore a black fillet lace over white chiffon, trimmed with white Princess lace, and Mrs. Pierce wore a silver gray with old lace and pearls.

White hydrangea and white asters were the flowers used for decoration at the church and white hydrangea at the house.

Immediately after the reception Mr. and Mrs. Pierce left for Hyannis, where they will spend their honeymoon at the summer residence of the groom's parents. Their future residence will be on Faxon avenue, Quincy, where they will be at home after Dec. 1.

UP-HILL WORK

Early Struggles of Geo. W. Prescott To Give Quincy Up-to-Date Newspaper

The Daily Ledger of Wednesday briefly sketched the life of George W. Prescott, the editor and publisher who passed away early that morning, in his 56th year of newspaper work.

The following review of the life work of Mr. Prescott was written by himself fifteen years ago and tells of the trials of newspapers during the Civil war and since, covering a period from 1853 to 1893—40 years.

AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY.

What a long space of time it seems when one attempts to look for forty years into the future! What immense changes have taken place during the past forty years, not only in the United States, but in the little town of Quincy. It had, in 1853, a population of about 5,100.

With these few opening remarks we wish to say that it is forty years this week since George W. Prescott commenced his labors in the Quincy Patriot office. He learned the mystery of type-setting in the same building, and has continued during all these years to be connected with the Patriot.

It is almost impossible to separate him and the newspaper which he has so carefully looked after during this long period, and we will not attempt to do so. Although the Patriot was started a few years after Mr. Prescott was born, it made very little progress until after it fell to his lot to look after its interests.

PATRIOT A PIONEER.

On Jan. 1, 1837, through the energy and courage of a Quincy boy, John Adams Green, and his partner, Edward B. Osborne, the first number of the Quincy Patriot was printed. The co-partnership was of short duration—about three months—when Mr. Green became the sole editor and proprietor. It was, at that time, the only newspaper published anywhere in this vicinity, except the Hingham Journal. In all the towns south of Quincy, consisting of Weymouth, Braintree, Randolph, Stoughton, Abington, etc., no papers were published. The first place south that had a paper, we think, was the old historical town of Plymouth. The stage coaches from Boston brought to these towns a few copies from the Hub daily.

Newspapers were comparatively strangers to many households in those days, but Mr. Green being of a jovial, pleasant disposition, succeeded in obtaining several hundred subscribers, and issued a very creditable sheet, regularly every Saturday morning (with one exception) until 1851. Once it almost became a Sunday morning paper, as it was very late one Saturday night before it was printed, and many of the subscribers found their copies in the church pews on Sunday morning. In those good old days everybody went to church as regularly as they do now to their daily occupation. There were then but four churches in Quincy,—The Unitarian, the Episcopal, the Universalist, and the Orthodox,—and the latter two had been established but a few years,—since 1830.

On July 1, 1851, Mr. Green finding the duties of editor, publisher and printer onerous, and having a good opportunity to dispose of the same, sold out his entire interest in the paper to Messrs. Thayer & White and went to New York, where his half-brother, Mr. Freeman Hunt, was very successfully engaged in publishing the Merchant's Magazine.

EXPERIENCE NECESSARY.

The new firm was well equipped for business. They were gentlemen well educated, and had the cash to back the enterprise. Mr. Gideon F. Thayer, the senior member, was the successful teacher of Chauncy Hall School, Boston; and the junior partner was George White, Esq., the highly-respected Judge of Probate of Norfolk County, who had a short time previous graduated from Yale College and the Harvard Law School; a young gentleman of much ability. They expected to make so great an improvement in the Patriot that its circulation would be extended for miles around, and its fame be known far and near; but like many other publishers, before and since their time, were greatly disappointed.

The Patriot had, previous to July 1, 1851, been a five column folio; but the new publishers thought best to reduce the width of the columns, and make it a six-column folio, making the size of the sheet 22 by 32 inches; a little smaller than Quincy Daily Ledger at the present time, which is 22 by 35 inches. They purchased new type and other necessary equipments to make it a handsome and attractive sheet. They secured young and able printers from Boston, and started the paper in good shape.

The Patriot issued by them made a very creditable appearance and everything outwardly looked prosperous. But Messrs. Thayer & White soon found that the business was not so attractive as summer roses; that there was a constant drain on their capital; that the expenses were more than the receipts. An experience which has been felt by many publishers of country weeklies, especially when they were not practical printers.

At the end of the first year Mr. Thayer felt anxious to withdraw from the firm. He had spent over $1,000, which there was little or no prospect of seeing again, and the vexations and trials were more numerous than he had anticipated. Being an excellent scholar, and very exact in his conversation and writings, the many errors that crept into the Patriot from week to week, and will into all newspapers, even with the utmost care, were very annoying to him; and instead of the joy and satisfaction he expected to receive from a good newspaper, it gave him pain and remorse.

Mr. Thayer accordingly sold his interest in the Patriot to his partner who continued to publish it until the following April.

Judge White informed us in after years that his newspaper experience had been of considerable value to him through life, but financially it cost him from $1,000 to $2,000.

AS AN APPRENTICE.

On April 1, 1853, the Patriot passed again into the hands of John A. Green, and one month later, May 1, 1853, George W. Prescott commenced his labors as an apprentice. He had during Messrs. Thayer & White's time distributed the Patriot to subscribers in the different parts of the town; and while in the office had been shown the mystery of type-setting by one of the compositors, Mr. J. C. Chandler, who, it will be remembered, married a daughter of the late Seth Adams of this place; and sister of Mrs. James E. Tirrell of Quincy.

The new apprentice was a tall, slender youth, nearly six feet in height, but weighed only about 130 pounds; of a consumptive build, and of a frail constitution. His parents did not have a high regard for the printing business, thinking that many of the compositors were of a reckless, roving disposition. They did not therefore encourage him to learn the business, but the youth being desirous of learning a trade, and taking a liking to setting type, obtained their consent and went to work.

To give the boys of today some idea of what an apprentice received in those days we will give the figures: The first year he had $3.25 per week; the second year, $3.50; and the third, $4.00; out of this small pittance he had to pay his board and clothes. Being of an independent disposition he gave his parents two dollars per week for board, and managed with the balance to clothe himself well; and have left some pocket money. The publisher of the Patriot in those days was always short of cash, and paid his apprentice a dollar or two at a time, just as he happened to have it when the boy went after it.

LOYAL TO EMPLOYER.

A newspaper was soon established in Weymouth, and Mr. Prescott was offered nearly double the wages he was receiving to go there to work, but having a love for home and believing it would be more creditable to him to serve out his agreement with Mr. Green, he remained. After his apprenticeship he was hired by the piece and paid twenty cents per thousand ems.

After a few years he was given general charge of the office. Mr. Green being in ill-health and for a number of years, post-master, spent but little time at the Patriot office.

From April 1, 1853, until the time of his death, July 11, 1861, Mr. Green continued to issue the Patriot from week to week. The cash receipts, however, during those eight years, did not warrant him in making any additions or improvements to the office. The circulation remained about the same—between 400 and 500 copies—as when he purchased it from Mr. White. The old platen press, built sometime in 1700, and placed in the office by Messrs. Thayer & White, still printed the weekly sheet. With this press a good printer, by the aid of a boy to ink the type could manage to work about one hundred sheets an hour.

Mr. Green died suddenly leaving a widow and three children. By the advise of the late James M. Beckford she decided to continue the publication of the Patriot.

FOREMAN OF OFFICE.

She placed Mr. Prescott in charge of the office and assisted him all she could in the business of the same. In time past, during her husband's illness, she had selected the stories and most of the miscellaneous reading matter for the Patriot. Although well educated she had written scarcely anything for publication previous to this time, but feeling the occasion demanded extra exertion, she did her best. By the aid of Mr. Prescott and other friends, who kindly wrote items of news and other articles of interest, the Patriot was received by its patrons with many a kindly word.

Unfortunately, the year following Mr. Green's death was one of the hardest for country newspaper publishers that there has been during the last half century. The Southern Rebellion had opened with its tremendous effects on the country. Many men in all the towns and villages had accepted the call of President Lincoln and volunteered their services to defend the country against the rebels. Business of nearly all kinds was at a stand-still. Many subscribers left for the war, and their grass widows felt as though they could not afford to take a newspaper. Advertising dropped off and it was unusually hard times for publishers. Still, by careful attention to business and the most strict economy, the Patriot did fairly well the first year.

The second year Mrs. Green, by the aid of a girl in the household, was able to spend more time at the office, in reading proofs and assisting in the mechanical work. She learned from Mr. Prescott to set type, and often assisted him in doing job work.

HARD WORK NECESSARY.

It must be remembered by the reader that it was not so easy then to do job printing in the Patriot office as it is now. There was then but one old hand press which was used not only for printing the newspaper, but for all jobs. It mattered not whether it was a business card, a label, a tax-bill, town warrant, or a poster, they all had to be done on this hand press. Often Mrs. Green blistered her hands in rolling the ink into the type as Mr. Prescott did the press work. Yet energy, hard work and economy triumphed and the Patriot still lived and managed to pay all expenses and leave something for its publisher.

As we have heretofore said the sixties were hard times for publishers. The prices demanded for paper and ink began to be abominable. Owing to the war, rags became very scarce in this country, and it was at great expense that they were imported from Europe. In those days all newspapers were printed on paper made of rag stock as the more modern invention of making paper from wood pulp had not been invented. Consequently the price of paper continued to advance from year to year. That which could be bought at the time of Mr. Green's death for 8, to 9 cents per pound, went up to 10, 12, 14 and 16 cents per pound; and it did not stop there, but still continued to go upwards. Eighteen cents was charged, then 20, 25, 28 and finally 30 cents or more was wanted. Unfortunately for the publisher of the Patriot, her finances being low, Mr. Prescott could buy only a few reams at a time, and each lot cost a few dollars more. At that time Mr. George W. B. Taylor of this place, was a wholesale dealer in paper, and nearly all that was wanted at the Patriot office was purchased of him.

The necessity for a job press for small work was soon felt, and enough was saved the second year to warrant the purchase of one. This was found to be a great addition to the office. Up to this time it is doubtful if the whole stock in the Patriot office would have brought $500 under the auctioneer's hammer. But onward from that time it commenced to gather, and has continued.

In 1866, the increase in the circulation of the Patriot, and also in advertising induced Mr. Prescott, by the consent of Mrs. Green, to buy a new press and to enlarge the newspaper to a seven column sheet; making it one-third larger than it had been previous to that date. This proved a wise step, as it gave the Patriot a greater influence in the community, and the business continued to prosper.

ENTERED PARTNERSHIP.

In 1869, Mr. Prescott, who had been until that time simply an employe, purchased one-half of the stock and interest in the business which he so successfully managed to that date, and entered into co-partnership with Mrs. Green.

In 1872, so great had the pressure again become on the advertising columns, that the publishers badly felt the need of a larger paper. The circulation had also grown so large that it was an all-day job to work off the edition on a platen press, and it was finally decided that a new cylinder press should be purchased. This was done and the Patriot was again enlarged, this time to an eight-column folio. This also proved to be a wise move, as business continued to flow in more rapidly than ever.

The Patriot at this time was as large or larger than most of the weekly papers in this vicinity and the publishers believed that they had reached the limit, and would never be called upon to get a new press or to enlarge the size of their newspaper. But they were building better than they knew. For, in a few years—in 1880—they became cramped in their labors; often much that had been prepared for the weekly issue was crowded out, by a rush of advertising, often only a few hours before it was time to go press; and it was decided that one more change should be made, which would be certainly their last; as a nine column folio was as large as could be conveniently handled by their patrons.

POWER INTRODUCED.

This necessitated the selling of their cylinder press and purchasing a larger one. On receiving their new press it was found to be too heavy to be easily run by hand power, and an engine and boiler were soon afterward purchased. This occasioned an additional expense and trouble; but where a business is successful such difficulties are easily overcome, and the firm found it so in their case.

They also found that the small job press which had been added a number of years previous, had so increased the job department that a larger one was very much needed, and it was accordingly purchased with good results.

The addition of presses, boiler, engine, etc., necessitated the enlarging of the office a number of times, which fortunately the firm succeeded in doing without moving from their old quarters. Fortunately the large front rooms adjoining their office, occupied for many years by Mr. James M. Beckford and afterwards by the late Joseph W. Lombard for tailoring purposes were to be vacated and they were added to the Patriot office; but with this large addition it did not keep up with the growth of the business. For in a few years a cylinder press was needed for book work and other large job work, and the publishers were under the necessity of adding a large room in the rear, which had been used in former years by Deacon Clapp and other gentlemen who had occupied the store below.

With these additions, not as conveniently arranged as desired, the firm managed to get along very well until after the fire, in 1887, which partly destroyed the office and necessitated their vacating the same for a number of weeks. On returning they leased the whole of the upper part of the building and had it fixed more conveniently.

Although a nine column paper is usually as large, and very often much larger than is needed, still the publishers found in a few years that their columns were crowded by advertising patrons during the busy season of the year, and that they were often obliged to issue supplements to provide room.

DAILY STARTED.

This continued until Quincy became a city. The circulation had increased from 450 to 2,200; and the advertising in a like proportion. Feeling that the city would demand a daily paper, the publishers decided to take the chances of the venture. It was found that the daily required a lot of extra hard work and that the returns were small. The Daily Ledger is growing stronger and we hope the crisis has passed and the infant may live, but it has had a hard struggle for existence.

BUSINESS AXIOMS.

The success which has accompanied Mr. Prescott in the newspaper field may be accounted for largely as follows:

Close personal attention to business.

Perfect freedom of his columns to all, both rich and poor; still unswayed by religious sects or political parties.

Careful attention to advertisers.

Believing if they reaped a benefit the paper would also.

Speaking of attention to business we would say that for many years there were few days except Sundays and holidays that Mr. Prescott was not attending to business. Often at the office first in the morning and last at night. Blest with good health, he seldom was kept an hour away from his favorite occupation.

Enjoying traveling, he has of late years taken a rest, by an excursion each season for a few days or weeks as the trip required. He has been as far as Halifax, Nova Scotia, in the east, and San Francisco, Cal., in the west; from Quebec and Montreal in the north; to Mexico in the south. On his excursions he has visited nearly every state and territory in the Union.

GOOD CREDIT.

It may be of interest to some to know how Mr. Prescott managed to carry on business in hard times like 1861 without capital or credit. For this reason we give the following paragraph:

He was determined from the start to keep out of debt if possible, accordingly he managed to pay all bills very promptly, which soon gave him good credit in Boston, and also among the citizens at home.

He would rather go out collecting among his delinquent subscribers and patrons, than to borrow any money needed to make the necessary purchase. For this reason he had never, during his long career, had an occasion to place a mortgage on the office to aid in the business; nor even have a note discounted at the bank to meet any payment on type, paper, or presses which he had purchased. When any amount of several hundred dollars was needed, he easily found some friend ready to lend him what he wanted on a note, without a backer, at a low rate of interest; and it gives us pleasure to say that no one has ever lost a cent by so doing.

55 YEARS IN HARNESS.

It might be added to the above autobiography covering a period of 40 years previous to 1893, that in the 15 years which have since elapsed Mr. Prescott has shown the same close attention to business. With a regularity that was remarkable, and noticeable to guests at Hotel Greenleaf and by the early risers of City Square, he reached his office daily before 7.30 A. M. He remained until 12 A. M., and took only an hour at home at noon, being at his office all the afternoon until 6 o'clock. When he was away for a few hours, it would be for a business trip to Boston, or among his patrons. Nothing but the newspaper business occupied his attention during business hours, and he usually reviewed his exchanges at home in the evening.

The last 15 years have been the most progressive in the office of the Quincy Patriot and Daily Ledger. The firm now leases the whole building of four floors and has a good counting orom on the street floor; in the rear a large press room; above the editorial and reportorial rooms, and large composing room; also storeroom in basement and attic. A Mergenthaler linotype has been added and all the machinery is now operated by electric power. Additions have also been made in the reportorial and other departments.

Mr. Prescott was always anxious to enlarge and improve his papers and his equipment when he could see his way clear.

WRIGHT'S GREAT ACHIEVEMENTS

Phenomenal Aerial Flights on Fort Meyer Drill Grounds

NEW RECORDS ESTABLISHED

Hardly a Quiver of Æroplane as It Sped Through Air Like an Automobile on Imaginary Course--Engine and Steering Apparatus Work Perfectly--Three Trips In Ether Cover Over Two Hours

Washington, Sept. 10.—Orville Wright, in three phenomenal flights at Fort Myer, established new aeroplane records that not only assure the success of the official trials before the army board, but indicate that aerial flight is now only a matter of development. War on land and sea will find in the aeroplane, it is now conceded by military men, a valuable means of reconnaissance and possibly carnage.

Two flights of approximately one hour each, another flight in which two men were whirled through the air for upward of six minutes, were the achievements of the Wright brothers' aeroplane yesterday. That these flights will even be surpassed by Orville Wright during his trials at Fort Myer is confidently predicted.

The first flight, made yesterday morning, in which the machine circled the drillgrounds at the fort fifty-seven times in fifty-seven minutes and thirty-one seconds, was surpassed last evening, when a flight of sixty-two minutes and fifteen seconds was made.

Not satisfied with breaking all distance and time records for a heavier-than-air flying machine, Wright took Lieutenant Lahm, the aeronaut of the signal corps, for a spin around the drill grounds, and made a new record for a two-man flight.

At 5:16 the latest invention of man to challenge the laws of nature rose grandly into space and sailed over the green sward of the drillgrounds. Higher and higher it rose, turned at a slight angle as the navigator brought it around at the far side of the field and raced along at increasing speed. There was hardly a quiver of the aeroplane in the first few rounds of the field, Wright evidently having the steering apparatus well in hand.

Rising and lowering at will, the sight of the man-built bird was most impressive. Round after round the machine traveled on, cutting short turns, shooting along the stretches and presenting somewhat the appearance of an automobile racing about an imaginary course in the air. The navigator seemed oblivious of the crowd below until, having broken the record of fifty-seven minutes and thirty-one seconds established by him yesterday morning, the crowd raised a cheer that told him of his new achievement. Then Wright waved his acknowledgments.

Before the flight was begun a watch was tied to the seat next to Wright, and when a little later he saw he had stayed aloft for over an hour, the time required in order for him to fulfill his contract with the government, he swooped down in the direction of the crowd, which quickly scattered, fearing that the aeroplane would run them down. Raising a cloud of dust as it slid along on the skids, the aeroplane, which weighs nearly 1000 pounds, came to a stop within twenty feet of the crowd.

Lieutenant Selfridge was the first to congratulate Mr. Wright. Secretary of the Navy Metcalf, Secretary of War Wright and numerous army and navy officers, together with enthusiasts from every walk of life, gathered about the wizard of the air to grasp his hand. As three cheers were given, Wright calmly gave orders for replacing the machine on the starting track to prepare for another flight.

Turning to Lieutenant Lahm, Wright said: "How would you like to go up with me?"

It was an invitation that needed no repetition. There were no skeptics in that crowd of enthusiastic spectators and there were a great number who envied the favored lieutenant.

With Wright and Lahm in their places, the start was made at 6:42, the machine apparently rising from the ground as easily with its increased burden as it had with only the inventor aboard. As it sped along the road bordering Arlington cemetery, it came in a direct line between the on-lookers and the full September moon, serving to recall the famous work of Jules Verne, "A Trip to the Moon."

As the machine completed the first round the motor "skipped" on one cylinder, but on the succeeding five trips there was no evidence that the engine built by the Wright brothers was overtaxed by the great strain imposed upon it. After the sixth lap a beautiful landing was made within a hundred feet of the "aerial garage," where the machine is sheltered from the elements.

The power was not fully turned on in any of the flights. It is estimated that a distance of 38.5 miles was covered in the longest flight. "As the anemometer attached to the machine registers only ten kilometres," said Wright, "it is impossible for me to tell accurately what speed I made. From the figures registered I think it was either 37 or 42 miles an hour."

To the crowd that surrounded him after landing from the second flight, Wright was the coolest man around.

LOCAL AND LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE

Telephone Talks

Household business before pleasure. party line "telephone visits" need not be curtailed, but your service would be improved if they were made in conventional visiting hours.

"Rush Hours"

No other public service is called upon to meet such extraordinary fluctuations of demand as is the telephone. The "rush hours" of trolley and steam roads represent, by comparison, a demand that is steady and moderate.

Moreover, during the transportation "rush hours" crush some people must stand, or, if they insist upon having a seat, must wait for less crowded cars.

In telephoning, however, the simile would be applied by stating that each "passenger" must have, not a seat, but a "special car," and that this car must have a "special motorman and conductor," and the absolute right of way over a "special pair of rails" from the point where its journey begins to the point where it ends.

In telephone exchanges the "rush hours" usually are those between 8.30 and 11 A. M. It is during this period that party line subscribers are apt to be most troubled by "busy" reports.

It would materially help the service of subscribers on such lines if calls that are not imperative—social calls, for example—were deferred to the afternoon, leaving the morning hours free for domestic business calls.

It would be well if party line users would keep in mind this fact—that while any one subscriber on it is talking, it is closed to every other person connected therewith, and also to every person desirous of communicating with him or with any other person on that line.

Reception to Pope's Legate

London, Sept. 10.—With all the solemn splendor of the Roman Catholic church, Cardinal Vannutelli, the pope's legate, was formally received by the prelates who have gathered here for the eucharistic congress over which he will preside. The reception took place in Westminster cathedral, which the Catholics of England erected at a great cost, but the interior of which is not yet completed. Every seat in the cathedral, which is capable of accommodating 8000 persons, was occupied. The galleries were crowded and in the streets thousands waited for hours to get a glimpse of the pope's representative.

Prince In Charity Hospital

Berlin, Sept. 10.—Prince Philip Zu Eulenberg, whose trial on charges of perjury in connection with court scandals of last year was indefinitely suspended on July 17 last on account of his ill-health, is sufferinmg from repeated attacks of fainting, with intense and agonizing nervous symptoms. The prince is confined in the police ward of charity hospital.

Cholera In Russian Capital

St. Petersburg, Sept. 10.—The fact that Asiatic cholera exists in St. Petersburg has been established without any manner of doubt. Fifteen cases are officially reported as existing in this city. The present weather conditions are favorable to the spread of the disease.

TERRIBLE DROP OF AERONAUT

Probably Fatally Injured In His First Balloon Ascension

TOOK BABY LION WITH HIM

Intended to Let Beast Go With Parachute and Later Follow With Another--Seven Thousand Persons Saw Gasbag Explode In Midair and Bodies Fall to the Ground--Baby Lion Is Unhurt

New York, Sept. 10.—In view of 7000 persons at the Richmond County fair, held at Dongan Hills, S. I., William Coby, a youthful balloonist of Milwaukee, fell from an exploded balloon and was probably mortally injured. A baby lion, which Coby had taken up with him, also fell, but landed on the prostrate form of the aeronaut and escaped unhurt.

In the crowd that saw the accident were many prominent Democratic politicians, it being Democratic day at the fair. Among them were Louis F. Nixon, former leader of Tammany Hall, and Richard W. Sherman, former mayor of Utica, N. Y., and a brother of the Republican candidate for vice president.

Coby had been engaged to make flights during the week of the fair. He made his first—and probably last—ascension late yesterday. When the big gasbag had been inflated, Coby gave the signal to let go and instantly the balloon soared aloft. It was the intention of Coby to let the lion and its parachute go when the balloon was up 250 feet and to make a parachute descent himself when he was up 500 feet.

When the balloon was about seventy-five feet in the air, a flash of flame was seen, and the next instant the big gasbag disappeared and a cloud of black smoke took its place. Parts of the blazing parachutes and trapezes fell among the crowd. The bodies of Coby and the baby lion were seen to be falling close together. Several women fainted and men turned their heads away, dreading to see the bodies land.

Coby was rendered unconscious and did not move after he struck the ground. It was first believed he had been killed. The baby lion, freed from the ropes that had held it to the parachute, looked around in bewilderment for a second and then began to sniff the pallid face of its master. Coby was taken to a hospital, where it was found that his spine had been injured and that he had been hurt internally.

Jordan Engages Noted Lawyer

Boston, Sept. 10.—William F. S. Hart of New York city, the criminal lawyer who defended Police Captain Chapman in the famous Seeley dinner case, has been engaged to take charge of the case of Chester S. Jordan, now awaiting trial on the charge of murdering his wife, Honorah Jordan, whose chopped-up body was found in a trunk. Hart went to Cambridge jail yesterday and had a long interview with Jordan. Jesse L. Livermore, it is understood, engaged the attorney.

Boasts of Leading Lynch Mob

Memphis, Sept. 10.—A special from Oxford, Miss., quotes former United States Senator Sullivan as follows, with reference to a lynching Tuesday night: "I led the mob which lynched Nelse Patton, and I'm proud of it. I directed every movement of the mob and I did everything I could to see that he was lynched. Cut a white woman's throat! And a negro! Of course I wanted him lynched. I saw his body dangling from a tree and I'm glad of it."

Army Officers Complete Stunt

Burlington, Vt., Sept. 10.—The third test ride of three days' duration in the department of the east was finished at Fort Ethan Allen. Fourteen officers above the rank of captain participated and all finished in good condition. The first day's ride, 30 miles in length, was completed in 7 hours, 11 minutes. A distance of 31 miles was covered the second day in 5 hours, 56 minutes. The third 30 miles took 7 hours, 26 minutes.

Final Action on Congo Treaty

Brussels, Sept. 10.—The Belgian senate yesterday adopted the Congo annexation treaty and the colonial charter. It endorsed also the views of the chamber of deputies that Belgium should be responsible for the Congo debt only in case a special law made this obligatory. The treaty was passed by the chamber of deputies Aug. 20. Its adoption by the senate makes it final.

Nova Scotia Mine on Fire

Sydney, N. S., Sept. 10.—Fire broke out in a large colliery at Sydney mines. The fire was caused by a blown-out shot and it started in the lowest seam in the pit. Water is being pumped into the mine at the rate of 2000 gallons a minute and it is expected that the pit will be flooded in forty-eight hours. There were no men in that section of the mine when the fire started.

Wilhelmina Confined to Bed

The Hague, Sept. 10.—Queen Wilhelmina, who announced a week ago that she expected an heir to the throne of Holland, received Professor Kouwer, an eminent gynecologist, for a consultation yesterday. According to The Vaderland the queen's condition has caused her great weakness and she has been confined to her bed for the last two days.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

Mrs. M. McKullox of Boston is visiting relatives at Norfolk Downs.

Miss Amelia A. Linnell of Davis street has returned to Lebanon, N. H., to resume her teaching there.

Mayor Shea has oredered the flag on City Hall to placed at half mast Saturday, the day of the funeral of George W. Prescott.

Mrs. Herbert A. Snow and daughters, Majorie and Lucie of Portland, Maine, are the guests this week of Mrs. E. A. Snow of West Elm avenue.

Miss Clara E. Warshaw, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Warshaw of Beacon street, who underwent an operation at the Quincy Hospital on Labor day, is convalescent.

Up to the present time no one has taken out nomination papers as a Democratic candidate for Representative from the Fifth district and only one from the Sixth district, Representative Rednor P. Coombs.

Leon H. Bean of Billings street has the sympathy of his many friends owing to the death of his mother, Mrs. Abbie F. Bean of Springfield. Mr. Bean had the misfortune to lose a son on July 4th, in a shocking accident.

One of the largest and oldest trees in Atlantic, which grew on the McCarty estate on Atlantic street, is being cut down. Owing to its gigantic size it is impossible to cut it all down at once, but the several limbs already sacrificed are as large as ordinary trees.

The law requires that persons wishing to register as voters must present their tax bills or notices from the Assessors. All who neglect this precaution will have to wait until others who comply with the law have been attended to. 2t

Senator Jenney Still in the Field

Senator Jenney of Hyde Park has issued the following letter under date of Sept. 8, 1908:

"During my absence from the State, a report has been industriously circulated that I have withdrawn as a candidate for re-election to the Senate from the First Norfolk District. Such reports are absolutely unfounded, and can only have had their origin in the desire to have such withdrawal take place, in order to assist the candidacy of some one else.

"My prospects for the presidency of the Senate have never been brighter than now, and so long as, in the judgment of unbiased persons competent to judge, they continue bright, I shall not withdraw. You may rest assured that my withdrawal will come directly from me, and will not be first made known by my opponent.

"A careful canvass of the entire district assures me of the nomination. Norfolk county has not had a president of the Senate since 1850, and it never will receive special recognition unless it occasionally gives its senators a third term. Mr. Hultman has had three terms in the House. His constituents evidently believed that he was valuable to the district by reason of his experience, and gave him a third term.

"Cannot Norfolk county receive benefit and honor conv from experience and faithful service as well as other counties? Is Mr. Hultman so old he cannot wait until another year? Can he render better service than I?"

Missed at the Granite City Club

Many were the expressions of sorrow among the members of the Granite City club Wednesday evening, as one ofter another spoke of the untimely death of George W. Prescott, whom they feelingly alluded to as "Uncle George."

"No member will be missed more than he, and it will seem odd not to see him walk in and take his accustomed seat." This and similar expressions were heard from all.

Here it was, while away from the many perplexing cares of business life, that his club friends learned to know him best. He was a frequent attendant at the club rooms in the evening, and always had a pleasant smile and word for all. As one member expressed it, he was a gentleman of the old school.

He was among the first to respond to anything that would tend to lighten the cares of life and bring forth pleasure and his merry, happy laugh was as spontaneous as that of a youth.

With the exception of Mr. James T. Benniman he was the eldest member, in years of the club, yet so constantly light hearted was he that he was classed as one of the young est.

That he enjoyed club life no one who knew him can deny. The writer can not better close this brief tribute than with Mr. Prescott's own words expressed to the writer not many weeks ago; "Some of the happiest moments of my life have been spent here having some fun with the boys."

A Challenge.

The Quincy base ball team champions of this city last season here with challenge the Makaria base ball team to a series of games for the title, "Champions of Quincy." The Quincy team is practically the same team that represented the Bowdoins last season, and who defeated Makaria so handily.

Newsy Notes at Houghs Neck

Over twenty-five of the best bowlers of Houghs Neck will participate in the season roll off tonight at Brown's Alleys. Every bowler that has bowled 260 or over at any time during the past season is qualified for the roll off. Mr. Brown has offered a beautiful silver loving cup to the winner. Some of those who are to bowl are: Scott, Greenaway, Carpenter, Galvin, LaBrecque, Burke, Flynn, Lewis, Hammond, Bert Brown, Ed Taber, Bowtin, Carey, McLellan, Schaeffer, Hermanson, Sandberg Goldbranson, Gregg and Kutz.

The contest will be started early so as to allow every bowler plenty of time. The odds favor Greenaway so far.

The cars from the Neck look like baggage cars. Every passenger seems to have some kind of a package and they range from an oil stove to fair size trunks.

Ben Comeau is building a six room bungalow for himself on Sea street.

In Oposition to Commissioner Merrill

Ex-Senator Eugene H. Sprague of Wollaston, announces that he is to be a Republican candidate for County Commissioner, thus becoming an opponent of the present Commissioner, John F. Merrill, who is also seeking the nomination and election.

Mr. Sprague began his public career as a councilman, serving the city as councilman at large for thee years, although he had for several years previous to that tinre taken an active interest in political affairs as a member of the Republican ward and city committee. He also served as a Representative to the General court in 1898 and 1899, and as Senator from the First Norfolk district in 1901 and 1902.

Stand High on Street Railway.

A fellow employe rises to take exception to an article in a recent issue of the Daily Ledger in relation to the ability of George Dunham, the conductor on the Squantum-Neponset line of the street railway.

Mr. Dunham is today one of the oldest employes of the street railway as his badge number, which is No. 1, denotes. Mr. Dunham began work on the street railway twelve years ago, and has seen the road grow from the old horse car days to a part of a system of street railways that covers a great part of the state. During these long years of service he has run on every line, always doing his duty faithfully and satisfactorily. He has in the course of his daily work avoided many accidents and helped all, as many of the people who have ridden with him can testify.

Sometime ago when a change of routes was made, he being the oldest conductor, had his first choice of runs, and he selected the Squantum-Neponset run, thereby displacing another employe who had also done excellent service. With Mr. Dunham, as motorman, is Frank Perry, who is the second oldest employe of the road, and also a faithful servant of the public.

Breaks at Atlantic.

There have been many breaks in the vicinity of Billings road and Squantum streets this last week. The house of Councilman Sawyer of Faxon road who is summering at Squantum, was entered through the cellar a few days ago. A boy tricycle which was handy showed evidences of having been ridden about until both wheels gave out. Little else was disturbed as everything of value has been stored. Appearances would warrant a supposition that the thieves are youthful and new at their trade. It is hoped they will remain in this embryo stage without developing for the better in their line of action.

Surprise Party.

A pleasant surprise party was tendered Miss Sarah Corcoran at the home of her sister, Mrs. Pitts of Water street, Wednesday evening. Miss Corcoran, who is visiting her sister, was very much surprised when Master George presented her a gold locket. She responded fittinly and wished all present an enjoyable evening. Games were played and piano solos were enjoyed. Master John Reynolds sung some beautiful songs. Then all adjourned to the dining room where they did justice to a hearty lunch. The party broke up at a seasonable hour.

The Chester on Shake-Down Trip

Beating the time of the regular mail boats from the Azores to Boston, and doing it so easily that her crew declare she rode the water like a swan, the speedy scout cruiser Chester arrived at the Charlestown Navy Yard on Wednesday, says a Boston paper, after five days' run up from Ponta Delgada, and docked chipperly between her fleet sisters, the Birmingham and the Salem, built at Quincy.

Though her officers termed it "just a bit of a shaking down trip," and disclaimed any attempt to make a mark, it is the general impression at the yard that the Chester has proved her title of one of the navy greyhounds. "When we do go after a record," said the captain, "we will make everybody sit up and take notice. The Chester is a magnificent ship."

Little rough weather was encountered on the trip. In one gale that did strike her, the cruiser showed herself an excellent sea boat. She answered her helm with marvelous ease and rapidity. Under department orders, experiments were made on the way up for the purpose of getting data in regard to coal consumption at various speeds.

Wage Earners' Club.

The Wage Earners' Club of Quincy held their first fall meeting Wednesday night in Wilson's hall. The meeting was very well attended and according to the talk the club will be very active in politics this year both municipal and state.

The first business of the meeting was the election of officers. After considerable discussion it was voted that only temporary officers be elected and at the next meeting either elect new ones or make the temporary officers permanent.

The following officers were elected: Frank Hibbard president, Alfred La Brecque vice president, John J. Connors treasurer and James E. Corprew secretary.

A committee was appointed to interview the different candidates for the General court, and for the senate, and find out what stand they would take for organized labor with a possible view of endorsing the candidates found faovrable by the committee.

At present there are nearly two hundred enrolled members and the membership promises to increase rapidly.

A meeting will be held next Wednesday night to finish up the work of organizing, election of officers and take immediate action on the report of the investigating committee.

BATHING SEASON

Has Been Very Successful And Enjoyable At Public Bath

Under the efficient management of John Starr, the head keeper, and his able assistants, Henry McDonnell and Lucy Feely, the public bath-house on Town river has rounded out a very successful season.

It is estimated that between four and five thousand people have used the bathhouse since it opened its doors for the season of 1908, on June 10. The children especially enjoyed the privileges that the bath house offers, a majority of the boys and girls of Quincy Point being regular attendants, never missing a day all summer.

Not only were the children there in large numbers, but also the older people, and in many cases mothers and whole families often made their way to the bath house to enjoy the cool breezes and refreshing water of old ocean. There is plenty of shade and numerous places near the bath house where a family can enjoy a day's outing without being troubled by others, who may be there. This together with the fact that there are no breakers and no current or undertow makes the bath house one of the safest places of places to take children to spend the day.

One of the features of the season has been the marked improvement of the fair sex in swimming. Many of these the past summer, used to swim daily to Baker's basin and back, and it made no difference how the water was, warm or cold, they went every day. A few even ventured to swim across the river and back, something which many of the men swimmers have never done.

One girl accompanied by three men, took the swim to the street railway power house at Quincy Point, over a mile. The currents are strong and changeable in that part of the river, and this together with the distance makes the swim quite a feat, even for a man. Several of the girls, also became quite proficient in the art of diving, taking back and front dives with equal grace and ease.

But the men not to be outdone by the women, also improved noticeably in all branches of aquatic sport. Nearly all of Annette Kellerman's tricks could be seen every day, her famous splash-dive being very popular with the "Brownies." High diving, back and front dive and somersaults, and underwater swimming came in for their share of attention.

Although there is no regularly organied life-saving crew at the bath house, there were always several strong swimmers in the water or on the beach, ready to assist any one in case of accident.

However there was no need of any life-savers anyway, for there was not the least semblance of an accident the whole summer, due in a great part to the everwatchful Mr. Starr, who continually cautioned all, young and old, to be careful and not to venture too far away from the shore and rafts, unaccompanied.

Everything considered, the season has been a very enjoyable one, the water, as well as the weather being warm and agreeable for swimming. Perhaps there is one thing that might be improved, a thing that has caused much talk for the past two years, and that is regards to lights. All the Boston bath houses have electric lights on the beach which are used only on nights when there are high tides. When there is no moon, it is not much pleasure to swim at night, and, too, it is extremely dangerous, as it is almost impossible to see a person swimming in the dark.

Again many of the people can only swim at night, as they work all day, and it is only fair to make it enjoyable for them if it is possible. Mr. Starr says it is possible that next year it will be moonlight every night at the bath house.

The bath house will close about the middle of the month.

SURPRISE PARTY.

Miss Hannah Satterlund enjoyed a very pleasant surprise on Wednesday night, when about thirty of her friends called at her home on Glendale road. Before she had fully recovered, Miss Esther Arvidson, on behalf of those present, presented a beautiful silver toilet set. The party wre entertained with piano solos by Mrs. Palmgren and also Miss Satterlund At 10 o'clock the guests adjourned to the dining room where a collation was served. The party broke up at a seasonable hour after having spent an enjoyable evening.

RIVAL DELEGATIONS

The Republicans Have Many Contests for Nominations

At the headquarters of the Republican City Committee on Thursday evening nomination papers were opened and filed for delegates to the State, councillor, senatorial and county conventions.

For representative there are three candidates in each district. In the Fifth Norfolk district, which includes Wards One, Two, and Three papers were filed for Walter E. Piper, William T. Spargo and William R. Thomas. In the Sixth Norfolk district, including Wards Four, Five and Six, for Frank E. Badger, Louis F. Langelier and Edward J. Sandberg.

For Congressman from the Tenth Congressional district papers where the nomination will be direct by ballot the candidates are Charles H. Robinson and J. Mitchell Galvin

For delegates to the State Convention, there are rival delegations in each ward, some favorable to Representative Robert Luce of Somerville for Lieutenant Governor, some for Louis A. Frothingham of Boston, while others were not pledged to any one in particular, but are probably for John N. Cole of Andover.

Mr. Luce has lists in each ward, while in only one ward is there a list which is favorable to Frothingham.

For delegates to the Councillor convention as well as the State, there is only a single ward in which there is not more than one contestant. Franklin L. Codman has lists favorable to him in every ward with the single exception of Ward Four, where there was no preference shown. Ward One seemed to be the only one favorable to Arthur P. Russell. Some are undoubtedly for Albion F. Bemis the present Councillor.

There apepars to be no local contest for the Senatorial delegates.

In Ward Five only is there a contest for County delegates.

Louis F. Langelier secretary of the City committee opened the papers, which make the following nominations:

A Public Service.

Representative Luce is rendering a public service in standing up against the political committee practice of calling upon a candidate for office to make a contribution to the committee's funds with the filling of his nomination papers. If all candidates for nomination had his courage in this matter, all would stand on equal footing, and a man would not have to be a millionaire to enable him to run for office.—Globe.

PROTEST OFFERED

Opposition to Democratic Papers Filed in Favor of Con. O'Connell

At an enthusiastic meeting of the Democratic City committee at the Democratic headquarters, Thursday evening nomination papers were opened and filed by Secretary William H. Flynn.

Papers were filed for Joseph F. O'Connell and Frank J. Linehan for representative from the Tenth congressional district.

The papers of Frank J. Linehan were protested against by Cornelius D. Austin, local manager for Joseph F. O'Connell, on the grounds that they did not have the required number of signatures, and also that all the signers were not Democrats. Mr. Austin said that there were only 49 names appended, where there should be 70, and that some of these 49 were not Democrats, whereas the whole 70 must be, in order to have the papers legally filed Secretary Flynn said he would refer the matter to City Clerk Keith who has the official voting lists, and stand by his ruling. He was then allowed to file the papers under protest.

There were no papers filed for representative from Fifth Norfolk district, but Representative Rednor P. Coombs has papers for Representative from the Sixth district with no contest.

Secretary Flynn then proceeded to open papers for delegates from the various wards for the State, Councillor, County, District Attorney and Senatorial conventions, the complete list being as follows:

STATE CONVENTION.

WARD ONE—William J. Walsh.
WARD TWO—Lawrence W. Lyons
WARD THREE—Cornelius D. Austin.

INVESTIGATE and ECONOMIZE.
NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.
On and after September 16, we have decided
TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE
as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods
AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills over due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every day. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and take them with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Now think this proposition over, and we feel confident that you can see it just the way that we do.
SOMETHING THAT IS NEEDED HERE IN QUINCY.
A HIGH GRADE OF GOODS SOLD AT LOW PRICES.
So Remember your 5 per cent discount.

Bryan Hotly Assails Speaker In His Illinois Tour

OPENLY CHARGES FALSEHOOD

Nebraskan Tells How He Acquired His Earthly Possessions From Day He Entered Congress Until the Present Time and Demands That Speaker Be as Frank--Unusual Attack For Presidential Candidate

Evansville, Ind., Sept. 11.—Heavy personal onslaughts on Speaker Cannon of the national house of representatives were made by William J. Bryan in the course of his tour of Illinois. The Democratic candidate attacked Cannon from all sides. He charged the speaker with being the favorite of predatory corporations, with having strangled reform legislation and with having falsified the facts regarding Bryan's wealth.

Mr. Bryan bided his time before giving vent to his utterances, and he had reached Cannon's congressional district when a ten-minute stay was made at Toledo, Ills. A great crowd had assembled to hear him and the Nebraskan immediately launched into his philippic against the speaker. Moving on from Toledo, Bryan repeated his remarks at Newton, Ills.

Not content with his statements at these two places, Bryan later on, at Olney, Ills., where he stayed for three hours, openly accused the speaker of telling a falsehood when the speaker fixed Bryan's wealth at $1,000,000.

Mr. Bryan referred to what he said were the many exaggerated statements in regard to his earthly possessions, but declared that Cannon's statement of Wednesday before the Springfield convention was the first attempt of a man of political standing or responsibility to estimate these possessions.

In great detail Bryan gave figures showing how his money has been acquired from the day he entered congress until the present time. He denied emphatically that he was worth $1,000,000 and fixed the amount of his "earthly possessions" at $150,000 as the extreme limit. He had come by it honestly, he said, by saving a portion of his congressional salary and from receipts derived from his lectures and writings. He demanded that Cannon be as frank as himself and tell the public whether he had made any money from lecturing and writing, and to what extent his money making had been hampered by strict attention to public duties.

Not since the campaign began has Bryan spoken with such vehemence, and it is said to be the first time that a presidential candidate ever went out of his way to attack a candidate for congress.

The entire day was spent in Illinois and Indiana. Altogether Bryan made seven speeches. The heat was almost unbearable, but the Democratic candidate seemed not to be affected by it. Wherever he went he was met by large and enthusiastic crowds. During a short visit to the fair grounds at Olney, Ills., he was hailed with shouts of joy.

In Evansville Bryan spoke on "Shall the People Rule?" the tariff, trust regulation and election of senators by direct vote of the people. Incidentally he took a parting shot at Cannon. He left last night for Terre Haute, whence he will travel to Wheeling, where he is due this afternoon.

Cannon Opens His Campaign

Danville, Ills., Sept. 11.—In the presence of 5000 people, Speaker Cannon last night opened the campaign for re-election to congress in this, his home town. For almost two hours he discussed the labor question, especially paying his respects to Samuel Gompers, who, on Labor day, urged union workingmen to vote against the speaker. Cannon plainly said he would never vote in congress for the boycott and some other things demanded by Gompers, including an anti-injunction law that would make "fish of one and fowl of another." The audience cheered for several minutes when the speaker appeared on the stage.

Foraker to Stump For Taft

Cincinnati, Sept. 11.—The call of Senator Foraker at the offices of Mr. Taft in the Sinton hotel, the half-hour conference which followed and the statements of cordiality by each party to the conference constituted the news feature of yesterday at the Taft headquarters. The senator is to take an active part in the campaign. Taft expressed the desire that reports of the interview should contain no reference to a "peace pact" because, he remarked, there had never been any interruption of peace personally between himself and Foraker.

Hisgen Gets After Bryan

Richmond, Sept. 10.—Assailing both of the great political parties of the country, three orators for the Independence party addressed a Richmond audience last night. The speakers were Thomas L. Hisgen, candidate for president; John T. Graves, candidate for vice president, and Clarence J. Shearn of New York. "I have hitherto voted the Democratic ticket," said Hisgen. "I voted for Bryan twice, but I'm not going to vote for him a third time. I'm not going to bring up my children to vote for him, as they may have an opportunity to do. Bryan used to spurn such men as Roger Sullivan, Tom Taggart and Charlie Murphy, and he held up to scorn such money magnates as Ryan, Belmont and Whitney. But he is a changed Bryan now, and instead of the men he denounced coming over to him, he has gone over to them."

Chanler Wants Nomination

New York, Sept. 11.—Lieutenant Governor Chanler, in an interview with The Associated Press, declared himself as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor. He said that he had been surprised at the widely circulated reports that he would not consent to run against Governor Hughes in the event of the latter being the Republican nominee. Enthusiastic reports as to the sentiment throughout the state in his favor were brought to Chanler.

Won't Pay $200 Assessment

Indianapolis, Sept. 11.—Judge Roby of the appellate court has refused to be assessed by the Republican state committee for campaign purposes. His letter of refusal, sent to Vice Chairman Dinwiddie of the committee, has been made public. Dinwiddie had written to Roby, informing him of an assessment of $200 and requesting prompt remittance.

To Put Up Fight In Indiana

Chicago, Sept. 11.—Indiana is to be made the pivotal state in the Democratic campaign in the middle west, and from now on until election all the forces that the national committee can summon will be brought into play to carry the Hoosier state for the party.

Ankeny Goes Down to Defeat

Seattle, Sept. 11.—Although returns from the state primaries are still uncompleted, the figures available leave no doubt of the nomination of Representative Wesley L. Jones for United States senator over Levi Ankeny, the encumbent.

MUST NOT LEAVE NEW YORK STATE

Attitude of Lunacy Commission In Case of Thaw

Albany, Sept. 11.—Any attempt to take Harry K. Thaw from the Dutchess county jail at Poughkeepsie to Pittsburg or any point outside the state will be opposed by the state commission in lunacy.

President Ferris of the commission returned yesterday from a long European trip and announced the position the commission would take regarding the order of Referee Blair of Pittsburg that Thaw shall be taken to Pennsylvania to be examined in the bankruptcy proceedings instituted in his behalf.

Dr. Ferris said he knew of no jurisdiction which would authorize the transfer of "this insane patient," adding that the commission "would certainly not countenance such a procedure. Thaw is now," he continued, "in the custody of the sheriff of the county of Dutchess, pending the arguments to be made when he is taken into court as a result of the second writ of habeas corpus.

"Justice Dowling committed Thaw, as an insane man, with criminal tendencies, to Matteawan state hospital. Thaw cannot be extradited to Pennsylvania as a criminal unless he is charged with some new crime committed in that state. He was not tried in, nor is he held by, a United States court. I do not believe the Pittsburg referee will be gratified."

Liabilities of $5,500,000

Chicago, Sept. 11.—The fish and oyster firm of A. Booth & Co. was placed in the hands of a receiver by Judge Bethea in the federal district court here. The petition asserts that the liabilities of the company are $5,500,000 and places the assets at $8,000,000. The troubles of the company are alleged to be due in a large measure to an inadequacy of capital, coupled with the financial depression of last fall. The bill asserts that the company is unable to meet its obligations.

Exceeded Contract Requirements

Washington, Sept. 11.—The battleship New Hampshire, on her final trial trip, according to an official report to the navy department, developed 18.4 knots speed, exceeding the contract requirements by .4 of a knot, and developed 17,772 horse power, exceeding by 1000 the horse power developed by the contractors on the four-hours' preliminary trial.

Many Victims of Explosion

Pittsburg, Sept. 11.—Two deaths almost immediately followed an explosion of gas at the home of Rev. George Misquel, pastor of the St. George's Syrian church. Two other persons were seriously burned, two women were seriously hurt by falling walls and four other persons injured either by burns or falling debris.

School Vacation Is Prolonged

Lebanon, N. H., Sept. 11.—Schools in this town were closed before the season's work was fairly begun by the discovery of an epidemic of scarlet fever. Already nine houses have been quarantined. As near as can be learned the start of the epidemic was traced to a boy who is employed by a local milk dealer.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Saturday, Sept. 12.
Sun rises—5:21; sets—6.
Moon rises—7:38 p. m.
High water—12:15 a. m.; 12:30 p. m.

Generally fair weather is indicated for New England.

LOCAL AND LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE

It may cost a little more—but so does the Twentieth Century Limited

A CHAIN and ITS LINKS

In telephoning there are three links in the chain that constitutes "good service." 1. The person calling. 2. The operator. 3. The person called.

No matter how much any one or any two of these links do to develop good service, the result is determined by the measure of co-operation of the third. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link.

If the person calling fails to consult the catalogue and gives a wrong number, the operator inevitably repeats the error. If the person called fails to answer promptly and the caller leaves the telephone, naturally "there is no one on the line.

Being human, the operator—the third link—is liable to err occasionally, but careful analysis demonstrates that she is not fairly chargeable with many of the difficulties frequently ascribed to her.

If Link No. 1 Gives the Right Number and Calls Distinctly, and Link No. 3 Answers Promptly, the Telephone Company will be responsible for its part of the chain. If no higher motive actuated it, the motive of economy, or self-interest, would suffice.

WRIGHT BREAKS HIS OWN RECORD

Another Wonderful Performance on Fort Meyer Drill Grounds

FLIGHT OF OVER 65 MINUTES

Reached an Altitude of 200 Feet and Had Machine Under Perfect Control In a Ten-Mile Wind--Æroplane May Net Inventor $30,000 Upon Its Acceptance by the Government After the Official Trials

Washington, Sept. 11.—Orville Wright last evening broke the world's record for time and distance for a heavier-than-air flying machine which he established Wednesday. In a flight requiring great skill on account of a ten-mile wind, he circled around the drillgrounds at Fort Myer fifty-eight times in sixty-five minutes and fifty-two seconds, exceeding the time of Wednesday's record flight by three minutes and thirty-seven seconds. The flight was witnessed by nearly a thousand people.

Throughout the day the weather was threatening and Wright did not arrive at the field until after 4 o'clock. The machine was wheeled across the field on the detachable wheels and placed on the starting track. At 5 o'clock Wright announced that he was ready.

The wind was blowing only about three miles an hour when Wright prepared to make his flight. At 5:08 he signalled C. E. Taylor, his mechanic, to release the machine. The aeroplane rose from the ground almost immediately.

It continued to climb higher with each successive round of the field until it reached an altitude of seventy-five feet. For the first thirty rounds the machine flew as smoothly as on its previous flights, but from that time on it was seen to pitch at the turns as the breeze from the west struck it. As the machine moved from the northern end of the field to the southern end, where the "auto garage" for storing the aeroplane is situated, Wright kept it several points in the wind.

Whenever the machine pitched it could be plainly seen from below that it responded promptly to every move of the levers by the operator. One of Wright's assistants marked the time in large figures at intervals on the roof of a shed, so that Wright might see how long he had been in the air.

A gust of wind, unusually strong, struck the machine during the forty-second round, and it plunged sharply, causing the crowd alarm. Wright then brought his machine lower, but on the fifty-third round he had reached an altitude of 200 feet. When he completed his fifty-fourth round he had beaten his record established Wednesday. Wright came down at the northern end of the field at the end of the fifty-eighth round, landing easily.

Signal corps officers at the war department express the belief that Orville Wright will make a speed of at least forty-two miles an hour with his machine. If he does make forty-two miles an hour he will be entitled to a bonus of 20 percent over the contract price, which would net him for his machine $30,000, the contract price being $25,000. The speed is to be taken on a measured course of more than five miles against and with the wind. The start is to be a flying one, the machine to pass the starting point at full speed at both ends of the course.

The official trials will be held as soon as Wright announces his readiness. He will probably make preliminary flights for a week or more before he tests the aeroplane before the army board.

Maine Has Forest Fires

Kineo, Me., Sept. 11.—A number of small forest fires have broken out in the region west of Moosehead lake. The largest conflagration is reported in the vicinity of Attean pond, and a crew of 100 men have been rushed there to fight the blaze. The three weeks' drought has left the woods very dry, and it is feared that unless there is a heavy rain within the next few days the numerous scattered fires may unite and cause widespread damage.

Wyman Restored to Duty

New York, Sept. 11.—Lieutenant Wyman, who was court martialed for falsely certifying that he was a single man when he had a wife in Huntsville, Tenn., has been acquitted, released from arrest and restored to duty with the Eleventh cavalry. Wyman testified that he believed his wife had secured a divorce from him when, as a matter of fact, she had not.

Bishop Spalding to Resign

Peoria, Ills., Sept. 11.—Right Rev. John L. Spalding, bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Peoria, issued from his residence a note stating that he has been ill for three years and a half and has resolved to tender his resignation as bishop of Peoria to Pope Pius X. The bishop is now in his 69th year and suffers from paralysis.

Strike of Paper Makers

Madison, Me., Sept. 11.—The papermakers employed at the mill of the Great Northern company in this town went on strike last night. The reason given is that members of a rival labor union have taken positions of strikers in the Great Northern mills at Fort Edwards, N. Y.

UNEASINESS IS REVIVED

Germany Opposed to Franco-German Note on Morocco

PEACE IS AGAIN THREATENED

Determination of France to Pursue Policy Already Outlined May Lead to Acute International Complication --German Change of Front In Regard to Cost of Operations In Morocco--French Press Is Excited

Paris, Sept. 11.—It is officially announced that the Franco-Spanish note relating to the Moroccan situation has been definitely drafted and sent to Madrid for verification, after which it will be immediately communicated to the powers.

The tone of the German press in commenting upon the Moroccan situation, and especially the utterances of the organ of the imperial chancellor, Prince Von Buelow, in forecasting Germany's rejection of the Franco-Spanish note regarding Morocco, has revived uneasiness here, and the report that Dr. Vassel, the German consul at Tangier who is now at Fez, intends to exact the reinstatement of Remiqui, the governor of El Kazar, who was dismissed on the recommendation of El Menebhi, former Moroccan minister of war, for brigandage, has emphasized the bad impression.

A renewal of the tension between France and Germany and possibly an acute international complication is feared. French official circles, however, retain their calm and it is announced that France, conscious that she is right, intends to pursue her policy as already outlined.

Regarding the cost of the Franco-Spanish operations in Morocco, which the German press insists shall not be guaranteed by Mulai Hafid, it is pointed out that France and Spain acted as the mandatories of the powers under the Algeciras act. Germany did not object to these operations, and attention is directed to the fact that she was the first to insist upon immediate compensation for the German merchants who suffered at Casablanca.

The French press is displaying day by day more irritation, which has been increased by the expulsion Wednesday of Pierre Adigard, a member of the French chamber of deputies, from the German maneuver grounds in Alsace-Lorraine. Furthermore, the report that Empefor William intends to cross the French frontier from Alsace-Lorraine to view the landscape from the top of a mountain in France, furnishes fresh occasion for the more sensational journals to cry "provocation."

La Patrie says: "The presence of Emperor William on French soil at the same moment that a French deputy is driven from the annexed territory looks like defiance and bravado."

Hafid Gets Another Stronghold

Tangier, Sept. 11.—It is reported here that Mogador, the last stronghold of Abd-el-Azaz, has proclaimed Mulai Hafid sultan and that Hafid also has been accepted by the Anfloos tribesmen. Advices from Morocco City state that Mtougi, one of the chiefs of the Abd-el-Azaz forces, defeated the Hafid supporters on Sept. 1.

AGED PLAYWRIGHT GREATLY HONORED

General Observance In Russia of Count Tolstoi's Birthday

St. Petersburg, Sept. 11.—The little flag station of Zaseika, which is the telegraph station for Yasnaya Poliana, was utterly swamped yesterday by the inrush of congratulatory messages to Count Tolstoi, sent from all parts of the world, on the occasion of his 80th birthday. Hundreds were received from Berlin, London and other European centres. There were also many such communications from New York and other American cities, as well as several from Japan and New Zealand.

Over 2000 dispatches of this kind were received. One extra operator has been detailed at Zaseika to handle the increased business, but a dozen could be kept fully occupied.

Several hundred visitors, teachers, students and correspondents, disregarded the wishes of the Tolstoi family and called upon the count at his home.

The newspapers of Russia appeared almost without exception as Tolstoi jubilee numbers, and they published pages devoted to his life, criticisms of his literary work, and anecdotes of his career. Many of the articles naturally are phrased in terms of extravagant adulation, but in general the criticisms are discriminating and just.

Cholera Spreading In St. Petersburg

St. Petersburg, Sept. 11.—The Asiatic cholera is rapidly spreading in St. Petersburg, indicating that the city authorities failed to take proper precautions against an epidemic, the first suspicious cases of which were discovered a fortnight ago. The latest bulletin reports fifty-two cases and eighteen deaths, but it is believed that treble that number exist within the city limits.

INVADES STATE RIGHTS

Commodities Clause of Hepburn Ac Declared Invalid

Philadelphia, Sept. 11.—Declaring it to be drastic, harsh and unreasonable and an invasion of the rights of the states, and therefore repugnant to the Constitution, the United States circuit court for the eastern district of Pennsylvania dismissed the suits of the federal government to enforce the commodities clause of the Hepburn railroad act against the anthracite coal-carrying railroads of this state. Judges Gray and Dallas filed opinions dismissing the suits, and Judge Buffington dissented, but did not file an opinion.

The commodities clause prohibits railroad companies from transporting in interstate commerce any article or commodity manufactured, mined or produced by them or under their authority. The effect of the commodities clause, if constitutional, would be to confine the mining of anthracite coal by the railroads for use in Pennsylvania only, or to compel the railroads to sell all the mining property in which they are interested, either directly or indirectly.

The decision of the court did not come as a great surprise. The case will doubtless be appealed directly to the United States supreme court.

The principal opinion was written by Judge Gray who, as president of the anthracite strike commission, has an intimate knowledge of the mining of hard coal and of the many ramifications in the ownership of the coal mines.

FLEET REACHES WEST AUSTRALIA

Greetings Exchanged Between Premier and Admiral

Albany, West Australia, Sept. 11.—After a 1300-mile voyage from Melbourne, the American battleships dropped anchor at 7 o'clock this morning at the entrance to Princess Royal harbor in King George's sound. Great crowds witnessed the coming of the fleet, the sighting of which from Breaksea island was reported several hours before.

Fine weather was experienced during the trip from Melbourne, from which port the fleet sailed last Saturday morning. The ships encountered smooth seas and fair winds, and the time of the men was largely taken up in routine drills and exercises.

An answer to a wireless message of welcome sent to the fleet by Premier Moore of West Australia, Rear Admiral Sperry dispatched the following from the Connecticut:

"On behalf of the officers and men of the United States fleet, I thank you and the people of Western Australia for your cordial greetings."

Charged With Killing Rustin

Omaha, Sept. 11.—County Attorney English has filed a complaint against Charles E. Davis, charging him with murder in the first degree in connection with the shooting of Dr. Frederick Rustin on the morning of Sept. 2. Dr. J. P. Lord, who was called by Mrs. Rustin to attend her husband immediately after the shooting, declared that on his way to the Rustin home he met a man answering the description of Davis two blocks from where Rustin was shot and coming from the direction of the dying physician's home.

Three Violent Deaths at Boston

Boston, Sept. 11.—Three fatal accidents were recorded as occuring in Boston last night. Mrs. Elizabeth Calman, aged 60 years, fell from a street car, receiving a fractured skull, from the effects of which she died. An unknown girl, aged 6 years, was struck by a cab on Hanover street, receiving fractured ribs and skull, dying at midnight. The body of Thomas Maguinness, aged 48, was found on the railroad tracks in the Charlestown district. The man's head had been nearly severed from the body.

Great Sunspots Photographed

Geneva, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Professor William R. Brooks, at the Smith observatory, made observations and photographs yesterday of two great sunspots plainly visible to the naked eye. These two prominent spots are 10,000 miles in diameter, while one of them precedes a group of spots 80,000 miles in length. These solar outbursts are coincident with the recent fine auroras.

Alberti Goes Into Bankruptcy

Copenhagen, Sept. 11.—M. Alberti, the ex-minister of justice, who is under arrest here charged with extensive frauds, has filed a declaration of bankruptcy. It is believed that his whole estate will not realize more than $300,000. King Frederick is said to be deeply affected, having placed the greatest confidence in Alberti's integrity.

An Algerian Demonstration

Algiers, Sept. 11.—Inhabitants of the Rovigo district, to the number of 3000, demonstrated in front of the public buildings at Rovigo in the belief that they were to be drafted for a war with Morocco. The disturbances continue, despite the efforts of the authorities to reassure the natives.

Three Thousand Casualties

Colomb-Brehar, Sept. 11.—Further details received here of the recent engagement between a French column under Colonel Allix and the Beraber tribesmen at Boudenib show that the Beraber casualties numbered 3000.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

The Saturday eight-page Daily Ledger will go to press three or four hours earlier than usual, that the office of publication may be closed all the afternoon in respect to the late publisher, George W. Prescott.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

Makaria vs. Atlantic Saturday at 3.30 at Merrymount Park.

P. L. Litchfield and William Higgs have been in New York city this week.

The Boston market, near the Durgin-Merrill block, advertise a big beef sale and quote low prices.

Miss Marjorie Taber of Bell street, Houghs Neck is entertaining her cousin, Miss Irene Allen of Newport, R. I.

Owing to the delay in completing the repairs in the Wollaston Congregational church, the congregation will worship on Sunday with their brethern of the Baptist church.

Francis Taylor of Union street, who has been confined to his home the past week with injuries received by being caught in a machine at the Boston Gear works, is able to be out again.

Attention is called to a hearing of interest to Quincy to be held by the Massachusetts Highway Commission at Dedham Oct. 9, for the open discussion of questions relating to public roads.

In the novel ice-cutting contest at the outing of the Massachusetts Ice Dealers' Association at Bass Point, two Quincy men won prizes, H. P. Johnson taking first prize and Charles J. Fredericks fourth prize.

F. H. Roscoe, the temperament and character reader of Rhode Island, will give a lecture in the parlors of the Greenleaf, Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. His subject will be 'Make the world better."

The funeral of William McGann was held Thursday from St. Marys church. Mass was celebrated by Rev. William J. Duffy. The Gregorian mass was sung by the choir under the direction of Miss Rina Bizzozero. At the offertory Mrs. James L. Fennessey sang "De Profundis." The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery. The bearers were Thomas Sheehan, James Elcock, Philip Garrity, John McTierman, Michael Monahan and Thomas McLaughlin.

McCann—Pettengill.

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Hardy Black, 71 North Central avenue, Wollaston the home of the bride's sister, there occurred on Monday evening, Sept. 7, a pretty home wedding, when Mr. Arthur McCann of Providence, R. I., and Miss Josephine Pettengill of Cambridge, Mass., were united in marriage.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edmund D Webber of the Wollaston Baptist church. Numerous friends gathered to offer congratulations to the newly married couple, and showed their esteem by many valuable and handsome presents.

Mr. and Mrs. McCann, after a short honeymoon, will reside in Providence, where the groom in engaged in business.

Braintrees Vs. Royals.

A large number from this city plan to take in the base ball game at South Braintree tomorrow when the Braintree and Royal White Sox teams play the first of a series of five games for the championship of this section. The Braintrees have won from the Makarias and Bigelows of this city twice, and the White Sox have victories over Hyde Park and North Dorchester. A few locals have been playing all season with Braintree and will be in the Braintree line up. They are Artis in left, Saunders on third and Johnnie Rogers on the initial cushion. All these players predict a Braintree victory, for Williard, the star 16 year old south paw will pitch. Either Perry or Levangie will oppose him. It is rumored that the Royals will be there strong with a band.

Beautiful Tribute By Brockton Editor

The following open letter appeared in the Brockton Enterprise of Thursday.

To the Editor of the Enterprise:

The duties of an editor are manifold, difficult and seriously responsible, in short he stands to the public wholly unlike in management that of any other trade, business or profession. To be able to steer communications away from the waste basket and to avoid suits for libel calls for the wisdom of a Solomon and the skill of a successful surgeon.

A long-time friend of more than twenty years, a companion of Mr. Prescott all over the United States and the Canadas, I am indebted to him and his family for many of the most delightful hours of my life. Living in Quincy, that home of ancient Braintree that carries a personality second to none on this continent, where liberty grew and has been preserved, it was in this place that he for more than half a century largely shaped the mental food that most people crave in newspapers. It goes without saying that he published an absolutely clean newspaper. Few men have lived that had at all times such an unyielding disposition to enforce this rule in newspaper work of absolute cleanliness, near or remote.

Having for many years spent weeks at a time with him in travel abroad, in hotels, cars, public meetings and conventions, compels me to acknowledge my indebtedness to him for a quiet example of right living and acting. Inheriting from his ancestors of many names, his own stands out among them as prominent in patriotism, piety, prudence and zeal, and an example to be copied for all coming generations. The good work of a clean press is not as well compensated for as it deserves, for the public know little of the responsibilities of an editor and publisher. To alike please rival parties is impossible. The editor is a judge on the bench for the public weal and his every act is jealously watched. Is there any other position in the world so difficult?

Brother Prescott was a well built man, both in body and mind. He set a good example in society as a citizen, a business man, and in his family, with a devotion that knew no end and a loving care that ceased only with his death. May the Great Father of us all be near unto them in these sad hours of autumn, and remember the lesson Brother Prescott has set us to copy.

LORING W. PUFFER.

Brockton, Sept. 10, 1908.

Fourth of Series Makaria--Atlantics

The fourth game of the Makaria—Atlantic series will be played Saturday at Merrymount Park. It will be of unusual interest as Makaria has taken two and Atlantic the last one. If Makaria wins, the series will be over. If Atlantic wins there will be another game Sept 17.

The batteries will be: Makaria—Michael and Smith; for Atlantic—Leahy and Fitzgerald.

Joe Langdon of South Braintree will umpire, by far the best Quincy has ever had in the umpiring line. Both teams have a large following, and a big crowd will be out. On Monday afternoon the crowd was fully 1500.

The Makaria Fraternity will open their fall meetings Sunday at noon. R. D. Chase is the speaker for Sunday and there will be special music. A cordial invitation is extended to all young men to join.

Quincy Contract For Large Monument

The contract for one of the largest, if not the largest monuments ever cut in Quincy, as well as a monument of unique design, has just been secured by Milne & Hector, from New York dealers. The monument will, when completed, be located in a fifty-foot-square lot at Great Barrington, Mass.

It will be cut of extra dark Quincy stock and is of sarcophagus design. The bottom base, which will be in three sections, is 21 by 16 by 2 feet. On this rests the second base, which will be cut of one solid piece. The dimensions of this base are 14-6 by 10 by 2 feet. This block in the rough weighs 35 tons. Then there is a third base on which rests a column die 10-2 by 5-8 by 5 feet.

The columns are polished with carved capitals. A cap rests on the whole.

A recess large enough for two catacombs, will be hollowed out of the centre of this die. After the caskets are placed in the catacombs the cap is placed on and sealed up. From the bottom of these catacombs is a two-inch hole running down through the monument to the ground. This is to carry off any water that may work into the catacombs. The whole job is to be polished above the second base.

In addition to the monument the firm is cutting the curbing and abutments for the lot which as stated above is fifty feet square.

The Three M's.

The Brockton Enterprise says: "In his 55 years as an editor George W. Prescott was always a helpful factor in the building up of Quincy—materially, mentally and morally.

The Roll-Off At Houghs Neck

Everyone at Houghs Neck seemed to have been present at the season roll off at Brown's alleys Thursday night. Over thirty of the best bowlers of Quincy, including five star men from Brockton, participated in the contest for the two beautiful silver loving cups; one offered for the highest three string total, and the others for the highest single string.

Greenaway won the cup in the three string contest, beating Brady of Brockton by five pins.

Alfred LaBrecque, who had the lowest score in three string fight tied Lewis of Brockton who had a score of 89 in the single string contest. LaBrecque, Galvin and Boutin were tied in the eighth box with a score of 66, all three needing a thirteen spare to beat Lewis who had finished his string. LaBrecque missed an easy spare in the ninth box getting only 9 pins making a score of 75 with one box to go. On the first ball in the last box he got nine pins with a corner pin standing he got the spare and only got 2 pins on the spare tieing Lewis. Both LaBrecque and Lewis agreed to bowl two extra boxes on which they tied again. On the third extra box, LaBrecque got eight pins Lewis getting six. When both men lined up for the deciding box the excitement was intense. Lewis bowled first, getting six pins. LaBreque needed only four pins and got five on his first ball, winning the cup.

Greenaway, the winner of the three string cup has won nearly every prize offered by H. S. Brown this season. He won a cup for the three highest strings in the Houghs Neck bowling league; also a cup for the highest single string. He is a member of one of the best bowling teams in Boston, and certainly has a fine collection of prizes won in bowling contests.

—William M. Chase, chairman of the Republican City Committee, has determined that there shall be no illegal registration in Quincy and in behalf of the committee offers a reward of $50 for evidence sufficient to convict any person of the wilful violation of the laws governing registration.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The Argonauts Of Forty-Nine

The greater part of Wednesday a banner with only '49 to designate it, floated from the United States hotel.

At the noon hour, leaving their wives and daughters in the reception room, the Society of California Pioneers of New England met for business and elected the following officers:

President, Henry W. Bowen of Roslindale, Mass; vice-presidents, Edward O. Carpenter of Yonkers, N. Y., Capt. John Weston of Somerville, Mass.; treasurer, Isaac S. Pear of Cambridge, Mass.; secretary, Stephen W. Foster of Boston, Mass.

The interest of the annual meetings centres largely in the secretary's report. This year, he stated, that it was twenty years since the organization held its first gathering in the Revere House with 200 members in attendance. Of its present membership, fourteen are sons of pioneers and nine are honorary members. Twenty-one members have crossed the great divide since the last annual meeting. Of the 171 comrades now on the membership roll 92 are over 80 years of age. But the esprit de corps of the society is tested by the attendance at the ten monthly meetings.

These argonauts refuse to be called old and are not yet ready to adopt the motto "Morturi salutamus." The only genuine son present at this 1908 meeting is in his sixtieth year, and to the commandery, the pioneers he was simply "Boy." Quincy today has no active member of the pioneers, the death of Israel Waterhouse numbering the last. He was justly and warmly eulogized and Rufus B. Tobey of Wollaston, a son, brought to the meetings the regrets of Mr. Frank P. Waterhouse, another son, at his unavoidable absence.

Mr. Henry Stillman Pratt of Panama, a guest, contrasted the new and the old California, depicting the marvelous development.

He dwelt especially upon the difference in time occupied in covering the continent. His train, the Los Angeles Limited, brought him to Boston in four days. Gentlemen present consumed seven months in rounding Cape Horn ,others less time in going via. the Isthmus of Panama, and across the Plains. The amount of evility on tap at these meetings forbids even the thought of senility. And so long as Stephen W. Foster as secretary sounds the call and drums up the members to attend this chosen band will revel in banquest where reminiscences are more tempting than the feast of Lacullus.

Concord Bride Quincy Groom

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick William Reed of 166 Commonwealth avenue, Concord Junction, Mass., was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday evening Sept. 2, when their daughter, Charlotte Mary, was married to Mr. William Robbie of Quincy.

The ceremony was performed at 7.30 by the Rev W. W. Campbell of Rockport, amid a large party of relative and friends from New York, Waltham, Somerville, and Quincy.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. W. W. Campbell of Rockport.

The bridesmaid was Miss Ethel Rich of New York, and Mr. James Robbie of Quincy, brother of the groom was best man.

A reception followed the ceremony. The ushers were Mr. Charles Mathaurs of Quincy and Mr. Daniel Wilson of New York City.

Mr. and Mrs Robbie left amid a shower of good wishes for a brief wedding tour, after which they will reside at 34 Ritchie road, Quincy.

The Social Realm

"From an old English parsonage
Down by the sea,
There came in the twilight
A message to me.
Its quaint Saxon legend
Deeply engraven
Hath, as it seems to me,
Teaching from heaven;
And all through the hours
The quiet words ring,
Like a low inspiration,
'Doe the nexte thynge.'"

PRESS TRIBUTES

Kinds Words by New England Papers on Death of George W. Prescott

Newspapers all over the country have recorded at length the death of George W. Prescott, publisher of the Quincy Patriot and Quincy Daily Ledger, and many of the editors who were personal friends have paid tributes which are consoling to his family:

HIS AIM.

The Gloucester Daily Times says:

"We were intimately acquainted with Mr. Prescott, having met with him on the Massachusetts Press excursions and at the meetings in Boston. He was a man of most excellent character and it was always a pleasure to meet with and talk over the details which make up the management of a newspaper. We tender our warmest sympathies to the relatives and friends for the great loss they have sustained in one whose record shows that he was a busy, conscientious man whose aim was to make the world better for his having lived in it."

FOREMOST CITIZEN.

The Hyde Park Gazette says:

"At an early hour Wednesday morning the Dean of Norfolk county journalism, George W. Prescott, editor and proprietor of the Quincy Weekly Patriot and the Quincy Ledger, passed away at his home, after a brief illness from heart failure. For 55 years our valued friend for many years was connected with newspaper work in Quincy, and they were years of honest, loyal and devoted effort, and the city never had a more loyal and public-spirited citizen. His papers were always clean and above reproach, and reflected the best sentiments of an intelligent and historic community. His brother editors in the county have lost a valued friend, and he leaves only a pleasant memory with all who knew him."

ALL MOURN.

The Revere Journal says:

"Newspaper men all over the state are this week mourning over the death of one of the veteran editors of Massachusetts, George W. Prescott, of Quincy. Editor Prescott has been in one newspaper office for 55 years, starting as a boy in the Quincy Patriot office, and establishing a large, prosperous business, of which he took the active management up to within a few days of his death. He was actively connected with all the strong newspaper organizations of the state, and for many years has been a delegate to National Editorial conventions. The editor of this paper is a warm personal friend of Mr. Prescott and has been associated with him in newspaper organizations and social affairs for several years past. His death will be severely felt by a large circle of friends in the newspaper profession."

UNTIRING DEVOTION.

The Weymouth Gazette says:

"In the death of George Washington Prescott, which occurred at his home on Spear street, Quincy, Wednesday morning, the newspaper world loses one of its most esteemed and respected members. Few, if any, men in Massachusetts have been so long connected with newspaper work as Mr. Prescott, and none more highly esteemed among his associates. In 1903 he celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his entering upon his special life work, and his untiring devotion to the work has given the Quincy Patriot and the Quincy Daily Ledger a local, state and national reputation of which he might well be proud. Mr. Prescott was one of the original members of the Massachusetts Press association, the Suburban Press association and the Republican Editorial association and in all of these organizations he will be sadly missed at their business meetings and social gatherings."

LOSS TO COUNTY.

The Dedham Transcript says:

"George Washington Prescott,

PATRIOTISM AND COURAGE

Sent Independence Party to the South For a Candidate

GRAVES ACCEPTS NOMINATION

Expresses Belief That Section-Joining Ticket Will Make a Break In the Solid South--Lauds Hisgen, Praises Party Platform, and Gives His Opinion of Both the Old Parties, In Which He Finds No Good

Atlanta, Sept. 12.—Two thousand persons listened to the formal notification of John T. Graves as nominee of the Independence party for vice president of the United States at the Casino theatre last night. Thomas L. Hisgen, W. L. Hearst and a score of others prominent in the party were on the platform. Graves was given an ovation.

Clarence J. Shearn of New York, eulogizing Graves "as a man whose name is a synonym for scholarly ability and eloquence, a true man of the south, one who understands her needs, revers her traditions and glories in her achievements," tendered him the nomination of the Independence party for vice president of the United States.

After thanking the members of the notification committee for the grace and kindliness with which they bore the official message, and after accepting the nomination, Graves said in part:

"Beyond all personal considerations, I rejoice in the courage and catholic patriotism which sends the Independence party for a candidate to the central south. It is the first of the great national parties to give the south a place upon its presidential ticket—a consideration which the Democratic and Republican organizations have never dared to show—and I believe that the American voter will rejoice in an opportunity to write his approval upon the first practical expression of political faith in the reality of a reunited country.

"Let me here commend to the people of the south that noble gentleman of Massachusetts who is the chosen leader of the Independence cause. High as I hold the civic courage and character of my fellow-citizens, I am free to say that we have nothing braver or better in the citizenship of Georgia than this rugged and dauntless man, who is hailed now everywhere as the only merchant in America who has fought to a standstill the Standard Oil—behemoth of monopolies.

"'Honest Tom' Hisgen is worthy of the glorious sobriquet he has won, and the Independence party has linked at last Massachusetts and Georgia in a joint appeal to the confidence and patriotism of the new republic. Let me say that I believe the appeal will meet its answer in these states. The section-joining ticket of the Independence party, placed upon the soundest and most American platform that the half century has produced, constitutes an urgent call to the independent thought and action of the solid south.

"Every suggestion of interest and dignity commends an independent action to the voters of the solid south. The freedom of conscience and conviction would be a tonic and a glory to its public life. The Democracy has failed. It has failed because it has been unfaithful. It is a party of pure opportunism, famished for success and hungry for the spoils of office. Its motto is anything to win.

"But the Republican party is the party of spoils and privilege; the party of sectionalism and the parent of the robber tariff, which is the mother of the trusts.

"The Independence party presents to the south and to the country a platform than which nothing sounder and more wholesome has ever been presented to the American people. It straddles no issue, shirks no responsibility, and evades no question that concerns the people.

It is clear as a bell at midnight to the hosts of labor. It holds out a strong right hand to the farmer; it conserves the honest interests of capital. It is sound in financial policy and touches no wildcat theory of finance.

"It cuts to the core of civic corruption in state and nation. It enthrones the people upon initiative and referendum, direct primaries and the right to recall incompetent, corrupt officials. It reforms the tariff by its friends, puts ballot thieves and financial criminals behind the bars, develops all the resources of the country and preserves peace with honor by a navy large enough to defend both of the republic's ocean shores.

"In grateful appreciation of the high honor and responsibility which you offer, I shall earnestly and hopefully appeal our cause to the south and to the country."

THE BRYAN TOUR

Candidate Well Received In Ohio and West Virginia

Wheeling, Sept. 12.—William J. Bryan yesterday afternoon and night was West Virginia's guest. A royal welcome was given him as his private car "Olivette" entered this city. The river front was a mass of humanity and as Democracy's leader set foot on West Virginia soil he was cheered to the echo.

Speaking last night to a multitude of persons on the very shore of the river itself and with the state of Ohio directly opposite, Bryan pointed out the differences in the two platforms and made a plea for Democratic support. He made frequent reference to Taft and told his audience that the Republican candidate was conducting his campaign on a platform so obnoxious to him that he was forced to continually patch it up with amendments of his own. Much stress was laid on the labor and anti-injunction planks of the Democratic platform.

The visit to Wheeling was the climax of an eventful day in Ohio. From the time Bryan left Columbus, early in the morning, until he crossed the Ohio river into West Virginia, the crowds which gathered along the line of travel made insistent demands for his appearance and a few remarks.

At Steubenville a large crowd gathered, and from a railroad truck beside the track, while his car was being shifted to another train, Bryan addressed them. As he had done at other points in the state, he ridiculed Taft, whose speeches, he declared, had darkened rather than illuminated the subjects which compose the Republican platform.

Mr. Bryan put to his audience the questions: "How many of you believe that United States senators should be elected by direct vote of the people? How many of you believe that we ought to have a publication of campaign contributions, that is, above a reasonable minimum, before election?"

A sea of hands went up. "Now," said Bryan, "by your votes you have declared that you stand on the Democratic platform instead of on the Republican platform."

AT SAME BANQUET BOARD

Taft and Bryan Will Make Addresses to Chicago Merchants

Chicago, Sept. 12.—For the first time in the history of modern politics two rival candidates for the presidency of the United States will meet at the same board and address the same audience, when William H. Taft and William J. Bryan are to be the guests of honor at the annual banquet of the Chicago Association of Commerce at the Auditorium on the evening of Oct. 7.

This announcement was made at the headquarters of the Chicago Association of Commerce, which received assurances of the presence of the two presidential nominees for the third convention of the Lakes to the Gulf Deep Waterway association, for which the Association of Commerce will act as host.

The deep-waterway project is favored by the leaders of both parties and is not therefore a subject over which any political discussion is expected. The right hand seat will be occupied by Taft at the express wish and with the full approval of the Democratic nominee and his friends. Chairman Mack declared that Taft, as a recent member of the present administration, was clearly entitled to the place of honor at the feast. Bryan will sit at President Hall's left. An attendance of about 1000 persons is expected at the banquet.

Taft's Speech-Making Trip

New York, Sept. 12.—Since the announcement that Mr. Taft would make a number of speaking trips during the campaign the demand for him has been so great that Chairman Hitchcock of the Republican national committee is having great difficulty in arranging a satisfactory itinerary. It is possible that before the campaign closes he may speak in every state where the result is not a foregone conclusion.

It had been planned that Taft should leave Cincinnati about Oct. 1, but that date has been advanced about a week, although the day of departure has not been fixed definitely.

The first week of his speaking engagement will be given over to the middle west and after that he may go to the intermountain country. The last week of the campaign, according to the present intentions, will be spent by Taft in New York and other eastern states.

Hughes' Running Mate Picked

New York, Sept. 12.—It is semi-officially announced at the Republican national headquarters that State Senator Horace White of Syracuse is to be nominated for lieutenant governor at the Saratoga Republican state convention. The opinion is expressed that no other candidate for governor than Charles E. Hughes will be placed in nomination during the session of the convention.

Steamer Cut Tug In Two

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 12.—The seagoing tug J. S. W. Halton of Philadelphia was run down and cut in two in the Delaware river near here last night by steamer City of Chester. Assistant Engineer Lynch and Mate Adkins of the tug were drowned. The other five members of the crew were rescued with difficulty. It is said that the tug attempted to cross the bow of the steamer.

Machinery Is Starting Up

New York, Sept. 12.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that small gains are the rule in trade reports, although changes are often insignificant, and it is only in the aggregate that any tangible progress can be discerned. Industrial reports indicate that much machinery that has been idle for many months resumed after Labor day.

A CHAIN and ITS LINKS

In telephoning there are three links in the chain that constitutes "good service." 1. The person calling. 2. The operator. 3. The person called.

No matter how much any one or any two of these links do to develop good service, the result is determined by the measure of co-operation of the third. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link.

If the person calling fails to consult the catalogue and gives a wrong number, the operator inevitably repeats the error. If the person called fails to answer promptly and the caller leaves the telephone, naturally "there is no one on the line.

Being human, the operator—the third link—is liable to err occasionally, but careful analysis demonstrates that she is not fairly chargeable with many of the difficulties frequently ascribed to her.

If Link No. 1 Gives the Right Number and Calls Distinctly, and Link No. 3 Answers Promptly, the Telephone Company will be responsible for its part of the chain. If no higher motive actuated it, the motive of economy, or self-interest, would suffice.

PRIDE AS A VIRTUE.

Whether In Business or Social Life It Is Necessary to Success.

A certain amount of pride is a thing in this world absolutely essential to every one. Whether it be social life or business, it is necessary to success.

Haughtiness and snobbishness is not what is meant; far from it. It means the ability to hold your own with others in a way that commands respect.

Nor does it mean a rehearsal of what your grandfather was and how much money you would have if an ancestor had not been extravagant. It means personal dignity.

When a girl goes into a business office to apply for her first position the employer does not want her if she is compelled to use the chairs and desks for support and if she is continually rearranging her attire. A certain amount of nervousness is to be expected, but uncontrolled self consciousness and visible silly fear are evidences of the lack of the right kind of pride.

Nor does the employer want her when she tries to tell him how much she knows. Boldness is even worse than being timid. The girl who wins is straightforward, is not afraid to answer questions quickly and honestly, knows that she is willing to try, even though she may make mistakes, and so shows that she can maintain the dignity necessary in a well regulated office.

The appearance often spells fortune or failure, for it points to pride or the lack of it.

Extravagance is not necessary for the girl who wants to look well. She who spends the least amount of money on her attire is the girl who often makes the best appearance.

She studies what is becoming to her. She buys what she needs and no more. No one could make her buy an unbecoming necktie or belt because it was reasonable. Then she looks well as to how her clothes are put on. It may take her a few minutes longer in the morning to dress, but the result pays amply for the extra trouble she takes. Reasonably done, this isn't vanity; it is pride.

THE ART OF COMPLIMENT

Worth the Study of Those Who Value Life's Pleasantness.

There is still an art of complimenting and it is still practiced worthily and unworthily. The flatterer of today deals little in words. He acts and above all, he imitates. We all imitate each other with a pitiful diligence. All classes try to dress alike, talk alike and even think alike. With a sad want of dignity men and women fear to take their own line to show the kind of hospitality which best befits their incomes, to wear the clothes most convenient for their work, to talk upon the subjects which interest them, to express the disapproval which the class above them ridicule and the admiration which offends the fashionable leaders of literature and art.

The art of compliment may, however, be well worth the study of those who value the pleasantness of life above its pleasures. Graciousness is never out of fashion. We must tell our friends from time to time what we think of them. There are reserves which blight the whole beauty of life. But we must be at the pains to express them in the right way, for friendship in some of its aspects is an art. Again, if we hope to get much enjoyment out of social life we must take the trouble to show ourselves well disposed and must know how to turn indifferent and insignificant occasions to account.

This cannot be done without consideration. A "pretty speech" is a form of present, one of those little gifts which, according to the French saying, cement great friendships, and when one desires to make a present it is worth while to try to find out what will best please. They are happier who know by instinctive sympathy, but surely those who take pains to find out have nothing to be ashamed of. Setting aside the great essentials of happiness, health, family affection and the love of work, it is probable that nothing, no amusement and no hobby and no "pursuit," contributes so much to the pleasantness of life as the traffic in kind speeches.

HOUSEWIFE SUGGESTIONS.

To clean a copper kettle rub the kettle with powdered bath brick and paraffin and then polish it with dry brick dust or whiting.

The green tips of celery or mince leaves of brussels sprouts may be substituted for parsley when that is not obtainable for garnishing.

When pouring out tea one sometimes is annoyed to find the tea will run down the spout. To prevent this rub a little butter around the outside of the spout.

When thin tumblers stick together and there is danger of breaking them do not try to pull them apart, but put them into a pan of warm suds. In a short time they can be easily separated.

If housewives who dislike to find worms when cutting apples would first put the fruit in cold water they would find that the worms would leave the apples and come to the surface of the water.

When cleaning house look well to the picture wires, for they rust and often break apart near the screw eye. It is best to put in new wire or cords on very heavy pictures. Do not place a mirror where it will be in the sun light or near any intense heat, for both ruin the mercury, and it is impossible to have the glass replaced without considerable expense.

orest Fires Pressing Close to Many Minnesota Towns

Duluth, Minn., Sept. 12.—While conitions in the region of forest fires orth of Duluth are threatening, no ctual damage to habitations has re-ulted and the residents are hoping for change in wind or a rain.
No rain has fallen in this region since ly 10 and everything in the woods as dry as parchment. Many valuable acts of pine have already been devas-ted by the flames, and the walls of fire with a land wind behind them are eat-their way towards the settlements long the north shore of Lake Superior.
The inhabitants of the region are thered along the shore, praying for in, but prepared to take to the lake small craft should the worst come.
Within less than two miles of Grand Marais there is at present in flames a act of spruce and brush over three iles in length. A strong land breeze om the northwest is shooting the fire long the outskirts of the town, giving the village a lease of life.
Grand Marais has no system of wa-er works and the town is without any re protection with the exception of wo chemical engines. Conditions at

Big Bay, Chicago Bay, Cascade, Crofton nd Nutson are similar to those existing Grand Marais. All of them are likely eroplane Remains In Air Upward of Seventy Minutes

Washington, Sept. 12.—In a flight sting one hour, ten minutes and wenty-six seconds, Orville Wright late esterday surpassed all his previous xploits for a time and distance flight for a heavier-than-air machine. Two ights were made at Fort Myer, the first being of ten minutes and fifty seconds' duration to show at what rate of ed he had been travelling during his long flights of the past three days.
esterday's test demonstrated, according to the aviator's calculation, that he speed of the aeroplane during the cord-breaking flights of Wednesday nd Thursday was 39.5 miles an hour.
To those who have witnessed right's flights the results, marvelous they are, are now regarded as a mat-r of course, but the majority of those witnessed yesterday's long flight ere roused to great enthusiasm when the aviator for the third successive ay broke his best previous record.
Fifty-seven times the machine passed over the starting point during the seventy minutes and twenty-six seconds that it was up. Twice the aeroplanist described the figure "8," showing for the first time during his Fort Myer ights that he could control his machine in any direction.
A feature of the landing was that he did not stop the motor until the machine touched the ground. Before making another ascension at Fort Myer Wright will make a few changes in his machine to secure greater speed

Hair-Raising Auto Race

New York, Sept. 12.—Under the glare of searchlights and watched by 20,000 persons, eleven high powered racing automobiles started on a twenty-four-hour race last night around the little saucer-shaped course at the Brighton Beach race track. Every inch of the journey is fraught with peril to the drivers and before midnight there had been one serious accident, Sartori, a French driver, being badly hurt and his mechanician painfully injured. So great was the interest in the race that there were many in the grand stand who had brought their lunch with them prepared for a long stay.

Kaiser Kept Away From France

Altenberg, Alsace, Sept. 12.—Emperor William disappointed the general expectation that he would set foot on French territory in the course of a sight-seeing trip along the Vosges range. The French authorities had made every preparation to welcome the imperial visitor. He had intended to ascend the Hohneck, the highest point in this vicinity, which is situated in French territory. Emperor William arrived here late yesterday and decided not to proceed across the frontier.

Dreyfus Affair Peters Out

Paris, Sept. 12.—With the acquittal last night by a jury of Louis A. Gregori, who fired upon Major Dreyfus during the ceremonies last June incident to the placing the body of Emile Zola in the Pantheon, the Dreyfus affair, which has divided France into two camps for the last twelve years, may be said to have been buried beyond all possibility of resurrection.

Gas Blows Up Four Buildings

Brantford, Ont., Sept. 12.—An explosion that was felt throughout the business portion of Brantford occurred when an escape of natural gas blew up four buildings on Colborne street, including a theatorium and cafe. Plate glass windows for blocks were blown in. There was but one fatality. The property loss will not exceed $25,000.

o'clock in this town. The balloon reached its highest elevation at 2100

BROKERS TOOK A FALSE CHECK

Boston House Loses $30,000 by a Swindling Operation

AUDACIOUS PLANS WELL LAID

Stranger Selected Valuable Securities, Calling For Them Next Day, After Banks Had Closed, and Presented Forged Check--Supposed to Be Same Man Who Swindled Others In Similar Manner

Boston, Sept. 12.—Presenting a forged certified check for $30,000 drawn on the Worcester Trust company, an unknown man, giving the name of Richard S. Parker, of prepossessing appearance, secured negotiable bonds of the face value of the same amount from the banking and brokerage firm of A. B. Turner & Co., 24 Milk street, late Thursday afternoon, and, the check being presented at the bank yesterday, the fraud was detected.

The man had visited the banking firm on Wednesday and, showing himself conversant with the leading securities and their market values, stated that he desired to purchase some $50,000 worth and picked out the bonds he desired, stating he would call for them next day. The bonds designated were Chicago, Burlington and Quincy joint 4s of 1921, Oregon Short Line refunding 4s of 1929, American Tobacco 4s of 1951, Central of Georgia consolidated 5s of 1945, and New York Central 4s of 1934.

The man called at the Milk street office at 4 o'clock Thursday and asked for the bonds and presented a certified check for $30,000 drawn on the Worcester Trust company. The signature was fresh and appeared genuine and the check was accepted. It was after banking hours and the check was put away to be presented Friday.

The man was apparently 45 years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighed near 155 pounds. He had dark hair, a smooth face and wore eyeglasses.

The swindle recalls the fact that a man answering almost the identical description has twice before victimized Boston brokerage houses in the same manner. On Jan. 27, 1902, the man in question closed a deal with N. W. Harris & Co. of 67 Milk street for $18,500 worth of negotiable bonds, giving his name as William Busch. He presented a check which had apparently been certified to by the treasurer of the Shawmut National bank of Boston. The check, presented next day, proved to be a forgery.

Again on Sept. 10, 1903, the same man, or one closely resembling him, secured $15,043 worth of bonds from E. H. Gay & Co. of 24 Congress street, the bonds being sent to brokers' offices the man had fitted up in Lynn and from which he disappeared next day when the check in payment, drawn on the First National Bank of Lynn, and supposed to be validated by certification, was found to be a forgery. At this time the man went under the name of Norman H. Poore.

Posed as Building Contractor

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 12.—The Worcester police were requested by the Boston police to ascertain all that could be learned of one Richard F. Parker, wanted in Boston on the charge of passing a forged check on A. B. Turner & Co. in payment for bonds. It was learned that a man giving the name of Richard F. Parker hired an office room here on Aug. 15, claiming that he came from Providence. He visited the Worcester Trust company and Merchants' National bank and stated he was doing a heavy building contractor's business and had several rich contracts on hand. He was last seen here on Tuesday. His office was found vacant yesterday and, a rolltop desk being pried open, nothing was found but two receipts for the office rent and two empty letter files.

Legate Blesses Ten Thousand

London, Sept. 12.—The success attending the Eucharist congress reached its climax last night when some 10,000 Roman Catholics received the blessing at the hands of the legate. It was a remarkable reception, but was attended by needless confusion and crushing. Apart from this difficulty the reception was a most brilliant affair. There were no speeches, but the organist played selections throughout the function.

Sun Obscured by Smoke

Boston, Sept. 12.—Clouds of smoke which have filled the atmosphere over Boston since Thursday morning have increased in density so as to almost shut out the sun from sight. The smoke apparently comes from the northwest. It is believed the smoke is caused by great forest fires somewhere to the north and west.

Believers In Woman Suffrage

Boston, Sept. 12.—A resolution favoring woman suffrage was unanimously adopted at the Mule Spinners' convention in this city. A greater part of yesterday was taken up in discussing the feasibility of creating a defense fund.

Cholera Continues to Spread

St. Petersburg, Sept. 12.—An official report of the cholera situation in St. Petersburg shows that yesterday there were fifty-eight cases and eight deaths from the disease and that there are 107 patients in hospitals ill with it.

What's In a Name?

By Martha Cobb Sanford.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Just ahead of her Barbara King caught sight of Bertram Mathews. Thanking her lucky stars that he had not caught sight of her first, she darted through the wide open doors of the library building and rested for a few minutes against one of the large marble columns in the lobby.

After she had given Mathews plenty of time to pass she ventured to the door and reconnoitered cautiously. Heavens! He had turned around and was coming straight toward the library! Barbara bounded up the stairs like an antelope and disappeared.

With no apparent signs of haste or purpose Bertram Mathews followed her lead. At the top of the broad flight of stairs, however, he came to a standstill and leisurely scanned the long, empty corridor.

As there was nothing to indicate which way the golden haired vision had fled, he started on a lazy stroll through the maze of special reading rooms, sure of finding her somewhere.

It was clever of him, he mused, to have crossed Barbara's trail without her knowing it. He smiled at the thought of her blushing surprise when he should unexpectedly stumble upon her. What would she have to say to him?

He was aware that he was deliberately forcing Barbara's answer after yielding to her entreaty for an interregnum of courtship which would terminate only by strictly accidental meeting. But it had been two whole weeks since he last proposed to Barbara, and human restraint has its limitations.

Barbara didn't blush, however, nor was she the least surprised when Bertram at last discovered her in the secluded nook reserved for legal reference. So absorbed was she in reading a popular fiction magazine that his presence failed to establish that telepathic communication proverbially supposed to exist between lovers.

Bertram, his eyes dancing mischievously, tiptoed daringly near her and then passed out to the catalogue files. Lifting down the drawer labeled "Ba," he ran his fingers rapidly over the cards until he found two titles that evidently suited him.

With punctilious deliberation he copied these on a little printed slip and after filling in the blank spaces prepared for the reader's name and seat number handed it in at the delivery desk and waited developments.

Before long a small, freckle faced page in brass buttoned uniform tripped by him toward the legal reference room, one small book under his arm. Bertram followed at safe distance.

"One of 'em's out, miss," announced the page, indicating with a grimy finger a canceled title on the slip of paper which he handed Barbara.

"'Why Men Remain Bachelors,'" read Barbara aloud solemnly, and beneath it, "'Bachelor's Guide to Matrimony.'" "But I didn't order either of them," she informed the page indifferently. "There's some mistake."

"Ain't that your name and number, miss?" he had the impertinence to ask her.

Barbara examined the slip more closely. "B. Mathews," it read, "seat 15, legal reference room." She glanced about suspiciously. There was only one other occupant, and that was not "B. Mathews."

"Well, is it or ain't it?" demanded the page, his tone suggestive of a dangerously overwrought forbearance.

"Is what?" asked Barbara vaguely.

"Well, by thunder!" ejaculated the diminutive government official. "Dontcher know yer own name?"

"Of course I do," Barbara answered him with a childlike naivete, "but I shan't tell you, you little imp, so run away."

"Then yer can't have the book," brass buttons retaliated as he marched off with the "Bachelor's Guide to Matrimony."

Barbara watched him out of sight and then straightway forgot all about him in the thrilling occupation of scribbling in various styles of chirography, "Barbara Mathews, Mrs. Bertram Mathews, Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Mathews," etc., on the page margins of her magazine.

"What's in a name?" commented a masculine voice suddenly over her shoulder.

Barbara, blushing pink to the tips of her ears, closed the magazine with a bang, tucked it under her arm and started to beat an indignant retreat.

Bertram, however, observing that there were only empty chairs for witnesses, playfully barred her exit. Around the table he chased her in a scandalously undignified scramble. If walls have eyes as well as ears, surely the forbidding legal tomes on the surrounding "bleachers" had never before been spectators to anything so indecorous.

Covered at length, beyond hope of escape, in a decoy ending in a dormer window on one side and flanked by projecting bookshelves on the other two, Barbara faced her pursuer with wildly thumping heart.

"You aren't playing fair," she accused him breathlessly. "You've broken your promise, Bertram Mathews. This isn't accidental meeting at all. It's an—an ambush. You followed me here. You can't deny it, because I saw you out in front of the library. That's—that's why I came in here."

It was with difficulty that Bertram refrained from breaking into a laugh. But Barbara was too much in earnest to detect it.

"You deliberately ran away from me, Barbara. Was that playing fair?" questioned Bertram.

"But I couldn't tell you—I mean we couldn't talk it over out there on the street. It would have been so unromantic and—and such a stupid anticlimax."

Whatever Bertram had on the tip of his tongue to reply was momentarily checked by the passing in and out of an unsympathetic group of curious sightseers.

To bridge over the interruption Barbara pretended to be absorbed in watching the glow of the sunset.

"It is beautiful, isn't it?" she asked dreamily as soon as they were alone again.

"Glorious!" answered Bertram fervently, his gaze never leaving the sun flecked waves of her hair.

"But you can't see it, silly. Turn around."

As he didn't turn, Barbara faced about to learn the reason and, catching his look of undisguised adoration, lowered her eyes before it, her self possession utterly vanquished.

"Oh, sweet, tantalizing Barbara King," he pleaded, "am I never to know if you really love me? Won't you give me some little bit of hope to warm the cockles of my heart?"

For answer Barbara suddenly surrendered into his keeping the tell-tale magazine, which up to this time she had guarded jealously from him.

"Is that enough?" she asked him meekly.

Whereupon in that apparently deserted little reading room "no conversation above a whisper" broke the stillness for some time on. At length a door slammed to, and the ominous click of a key followed.

"Oh, we're locked in!" gasped Barbara, rushing to the door and rattling the knob excitedly. "Why, whoever would have guessed it was near closing time?"

"Not I," admitted Bertram, with shameless candor. "Here, let me have a try at that knob."

"Hold on!" yelled an exasperated voice on the other side. "I'll let yer out if yer'll give me a chance. Who in thunder is it, anyhow?"

"Barbara Mathews," called Barbara promptly through the keyhole. "I mean," she corrected hastily, while Bertram laughed at her mercilessly, "it's Barbara King."

When the door finally swung open it revealed a very disgusted young person composed chiefly of freckles and big brass buttons.

"Well, I'll be blowed," he exclaimed in astonishment, "if it ain't the same one, and she don't know her own name yet. Ain't that the limit?"

A Lawyer's Somersault.

Speaking of somersaults, the anecdote which Lord Eldon related of the eminent English lawyer John Dunning, afterward Lord Ashburton, will bear repeating. "I had," says Lord Eldon, "very early after I was called to the bar a brief as junior to Mr. Dunning. He began the argument and appeared to me to be reasoning very powerfully against our client. Waiting till I was quite convinced that he had mistaken for what party he was retained, I then touched his arm, and upon his turning his head toward me I whispered to him that he must have misunderstood by whom he was employed, as he was reasoning against our client.

"He gave me a very rough and rude reprimand for not having sooner set him right and then proceeded to state that what he had addressed to the court was all that could be stated against his client and that he had put the case as unfavorably as it were possible in order that the court might see how very satisfactorily the case against him could be answered and accordingly very powerfully answered what he had before stated."

Badly Confused.

Lord Bramwell, says the biographer of that jurist, used to tell a story illustrating the complete paralysis which may affect the human mind at trying moments.

One day when he was on board a Rhine steamboat he noticed a lady, evidently in great distress, trying by signs to explain to the officials some matter of importance. Fancying that she was a countrywoman of his own, he asked:

"Do you speak English?"

The poor lady had really lost her head, and she could only stammer out, "Un peu"—that is, a little.

Then Lord Bramwell continued the conversation in French, but it became evident that the lady understood scarcely a word. German and Italian gave equally bad results. Finally she muttered audibly to herself:

"How I wish I were safe at home!"

"But surely you do speak English!" exclaimed the baron.

"I can't speak anything else," she sobbed. "That's what makes me so helpless among these foreigners."

Kean's Funny Slip.

Charles Kean was a very nervous man, easily upset by any mistake, and one night when playing Hamlet he came to the passage:

Who calls me villain, breaks my pate across,
Plucks off my beard and blows it in my face,
Tweaks me by the nose?

Getting rather flustered for some reason or other, he rendered it thus:

Who calls me villain, breaks my pate across,
Plucks off my beard, tweaks me by the nose
And blows it in my face?

The contretemps completely paralyzed Kean, who amid shouts of laughter from the audience signaled for the curtain to be lowered at once.—Cleveland Leader.

A NOTRE DAME LADY'S APPEAL.

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism, whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbago, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. If the above interests you, for proof address Mrs. M. Summers, Box B, Notre Dame, Ind.

Important Reports At Council Meeting

The first regular meeting of the City Council since July will be held Monday evening. It will will probably be one of the most important meetings of the year, as the Committee on streets will report upon many of the matters that were referred to them. Reports of an inportant nature may also be expected from some of the other committees.

Stone of 31 Tons Valued at $1,000

The Granite Railroad Co., shipped this week from its quarry a rough stone of unusual dimensions intended for a die for a monument. The size was 10-2 by 5-8 by 5-0, the cubic contents of the stone being 288 feet, the weight 61,200 lbs., or practically 31 tons, and its value in the rough state nearly $1,000.

The stone was consigned to Milne & Hector, Quincy Adams, who are to cut the job for a New York firm and the monument when completed is to be set up in a western Massachusetts town.

Friday the flat car carrying the stone was setting on the Richards side-track at Quincy Adams awaiting the arrival of a large chain to unload it under the new electric crane.

Messrs. A. M. Deane & Co., are to team the stone from Quincy Adams station to the yard of Milne & Hector..

MILTON.

The Misses Babcock, who have been making their home at the Granite House, have moved to the Tarbox house on Willard street.

The Thursday Evening club has appointed a commitee to arrange for a series of weekly entertainments for the coming winter.

All of the public schools of the town opened this week. None of the buildings, however, are overcrowded

There seems to be but little local interest in the caucuses which are to be held next Tuesday evening.

Chief Engineer Choate is watching the work of Brockton's great gasoline fire engine. If satisfactory he may purchase one for Milton. An appropriation for a horseless engine was made last March, but the chief is in no hurry to purchase. He wants to see the different kinds tried out, so that he can get the best.

John Bryden the crossing tender at the East Milton station who underwent a surgical operation for a cancer on the lip, is able to be about, but has not returned to work.

New Voters.

The Registrars of voters held a busy session Friday evening adding 56 names to the voting lists as follows:

Ward One, 22;; Ward Two, 10 Ward Three, 6; Ward Four, 2; Ward Five, 9; Ward Six, 7.

At Bethany Church tomorrow morning Dr. Hardy preaches on "Work" and in the evening, Vacation religion Experiences will be related by many speakers.

VOTING LISTS

Show a Decrease Of 462 from The Total at City Election

The voting lists posted by the Registrars this month contains 4,997 names, or 462 less than on the lists used at the Municipal election last December.

This loss is due to several reasons, the principal of which is that there is a constant moving population so that it is impossible for the Assessors to assess all. When the Registrars make up the voting lists in September it is from the names that are reported to them by the Assessors as having been assessed.

Since the publication of the voting lists last December 58 voters have died. The remaining number, 404, is made up of those who have moved from the city and of persons whom the Assessors did not find in their annual round of the city in May. It is impossible to tell how many names can be attributed to each of these causes.

The following table gives the number of names on the lists from each precinct of the city for September this year, also the number on the lists used at the election last December and the decrease:

| | Sept. 1908 | Dec. 1907 | Loss |
|---|---|---|---|
| Ward One, Pre 1, | 462 | 490 | 28 |
| Ward One, Pre. 2 | 522 | 566 | 44 |
| Ward Two, Pre. 1, | 286 | 324 | 38 |
| Ward Two, Pre. 2, | 424 | 465 | 41 |
| Ward Three, Pre. 1, | 511 | 544 | 33 |
| Ward Three, Pre. 2, | 405 | 436 | 31 |
| Ward Four, Pre. 1, | 419 | 467 | 48 |
| Ward Four, Pre. 2, | 443 | 500 | 57 |
| Ward Five | 853 | 947 | 94 |
| Ward Six, Pre. 1, | 360 | 388 | 28 |
| Ward Six, Pre. 2, | 312 | 332 | 20 |
| | 4997 | 5459 | 462 |

This shows the greatest change to have been in Ward Four, with a totol loss of 105, while Ward Five is a good second with 94, Ward Two is usually looked upon as the ward to have the largest loss, but this year their loss was but 79 while Ward One the centre ward lost 72. Ward Three lost a total of 64, and Ward Six, the smallest ward in the city, kept its loss down to 48.

It is safe to predict, however, that there will be nearly 6,000 voters at the Presidential election in November.

High School Notes.

The High School Football squad was out for practice a few days this week, and next Monday they will start regular work. About 25 reported for the first practice, and at least 15 more are expected to turn out Monday. The team will have seven "Q" men back, besides a number of last years subs, and a fast eleven is expected. The first game will be on September 23 at Bridgewater against the Normal school. A fine schedule has been made up by Mr. Pierce, the manager, taking up some of the strongest schools in and around Boston. No regular coach has as yet been assigned, but one is expected by next week.

Mr. Graves, one of the new teachers, has not reported yet, because he is suffering from a fractured rib.

Two grades of the Coddington grammer school are holding their sessions at High school building until their new building on Coddington street, is completed.

New Officers.

The Knights of Malta at their regular convocation Thursday evening in Greenleaf hall, elected the following officers for the ensuing year:

S. K. C.—George H. Jaques.
Generalissimo—E. A. Barron.
Treasurer—George Ruxton.
Recorder—George H. Gardner.
Capt. Gen.—A. C. Smith.
Prelate—Frank R. Hodge.
Asst. Recorder—R. P. Sinclair.
Senior Warden—F. R. Melville.

The installation will take place Sept. 24.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

The monthly meeting of the Granite Ciiy club will be held tonight.

The Sunday school of Christ church will resume its sessions tomorrow.

The local yacht racing season is over. A number of the yachts will probably be out today however.

A larger gas main is being laid on Favon avenue, so as to supply the Coddington school building.

Dr. W. G. Kendall led the Boston Bicycle club yesterday on its thirtieth annual run about the Hub.

John T. Larkin of South Walnut street, the popular policeman of the Atlantic district, is enjoying his vacation among the Berkshires.

The Finnish Congregational church of Quincy is prospering. Yesterday it paid $200.00 on its mortgage. This makes about $7,400 recently raised by the Finns for their meeting house.

Mrs. John T. Donavon and son, John, Jr., wife and child of the hustling contractor of Quincy Point, have gone to North Sutton, N. H., for a two week's vacation among the mountains.

F. S. Patch of Quincy was a member of the executive committee in charge of the Massachusetts Ice Dealers' Association outing at Bass Point, Thursday.

Miss Gavin of Quincy is filling the place of Katherine Garrity in the Stetson High school of Randolph. Miss Garrity resigned to accept a position in the Quincy High school.

The Rev. Benjamin D. Hanscom, pastor of the M. E. church at Dresden Mills, Maine, will preach at the Washington Street Congregational church, Quincy, Sunday evening, Sept. 27 at the 7.30 service.

Edward P. Histen and Dennis S. Sweeney, president and treasurer respectively of the Quincy Point Social Club, sent word that they have picked many new things which will be featured at their coming minstrel show.

H. P. Johnson, who won the first Prize in the cutting contest at the ice dealers outing on Thursday is a driver of the Meadow Brook Co., and Charles J. Fredericks, the winner of the fourth prize, is manager of the Eaton Ice Co. The former was awarded an ice chest and the latter a pair of ice tongs.

Rev. Henrickson, for several years a Quincy pastor, has returned from a trip through the West, where he has spoken to large Congregations of Finns concerning the religions works of their people in this country. He is now busy preparing for the opening of the Finnish Seminary at Cambridge, Mass. about September 22.

Indicted By Grand Jury

The Norfolk grand jury made a partial report Friday afternoon. Among the indictments they presented were:

One against James S. Peters, William Rooney, Charles Reardon and Frank Waldron, charged with assault on Alfred Dahlquist of Quincy, with intent to rob. These are the men who it is alleged held up Dahlquist at Squantum early one morning in July and nearly killed him. The grand jury does not expect to complete its work before the first of next week.

Birthday Party.

On the occasion of her twentieth birthday, Mrs. Alfred T. Bullock was surprised by several of her friends last evening, at her home 399 Washington street. Before she could recover her composure, Alice Galvin stepped forward and in behalf of her friends, presented Mrs. Bullock a beautiful cut glass berry set. There were also several individual gifts, tokens of personal esteem.

During the evening William Johnson and "Al" Bullock entertained wibt songs, Bessie Chisholm accompanying on the piano. Mabel Stitt gave several whistling solos, while Herbert Payson convulsed the company with some of his funny recitations.

Refreshments were served during the evening, and the guests from Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree and Dorchester, departed at a reasonable hour, wishing Mrs. Bullock all the happy returns of the day and voting her a capital hostess.

The committee consisted of Alice Galvin, Mollie Starr and Carrie Blanding.

TODAY'S COURT.

NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.

On and after September 16, we have decided

TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE

as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods

AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills over due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every day. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and take them with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Now think this proposition over, and we feel confident that you can see it just the way that we do.

SOMETHING THAT IS NEEDED HERE IN QUINCY.

A HIGH GRADE OF GOODS SOLD AT LOW PRICES.

So Remember your 5 per cent discount.

Respectfully,

City Square, Quincy. JOHNSON BROS. Hancock Street, Corner Maple.

Let Us Have Playgrounds.

That was a capital idea on the part of Mrs. Russell Sage, to buy an abandoned racetrack and turn it into a playground for the children of Sag Harbor, Long Island. The old race-track had become a wild tangle of weeds and brush. Now, under the advice of experts, it will be made into a beautiful park. There will also be an athletic field in connection with the playground. This investment of Mrs. Sage's money is sure to yield large interest in the form of human health and happiness. There would probably be many more public playgrounds for children if women had a vote. Mrs. Sage predicts that they will gain the ballot in New York before many years, owing to the increasing protest from women of means against taxation without representation.

—The outlay for base ball purposes each year foots u pover $17,000,000. Rather costly support, but it pays in health to those who are engaged in it.

LUCE—KAYES.

A very pretty wedding took place Tuesday evening, Sept. 8, in the Baker Memorial Methodist Episcopal church, Uphams corner, Dorchester, when Mr. Leroy Winthrop Luce, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Pope Luce of Middle street, Braintree and Miss Arita May Kayes, daughter of Mrs. Margaret A. Kayes of Roxbury, were united in marriage. Mrs. Frederick N. Upham presided at the organ and promptly at eight o'clock the wedding procession entered the church from the chapel. Miss Lavina McLean of Dorchester was maid of honor and Mr. Russell J. Hammond, cousin of the groom, was best man.

The bridesmaids were Miss Annetta Wark, Dorchester; Miss Mary Harding, Jamaica Plain; Miss Jean Keltie, Dorchester; and Miss Bertha Card, New Bedford. There were four ushers: Mr. Sydney Kayes, brother of the bride; Mr. Benjamin Crowell, Woburn, cousin of the groom; Mr. Arthur Hale, South Braintree and Mr. Forrest Doten, Dorchester.

The bridal procession was lead by the bridesmaids, followed by the ushers, maid of honor and bride. The bride was charmingly gowned in white satin trimmed with princess lace and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. At the altar they were met by the groom and best man. Rev. Waren A. Luce, pastor of the Middleboro M. E. church, uncle of the groom, performed the wedding ceremony. He was assisted by Rev. Arthur P. Sharp, LL. D., pastor of Baker Memorial church. The ring service was used. The bride was given in marriage by Mr. John T. Musgrave.

Following the wedding a reception was held in the chapel from 8.30 to 9.30 o'clock. The happy couple were assisted in receiving by the parents, maid of honor, best man, bridesmaids and ushers. At 9.30 o'clock the bride and groom passed out by a side door amid a shower of rice and confetti and departed in a hack. After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Luce will reside at 117 Howard avenue, Roxbury, and October first will be at home to their many friends.

Mr. D. R. Lindsay of Sheppard avenue will have a new house erected on Willow street immediately. Contractor J. H. Kirby, Jr., have the contract. Ground was broken on Tuesday for the cellar.

Press Tributes

editor of the Quincy Daily Ledger and the Quincy Patriot, died at his home in Quincy Wednesday. He was one of his city's most respected citizens, and his experience as a newspaper man covered a period of over 55 years. Like the late Hugh H. McQuillen, whose warm personal friend he was, the deceased conducted his newspapers on a high standard, making them clean and essentially papers for the home. He began life as a newsboy, selling the copies of the weekly Patriot and worked his way upward to sole proprietor, editor and publisher. His life, was a busy, but a successful one, and in his death Norfolk County journalism has suffered a severe loss."

FAVORABLY KNOWN.

The Milton Record says:

"In the death of George W. Prescott the veteran editor of the Quincy Patriot, Quincy Daily Ledger and Braintree Observer, Norfolk county loses one of its oldest and most highly respected newspaper men. Mr. Prescott had been in the publishing business for more than half a century and was well and favorably known far beyond the boundaries of his home state."

PATIENT, PERSEVERING.

The Rockland Standard says:

"George Washington Prescott, for over fifty years connected with the Quincy Patriot and for the last ten years or more its sole proprietor, died at his residence in Quincy on Wednesday morning last, after a brief illness, lasting a little less than a month. Mr. Prescott was attacked with an affection of the heart early in August, and though he has been up and about for most of the time during the month he was obliged to give up attending to business, until the end came peacefully last Wednesday morning. Mr. Prescott was well known to the newspaper fraternity of the state chiefly through the various press associations in nearly all of which he was a member. He was a pioneer member of the Massachusetts Press association, and its most constant attendant, seldom missing a session and attending all of its outings.. He has been honored for many years as one of its vice presidents. Mr. Prescott leaves a widow and five children, two sons and three daughters, his sons being engaged with him in business. His death is the first break in the family in nearly fifty years. He made his business a success, and by patient and presevering attention thereto made it very profitable. He will be greatly missed by a large circle of friends both in his own town and by the state at large.

UNIVERSALLY ESTEEMED.

The Milford Gazette says:

"Just as we go to press, news reaches us of the death of George W. Prescott, the veteran editor and proprietor of the Quincy Patriot and Ledger. Mr. Prescott died Wednesday morning, after a brief illness of heart failure. Mr. Prescott had been in newspaper work in the same office 55 years, and was widely known and universally esteemed by newspaper men throughout the state, to whom his unexpected death comes with a sense of deep personal loss. In common with a host of members of the press, we extend to the bereaved family the sincerest sympathy in their hour of sorrow."

ONE OF BEST KNOWN.

The Marblehead Messenger says:

"Mr. George W. Prescott, editor and publisher of the Quincy Daily Ledger and the Quincy Patriot, died at his home on Spear street, Quincy, Wednesday, after an illness of four weeks. He was one of the best known newspaper editors of New England. Mr. Prescott was born in Quincy in 1835. He is survived by a widow and five children—Mr. Frank F. Prescott, general manager of the Quincy Daily Ledger, Mr. Eben Prescott, editor of the Braintree Observer, Annie L. Prescott, an editor of the Patriot, and Etta M. and Alice K. Prescott."

The Athol Chronicle says:

"Just as we go to press we learn of the death, on Wednesday, of the veteran newspaper editor and publisher, George W. Prescott, of the Quincy Patriot and Quincy Daily Ledger, after a brief illness. Funeral Saturday afternoon, Sept. 12 at 3 o'clock, 41 Spear street, Quincy.

SHARES THE LOSS.

The Quincy Advertiser says:

"On Wednesday morning George W. Prescott died at his home on Spear street. He was one of our well known citizens and through his management of the Quincy Patriot and the Daily Ledger have became popular with our citizens. The editor of the Advertiser knew him since childhood and always respected him. It is a pleasant thought to know that having been a competitor in business for over twenty-five years we still can say that he was fair in business and that we were mutually and personally the best of friends. Mr. Prescott had his faults, for no man is born perfect, but what were considered as his faults were the salient points to his business success. Always keen and sharp in a business transaction he was equally free with his associates in pleasure. Constant in business, regular in habits he had won that respect which is due every successful man. While his death is a severe blow to his family we cannot help sharing a part of the sad loss, knowing that in our early life it was he who stood by and assisted our mother in bringing about a successful business. The Advertiser extends to the bereaved family its sympathy and may they be comforted by the happy thought that he has passed to that Great Beyond, a man who never intentially wronged his fellow man."

Social Features Of the Y. M. C. A.

The social department committee of the Y. M. C. A. met Thursday evening at the building. A complete and elaborate plan was outlined for the season's work and adopted by the committee.

It comprises first, the Opening "Stag" when all senior members and young men in general are invited for the evening of Sept. 30. A program out of the ordinary was arranged for this affair and was put into the hands of the following committee: Harry Brooks, Bert Emery, Paul Frohwein, John G. McGregor, Charles Grassick, J. G. Miller, G. H. Newcomb, with Erastus Osgood in general oversight.

A series of garden concerts was in the plan and the first one is scheduled for Oct. 28.

A feature will be made of election returns on election night, and weekly "informals" will be made a specialty. A distinctive social atmosphere and home-like influence will be specially fostered.

Specially novel entertainments and dramatics are also in the program for the year. Altogether the prospects are very bright for a "big, better and busier" season than ever before.

MOUNTAIN CLIMBERS.

The Rev. C. F. Hill Crathern and his son Charles returned last Saturday from their ten days' tramp through the White Mountains. During that time they walked over 150 miles climbing Pleasant mountain and Jockey cap in Maine and Mts. Madison, Adams, Jefferson, Clay, Washington in the presidential range, and Mts. Monroe, Franklin, Pleasant, and Clinton among the southern peaks.

They also climbed Kinks Ravine walked over the Gulfside Trail, the Bridal Path, Crawford Notch from Crawfords to The Willey House and the Peonigewasset Wilderness via the North Fork trail and Mount Willey to North Woodstock.

In this primeval forest they saw a bear, foxes, deer, eagles and many lesser game as well as the mammouth white pines and cedars of virgin growth.

Before climbing the White Mountain ranges they stretched their legs by climbing Kearsarge, Moal, Liberty, and Chocorua mountains and by exploring White Horse ledge, Cathedral Rocks and Diana's Baths at North Conway.

MONATIQUOT LODGE.

Monatiquot lodge No. 83, Knights of Pythias, will entertain Puritan lodge No. 179, I. O. O. F., of Braintree in Pythian hall, Braintree Wednesday evening, Sept. 23.

Grand chancellor and suite as well as other distinguished members of the Knights of Pythias will be present. A fine program of a musical nature will be furnished.

This will be a "Red Letter" night in the fraternal field as this is the first occasion of its kind in history. Puritan lodge says it will paint the town red from South Braintree to Pythian hall that night. All resident Pythians are most cordially invited to be present and all members of Monatiquot lodge are expected to be on hand.

Women's Wrongs in Holland.

Mrs. Ida H. Harper, who has just been visiting Holland, writes: "A tax is levied on families for every servant they keep, but a widower is allowed one servant free of tax, on the principle that while he is away from home attending to business someone must be there to look after it and his children. A vast number of widows have to go out to work to support themselves and their families, but the government puts the full tax on the servants they are obliged to keep.

"Women in Holland have no suffrage, but any man may vote if he earns 11 florins (less than $5) a week. If his wife and children earn this amount and he is a drunken loafer, he still does the voting for the family. Any man may vote who has 50 florins in a bank, or, if his wife has earned this amount and put it in the bank, he may not only vote on the strength of it, but he may order the bank not to let her draw the money."

The husband has the sole control of his wife's property and earnings and may dispose of the children as he pleases. It is small wonder that Dutch women are agitating for the ballot.

HAS EMINENT LEGAL TALENT

No Expense Will Be Spared In Behalf of Chester Jordan

BROTHER-IN-LAW'S GREAT GIFT

Livermore "Killing" In Big Coup In Stock Market Nets Plunger $200,000, Which Will Go Toward Defending the Wife Slayer--Indicted For First Degree Murder While Case Is Still Before District Court

Boston, Sept. 12.—Charles H. Bartlett, one of the leading criminal lawyers of New England, was yesterday retained by the defense in the case of Chester S. Jordan, charged with the murder of his wife on Sept. 1 in Somerville, whose hacked and mutilated body was found in a trunk in a boarding house in Boston two days later.

Attorney William F. S. Hart of New York, another noted criminal lawyer, has already been secured, and with the five eminent pathologists of New York and Boston already retained on the case it is evident that Jordan will have one of the ablest fights put up in his defense which have been known for many years in Massachusetts courts.

Jesse L. Livermore, successful stock plunger, declares that he will spend $200,000 in the defense of Jordan, who is Livermore's brother-in-law. This generous offer is the sequel to a successful campaign on the short side of stocks in which he has been engaged since he came to Boston and which practically culminated yesterday.

At the close of the market yesterday, after he had covered the most of a long line of "shorts" which he put out early last week, he notified the Jordan family, it is said, that they could call upon him for any amount up to $200,000 for the defense of Chester. It was announced on the street that this represented his profits for a week and a half in "bucking" Thomas W. Lawson.

"I'll show them how to fight in the courts as well as in the stock market," he said to one who referred to the magnitude of his offer.

It is presumed that even $200,000 will not limit Livermore's expenditures in behalf of Chester Jordan if a larger sum is necessary to secure his acquittal. Livermore has never been noted for his extravagant expenditures, but he is naturally a plunger, and the clouds alone are his limit when he engages in a campaign.

An indictment charging Jordan with murder in the first degree for killing his wife, Honorah, on the night of Sept. 1, was returned yesterday afternoon by the grand jury of Middlesex county in the superior criminal court. Jordan's arraignment before Judge Lawton will probably take place some day next week. The evidence against the man accused of murdering his wife and then dismembering her body to avoid detection was presented to the grand jury last Thursday.

That Jordan was not present in court before Judge Lawton when the report of the grand jury was made was due to the fact that he is still under the jurisdiction of the district court of Somerville.

He will not be arraigned before the superior criminal court of Middlesex county until he has been rearrested on an indictment warrant, which will follow after the next session of the superior court. This will probably not be before Wednesday next, when the prisoner and his counsel will have been furnished with a formal copy of the indictment.

That the government is pushing the case as rapidly as possible is best judged by the fact that Jordan is already indicted by the grand jury of Middlesex county while he is still under the jurisdiction of the district court of Somerville.

Yesterday Jordan was taken from his cell in the East Cambridge jail to the Somerville district court to answer to the charge of murdering his wife. Judge Farrell presided.

Before any proceedings could be begun Captain Perry, acting chief of the Somerville police, asked for a further continuation of the case until Sept. 14. When no objection was raised by Attorney Sullivan, who represented the prisoner, Judge Farrell at once agreed.

In the courtroom Jordan appeared cool and self-possessed. His manner was cheerful and his toilet immaculate. He appeared to take great interest in the staring of the crowd and little in the proceedings of the court.

Mystery In New Hampshire Town

Somersworth, N. H., Sept. 12.—The badly decomposed body of a man was found in a grove of trees on a farm here by five young men while hunting for walnuts. The man had been dead so long that the features could not be distinguished and the medical examiner was unable to determine the cause of death. The body was apparently that of a man over 50 years of age. No hat, coat, vest or shoes were found near the body.

Neck Broken by Wagon Wheel

Biddeford, Me., Sept. 12.—The body of Howard Brown, aged 40 years, a farmer, of Alfred, was found on the highway between his home and Alfred, with the wheels of his wagon resting on the man's neck. The man was taking a load of wood to the town and probably accidentally fell from the load, the wheel running over him and breaking his neck.

LEADERS HOLDING FIRM

Are Playing With Clubs In the Second Division at Present

New York easily won its game yesterday from Brooklyn, and although Pittsburg and Chicago also won their scheduled contests, the leaders are still fairly well entrenched in first position. With all three of these teams playing second division clubs the chances of a shakeup are not great until next week, when the western teams will come east and Pittsburg will meet Philadelphia and then New York. Chicago, meanwhile, will play a series with Boston. The standing of the leading clubs is as follows:

| | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| New York | 80 | 46 | .635 |
| Pittsburg | 81 | 50 | .618 |
| Chicago | 81 | 51 | .614 |

PLACED PADLOCK ON APARTMENTS

Young Italian Fled After Brutally Killing His Wife

New York, Sept. 12.—A murder was revealed when the police broke into a padlocked apartment in Forty-fifth street and discovered the bound and gagged corpse of Mrs. Anna Mauro, an Italian woman, 22 years old. There was evidence that the woman was struck down from behind as she was preparing to leave the apartment, and that when the assassin had bound her arms and ankles to prevent resistance he stuck a gag into her mouth to stifle any outcry, took an automobile veil, tied it into a slipknot and strangled his victim to death.

Since the day when it develops the crime was committed—last Monday—David Mauro, the youthful husband of the murdered woman, has been missing, and the coroner has ordered his arrest. The couple were married about ten weeks ago and, it is said, quarreled frequently. Neighbors noticed that a padlock had been put on the door of the Mauro apartment and they became suspicious that something was wrong, when day after day passed without their seeing any one enter or leave. The police were called in yesterday and the murder was discovered.

There was a deep wound on the back of Mrs. Mauro's head, inflicted with some blunt instrument, and a wound in her side which might have been made with a knife. A red automobile veil was still knotted tightly around the woman's neck and the coroner says that death was not due to the blow on the head or the stab wound, but to strangulation. Three towels were used to bind and gag Mrs. Mauro.

Mauro, until Aug. 19 last, was employed as a gateman on the Third Avenue elevated railroad. He is little more than 20 years old and on account of his youth the mother of his wife, Mrs. Raeffello Eazzaro, refused to permit him to marry her daughter, so the couple were secretly married. Mrs. Lazzaro says that her daughter complained to her that Mauro was cruel to her and the mother tried to induce her daughter to leave him.

MISS ANNIE S. PECK.

Fearless Woman Mountain Climber and Some of Her Remarkable Feats.

The new champion mountain climber of the world is Miss Annie S. Peck, formerly professor of Latin at Smith college and known the world over as a fearless conqueror of dangerous altitudes.

This daring American, to whom the most inaccessible heights are as playgrounds, recently completed the ascension of Mount Hauscaran, the highest peak of the Peruvian Andes, attaining an estimated altitude of 25,000 feet.

The only other peaks in all the world higher than this are in the Himalayas and have never been scaled.

There several years ago W. W. Graham established a mountain climbing record which stood until this feat by Miss Peck. He registered a height of 23,800 feet.

Climbing such a mountain is no parlor amusement. No other sport requires such an abundance of courage, self reliance and sheer nerve, such stoutness of heart, such well developed lungs and such a thoroughly trained athletic physique.

MISS PECK, CHAMPION MOUNTAIN CLIMBER.

Until one ascends upward of 15,000 feet he does not attain the real dignity of a mountain climber.

The strain is first upon the muscular system, but it affects even more importantly the circulatory, respiratory and nervous mechanisms.

In some persons the heart feels the tax most; in others the nervous system is chiefly affected. Palpitation and "mountain sickness," the latter in all probability a neurosis, are the two chief difficulties that beset the average mountain climber. With some the respiratory organs virtually collapse, producing an almost suffocation.

Weak hearts are fatal to the ambitions of the would be mountain climber. The heart must be not only structurally sound, but well exercised and in good condition, or the strain tells quickly. If one has not nerves of steel they go to pieces once the 15,000 foot mark is passed. The rarefied atmosphere plays havoc with weak lungs even earlier.

Bleeding from the nose and ears is not infrequent, though far less prevalent than the reports of early explorers would indicate it was experienced in their day. A partial suffocation is more often encountered.

So mountain climbing is no work for a weakling. Miss Peck, however, experienced none of these troubles. She has been mountain climbing nearly twenty years. The Matterhorn, pride of the Alps, was among her first conquests. Five years ago she scaled the hitherto inaccessible heights of Mount Sorata, 22,000 feet, the highest peak in Bolivia.

Medicines to Take on a Journey.

There are certain household remedies, substitutes for a physician's services, that should be carried along, even if one is going away for a week only. Of these bicarbonate of soda is one of the simplest cures for indigestion and acid stomach, and half a teaspoonful in half a glass of water may relieve an attack of gastritis. Five cents' worth of this drug is enough to take under ordinary conditions, and it can be easily carried in a pasteboard box.

Peroxide of hydrogen or some other equally good antiseptic should not be omitted from the medicine chest. One cannot be too careful to disinfect a small cut or pin prick, and the slightest abrasion of the skin should have such care. As persons learn more of the principles of hygiene they understand that any open place may harbor a germ which can lead to serious affliction, such as blood poison or inflammation, if not treated antiseptically. Therefore the slightest scratch should be cleansed, washing it well with pure soap and then touching it with peroxide or some other germ killer, such as a very weak solution of carbolic acid—2 per cent, for example. It is inexpensive and, further diluted, makes an excellent mouth wash.

In addition to these remedies a little roll of bandages for emergency should be taken. These consist of strips of gauze an inch or half an inch wide and are very inexpensive. They are especially valuable in binding cuts or sores. A roll of adhesive plaster is also desirable.

The Woman Who Makes Good.

The woman who makes good must be blessed with strength and health and an ambition to learn and take advantage of every opportunity that comes her way, says the Delineator.

She must work with all her heart, play with all her heart, above all things avoiding indifference and the enemy to all progress—apathy.

She must select the pleasure that will bring her the greatest joy and choose the work she is best fitted for.

Ordinary hard luck never ruins people. It puts them in a mood to learn a thing or two. Everybody makes mistakes. With some it is a regular occupation, but to make a mistake and wail about it is to make two.

Women often speak of their talents not being appreciated. A talent is next to worthless unless one has the ability to get down to hard, plain, everyday grind.

Then, too, the woman who wins must learn to talk, but not to tell. There is an art—the most consummate art—in appearing absolutely frank to the butcher, the baker and the family cat and yet not revealing any of one's business affairs.

The woman who wins must be able to hold all and hear all, yet betray it by neither word nor look, by injudicious defense no more than by overt treachery, by anger at a malicious accusation no more than by a smile at an egregious mistake. To be able to do this requires a rare combination of tact and self respect. One cannot just slide along in business and win promotion and more salary. A knowledge of the business is necessary to show results.

To make good a woman needs that fine balance, that accurate self measurement, which goes by the name of common sense. It is the one thing on which success depends the most.

Books For Wedding Gifts.

Mrs. Asquith, who is just now in the limelight in England as the wife of the prime minister, always gives books as wedding gifts.

It makes no difference how illustrious the bride may be, she gets a book from the famous Mrs. Asquith. Every one in London who follows her caprices is now following her choice of wedding gifts.

No matter who started it, it is a good thing for any one to take up and stick to. It is easy and not costly to choose a certain thing as a gift and never depart from it.

If you cannot afford silver and gold make it your maxim to give a book or an edition of books on all occasions. It makes gift giving half the trouble that it is when you rush around town to try to get something that may suit each bride.

Whether or not the couple to be married cares for books is not the question. Every one should care for books, and every one must have them. If they are not read they are decorative.

Don't make the mistake of sending a volume of well known poems. It is not polite. You must suppose that every bride has such literature.

If you can send sets of books, Kipling is always a good choice. A set of Thackeray if well bound is always acceptable. Hawthorne is an excellent choice, and uniform volumes on American history are good.

Producing Money.

Any married woman can perform this trick successfully. The directions are very simple. First make sure that your husband is sound asleep and that his trousers are carelessly hanging over the foot of the bed. Tiptoe into the room and quietly confiscate the trousers and then softly sneak into the dining room. Hold the trousers about two feet above the table and with the thumb and forefinger take hold of the bottom of each pocket, holding the pocket with the mouth pointing toward the table.

You will be surprised to see the vast amount of coin that will immediately appear on the table out of nothing. You know it is out of nothing, for just before retiring your husband told you he hadn't a cent in his clothes. After the pockets are entirely emptied put back the pool checks, keys and other debris that fell out with the money and replace the trousers over the foot of the bed. If he catches you, just say you were fixing up a rent, and then you will have him guessing either that you refer to a tear in his garment or a deal with the landlord.

When You Make Preserves.

See that the jars are in perfect order, immaculately clean and supplied with new rubbers. To use old rubbers is poor economy.

If the jars do not screw tight, get new ones with glass tops, reserving the old ones for pickles or jams. Safety from fermentation in canned fruits depends upon the absolute exclusion of air.

Pint jars with wide mouths are more convenient than quart jars for small families.

Use porcelain lined or the best granite ware for kettles, the lightweight granite being preferable.

Other essentials are a long handled wooden or silver spoon, a wooden pestle (a potato masher will answer), pans for sugar, a dripping pan, accurate scales, a grocer's funnel, a small milk dipper, tumblers or jars for jelly and a good supply of coarse towels and jelly bags.

Suffragists' War Song.

The English suffragists have been supplied with a war song.

The new song and march was first sung by Edmund Cooper at an at home given by Miss Janette Steer, actress and dramatist, at her residence in Sloane Gardens, London.

The following is the refrain:

Rise up, woman!
Stand up for your right.
Rise up, woman!
You're bound to win the fight.
Do not be disheartened.
Sound the warning note.
Strike a blow for liberty
Till you vote, vote, vote!

Aerial Navigation Assured

While the Public Has Been Skeptical and Has Sometimes Jeered, Captain Thomas S. Baldwin and the Wright Brothers, After Years of Hard Work, Finally Succeeded.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

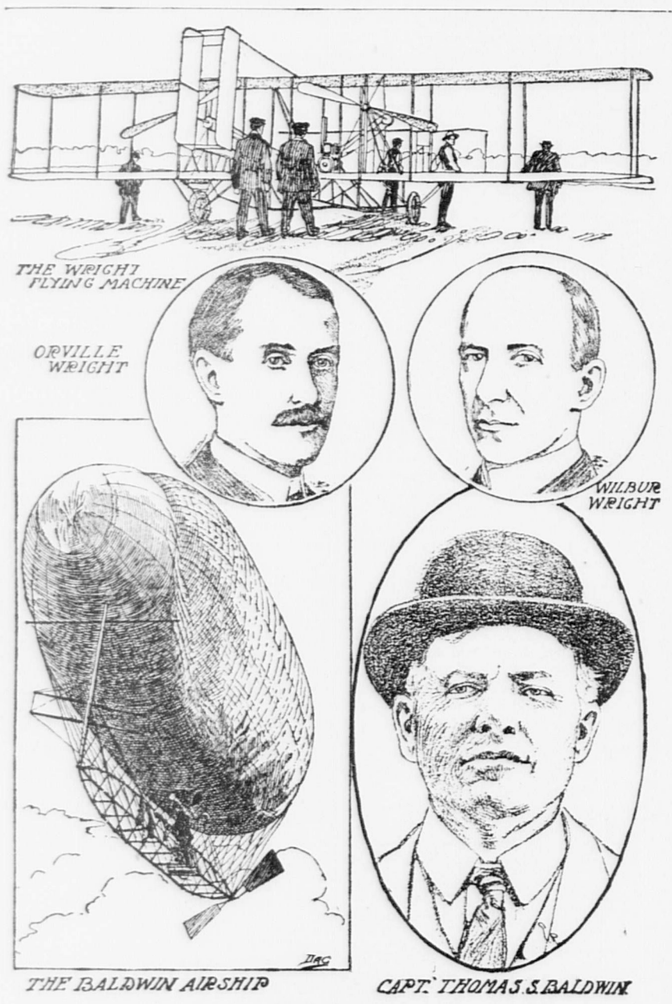

HENRI FARMAN, the French aeronaut, recently said that within ten years flying machines would be as common as automobiles. That may seem a trifle optimistic, but is not impossible. The great step has been taken; men actually fly. The matter of making machines for commercial use is now merely a question of time.

We do not properly measure the importance of the event. The future will doubtless class it as the greatest accomplishment of all the marvelous things done in this age of invention. What revolutions it will work in transportation and in human affairs generally can now only be dimly surmised. The overwhelming fact is that the thing of which men have dreamed through the ages has been achieved. The cause has been set in motion. The fame of it will be told, and the effects of it will flow out to bless mankind as long as the world stands.

The United States war department has already bought the Baldwin airship and is now testing the Wright brothers' aeroplane. Orville Wright is conducting these tests, while Wilbur is in France making demonstrations that are the wonder of the world. The German army already has its airship where it can be manufactured and placed on the market. Their first object is to sell it to some government that will use it and develop it for war purposes, after which they will doubtless perfect it for commercial uses. They do not predict that it will supplant the railroad or steamboat and say that its greatest immediate use will be in war. But with such an invention in his hands who can set limits on what the future man will do? Stevenson could not foresee the revolution wrought by the railroad, nor had Fulton or Morse any adequate conception of what would be accomplished by the steamboat or the telegraph. It is for the inventor to create and hand over to posterity and leave to them to set limits on the use they will make of his invention. The Wrights have taught the world to fly on a heavier than air machine. They must now let the world try its new wings and determine what it will do with them.

Sails Sidewise.

The Wright brothers' aeroplane has been described as looking like a street car with the sides and ends knocked out, leaving only the top and floor with frail uprights holding them together. The machine sails sidewise, with its corps, and the same thing is practically true of every civilized nation. Tennyson's fine lines in "Locksley Hall," written as a prophecy of a distant event, are being made true almost before the poet is cold in his grave:

For I dipped into the future far as human eye could see,
Saw the vision of the world and all the wonder that would be;

Saw the heavens fill with commerce, argosies of magic sails,
Pilots of the purple twilight dropping down with costly bales;

Heard the heavens fill with shouting, and there rained a ghastly dew
From the nation's airy navies grappling in the central blue;

Far along the worldwide whisper of the south wind rushing warm,
With the standards of the peoples plunging through the thunderstorm;

Till the war drum throbbed no longer and the battleflags were furled
In the parliament of man, the federation of the world.

It is not now necessary to "dip into the future far as human eye can see" to behold most of this prophecy made everyday fact. Already the nations are forming their "airy navies." Already there is in The Hague peace congress some sort of a dim promise of a "parliament of man."

Has Sailed Against the Wind.

All those deeply versed in the subject are now agreed that practical aerial navigation will soon be accomplished. Captain Baldwin has sailed his airship, which is only an improved type of dirigible balloon, against the wind. A few years ago that would have been pronounced an impossibility. The Wright brothers have made an aeroplane in which two men can ride in a sitting posture that will run at almost any speed up to forty miles an hour and that will go in any direction or at any desired height above the ground. Not only so, but they have perfected the invention to a point far enough advanced in their work to go before the world.

Natural Inventors.

The Wright brothers are about forty years of age. Wilbur, the older, who is in France, is smooth of face and bald. Orville, who is now at Fort Myer, is about four years younger, wears a slight mustache and is just saved from baldness by a little tuft of hair on the top of his head. Both brothers are tall and slight, both are precise, scientific, reticent and almost cold in manner, and neither apparently cares for money or fame. They are natural inventors, having learned wood engraving while mere boys and having constructed a printing press out of a little old rubber, some cord wood, part of a buggy top and a few other odds and ends picked up in the back yard at home. Then the bicycle craze came along, and they started a bicycle repair shop and from this went into the untried and uncertain field of airship invention. At first they tried to work with balloons, but soon gave these up for the aeroplane, of which the world is already acknowledging them to be the practical inventors. They have worked wholly with their own money.

Captain Thomas S. Baldwin, who has already met the test and sold his dirigible balloon, the California Arrow No. 10, to the United States government, is an older man and a much older aeronaut than either of the Wright brothers. Captain Baldwin invented the modern parachute, in which he made the first public descent. He has made innumerable balloon ascensions all over the world. Before he entered this field he was a circus performer and tight rope walker. It was he who caused the world to gasp by walking a wire high over the pounding billows of the ocean at the old Cliff House, San Francisco.

The Baldwin airship is entirely different in principle from the Wright brothers' aeroplane. The California man depends on the lighter than air style of machine. His balloon is shaped like a long, fat cigar. Under this is a light frame, fitted with motor, rudder, propeller and kite attachments for maintaining equilibrium. One point in which Baldwin's ship differs from others is that he has his propeller in front, depending on a pull rather than a push. In the machine sold to the government two men can ride, one to run the airship and the other to take observations. The United States officers were exceedingly gratified by the tests. After turning the balloon over to the government Captain Baldwin instructed two army men in its navigation, Lieutenant Lahm, already famous as an aeronaut, being placed in control. Officers of the army will now ask congress for a million dollar appropriation for a balloon brigade. It will doubtless take congress about ten years to see it and catch up with the procession, but eventually it will come around.

Thomas Scott Baldwin, the inventor, not only made the first public leap in a modern parachute, but made the first successful American airship flight, which took place at Oakland, Cal., on Aug. 2, 1904. He then drove his balloon directly in the teeth of a wind, a feat that he has accomplished often since.

Sailed Over Vesuvius.

Baldwin's parachute leaps, beginning more than twenty years ago, created a sensation around the world. He conducted them all over America and in foreign lands. He was awarded the first gold medal ever presented by the Balloon Society of Great Britain. One of the daring aeronaut's feats was to sail over Mount Vesuvius.

Baldwin has brought several new inventions into aeronautics. The most important perhaps is the twin propeller, consisting of two propellers running in opposite directions on the same shaft. This brought about the perfect balance so long sought by aeronauts. No less important is his placing the screw in front of his machine rather than in the rear, which draws the balloon forward into a practical vacuum. Under the old way the vacuum was created behind and retarded the speed. Captain Baldwin uses a two ply and in some spots a three ply Japanese silk envelope, which is also an improvement. He has made many advances in the science of equilibrium and in reducing what is known as "skin friction."

Captain Baldwin's Claims.

The airship sold by him to the government has a gas bag eighty-four feet long and eighteen feet in diameter at the thickest spot. The government required that the machine be capable of attaining a speed of twenty miles an hour, but Captain Baldwin claims that it is actually capable of twenty-six or twenty-seven.

While most scientists agree that the aeroplane is the ultimate flying machine, the greatest progress up to date has been made in the lighter than air vessel, or dirigible balloon. In fact, little has been accomplished in the other field except by the Wright brothers.

Most of us can remember when the automobile was a novelty. The writer is under forty, yet he recalls the time when the first "horseless wagon" was used, and it was only about a score of years ago. It was in Wheeling, W. Va., where I first beheld the monster. The machine was a big, clumsy affair, with large wheels, uncertain steering apparatus, and was run by a very noisy steam engine. This was so great a failure that it was some years before another crossed my field of vision. Now they are as common as millionaires.

If the automobile could be so vastly improved in so short a time, who can predict what may occur in the field of aerial navigation now that the principle has actually been discovered and is before the world?

APPEAL TO CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Made by Judge Taft In Behalf of the Filipinos.

"A Great Missionary Work That Is Certain to Promote Christian Civilization."

The extension of a vitalizing Christianity among the Filipinos as advocated by Judge Taft both before his speech of acceptance of the nomination to the presidency and in that document itself has been widely commented upon in the pulpits of the United States. The voice of the clergy has given earnest commendation to the attitude of Judge Taft, who when governor general of the islands exerted the utmost influence for amelioration of the condition of the inhabitants of the archipelago, and that, too, at the cost of great self sacrifice on his own part in refusing the seat on the supreme bench, to which he was both called and commanded by President Roosevelt.

Never since he first assumed the burden of the governorship of the Philippines has the welfare of the Filiponos ceased to be close to the heart of Judge Taft. In his speech of acceptance again he reminded the Americans that it is the duty of this country as a strong, Christian and enlightened nation to give spiritual as well as material aid to the distant brown brethren.

Taft's Appeal to Church.

Rev. Albert Hurlstone, pastor of Roberts Park church, Indianapolis, Ind., in a recent sermon thus spoke of Judge Taft's appeal to the Christian people of America:

"Mr. Taft used words of wisdom in referring to this question in his notification speech. His appeal is not only to his party, but it is to the Christian church of America. It seems to me that every man whose heart beats loyally to Jesus Christ must rejoice in the statement so truthfully made. Mr. Taft said: 'We have established a government with effective and honest executive departments in the Philippines and a clean and fearless administration of justice; we have created and are maintaining a comprehensive school system which is educating the youth of the islands in English and in industrial branches; we have constructed great government public works, roads and harbors; we have induced the private construction of 800 miles of railroad; we have policed the islands so that their condition as to law and order is better now than it has ever been in their history.'

"Mr. Taft is better fitted to speak on this question than any other man in the government today by virtue of his close connection with the problem, his experience and personal observation of the work being done; hence what he says will be heeded by the Christian church with intense interest.

Influence of Christian Civilization.

"More than ten years before Dewey sailed into Manila, Bishop Thoburn, our missionary bishop for fifty years in India, predicted that ere long the missionary would find an open door in the Philippines, but God alone knew how the door was to be opened.

"Now we hear Mr. Taft saying: 'We are engaged in the Philippines in a great missionary work that does our nation honor and is certain to promote in a most effective way the influence of Christian civilization. It is cowardly to lay down the burden until our purpose is achieved.' True, nor do we believe that the American people will allow this to be done. The sacrifice has been made, the song of the redeemed people will ere long fill heaven and earth with gladness. The selfish are ever lonely and joyless, but they who bring the sacrifice to the altar will find the joy of the Lord arise within them."

"According to His Folly."

"'Shall the people rule?' is declared by the Democratic platform and candidate to be 'the overshadowing issue now under discussion.' It is no issue. Surely the people shall rule; surely the people have ruled; surely the people do rule." Thus Candidate Sherman replies to Candidate Bryan, and if the latter was looking for a straight answer he certainly got it. But those familiar with the mental processes of Mr. Bryan know that he would welcome no reply, but that his absurd question was asked to instil doubt in the minds of his more thoughtless followers.

Democratic Discouragement.

At the risk of calling down upon ourselves further execrations from a few of the faithful and fanatical we make bold to remark that the indifference of the South Carolina Democrats to the cause of Mr. Bryan seems to justify our prediction some months ago that the campaign would end with the Denver convention. We wish that we could be disillusioned; we wish that the Democrats of South Carolina and of the country would sharply rebuke us for saying that there was an absence of enthusiasm for Mr. Bryan.—Charleston News and Courier (Dem.).

Making or Keeping Promises.

The difference between Mr. Taft's promise of tariff revision and Mr. Bryan's pledges in the same direction is that Mr. Taft if elected will be in position to redeem his pledge, while Mr. Bryan if elected would be powerless to accomplish anything with a Republican senate arrayed against his free trade plans.—Omaha Bee.

Whatsoever circle, King's Daughters, will meet next Monday evening at 7.45 with Mrs. Walter Baker of Arlington street.

Work has begun on the corner of Hancock and Atlantic streets where the corner is to be graded and opened for an entrance to the boulevard.

The Universalist church will resume services, after the summer vacation, on Sunday at 10.30 A. M., when Rev. F. W Burnell will preach.

The services of the Wollaston Unitarian church will be resumed Sunday, September 13 and candidating for the selection of a minister will be begun.

At the twentieth annual reunion of the descendants of the old Packard family held at Grand Army hall, Brockton ,on Wednesday, Elisha Packard of Quincy was elected vice president for the ensuing year.

Mrs. W. W. Adams and Mrs. W. R. Bateman have the sympathy of their many friends in the loss of their brother, William Cushing Lincoln, who died in Chicago, Aug. 26, aged 68 years. The body was brought east, the interment being at Hingham.

The law requires that persons wishing to register as voters must present their tax bills or notices from the Assessors. All who neglect this precaution will have to wait until others who comply with the law have been attended to. 2t

PHARAOH THE OPPRESSOR.

This Is the Rameses Who Looms Ove the Egypt of Today.

Like a cloud, a great golden cloud, a glory impending that will not, cannot be dissolved into the ether, he (Rameses) loomed over the Egypt that is dead; he looms over the Egypt of today. Everywhere you meet his traces; everywhere you hear his name. You say to a tall young Egyptian, "How big you are growing, Hassan!"

He answers, "Come back next year, my gentleman, and I shall be like Rameses the Great."

Or you ask of the boatman who rows you, "How can you pull all day against the current of the Nile?" And he smiles, and, lifting his brown arm, he says to you, "Look; I am as strong as Rameses the Great."

This familiar fame comes down through some 3,220 years. Carved upon limestone and granite, now it seems engraven also on every Egyptian heart that beats not only with the movement of shadoof or is not buried in the black soil fertilized by Hapi. Thus can inordinate vanity prolong the true triumph of genius and impress its own view of itself upon the minds of millions. This Rameses is believed to be the pharaoh who oppressed the children of Israel.—Robert Hichens in Century.

THE LANGUAGE PUZZLE.

China's Forty Thousand Signs and Symbols to Perplex the Linguist.

The language known as Wen-li is the medium by which the classical books of China have been handed down. It is par excellence the written language of China, but it is not generally understood by the great mass of the people. The spoken language—namely, Mandarin—may also be written, and there is a good deal of colloquial literature in Mandarin. Versions of the Bible in the local patois have also been produced in several districts of the southwest, where the dialects are very numerous and diverse.

In the Chinese written language there are over 40,000 distinct characters or symbols, and this vast number is being constantly increased by the addition of new characters to represent new scientific words and modern ideas.

Although the Chinese are considered a literary people and have naturally a desire for education, yet owing to the extreme difficulty of mastering the Chinese characters it is estimated that only one in ten of the population can read or write.—Contemporary Review.

Storm Talk.

"Shipwreck affects people in odd ways," said the captain, beaming brightly on the two rows of ladies at his table in the saloon.

The wind roared, a great wave shook the boat, and a matron, with a low cry, received a plate of hot soup in her lap.

"An Indian colonel," the captain resumed, "rushed to the bathroom when his boat sprung aleak and drowned himself in the tub out of sheer terror.

"There was an Anglo-Indian actor who broke a pretty girl's leg by hurling his heavy cabin trunk down into the lifeboat on her. Of course we slung the trunk overboard at once, but there was the broken leg, not so easy to get rid of.

"Some men in a wreck proceed to get drunk. They think if they secretly drink a lot they'll appear very game. The result is that when the rescuing party arrives these men are lying paralyzed about the deck."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Still Susceptible.

He was a nervous, fidgety young man, and he looked with considerable apprehension at the woman next him, who held a baby, its face covered with a thick veil. The baby gave now and then a sharp cry, which the woman evidently tried to suppress.

At last, after many anxious glances, the young man spoke.

"Has—has that baby any—anything contagious?" he asked.

The woman looked at him with a mixture of scorn and pity.

"'Twouldn't be for most folks," she said in a clear, carrying tone, "but maybe 'twould for you. He's teething."

The Adventurous Feline.

"Hello! Is this the electric company? Do you take cats down? Yes, cats! One is on a pole and crying just terribly. She must have been up there a week, for she's just as thin— What? Oh, this is Fifty-ninth avenue! A big dog is barking at her, too, and she—What street? Why, I don't know. I don't live on this street, do I? Oh, yes, of course! Bristol street, the druggist says. Oh, will you? You are so good! And a man just said she is playing with the transformer and might short circuit herself or something. Well, thank you very much. I am so glad! Goodby!"—Success Magazine.

The Considerate Wife.

"Mrs. Rogers is a perfect slave to her husband."

"What does she do?"

"Would you believe it? Every year on his birthday she gets up in time to eat breakfast with him."—Judge's Library.

Short Memory.

"My wife," growled Hadley, "is the most forgetful woman."

"Indeed!" queried his friend politely.

"Yes. She can never remember in the morning where I left my pipe the night before."—Philadelphia Press.

Make yourself a sheep and the wolves will eat you.—Italian Proverb.

CHARACTER READER.

Dr. F. H. Roscoe of Providence, R. I., occupied the platform on Sunday. His subject in the afternon "The Influence of the human tongue for good or evil on Humanity;" in the evening "Death." The subjects were well chosen and handled in the speaker's most effective style, replete with beautiful thoughts. A description of his lecture is out of the question. A large audience listened to him with the closest attention throughout.—From a Lynn paper.

Mr. Roscoe has also given a course of lectures in Willard hall, Washington, D. C., and met with great success.

AMUSEMENTS.

Keith's Theatre.

Of all the vaudeville artists who entered the legitimate field, none made a greater success than Ezra Kendall. In "The Vinegar Buyer" and his other plays, he was always the same Kendall that for years had delighted Keith audiences, and now his return to vaudeville for the first time in eight years, at Keith's theatre, is an event of more than ordinary interest. Kendall is without question the greatest of all monogolists and one of the most effective story tellers. His fun is continuous. On the same bill with him, held over for another week, will be "The Love Waltz," the Viennese opera with its splendid music, unique waltzes, and its now famous kiss, which last week proved one of the strongest attractions ever secured for vaudeville.

Colonial Theatre.

"Commencement Days" at the Colonial theatre, Boston, is an entertainment in every sense of the word. The play itself, with its simple story charmingly told, is well acted throughout and the good impression which it made at the very start, has been enhanced by repetition. Like all new plays there have been changes made since the opening night and these are all for the better. At the very opening of the play a new scene is introduced that is replete with action. In the last act, an interpolated comedy love scene is irresistably funny and adds immensely to that act. The entire cast is working with a will and the performance runs with that smoothness that usually is not acquired until several weeks of a new play have been passed.

Boston Theatre.

The engagement of Denman Thompson at the Boston theatre, is proving one of the most important ever given in the Hub, for many seasons, and the attendance is breaking all records. There is no doubt that this is largely due to the fact that Mr. Thompson, with whom this great play will always be identified, and who is now seventy-five yeasr of age, is appearing. In fact for a number of years, although "The Old Homestead," enjoys the same popularity everywhere, Mr. Thompson has not apeared as Joshua Whitcomb, except in the larger cities, New York, Boston and Chicago. His present appearance was decided upon through arrangements made with Mr. B. F. Keith, and the remarkable powers of the man has been the subject of general comment all week. Seats have been on sale for the entire four week's engagement, and the demand has been unprecedented.

Castle Square Theatre.

The production of "The Devil" at the Castle Square theatre has been a veritable triumph, and a complete justification of the faith of the management in its popularity. One week has been far from enough to satisfy the demands of the many who want to see this latest dramatic sensation, and Messrs. Gulesian and Craig have therefore decided to respond to the public appeal and continue its performances a second week, beginning next Monday evening. Its production in Boston has, in fact, made as great a hit as it has in Europe and in New York, where the play is running to large audiences at two theatres and its presentation by the John Craig Stock Company has been pronounced fully equal, if not superior to its performances elswhere. "The Three of Us" is in preparation to follow "The Devil," and in it Miss Mary Young will have the role of the heroine, while Donald Meek, Mabel Colcord, and Kate Ryan will at the same time reappear on the Castle Square stage.

Orpheum Theatre.

Boston society folk have followed the example of those in New York and Newport ,and have taken up Williams and Walker, the two colored comedians as a fad. It is the usual thing now to see several hundred limousines, touring cars and taxicabs standing at the entrances to the Orpheum theatre in Boston, waiting for their gorgeously gowned society owners to return from the performance of "Bandanna Land." Bandanna Land" is the best musical comedy that Williams and Walker have ever had. It gives them more opportunities, and the dance and song numbers are unusually good. "Bandanna Land" remains at the Orpheum for only a short time.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

SIMPLE SERVICES

Business Men And Editors Attend Funeral of George W. Prescott

Simple, in accordance with the wishes of the family, were the services that marked the last tribute of the living to the dead, Saturday afternoon, when all that was mortal of George Washington Prescott was laid at rest at Mt. Wollaston.

The services were held at his late home, 41 Spear street, and they were attended by a large number of newspaper men, old time friends and associates and city officials. As a remark of respect to one who had been in active business life for the past 55 years, the flags on City Hall and other buildings were placed at half mast and business was suspended in City Square during the hour of the services.

Rev. Dr. W. S. Perkins of Wakefield, a recent pastor of the First Universalist church, at which Mr. Prescott had been a long attendant, officiated, assisted by Rev. Ellery Channing Butler, pastor of the First church.

Rev. Mr. Butler read the scripture, "I am the resurrection and the Life" and was followed by Rev. Dr. Perkins, who spoke at length on the life and character of him who lay so silently before him. Dr. Perkins spoke of the long business life of Mr. Prescott, and of the inestimable value he had been to the community in the high standard and clean newspapers which he as editor had published. He also spoke of his constant attendance at the Universalist church, of the interest he had taken in the church, and of how much he would be missed in its councils, referring to him as one of its most loyal and devoted members for many years.

In an adjoining room was the black broadcloth covered casket which was almost hidden by a wealth of beautiful floral tributes from business associates and friends as well as from his immediate family. Among these offerings were pieces from Mayor William T. Shea, the Massachusetts Press Association, the Suburban Press Association of New England, the Norfolk County Commissioners, Granite City Club, Adams Chapter, D. R., the wholesale paper houses of Boston and from his employes at the office of the Patriot. The latter was a fac simile of the first page of the Quincy Patriot with turned rules.

The burial which was at Mt. Wollaston was private. The bearers were City Clerk Harrison A. Keith, representing the city, John Q. A. Field, representing the Granite City Club, George W. Morton a neighbor and long time friend, E. H. Pierce of the Revere Journal, Capt. C. C. Doten of the Old Colony Memorial, Plymouth, and Hon. C. J. McPherson of the Framingham News, the latter three representing the Press Associations.

Among those present were Mayor William T. Shea, City Solicitor, J. W. McAnarney, City Treasurer, John Curtis, City Clerk Harrison A. Keith, City Auditor Henry O. Fairbanks, City Physician Henry C. Hallowell, ex- Mayor John O. Hall, Councilman George W. Abele, Rev. Daniel M. Wilson of Northfield, a former pastor of the First church; Rev. A. R. Atwood, pastor of the Washington street Congregational church; Henry F. Tilden president of the Granite City Club, R. D. Chase president of the Quincy Cooperative Bank, representatives of the wholesale paper houses, and many of the local business men and members of the Granite City club.

The members of the Massachusetts and Suburban Press Associations were represented by J. O. Hayden of the Somerville Journal, E. H. Pierce of the Revere Journal, A. M. Bridgeman of the Stoughton Record, Fred F. Green of the Quincy Advertiser, Capt. C. C. Doten of the Old Colony Memorial, Plymouth; William White of the Mansfield News, Hon. C. J. McPherson of the Framingham News, George C. Fairbanks of the Natick Bulletin, Martin E. Hawes of the Weymouth Gazette, Alexander Starbuck of the Waltham Free Press, Joe M. Chapple of the National Magazine, R. S. Barrows of the Jamaica Plain News, Dr. Loring W. Puffer of Brockton and Joshua S. Smith of Rockland.

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolutions on the death of George W. Prescott were adopted at the meeting of the Granite City club Saturday evening. They will be spread upon the records and a copy forwarded to the family. Mr. Prescott was one of the oldest members of the club.

"Integer vitae scelerisque purus."

Whereas, the ever unwelcome death angel has called from our number George W. Prescott, full of years and of honor;

Resolved,—that sympathizing with his family in a personal bereavement, we, the members of the Granite City Club, cherish his memory as a model of integrity and of industry, who has filled for many years an honorable position in the community and who has endeared himself to us in his hours of relaxation by a geniality of disposition which obscured the scars of age, and by an absolute cleanness of life and conversation.

Resolved,—That these resolutions be spread upon the records of the club, and that a copy be sent to the family of the deceased.

Attempt at Kidnapping

A woman running down School street with a child, followed by a second woman screaming for help, attracted quite a crowd this morning. According to Mrs. Catherine Lahey, the second woman, the woman with the child was Miss Margaret Lahey, her sister-in-law, and the child was her 3-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Lahey says that her husband left her last week, and this morning while she was in a store at Brewers corner with her little daughter, her sister-in-law grabbed the child and ran toward School street with it. She ran screaming after her child, collecting quite a crowd of people. At this the fleeing woman stopped, and the child was restored to her mother.

Staff Captain J. A. Joelson, divisional officer of the Boston division, will be in Quincy on Thursday and conduct the meeting in the evening at 8 o'clock in the Army hall on Granite street.

The officers of the local work are laying there plans for having the annual harvest festival for the benefit of the Army's work. The days are set for September 24-26. Gifts in any form for the festival will be gratefully received, also cash donation to enable local corps carrying on their work here in Quincy.

In this convention Capt. Carl E. Carlson desires the Daily Ledger to say that the local army is in need of support, and should receive the charity of the Quincy people before assistance is given to the Boston Army. Friends should address 150 Granite street,

AUTO FREIGHT

Miller's Express Makes Two Very Successful Long Trips

On Tuesday and Wednesday Sept. 8 and 9, two trips of unusual interest were made by Gilbert M. Miller with one of the Frayer—Miller trucks with Jimmie Canfield at the wheel. The trip on Tuesday was from Quincy to North Swansea and return, to move furniture of the Rev. Mr. Davis the new pastor of Calvary Baptist church. The truck left Quincy about 8.30 A. M. and went by the way of Brockton to Taunton. Owing to a bridge being closed it had to make a detour of several streets to get to Taunton. From Taunton the route was down the State road toward Providence until the old Anawan house near the Dighton road was reached, there turning across country for about eight or nine miles to the Fall River—Providence state road, going within four miles of Providence, thence to North Swansea. The truck was loaded with nearly four tons of Furniture and books and left about 4 P. M.

On returning it made a slight change in route, going to Taunton to Bridgewater to Brockton to Quincy. There was a delay of about ninety minutes by running into a soft spot on the road near Brockton, where a water pipe had been put in. The truck arrived in Quincy about 10.15 P. M. The trip was as near as could be figured about 90 miles requiring four hours going and five and one half coming back.

On Wednesday the trip was to Hopkinton, from Milton, with a load for George O. Sands, who is with the State Gypsy Moth Commission. For trying out a car it is an ideal trip. They left Milton at 11 A. M., going by the way of Dedham, Medfield, Millis and Holliston. They commencedd to find hills about the time Medfield was reached and on arriving at Holliston were informed that the road from Holliston to Hopkinton was used only for coming down the hill, and that a horse couldn't pull an empty wagon up. They took the road to South Framingham, to Ashland and commenced to hit the hills again the entire four miles between Ashland and Hopkinton. The worst road in the two trips was here, the hills being of soft sand. The car worked beautifully, taking the grades in fine shape. The last hill, going to Hopkinton has a rise of 150 feet in one half mile, and the entire rise from Ashland to Hopkinton is 300 feet in four miles. We were told in Hopkinton that there wasn't a touring car in the place or nearby of less than 75 horse power and several of 125. When one considers the truck used of 24 horse power, with two tons of furniture, it was a feat to be proud of. Just as they reached the top of the last hill the speed lever broke, and on the return they tied what was left of the lever so the car was in high speed and never changed it all the way to Quincy making only three stops to oil up and then only on a hill, so the car could start with its own momentum. It returned in less than four hours by the way of Ashland, South Framingham, Natick, Wellesley, Needham, Dedham to Milton. Taking a wrong turn they were down to the Chocolate mills before they knew it, but turning back the truck went up Milton hill on high speed, a remarkable performance for a car, and arrived in Quincy about 10 P. M.

The return trip was made in less than four hours, the car being in perfect condition.

The next morning a new speed lever was fitted and the car made its trip to Boston, these trips prove that Abbot & Miller can move anything, anywhere the same day. They were two great trips the firm are proud of them.

Would Make The World Better

On Sunday evening a deeply interested audience heard Mr. F. H. Roscoe of Providence, R. I., lecture upon "Make the World better." The lecture was replete with beautiful thoughts. He quoted from Benjamin Franklin, who said the best way to serve God was to do something for God's other children. He also refered in very eloquent language to the late Lucy Stone the well known Woman Suffragist, whose last words were, "Make the world better." He spoke eloquently of her sacrifice for the benefit of humanity.

He also spoke of Senator Hoar and Wendall Phillips, saying that Mr. Phillips never left his home without the approval and sanction of his invalid wife. He spoke very feelingly of Abraham Lincoln, America's greatest American, and also what the world owed to Thomas Edison whom he believe to be the greatest mind living of the present age. He quoted from Henry Wadsworth Longfellow very eloquently.

In fact he held his hearers spellbound for over forty-five minutes and all who heard the lecture pronounced it an intellectual treat. Many were the congratulations showered upon him and many were the urgent requests that he soon return to Quincy.

After the lecture he gave many character readings which were all pronounced absolutely correct in every instance.

The parlors were very beautifully decorated with flowers presented by Mrs. Packard, a well known resident of Quincy. A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. George M. Morse proprietors of the Hotel Greenleaf for their liberality in getting Mr. Roscoe to come to Quincy.

Contest For County Commissioner

It looks as though there would be a contest at the Republican caucuses over the election of delegates to the County convention. Ex-Senator Eugene H. Sprague, who is opposing Commissioner John F. Merrill is to make a hard fight for the Quincy delegation.

The one list of delegates filed in Ward Four is said to be for Mr. Sprague, and he also has lists in Wards One, Three, Five and Six.

Mr. Merrill also has lists in all Wards except Ward Four, so that in at least four out of the six wards there will be a contest for delegates. The caucuses will be held Tuesday, Sept. 22.

CHILD KILLED

While at Play Ran In Front Of Electric Car On Water Street

Fannie Galer, the 9 year daughter of William Galer of 333 Water street, was run over by an electric car almost in front of her home early Saturday evening, and received injuries from which she died a little later at the City Hospital. The car was in charge of Conductor Lewis D. Dunham, and Motorman Stephen Enman, and left East Milton for Quincy at 6.30. The car was well loaded with Saturday night shoppers on their way to City Square, and Officer Riley was riding on the front seat.

There are always a number of children playing in the street near where the accident happened and motormen always run their cars slowly on that account. In this case the conductor had given the motorman a bell to stop, and he was slowing down for the white pole. Several children were playing in the street and the little girl was running about and evidently did not see the approaching car. Suddenly she darted across the street, running directly in front of the car. The motorman shut off the power and applied the brake, doing everything possible to avoid the accident. He was too near, however, and the fender of the car struck the little girl and she rolled beneath the car.

As the little girl was being taken from beneath the car her mother crazed with grief ruched into the crowd and tried to break away from the men who tried to console her. Her cries drew a large crowd, and it was not until the arrival of a physician that the woman could be quieted. The ambulance was called, and the injured child rushed to the hospital. When the car arrived in Quincy, Officer Riley placed the motorman under arrest. When it was learned that the child was dead a charge of manslaughter was made against him, and he was held in $5000 bonds. Later in the evening he was bailed.

Mr. Enman has been in the employ of the railway company for two years, and has the reputation of being a very careful driver, and it is said he did all that human power could to avoid the accident.

Enman was arraigned in court and the case continued until Oct. 3. In the meantime the inquest will be held.

The funeral of the little girl was held Sunday. The burial was at the Jewish cemetery at Dedham, where a Rabbi conducted services.

An interesting service was held at the Bethany church, Sunday evening, when several told how they had spent their vacations. Cecil Blanchard related his experience in the west; T. King, of life at Poland Springs; E. S. Beckford, Edward Hayden and Stanley Sherman, of the conference at Northfield; Madame Morey, of the lack of religious life on the North shore; Miss Ida Thomas of the Christian Endeavor meetings at Sagamore, and W. T. Sidelinger of his experience in the woods of Maine.

Scandinavian Women Happy.

Three-fifths of the women of Norway have been given the right to vote for members of parliament, under the new Norwegian suffrage law. This was the proud report of the Norwegian delegates to the recent International Woman Suffrage Congress in Amsterdam. The Danish delegates reported that in Denmark women who were taxpayers or the wives of taxpayers had this year been given a vote for all officers except members of Parliament; and the delegates from England and Sweden, where women have had the municipal vote for many years, announced that both these countries had just made women eligible to the municipal officers from which they had hitherto been excluded.

Names Taft as His Political Heir and Successor

"OUR POLICIES ARE ALIKE"

The President, in a Letter to Conrad Kohrs, a Cattleman of Helena, Asserts That the Wage Earner and Capitalist Alike Would Be Safe Under Taft as President--Upholds Action In Labor Injunction Cases

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 14.—President Roosevelt made public today a letter sent to Conrad Kohrs of Helena, Mont., an old-time cattleman and a leading citizen of the state, in which he states why laboring men and capitalists alike should vote for the election of William H. Taft for president.

Mr. Roosevelt wrote the letter as a reply to Mr. Bryan's recent statement that he alone was the true heir to Roosevelt politically and was his natural successor to the presidency. The president's friendship for Kohrs dates from twenty years ago, when both men were members of the Montana Stock Growers' association. Mr. Roosevelt's letter in part is as follows:

The last few years have seen a great awakening of the public conscience and the growth of a stern determination to do away with corruption and unfair dealing, political, economic, social. It is urgently necessary that this great reform movement should go on. But no reform movement is healthy if it is marked by periods of frenzied advance, followed, as such periods of frenzied advance must always be followed, by equally violent periods of reaction. The true friend of reform is the man who steadily perseveres in righting wrongs, in warring against abuses, but whose character and training are such that he never promises what he cannot perform, that he always a little more than makes good what he does promise, and that, while steadily advancing, he never is led into foolish excesses.

In Mr. Taft we have a man who combines all of those qualities to a degree which no other man in our public life since the Civil war has surpassed. To a flaming hatred of injustice, to a hearty sympathy with the oppressed, he unites courage, both moral and physical, of the very highest type, and a kindly generosity which makes him feel that his fellow countrymen are his friends and brothers.

The honest man of means, the honest and law-abiding business man, can feel safe in his hands. The honest wageworker, the honest laboring man, the honest farmer, the honest mechanic or small trader or man of small means, can feel that in a peculiar sense Mr. Taft will be his representative because of the very fact that he has the same scorn for the demagogue that he has for the corruptionist and that he would front threats of personal violence from a mob with the unquailing and lofty indifference with which he would front the bitter anger of the wealthiest corporations.

Mr. Taft and I have the same views as to what is demanded by the national interest and honor. There is no fight for decency and fair dealing which I have waged in which I have not had his heartiest and most effective sympathy and support, and the policies for which I stand are his policies as much as mine.

Let Mr. Taft be judged by what he has himself done and by what the administration, in which he has played so conspicuous a part, has done.

Mr. Taft can be trusted to exact justice from the railroads for the very reason that he can be trusted to do justice to the railroads.

While in all proper ways railroad rates must be kept low, we must always remember that we have no right and no justification to reduce them when the result is the reduction of the wages of the great army of railroad men. The man to trust in such a matter as this is the man who, like Judge Taft, does not promise too much, but who could not be swayed from the path of duty. He will not favor a ruinous experiment like government ownership of railways.

What is said as to his attitude on the railway question applies to the whole question of the trusts.

If there is one body of men more than another whose support I feel I have a right to challenge on behalf of Secretary Taft it is the wageworkers of the country. A fairer and truer representative they cannot find within the borders of the United States. He will do everything in his power for them except to do that which is wrong.

Mr. Taft has been attacked because of the injunctions he delivered while on the bench. I am content to rest his case on these very injunctions. Most assuredly he never has yielded and never will yield to threat or pressure of any sort, as little if it comes from labor as if it comes from capital. His record as a judge makes the whole country his debtor.

As for the attack upon his injunctions in labor disputes I ask that the injunctions be carefully examined. They mark the judge who rendered them as standing for the rights of the whole people. As far as daylight is from darkness so far is such a judge from the time server, the truckler to the mob or the cringing tool of great, corrupt and corrupting corporations.

Let all fair-minded men, wageworkers and capitalists alike, consider yet another fact. In one of his decisions Judge Taft upheld in the strongest fashion and for the first time gave full vitality to the principle of the employers' liability for injuries done workmen. This was before any national law on the subject was enacted.

On the bench Judge Taft showed the two qualities which make a great judge—wisdom and moral courage. They are also the two qualities which make a great president.

EMPIRE STATE DRAWS ATTENTION

Her Tickets Will Have Bearing on the National Election

New York, Sept. 14.—New York state, with the national character of its politics, may fairly lay claim to the preponderance of public interest this week. Seldom has a combination of circumstances afforded a basis of lively speculation as to the effect of local action on the situation generally.

With the Republicans meeting in state convention today at Saratoga and the Democrats at Rochester tomorrow, the opposition parties will be in session simultaneously on one day at least, and neither can be charged with the advantage of laying out its own plan of battle after a peep at the others.

It has been a tradition in Democratic councils that its state convention always affords an open contest, but the present gathering threatens to resolve itself into a love feast, with the Murphy, Conners and McCarren factions shouting in unison for Mr. Bryan. However, whatever may be lacking in the way of a spectacular party contest on the floor will be more than offset in general interest by the appearance of the national candidate, who will address the convention Wednesday night.

The spectator who glories in a good fight stands a better chance of being entertained at Saratoga, where a three-cornered fight is being waged about a single candidate for governor. The forces represent those opposed to Governor Hughes, because he has nearly killed public race track gambling; those who love him for the enemies he has made, and lastly those who wish him as a prop for the national ticket. That he has become a national figure no one denies.

The importance to either party of electing the state ticket is recognized, for, as goes that ticket, so, in all probability, will go the electoral vote with its important, if not decisive, bearing on the national result. Both conventions will nominate complete state tickets.

No Sunday Political Speeches

Deer Park, Md., Sept. 14.—William J. Bryan has put his stamp of disapproval on Sunday political speechmaking. Without his knowledge the residents around Mountain Lake Park were notified to assemble there at 3 o'clock yesterday to hear him talk. Over 1200 of them gathered while Bryan, at Deer Park, was protesting to a local committee that he would make no speech. He finally was prevailed upon to shake hands with those in the assemblage, with the understanding that he should not speak and that there should be no handclapping. The people gave every evidence of their pleasure of meeting the Democratic candidate for president, and as he departed they violated their pledge and applauded him liberally.

Temperance Paraders Egged

Little Rock, Sept. 14.—During a temperance parade, two miles in length, protesting against the issue of licenses to saloons, an issue that is being voted on in Arkansas today, the marchers were assailed with eggs, some of the eggs bespattering American flags. No arrests were made. Women in the parade rolled baby buggies, containing infants, while children in white dresses sang hymns along the lines of march.

Workmen Should Enter Politics

New York, Sept. 14.—Keir Hardie, one of the leading representatives of labor in the British parliament, was loudly applauded during his address before the Central Federated Union when he urged American workmen to go into politics. A reference to the presidential candidacy of Eugene V. Debs on the Socialistic ticket brought forth applause.

Eager to Get on the Road

Cincinnati, Sept. 14.—William H. Taft's first campaigning tour will begin Sept. 23 if the candidate's present desires are observed. He indicated that he would like to talk with Chairman Hitchcock after Hitchcock has conferred in Chicago today with the western managers concerning the proposed itinerary.

Fruitless Search For Shooter

Newport, N. H., Sept. 14.—For several hours Sunday Sheriff King and a posse, with officers from Claremont, searched the woods for traces of Edward Cunningham, who on Saturday shot Elon Stickney, who thwarted Cunningham's efforts to see Miss Sarah Seavey, with whom he is in love. Cunningham made his escape to the woods after shooting Stickney. No trace of the man could be found. Stickney is not badly wounded and is expected to recover in a short time.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Tuesday, Sept. 15.
Sun rises—5:24; sets—5:55.
Moon rises—9:14 p. m.
High water—2:45 a. m.; 3 p. m.

Fair weather will continue throughout New England, with no important changes in temperature.

MANY FAINTED IN GREAT CRUSH

Enormous Crowd Witnesses Procession of Catholic Clergy

HEADED BY POPE'S LEGATE

Plans to Have Host Carried Through Streets Is Abandoned--Jeers by Those Openly Hostile, While Catholic Element Cheers Heartily--Vast Assemblage Kneels Outside Cathedral and Sings Hymns

London, Sept. 14.—A great procession of Catholic clergy brought the Eucharistic congress to an end. Cardinal Vannutelli, the pope's legate, walked at the head of the procession, wearing his scarlet robes and hat, but not carrying the host.

He was accompanied by a bodyguard of English peers and a concourse of cardinals, archbishops and bishops, who also were attired in unceremonial robes instead of vestments, which originally it had been proposed they should wear.

No such throngs of people have been seen in London since Queen Victoria's funeral. The purpose of Archbishop Bourne, the head of the Westminster diocese, and his associates who arranged the program had been to have the host carried through the streets in the rear of Westminster cathedral.

In this his idea was that the great body of Catholics who were unable to participate in any of the services within the cathedral should have an opportunity of joining in the eucharistic observances and of seeing all the high ecclesiastics present in London on this occasion.

The route of the procession was laid through the quiet streets adjacent to the cathedral, and but for the unexpected partisan strife which a discussion of this ceremony brought on, it probably would have been solemnized quietly and in a reverent atmosphere. The great majority of those who attended to witness the spectacle, however, apparently were attracted by curiosity and a small part were openly and demonstratively hostile.

The Catholic element cheered heartily while the procession passed by and throughout the crowd was also heard considerable "booing" such as the English people use in theatres to express displeasure at any of the plays.

Long before the hour set for the ceremony it was impossible to get near the line of march. All the streets leading in that direction were packed and the windows overlooking the procession, which were rented at high prices, were filled. Thousands of persons gathered on the roofs of the houses, from which there was a considerable display of the papal colors.

The police had not expected such crowds and met with much opposition in their attempts to keep the path clear, which they hardly succeeded in doing, so that the papal legate and his followers had to pass their way through a narrow lane, being frequently and unpleasantly jostled about. A number of persons fainted in the crush and were carried off by ambulances.

After the procession had re-entered the cathedral, Cardinal Vannutelli appeared on the high balcony and elevated the host, while the thousands of Catholics outside the building reverently knelt.

The vast assemblage that filled the square then sang hymns, and the members of the Catholic societies, with banners flying, marched through the streets to their halls and churches, some of them proceeding later to the stations, where the trains were waiting to take them back to the provincial centres. In the meantime the papal legate within the building pronounced the benediction and the congress closed.

Priest Suspected of Crime

Rutland, Vt., Sept. 14.—The interior of the Church of Our Lady of Sorrows, which is being constructed by Rev. Francis Crociata, the young Sicilian priest who is being held in jail awaiting trial on the charge of being connected with the murder of Accarita Santaro, was dismantled by order of Bishop Michaud. It is believed that this action is only temporary, pending the finding of the court.

The Tuberculosis Congress

Washington, Sept. 14.—By the end of this week hundreds of delegates will have arrived to attend the sessions of the International Congress on Tuberculosis, which opens Sept. 21 and will continue for three weeks. From every civilized country in the world delegates are coming. Enough United States delegates will be present to fill a volume with a list of their names.

INVESTIGATE and ECONOMIZE.

NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.

On and after September 16, we have decided

TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE

as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods

AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills ever due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every day. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and take them with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Now think this proposition over, and we feel confident that you can see it just the way that we do.

SOMETHING THAT IS NEEDED HERE IN QUINCY.

A HIGH GRADE OF GOODS SOLD AT LOW PRICES.

So Remember your 5 per cent discount.

Respectfully,

City Square, Quincy. JOHNSON BROS. Hancock Street, Corner Maple.

LOCAL AND LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE

It may cost a little more—but so does the Twentieth Century Limited

A CHAIN and ITS LINKS

In telephoning there are three links in the chain that constitutes "good service." 1. The person calling. 2. The operator. 3. The person called.

No matter how much any one or any two of these links do to develop good service, the result is determined by the measure of co-operation of the third. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link.

If the person calling fails to consult the catalogue and gives a wrong number, the operator inevitably repeats the error. If the person called fails to answer promptly and the caller leaves the telephone, naturally "there is no one on the line.

Being human, the operator—the third link—is liable to err occasionally, but careful analysis demonstrates that she is not fairly chargeable with many of the difficulties frequently ascribed to her.

If Link No. 1 Gives the Right Number and Calls Distinctly, and Link No. 3 Answers Promptly, the Telephone Company will be responsible for its part of the chain. If no higher motive actuated it, the motive of economy, or self-interest, would suffice.

From any Pay Station you can speak to any one of 300,000 telephones in the territory of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Even if he is not a subscriber, you can arrange to have the person desired called to a Pay Station to talk to you.

VOTING IN PINE TREE STATE

Issues Are Local, Rather Than of National Importance

EACH SIDE PREDICTS VICTORY

Liquor Question and Resubmission ot Constitutional Amendments to the People the Paramount Question --Sharp Contests In Congressiona Fight--Election of County Sheriffs Continues to Be a Feature

Portland, Me., Sept. 14.—With the Republicans confident and the Democrats hopeful, and with clearly defined issues of local rather than of national importance, the voters of Maine are casting their ballots today for governor, congressmen, state auditor, members of the legislature and county officials. In addition they are also asked to accept two proposed amendments to the state constitution, both dealing with the initiative and the referendum.

The election of Bert M. Fernald of Poland by at least 15,000 plurality is claimed by the Republican leaders, while their Democratic opponents predict the success of Obadiah Gardner of Rockland, who heads their ticket, by a safe margin.

The Republicans have won in Maine in every election since 1880, by pluralities averaging about 23,000 on presidential years.

For a campaign practically bereft of national questions the past four weeks has seen some of the hardest political fighting in the history of the state, and it will be no fault of the party managers if the voters do not go to the polls in large numbers or mark their ballots without the issues clearly in mind.

In addition, both candidates are well known, for Fernald is a large corn canner, one of the leading industries of the state, while Gardner was the head of the State Grange, relinquishing that position this year in order to lead the Democratic host. He is probably known either personally or by reputation by every farmer in the state.

The paramount issue in Maine is again the liquor question and resubmission of the constitutional amendment to the people. The Democrats have also put forward a plea for taxation of the wild lands and a reform in the business methods at the capital The Republicans have accepted the liquor issue and have strongly advocated the enforcement of the prohibitory law and the retention of the so-called Sturgis act, with its stringent regulation for the suppression of the liquor traffic.

Maine will send two new congressmen to Washington this year, one, through the resignation of Charles E. Littlefield, and another on account of the death of Llewellyn Powers. The Republican and Democratic candidates in the Second district are John P. Swasey and Daniel J. McGillicuddy, while in the Fourth district the two opponents are Frank E. Guerney and George N. Hanson. In the First district Congressman Allen is opposed by John C. Scates, while in the Third Congressman Burleigh is being fought by Samuel L. Gould.

County contests especially have been a feature of Maine elections for many years, as it is through the choice of a stringent or a lenient sheriff that the voters have made known their wishes regarding the regulation of the liquor traffic. There is a warm contest in each of the sixteen counties this year.

Need Not Have Prison Fare

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Sheriff Lane of Westchester county, who is a delegate to the Republican state convention, learned last night that Harry K. Thaw had been transferred from the Dutchess county jail to his custody. He telegraphed instructions to the warden of the White Plains jail to place Thaw in the hospital ward of the prison on his arrival there today. There would be no objection, he said, to Thaw having his meals sent in from a restaurant.

Guests Fled In a Hurry

Madison, Me., Sept. 14.—A fire which threatened the whole town destroyed the Hilton house and furnishings, causing a loss of $30,000, and slightly damaged two blocks. The fire is believed to have been started by a cigaret stub thrown on the piazza roof. There were about fifty people in the hotel and those occupying the second and third floors were able to escape with only the clothing they had on.

Passenger Train Wrecked

Youngstown, O., Sept. 14.—Fifteen passengers were slightly injured when a train on the Erie railway was wrecked at Grave, Pa. The train was derailed by an open switch while running at the rate of forty miles an hour. The railway officials believe the wreck was the work of parties having a grudge against the company, and are conducting their investigations upon this theory.

Mormon Converts Deported

Boston, Sept. 14.—The converts to the Mormon belief, George and Catherine Roth and Delphine Dodsworth, together with the Roth children, were sent back to England after being in the detention room of the immigration office since their arrival on Aug. 23. They were deported because the government authorities believed that they were assisted in reaching this country.

FATALLY SHOT IN BACK

Fox Hunter Received Contents of His Friend's Shotgun

Exeter, N. H., Sept. 14.—Joseph E. Langlais of Newton, Mass., was accidentally shot and killed by Herbert Pelon, also of Newton, while hunting in Brentwood. Both young men were spending the day with Langlais' father-in-law and went out in the meadows to look for a fox.

While crawling through a wire fence the trigger of the gun Pelon was carrying got caught by a wire and the contents of the gun were discharged into Langlais' body. Langlais was sixteen feet in advance of Pelon at the time and received the entire charge in the back.

Pelon picked up his companion and carried him to the house, but Langlais died before reaching there. Langlais was 24 years old and leaves a widow and daughter, as well as his parents, two brothers and five sisters.

JORDAN MAY TELL HIS DEFENSE STORY

Slight Change In His Original "Confession" to Police

Boston, Sept. 14.—Unless present plans miscarry, Chester S. Jordan may take the stand in his own defense. It is believed that he is prepared to explain that on the night his wife met her death she rushed at him in a frenzy of jealous rage, with a large butcher knife in her hand, and that to save his life and with no intention of injuring her, he caught up the first missile he could reach, which happened to be a flatiron, and hurled it at her.

Jordan will probably stick to his original story, that he temporarily lost his reason and has no recollection of events in the upper flat at 509 Medford street, Somerville, until he awoke the following morning and found the body of his wife in a pool of blood on the kitchen floor, and then in terror of being accused of murder proceeded to dispose of it.

In only one particular is there a change from the so-called "confession" Jordan made to Captain Dugan two days after the crime. Instead of standing by the story of having knocked the woman down stairs with his fist and thus causing her death, it is now planned for him to admit the use of the flatiron found by Dr. Magrath concealed in the Jordan flat, bearing human blood and woman's hair.

American Cars Break Records

New York, Sept. 14.—In the presence of a crowd of motoring enthusiasts numbering 25,000, many of whom had been at the Brighton Beach trackside since 8:30 o'clock Friday night, the American entry, driven by Mulford and Cobe, won the twenty-four-hour race of the Motor Racing association, covering 1107 miles and shattering all records. Following Mulford was another American car, driven by Michener and Lynch, which finished second with 1092 miles, also surpassing the best previous performance in a twenty-four-hour race. The Italian car was third, with 1074 miles.

Four Violent Deaths In One Family

Haverhill, Mass., Sept. 14.—Two brothers, Edmund and Rauel Saucier, aged 27 and 25 years respectively, were drowned in the Merrimac river. They attempted to land from a rowboat at Durgin's wharf, but in getting out of the boat both men lost their balance and fell into the water. Edmund was a shoemaker and Rauel was a teamster. Four years ago a brother, 12 years old, was driving a grocery team, when the horse ran away and the boy was killed. Two years later the father was blown to pieces by the explosion of a soda tank.

Killed Girl In Sunday School

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 14.—Miss Millie Bullinger, 19 years old, was stabbed to death at Newton by Lon Rader, aged 21. The girl was at the organ playing the closing hymn at Sunday school when Rader sprang across several benches and with his pocketknife stabbed her in the neck and breast. She died almost instantly. Rader was arrested. Some months ago he was committed to the state insane asylum. Recently he was discharged as cured. The deed was probably prompted by unrequited love.

Manifesto to Irish People

New York, Sept. 14.—The executive committee of the Sinn Fein League of America has issued a manifesto to the Irish people of America condemning appeals to the British parliament as useless and urging Irish-Americans to give no money or moral support to the Irish parliamentary party, whose envoys, John E. Redmond and Joseph Devlin, are about to visit this country.

Swords Brought Into Play

Budapest, Sept. 14.—Socialists yesterday created serious disturbances during the eucharistic procession which was held in connection with the Catholic congress now sitting here. The police used their swords to restore order and fifty of the rioters were arrested.

Yarn.

In the United States "right hand" yarn is yarn of which the twist slopes up to the right similar to the threads of an ordinary right hand screw. Germans call this "left hand" yarn for the reason that if held in the hand it has to be twisted to the left to twist it together, whereas twisting to the right unwinds it.

CHICAGO MOVES UP

Pittsburg Relinquishes Long Hold on Second Position

Chicago's victory and Pittsburg's defeat yesterday reversed the positions of those clubs in the National League pennant race, the Chicago team moving up to second place, where the Pittsburg club has been a fixture for some time past. The New York leaders, not scheduled to play, gain a point advantage by the transfer. The standing of the National League clubs is as follows:

THREE MORE RECORDS SMASHED

Great Crowd Witnesses Experiments With Aeroplane

Washington, Sept. 14.—In two flights at Fort Myer Orville Wright in the "Wright Flyer" broke three records. Staying up over nine minutes in the first flight, in which Major Squier, acting chief signal officer, accompanied him, Wright broke the record for a two-man flight which he established last Tuesday.

In the second flight Wright broke the record for time and distance of a heavier-than-air flying machine, which he established Friday, by remaining in the air for one hour, fourteen minutes and twenty-four seconds. In this flight he also went higher than an aeroplane has ever gone, rising to an altitude of 250 feet.

Wright also maintained a higher speed than in his other flights at Fort Myer, traveling around the drillgrounds at the rate of 38.75 miles an hour on the first flight, when Squier accompanied him. The distance of this fight sons 5.88 miles. A crowd of 5000 persons gathered to wtness the flight and their enthusiasm knew no bounds.

Cleaning Up Atlantic City

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 14.—Acting under instructions from Prosecutor Goldenburg, representing Governor Fort, twenty-five detectives yesterday raided several of the largest negro gambling houses in the city, capturing sixty inmates. The raids were made over the head of Chief of Police Woodruff and the city authorities, who knew nothing of the roundup until an order was sent to city hall for the police patrol.

Candle Started Explosion

New Bedford, Mass., Sept. 14.—Mark L. Shaine was fatally injured and Henry LaGrange was badly burned in an explosion on board the United States government tug Nina, attached to the first submarine flotilla here. Shaine was in the forehold mixing paint and had with him a candle. While pouring out turpentine or gasolene it is believed the candle ignited the fumes of the liquid, causing an explosion.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Frank V. Bennett, former manager of the Hotel Gotham, New York, and a protege of Dan R. Hanna, son of the late Mark Hanna, committed suicide by shooting in the Hotel Gotham. Bennett had suffered serious financial reverses in the stock market recently.

The big plant of the Franklin County creamery at St. Albans, Vt., was destroyed by a fire of unknown origin, causing a loss of over $75,000. The plant used the milk of 1000 dairies.

King Alfonso and Queen Victoria of Spain will shortly make a visit to Munich, Dresden and Budapest.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

Mrs. C. H. Field of Pleasant street is visiting for a few days at Pawtucket, R. I.

The Ernest Workers Lend-a-Hand club will meet at the home of Miss Edna Sanborn on Tuesday, Sept. 15.

Walter H. Cobb is having his vacation. One of his first acts of his vacation was to arrest a man for drunkness.

Mrs. Emma S. Moore and Albert Hayden sang a beautiful duet at the Sunday morning service at the Bethany church.

Ground was broken this morning for Mrs. Cushing Lane's new house on Presidents Hill. Mr. Dimmock is the builder.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Rice of adams street will return this week to their delightful summer resort at Peterboro, N. H.

Mrs. Joseph Riley has returned to her home in Somerville, after spending three weeks with her mother Mrs. Mary Donavon of Chubbuck street.

Rev. Daniel C. Carey, C. S. P,. was home last Friday for a few hours. He left Friday Evening for Chicago where he is stationed for the present.

Mr. and Mrs. Weston W. Osborne and two daughters will enjoy a Canadian trip the next two weeks visiting Montreal, Quebec, and the Saguenay river.

A large delegation of the members of Adams chapter, Daughters of the Revolution left this morning by electric car for Hingham for their annual outing. They will be the guests of Mrs. Martin Stoddard, a member of the society, and Miss Willard, and will make a tour of historic Hingham.

Mrs. James T. Costello of Wollaston avenue accompanied by her daughters, Miss Louisa and Miss Beatrice Costello, have returned from New York. They went over to see her son James, off for the Philippines Islands. Mr. Costello will be gone eight months and will visit Japan and China before his return to Wollaston.

Runaway

A horse attached to a wagon of the wet wash laundry, and driven by a small boy, ran away in City square this noon. The horse came up Hancock street on the dead run, the boy holding on for dear life. As the horse turned into Granite street the animal fell, and the boy jumped out. Regaining his feet, the horse turned into the driveway of Penniman's stable where he was stopped.

Republican Barbecue.

While there is general regret that the Republicans of Massachusetts are not to have the pleasure of greeting Judge Taft, the presidential candidate of the party at the big barbecue at the Point of Pines on Tuesday, the committee in charge of the affair have been diligent in their endeavors to give to the people who attend the big event the character of oratory they desire at a gathering of this magnitude and description.

Quincy Post Office.

Letters unclaimed for week ending Monday, Sept. 14:

Cyreal F. Bourke, Jr., Angelicchio Ciriaco, John Herbison, Mrs. Louise Howland, Emma Jehr, Wilha Kauppinen, James Lyons, Miss Annie MacKinnon, Claude Natattoll, Hubert McDonald, Meriam Louise McDonald, Miss Bella McQueen, P. Peterson, John Rogers, Louis C. Spreckles.

Last Open Race.

The last open yacht race of the season under the auspices of the M. Y. R. A. was sailed Saturday, under the auspices of the South Boston Yacht club. The Arawak, winner of the Quincy Yacht club championship, sailed in the second class and won the race. The other cape cat boats sailed in the third class. The Strideaway won first position on time allowance, the Iris second, and Busy Bee third. Other local yachts competed in the race for the special class which was won by the Zoe.

Parade of Yachts.

The annual rendezous and parade of the M. Y. R. M. was held Sunday and was participated in by 300 yachts. Practically all of the yachts of the Quincy, Wollaston and Squantum clubs participated. Each yacht flew its club colors in addition to any pennants it may have won during the season.

Although the breeze was light, the yacts made a pleasing sight as they passed the committee boat and saluted. The start was made from off Hull, and the course was to City Point, leaving Peddocks, Long and Spectacle islands on the starboard, and passing in review of the committee boat off Marine park.

Mrs. James Meaney.

Mrs. Mary Ellen Meaney, wife of James Meaney, died suddenly at her home on Standish avenue, Wollaston, September 11, after but a brief illness, her death being due to heart trouble.

Mrs. Meaney leaves a husband, two sons and five daughters, who have the sympathy of many friends and neighbors.

The funeral was held from St. John's church this morning. Requiem high mass was celebrated by the Rev. J. J. Coan. There were many beautiful floral tributes.

Papers Too Late

The Republican City Committee have thrown out the papers filed in favor of Charles H. Robinson for Congressman from the Tenth district, as they were not filed until 7.40, ten minutes after the time stated in the notice.

The papers were brought to the Republican headquarters earlier in the evening, but as they did not have the required number of names they were taken away to get more signatures. The second time they were brought back it was too late.

The gymnasium and bowling alleys at the Y. M. C. A. will be closed all this week, during which time they will be overhauled, cleaned and put in first class shape for the opening of the winter's season. Members are requested to remove their clothing from the lockers, and have same cleansed.

Atlantic Defeats The Makaria And Series Stands Two to Two

Atlantic defeated Makaria on Saturday by a score of 6 to 0. Atlantic was strengthened by the addition of Duffy and Donohue, two hard hitting outfielders who hit Michael harder than in any of the seven previous games he has pitched against them this year. The game was close and interesting up to the sixth when a pass followed by a couple of hits netted two runs. In the next innings with three on bases, Fitzgerald hit a pop fly to right, which Smith just missed, and the ball bounding badly went past him into the hollow, Fitzgerald getting three bases. He scored a minute later on Donaher's single.

Penley went into the box in the next innings and gave the Atlantics no hits.

Lehy pitched a fine game, only five hits being made off him; one of these being a scratch. Smith's throwing to bases was fine and Donaher's play on Curtis' hit in the first inning was the feature.

The umpire, although generally good, made one mistake when he robbed Nicoll of a sure two bagger which would have scored a man from second.

Liquor Raid.

Inspector Goodhue and Officer Johnson raided the house of John W. Anderson of 141 Elm street early Sunday morning. They found and seized 15 bottles of beer, 120 empty beer bottles and 16 empty whiskey bottles- Three men, who were on the premises, were arrested. Anderson will be brought into court later,

Writes of the Southern Flood

1451 Broad street, Augusta, Ga.,
Wednesday, Aug. 26, 1908.

Dear Mr. Editor:

This is a memorable day with us, in this fair southern city, and at this time, two o'clock P. M., this grandma with her brood of fine grand-children has taken refuge in the upper story to escape the raging water below to, we had to leave piano, roll-top desk, bookcase, writing desk, side-stairs. Alas! after tugging everything that our strength proved equal board, gas stove and range to their sad fate. The "calico cat," and the white wyandotte hen (pet and beauty that she is) are sharing our fortunes, whatever they may be.

At the present hour, four o'clock P. M., there is a torrent of muddy water sweeping through the lower rooms, taking wall paper and plastering, as it goes, creeping into cupboard and closets, climbing up the staircase, step by step, as though trying to reach us, in our safe retreat. Outside, the fancy iron fence and hitching post have long since disappeared from view, and only a six-footer can keep his head above water.

Ten o'clock P. M. with a depth of six feet and still rising lowly, my greatest apprehension is, lest the house foundations cannot withstand the constant buffeting and may give way. Even into this fear comes the sweet refrain, "His eye is on the sparrow and I know he watches me." Without, there is darkness profound; within, we have food and drink, light and comfort.

The "calico cat" purrs contentedly before the oil heater whereon the tea kettle sings, for there must be a cup of hot stuff to cheer the father as he comes from the toil of this weary day. Just here he comes, drenched to the skin, but safe at home, "the dearest spot on earth." In order to avail himself of the only conveyance possible, (a boat) he had to pay the boatman $2.50 for one and one half miles travel.

Thursday morning, 27th. The angry Savannah still rages and roars but inch by inch is slowly receding, bringing to all, new courage and hope, with the surety that the promise given centuries ago, still holds: "The waters shall no more cover the face of the earth." "Seed time and harvest shall not fail."

Boats ply back and forth carrying strange cargoes; in one, I noticed two brown hens, apparently quite satisfied with this new mode of travel, in spite of all the watery surroundings. Some are loaded with all sorts of household goods. Others with men, women and children all seeking dry land and home.

All through the night we heard cries for help—"a boat! a boat! oh-h-h boatman come to our help," distressing as it was, we could not distinguish anything through the murky darkness. With the morning light, two men were found in the tree tops a short distance away. They had spent the entire night clinging to the branches, for dear life.

Instances of loss and suffering, are multiplied; many lives lost, many hair-breadth escapes, scores of homes swept away, many heroic rescues, of the wreck and ruin on all sides, it is impossible to give a word picture, it must be seen, to be realized, even in small degree.

Friday morning, 28th. The white hen has contributed an egg to our larder, and the water no more covers our city streets, instead, there is a two inch coating of red-brown slimy mud covering everything in the path of the flood. The whole city is without water, gas, electric lights. Trees uprooted, dangerous crevasses on all sides, making travel by night extremely perilous, yet the sun still shines.

Even in this deplorable state of things, there are compensations, as in every condition.

So true the old saying that "It is an ill wind that blows no good." It is equally true that it is an ill freshet that brings no good. So to us came a whole family Mr. Gander, with his four wives, making for any port in a storm, paddled over the fences and landed in the wash-house. As yet their owner makes no sign, and we are caring for the waifs, waiting any later developments.

My appropriation is an old arm chair of ample proportions, somewhat battered, and minus one leg, it came in on the turbulent tide, stuck fast in a bit of the garden fence left standing, and defied all the force of wind and water to tear it away, now I have it safe in my pleasant upper room , a souvenir of the greatest, most disastrous freshet in the history of Augusta, Georgia.

The Soccer League Opened Interesting Game At Quincy Point

The Fore River Soccer football team opened the New England league season on Saturday, playing a tie game with the speedy Fall River Rovers, on the Fore River grounds at Quincy Point.

A large crowd was present to see the opening game and to cheer Mayor Shea when he kicked off the ball that started the game and inaugurated the season of 1908—1909. The Mayor was cheered to the echo when he booted the pigskin far down the field, and he was forced to doff his hat several times on his way from the centre of the field to the sidelines.

Other city and Fore River officials were present with the Mayor and stayed to the finish, being among the most interested rooters present.

The big crowd had plenty of opportunities to root and cheer, for the game was replete with brilliant playing and fast team-work on both sides. The goal tenders were especially brilliant both Esblin and Eccles playing fast and sure, and stopping many shots that looked like safe goals. Elliot, McDevitt and Temple were the stars for Fore River, while Bagley and "Jess" Greenwood played a great game for the Rovers.

Athough many close shots were made, neither side succeeded in scoring in the first half. The Fall River boys broke the ice early in the second half and scored one goal on a free kick. This score of one looked pretty big for a while, but Fore River by a spectacular piece of passwork and a brilliant shot by Nuttal managed to send the ball into the cage and tie the score. Fall River then got two more in quick succession and were leading 3-1, when an unfortunate accident ocurred.

Bagley of the Rovers, who has the reputation of being a rough player, kicked Hendry of Fore River in the groin and sent him to the ground. The crowd aroused to a high pitch of anger at this unsportsmanlike act rushed onto the field, and if it had not been for one or two cool heads, Bagley would have been severely used. As it was he received pretty bad treatment and had to be carried from the field, while the game according to the rules, had to proceed without him. Bagley has been suspended several times for his rough-house tactics, and the only way to do now is to bar him from the game forever.

The Fore River boys were now anxious to get back at the Rovers, and with about ten minutes left to play and the score 3—1 against them, they played like champions. Individual ability combined with teamwork is a combination that it is hard to beat. It did not win for Fore River, but it scored two goals and tied the score.

The summary:

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. ## Delegation Barred From Quincy Ballots

The papers filed with the Democratic City Committee in favor of Frank J. Linehan for Congressman from the tenth district have been thrown out, as they contained but forty signatures, when they should have had seventy

On the night that the papers were filed Cornelius D. Austin, manager for Congressman O'Connell, protesteg the papers on account of the small number of signature.

William J. Sullivan, manage for Linehan, claimed the papers were all right. The committee put it up to the City Clerk Keith.

Mr. Keith states it was for the committee to decide the protest but as the papers did not obtain the required number of signatures names of delegates would not be printed on the ballots.

LAWN PARTY.

Mrs. Edward R. Frost entertained a number of her lady friends by a lawn party on Saturday afternoon and evening at her home on Farrington street, Wollaston. Thirty-two comprised the party, all being members of a Boston gymnasium class of which Mrs. Frost is also a member. Tennis, croquet and other games were enjoyed in the afternoon. Later refreshments were served. As the evening advanced Japanese lanterns were lighted through the grounds lending a very pleasing effect to the scene. After enjoying the hospitality of their hostess the party left on the 9.13 train for Boston.

Depot Robbed.

The Quincy Adams depot was entered early Sunday morning and $13 in money taken from the ticket office. The parties gained entrance by forcing a rear window.

TODAY'S COURT.

Perley Choate was arraigned for larceny at Holbrook. Case continued until Nov. 7, at which time he will pay the cost amounting to $13.47.

Frank McNeil, James Sullivan and John J. Coffey were fined $5 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Harry Morrissey was fined $15 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Dennis F. Russell was fined $10 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Andrew N. Winslow was fined $20 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at the Blue Hills reservation.

Stephen L. Enmen was arraigned for manslaughter at Quincy. Case continued until Oct. 3. In the meantime the inquest will be held.

John F. Reagan was fined $15 for drunkenness at Quincy.

John Zock and Peter Peterson were fined $15 each for disturbing the peace at Weymouth.

George Pinkham was fined $5 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

John F. Reagan was fined $25 for carrying a loaded revolver at Braintree.

—At Randolph on Saturday the Randolphs defeated the Deweys of Weymouth 5 to 2.

NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.

On and after September 16, we have decided

TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE

as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods

AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills ever due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every day. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and take them with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Now think this proposition over, and we feel confident that you can see it just the way that we do.

Half Time.

There will be a mothers' meeting at the Washington school, Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at which Supt. Frank E. Parlin will speak. There has been much dissatisfaction and misunderstanding among the parents because the children of Grade I have been forced to go to school on half time. They think that the children do not thus receive the full benefit of the school.

Good solid reasons have been brought forward by the School Board to show that this half-time system is just as good, if not better than the full time system; and Friday afternoon Supt. Parlin will explain these reasons to the parents. All parents, as well as others interested, are invited to attend.

—Over 228,000 young men were enrolled in 125 European universities last year. The university of Berlin had 13,884, that at Paris 12,985; the university of Budapest 6,551 and Vienna 6,205.

CITY COUNCIL

Busy Session After Vacation Hearings Ordered On Many Streets

One of the most important meetings of the City Council held this year was that of Monday night. The Committee on Streets, which had before them over 75 petitions and orders, some of which were legacies as far back as 1905, reported on practically all of these matters. Many petitions for new streets were given leave to withdraw. Petitions for sidewalks and cross walks were referred to the Executive.

Specific repair orders were reported on some streets and seven public hearings were ordered on new streets.

Councilmen Ferguson, Freeman, Hogan and McGilvray were absent.

SUNDAY OPENING.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Chief of Police in answer to the request as to what prosecutions were made and what places were open for business on certain Sundays contrary to law.

The Chief named several places that he had found open on these days which he said he had closed. The communication was placed on file.

PRIVATE WAYS.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the City Solicitor in answer to certain questions. One of these was—if the city did any repairs on a private way if it made a public way of the same. The second was—if the city could light a private way and not incur any liability.

The answer to the first question was, that the mere fact that the city has made repairs on a way does not make it a public way. "If the city should be sued for damages resulting to a traveller while in the exercise of due care, and while travelling over a private way, within the city limits upon which the city has within six years made repairs, it would be estopped from denying the existence of the way as a public way."

In answer to the question of lighting private ways the reply in brief was, that "the city in the exercise of its police powers may enter upon and light a private way," "treating it as a legitimate exercise of their police powers in the same manner that they exercise the right to patrol such ways."

The City Solicitor also stated in his reply that these questions were not proper ones to ask of him, as they did not relate to matters now pending before the City Council. That the questions were hypothetical ones, and it was uncertain what was meant by the word "liable" used in the question.

The communication was placed on file.

WATER EXTENSIONS.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Commissioner of Public Works, inclosing a schedule showing the amount and cost of water pipe laid during the present year, and asking for an appropriation of $5,000 to make extension, of which there was absolute need. Referred to Committee on Water Supply.

HEALTH APPROPRIATION.

A communication from the Mayor with enclosure from the Board of Health asked for an appropriation of $1,500 for miscellaneous expenses and contagious diseases. Referred to Committee on Health.

ELECTION OFFICERS.

The Mayor appointed Patrick J. Murphy as deputy inspector of Ward One, precinct two, in place of Alex Marnock declined; Henry P. Furnald as deputy inspector of Ward One, precinct two, in place of Arthur W. Ryder; Arthur W. Ryder as inspector of Ward One, precinct two, in place of Isaac M. Holt, declined. Confirmed.

DRAW BRIDGES.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from Water department stating that the board of officers of the Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army, will hold a public hearing Tuesday, Sept. 22, at 10.30, as to the establishment of regulations to govern the opening of draw bridges in Boston harbor and its adjacent tributary waters. Referred to Committee on Water Supply.

APPOINTMENTS.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing Duncan J. McLennan a weigher of coal and measurer of wood. Confirmed.

From Mayor appointing Augustus F. Stubbs, William T. Donovan and William R. Lofgren as constables. Confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The Mayor returned without his approval the order granting a license to Sim Silverman to collect junk. After quoting the ordinance the Mayor in his letter of objection states that "one of the purposes of this ordinance is clearly to preserve a record of the names of all junk collectors, so that in the event of any violation of the ordinance or laws of the Commonwealth by the driver of a junk team, the police authorities, having his correct name, will know whom to apprehend. The record contemplated by the ordinance will be of value for future reference and can be consulted, not only by our local authorities but by other public officials who may be concerned in looking up a man's record or in endeavoring to trace stolen property.

The obvious intent of such a regulation would be defeated by permitting a driver of a junk team to obtain a license under an assumed or fictitious name.

"If such a policy was adopted in this city and other municipalities it would seriously handicap the police officials in their work. In this instance Mr. Silverman's name according to his sworn declaration is Sam Silverman and not "Sim" Silverman, as set forth in the order, and while I raise no question as to his good faith in applying under the name of "Sim" Silverman, or as to his character, when the Council granted his license it should have granted it to him under his true name and not an assumed one.

"As a matter of precedent as well as of public policy I believe this license should not be issued to the applicant under the name of "Sim" Silverman, and I therefore refuse it my approval."

Veto sustained on roll call.

PETITIONS.

A petition was received from the New England Telephone Co. for a location for poles on Glover avenue, Atlantic, and on Winter street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

A petition was received from the Electric Light Co. for a location for poles on Woodbine street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

A petition was received from the Old Colony Street Railway Co. asking for a location for a curved track on Quincy avenue to connect its present lines with the private track of the Fore River Co. so that it may run its cars into the Fore River yard. Referred to Committee on Streets. Later a recess was taken after which the Committee reported an order for a public hearing Oct. 5.

Councilman Gelotte presented a petition for a sidewalk on Glendale road. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Falconer presented a petition for an arc light on Phillips street. Referred to Executive.

Councilman Broughton presented a petition to have the street railway change its tracks on Farington street from the side to the centre of the street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

A number of petitions for minor licenses were received and referred. A petition for a permit to transport liquor was received, but action on it refused as it was filed after May 1.

SCHOOLHOUSE ADDITIONS.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported an order appropriating $11,000 for a four-room addition to the Lincoln school building. Referred to Finance Committee.

STREET REPORTS.

The Committee on Streets presented the following reports:

Leave to withdraw on petitions for the acceptance of Newcomb place, Apthorp street, Irving place, Muirhead and Davis streets, Arlington street, Hill street, Mears avenue, Centre road, Dimmick street, Packards lane, Shelton road, Phillips street, Fairmount way. Accepted.

An order appropriating $800 for repairs of Baxter street. Referred to Finance Committee.

Reference to the Executive, on orders and petitions for crosswalks on Appleton and Walker streets, Newbury avenue, Union, South Walnut, Washington and Chubbuck streets, Wharf street, City Square and Chestnut street, Newbury avenue, Clive street, Botolph street, Hollis avenue, Faxon road, Jackson and Pleasant streets, Accepted.

Ought not to pass on the orders to accept Glencoe place, Wasson avenue, Barry street, Doble street and Ocean street. Accepted.

An order appropriating $600 for resurfacing Billings street. Referred to Finance Committee.

An order appropriating $450 to complete work on Broadway, Ward Two, Referred to Finance Committee.

An order appropriating $1,700 to complete work on Smith street. Referred to Finance Committee.

Ought not to pass on the order appropriating $400 for repairs on Squantum street near Farrington street. Accepted.

Reference to Executive on petitions and orders for tar concrete sidewalks on Chestnut, Foster, Washington and Maple streets, Franklin street and Independence avenue, Newbury avenue and Botolph street, Broadway, Chubbuck street, Des Moines road and Howard street, and gravel sidewalk on Hall place. Accepted.

Ought to pass on order appropriating $2,000 for resurfacing Grove street. Referred to Finance Committee.

An order apropriating $500 for resurfacing Larry place. Referred to Finance Committee.

A substitute order appropriating $1,400 for repairs of Webster street. Referred to Finance Committee.

Ought not to pass on orders for resurfacing Walker street, gravel sidewalk on Billings road, gravel sidewalk on Faxon road, gravel sidewalk on Beach street and appropriating $3000 for Farrington street. Accepted.

A substitute order appropriating $4,000 for the construction of permanent sidewalks under the betterment act. Referred to Finance Committee.

An order for a granolithic sidewalk on Kemper street. Referred to Finance Committee.

An order for a granolithic sidewalk on Warren avenue. Referred to Finance Committee.

An order appropriating $500 for repairs of Nelson street. Referred to Finance Committee.

An order appropriating $800 for resurfacing a portion of Sea street. Referred to Finance Committee.

An order appropriating $200 for repair of walk on Newport avenue. Referred to Finance Committee.

Orders for public hearings, Oct. 5, on petitions of the Electric Light Co. and Telephone Co., for location for poles and attachments. Adopted.

Orders for public hearings Oct. 5, on the acceptance of Nightingale avenue; Oct. 19, on the acceptance on Everett street, Broadway, Ward Six, Quarry street extension, Franklin avenue, Marboro street, Murdock avenue. Adopted.

MINORITY REPORTS.

Councilman Abele presented minority reports on each of the above orders. The minority recommended that the petitioners be given leave to withdraw. Councilman Abele claimed that the streets did not meet the requirements of the ordinance concerning the laying out and acceptance of new streets, and that if laid out and accepted they should be done under the betterment act.

The Council refused to accept the minority report.

Councilman Abele then offered an amendment on each of the orders, by adding the words "Such laying out to be done under the provisions of law authorizing assessment of betterments."

He spoke at length upon each but was unsuccessful.

In some cases the vote was doubted but on verification the amendment was rejected by a vote of 6 yes and 11 no.

NEW BUSINESS.

Councilman Whiton offered an order for an electric light on Woodward avenue. Referred to Executive.

Councilman Carey offered an order for $2,000 for resurfacing Howard street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Carey offered an order for $400 for resurfacing Winter street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Carey offered an order for a hearing Oct. 5 at 8.30 on repairs of Squantum street. Adopted.

Adjournment at 9.40 until Sept. 21.

Quincy Man Was Innocent

Nicholas Fosberg and Oscar Johnson, living at 32 Chestnut street, and working at the Fore River works, were arrested Monday in Boston, charged with being connected with the shooting affray in Jamaica Plain, July 21 and 22. Both the men pleaded that they were innocent and said they knew absolutely nothing of the shooting.

The police made an investigation during the afternoon, and found the two men to be innocent of any connection with the yeggmen. Both men, who are industrious and quiet, and respected by all who know them, felt their position keenly and were deeply grieved at being taken on such a charge.

Reunion of Veterans.

The old 39th Massachusetts Volunteers in which Quincy had a company, will hold their 42d annual reunion, at the Bass Point house, Bass Point, Nahant, Mass., on Tuesday, Sept. 29. This place can be reached by the trolleys which leave the the Boston and Maine station at Lynn. All the old comrades, their wives and children are invited to attend and it is hoped by the executive committee that a large number will be present.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Hiram W. Campbell has attached property of Thomas F. Mannex for $25,000.

Preparations are being made for a fair to be held in the Unitarian vestry later in the season.

Charles Ewell is building a large garage and swimming pool for Mr. Flanigan of Newton.

The engagement is announced of Miss Bertha M. Niles of Quincy and Matthew H. Sheridan of Dorchester.

Mrs. John B. Given and son Roy of 50 Hamilton street have returned from a two days' trip to Holyoke and Mount Tom.

Mrs. Charles C. Ewell left this week for Phillipston, Mass., where she will be the guest of her sister, Mrs. Cunningham, on her farm.

Dr. Francis Abele returned Sunday from Philadelphia where the American Veterinary Association have been in convention for the past week.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Wollaston Methodist church will hold a Food sale on Saturday afternoon, from 3 until 6, in the vestry of the church.

Lawrence Moran, who has been assistant engineer on the steamer Cape Cod for the past summer, returned to his home on Washington street, when his boat tied up at Baker's.

The Bay line steamer Cape Cod, which runs between Boston and Provincetown, came into Baker's basin on the afternoon tide Monday. She will be tied up in the basin for the winter months.

One of the signs that taxicabs are finding a wider range of usefulness in Boston is evidenced by the fact that several times of late these now familiar machines have been used by some of the residents of Wollaston to spin them home from the city.

Wells Quinby of Lyndon, Vt., who came to Quincy Saturday to attend the funeral of George W. Prescott, returned home today. He was accompanied home by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Furnald, who after a visit in Lyndon, will go to Sherbrooke, Canada, and return via White Mountains.

The statue to Gen. Nathaniel P. Banks on the State House grounds will be unveiled on Wednesday. The pedestal, which is a huge monolith, is surmounted by a bronze statue of Gen. Banks. The model selected by the commission for the monument is that of Henry H. Kitson of Quincy.

High Mass.

The first high mass at St. John's church since the advent of the summer months will be celebrated on Sunday, Sept. 20, at 10.30 A. M. The new Gregorian music selected by the music commission will be used. This commission was appointed by Archbishop O'Connell, and no other music but what is chosen by the commission can be used in any of the churches of New Engand.

NEW ENGLAND RESOURCES

Governors Take Action In Regard to Their Development

AN IMPORTANT CONFERENCE

Chief Executive of Bay State Outlines Plans For United Action on Matters Which Are of Vital Interest to Five States--Greater Uniformity of State Legislation Will Be Aimed at In Future Conferences

Boston, Sept. 15.—A conference of governors and other state officials of the New England states, together with prominent representatives of the various walks of life, for the purpose of formulating plans to develop the natural and business resources of this section of the country, was definitely projected at an informal gathering of the governors of five of the New England states held in this city.

The gathering, which took the form of a luncheon at the Algonquin club, was called by Governor Guild of Massachusetts, and Governors Proctor of Vermont, Floyd of New Hampshire, Higgins of Rhode Island and Woodruff of Connecticut were present. Governor Cobb of Maine had signified his approval of the idea, but the election in Maine prevented his attendance.

There were also present Herbert Myrick of Springfield, President Butterfield of the Massachusetts Agricultural college, President Ley of the Springfield Board of Trade, Master Richardson of the State Grange and Lieutenant Governor Draper. Governor Guild, in stating the purpose of the meeting, said in part:

"There is a vast field for effective effort in which we may legitimately employ our energies in co-operation between the New England states through state action and the making of state laws by which all New England may be consistently and logically developed.

"Such a convention as has been suggested might very properly concern itself, for example, with the preservation of New England forests and in connection with this the preservation and improvement of New England waterways and water powers.

"Another crying need is the necessity for united action of the states bordering on the sea for the preservation of shellfish unless, in the near future, New England is to be deprived of important articles of food supply peculiar to this region.

"Another subject that might well be considered and in which the states of New England might well work in unison is the opening up of a logical scheme of thoroughfares between leading centres of New England.

"A vast field for united action also exists in the discussion and adoption of more uniform and more progressive laws for the protection of the public health and for laws governing sanitation. The spread of tuberculosis through diseased milk, for example, can only effectively be checked in New England by the passage and rigorous enforcement of uniform laws in every one of our states.

"I have ventured to suggest a few of the topics which it seems to me such a congress might consider. At this preliminary meeting, of course, we have to settle first, whether it is wise to undertake such a movement for co-operation and uniform laws; second, if wise, who shall be invited to attend, and what shall be the basis of representation; third, what shall be the scope of such a meeting if called."

After the matter had been thoroughly discussed, it was decided that a conference such as Guild had suggested should be called for a date sometime after the presidential election and should be held in Boston. Governor Guild will preside at this gathering, and each governor will invite from his state the lieutenant governor, the attorney general, the president of the senate, the speaker of the house and the United States senators and representatives. In addition to these officials, it was decided that the governors of the different states should also invite prominent citizens representing the various walks of life to the number of two for each representative in congress and two for each senator from the New England states.

Another meeting of the governors alone will be called within a few weeks by Governor Guild to arrange more definite plans for the larger conference. Should the conference prove successful, it is expected that meetings in future years will be held in the various New England states. Greater uniformity of state legislation will be particularly aimed at, and the governors hope that a movement may be inaugurated not merely for the conservation of New England resources, but for the development of New England education, agriculture and industry.

Taft Tour to Begin In West

Chicago, Sept. 15.—Ten days of traveling with almost constant speaking have been planned for William H. Taft. The trip will be made on a special train starting from some Illinois point, probably Chicago, about Sept. 25. The tour will extend as far north as Minneapolis and Fargo, N. D., as far south as several points in Kansas and west to Denver. Taft will be back to Chicago before Oct. 7.

SACO HAS GREAT FIRE

Eighteen Houses, Lumber Yard and Factory Are Wiped Out

Biddeford, Me., Sept. 15.—Saco, across the river from this city, was swept by a disastrous fire that broke out in the lumber yard of George A. Crossman & Sons, manufacturers of box shooks, early today, causing a loss estimated at about $200,000. A million feet of lumber in the Crossman yards, valued at $25,000, and the Crossman factory, valued at $75,000, were destroyed, while the flames, fed by the inflammable material of the factory, licked up eighteen tenement houses in the vicinity.

A brisk wind prevailed at the start of the fire and, with the conflagration threatening to leap the Saco river, help was called from Portland, Dover and Portsmouth. A drop in the wind prevented the flames from getting a good foothold on the Biddeford shore, although embers started a blaze in the Diamond Match company and Folsom's block.

The fire is supposed to have been started in a pile of shavings in Crossman's yard, presumably from the pipe of some tramp, and gained great headway before being discovered.

Crossman's yard is bounded by Market street on the north side and by the Saco river on the south, and on the east by Irving street. Irving and Market streets connect, and extending from the factory on Market street to the junction of Irving street, and from Irving street back to the river are several wooden tenement houses. There was the wildest excitement among the tenants in their headlong rush for safety.

SCENTS GRAFT IN BIG PURCHASE

Boston Alderman Says That Committee "Has the Goods"

Boston, Sept. 15.—Charges of graft in connection with the recent sale to the city of the land on Ferdinand and Melrose streets for the site of a mammoth new grammar school, to be built in the Brimmer-Winthrop school district, were made in the board of aldermen by Alderman Curley yesterday.

Declaring that the land for the site had been bonded through a "straw man" by a former schoolhouse commissioner, Curley charged that the schoolhouse commission paid $100,000 more for a site for this school than was necessary.

Further asserting that property comprising the new school site could have been purchased a few weeks ago for thousands of dollars less than the city was finally asked for it, he declared that the aldermanic committee on schools "has the goods" on the seller of the land.

He also declared that the schoolhouse commission had not acted in the interest of the people of Boston in the matter, and on his motion the board of aldermen voted to request the schoolhouse commission to appear before a meeting of the aldermanic committee on schools for the purpose of investigating the charges.

Tibet Not Fully Explored

Simla, Sept. 15.—Even A. Hedin, the explorer, who started in 1906 from Chinese Turkestan on a journey through Tibet, and concerning whose whereabouts there was great anxiety for many months, has arrived here. He will soon proceed to his home in Stockholm. The explorer looks thin and weather-beaten, but he said he never felt in better health. Hedin said that he made valuable discoveries, but that there still was ample room in Tibet for future explorers.

Detectives Find Rustin's Hat

Omaha, Sept. 15.—Detectives yesterday found the hat worn by Dr. Frederick Rustin the night he was shot. It was found hanging in the hallway of the Rustin home. There is nothing to indicate that it had not hung where it was found since the shooting. Mrs. Abbie Rice, who is still held at the police station, identified the hat as the one worn by Rustin when she left him three hours before the shooting.

Maine Forest Fires Unchecked

Lincoln, Me., Sept. 15.—A crew of several hundred men is fighting a fire which is raging in the woods within one mile of Passadumkeag village, and with the fire not under control the condition of the village is considered critical. Fire in the thick woods between Bangor and Enfield has done thousands of dollars' damage to timberland in that section and it is still unchecked.

Two Held on Murder Charge

New London, Conn., Sept. 15.—John G. Bogardus, private in the coast artillery corps, and William L. Kiley of this city, charged with the murder of Dyer Copeland on Sept. 6, were held without bonds to answer to the charge in the superior court.

Breach of Diplomatic Etiquette

Sofia, Sept. 15.—J. S. Guechoff, the Bulgarian diplomatic agent at Constantinople, has returned here as a protest against the failure of the Turkish foreign minister to invite him to an official dinner given to the diplomatic body.

Cholera In The Philippines

Manila, Sept. 15.—The outbreak of cholera is reported as assuming a more favorable aspect in the provinces. A few cases are still making their appearance in this city, the victims of last week including three Americans.

FERNALD WINS MAINE CONTEST

Has Less Than Eight Thousand Plurality Over Gardner

VOTING HEAVIEST SINCE 1888

Gain In Democratic Vote Indicates That People Desire to Be Heard on Question of Resubmission of Prohibitory Law to Popular Vote--Republicans Carry All Four Congressional Districts

Portland, Me., Sept. 15.—Bert M. Fernald of Poland, Republican, was elected governor over Obadiah Gardner of Rockland, Democrat, by 7124 votes, with 51 small towns and plantations, whose total vote four years ago was 2360, to be heard from. Fernald's plurality with these missing towns is estimated at 7700.

The vote in 468 out of 519 cities, towns and plantations was: Fernald, 72,117; Gardner, 64,993.

The Republicans also elected Charles P. Hatch of Augusta, auditor; all four congressmen, Amos L. Allen, John P. Swasey, E. C. Burleigh and Frank E. Guernsey; ten out of sixteen sheriffs, and the customary majority of members of the legislature.

The Democrats had the satisfaction of seeing the normal Republican plurality cut to less than 10,000 votes for the first time on a presidential year for more than a quarter of a century. The result was much closer than any of the Republican leaders had anticipated. The Republicans were on the defensive throughout the campaign, seeking to hold the state by the usual plurality by answering the various Democratic arguments, which were mainly for resubmission of the prohibitory law, taxation of the wild lands and reform in administrative methods. But little was said of national issues, although the Republicans, through outside speakers, sought at various points to bring such subjects to the attention of the people.

Local Issues Paramount

Local issues, however, proved more popular, and in the last days of the campaign the Republicans joined with their opponents in discussing them and in doing so strongly defended the so-called Sturgis law and urged the voters to support its stringent methods in the enforcement of the cause of prohibition.

Returns in the vote for two amendments to the constitution giving the initiative and the referendum to the people are too meagre to ascertain the result.

The result of the vote for governor was a disappointment to many of the Republican leaders, who had confidently predicted before the election a plurality of 15,000 for Fernald.

The vote was the heaviest since 1888, running well up to 140,000, both parties increasing their figures of two years ago, but compared with four years ago the Democrats made heavy gains, while the Republicans fell behind. The two parties split even in the twenty cities, each capturing ten.

Politicians regard the result in the state as a sentiment by the people for a resubmission of the prohibitory law, which was the leading issue in the campaign, and also as having no bearing on the national contest, the issues of which were scarcely mentioned.

Mr. Fernald expressed himself as pleased, while Mr. Gardner refused to accept the result until the entire vote could be tabulated.

The voting was particularly heavy in the rural districts, where the Democrats, through the popularity of Gardner among the farmers, made great gains.

Democrats Pleased at Gains

Rochester, Sept. 15.—The returns from the Maine elections were received by the Democratic leaders here with much gratification. National Chairman Mack expressed himself as greatly pleased with the large gains made by the Maine gubernatorial candidate, declaring that it was an indication of a strong drift of Democratic sentiment which he had observed on his travels through the country.

Bryan Is Satisfied

Baltimore, Sept. 15.—When shown The Associated Press bulletins regarding the results of the Maine election Mr. Bryan said: "I am very much gratified at the returns from Maine. They indicate that the trend toward the Democratic party extends over the whole country; they encourage Democrats to believe that victory in November is certain."

Penetrated to Grand Falls

St. Johns, Sept. 15.—After devoting nearly three months to the exploration of the wilds of Labrador, Eugene Delane of New York and Clarke Washburn of Chicago reached St. Johns on the mail steamer. They penetrated Labrador from the seacoast to the famous Grand falls, one of the greatest cascades in the world. The falls are 300 miles from the sea and were reached only after an arduous journey of ten weeks.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Wednesday, Sept. 16.
Sun rises—5:25; sets—5:53.
Moon rises—9:52 p. m.
High water—3:30 a. m.; 4 p. m.

The indications point to generally fair weather in New England. The temperature will not change decidedly.

ADMIT CAUSE IS HOPELESS

Anti-Hughes Men Cannot Prevent Governor's Renomination

ROOSEVELT STIRS UP "ALLIES"

Reiterates Previously Expressed Opinion on the Situation--Fruitless Efforts to Find Man of Adequate Political Size to Accept Nomination --Root Deaf to Appeals to Allow His Name to Be Used

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Renomination of Governor Hughes by the Republican state convention at its session this afternoon seems the probable outcome of a battle in which most of the fighting has been done by the opposition. No stone has been left unturned by the leaders who desired and still desire to prevent the governor's nomination, and there is still a chance that they will find some way to accomplish his defeat.

At times yesterday it seemed as if they had reached some plan that might lead to success, but as the decisive moment approaches impartial observers see no means by which the defeat of the governor can actually be accomplished, and the anti-Hughes leaders themselves begin to admit that their cause is probably hopeless.

Authorized dispatches from Oyster Bay reiterating the opinion of President Roosevelt that Hughes should be renominated created somewhat of a sensation, even though the announcement was not entirely unexpected, and it is not too much to say that they added appreciably to the bitterness of the "allies" opposing Hughes as the hour approached which seemed almost certain to prove the failure of their efforts.

Definite reports from the county delegations, some of which caucused last night, developed decidedly more strength for the renomination of the governor than any of the polls had shown before.

It is thoroughly understood here by all observers of and participants in the struggle that the opposition could have defeated the renomination of the governor if they could have agreed upon some other man of adequate political size and induced him to accept the nomination. But all efforts to find such a man have proved fruitless.

Secretary of State Root, who is acting as chairman of the convention, has been the subject of incessant and most persuasive appeals to assume the onus of the situation. His reception by the convention yesterday was enthusiastic, and it is probable that with the slightest intimation of consent on his part the convention could be stampeded to him.

Mr. Root told the leaders, however, that he could not think of such a thing. "I am the senior member of President Roosevelt's cabinet," he was quoted as saying. "If I should do such a thing either I would be accused, and rightly, of disloyalty to the president, or he would be accused, with good reason, of insincerity in his attitude toward the governor's renomination."

That the leaders expect to settle the nomination question without an open fight on the convention floor was indicated last night when, in addition to the late hour, 2 o'clock, fixed for today's session, special trains were arranged for to take the convention hosts home this evening.

The conference of the Republican state leaders began to break up about 1:40 this morning, but the conferees were for the most part extraordinarily reticent about what had happened. From authentic sources it was ascertained, however, that no definite decision of any kind was reached.

Secretary of State Root was the central figure in the first session of the Republican state convention which met in the great convention hall here yesterday afternoon. The convention effected temporary organization, heard the speech of Root as temporary chairman and adjourned until this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

It is no less than truth to say that the welcome accorded Root and the demonstrations of approval which interspersed and followed his speech surpassed in enthusiasm if not in duration those which were accorded upon the mention of the names of President Roosevelt, Governor Hughes or William H. Taft himself.

Secretary Root's speech was of considerable length—upwards of 11,000 words. It dealt almost exclusively with national matters, but began with a tribute to the work of Governor Hughes and the state administration in general, to which the convention responded with applause and cheers, lacking not so much in apparent volume or duration as in unanimity of participation.

TWO CANDIDATES UP

Democratic Choice Rests Between Chanler and Gerard

Rochester, Sept. 15.—After extended and significant conferences, participated in by practically all of the state leaders who are here, the nebulous conditions surrounding the nomination by the Democratic state convention of a candidate for governor took definite form and the problem is declared to have been reduced to a choice between Lieutenant Governor Chanler, who is being urged by State Chairman Conners, and Justice Gerard of New York city, who is announced as the choice of Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall.

The race seems to have resolved itself into a contest between the up-state delegates, who are declared to be strongly in favor of Chanler, and the Tammany delegates, with their alliances throughout the state, who will follow the suggestions of Murphy.

Gerard has long been prominent in Democratic councils in New York city and was elected last fall to the supreme court bench. He has heretofore been mentioned but casually in connection with the nomination, and the prominent position into which he was elevated last night came as a distinct surprise to close followers of the recent trend of affairs.

On the surface there is no diminuition in the enthusiasm and confidence of the delegates who favor the nomination of Chanler and his name is the one most prominently heard about state headquarters and about all the hotel lobbies where delegates gather. Chanler's strength up-state is imposing and his friends are hopeful that the well-nigh universal sentiment in this section may have sufficient influence upon Murphy to cause him to accept the up-state man in preference to one from below the Harlem river.

THE ROOSEVELT LETTER

It Leads the National Nominees to Exchange Personalities

New York, Sept. 15.—William J. Bryan in Baltimore yesterday had a few caustic things to say about William H. Taft anent President Roosevelt's letter of eulogy of the Republican nominee. In Cincinnati Mr. Taft "got back" at Bryan on the same subject.

It was the first time since the opening of the campaign that the national candidates have gone so close to the personal attacks that have added spice to former presidential contests.

Mr. Taft had this to say of Bryan:

"Mr. Bryan should devote a little time to his own record, from which he seems to be struggling to separate himself, with all the adroitness acquired in a twelve years' hunt for an issue on which he can be elected president. The readiness with which Mr. Bryan in successive presidential campaigns passes from one paramount issue to another shows that the chief consideration which has affected his selection of an issue has been its plausibility in attracting votes."

What Bryan thinks was thus expressed:

"A few plain, simple sentences from Mr. Taft will be worth more than the eulogy that the president pronounced. The president's endorsement is of no value unless the president will agree to stay in Washington and see that Mr. Taft makes good.

"Mr. Taft is running upon a platform which was so unsatisfactory that he had to amend it in several important particulars, and yet even as amended it gives the public no definite idea as to what Mr. Taft stands for."

BRYAN IN MARYLAND

Democratic Candidate Heartily Received by Vast Crowds

Baltimore, Sept. 15.—William J. Bryan claimed the attention of the voters of Maryland yesterday. He spoke at Annapolis, where he discussed the issues of the campaign, and last night in this city before an audience which was conservatively estimated to exceed 25,000 people. Bryan received an ovation seldom equalled in this city. The crowd cheered vociferously and displayed impatience over the preliminaries.

When Bryan stepped to the front of the platform pandemonium reigned. The crowd rose en masse, cheered and waved flags, the band the while playing "Dixie." Bryan devoted most of his time to a discussion of the same issues that he has presented elsewhere. Among other things he said:

"The Democratic platform differs from the Republican platform in that our party distinctly declares what it opposes and what it favors. When you read the Democratic platform you know exactly what to expect, for the two candidates are pledged to the platform. The Republican platform is ambiguous and uncertain. When you get through reading it you are in the dark as to what the president will do."

Mr. Taft, he said, had already amended his platform in several particulars, but no one knew what other amendments he might add before the election and what additions he might make to it after the election. When anyone came to construe the Republican platform, he said, a guessing contest was entered into and no one could tell whose guess was nearest the truth. President Roosevelt, he declared, was elected upon a similar platform.

"And as his platform promised nothing in particular he felt at liberty to amend a number of the things which the Republican leaders objected to." The result was, he said, a constant conflict between the executive and congress.

"As the Republicans do not present specific propositions," he asserted, "a Republican victory could not be construed as a declaration in favor of any particular reform or against any existing abuse."

Methodists After Cannon

Canton, Ills., Sept. 15.—The Central Illinois Methodist Episcopal conference, by a unanmous vote, adopted resolutions declaring that the conduct of J. G. Cannon, speaker of the house, in refusing to allow a vote on the Littlefield bill, "is worthy of universal condemnation, and we urge upon the people the use of all lawful means in securing the defeat of Hon. J. G. Cannon as speaker of the house of representatives."

POWERS SHOULD BE SAFEGUARDED

Franco-Spanish Attitude Toward New Ruler of Morocco

Paris, Sept. 15.—The Franco-Spanish note sent to the powers is composed of two parts, a "note," properly speaking, and a "declaration." The former refers only to the general interest in the powers to be safeguarded before Mulai Hafid is recognized as Sultan of Morocco, namely, the confirmation of the Algeciras act and measures involved in its application, notably the right conferred upon France and Spain to prevent contraband of arms at sea and the confirmation of all treaties.

The declaration is only a courteous notice to which the powers are not asked to reply. It points out that the powers naturally conserve the right to exact directly from Mulai Hafid a settlement of questions touching their individual interests, and affirms the right of France and Spain to secure the reimbursement of expenses incurred in the establishment of order at Casabianca, and their decision to reach a mutual understanding for such reimbursement with the Moroccan government.

Arabs Put Out of Business

Paris, Sept. 15.—Dispatches from Colonel Allix, under whose command a French column recently gained a sweeping victory over the insurgent tribesmen at Boudenib, state that the Arabs have been so scattered that there appears little likelihood of a recurrence of their aggressive tactics.

Thaw Wanted Pictures Taken

White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Harry K. Thaw arrived here late yesterday from Poughkeepsie and was immediately taken to the county jail and put in a cell in the hospital section. He wanted to pose on the jail steps for a group of photographers, but Keeper Horton prevented this.

CLOSER THAN EVER

Fight For League Pennants More and More Exciting

Not in many years have the pennant races in both the National and American Leagues been so close and exciting at this late stage of the season's play. New York won the only game participated in by any of the three leaders in the National League race yesterday, gaining three points in percentage and leading with an advantage of twenty-one points over Chicago, in second position. Pittsburg, three points behind Chicago, today opens a series in Philadelphia, while the Chicago team goes to Boston and St. Louis to New York. The crucial series of the week will begin Friday, when Pittsburg meets New York at the polo grounds, while Chicago moves to Philadelphia.

The four-cornered race in the American League is closer than ever as the result of yesterday's games. Only twenty points separate Detroit in first place from St. Louis in fourth. Victories by Cleveland and St. Louis yesterday over Chicago and Detroit, respectively, had the effect of bunching the quartet of first division clubs closely enough to make a decisive shake-up possible as the result of two or three days' play. The standing of the leading clubs is as follows:

| Club | Won | Lost | Pct |

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Mellen of Quincy spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Titcomb of Lynn.

Charles R. Hendrie of Marlboro street has returned from a business trip to New York.

Miss Katherine Carter of Quincy has been the guest of I. H. Whitman of West Barnstable.

Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Shea of Quincy have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Bearse, of Hyannes.

Patrons of the Squantum cars are glad to welcome back Edward Dunn, as conductor of that line.

A R. Poquett, station agent at Atlantic, has gone to Alburgh, Vermont, for a vacation of two weeks.

The Misses Hammond of Crescent street are at home after a fortnight's outing at North Brewster, Maine.

Miss Helen Josselyn of Hancock street, Vassar '08, has accepted a position in the Brockton High school.

George Muse of Quincy Point has returned from New London, Conn., where he has been for the past few months.

Miss Ethel Blair of Hancock street, Wollaston, returned Monday from an outing at Wolfboro, Lake Winnepesaukee, N. H.

Miss Ann C. Chamberlain of Hancock street, Wollaston, has returned from a two weeks' visit with friends in Orleans.

Mrs. J. A. Kendall and daughter, Miss Winnefred Kendall of Walker street left Saturday for a week's stay in Chester, Vt.

Dr. H. C. Hallowell left this week for Bangor, Maine. The doctor says that he will find out what happened to the Democrats at Monday's election.

Rev. Ernest R. Chase, Mrs. Chase and their daughters Miss Mary and Lucy Chase of Grand View avenue are at home after a trip to Nova Scotia.

The Norfolk County association, G. A. R. and W. R. C., will meet in the Town Hall, Stoughton tomorrow at 10 A. M. Members of Corps 103 leave Quincy on 8.45 train.

Makaria vs. Atlantic on Saturday, at Merymount park. This is the fifth game of the series which stands two and two, and a great crowd of rooters will attend.

Albot & Milliers motor truck made another long trip on Monday to Hanover with furniture of Mr. Damon formerly of Putnam street. These trips are becoming frequent.

An effort is being made to have Edward J. Parker take the Democratic nomination for Representative to the General court from the Fifth district.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Crowell leave tonight for Hampden, Me., to visit Mr. Crowells mother. Mrs, Crowell is 90 years of age and is remarkably smart, retaining all of her faculties.

Archie Thayer, the well known political speaker, had a large crowd listening to him last night in City Square. He gave a long talk on the temperance question, taking the moral side as well as the business.

The Highway Commission has suspended the automobile license of William Littlewood of Quincy, who was sentenced in the Hingham court for operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

The steamer Governor Andrew of the Boston and Nahant line is also at Baker's basin for the winter. The General Lincoln of the same line made her last trip on Sunday, and she will arrive at Baker's in a few days.

Fire Raging At Saco, Maine

A great fire is raging in Saco, Me., and already over 600 families are homeless. The fire started in a box factory at 1 o'clock this morning and spread rapidly, soon breaking out in an adjoining lumber yard. A million feet of lumber in Crossman's lumber yard, valued at $25,000, and the factory valued at $75,000 and 18 tenement houses in the immediate vicinity have already gone.

The whole division of the Boston & Maine railroad is blocked and the loss is estimated at $200,000.

At 2 o'clock the fire was still raging and the whole mill district of Saco appears to be doomed.

Help has been summoned from Portland, Dover, Biddeford and Portsmouth.

Great pieces of burning wood are being carried across the river to Biddeford, lodging on houses and mills there.

The high wind which was blowing early in the forenoon has died down and it was announced at noon that Biddeford, which was threatened, is safe.

It is the worst fire in that vicinity since the Portland conflagration.

THE KIDNAPPING.

Miss Margaret Lahey, who Mrs. Catherine Lahey accused of taking her 3-year-old daughter at Brewers corner on Monday, wishes to state her versions of the affair. Miss Lahey says that she saw the child with her mother and asked to take the little girl into the store to buy her some clothing. That she took the girl and started to enter the store. At this Mrs. Lahey began to scream, and she gave the child back. Miss Lahey further claims that there was no attempt or intention to kidnap the child but simply to provide it with some needed clothing.

—Moses Zangwill, whose death in Jerusalem was reported a few days ago, was the father of Israel, Mark and Louis Zangwill. He was born in Russia, but when he was 16 years old went to England. About 10 years ago he gave up his home in England and went to Jerusalem, where he joined the colony of pious Jews who devote their lives to prayer and the study of the ancient law. His biographer says that during his whole career in England he at no time possessed means which would have been sufficent to satisfy the requirements of the present aliens act. As the father of Israel Zangwill he was a conspicuous figure in the Jerusalem colony, where Jacob H. Schiff, the New York banker, visited him recently. He died ot the Bikur Cholim hospital, where a Moses Zangwill bed will be founded by his sons.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Senator Jenney Not a Candidate

Editors of Daily Ledger:

When I announced my candidacy for re-election to the Senate, I stated that I did so only because I believed I could be elected president of the Senate for 1909. Before making the announcement, I received promises of support from members of the Senate and gratifying expressions of confidence from all sections, which have not been withdrawn. Within the past forty-eight hours, however, I have received information leading me to believe that my chances for election to the presidency are not as good as at an earlier date, and for that reason, and that reason only, I have decided to withdraw as a candidate for re-election. I am confident that if I continued a candidate I should receive my renomination, but do not feel that I ought to so continue unless more confident of further honors.

I wish to take this opportunity to thank my constituents for their generous support and words of appreciation, my colleagues in the senate of 1907 and 1908 for the confidence they have always reposed in me, and also the gentlemen of the press for their many kind words.

Charles F. Jenney.

Hyde Park, Sept. 14, 1908.

The withdrawal of Senator Jenney from the contest for the nomination in the First Norfolk district leaves a clear field for the nomination to Representative Eugene C. Hultman of Quincy, who can consider himself extremely fortunate in almost being assured of the nomination without a contest.

As the district is strongly Republican the nomination practically means an election, and Representative Hultman can sleep easy from now on, unless some unforeseen complication should arise.

Which Is the Best Yacht?

The result of the season's yacht racing of the Class D boats shows a rather peculiar state of affairs, inas much as three boats of the Quincy Yacht club, viz Busy Bee, Arawak and Iris win first position in percentages in three series, but the order is reversed.

Under the Y. R. A. races the championship trophy goes to the Busy Bee, with a total of 88.6 percent; Iris second, and Arawak third.

In the Quincy series the Arawak was first, the Busy Bee second, and the Iris third.

In the Corinthian series the Iris was first, the Arawak second, and the Busy Bee third.

Annual Outing.

The members of Adams chapter, Daughters of Revolution, held an outing on Monday with Mrs. Martin Stoddard at Hingham. The weather was delightful and the ladies passed a very enjoyable day. Basket lunches were carried and coffee and lemonade was furnished by Mrs. Stoddard.

After lunch the ladies went on a sight seeing tour of the quaint town, visiting the famous Old Ship church and other places of historic interest. At the birthplace of Gen. Benjamin Lincoln they were entertained by Mrs. Crosby. There were many expressions of sympathy for the regent of the chapter because of her recent bereavement.

Homeward Bound.

Dr. Rose K. Whiton, who has been taking a special course of study in European hospitals, sailed for home on the fast Steamship Mauretania Sept. 12 and will arrive home this week. During the past summer Dr. Whiton has studied in the hospitals of Glasgow, Dublin, Belfast, and in London. During his study he has assisted in many rare surgical operations, such as are seldom seen in this country and feels well repaid for his trip.

DOING GOOD WORK

Rev. J. E. Liliback Showing-Up The Errors Of Socialism

One of the most prominent, as well as able and earnest combatants of Socialism and Anarchy, of the present time is the Rev. J. A. Lilliback, a Finnish clergyman of this city. Although his countrymen are socialists, he is intelligent enough to see that, since socialism and anarchy can not go hand in hand with the other political beliefs and bring success to the country, it is best for all to believe, or at least follow principles, which will produce the desired effect. It is indeed difficu t to change views which one has been taught from childhood, and it is much harder for one to persuade people, who are in such a state to change their views. In the case of the Finns, conditions such as these are to be found.

In Finland, their native country, socialism is bringing great success. It is only natural then for them to believe that such effects should exist here from the same cause. But the causes which produce the effects which the Finns are accustomed to, no not exist in this country, and never can exist. Hence the logical conclusion is that these effects can never be produced, for there can be no effect without a cause.

The Finns, who are for the most part uneducated do not see the force of this argument, so the trouble arises. They are not allowed to follow the civil laws of their own country while they live in this country, and they become dissatisfied and these outbreaks are the result.

Again they have no leader, and can have no leader, because a leader would be a little above the rest, which is against the principles of socialism. The fact is, the principles of socialism are radically wrong, as far as this country is concerned.

In such a case, a man is needed, who can by persuasive arguments and examples show the offenders where they are wrong and get them to see things in the proper light. Such a man is the Rev. Mr. Lilliback, who has succeeded very well in this work in the two places where he has been. He first began his labors in Maynard, where he worked faithfully and successfully till he came to Quincy, toward the end of last winter. It was in Maynard that he had his first serious trouble with the anarchists, just before he came here. A Boston paper reviews his work in part as follows:

The most serious trouble occurred last February, while the Assabet mills were shut down. These mills, the biggest institution in the town, employ hundreds of Finns, and the shut-down struck hard at the entire town. More particularly, it gave the Anarchists an opportunity to act openly and gain some support, for it was a time when the desitute workingmen could easily be brought to believe that the sins of society were responsible for the shutdown.

One cold winter day the members of the Socialist society gathered together a crowd of over 1000 Finns for a great mass meeting at the corner of Main and Summer streets. They had with them a Finn who had been mixed up in strike troubles in the far West, an Anarchist and a man of eloquence. But they had not counted on one J. A. Lilliback pastor, of the Finnish Congregational church.

The Rev. Mr. Lilliback was a bold young man with the welfare of his people at heart; a man who saw that extreme socialism was eating the vital forces of the Finns, and who, like other ministers, had fought it hard. He heard of the mass meeting, and whent to the scene edged through the crowd and climbed on the platform.

Jeers and cat-calls greeted him, but he faced about and began to speak. He could not make himself heard, but continued for over half an hour attempting to quiet the mob and to occupy the platform to the exclusion of the anarchistic speakers. The mob threatened violence, but some of Lilliback's congregation restrained them, and before he got through he succeeded in putting in a few audible words against red socialism.

From that day he was a marked man. At another meeting shortly after he and the Rev. C. F. Hunt were hooted from the hall. A day or two later he received a threatening letter advising him to leave Maynard if he valued his life. A second letter came, also anonymous. Then his life was attempted on the street, and soon after he left town and went to Quincy, where he is now pastor of a Finnish Congregational church. He said when he left that he was not going on account of the threats, and that he was not afraid of the Socialists.

Lilliback is one of the advanced representatives of the race, a man whose life foreshadows the future of his countrymen. Among the quarrymen of Quincy he has taken up the work that he dropped among the weavers of Maynard.

On Granite street, down in Quincy, set high over a sand pit, there is a little wooden shed, not much more than 6 to 10, with a narrow door. No path or steps lead up to it, but climbing over the rocks and the burdock bushes the visitor attains to the little structure and finds that it is a printing office. The first thing he sees is an open copy of "Tyomies" the Finnish Socialist paper of Hancock, Michigan. The next is Lilliback sitting at a rude desk, busy with his editing of an entirely different sort of paper.

Lilliback is a stocky young chap, looks about 25, but thinks like a man of 50. He wears thick glasses that give him a studious air, but his bright smile, revealing strong white teeth, adds a touch of human sympathy to his gaze. He is intently in earnest about his work of preaching religion four times every Sunday and writing it in a great variety of ways in his paper all week.

Since he came to Quincy anarchistic demonstrations have become less frequent. He went there with the stigma of his Maynard troubles on him; trouble was prophesied, but he handled the situation quietly, without fear, and now he has the upper hand. He subscribes to the "Tyomies," reads it carefully, and takes occasion to discredit any violent teachings. In fact, he translated a few extracts and sent them to Washington just before the government placed a ban on such publications.

He will tell you that the club is made up of young men, none of them over 25, and in the main both poor and ignorant. It is called the Finnish Workingmen's Society, and has about 200 members among the granite workers. All of them read the "Tyomies." The club has been in existence for about two years, but indulges in little excitement nowadays.

It has headquarters on Arthur street, where regular meetings are held. Once in a while the members come round to Lilliback and ask him to come to their meetings and speak to them, all in the kindest spirit. This he has not yet done, but he says he intends to do it soon, and expects to receive the best of treatment.

"I love my people," he will tell you, "and they have learned to love me. I got at them through my sermons. I preached to them quietly, and they discovered that some of the things their papers had been printing about me were untrue. Taking care not to excite them by harshness, I was mild and tried to persuade them.

"They will come to see how foolish their ideas are; the spirit is already going down. They must come to see that anarchy wil do no good, and that the Socialist can never get power in this country. If the Republican and Democratic parties, with all their power, cannot reform things, the Socialists can't."

Since Lilliback brought this gospel into Quincy the only trouble has been the carrying of the red flag on the day when they celebrated, as in Maynard, the victory of socialism in the home country.

—For the first time in many years Labor day was not observed in Pittsburg with a big parade. Most of the big mills and stores closed, but all the small stores remained open.

—We examine in our dark-room with modern instruments. If we find disease we send you to a reliable oculist. Williams 1473 Hancock street.

Hot Contest For For Representative

The re-entry of Frank E. Badger into the Representative contest in the Sixth district was a surprise to the voters of Ward Six. Mr. Badger was honored with two terms some years ago, and his entry into the contest at this time is looked upon by many as an attempt to so split the ward that the nomination will go to Mr. Sandberg.

There is a very pronounced sentiment by the Republican voters of the ward against this attitude, and they do not take kindly to the action of one of its citizens jeopardizing an excellent opportunity for Ward Six to have the honor of sending a Republican representative to the General Court, to further his own possible candidacy in the future. It is admitted that without Mr. Badger in the contest, Mr. Langelier would win easily over Mr. Sandberg who has already been honored.

It is the general opinion, that not withstanding Mr. Badger's splitting the vote of the ward, ex-Councilman Langelier will win the nomination, as his many friends in Wards Five and Six will support him handsomely and pull him through with a safe margin.

LOVING TRIBUTES

High Esteem Of Massachusetts Editors for George W. Prescott

In the Daily Ledger of Sept. 11 and 12 several loving tributes of Massachusetts editors to the late George W. Prescott were reprinted. There can be no doubt of the place he held among the fraternity when one reads those tributes and those which follow:

The Waltham Free Press says:

"Saturday afternoon there was laid away in the family lot in the cemetery at Quincy all that was mortal of George W. Prescott, who for many years had been owner and publisher of the Quincy Patriot and the Quincy Daily Ledger. We had known him for years, for nearly quarter of a century we had been associated with him in the various Press associations of the State, and as delegates to half a score of conventions of the National Editorial association we have travelled the country from Massachusetts to California and Oregon, from Boston to Galveston, Texas, and to Palm Beach, Florida. Always a genial companion, ready at all times to enter into the pleasures that presented and equally ready to discuss the various problems connected with newspaper publication, he was one whose company was a rare pleasure and whose companionship will sadly be missed. We tender to his stricken family such comfort as may come from the knowledge that his brother editors appreciated his many sterling qualities and will long cherish his memory."

LOSS TO FRATERNITY.

The Somerville Journal says:

"In the death of George W. Prescott, of the Quincy Patriot, the newspaper fraternity loses an able and upright brother. He had served his full measure of years, fifty-six at his desk, and is mourned by the public as well as by his associates, his friends, and his family."

LOVED A SQUARE DEAL.

The Manchester Cricket says:

"George W. Prescott, editor and publisher of the Quincy Daily Ledger and Quincy Patriot, passed away at his home in that city last Wednesday, after a short illness with heart failure. Age 74 years. Mr. Prescott was one of the best known newspaper men in New England and a veteran journalist, having been in the business for 55 years and was still in active service at the time of his decease. He celebrated the 50th anniversary of his service in the publishing business in 1903, and the writer recalls with pleasure the visit to his home on that occasion, when he entertained the members of the Suburban Press Association of New England, also his most desirable companionship on many thousand miles of travel as he usually participated in the yearly press excursions. He was a man of honest purpose and loved a square deal for all. A man of straightforward convictions, affable at all times, conscientious in all his dealings, and whose influence will long be felt in that community and among his associates. He leaves a widow, two sons and three daughters. The family have our deepest sympathy in their hour of sorrow."

DEAN OF COUNTY.

The Brookline Chronicle says:

"Mr. George Washington Prescott, editor of the Quincy Patriot and Daily Ledger, was stricken with heart failure and passed away Wednesday morning, in his seventy-fourth year. He was dean of Norfolk county journalism, having been actively engaged in newspaper work in one office for more than fifty-five years."

SPOTLESS CHARACTER.

The Whitman Times says:

"We are pained to learn that Mr. George W. Prescott of Quincy, one of the best known editors in our state, died suddenly last Wednesday. He was a very popular man with the craft, and held a high place in the esteem of the general public. He was very quiet and refined in his public life, but his kindness and gentleness won the esteem of all who associated with him. He was a man of spotless character and a successful business man. He had given 55 years of his life to the printing and publishing business, all of which had been devoted to the interests of Quincy and suburban towns."

HIS INFLUENCE.

In the Boston letter to the Springfield Republican of Sept. 13 was the following:

"Suburban journalism loses a prominent character in the death of George Washington Prescott of the Quincy Patriot and the Quincy Ledger. He was connected with these papers for 55 years of the 73 years of his life, and was one of the honorable and honored members of his profession. He was republican, but generous in giving a fair show to the other side, and all his influence was strongly used for what was progressive and morally clean in the city. He illustrated the careful character of former newspapers, for the Ledger never paid a cent of fine in a libel suit, and the Patriot only one of one cent. He was a prominent members of the Suburban Press Association and he and his papers had come to be almost institutions in Quincy."

HIGHLY ESTEEMED.

The Norwood Messenger says:

"The newspapers of Norfolk County lost a veteran and able representative on Wednesday in the death of George Washington Prescott of the Quincy Patriot and Quincy Daily Ledger. He passed away of heart failure at his home in Quincy after a period of ill-health which had lasted about a month. Mr. Prescott had worked for 55 years in one office, working up from newsboy and printer's apprentice to the sole proprietorship of the Quincy Patriot, Quincy Daily Ledger and Braintree Observer. He had worked early and late with few vacations in the newspaper business for more than half a century. He was the dean of Norfolk County journalism and one of the oldest publishers in the country. He was a man whom to know was to respect and like and was highly esteemed by all his brother editors and publishers in the country. He will be greatly missed in Quincy with whose growth and prosperity he was closely connected and where he had become a leading and influential citizen."

ALWAYS CONGENIAL.

The Mansfield News says:

"George W. Prescott, one of the oldest and best known newspaper men in the state, died early Wednesday morning at his home in Quincy, after a month's illness of heart disease, in the 75th year of his age. As a newspaper publisher Mr. Prescott was well known throughout New England. He was one of the original members of the Massachusetts Press Association, the New England Press Association, the Suburban Press Association, and the Republican Editorial Association, the members of which always found him a congenial companion, especially on their annual excursions, which took them into every state of the Union and also Mexico and Canada. The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon."

LOVED HIS PROFESSION.

The Westboro Chronotype says:

"We regret to learn of the death of our newspaper brother and friend, George W. Prescott, editor and publisher of the Quincy Patriot. Mr. Prescott was widely known among the newspaper fraternity of New England, and was a long time member of the Massachusetts Press, Suburban Press, and Republican Editorial Associations, and will be greatly missed by all those organizations. He was a man who loved his profession and was an honor to it."

ONE OF BEST KNOWN.

The Barnstable Patriot says:

George W. Prescott, editor and publisher of the Quincy Daily Ledger and the Quincy Patriot, died Wednesday after an illness of four weeks. He was one of the best known newspaper editors of New England and was a charter member of the Massachusetts Press Association, the New England Press Association, the Suburban Press Association, and the Republican Editorial Association. Mr. Prescott was born in Quincy in 1834. He is survived by a widow and five children—Frank F. Prescott, general manager of the Quincy Daily Ledger; Eben Prescott, editor of the Braintree Observer; Annie L. Prescott, an editor of the Quincy Patriot, and Etta M. and Alice K. Prescott."

Street Railway To the Shipyard

The thousands of workmen at the Fore River Ship Building plant will hail with delight the movement on the part of the street railway to run its cars directly into the yards. The proposition to use the private tracks of the Fore River Co. have been under consideration for some time.

Negotiations for the better accommodation of the workmen were taken up some months ago by the officials of the company. Several conferences with the officials of the railway and the Mayor were held and it was decided that if permission would be granted to use the tracks of the Fore River company it would be the best plan. These tracks are laid at the same guage as those of the street railway, and it is only a matter of running a trolley wire and connecting the two lines.

The latter part was the difficult job. It was found that the two tracks could be connected by building a short curve on Quincy avenue. The street at this point is a State highway and permission must be obtained by the Highway Commission. In all such cases, however, the commission require that approval shall also be obtained from the city.

The plan is to run cars directly into the Fore River yards in the morning to take the men to their work. In the afternoon at closing time cars will also be run into the yards to take them home.

At the present time it takes a workman employed in the vicinity of the machine shop at least fifteen minutes to reach the nearest car line. This is quite an inconvenience, especially in stormy weather. In the winter it often happens, on a stormy day, that when a man arrives at the works he is wet to the skin, and therefore unfit for work.

With cars running into the works the men could be landed within a few feet of where they are employed.

The Fore River Company has found it difficult to retain many of its skilled workmen on account of their inability to get cars to land them near their work. This is especially true of workmen who live out of town. They object strongly and cannot be blamed much, for being landed on Quincy avenue or Washington street, they have to walk fifteen minutes to reach their work. If matters are hurried it will be possible to get the connecting curve built before winter sets in.

Named For Naval Heroes

President Roosevelt has authorized the assignment of these names for the ten torpedo boat destroyers, authorized by the act of May 13, 1908, says a Washington dispatch to the Transcript:

The Hiram Paulding, the Percival Drayton, the Francis A. Roe, the Edward Terry, the George H. Perkins, the Andrew Sterrett, the Edward R. McCall, the William Burrows, the Lewis Warrington and the John Mayran.

The fifteen new submarines will be named the Stingray, the Tarpon, the Bonita, the Snapper, the Norwhal, the Grayling, the Salmon, the Carp, the Barracuda, the Pickerel, the Skate, the Skipjack, the Sturgeon, the Thrasher and the Tuna.

The colliers recently authorized will be named the Jupiter and the Cyclops, and colliers to be purchased, the Vulcan, the Mars and the Hector.

Rear Admiral Hiram Paulding was distinguished for gallant service in the War of 1812 and assigned by President Lincoln to put the navy in a state of efficiency in 1861. Captain Percival Drayton was Admiral Farragut's fleet captain in Mobile Bay. Rear Admiral Roe saw important service in the China Seas and the Civil War. Commander Edward Terry was commended for services during the Civil war at the battle of Mobile Bay. Rear Admiral Perkins was commended by Admiral Farragut as an efficient officer, and Lieutenant Andrew Sterrett commanded the Enterprise and captured a Tripolitan cruiser in 1801, threw her armament overboard, gave her crew one spar and a sail and let them go. Captain Edward R. McCall, Lieutenant Burrows, Captain Warrington and Midshipman Mayran performed naval service for which they were publicly commended.

Daring Burglary At Braintree

A daring burglary occurred at South Braintree Tuesday evening when the house of Joseph Schraut on Frederick road, which runs from Hancock to Washington street, near South Braintree square, was entered, and property valued at $300 taken. The robbery took place between 7 and 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Schraut left the house about 7.15 and when she returned at 8 o'clock, she found the house had been ransacked. Upon investigation, she found that her gold watch and her husband's gold watch, a pearl necklace, two gold stick pins and old coins valued at $12 had been taken.

Entrance was gained by breaking a hole in a window on the ground floor, and pushing back the lock.

Rebekahs Entertained.

The Waltham Daily Free Press says Hawthorn Rebekah lodge Sewing Circle held a most pleasant outing last Saturday at Houghs Neck. The 35 or more members left Waltham on the 8 o'clock electric for Boston and after arriving at the Hub boarded the electrics for Houghs Neck arriving at their destination soon after ten o'clock. The party was met by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hooten with whom the Walthamites were to pass the day.

The party of visitors passed the morning in sightseeing and went to the several islands by motor boat. It was a pleasant journey, and one that was enjoyed by all. On the return the party gathered at the Hooten cottage to partake of a feast of clams and other tempting dishes.

After dinner had been served the members of the party made a further sightseeing trip and early in the evening started for home after passing a pleasant day. Mr. and Mrs. Hooten acted the part of host and hostess admirably well and they were showered with thanks by the members of the party.

REPUBLICANS' GREAT OUTING

Thousands Gather From All Parts of New England

CHICAGO TICKET IS RATIFIED

Secretary Wilson and Senator Borah Star Speakers at Barbecue Under Auspices of Massachusetts Clubs--Bryan Accused of Making Most Remarkable Statement Ever Coming From Presidential Candidate

Boston, Sept. 16.—Thousands of Republicans from all parts of New England took part in the first great ratification meeting of the national Republican campaign, which was held at the Point of Pines, Revere. The roasting of oxen and the speech-making was preceded by an excellent program of athletic events, which was participated in by two athletes who took part in the Olympic games in London recently. After the speech-making was over, and the barbecue assembly adjourned, the visitors were entertained by the different Massachusetts county delegations in their various rooms in the hotel.

The list of speakers included United States Senator Borah of Idaho, Secretary of Agriculture Wilson and Lieutenant Governor Draper of Massachusetts. The endorsement of the Republican party and the Chicago ticket—Taft and Sherman—was the keynote of the speeches.

The Pines hotel was decked in Red, White and Blue, the warm September weather brought out a quota of prettily dressed women, the band played lively music from the bandstand in front of the hotel, and, all in all, the scene was enlivening and inspiring.

The events of the day started in Boston, when Governor Floyd of New Hampshire, Governor Proctor of Vermont, Governor Woodruff of Connecticut, Lieutenant Governor Watrous of Rhode Island, Lieutenant Governor Draper of Massachusetts, Senator Crane of Massachusetts, ex-Governor Bates of Massachusetts, Postmaster General Von L. Meyer and others breakfasted at a local hotel. Following the breakfast, automobiles were taken for the Point of Pines, which was reached shortly after noon.

The barbecue was under the auspices of the Middlesex, Essex, Norfolk and Plymouth clubs of this state. This was said to be the first successful affair of its kind since 1857, which took place at Fitchburg.

When the some 15,000 visitors had at last reached the Point, two big steers, two young pigs and a pair of lambs were roasted and served to the waiting Republicans and their friends.

The piazza of the hotel was the next centre of attraction. On the greensward in front the visitors had gathered, while above them sat the speakers of the afternoon.

The Speeches

Lieutenant Governor Draper was the first speaker of the day. He dwelt at length on the principles of the Republican party. He said that here in Massachusetts a lot of hard work was required. "Don't be too sure of victory," he said. "Get off your coats, Republicans, and work."

Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture was next heard.

"I have come 1500 miles to have the pleasure of looking Boston in the face. Out in my country—the state of Iowa—we are in the habit of speaking to housefulls. But this is one of the first times in my life when I attempted to speak to people by the acre.

"It was not necessary for me to come here to tell you anything with regard to your duty on the 3d of November, because the people in Boston know all about these things.

"We are going to elect a president and a great deal more than that. Whoever is elected president the next time will reform the supreme court. In this we are all mightily interested—in the kind of men who will go on that supreme bench. President Taft, when he is elected, will want them to be the foremost jurists of the land.

"Mr. Bryan is a good fellow. He is a good citizen and all that, but people differ you know when they come to make supreme judges.

"There has not been a good thing done in this country, nothing at all, that has not been done by the Republican party, and there has not been a thing done by the Republicans that the Democrats have not called on the gods to witness was designed for the ultimate ruin and downfall of the country. I want to say this to you Boston people: You stand by the workingman and we western people will stand by you."

Secretary Wilson was followed by Senator Borah, who said:

"Platforms come and platforms go—and they are all right in so far as they do go. But through years of observation and experience, the voter has come to look upon the platform as only a part of the essential thing which he must consider; he looks beyond and behind the platform for the man.

"Mr. Bryan, in his speech of acceptance, said that his platform was binding by what it did not say, as well as by what it did say. Viewed in the light of his past declarations and the evident motive and object for making that statement, it is the most remarkable statement that ever fell from the lips of a candidate for president.

"It either convicts Mr. Bryan of astounding insincerity, a most startling sacrifice of principle for office, which I shall not charge, or it confesses to such a want of the great underlying and controlling principles of business and statecraft with reference to all his past measures that we shudder to contemplate the future with this unstable pilot at the helm of state."

GREAT CALL FOR WALLER

But Former Governor Will Not Again Run For Office

Hartford, Sept. 16.—A great call to the warhorse of Connecticut Democracy, former Governor Waller of New London, to lead the party in battle once more, was sent by the delegates to the Democratic state convention last night. That the call is in vain is evident, for Waller has sent his closest friends to this city to forestall any action of the convention which would seek to make him the standard bearer. He is willing to aid in the campaign to the extent of his ability, but he has positively refused to give any encouragement to those who want him to stand for governor.

With Waller out of the question, the delegates groped about for an available candidate. About 11 o'clock Henry A. Bishop's name came to the fore. Earlier in the evening many of the prominent party men thought A. H. Robertson of New Haven would be the man. Then a boom started for Homer S. Cummings and Archibald McNeil's name came up.

What today will bring forth no one knows. After the convention had adjourned over until today the county conventions which met to select presidential electors developed into talking bees. In every county a strong hand was needed to keep the delegates from rushing through a demand for Waller. The leaders knew the conditions and tried to get an expression of second and third choices. The filling of other places on the ticket has almost been lost sight of in the unexpected excitement over the endorsement of a candidate for governor.

Taft In Sympathy With Negroes

Cincinnati, Sept. 16.—"There is nothing in Mr. Bryan's statement which seems to require an answer. Should it appear so later, I will take up the subject in my public speeches." This is Mr. Taft's ultimatum, but he expresses a willingness that Bryan should have the last word of comment on President Roosevelt's Taft letter.

Yesterday, the 51st anniversary of Taft's birth, proved to be the busiest day he has had since his arrival here a week ago. He delivered a non-political address last night to ministers composing the Ohio conference of the African Methodist Episcopal church, the first speech of his campaign to negroes.

The candidate was escorted to Allen temple by a party of clergymen. He was there, he said, for the purpose of expressing his sympathy with the negro race in its struggle for better things.

"A sympathy," he said, "which I have had from the time I was a small boy, for I inherited it from my father, Alphonso Taft, than whom the colored race never had a better friend." This interest, Taft said, had been stimulated through his experience in the Philippines. He reviewed the struggle of the race from the time of slavery. It had made the most progress in agricultural pursuits and it was in this line he believed they should continue, although he spent considerable time in his comment on the value of education. The education to be most sought for by the negro race, he said, was primarily the rudiments of knowledge combined with industrial training. This should be supplemented by higher education for a more limited number to furnish ministers, doctors, teachers and lawyers.

Bryan Is Well Received

Trenton, Sept. 16.—Pouring hot shot into Mr. Taft and the Republican party at every point where he stopped, William J. Bryan, in this city, concluded a strenuous day of campaigning in New Jersey, following a few hours in Philadelphia where, in front of a newspaper office and before an enthusiastic crowd, he arraigned the Republican organization of that city and expressed his sorrow for people who, he said, were compelled to live under its rule.

Switching into national politics, he asserted that the Republican standard bearer promised that there would be no panics and that Mr. Roosevelt, as Taft's godfather, promised the same thing. He wanted to know how Taft could prevent panics when Roosevelt already had one on his hands.

Mr. Bryan's reception in New Jersey was a demonstrative one. At Washington park he addressed more than 20,000 persons, his audience according him a great ovation. His speech of over an hour was continually interrupted by cheers and hand-clapping. A statement by him that his nomination for a third time after two defeats, and with no president to help him with his patronage, was due to the growth of the ideas for which he stood, provoked the wildest enthusiasm. His every utterance, almost, was directed at Taft, whom he charged with running on the record of President Roosevelt.

The Vote of Maine

Portland, Me., Sept. 16.—Practically complete returns for governor give Bert M. Fernald of Poland a plurality of 7799 over Obadiah Gardner of Rockland, his Democratic opponent. The five towns and four plantations missing four years ago gave Cobb (Rep.), 117; Davis (Dem.), 73

A postal card canvass of the vote on the proposed constitutional amendment for the initiative and referendum showed that it undoubtedly was carried two one one throughout the state.

HUNTING FOR CUNNINGHAM

New Hampshire Outlaw Believed to Be Murderously Insane

ARMED GUARD PROTECTS GIRL

Fear That Former Lover Will Attempt to Take Her Life--Sheriff's Posse In One Another's Way and Narrowly Escaped Being Shot--Bloodhounds to Be Put on Trail of the Desperate Fugitive

Newport, N. H., Sept. 16.—Nine heavily armed guards are stationed in the home of Miss Sarah Seavey, in momentary expectation of an attack from her former lover, Edward Cunningham, now believed to be murderously insane.

After an all-day hunt through the woods and among the outlying houses of Guild, at the head of a posse of thirty-five men, Sheriff King decided when twilight came it would be too dangerous for his men to go stumbling through the rough country in the darkness.

Cunningham is known to have a five-shot 38-calibre revolver and at least forty-one cartridges, and has already demonstrated his absolute disregard for human life in the shooting of Elon Stickney.

Sheriff King has sent for bloodhounds to put on Cunningham's trail immediately after he has been again reported as breaking from the shelter of the woods. The fact that the desperate man has not tried to get away, but has twice attempted to slip through the guards to the Seavey house, has convinced the sheriff that Cunningham is willing to sacrifice his life in the attempt to avenge an imagined wrong.

This entire section of the country is in a state of terror. Farmers are staying around their homes armed with shotguns and rifles, fearing for the safety of their wives and children if left alone.

Fairbanks & Dorr, proprietors of the Granite State mill, where Cunningham was formerly employed, have offered a reward of $100 for his capture, dead or alive. The town of Newport has offered another $50. Circulars are being sent broadcast over the country today by Sheriff King announcing the reward and giving Cunningham's description.

Wednesday night the mistake was made of placing so many men in the fields about the Seavey house that they got in one another's way and when Cunningham made his rush there were several narrow escapes from shooting one another. It resulted in the desperate man's escaping apparently uninjured, after the firing of four shots.

It cannot be found that the outlaw has eaten since Sunday night, when he called at the home of Mrs. Brockle-bank and made her give him food. If he can be kept away from the Devil's Den until bloodhounds can be placed upon his track, it is believed he will soon be captured, although he is thought to be well supplied with ammunition and may succeed in killing the dogs.

The Devil's Den is an opening in the ledge on Bald mountain, which would be an excellent hiding place for an outlaw until the approach of cold weather. He is familiar with the locality, as he formerly worked in Guild, and frequently took walks alone in that vicinity.

The official description of Cunningham is as follows: Aged 42, height five feet eleven inches, weight 150 pounds, sallow complexion, black eyes, black hair, smooth face, occasionally wears false mustache, and wore when last seen a blue coat and vest, derby hat and light trousers.

Saco's Great Fire

Saco, Me., Sept. 16.—More than forty families rendered homeless and a property loss estimated at $300,000 is the result of yesterday's fire. With fires raging on both sides of the Saco river in this city and in Biddeford, more than fifteen acres of lumber yards, over a score of tenements, several factories and considerable railroad property were destroyed. The fire originated in a pile of shavings in the lumber yard of George A. Crossman & Sons on the Saco side of the river. A brisk wind fanned the slight blaze until it reached extensive proportions, destroying a million feet of lumber in the Crossman yard and the box shook factory, spreading rapidly to a tenement district of eighteen houses, which were in turn destroyed.

Conscience Tinctured With Caution

Washington, Sept. 16.—The secretary of the treasury has received in an envelope postmarked New York one-half of a gold certificate. The other half, the sender says, was sent to the custom house in New York. The amount will be deposited in the treasury and credited to "conscience." In a typewritten, but unsigned note, the sender says: "The product of a New England conscience, tinctured with Yankee caution."

Gardner's Comment on Defeat

Rockland, Me., Sept. 16.—Obadiah Gardner, Democratic candidate for governor, last night issued a brief statement, in which he expressed much gratification over his large vote. He attributed his defeat to the superior fund of the Republican state committee and the fact that it concentrated its work on counties where the Democrats were looking for successful results.

NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.

On and after September 16, we have decided

TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE

as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods

AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills over due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every day. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and take them with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Now think this proposition over, and we feel confident that you can see it just the way that we do.

SOMETHING THAT IS NEEDED HERE IN QUINCY.

A HIGH GRADE OF GOODS SOLD AT LOW PRICES.

So Remember your 5 per cent discount.

Respectfully,

HUGHES WINS "HANDS DOWN"

Has Overwhelming Majority Over His Two Opponents

SETTLED ON FIRST BALLOT

Nomination of Governor to Succeed Himself Made Unanimous on Motion of His Most Bitter Opponent --All Opposition Collapsed After Desperate Struggle on the Part of "Allies"--Even Saratoga Yielded

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 16.—Charles Evans Hughes of New York was nominated by the Republican state convention, by an overwhelming majority and on the first ballot, to succeed himself as governor of the state of New York. He received 827 votes out of possible 1069, as against 151 for James W. Wadsworth, Jr., speaker of the state assembly, and 31 for Congressman Stewart.

The nomination was made unanimous upon motion of State Committeeman Barnes, who has been perhaps the bitterest and most outspoken opponent of the governor's renomination, seconded by those who had placed Wadsworth and Stewart in nomination.

The governor's renomination followed the utter failure of a desperate struggle on the part of a number of the county leaders, who for four days have spared no effort to discover a candidate upon whom they could unite to defeat him. The balance of the ticket was made up in the "good old-fashioned way," as an organization "slate" announced before the session of the convention began by State Chairman Woodruff of the state committee after a conference of the local leaders.

Senator White, who was chosen as a candidate for lieutenant governor, was "in the running" for the governorship until the early afternoon, when after a meeting of his delegation he requested his friends not to present his name and left the delegates pledged to him free to vote for whom they would. The fifteen votes of his county delegation (Onondaga) were cast for Wadsworth.

It was the 183 votes of all but one district in New York county that carried the governor's total beyond the 505, a majority of the convention, required to nominate.

The nine votes of Nassau county had brought the Hughes total to 395. Amid a breathless hush, in which was incarnate all the intensity of bitterness and suspense which up to that moment had characterized the struggle to prevent the renomination of Hughes, the secretary of the convention called "New York."

Herbert Parsons, president of the New York county Republican general committee, rose in his place under the gallery and said: "New York county, second assembly district, gives four for Wadsworth; the balance of the county, 183, for Charles Evans Hughes."

A thousand pencils in two seconds had footed the Hughes total to 578; in as many heart-beats every person in the great hall knew that the battle was over and the place was instantly a bedlam of cheering.

Hardly less sensational had been the moment when Woodruff delivered to Hughes, in spite of a general expectation to the contrary, the entire vote of Kings county, 138, bringing the governor's total to 342, for Woodruff had been avowedly opposed to the governor's renomination, and even after William Berri, the choice of Kings for the governorship, had withdrawn from the race, it was expected that some, at least, of the Kings county vote could never be delivered to the Hughes column. In fact, it was really the action of Kings which signalized what might be called the "stampede to Hughes," and when its 138 votes were cast in a block for the governor any remaining doubt of his nomination was swept away.

Orange, the home of ex-Governor Odell, divided its vote, five for Hughes and three for Wadsworth. St. Lawrence, home of Congressman Malby, who had been regarded as anti-Hughes, gave the governor its total of 18.

The convention went fairly wild with the first real surprise of the rollcall, when Saratoga answered "eleven for Charles E. Hughes," for Saratoga is the famous home of racing and almost anywhere you go in Saratoga you will be told that election day will show how Saratoga feels on the subject of the race track gambling bills. Few would have believed that Hughes could by anything short of a miracle receive the unbroken total vote of the Saratoga delegation. It was a full minute before order was restored.

The plump face of Senator Emerson, who voted against the anti-gambling bills and against the removal of Insurance Superintendent Kelsey, and whose opposition to Hughes has been almost unremitting, was very red when, in answer to the call for Warren, he rose and answered: "Six for Charles E. Hughes."

Some minutes were required by the convention secretaries for the checking up of the totals and when Secretary Glason came forward to announce the result the hall was again a place of suppressed excitement, as if every person in the great room held his breath.

"John K. Stewart receives 31. James W. Wadsworth receives 151. Charles E. Hughes receives 827," announced the secretary, and then it was pandemonium.

"I move, Mr. Chairman," said Barnes, "that the nomination of Governor Hughes be made unanimous."

It was a full minute before anything else could be heard or done, and then Frank K. Cook, who had nominated Wadsworth, and J. L. Moore, who had nominated Stewart, seconded the motion of Barnes. The motion was carried with a deafening shout and Secretary Root announced: "The unanimous choice of the convention as its nominee for governor is Charles E. Hughes of New York."

It was again some minutes before the chairman could compel quiet sufficiently to permit of the further business of the convention. So far as the great majority of the people in the hall were concerned the work of the day was done. The remainder of the ticket was then quickly completed, the usual routine resolutions were passed and at 5:30 p. m. Root declared the convention adjourned without date. The full ticket follows:

For governor, Charles E. Hughes; lieutenant governor, Horace White; secretary of state, S. S. Koenig; attorney general, E. R. O'Malley; comptroller, C. H. Gaus; state engineer and surveyor, F. M. Williams; state treasurer, T. B. Dunn; associate justice of the court of appeals, Albert Haight.

DISCORD IS SWEPT AWAY

Chanler Will Probably Be Democrats' Choice For Governor

Rochester, Sept. 16.—Subordinating all personal animosities and heeding the earnest plea of the national chairman for harmony in the interest of success for the presidential ticket at the polls in November, the warring factions of the New York state Democracy last night agreed to pull together and all chance of friction in the state convention has been swept away.

Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, when told that Mr. Bryan himself was anxious that peace be established, agreed to withdraw all opposition to Senator McCarren's delegates in contested Brooklyn districts. The up-state leaders, in their scattering contested districts, also agreed to compromise matters pending the November election, and the threatening clouds of discord gave way to a program of harmony which will pave the way for what is planned to be a notable welcome to the presidential candidate, who will address the convention tonight.

The question for the nomination of governor is still unsettled. The leaders devoted all of the day to a straightening out of the contests and gave little or no heed to the probable head of the ticket. There still remains the impression that the candidate ultimately decided upon may be a man whose name has not yet been mentioned, but surface indications continue to point to Lieutenant Governor Chanler.

The ever-changing tide of gossip set toward B. C. Herrick again last night, but there was no greater impetus to the movement than was in evidence two days ago. Murphy has been anxious to get the opinion of the up-state leaders as to the strength of Chanler as a campaigner against Hughes. If he can be convinced on this point the friends of Chanler believe that the latter's nomination will be beyond the question of doubt.

Settlement of the threatening conditions was effected at the "harmony conference" participated in by National Chairman Mack, State Chairman Conners and Tammany Leader Murphy. When the committee on contested seats met here last night in adjourned session there was little to do but to ratify the decisions agreed upon earlier in the day.

Hughes Appreciates Honor

Rochester, Sept. 16.—"I am deeply sensible to the honor conferred upon me. I wish to express my appreciation of the confidence reposed in me by the Republican party." Thus did Governor Hughes make his first public statement after his notification of renomination for governor. Beyond that the governor would say nothing.

Hughes' Services Sought

Chicago, Sept. 16.—Republican leaders from fourteen central and western states, who were assembled here in conference with Chairman Hitchcock of the Republican national committee declared that the renomination of Hughes for governor of New York will aid the Republicans in their campaigns in all of the debatable states of the west. There is no longer any reason why an invitation to speak should be withheld from Hughes, and he will be asked to visit as many states as he can in the time he has to spare from his own campaign.

Car of Powder Exploded

Windsor, Mo., Sept. 16.—Six persons were killed and thirty injured, four probably fatally, by an explosion of a car of black powder. The explosion was caused by John Westley, who threw a lighted match into a pile of powder which had spilled from a broken keg of the explosive. Westley was blown to pieces.

Yacht Burned to Water's Edge

Noank, Conn., Sept. 16.—Sloop yacht Robert Palmer, owned by Captain Mark Griffin of Greenport, L. I., was burned to the water's edge here. Griffin with a party were out fishing when a small stove in the cabin fell over, setting fire to some gasolene. The party were rescued by the Fisher's island life saving crew.

BIG LEAGUE CHANGES

New York and Detroit, However, Continue In the Lead

Changes in position among the leading clubs, both National and American Leagues, resulted from the playing of yesterday's games. In the National League New York took a firmer hold on first place by defeating St. Louis, while Chicago, losing in Boston, was forced back to third place, Pittsburg pulling out a victory from Philadelphia and moving up to second position.

| Club | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| New York | 83 | 46 | .643 |
| Pittsburg | 83 | 51 | .619 |
| Chicago | 83 | 52 | .615 |

New York, 5; St. Louis, 4. Ames, Mathewson and Bresnahan; Sallee, Higginbotham and Bliss.

Boston, 3; Chicago, 2. Lindaman and Bowerman; Brown and Kling.

Cincinnati, 2; Brooklyn, 0. Spade, Ewing and McLean; Bell and Daum.

American League

Cleveland was the American League club to take a step upward in the pennant standing, defeating Chicago and replacing that club in second place. Meanwhile Detroit, defeating St. Louis, materially strengthened its grip on the league leadership. The standing of the leading clubs is as follows:

| Club | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| Detroit | 76 | 56 | .576 |
| Cleveland | 76 | 60 | .559 |
| Chicago | 75 | 60 | .555 |

MIND PERHAPS UNBALANCED

Fruitless Hunt For Girl Who Mysteriously Disappeared

Northampton, Mass., Sept. 16.—Bloodhounds will be used in the search for Miss Esther A. Hilbert, the young Philadelphia girl who disappeared Sunday, according to the decision of the girl's father, J. C. Hilbert, who has arrived here. An unsuccessful search was made in the woods about this city and in the vicinity of neighboring ponds and streams yesterday and is being continued today.

Hilbert says that he believes his daughter must have committed suicide and that her body must be somewhere in the woods in the vicinity of Chesterfield, where she had been spending the summer with her mother. So far no one has been found who remembers having seen Miss Hilbert after she disappeared in the grove near her mother's summer home on Sunday.

The girl's ill-health had interfered with her studying for the entrance examinations for Smith college, which opened yesterday. She was of a cheerful disposition, but it is thought that worry over two or three of her studies, combined with her illness, had temporarily unbalanced her mind.

Operatives' Wages to Be Reduced

Whitinsville, Mass., Sept. 16.—Notices posted at the Whitinsville cotton mills and at the Linwood mills at Linwood village announce a reduction in wages on Monday next and an increase in the running time from forty hours to fifty hours weekly. The cut will probably average 10 percent. The notices will also affect the North Uxbridge Manufacturing company's mills at North Uxbridge and the Saunders mills of Saundersville.

Mistook Brother For Moose

Fredericton, N. B., Sept. 16.—The big game season in New Brunswick opened yesterday and was marked by a shooting accident which will probably result fatally. Two brothers, Edward and Benjamin Smith, were hunting for moose fourteen miles from this city when Edward, mistaking his brother for a moose, fired, shooting Benjamin through the body.

Paynter For Governor

Dover, Del., Sept. 16.—The Democratic state convention nominated a list of presidential electors and a state ticket, headed by Rowland G. Paynter for governor. The temperance element fought hard to prevent the nomination of Paynter.

NEWS IN BRIEF

(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)
The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.
Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.
The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. CAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

A beautiful fall day.

The mercury dropped to 44 above early this morning.

Harry Sherburne of Quincy Point, spent Monday with relatives in Waltham.

William M. Marden court officer at the district court, is having his vacation.

The Milton Democratic town committee has voted to endorse Congressman O'Connell for renomination.

The job printing department of the Daily Ledger is very busy this week but has facilities to turn out work promptly.

It was on Sept. 16, 1639, that the First church of old Braintree (now Quincy) was embodied and the covenant signed.

On Sept. 16, 1875, the gilded dome of the First church first dazed the eyes of Quincy people. Not quite so dazzling now.

A special meeting of the executive board of the Quincy Women's club is called for ten o'clock Thursday morning at the club house.

The Philip Sullivan of Braintree arraigned in court this morning for drunkenness was not Phil Sullivan the lawyer and chorister of the Knockers club.

Arrangements are about perfected for a tuberculosis exhibit in the Council chamber, City Hall, Oct. 29 to Nov. 1st under the auspices of the city and the Quincy Women's club.

Edward J. Parker has decided to enter the caucuses as a Democratic candidate for Representative from the Fifth district, and his name has been filed by the Democratic City Committee to fill the vacancy.

Miss Augusta R. Sweeney of 72 Phipps street who has been sojourning since June 17 at Keene N. H., with Miss Gladys May Burns of Roxbury, returned home last Saturday, and will enter upon her senior year at Tufts college, Medford, Sept 17.

Mrs. Charles H. Hardwick of Chestnut street observed her 86th anniversary quietly on Saturday. She had several callers and received many tokens. Mrs. Hardwick enjoys good health, aside from rheumatism, and is always good company. She continues her interest in charitable work.

The Y. M. C. A. Woman's Auxiliary is preparing for a grand "Business Men's Carnival" on the evenings of Oct. 3 and 4, when there will be over 300 in the cast. Those taking part are asked to meet this evening in Y. M. C. A. hall, also Thursday and Friday evenings that parts may be assigned.

Evolution of Perfect Highway

The recent good roads convention in Buffalo is declared by some to have been the greatest move of progress in solving the problems of highway construction this country has ever witnessed. The papers read by various engineers and pioneer road builders from everywhere, says Cement Age of New York, contained a world of information gleaned from experience and there was described what might well be termed the perfect road. The evolution of this perfect highway a splendid example of which is the Long Island motor parkway, involved the use of concrete, in fact, the thoroughfare is literally a concrete road.

One of the interesting papers on that subject was that of Arthur R. Pardington, of Brooklyn, second vice-president and general manager of the Long Island motor parkway, entitled, "Special Methods of Road Construction." In this able treatise are revealed many facts in connection with the motor paradise now in process of construction on Long Island, which are of great interest, showing the plans for making the great project possible, the constructive methods, etc. The following are extracts from Mr. Pardington's address, showing the great utility of concrete in road improvement:

For the benefit of those who may not be familiar with this construction, and while avoiding a technical description, I would simply state that this road surface is a grouted concrete, using reinforcement of wire of a given mesh. Stone of a given dimension, approximating about two inches, is laid to the depth of two and one-half inches, wedded down and rolled. On top of this is laid the reinforcing of steel wire, a second layer of stone of smaller size is laid on top of the wire, wedded down and rolled to a perfectly smooth finish.

Following this work the concrete is put on in liquid form (rich in cement) and rolled in; a sufficient number of applications of concrete in this form is made until the entire mass is securely bound and all interstices are filled by the grouting. Rolling is continued during the entire time of grouting. In order that the finish might not be painful or tiresome to the eye a pigment of lamp black is used, varying as the conditions of scenery demand, so that in sections through the woods the road surface is lighter than on the open plains or in the open country, making the roadbed readily distinguishable at all times of the day and night.

Our bridges are constructed or reinforced concrete abutments and steel spans of as nearly standard size as possible.

Eleven miles of this highway will be completed in time for the fourth annual race for the William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Cup, on the 10th of October.

Eustis—Tileston.

Miss Edith Tileston, daughter of Mrs. John Boles Tileston of Milton, was married Tuesday afternoon to Mr. Frederic Augustus Eustis, Harvard '01, in the church of the Holy Spirit at Mattapan. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Alan McL. Taylor, the rector, assisted by Rev. George R. Hazard, the former rector. Following the church ceremony, there was a reception at the home of the bride's mother.

Robbed in Essex Street.

A Boston paper says, while John Coughlin of Quincy was on his way to the South Station Monday night he was held up and robbed in Essex street. A man ran out of a doorway and attacked him so suddenly that he had no time to put himself on the defensive. Taking his watch and chain, the robber fled; but Coughlin's cries brought a policeman, who chased the fleeing man. Running through many streets, the policeman finally caught Alexander Lowney, who gave his age as twenty-nine years and his address as 6 Park street, Charlestown. He was charged with assault and robbery.

TODAY'S COURT.

Joseph DeCosta was fined $5 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

Peter Caciela was arraigned for assault at Quincy. Case continued until Sept. 18.

The Quincy Day Nursery

Editor of the Daily Ledger:

My new friend had asked me several questions about the Day Nursery, expressing a doubt about the real need of one in a city like Quincy and the wisdom of working so hard to support it when there were so many other worthy charities.

"Have you ever visited the Day Nursery?" I asked. "No," she said, I confess with shame that I do not even know where it is."

"Come with me," I said, "and we will visit it together."

"I am busy today but tomorrow if you like"—

"Today," I demanded, "this very minute! We will take a little drive and I will show you something more interesting than one often sees." And so we went, she and I. We were met at the door by a strong, pleasant faced woman, a woman whose face showed that she had suffered and conquered and so knew how to help others to conquer. With all the grace of true hospitality she ushered us into a little room which bore the sign of "Matron's Room." It was simply furnished but was wonderfully neat; I looked outside at the cloud of dust driving so near the windows but I failed to see even a grain on the table near us.

Just then we heard a faint wail and our hostess sprang to her feet, "excuse me," she said, "one of the babies is awake and I must go."

"May we come too?" I made bold to ask.

"Certainly," she said.

So we followed as quietly as possible up the steep flight of stairs and found ourselves in a large airy room in which were five little cribs; in two of them were babies fast asleep but in the third was a child still rosy with sleep but sitting upright, holding up his little arms to be taken. He submitted to the motherly touch and was soon smiling at us over the shoulder of the strong kind matron.

"I was getting the children's dinner," she said, "will you come with me to the kitchen, I am sure it will interest you to see them at the table."

We gladly followed to the basement kitchen and reached there just in time to see nine little tots come in from out of doors. The baby was given over to the matron's young assistant while she, herself, washed the grimy little hands and faces.

In the meantime we took a peep into the yard and discovered a pitiful little sand heap, one small express wagon and a tiny wheelbarrow. "Is there no grass for them to play on?" whispered my friend.

I shook my head; I could not take the time to explain just then how hard we had worked to raise a little grass plot, but the ground was poor and our limited funds were needed to pay rent and other necessary expenses, so the children must play on the bare earth.

In a little room opening out of the kitchen was a long kindergarten table and each child took one of the tiny chairs and with folded hands waited with pathetic patience for the signal to be given, for in front of each one was a mug of water, a generous slice of bread and butter and a bowl of steaming broth; but no one touched a thing until the short grace had been sung and then the spoons were seized eagerly and, moreover, were used with astonishing nicety.

"You teach them table manners I see," said my friend to the Matron. "We try to," she said, "but it is pretty hard to keep them waiting for they are so hungry, some of them had very little breakfast."

"Why not?" exclaimed by friend in indignant surprise.

"The poor mothers do the best they can," said the Matron sadly," but they cannot all get work every day and of course the money goes fast for shelter and necessary clothes. Some of the mothers support three or four children and it is a bitter struggle. A man finds it hard in these days to care for his family but where a women must bear the burden alone it is discouraging indeed. A large part of our work is to show the mothers that we are their friends and that they can come to us for sympathy and encouragement. Each one pays five cents a day for each child she leaves here, so she does not feel that she is asking charity, but as a matter of fact that hardly pays for the milk the babies drink. They all realize that if it were not for this place where they could leave the youngest children to be cared for they could not go out to work for there is on one at home to care for them, as the older ones are in school."

By this time the bowls were empty, the bread eaten and spoons were being beaten vigorously against the table. They were quickly brought to order however and after the table was cleared a baked apple was set before each one.

"This is a special treat," said the smiling Matron, "a kind friend brought us the apples and the children are so fond of them."

We left them to enjoy their apples and passed through the immaculate kitchen, up the dark stairs to the Matron's room where we were asked to register.

I was glad to tell my friend as we drove away, a little of the history of the Nursery; how a handful of earnest women who realized the need had banded together and worked for several years to establish the home, the result that now there were between two and three hundred children cared for each month, so that we had outgrown the present quarters and were to move into a house near by where there was a grass plot for the children to play on, an apple tree to give shade and all the rooms on two floors, with better sanitary conditions, and for all this we were to pay less rent, but we hoped to be able to accommodate more children.

"What is the expense of running it?" asked my practical friend.

"About fifty cents a year for each child," I replied. "That sounds like very little but it amounts up to over seventy dollars a month and money comes in slowly. If every citizen in Quincy would maintain one child he would not feel it and our burden of raising money would be lifted.

"I am sure," said my friend, "if people realized as I do today the wonderful work which is being done so quietly, over in this obscure corner of Quincy the money would pour in. If you will stop at this grocery store I am going to take the liberty of sending, a few things to the Nursery myself."

When I saw the list of things she sent, my eyes were inconveniently dim for it was so generous and would be such a help, but after all what I valued most was the fact that we had won a new friend for the Nursery.

At the Barbecue.

Quincy was well represented on Tuesday at the grand Republican barbecue at the Point of Pines. Among those noticed in the crowd of thousands were: Ex-Mayor John O. Hall, Hon. John F. Merrill, the County Commissioner; Walter E. Piper, Hon. Eugene H. Sprague, Eugene R. Stone, Representative Eugene C. Hultman, Ralph W. Hobbs, president of the City Council; J. Edwin Glover, William M. Chase, chairman of the Republican City Committee; Francis M. Curtis, Daniel J. McGrath, Dexter E. Wadsworth, A. W. Stetson, Principal Assessor W. W. Adams, Thomas Butler, Andrew Johnson, ex-Representative Edward J. Sandberg, Oscar S. Sandberg, George H. Corliss and Albert Whitman.

Endurance Tests.

The Board of Inspection met on Tuesday at Newport at the Torpedo station to begin the twenty-four hours' endurance tests with the submarines Cuttlefish, Tarantula and Viper, which will conclude their final acceptance trials. The Octopus completed her tests this summer.

Chicken Business.

In a recent issue of its monthly crop report the State Board of Agriculture includes an article on the "Artificial Hatching and Rearing of Chickens," by Henry D. Smith of Rockland, Mass. Mr. Smith has had a great deal of experience in the production of South Shore roosters, where artificial methods are exclusively used, and has been very successful in them. A copy of the report will be sent to any one applying to J. Lewis Ellsworth, Secretary State Board of Agriculture, State House, Boston, and those who wish may have their names placed on the permanent mailing list.

In closing the article Mr. Smith says that there is undoubtedly a chance to make a good living in the artificial chicken business, but that the question as to whether a particular individual can make a success at it is another thing, for no one can tell another whether he can make a success at any business,—chickens, dairying, sheep raising, manufacturing shoes, stockings or watches, because so much depends on the individual himself.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Water Extensions In Demand

The communication sent to the City Council this week by Commissioner Brainbridge shows that between Jan. 1, and Aug. 15, there were laid 28,935 feet of water pipe. This includes 1922 feet of 8-inch; 6,682 feet of 6-inch; 2,429 feet of 2-inch pipe, and the balance of the total in 1 1-4 inch and 3-4 inch brass, iron and lead lined pipe.

In addition to this, 120 linear feet of six-inch hydrant connections were laid, and 15 hydrants were set. The report also shows the number of services made this year to have been 210. The total value of construction work in the department during this period was $20,421.79.

In the communication accompanying this report, the Commissioner says that there is an urgent need of further extensions being made in the department, and he asks for an appropriation of $5,000 to complete the work.

First Gun In Local Campaign

A Democratic rally, the first in the campaign, was held in the interest of Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, candidate for renomination from the Tenth district, in St. Mary's hall, Wednesday night. A large crowd was waiting outside the hall, and when Congressman O'Connell arrived in his big touring car, they greeted him with cheers. He went immediately to the stage and was introduced by Joseph McDevitt, the chairman, who said a few words about Mr. O'Connell's career.

Mr. Charles Cooney, president of the "Red Devils" of Ward 20, Dorchester, was on the stage with the congressman.

Congressman O'Connell spoke for about half an hour, during which time he recounted his career while at Washington, saying that he thought he had made good his campaign motto of "able, active and aggressive." He spoke in glowing terms of the Tenth district, and especially alluded to Quincy, the city of two Presidents, and the home of railroading and shipping in the United States.

He said that he believed that the future would develop Quincy into a great seaport city, with factories and wharves stretching from the Fore river all the way round to the Neponset river, and promised to do all he was able towards bringing this about, if he was sent back to Washington. And he believed he could do this by putting through the bill providing for a torpedo station at the mouth of the Neponset river, a bill which is already before the house, to be brought up at the next session.

In the course of his speech, Mr. O'Connell touched upon national politics, and alluded to the great gain in Maine as evidence of a universal gain. He predicted a big victory this year for the Democrats, saying that next year we would have a Democratic President and a Democratic Congress.

Charles Cooney followed with a brief address and urged all to work hard for the only Democrat able to get a bill through the House after the filibuster started, in the last session of Congress.

The crowd while large and enthusiastic was orderly all through, and cheered the popular Congressman when he arrived and when he left the hall.

Mr. O'Connell left about 9.30 and attended a smoker given by Division 5, A. O. H., at their hall on Franklin street. He was accompanied by John McCloskey, of Neponset, a personal friend.

—We examine in our dark-room with modern instruments. If we find disease we send you to a reliable oculist. Williams 1473 Hancock street.

COURTS CROWDED

Over 250 Cases Before Norfolk Superior Court At This Session

(Special to Daily Ledger.)

Dedham, Sept. 17, 1908.

The buzz of politics can now be heard as the time approaches for the caucuses. That is so far as the Republicans are concerned, for the Democrats have so little opportunity to have even a look in that there is no fight in them. Probably no presidential campaign has been so quiet within the memory of the oldest politician. Hardly a ripple has disturbed the serenity of the political pool. Even the lieutenant-governor fight which has been kept alive only through the strenuous effort of the three aspirants for the nomination. The Dedham town committee are strong for Frothingham. Dedham will send an unpledged delegation probably in the interest of Frothingham.

The Norfolk Superior court list for the session now being held has been made up and shows the record for the county with 259 cases. It is made up as follows: jail cases, 44; for sentence or other disposition of the court, 53; new appeals for trial, 63; continued cases for trial, 39; liquor cases, 33; new indictments, 20; and suits on recognizances, 7.

On the list are: one murder indictment in the first degree, that against Dr. Walter R. Amesbury of Hyde Park; and two assaults with intent to murder; besides a large number of breaking and entering, assaults, larcenies and minor cases. As there are only two weeks of court the most important will be the only ones heard. The murder case will not be held until later when Chief Justice Atkin has picked out a date, chosen two justices to preside, and has a special panel of 100 jurors summoned.

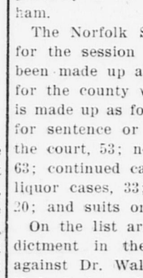

A musically inclined horse was seen passing through Dedham square Wednesday afternoon. He was attached to a peddler's wagon, but that did not disturb his musical mind, for the strains of a street organ set him agoing and as he walked up to the drinking fountain he kept time to a popular marching tune. After having satisfied himself at the fountain he continued to keep time to the march on leaving. The efforts of the driver to get the horse to quicken his pace was unavailing, and the turnout disappeared with the horse stepping to the swing of "Our Director."

Among the appeal cases in the superior court docket are 19 who have been in the lower courts on charges of violations of the automobile laws, and having been found guilty have appealed to the high court for a trial by jury. Of these one comes from Quincy, two from Dedham, seven from Norwood and nine from Milton. From appearances with 44 jail cases and 39 liquor cases to take precedent, there is very little likelihood of the automobile cases being tried. It is probable that any such condition does not bother the automobilists any.

Among those serving in the present term of the Norfolk superior criminal court now sitting are: Edward R. Blanchard, Francis J. Hevahan, John A. Mahoney, John B. McGilvray and Harry O. Parker, all of Quincy; Joseph L. Collinge and Harry W. Vogel both of Weymouth; John P. Robery, of Braintree; and Patrick M. Reardon of Holbrook.

James Vye of Randolph, the latest deputy sheriff appointee, attended his first session of court this week at the coming in of the criminal session on Monday.

Noon Alarm Bridge Fire

The alarm from Box 62 at 11.58 this noon was for a fire on the planking of the sidewalk on Neponset bridge. When the department arrived the fire was burning briskly, and it required two of the Atlantic Combination and two of the Wollaston Combination chemical tanks to extinguish it. About 25 feet of the planking were burned and will have to be replaced. A match dropped in the dry wood was probably the cause.

AFTERNOON FIRE.

The alarm from Box 412 this noon was for a fire in the house of James E. Mulligan on Wesson avenue.

Ready for Busy Season

The Wollaston Congregational church will reopen on Sunday, Sept. 20. During the summer an extensive renovation of the building has been made. It has been thoroughly repaired and painted outside. Inside new furnaces have been installed. The walls have been redecorated in shades of gray-green; around the chancel is a decoration in old blue and gold, and within the chancel itself is a cross in gold. The choir draperies are in green. A quartered oak floor has been laid, with carpet treads in wood color and inconspicuous green. Altogether the effect is very restful and subdued without being gloomy.

The doors of this church are open to everyone who seeks to worship God. Its pews are free at all services. Its minister, Edward A. Chase, is accessible at all times for such services as the public demands. The church is on the corner of Lincoln and Winthrop avenues. The parsonage is at 20 Marion street.

Woman Robbed.

The old story of a dog biting the hand that feeds him was again enacted Wednesday afternoon, when Arthur Mulligan robbed Mrs. Mary Sullivan of Brackett street of $20 in money after she had given him his supper. According to her story Mulligan asked her for something to eat and she gave him his supper. While eating his supper he learned that she kept her money in her stocking. After supper, Mulligan watched his opportunity and suddenly in an unguarded minute he made a grab for the money and secured it. Before Mrs. Sullivan could stop him he had gone. The police were notified and are looking for Mulligan, who is well known.

The Fore River Ship Building Co. is building a garage on Howard street to accommodate the officials of the company who own automobiles.

PAPERS MISSING

Congressional Candidate Claims He Was Trimmed In Quincy

Frank J. Linehan, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for Congressman from the Tenth district, whose papers were thrown out in Quincy as they did not have the re- in town this morning looking into the matter.

To use his own words Mr. Linehan said that he was "Trimmed" in Quincy. Under the law nomination papers must have at least 70 names. The papers sent to City Clerk Keith contained but 41 names and therefore could not be received.

Mr. Linehan says that he came to Quincy last Thursday and filed his papers with the secretary of the Democratic City Committee. He claims that he filed five papers containing 91 signatures. But three papers were filed with the City Clerk by the Democratic City Committee, and Mr. Linehan claims that he was trimmed out of two papers.

This morning he visited the City Clerk's office and exhibited a certificate from the Election Commissioners of Boston showing that he had filed papers in Boston. He made a claim to the City Clerk that this certificate should be evidence enough to have his delegates placed on the caucus ballot in Quincy. Mr. Keith, however, did not read the law that way, and the Linehan delegates will not be printed on the official ballot.

Mr. Linehan then announced that he would have strickers ready in every ward, bearing the name of his delegates. As he left the City Clerk's office he said that he had filed his papers in the presence of three witnesses and the only mistake he made was not to have taken a receipt for them. So much for Mr. Linehan's side of the story.

William J. Flynn, secretary of the Democratic committee, has a different story to tell. He says that he is simply a servant of the party, and that all the papers filed with him were forwarded to the City Clerk.

Mr. Flynn says that Mr. Linehan came to Quincy on Thursday afternoon and filed his papers. That he counted the names on the papers and there were but 41. That evening when the papers were read Cornelius O. Austin entered a protest because the required number of signatures were not appended.

Here are the two sides of the controversy and the question is what has become of the two missing papers?

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Warmer today.

The last half of the month.

Straw hats were called in later than usual this year.

The open street cars have been taken off and housed for the winter.

An adjourned hearing on the abolition of the grade crossings at Saville and Water streets will be held Saturday, Sept. 26.

Extensive repairs are being made to the street front of the building recently occupied by Miss C. S. Hubbard in City Square.

The City Council committee on Streets submitted 28 reports to the City Council Monday night, which included 64 of the petitions and orders that had been referred to them.

J. Leonard Ferguson, local superintendent of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., entertained the agents with a shore dinner at Houghs Neck this week.

The Norfolk county W. R. C. association held its annual meeting at Stoughton on Wednesday, and in the election of officers, Mrs. Eliza A. Penniman of Quincy was made secretary, and Mrs. May Brown, also of Quincy, was elected chaplain.

The show at the Auditorium this week is up to the usual high standard. Bert Lewis, the Scotch comedian pleased all with his funny jokes and stories, while Master Harry Fletcher and Kitty Bingham made a big hit with their popular and catchy songs. The pictures were funny and entertaining.

TRIUMPHANT TRIP OF BRYAN

Nebraskan Gets Warm Greetings In the Empire State

HE SPEAKS SEVENTEEN TIMES

"Mr. Taft and His Scares" Are Discussed at Meeting Which Formed Climax of Eventul Day--Thinks Argument and Persuasion of Taft Have Not Been Effective--Considers Labor Question, Tariff and Panic

Rochester, Sept. 17.—A speech made by W. J. Bryan on "Mr. Taft and His Scares" and two overflow talks formed the climax of an eventful day in the present campaign. Arriving here shortly after 6 o'clock and met by thousands of persons, Democracy's leader was accorded an ovation.

Along with him from Syracuse came Lewis S. Chanler, who was literally lifted out of an automobile in the street at Syracuse and onto the car because of the great throng which had assembled to catch a view of Bryan.

The principal speech was in convention hall, where the Democratic state convention finished its labors yesterday and which was packed to the doors last night, with several thousands on the outside, unable to gain admittance. Bryan was accorded a great demonstration by his audience, among whom were the Democratic leaders of the state and most of the delegates to the convention just adjourned.

Mr. Bryan, in the course of his set speech in this city, said:

"Mr. Taft confesses that his arguments are not convincing when he attempts to introduce scares and to threaten the public with dire disaster if he is not elected. A threat is always an admission that argument and persuasion have not been effective. Measured by this test, Mr. Taft has already abandoned hope of convincing the public of the righteousness of his position.

"On the labor questions he declares that our demands for a trial by jury in cases of indirect contempt is the most insidious attack upon the judicial system in the history of the country. According to Mr. Taft, it would very much impair the administration of justice. He seems to forget that the very reform which we endorse was endorsed by the United States senate twelve years ago, and that it was supported by such Republicans as Senator Sherman of Ohio, Senator Allison of Iowa, Senator Hale of Maine, Senator Hawley of Connecticut, Senator Morrill of Vermont and Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota. Mr. Taft may be willing to bring his indictment against the Democratic party, but is he prepared to include in his indictment the prominent Republicans whose names I have just mentioned?

"Mr. Taft began his candidacy a year ago as a champion of tariff reform, but each month has witnessed a lessening of his zeal until now his temperature, measured by the tariff reform thermometer, is close to zero.

"There is only one way in which the last fall's panic can be charged to the Democrats, and that is to say that the people saw last fall that the Democrats were going to win this fall and had their panic in advance of the election. And now, as they did not predict more than one panic for a Democratic administration, if we have already had our Democratic panic in anticipation, why not go ahead and have the blessings of a Democratic administration?"

Mr. Bryan's journey through the Empire state was a triumphant one, for everywhere immense crowds greeted him with cheering and the waving of flags and banners. At each place a speech was insisted on, and when he had gotten through the day he had spoken seventeen times.

The Democratic platform was the weapon with which he sought to convince his hearers of the righteousness of the Democratic cause. He never lost an opportunity to flay both President Roosevelt and Taft.

WITHOUT OPPOSITION

Chanler and Dix Head Democratic Ticket In New York

Rochester, Sept. 17.—Nominating all but one of its candidates by acclamation and placing them in the field on a platform which scathingly arraigns the administration of Governor Hughes and pledges earnest support to the Denver platform and candidates, the Democratic state convention nominated as the head of its ticket for governor the present lieutenant governor of the state, Lewis S. Chanler.

The ticket, with one exception, seemed to meet the approval of all the delegates, and the nominating session was marked by great enthusiasm until the office of state engineer and surveyor was reached. The conference candidate for this office was Philip P. Farley of Brooklyn, an anti-McCarren man. The previous harmony of the convention was disturbed when his name was reached and McCarren took the platform "to resent an insult." Leonard C. L. Smith of Long Island City was nominated in opposition to Farley, but the latter won on rollcall by 321 to 7. A motion to make the nomination unanimous was lost by two or three scattering negatives.

The following slate was ratified by the convention:

Governor, Lewis S. Chanler; lieutenant governor, John A. Dix; secretary of state, J. S. Whalen; comptroller, M. H. Glynn; attorney general, G. M. Palmer; treasurer, Julius Hauser; state engineer and surveyor, P. P. Farley.

The selection by the leaders of Dix as the candidate for lieutenant governor came as a big surprise, as it had been taken for settled that Francis B. Harrison of New York would be the choice. It is believed that the leaders desired to strengthen the ticket by naming a far up-state man, and Harrison preferred to remain in congress.

WALLER SWAYED DELEGATES

Robertson Named For Governor by Democrats of Connecticut

Hartford, Sept. 17.—The Democratic state convention, which placed in the field a state ticket and a nominee for representative-at-large in congress, was a convention in which one man in a single respect stood upon the platform almost absolute master of the situation, and the master because his own interests were at stake.

That man was former Governor Thomas M. Waller, whom nearly every delegate in the convention wanted to have nominated for governor, but who found it a physical impossibility to respond to the call of the party. He bore the brunt of the battle and by his speech, given with much of the old-time vigor with many of the quips and quirks which years ago made him the ideal campaign speaker before a Connecticut political audience, led the delegates from their intentions and made them ratify almost to a man the name of Judge A. H. Robertson of New Haven for governor. The rest of the ticket is as follows:

Lieutenant governor, R. U. Tyler; secretary of state, A. J. Brouhel; state treasurer, George Mischler; state comptroller, J. M. Brady; congressman-at-large, Christopher Avery.

The platform is one of the longest documents of its kind ever passed upon by a convention in the state. Fifteen of its sixteen planks are given up to state issues.

Taft's Plan of Campaign

Cincinnati, Sept. 17.—William H Taft will make three campaign tours. His first will begin here Sept. 23 and end Oct. 7 at Galesburg, Ills. The trip will take him through Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska, Colorado, Kansas and Missouri. The second trip will take him into Kentucky, Tennessee, and possibly North Carolina. The last trip will be in the east. New York city will be visited and a speech will be made in the northern part of the empire state. It has been decided that New England will not be included in this trip, but speeches will be made in Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio, which will bring the candidate back to his native city for the election.

A Peculiar Tragedy

Montclair, N. J., Sept. 17.—John Leonard, a retired iron and steel merchant, was fatally shot at his home here. Walker Phillips, Leonard's private secretary, on his way to the Leonard home found a revolver in the street and it was with this weapon that Leonard met his death. Phillips says that Leonard asked to see the revolver and that it exploded in his hand while Leonard was examining it. Phillips was placed under arrest.

Alleged Slayer Captured

Nashua, N. H., Sept. 17.—Charged with being an escaped prisoner from the Herkimer county (N. Y.) jail, Alton Vincent was arrested in Groton by Sheriff Shattuck. Vincent was held in Herkimer county jail, charged with having killed a man during a quarrel at Little Falls, N. Y. Vincent was seen in Groton by a commercial traveler who knew him well and informed the police.

Prince Willing to Be Divorced

Paris, Sept. 17.—It is understood that Prince Robert de Brogile, while admitting that he has left his wife, denies the intention attributed to him of suing her for divorce. He says that he will not oppose a divorce suit brought by the princess, who was Estelle Alexander of San Francisco. She first married Sydney B. Veit in Chicago, from whom she was divorced.

Buncoed Out of $30,000

New York, Sept. 17.—The Stock Exchange house of E. R. Chapman & Co. has been victimized to the extent of $30,000 by means of fraudulent checks, according to a statement issued by the firm. The statement says the checks were forged and uttered by a man who was employed as manager of one of the firm's branch offices. He has disappeared.

Towns In Path of Fire

Calumet, Mich., Sept. 17.—Ahmeek, a mining town five miles north of here, is threatened again with destruction by forest fires. A few miles further north Ojibway is experiencing anxiety. The Calumet and Hecla and Tamarack Mining companies have men fighting the fires near their pumping plants on the Lake Superior shore.

Social Function on Battleships

Albany, West Australia, Sept. 17.—There was a reception and dance on board the battleship Connecticut, given by the officers in return for the hospitality that they have received on shore. Among those present were the governor and the premier of Western Australia. The occasion was an unqualified success.

The Weather Forecast

INVESTIGATE and ECONOMIZE.

NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.

On and after September 16, we have decided

TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE

as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods

AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills over due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every day. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and take them with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Now think this proposition over, and we feel confident that you can see it just the way that we do.

SOMETHING THAT IS NEEDED HERE IN QUINCY.

A HIGH GRADE OF GOODS SOLD AT LOW PRICES.

So Remember your 5 per cent discount.

AN OPTIMISTIC PREDICTION

Self Government For Ireland Within Fifteen Years

THE HOME RULE QUESTION

British Statesmen Driven to Take a Tolerant View Because of Open Sympathy of Americans--Redmond Says Ireland Should Be a Manufacturing Rather Than Agricultural Country In the Near Future

New York, Sept. 17.—"The success of the home rule movement is no longer in doubt. Thanks to the splendid moral support of the United States and of the various British colonies, Ireland will enjoy self-government in less than fifteen years."

This was the confident statement made by John Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader and member of parliament, who is here for a three weeks' visit.

"Nothing has done so much to bring the British cabinet to a tolerant view of the Irish home rule question," continued Redmond, "as the open sympathy with which the public men of the United States have voiced our cause. The public opinion of the world, and particularly of the Anglo-Saxon race, has shamed the British cabinet into making concessions to the cause of home rule which, in their aggregate, constitute almost a revolution

"The new land law is a big step in the direction of self-government. Where in the past the tenant had no encouragement whatever to increase the productiveness of the land, he now has an incentive—the prospect of eventually owning the land himself.

"Another evidence of the gradual abandonment of the policy of oppression by the governing party is to be found in the recent granting to Ireland of an educational fund of $720,000 a year and the authorization of a free national university. All these are signs that show the trend of public feeling in England. The Irish Nationalists are strong in parliament and are now in a position to demand and obtain consideration. We want to make them stronger.

"The endorsement of such men as President Roosevelt and Mr. Bryan has done us a world of good at home. The consciousness that persistence in the refusal to grant absolute autonomy to Ireland is looked upon with disfavor by the people of the United States has had a deterring effect upon British statesmen, who normally would have persisted in their policy of subjection. A few more years of this intangible, but irresistible, pressure will bring about full recognition of our rights. In less than fifteen years I expect to see Ireland occupy the same place relative to Great Britain which New York state occupies towards the United States.

"The industrial renaissance of Ireland, which is already in progress, I look to see materially quickened by the establishment in Ireland of factories financed by Irish-Americans whom the new British patent law now compels to manufacture in Great Britain. The impression that Ireland is fundamentally an agricultural country is not justified. Ireland has been made agricultural artificially by act of British parliament 200 years ago, which suppressed all factories then in existence. A protective tariff of 500 percent against Irish manufactured goods was imposed, and, naturally, the factories had to close.

"These restrictions no longer exist, however, and it is now only a question of time before new industries are started. With the building of new factories, with the coincident opportunities for work which they will afford, a strong incentive for emigration will be removed. Already the emigration movement is showing signs of abatement."

Mr. Redmond was asked to give his appreciation of the importance and value of the Sinn Fein movement, which also proclaims self-government for Ireland as its chief object. "They represent a class," said he, "who advocate the freeing of Ireland by force of arms. I have the highest respect for their intentions, but very little for their common sense. I prefer not to wait until Ireland has an army and a fleet strong enough to subdue England."

Spalding May Retain Bishopric

Peoria, Ills., Sept. 17.—Rt. Rev. John L. Spalding, bishop of the diocese of Peoria, may continue at the head of the church in this section. At a meeting of the eleven irremovable priests of the diocese, who were called in conference at the bishop's residence, it was decided to recommend to the pope that Spalding's resignation be not accepted.

Suicide of a Priest

New York, Sept. 17.—Father Arturo Asenico, a priest from Santo Domingo, who was found unconscious in Central Park with a bullet wound in his head, died from his injuries. Coroner's Physician Schultz performed an autopsy on the body and gave it as his opinion that it was a case of suicide.

Cholera Continues to Spread

St. Petersburg, Sept. 17.—An official bulletin on the cholera situation gives the number of cases in the city as 249, with seventy deaths. The infection is beginning to spread from among the poorer classes to the better classes.

CANDIDATES ALL HOPEFUL

Triangular Fight In New Hampshire Republican Convention

OUTCOME GREATLY IN DOUBT

Many Delegates Chosen at Recent Caucus Are Unpledged--Pillsbury and Quinby Have Conducted Spirited Campaign For Gubernatorial Nomination--Ellis Classed as a Middle-of-the-Road Candidate

Concord, N. H., Sept. 17.—An excitement which is not in the least suppressed and which recalls the wild scenes attending the four-cornered fight at the Republican state convention in Concord two years ago pervades this city. Today the Republicans of New Hampshire will send their delegates to Concord again to select a candidate for governor.

While there are only three aspirants to the nomination this year, one of these is the man who received the largest vote on the first ballot in the convention of 1906, although he was subsequently defeated. In addition to this man, Rosecrans W. Pillsbury of Londonderry, the men whose names will go before the convention today are Bertram Ellis of Keene, speaker of the state house of representatives, and Henry B. Quinby of Laconia.

The supporters of all three candidates express the utmost confidence in the outcome. The adherents of Quinby are asserting that he is sure of enough votes to ensure his nomination on the first ballot, while Pillsbury's friends declare that he will get the nomination, either on the first or some subsequent ballot. The Ellis leaders are less emphatic in their claims, but express the belief that their candidate will draw enough votes from the other two to bring about his victory. So many of the delegates chosen at the caucuses last week were unpledged that the outcome of the balloting is greatly in doubt.

Pillsbury and Quinby have conducted spirited campaigns, while Ellis has carried on a less vigorous canvass. Pillsbury, who has claimed that he represented the "reform" element in New Hampshire politics, has declared that the issue this year is the alleged domination of the Boston and Maine railroad in New Hampshire legislation and administration, and he has charged that Quinby was favorable to the continuance of such control. Ellis has asked support on his record in various state offices.

The leaders of the Pillsbury and Quinby forces have attacked each other bitterly throughout the campaign, and while both have emphasized the need of harmony in the party ranks in a presidential year, it seems probable that the party leaders will have all they can do to secure such harmony, no matter who is nominated.

Not all the politicians here are prepared to admit it yet, but the nomination for governor depends very much on the vote which Ellis gets in the convention. Ellis has been the middle-of-the-road candidate. Originally classed as a railroad man, he has not had the railroad support in the preliminary campaign, and although not a "reformer," as the expression is used in political New Hampshire, his political interests are not so tied up with those of the Boston and Maine management, which the reformers are fighting, that he may not have friends in the reform camp.

The caucus last night decided upon the organization of the convention. The makeup of the principal officers and chairmen of committees was reached harmoniously and ratified unanimously. The officers chosen were:

Temporary chairman, Hiram A. Tuttle of Pittsfield; permanent chairman, Wallace Hackett of Portsmouth; chairman of the resolutions committee, James Templeton of Exeter; chairman of the committee on credentials, Thomas Entwhistle, Portsmouth.

French Press Is Irritated

Paris, Sept. 17.—The French press is displaying much irritation over the violent criticisms of the Franco-Spanish note regarding Morocco that are appearing in the newspapers of Germany. It is the opinion of the foreign office that Chancellor Von Buelow should not be held responsible for the utterances of the German newspapers, and it is awaiting calmly the chancelor's return to Berlin and Germany's official answer to the note.

Excitement Kills Negro Preacher

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 17.—Rev. J. W. Hawkins, pastor of the First Baptist (negro) church and one of the most noted negroes in the state, died suddenly of heart disease as a result of excitement growing out of a riot created at his home by a member of the Lexington state guard company. The guardsman accused Hawkins of selling liquor and tried to arrest him and later attacked the Hawkins residence.

Forest Fires In Maine

Lewiston, Me., Sept. 17.—Several small forest fires are raging in this section of the state, although the most serious one, the No Name pond fire, is partially under control. As yet no buildings have burned. Other smaller fires are raging in Greene, Monmouth and Litchfield.

MYSTERY UNFATHOMED

Organized Search For Miss Hilbert Is to Be Discontinued

Northampton, Mass., Sept. 17.—Wearied and discouraged with their unsuccessful search for Miss Esther Hilbert, the young Philadelphia student who disappeared from her mother's summer home at Chesterfield Sunday, the party of 100 men who went out early yesterday to look for the girl returned last night. Officer McKay of the state police said that the woods, rivers and ponds in the neighborhood had been examined thoroughly for three days, and that as no trace of the girl had been found organized search would be given up.

John C. Hilbert, the girl's father, is firm in the belief that his daughter has met her death either by suicide or foul play and that her body is in some secluded spot somewhere in the neighborhood. While no opinion on this point can be obtained from the police, it is understood that some of them think that the girl is still alive.

OYSTER BAY FOLKS CALL ON PRESIDENT

Old Acquaintances Are Renewed at Sagamore Hill

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 17.—Today is the day of all days for Oyster Bay. Every person in the village, be he exalted in station or the most lowly, was invited to attend a reception at President Roosevelt's mansion on Sagamore Hill. President and Mrs. Roosevelt greeted the townspeople and light refreshments were served.

Four years ago Mr. Roosevelt invited the townspeople to a reception at Sagamore Hill and on that occasion a huge punch bowl, kept ever filled, stood where all could conveniently reach it and each of the 2000 or more people who attended the reception were permitted to keep the punch glasses as souvenirs.

This being President Roosevelt's last year in office, he wishes to renew old acquaintances, for, during the last few years, he has been compelled by press of business to shut himself off, to a great extent, from his friends and neighbors at Oyster Bay. As only townspeople were permitted to attend the reception today, it is estimated that not more than 1200 people were present.

Alleged Cruelty to Animals

Boston, Sept. 17.—Charged with cruelty to their polo ponies in a match played at the Myopia Hunt club in Hamilton, summonses were served on Allan Forbes and M. Stephenson by agents for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, which brings the complaint. Both polo players belong to wealthy and aristocratic families. The summonses were served immediately after a polo match at Myopia, and every effort was made to keep the fact secret.

Boys Responsible For Big Fire

Bangor, Me., Sept. 17.—Fire which was set by two small boys in a pile of excelsior in the woodyard of Bacon & Robinson here destroyed the woodyard, burned one dwelling, gutted five others and damaged six. Everything was dry as tinder and the flames spread rapidly. The work of the Bangor department was seriously hampered by lack of serviceable hose and by weak water pressure. The loss will be between $30,000 and $40,000.

Lives Were In Jeopardy

Amityville, L. I., Sept. 17.—Not realizing their danger, ninety insane prisoners of the Long Island home fought against being removed from a section of the main building when that structure caught fire. Sixty keepers were compelled to use force to get the unfortunate men and women to safety. There is considerable mystery as to the cause of the fire. The loss is $20,000.

Over Hundred Feet Under Water

Newport, R. I., Sept. 17.—While the five submarines were preparing for their attack upon the cruiser Yankee in Buzzards bay the submarine Octopus was submerged to the depth of 107 feet. She had on board Lieutenant Courtney and a crew of ten men. Last year the same boat was submerged 200 feet off Boston light, but there was no crew aboard at that time.

Several Steamers Overdue

Kingston, Jam., Sept. 17.—Telegraphic reports from the north side of the island state that the United Fruit company's steamer Bradford, from New York, three days overdue, arrived at Port Antonio last evening. The Bradford passed through a severe hurricane, but suffered no damage. There are a number of steamers several days overdue.

Four Men Probably Perished

San Francisco, Sept. 17.—Barkentine Fremont, from the Actic, brought news of the probable perishing of four members of the crew who deserted and started to reach Unalaska. They started on their perilous trip late one night during the height of a storm. They had been dissatisfied for some time over the amount of their spring allowance.

Vast Fortune For Second Wife

Mineola, L. I., Sept. 17.—The will of William B. Leeds, who died in Paris recently, leaving an estate valued at more than $30,000,000, was admitted to probate here. By its terms the son by Leeds' first wife, Rudolph G. Leeds, gets $1,000,000, and practically the residue of the estate is left to the second wife, Nonnie S. Leeds.

RACE CONTINUES CLOSE

Leaders In Baseball Leagues Draw Nearer to Pennants

By winning steadily, while its near rivals are occasionally dropping a game, the New York National League club is gradually working into a position where its grip on first position in the pennant race is reasonably secure. Yesterday the New Yorks won another game from St. Louis, while the Pittsburgs were dividing a double-header with Philadelphia. Chicago yesterday regained some of the ground lost the day previous and stands on even terms with Pittsburg, the two teams being tied for second place. The standing of the leaders is as follows:

| | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| New York | 84 | 46 | .646 |
| Pittsburg | 84 | 52 | .618 |
| Chicago | 84 | 52 | .618 |

New York, 6; St. Louis, 2. Crandall and Bresnahan; Baldwin, Lush and Moran.

Philadelphia, 5; Pittsburg, 2. Sparks and Dooin; Camnitz, Leever and Gibson. Pittsburg, 2; Philadelphia, 0. Leifield and Gibson; Richie and Jacklitsch.

Chicago, 5; Boston, 0. Pfeister and Kling; Mattern, Chappelle and Bowerman.

Brooklyn, 3; Cincinnati, 0. Wilhelm and Dunn; Dubec and McLean.

American League

In the American League interest has centered upon the Detroit-St. Louis and Cleveland-Chicago series. The outcome of the meetings between these four first division clubs is decidedly to the advantage of Detroit and Cleveland, the former now occupying a fairly strong position in the lead. Cleveland has worked up to second place, while St. Louis, only twenty points removed from the leaders Sunday, is now thirty-five points in the rear. The standing of the leading clubs is as follows:

| | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| Detroit | 77 | 56 | .579 |
| Cleveland | 77 | 60 | .562 |
| Chicago | 75 | 61 | .551 |
| St. Louis | 73 | 61 | .544 |

Detroit, 4; St. Louis, 1. Summers and Schmidt; Waddell and Smith.

Cleveland, 7; Chicago, 1. Berger and Bemis; Feine and Sullivan.

New England League

Worcester, 2; Brockton, 1. Keady and Lavigne; Cutting and McGovern.

Haverhill, 4; Lynn, 0. Friel and Perkins; Gibbs and Foster.

Jealousy Causes Double Crime

Eastport, Me., Sept. 17.—Jealous at the alleged attentions of another man, George Mitchell, aged 22, shot and instantly killed his sweetheart, Miss Georgia Pratt, who was about eight years his senior, then blew out his brains with the same weapon, a 32-calibre revolver. Mitchell had been paying attention to the young woman a year or more, but at the same time she had other suitors. Miss Pratt lived with her grandmother, Mrs. Georgianna Cram, in whose home the tragedy occurred. Nothing will be known of what happened, as the couple were alone in the house.

Neapolitan Hospitality

Naples, Sept. 17.—The battleships Maine and Alabama, the vanguard of the American Atlantic fleet, arrived here and were given an enthusiastic welcome. Thousands of persons gathered at the waterfront when the sound of the salutes was heard, and later, when officers and men came ashore, the inhabitants of Naples received them with great hospitality. Arrangements have been made to give the American visitors a royal entertainment while they are here.

City Workmen In Pols' Homes

Boston, Sept. 17.—The Post says that the finance commission is in possession of information to the effect that thousands of dollars' worth of work has been done by the public buildings department in the homes of politicians under past administrations. It is said that the labor has been furnished for plumbing jobs, furniture repairs and even building repairs by the department.

Hurricane Heads Northward

Washington, Sept. 17.—The West Indian hurricane passed over the Bahama islands yesterday, according to reports received at the weather bureau, and is moving toward Newfoundland Banks. The hurricane will hardly lose any of its energy during its progress toward the Newfoundland coast. Vessel owners have been notified of the probable course of the hurricane.

Manila's Cholera Cases

Manila, Sept. 17.—Thirty-one cases of cholera have been reported in this city in all, and the death record up to the present time is twelve.

EDITORIAL.

Dr. William Osler has been elected Lord High Rector of the University of Edinburgh. And this for the man who, by his own dictum, should have been chloroformed on his last birthday.

A medical journal has published that a red nose is no sign of drunkenness. Still, as a prima facie indication, it will doubtless continue to be suggestive of hard drinking.

There have been a number of tramps about lately asking for food. Chief Burrell's advice to the housekeeper is not to feed them. Turning a professional beggar from one's door is not hard heartedness but common sense, for by feeding them you encourage crime and laziness, for a man who can get a good living by begging won't work and soon becomes a menace to the community.

The President's letter to a friend in Montana which has been published far and wide throughout the country, suggests that the Republican party feels it may lose a big portion of the labor vote. The writing of political letters by presidents, in behalf of the candidates whom they wished to succeed them, has few if any precedents in American history, but Mr. Roosevelt is an iconoclast as regards precedents and it is predicted by many that he will not stop with writing letters, but will take the stump in person for his candidate. There is no reason who he should not take the stump. The whole country knows that he favors the election of Mr. Taft and the President is not a man who will let "'I dare not' wait upon 'I would.'" The President discusses the candidate's attitude toward reforms, railroad and trust regulations and labor organizations, and he says: "There is no fight for decency and fair dealing which I have waged in which I have not had his heartiest and most effective sympathy and support, and the policies for which I stand are his policies as well as mine."

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

George W. Jones has the fall styles of soft and stiff hats.

Mrs. Clarence Cousens, of Beach street, has gone to visit her parents in the west for a few weeks.

Mrs. George W. Taylor and son Clifford have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Oliver of Avon.

G. W. Wheeler has succeeded C. S. Hubbard in the dry goods store in City Square, and has a full line of new fall goods of all kinds for ladies and misses. See special bargains.

Joseph A. Callahan, assistant city editor of the Boston American, has been the guest of Alfred La Brecque at Houghs Neck for the past two days. They tried the smelts and had good success.

The one session plan in grade one of the Massachusetts Field school, has met with a little disapproval among some of the parents, and in consequence Supt. Parlin addressed a meeting of the mothers at the school house on Monday afternoon, explaining the plan and the benefits to be derived from it.

Among those to receive diplomas from the training ship Enterprise, is Chester B. Mellen, of River street. "Chet" was in the seamanship branch and has completed his two-year course in that branch. The Enterprise returned to Boston on Wednesday after a four months' trip.

The funeral of Patrick Kerrigan, for fifty years a resident of Atlantic, was held Wednesday morning from his home, 9 Oak street. At 9 o'colck a requiem high mass was celebrated at the church of the Sacred Heart by Rev. John P. Cuffe. The music was under the direction of Miss Mary McConarty. At the offertory Miss Mary McGrath sang the "De Profundis." The bearers were Michael Dolan, Cornelius McIntyre, Thomas Dolan, Peter Rowell, Thomas Murray and William McGinnis. The burial was in the family lot in St. Mary's cemetery, West Quincy.

Mr. George W. Elliott of Marlboro street was called to Norton Monday by the sudden death of his father.

Sympathy is expressed for George Elliot of Marlboro street, for the recent death of his father, who died very suddenly this week at his home in Norton, Mass.

Mrs. Wilson Hammond of Billings street is entertaining Miss Bessie Thompson of New York. Miss Thompson expects to return to her home on Saturday.

Mrs. Walter Benson (Mable Wilson) of Squantum street, who was seriously ill in the early spring, has returned from her vacation spent among the Berkshires in splendid health.

Quincy seems quite a rural city each week Wednesday, when early in the morning a drove of cattle go through toward Boston and at night return. At night in the square everything, cars, autos and pedestrians give way to the uncertain progress of cows, dogs and drivers.

The benefits of the new Quincy school at Atlantic are greatly appreciated this fall both by former scholars and by the little tots just entering. Studying in such pleasant environments loses its horror. The rooms are sunny and cheerful and the whole building is splendidly planned.

The Official Nominations

The Democratic ballot to be used at the caucuses next Tuesday will show no contests over the offices of Congressman or Representatives to to the General Court. The candidates are Joseph F. O'Connell for Congressman; Edward J. Parker for Representative from the Fifth district, comprising Wards 1, 2 and 3; and Rednor P. Coombs from the Sixth district comprising Wards 4, 5 and 6.

There is no contest among the Republicans for Congressman, J. Mitchel Galvin being the only candidate.

In the Fifth representative district there are three candidates seeking the nomination, Walter E. Piper, William T. Spargo and William R. Thomas.

The Sixth district also has three candidates for Representative, Frank E. Badger, Louis F. R. Langelier and Edward J. Sandberg.

Intelligent Dog.

That dogs are faithful friends to their masters was strikingly demonstrated on Tuesday. The family of Mr. Edwin W. Baxter of Greenleaf street has been passing the summer in Maine, returning Tuesday accompanied by their dog which belongs to Frank Baxter, the son. They were met in Boston by the dog's master, the animal showing his joy at seeing him in every way known to dumb animals. Mr. Baxter did not accompany the family to Quincy and the dog parted from him most reluctantly and was restless after reaching home and over night.

Wednesday morning he was let out as usual and the next the family thought of him was when a telephone call came from Chief of Police Burrell from the South Station, Boston, about nine o'clock saying the dog was found searching all over the station for his master.

Chief Burrell was on his way to Dedham on court business, but looked after the dog returning him later to Greenleaf street, where his return was hailed with joy.

Did the dog go to Boston by train or over the road? He accomplished the journey in about an hour from home.

William T. Spilsted.

William T. Spilsted, a resident of East Weymouth, passed from this life Monday, Sept. 14, at the home of his cousin, Mrs. Lucinda B. Pratt. Mr. Spilsted was the oldest son of Rev. Thomas and Patience A. Spilsted. During the last ten years he has been developing one of the natural, and bound to be permanent industries of Weymouth, namely the quarrying of that beautiful, unique and ideal building material which is found in the hills of Weymouth, and known as Weymouth seam face granite. He has furnished stone for several churches, and public buildings in New England, including the East Weymouth Congregational church, one at Roxbury, one at Cohasset, a public library in Laconia, N. H., besides some Brookline residences. Mr. Spilsted was born July 28, 1851, and surviving him are four sisters, Mrs. Carrie E. Holbrook, Mrs. N. Augustus Reed, Miss Ellena S. Spilsted of Whitman and Mrs. G. B. Bates of Quincy.

TODAY'S COURT.

Phil Sullivan was senteneed to three months in the house of correction for drunkenness at Braintree

Mrs. Marina Calabro was fined $25 for assault on Mrs. George Moses at Quincy.

The case against Moses for assault on Mrs. Calabro was dismissed

Fair Play For Mr. Badger

Editor Daily Ledger:

In your issue of the 15th I noticed an article dealing with the candidacy of Frank E. Badger for nomination as Representative, in which it was intimated that his motive was to assist me, rather than to secure the nomination for himself. As the article was not signed by any one, I feel warranted in treating it as an expression of editorial opinion, entitling me to an opportunity to reply.

From my knowledge of the make-up of Mr. Badger, I can assure your readers that he would not lend himself to any unworthy scheme, such as is insinuated. If he is in the field, it is neither to aid me nor to injure his brother-in-law, but to look out for his own interests. No one has a right to deny him the privilege. This is a free country.

The article says that I have already been honored. True, but did I receive the third term which according to precedent goes to every Republican Representative whose record has been clean and satisfactory, as mine was admitted to be? So disgusted were many of the Republican voters with the treatment accorded me in a certain locality at the caucus, that they voted for a Democrat, and elected him. Aristocracy is all right in its place, but care should be taken not to let it degenerate into assumed superiority, snobbery, or anything of that kind. Otherwise the average citizen is likely to do things by way of registering his protest against the unfair deal.

I am a candidate for the Republican nomination, Mr. Editor, for the reason given above; and others, which I shall set before the public later. Edward J. Sandberg.

20 Buckley street, Quincy.

Severe Test For Octopus

While five submarines were preparing for an attack upon the cruiser Yankee, at Newport, Friday, Sept. 11, 11, the Octopus was submerged to a depth of 107 feet. She had on board Lieut. Charles E. Courtney and a crew of ten men, and as far as is known, this is a record dive for such conditions.

On June 8, 1907, she was submerged 207 feet off Boston light, but at that time there were no men on board, the boat being lowered by means of a derrick.

The Octopus was built at Fore River works and was launched October 4, 1906. She is one of the largest submarines ever constructed and it was given out as the unanimous opinion of the submarine board at Washington in a recent report, that she was the equal of any boat owned by the government. It is also the opinion of the board that a boat of the same type as the Octopus, but larger would prove a most formidable and superior naval weapon.

The Melrose Idle.

The steamer Melrose, one of the trio of big colliers built at Quincy for the New England gas and coke company, is laid up at South Boston as a result of the present dullness in freight. Two weeks ago the steamer arrived here from Newport News. Her crew has been discharged and there is no prospect of the vessel's securing a charter for a month at least. After her completion she was chartered for a term of months to carry sulphur from the gulf to New York, and at the expiration of this charter she made a few trips from Newport News to this port with coal. The Everett and Malden, sister ships of the Melrose, are engaged in carrying coal for the owners between Baltimore and Boston.

Roll Call.

Annual rally and roll call was the order of the Epworth League service in Hall place M. E. church on Sunday evening. Miss Maud Hodgkinson, arting vice president of the spiritual department, was the leader. A very bright and helpful paper on league plans was presented by Miss Hilda Francis, the efficient president of the society, and the pastor, Rev. Carl H. Raupach, gave a brief address on the subject: "If every Epworthian should do his best." A large number answered to their names when called by the secretary, Miss Amy Miller, and responded with a choice passage of scripture.

Social of Welsh People.

The home of Hugh Roberts at 24 Ashland street, West Quincy, was the scene of a pleasant gathering Thursday evening, Sept. 10, when a lawn social was successfully carried out by many of the Welsh people residing in that part of the city.

The grounds were arranged with tables, where ice cream, candy, and other refreshments were offered for sale, while choice musical selections were rendered throughout the evening to the enjoyment of the many who were in attendance.

The proceeds were donated to the Epworth League of Hall place M. E. church which society is raising funds for church improvements and this timely gift is much appreciated. Mrs. Edward Hughes had charge of the social, and was assisted by the following ladies among the Welsh people: Mrs. Hugh Roberts, Mrs. Ellen Williams, Mrs. John Clark, Mrs. John Roberts, Mrs. Richard Roberts, Mrs. Griffiths Jones, Mrs. David Thomas, Mrs. Conway and Mrs. Geer. On the whole a very enjoyable evening was spent and a worthy cause substantially assisted.

Business Men's Carnival.

Those receiving invitation to participate in the Carnival are asked to be at the Y. M. C. A. building either Thursday, Friday or Saturday nights, from 7.30 to 9 o'clock. Through a misunderstanding the invitations called for last night, in place of the times now specified. The Carnival is full of music and mirth and will be thoroughly enjoyed by all taking part.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Becomes Bride Of Conductor

A pretty wedding was solemnized Wednesday evening, when Miss Jeannett Torrey Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert F. Miller of 49 South Central avenue, became the bride of Mr. Felix Albert Lorandeau, Jr., of South Quincy, one of the conductors on the Old Colony street railway.

The ceremony took place at 7.30 o'clock at the future home of the couple on Quincy street, Rev. A. Edwin Clattenberg of St. Chrysostom's church officiating. Miss Alice Shunk of Wollaston was the bridesmaid, and Mr. James H. Davey attended the groom.

The ceremony was followed by a reception which was largely attended by the friends of the bridal party. Refreshments were served and there was vocal and instrumental music. Mr. and Mrs. Lorandeau will be at home to friends after Oct. 1.

An Injustice Says Editor Woodruff

Newspapers outside the State also miss Mr. George W. Prescott. Editor Woodruff of the Enquirer published at Litchfield, Conn., says:

"The death of George W. Prescott, of the Quincy Patriot and Quincy Daily Ledger, at his home in Quincy, Mass., on Wednesday afternoon of last week, after a brief illness, will bring sorrow into hundreds of newspaper offices, as Mr. Prescott was extremely well known and beloved by the fraternity all over the country. For more than half a centruy he had been connected with the Patriot and it was owing to his work and energy that it grew up from a weekly to a daily and was a power in eastern Massachusetts.

"An item* has been going the rounds of the press with regard to Mr. Prescott that we think does him a grave injustice, as it states that "he has taken only two days away from his desk in 56 years" and the Waterbury American adds, "If he had taken better care of himself and gone on a vacation every year he might have died long ago." Mr. Prescott was a hard worker but he was not so narrow-minded that he believed in absolutely tieing himself down to his desk. He liked to get out and meet his fellow editors and they greatly enjoyed meeting him and benefitting by his well stocked mind and genial personality. For the last ten years, to the personal knowledge of the writer, Mr. Prescott has attended most of the annual conventions of the National Editorial Association and his articles concerning these trips have been models of interest.

"We desire to add our personal tribute to the high nobility of character, the delightful unselfish personality and the good fellowship that were such marked features of George W. Prescott. Though past three score and ten he still seemed a young man and the high standard he lived up to will be a constant incentive for the best and noblest work by all who had the privilege of knowing him."

*The publishers of the Daily Ledger are glad that Editor Woodruff has corrected the mistatement as he did. The facts are that the Boston Herald's report of the death of Mr. Prescott was full of errors, which other papers have quoted. In this instance the fact was just this,—that Mr. Prescott had lost only two days from his office BECAUSE OF SICKNESS in 30 years. In all his career he confined himself closely to business, but in recent years did take one long excursion annually, and several outings of a day or two, with brothers usually—EDS.

Quincy Man Heavy Loser

In the big fire near Augusta, Me., on Thursday, one of the heaviest losers was J. Franklin Faxon of Quincy, principal owner of the American Lumber Company, whose lumber yards and mills are situated at Talmage. The conflagration there was by far the most disastrous, the loss being estimated at $150,000. The loss is all the worse, since it is not covered by insurance, and there is little prospect that the company will rebuild.

Tuberculosis Exhibit.

The Tuberculosis Exhibit, to be held in City hall from Oct. 29 to Nov. 1 inclusive, is for the purpose of informing the public of methods and means for the prevention as well as the treatment of tuberculosis (consumption.) A series of eight sessions, afternoons and evenings, will include lectures by some of the most prominent doctors engaged in the campaign against this terrible scourge. These speakers will be assisted by many of our local physicians and prominent citizens.

A mothers' afternoon, a children's afternoon, a labor union night and other special features will be arranged for.

Much space in the Council Chamber will be devoted to a display of apparatus used in overcoming the disease.

Two prizes will be awarded for the best essays written by an 8th grade pupil on the exhibit.

All sessions will be entirely free to the public and an earnest effort will be made to have the attendance large that Quincy may be prepared to unite in a vigorous campaign against tuberculosis.

The aspect of the exhibit is a most cheerful one presenting as it does ways and means to gain health and to keep well.

Hawkes—Clark.

At All Souls church, Braintree, at 8.30 P. M. on Thursday, Pancha Louise Clark, the daughter of Albert E. Clark of 459 Washington street, Braintree, became the bride of Mr. Charles Whitney Hawkes, M. I. T. '06, son of William C. Hawkes of 15 Euclid street, Dorchester. This was the first wedding ever held in All Souls church.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Arthur Little of Dorchester, assisted by the Rev. Frederick R. Griffin, pastor of All Souls church. Mrs. Jennie Hockin Hunt the regular organist, was at the organ, and played "The Wedding Day at Troldhaugen" by Grieg," "To a Wild Rose" by McDowell, "Benediction Nuptiale" by Saint Saens and "Canzone Amorosa" by Nevin.

The maid of honor was Miss Emily M. Clark, sister of the bride, and the bridesmaids were Miss Caroline M. Hawkes, a sister of the groom, and Miss Gladys E. Clark, a sister of the bride.

The ushers were college mates of the groom.

The Registrars of Voters meet tonight to revise the voting lists. It will be the last opportunity to add names to the lists before the caucuses next Tuesday.

Reception to Micmac Crew

A very enjoyable and informal reception was given Thursday night at Dewey's Landing, Quincy Point, in honor of the Micmac crew. The hostesses were Miss Delia Jones and Miss Bessie Laing, who had charge of the arrangements. The party was in return for the good times given by the Micmac boys on their launch this summer. When the boys arrived, the girls had a real old-fashioned clambake prepared, and it was a treat to see those boys eat fish and clams, which they did not have to prepare themselves. Candy and fruit were plentiful and frappe was served during the entire evening.

After the supper was over dancing, and games were enjoyed, the Edison orchestra furnishing music. When they got tired of dancing, the feature of the evening came, the initiation of the Micmac crew into the Dewey's Landing Society. This is a secret society, and so the facts of the initiation must be kept secret, but suffice to say that it was very amusing to watch the operation. The boys all came through safely, and said they do not regret a bit the times given the girls this summer, as this party was more than a return.

Candidacy of E. R. Stone Launched

The rooms of the Washington Social club were the scene of an enthusiastic "smoker" Thursday evening, held in the interest of Eugene R. Stone's candidacy for the mayoralty nomination. There was a very representative gathering present, all the wards sending one or more men, and Mr. Stone seemed to have the hearty support of those assembled.

Although some of the men were a little late in arriving, the enthusiasm was not dulled in the least, for while they were waiting the club members entertained with songs and piano solos. Mr. Stone also had his graphaphone on hand, and the company enjoyed some of the latest songs.

When the Atlantic delegation arrived about 8.30, H. Y. Follett arose and opened the meeting, calling for nominations for a chairman. Councilman Cherrington of Ward Six was unanimously elected to preside for the evening, and then the speaking began.

Charles H. Johnson, formerly Assessor, was the first speaker, and he spoke briefly on the coming campaign, saying he would support the Republican candidate whoever he might be.

Ex-Mayor John O. Hall followed, and he recounted Mr. Stone's career since his entrance into Quincy political circles. He said that Mr. Stone was a man of sterling character, experienced and efficient, and that he was entitled to the thoughtful consideration of the party. Mr. Hall promised his hearty support to Mr. Stone if he received the nomination, and if not, he said he would support the choice of the party.

Short speeches followed by Albert Whitman, D. J. Seward McCurdy, Councilman Broughton, Dr. Bushnell and others.

Among those noticed in the rooms besides those already named were, T. L. Williams, Rollin H. Newcomb, Webb Newcomb, William Deacon, Eddie Glover, Albert McCurdy, James Moorhead, Jr., John E. Poland, Edward Newcomb, H. Francis Tucker, Charles C. Foster, Peter B. Mead, Felix Favorite, Robert Craig, Arthur Hultman and others.

Cigars were there in great abundance, and sandwiches, coffee and frappe were served during the evening under the experienced hand of Frank Foster. It was a good orderly and enjoyable meeting and will go a long way towards putting Mr. Stone where he aspires to be.

Money Found.

Mrs. Mary Sullivan of Brackett street who came to the police station Wednesday evening and swore to a warrant charging Arthur Mulligan with robbing her of $20 which she had hidden in her stocking, came to the police station again Thursday afternoon and said she had found her money in the bottom of her shoe. She did not understand how the money got from the top of her stocking to her shoe. The warrant against Mulligan will be returned to the court without service.

President Hobbs Non Committal

There has been more or less rumors in the air for the past few weeks that Ralph W. Hobbs, president of the City Council was to be a candidate this fall for the Republican nomination for Mayor. Mr. Hobbs when interviewed by a representative of the Daily Ledger, as to whether he was to become a candidate for Mayor said: "The Republican party is now busy nominating State officers. I believe that the maxim, one thing at a time and that done well, applies to politics as well as anything else." He had nothing further to say at the present time.

Three Fires In Six Hours

It is an old saying that fire alarms go by threes, and this proved true on Thursday, when the department was called out on three different alarms. The first was shortly before 12 o'clock for a fire on Neponset bridge.

The second alarm come shortly after 2 o'clock from Box 412. This was for a lively fire in the house of John E. Dunn on Wasson road. Sparks from the chimney set fire to the roof of the house, and when the department arrived it was burning briskly. There was a hydrant quite near the fire, but it was on the dead end of a pipe and but little water could be obtained. Over 1000 feet of hose were run before a good stream could be directed onto the fire. By this time the fire had burned through into the upper part of the building and it took some time to get it all out. Chief Williams estimates the loss on building and contents at $1,200.

The third and last alarm of the day sounded from Box 54 at 5.40. This was caused by a blue flame oil stove taking fire in the upper tenement of a house at 1 Wollaston avenue, occupied by James T. Costello. Mrs. Costello said the stove had been leaking and she was getting supper ready when it took fire. A chemical stream from the Wollaston combination soon put the fire out. The upper part of the house was somewhat smoked, but the actual damage by fire was small.

The poster advertising an auction sale at the old Hancock stable on Dept street, is somewhat misleading. The impression given is that S. Penniman & Son are selling out. The fact is, however, that the sale has nothing to do with that firm; as they are now located at the Greenleaf stables off Granite street, in the rear of the hotel.

INVESTIGATE and ECONOMIZE.

NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.

On and after September 16, we have decided

TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE

as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods

AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills over due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every day. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and take them with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Now think this proposition over, and we feel confident that you can see it just the way that we do.

SOMETHING THAT IS NEEDED HERE IN QUINCY.

A HIGH GRADE OF GOODS SOLD AT LOW PRICES.

So Remember your 5 per cent discount.

Respectfully,

City Square, Quincy. JOHNSON BROS. Hancock Street, Corner Maple.

QUINBY ON THE SECOND BALLOT

New Hampshire Republicans' Choice For Governor

PILLSBURY A CLOSE SECOND

But Six Votes Behind Victorious Candidate--Twenty-One Ellis Supporters Turned to Laconia Man After the First Ballot--Railroad Merger Not Mentioned In Platform --Lack of Enthusiasm

Concord, N. H., Sept. 18.—The political strife which for many months has split the Republican party in New Hampshire into three factions came to an end late yesterday when Henry B. Quinby of Laconia was nominated for governor by the Republican state convention.

Despite the fact that the leaders of Quinby's campaign had previously declared that the Laconia man would have a wide margin of majority vote on the first ballot, two ballots were necessary and on the second and decisive ballot Quinby had a margin of only six votes.

On the first ballot Quinby polled 372 votes, when 395 were necessary for the nomination. On both the first and second ballots Rosecrans W. Pillsbury of Londonderry was a strong second, receiving a total of 252 votes on the first ballot and 246 on the second. Pillsbury's net loss on the second ballot was only six votes.

The twenty-five extra votes polled by the Quinby faction on the second ballot came principally from those who had supported Bertram Ellis of Keene, the third of the trio of candidates, on the first ballot. In addition to the votes of twenty-one of those who had declared for the Keene man on the first ballot, Quinby received a few votes that had been distributed between William E. Chandler of Concord and Edmund F. Cook of Concord.

Although the contest was hard fought the delegates were very undemonstrative and the proceedings from a spectacular standpoint were uninteresting. The convention was conducted under the provisions of the law passed by the last legislature and the delegates voted individually. This system was slow and cumbersome and the two ballots required nearly four hours of time.

The delegates did not seem to be enthusiastic, realizing probably that they were in for a long, tiresome session and endeavoring to conserve their energies. The mention of the names of Roosevelt and Taft elicited brief outbursts of applause. A little more enthusiasm greeted the presentation of the names of the various candidates for governor, but such demonstration was short-lived.

Following the announcement of the decisive vote, C. G. Shedd, who had previously placed Ellis' name before the convention, moved that Quinby's nomination be made unanimous. This motion was seconded by S. E. Burroughs, who was Pillsbury's convention sponsor, and was carried by a unanimous voice vote.

A little later the victorious candidate appeared in the hall, and in a brief speech of acceptance urged all the factions of the party to get together and work for a party victory.

The platform adopted, contrary to general expectations, contained no reference to the proposed merger of the Boston and Maine railroad with the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. It favored a revision of the tax laws of the state to the end that the rate of taxation levied on public service corporations should be the average rate upon the property of individuals; declared against the issuance of free passes on railroads, except to persons employed by or on the railroads; favored the registering of legislative agents; demanded the passage of a direct primary law which should place the nomination of all elective state officers in the hands of the people, and favored legislation to restrict to a minimum the use of intoxicants.

At the Republican congressional convention, which was held immediately after the adjournment of the state convention, Frank D. Currier of Canaan was nominated by acclamation for a fifth term in congress.

Bryan's Latest Bomb

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 18.—Carrying his campaign into Delaware after a jump of 500 miles from Rochester, William J. Bryan twice assailed the Republican party for being, as he charged, in the grasp of the corporations and more particularly the steel trust, which he for the first time openly announced was furnishing the funds for the Republican party in the political contest now on. He also denounced the men who, he said it had been reported, had sold their suffrage in Delaware.

His first onslaught was delivered at Harrington, a town of 2500 people, but whose population was augmented by thousands of others who had been attracted there by the presence of the Democratic leader. Last night he repeated his utterances at Shell Pot park to a throng which taxed the capacity of the place.

Maryland a Debatable State

New York, Sept. 18.—The Maryland political situation was considered at Republican national headquarters, practically all of the state leaders having come here to consult with National Chairman Hitchcock. In the belief of many of the officials of Republican headquarters in the east Maryland is about the only debatable state in their territory. All of the members of the Maryland delegation said that it is probable that the Democratic normal majorities in the state will be overcome.

After the Maryland conference had been concluded Hitchcock talked with a number of leaders from Connecticut. These men declared that the state will be safe for Taft, in spite of the fact that there had been some bitterness in the Republican party over the nomination of Representative Lilley for the governorship.

Tammanyites In a Row

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 18.—A trainload of Tammany politicians returning from the convention at Rochester got into a row upon the arrival of the train in this city when New York Central station employes attempted to remove the streamers and banners with which the cars were festooned. The Tammany men rushed from the cars, some armed with bottles, but it was not until one of them flashed a revolver that the employes desisted and allowed the banners to stay up.

Cal's Bryan a Cuttlefish

Topeka, Sept. 18.—Speaker Cannon of the house of representatives addressed a large audience here last night on the issues of the campaign. He referred to Mr. Bryan as a cuttlefish. "You know," he said, "that there is a fish known as the cuttlefish. When he is in trouble he muddies the water and swims away. Mr. Bryan is a great muddier of the waters. If there had not been any name for the cuttlefish it would be known as the Bryan fish."

No Front Porch Campaign

Cincinnati, Sept. 18.—Mr. Taft devoted the greater portion of yesterday working on the speeches he is scheduled to deliver through the middle west and north. He announced that from this time until his departure this work would engross his attention to the exclusion of receiving callers or delegations. This announcement is taken to mean the practical abandonment of the front porch campaign which was contemplated when he came here.

A Gubernatorial Proposition

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 18.—Mayor John T. Coughlin of this city has been asked by certain Boston Democratic leaders to allow his name to be used as a candidate for governor at the coming Democratic state convention. Coughlin says he will probably make a definite statement as to his attitude in a day or two.

Taft and Bryan Won't Meet

Chicago, Sept. 18.—The contemplated meeting of Mr. Taft and Mr. Bryan at a banquet here Oct. 7 has fallen through, according to a statement made by Chairman Dixon of the Republican speakers' bureau. Dixon said that Taft's itinerary would not allow of his speaking in Chicago Oct. 7.

MISS MALONEY'S FAKE MARRIAGE

Heiress Says It Was to Escape a Titled Foreigner

New York, Sept. 18.—Fear that she might be compelled by her parents to marry a titled foreigner whom she disliked was the reason which Helen Maloney of Philadelphia declared impelled her to go through a marriage ceremony with Arthur H. Osborne, a young broker of this city.

This information, given by Miss Maloney under oath when she was being examined by a referee in connection with her application to have the purported marriage annulled, was gleaned from papers in the case which were filed in court after a formal decree finally annulling the marriage was granted by Justice Gerard in the supreme court.

Miss Maloney swore that the marriage never was regarded in a serious light either by herself or by Osborne; that she did not believe the contract a binding one, inasmuch as the contracting parties did not give their right names, ages or names of their parents to the justice of the peace who performed the ceremony, and that the marriage never had been consummated.

Osborne, in his answer opposing the application for annulment, also declared that no consummation of the marriage ever had taken place and that neither of the contracting parties ever intended that it should take place until after a marriage ceremony had been performed in a Roman Catholic church by a priest of that church.

Mine Disaster In Russia

Yusovo, European Russia, Sept. 18.—Seven miners were killed and a large number injured by the caving in of the roof of the Veroffsky mine. With the memory of the Rikovsky mine disaster fresh in their minds, 200 men having lost their lives on that occasion, thousands of women and children crowded about the mouth of the pit, and troops had to be called out to preserve order.

Despondent Woman Drowns Herself

Boston, Sept. 18.—The body of a woman found floating in the Charles river was identified as that of Miss Mamie Langsdien, who until within a few days had been employed at the home of C. L. Berger. A note received by a friend of the dead woman stated that the woman was despondent and contemplated ending her life. No relatives of the woman are known

La France SHOE
FOR WOMEN
The "WHY" of the Flexible Welt

Here is something new for women to whom ordinary shoes seem clumsy and uncomfortable. It is the La France Flexible Welt. The little illustration below shows in a graphic way how elastic this shoe is.

The leather sole bends with remarkable ease, thus adapting itself to every position assumed by the foot, particularly when walking.

This shoe produces the effect of lightness and a delightful sensation of comfort. Perhaps a good way to express it would be to say that the Flexible Welt feels like no-shoes-at-all, except that the foot is supported just as fully and satisfactorily as would be the case if a heavy stiff shoe were worn.

We want every woman who is looking for a maximum of comfort combined with true beauty and the latest shoe styles, to come in and ask to see this Flexible Welt Shoe.

TO FORESTALL INJUNCTION

Gompers Hurried Publication of American Federationist

"WE DON'T PATRONIZE" LIST

It Appeared In January Number of Labor Magazine, Which Was Published In Advance of Ordinary Time --Bucks Stove and Range Company Tries to Show Contempt of Court--Gompers Denies Defiance

Washington, Sept. 18.—That he hastened the publication of The American Federationist for last January, so as to get it into circulation before the injunction decree of the supreme court of the District of Columbia, prohibiting the publication of the Bucks Stove and Range company of St. Louis in the "we-don't-patronize list of that periodical, became effective, was admitted by President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor.

The admission was made in connection with the hearing before Examiner Harper, who is taking the testimony bearing on the contempt case against Gompers and Messrs. Morrison and Mitchell of the Federation, which grows out of the alleged violation of the injunction decree.

It was shown that the order had been issued Dec. 18, 1907, and that between that date and Dec. 23, when it became effective, the January edition of The Federationist had been issued a few days in advance of the ordinary time, and Gompers did not hesitate to say that his purpose had been to continue the Bucks company's name in its list for that issue. He would not say, however, that the action had been taken in defiance of the court.

The examiner held three sittings during yesterday. Gompers was on the witness stand at all the meetings and his examination was conducted by Daniel Davenport, in behalf of the Bucks company. The questions were all directed towards securing admissions from Gompers which would assist in establishing the theory of the prosecution that the utterances of the respondents had been in contempt of court.

The afternoon was devoted by Davenport to bringing out the details concerning the Minneapolis convention of the Federation of Labor of 1906 and the Norfolk convention of 1907, with the view of showing Gompers' responsibility for and connection with the boycott declarations of those gatherings. He admitted the appointment of committees and other acts incidental to his service as presiding officer.

During the afternoon session Davenport took occasion to discountenance the report that President Van Cleave of the Manufacturers' National Protective association had undertaken to raise a fund of $1,500,000 for the prosecution of the fight against organized labor. "It makes me smile," he said.

Stewart Will Not Pass Test

Fort Huachuachua, Ariz., Sept. 18.—Colonel Stewart, the so-called "military exile" of Fort Grant, left Fort Huachuachua yesterday and returned to his post in obedience to the department's order to return there and forego the physical test ride of ninety miles which he had previously been directed to take. Stewart's physical condition was given as the reason for sending him back to his post without passing the test.

$10,000 Blaze In Shipyard

Boston, Sept. 18.—Fire this morning destroyed the blacksmith shop and sail loft of the George Lawley & Son Corporation plant in South Boston, doing a damage of $10,000. The fire is believed to have caught from the blacksmith shop. Some small sailboats and lumber were also burned. For a time the plant of the Walworth Manufacturing company was afire and threatened, and three alarms of fire were sounded.

Alleged Absconder Returns

St. John, Sept. 18.—W. R. Dickson, M. P., whose departure a fortnight ago was followed by the issuance of an absconding debtor's warrant at the instance of W. M. Mackay, a St. John lumberman, whose agent he had been, has returned unexpectedly to his home in Hillsboro. He said he would take steps to get his business affairs in order.

Death Sentence For Zett

Rockville, Conn., Sept. 18.—John Zett, who killed his wife, Mary Zett, and his granddaughter, Viola Klotzer, at the Zett home last month, was found guilty of murder in the first degree by a jury and sentenced to be hanged on Dec. 21 next. Zett heard the verdict and the pronouncing of sentence with little apparent concern.

Cholera Spreads at Manila

Manila, Sept. 18.—The cholera continues to spread. During the twenty-four hours ending at 8 o'clock this morning there were twenty-five cases and twelve deaths. One hundred additional inspectors were enlisted today in an united effort to stamp out the disease before the Atlantic fleet arrives.

Safe Arrival of Overdue Steamers

Kingston, Jam., Sept. 18.—The fruit steamers Admiral Dewey, Admiral Schley and Salvatore di Giorgio have arrived safely at Port Antonio, several days overdue. These vessels encountered the recent hurricane in the West Indies.

SELFRIDGE IS HURLED TO DEATH

Orville Wright Is Seriously Injured

FORT MEYER TRAGEDY

Aeroplane Smashed by Breaking of a Propellor

SEVENTY-FIVE FEET IN AIR

Machine and Its Occupants Came Down With a Crash

Washington, Sept. 18.—After having drawn world-wide attention to his flights by establishing a new world's record for heavier-than-air flying machines, Orville Wright met with a tragical mishap while making a two-man flight at Fort Myer yesterday afternoon. The aeroplanist was accompanied by Lieutenant Thomas E. Selfridge of signal corps of the army. Lieutenant Selfridge was fatally injured and died at 8:10 o'clock last night. Wright was seriously hurt, but is expected to recover.

While the machine was encircling the drill grounds a propeller blade snapped off and, hitting some other part of the intricate mechanism, caused it to overturn in the air and fall to the ground. The two occupants were enveloped in the debris. Soldiers and spectators ran across the field to where the aeroplane had fallen and assisted in lifting Wright and Selfridge from under the tangled mass of machinery, rods, wires and shreds of muslin.

Lieutenant Selfridge was unconscious and had apparently struck the ground with great force. His head was covered with blood and he was choking when the soldiers extricated him. Dr. Watters rendered first aid to the injured men. When their wounds had been bandaged Wright and Selfridge were taken to the Fort Myer hospital at the other end of the field.

After a hurried surgical examination it was announced that Wright was not dangerously injured, but was suffering from a fracture of his left thigh and several ribs on his right side. Selfridge was suffering from a fracture at the base of the skull. Both men received deep cuts about the head.

Mr. Wright announced several days ago that he would take Selfridge, who was secretary of the aerial experiment association, and an aeroplanist himself, in his next flight. The young officer was delighted to have an opportunity to fly in the aeroplane.

After Wright told him to get in the machine, Selfridge took his place in the extra seat next to that occupied by Wright, the latter started the motor by means of a storage battery, his assistants, Taylor and Furnass, turning the propellers to get them going. At 5:14 the aeroplane was released and it was noticed that it did not rise as quickly from the ground as on previous two-men flights. Selfridge weighed about 175 pounds, making the weight greater than the machine had ever carried before.

After gliding over the ground on its runners for thirty feet, the machine rose gradually and had gained a height of forty feet when it passed over the starting apparatus for the first time. There was a six-mile wind and the machine did not run as smoothly as on its former flights, most of which were made in calm weather. The aeroplanists, however, apparently had control of the aerial flyer, which rose to a height of seventy-five feet as it completed the second round of the field. This height was maintained on the third round.

While the machine was turning at the southern end of the field, several thousand feet from the spectators, someone shouted: "What is that? Something fell."

Immediately all eyes were on the aeroplane and it was seen to turn over on its left side and, pausing a moment, made a complete turn and then came swooping to the earth in a cloud of dust. No effort on the part of the aviator could possibly have averted the accident. Planes and rudders were absolutely incapable of righting the machine when it had turned in that manner.

It was fully a minute before anyone reached the wreck. Mounted soldiers formed a cordon while others frenziedly endeavored to lift the machinery and wood that pinioned Wright and Selfridge to the ground. The lieutenant's face was covered with blood and he was groaning and choking from internal hemorrhages. Wright lay by his side, his face as pale as the mass of white muslin overhead. He was conscious and asked that the machine be lifted off his leg.

As soon as they could be extricated they were taken to one side and physicians from the crowd of spectators went to their aid. Their clothes were loosened and their wounds bandaged. Attendants from the post hospital hastened across the field to the place where the machine lay and as soon as possible Wright and Selfridge were laid on stretchers and carried to the hospital.

At 8:10 o'clock Selfridge died. He had not regained consciousness. He was expecting his mother, who lives in San Francisco, to arrive in Washington this month. He is a nephew of Admiral Selfridge and has a brother who is an officer in the navy.

Mr. Wright on Wednesday replaced the propellers which he had been using with another pair, the blades of which are six inches longer. They were used for the first time in yesterday's disastrous flight and many who have witnessed Wright's flights at Fort Myer believe the change of propellers caused the accident. An examination of the broken blade showed that it had been snapped off at a point one-fourth of the distance from the hub. A deep indentation of the broken piece indicated that it had struck some other part of the aeroplane. Only yesterday morning Wright had been asked what the result would be if one of his propellers broke while the machine was in flight. "The other propeller would tend to turn the machine around," he said, "but I would stop the motor and glide to the earth."

While the surgeons were at work setting his leg, Wright sent word to his assistant, Mr. Taylor, to ask him to examine the wrecked machine to ascertain if there was anything wrong with the transmission. Taylor, after examining the wreck, stated that he could find nothing wrong.

Officers of the signal corps and other enthusiasts at Fort Myer think that the accident was not due to a faulty principle, but to a defect in the propeller, which was made of spruce.

Lieutenant Thomas E. Selfridge was one of the most enthusiastic believers in aeronautics among the officers in the military service, and through his own efforts succeeded in securing a detail with the aeronautical division of the signal corps. He was born in San Francisco 26 years ago and was appointed to the military academy at West Point from that state.

Wreck of Gasnier Æroplane

Angers, France, Sept. 18.—Rene Gasnier met with an accident while making tests with his aeroplane here. The connecting rod of the planes broke and the machine crashed down from a height of twenty-five feet. Gasnier was severely cut about the head and the aeroplane was wrecked.

FIRE STRIKES MAINE TOWNS

More Than Quarter of a Million Dollars Loss Thus Far

Augusta, Me., Sept. 18.—More than $250,000 loss was caused in Maine yesterday by fire, the greatest loss falling on the lumbermen in the wiping out of great quantities of stored lumber through forest fires. A number of families find themselves homeless, and in one instance, at North Vassalboro, the Methodist denomination has lost its place of worship.

The most disastrous conflagration was at Talmage, where a loss estimated at $150,000 was caused by the burning of the mills and lumber yards of the American Lumber company, a Boston firm. The loss was not covered by insurance and there is little prospect that the company will rebuild.

At Lisbon a forest fire is still raging which has already caused a loss estimated at around $25,000 and destroyed two homes and driven a dozen other families to seek safety with their household goods in teams hitched up ready to make a dash across the country. A more favorable turn of the wind seems to favor the fire fighters and it is hoped the greatest damage has been done.

Machias suffered a $45,000 loss in the destruction of the mills of the East Machias Lumber company. Forest fires are raging also in the towns of Greene, Monmouth and Litchfield, although they are believed to be under control.

Various causes are assigned for the fires. At Talmage overheated lumber in the dryhouse caused the fire, while at Lisbon a spark from a railroad engine started the underbrush blazing in a recently cleared lot. The Machias fire is believed to have been incendiary and there is much speculation as to the cause of the North Vassalboro church fire.

Thought Boy Was a Deer

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Sept. 18.—Carl Colt, son of Rev. O. B. Colt, a Methodist clergyman of New York city, was shot in mistake for a deer while he, with his brother and their father, were hunting in the Adirondacks. The boy was carried twenty-nine miles on an improvised stretcher and arrived at a hospital here late last night. He may recover.

Decrease In Immigration

Washington, Sept. 18.—Immigration statistics for August show a very great decrease in the number of immigrants coming to this country, compared with the same month of 1907. The total immigration during August was 27,783, while during August, 1907, the immigrants numbered 98,825.

Robbed Bank Collectors

Paris, Sept. 18.—The police have arrested a thief who went under the name of S. Pelisdorf of San Francisco. He is wanted in every capital in Europe. He made a specialty of stealing bank collectors' wallets, substituting empty wallets therefor.

LEADERS HOLD THEIR OWN

Chicago and Pittsburg Still Tied In the National League

Leaders in both the National and American Leagues were the winners in every game in which they participated yesterday. There is, therefore, no change in the relative standings, except that the first three clubs in the American League drew still further away from St. Louis, which was unable, because of rain, to play its game with Philadelphia. Chicago and Pittsburg remain tied for second place in the National League, with New York still twenty-eight points in the lead.

National League

New York, 10; St. Louis, 5. McGinnity, Taylor, Bresnahan and Needham; Raymond, Higginbotham and Moran.

Chicago, 4; Boston, 1. Reulbach and Kling; Tuckey, Ferguson, Bowerman and Smith.

Pittsburg, 8; Philadelphia, 1. Willis and Gibson; Moren and Doolin.

Brooklyn, 6; Cincinnati, 2. McIntyre and Dunn; Ewing and Schlei.

American League

Detroit, 7; New York, 4. Donovan and Schmidt; Hogg, Manning and Kleinow.

Cleveland, 1; Boston, 0. Joss and Bemis; Young and Criger.

Chicago, 5; Washington, 1. White and Sullivan; Tannehill, Street and Kahoe.

New England League

New Bedford, 6; Fall River, 5. Merrill and Monohan; Grant, White and Toomey.

Haverhill, 4; Lawrence, 0. O'Toole and Perkins; Gilroy and Duggan.

Worcester, 7; Lowell, 2. Owens and McCune; Greenwell and Lemieux.

Lynn, 4; Brockton, 2. Abbott and Foster; O'Toole and Drake.

DEMENTED BOY CHAINED TO FLOOR

Father Said to Have Treated Him Like a Wild Beast

Portsmouth, N. H., Sept. 18.—Moses Brown, 73, one of the wealthiest citizens of West Rye, was held in $400 for the grand jury on two charges of excessively cruel treatment to his demented son, Charles.

Mrs. Brown, the boy's mother, testified that the mental condition of her son was caused by sunstroke. The father, she claimed, treated him like a wild beast. At one time, she said, the father locked the boy in an ell room over the kitchen, where the windows were boarded up tight, and there was no access to air or light except through the door. Here he had been chained to the floor for nearly one year.

She further told of the way the boy was beaten over the head. His wrists became so sore from the chains that he nearly lost his hands.

Brown denied every charge of cruelty. He said that he was afraid of his son on account of his habit of throwing rocks. He said that he had to lock him up to keep him from tearing the house to pieces, kicking out windows and breaking furniture.

Meteor Causes a Scare

Boston, Sept. 18.—A flaming meteor dropped from the skies into Boston harbor at 7:15 o'clock last night, creating considerable fright among occupants of a number of small boats which chanced to be in the vicinity. The evening was made brilliant by the intense light and the Winthrop shore was as bright as day. A loud, hissing noise was heard as the ball approached the water and, throwing up a great spray of water, finally disappeared from sight, clouds of steam rising from the ocean about the spot.

Pall of Smoke Enshrouds Sea

New York, Sept. 18.—Several big liners are groping for their bearings outside New York harbor or picking their paths slowly down the coast on their way from Europe through an atmosphere hazy far beyond the usual autumnal degree. From all points up the New England coast a thick haze is reported, with observers inclined to the belief that the forest fires in the interior are now making their effect felt at sea by enshrouding the waters for a considerable distance off shore with their pall of smoke.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Minority stockholders filed a petition in the circuit court at St. Louis asking that a receiver be appointed for the State Trust company, a St. Louis real estate firm, capitalized at $1,000,000.

Rev. G. Parsons Nichols, D. D., one of the best known Presbyterian clergymen of the country, died at his home at Binghamton, N. Y., aged 71.

Fire in the small village of Brandt, Pa., did damage amounting to nearly $100,000.

The Bay Shore hotel at Green Springs, Fla., one of the largest hotels on the west coast, was destroyed by fire, forty guests having narrow escapes. Several women were rescued through windows.

The residence at Dedham, Mass., of Charles L. Harding, a wealthy manufacturer, was ruined by fire and nearly all of the contents destroyed. The cause of the fire is unknown. The loss is $45,000.

Definite decision of the United States forestry service to establish forest service district headquarters in the national forest state is announced.

The Canadian Manufacturers' association has provided for a commission to investigate the cause of the depression in the woolen industry.

EDITORIAL.

It is said that a Philadelphia policeman pursued a man three miles and captured him. No one can question his perserverance, but everyone, since it happened in Philadelphia, will understand the policeman's lack of speed.

The mammoth chair beside the railroad station at Gardner undoubtedly has been a great advertiser of the fact that Gardner is "Chairtown." Would not a block of granite or large boat near the Quincy depot be an equally good advertisement of the fact that granite is Quincy's industry also shipbuilding.

It is said that Sir James Grant very much interested the learned members of the British Association of Science with a description of his machine for the renewal of youth. Sir James calls his machine the "neurostone." If he and the British scientists will come to America, they will find that advertisements of similar fakes have been extant for at least thirty years.

South Africa is very far from the United States, nevertheless there are thousands of intelligent Americans who cannot but be interested in the fact that, that wonderful, rich and extensive region is now essentially and enthusiastically an English colony—a region where the English language will be spoken; where English institutions and civilization will prevail; a country where an American speaking but one language, as is the case with at least ninety-nine in a hundred, will be understood; and where he may travel and transact business with the same ease and confidence that he would in Canada or Australia. Six years have elapsed since the Boers surrendered at Pretoria and these sturdy descendants of Dutchmen have, in the last few years, advanced from the primitive condition of peasants, such as existed in the world a hundred and fifty years ago, to a realization of the strenuous and advanced conditions of modern life. Automonous government has been restored to them and a scheme for the union of the South African states similar to that which has recently been accomplished in Australia is under consideration. South Africa will probably be united within the coming year.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

Miss Rose Haley, of Somersworth, Me., is the guest of Miss Margaret Gillrane of Wollaston.

The tax bills will probably be issued next week. Six clerks are now busy on them in the Assessors office.

Francis P. Loud, of Washington street, was elected treasurer of the 2d Massachusetts Veteran Association at its 58th anniversary on Thursday, held at the American house, Boston.

Harry Drake, of [illegible] who has been catching for the Brockton team of the New England League on Thursday, made a good impression.

Tax Collector [illegible] Southworth of Holbrook, has [illegible] to withdraw from the contest [illegible] nty Commissioner, "as there [illegible]ns to be no opposition to the incumbent, John F. Merrill, [illegible]."

Captain Simpson has moved from his home on Davis street, to Norfolk Downs.

The evening schools of the city will probably open Monday evening, Oct. 5.

The third championship race of the Wollaston Yacht club will be sailed Saturday afternoon.

The inventory of the estate of Hollis G. Rogers of Quincy, which was filed at Dedham on Thursday shows personal property to the amount of $20,000.

The Fore River Football team will play the second game of their schedule Saturday afternoon at teh Fore River grounds, Quincy Point. The game will start at 3.15.

The fall meeting of the Old Colony Grocers' Association was held Thursday evening in North Abington. President Henry W. Mansfield of South Braintree, presided, the principal speaker of the evening being William J. Sholer of Boston.

John S. Paul and Miss Clara M. Norton, who were married at York Beach, Me., Wednesday, will make their home at 184 Arlington street, Wollaston. Mr. Paul is superintendent of a manufacturing company near Boston.

The dog that makes his daily home on the Atlantic boulevard and annoys motorists by prancing and barking in front of their machines has so far escaped injury but it is a conforting thought to know that "every dog has his day."

The New England dahlia society opened its first exhibition Thursday morning in Lorimer and Gilbert halls, Tremont temple. There are 20,000 dahlias on view, representing about 1,500 varieties. This is first show of its kind that the world has ever seen.

Capt. F. F. Fletcher has been removed from the special board on naval ordnance and ordered to proceed to Manila, where he will take command of the U. S. S. Vermont of the Atlantic fleet, built at Quincy. He takes the place of Capt. Potter, who will be made a rear admiral.

At the national convention of Red Men held at Bridgeport, Conn., on Wednesday, the Massachusetts membership in tribes was reported to be 14,652 and councils 3,501 a gain of 849 and 353 respectively. William Provin of Westfield was re-elected great innkeeper of wampum.

The game Saturday between Makaria and Atlantic will be the real thing, both teams having won two games in the series. Atlantic has some fast ones, Donahue and Duffy with Leahy in the box is a fast team, while Makaria will play their regular team with Penley in the box. The rooters will be out in force.

Football practice is in full swing in Atlantic. Holbrook's field is a veritable stadium on Saturdays and the rising eleven sound as if they were a warm team in their ardor of playing. One thing is to be deplored; profanity is used freely by old and young alike. It seems a pity that in a healthful pastime like football this profuse cursing should appear to be essential to the game.

IT PAYS

TO ADVERTISE

In THE DAILY LEDGER

Loss to Atlantic.

James Fay, a local semiprofessional ball player of the Atlantic section of the city, has been signed by the Lynn team of the New Engand league, and will play the remainder of the season with that team—at shortstop. Fay has played shortstop for the Atlantic team for the past five years and is considered one of the best men at that position in this vicinity. The Atlantic team will be weakened for Saturday's game with Makaria for the championship of the city by the loss of Fay. Each team has won two games. The deciding game Saturday will be played at Merrymount park.—Globe.

S. Y. C. Dance.

The Squantum Yacht club are to have another dancing party Saturday evening of this week. The house committee have decided that owing to the immense popularity of these parties to have at least two more. They intend to announce in due time when the last one will take place, and on that occasion will introduce some pleasing features, such as novel dances, including the moonlight waltz, piano and vocal solos, and numerous colored light effects. It might also be in order to say they appreciate the hearty support they have received from all who have attended these affairs.

—"I say, do you think that Wiggins is a man to be trusted?"

"Trusted? Yes; rather. Why, I'd trust him with my life."

"Yes; but with anything of value, mean!"—Exchange.

CARD OF THANKS.

The family of George W. Prescott desire to acknowledge their appreciation of the many loving tributes paid to their lost one, expressing the high esteem in which he was held by the business men, the church and the people of the city in general, and to thank all those who have been so kind during the hour of bereavement. They feel that it was at considerable sacrifice that the business houses closed their establishments on the busy afternoon of Saturday. Especially pleasing were the spontaneous expressions of love, respect, honor and high moral worth by the editors of the press of Massachusetts, who share our loss.

Converted Jew to Speak.

Isaac Alenzar, a converted Jew of Jerusalem, will tell the story of his life and conversion at the evening service on Sunday at the Water street Presbyterian church. Mr. Alenzar is the son of a Rabbi and a student of Jerusalem university. He will lecture in his Rabbinical robes, his subject being "From the Rabbinical seat to the foot of the Cross." Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, D. D., says of him. "A young man of remarkable ability and one of the most eloquent orators of the Orient." A silver collection will be taken to aid him in getting a medical training that he may be fitted for the work of a medical missionary. A cordial invitation is extended to the public. Seats free.

The Value of Local Newspaper

Mr. W. A. Stanger, editor of the Office Outfitter of Chicago, recently made an address before a body of retail merchants in which he called attention to the value of the local newspaper to their trade and gave utterance to some sentiments and facts that local merchants everywhere may well consider. He said in part:

'The local newspaper is the greatest thing the retailer has if he will use it right, but a large proportion are too prone to believe that the editor will take care of their interests whether they look after his or not. This is wrong. If merchants as a class would only take advantage of the opportunities that the local newspapers afford them they would reap rewards far beyond their fondest dreams.

"While self-preservation is the first law of nature, editors of local papers have a habit of letting self interests go to the limit when it comes to a question of serving the community For this they are entitled to recognition, which they rarely receive.

"No doubt the retailers have encouraged them as far as sentiment goes. They have undoubtedly said that they approved of the editor's methods and called him 'good boy,' but in how many cases have they fallen short in the real encouragement that counts? How often have they neglected to use his columns, thinking that they were clever in it? In failing to patronize him they have too often killed the goose that laid the golden egg.

"You must get behind your local editor and push for all you are worth. He gives you two dollars back for every dollar you invest with him. He furnishes for you at his own expense one of the biggest assets you possess, the medium through which to let the people know what you have to sell. Within recent years the mail order proposition has been somewhat bothersome. The editors of the country papers have done more than all other influence combined to win business back into normal channels and to reconvert the farmer to the logical belief in home-trading.

"The country editor refuses to take profits from your enemy when the enemy will pay him more than you will. He refuses to accept business from the mail order store in the distant city and even goes further by telling how superior the local store is to the distant one and detailing the advantages of buying at home.

"Do not let it be said in your community that you have let your editor's work go unappreciated. Use his paper. Make him prosperous and yourself rich by doing it. If you have foolish ideas about the non-productiveness of newspaper advertising, throw them off and try them out. One try will prove nothing. If it is successful, so much the better, but the constant use of the paper in an intelligent manner will produce the results.

"The best friend any business man in the world has, next to his wife, is the local newspaper, and if he doesn't get full value for this friendship it is his fault, not the editor's. The editor of the average so called country paper has done more to upbuild his town and the retailers in it than all other influences combined, and it also follows that as an almost unbroken rule he is the least appreciated person in his community."

In conclusion, Mr. Stanger said that the country newspaper man does not ask for charity, but stands ready to repay the merchant 500 per cent. on every dollar properly spent in advertising.

Weymouth Fair.

The 44th annual fair of the Weymouth Agricultural and Industrial society, commonly known as the "Weymouth Fair," will open next Thursday, Sept. 24, and continue for three days. Big features have been arranged for each day, including the far-famed Weymouth fair horse races; also baseball, track sports, balloon ascensions, and continuous vaudeville shows every day, while special features will be announced from day to day. The cattle show and exhibit will be a big attraction as usual, and a band concert all day will help to make everybody happy.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

FLAMES SWEEP MAINE FORESTS

Property In at Least Fourteen Towns Is Threatened

THOUSANDS ARE FIGHTING FIRE

Many Men Forced to Give Up and Relays Are Sent to the Front--Large Sections of Woodland Destroyed--Rain the Only Salvation For Forests Which Have Suffered Dryest Season In Years

Augusta, Me., Sept. 19.—A dense pall of smoke that in many places obscured the setting sun altogether, or made it appear blood red, enveloped Maine last night as the result of serious forest fires that are devastating thousands of acres of woodland and causing grave anxiety for the safety of property in at least fourteen towns in eight counties.

Night and day thousands of men are at work in the effort to place the flames under control or turn them away from forest-girdled villages. The smoke is stifling and the heat is such as to try the endurance of the strongest.

Hundreds of the men who for two days have been fighting the fire almost ceaselessly have been forced to give up and fresh relays are constantly being dispatched to the front. So far as known no lives have been lost.

Probably the most serious fire is in Hancock county, but large sections of woodland are being burned in Piscataquis, Androscoggin, Somerset, Oxford, York, Cumberland and Penobscot counties. The towns and villages where the danger is great or damage heavy include Brooksville, West Hancock, Surry, Licksvale, Jackman, Lisbon, Scarboro, Biddeford, Eliot, York, Olamon, Milford, Cardville and Costigan.

The most serious situation is probably at Brooksville, in Hancock county. Here a large army of men was concentrated along the banks of Meadow brook, trying to keep the flames from crossing the stream. The fire, fed with the parched timber of 3000 acres, advanced on the village with a front four miles wide.

Rain in copious torrents is the imperative need of the state. The summer has been one of the dryest in years and there is hardly a spot in the vast forests of the state that is not a danger trap for some stray spark from locomotive or campfire, or the carelessly thrown match of some sportsman or lumberman.

So vital is the need for unusual precautions that State Forestry Commissioner Ring has sent out circulars broadcast through the state urging caution in the care of fires in forest camps.

HOSPITAL NURSE WAS CARELESS

Three Persons Dead and Others Seriously Ill From Poison

San Diego, Cal., Sept. 19.—Carelessness of a nurse in leaving water containing atropine where it was accidentally used in taking medicine has caused three deaths among patients at the county hospital. A fourth death is expected and four other persons are seriously ill. The dead are J. Young, Charles Kemp and Henry C. Shuette.

All the patients were taken violently sick Thursday afternoon and evidence of poison was so great that an investigation was started. Finally a nurse, Miss Mary Arthur, 19 years old, said that she had neglected to throw out some water in which there was a quantity of atropine and that the patients had got hold of it. She realized her mistake as soon as the inmates became ill, but did not confess her error until the investigation had brought the deaths almost home to her.

Great Explosion Near Submarines

Vallejo, Cal., Sept. 19.—The explosion of 2500 galons of gasolene on board a barge moored abreast the submarine boats Grampus and Pike at the Mare Island navy yard resulted in the death of Chief Machinist May and in injuries to three other men. Both submarine boats were scorched. The explosion threw flames in all directions and caused a spectacular fire. The men were forced to jump overboard to escape from the flames.

Probable Case of Suicide

Amesbury, Mass., Sept. 19.—The body of Mrs. George Gowen, who had been missing from her home since Thursday afternoon, was found in a creek near her house by a searching party. As the woman had previously been confined in an insane asylum, it is believed that she committed suicide during an attack of temporary insanity. She was 35 years old.

Smoke Delays Shipping

Newport, R. I., Sept. 19.—Smoke, believed to be from the Maine forest fires, settled thickly over Narragansett bay, causing much inconvenience to shipping. Shortly before sundown yesterday the atmosphere was so thick that foghorns on all the lightships and lighthouse stations were kept sounding at regular intervals.

The Scrap Book

He Forgot.

So absentminded was a certain New England farmer that he couldn't open his mouth without making an arrant ass of himself. Once he courted a young woman. His suit looked promising for a time. Then, with a sorrowful visage, he ceased his courtship.

"Yet she seemed infatuated with you, Jabez," said a friend to whom he went for sympathy.

"She were, too," Jabez agreed.

"Well, what could have been the trouble?"

"Dunno," said he. "Dunno, but when I proposed she turned me down cold."

"Perhaps your proposal wasn't ardent enough?"

"Oh, it was fiery," said Jabez. "Hot as pepper. I told her she was the only woman I'd ever loved, ever looked at, ever thought of or"—

"But," said his friend, "you forgot, then, you were a widower."

"Jingo," said Jabez, "so I did."

PRIDE.

You're holding your head too high;
You're the slave of a foolish pride.
With your face to the starry sky
You would try to look dignified,
But you're trampling on the flowers
That around your pathway lie;
You are crushing the blossoms beneath your feet,
And you never can see in your blind conceit,
For you're holding your head too high.

You are holding your head too high.
You have nothing to give but a sneer.
You are passing your old friends by
For the new, who are less sincere.
Ah, 'tis all very well, my dear,
With a proud and scornful eye,
To look up at the stars in this world of ours,
But you'll often forget to look down at the flowers
When you're holding your head too high.

—Maurice O'Neill.

Swallowed the Objection.

A cannibal chief became converted and asked the missionary to admit him to the church.

"But you have more than one wife," objected the missionary. "My church does not allow that."

The chief departed in dejection, but returned again in a few days and announced, with evident satisfaction, that he now had only one wife and was ready for baptism.

"But," objected the clergyman doubtfully, "where are your other wives?"

"Oh," replied the convert, "I have eaten them!"

On the Safe Side.

The "colored lady" who entered service as cook gave her name as Juletta Price, but constantly referred to her husband as George Ledbetter. "How does it happen, Juletta," she was asked one day, "that you go by the name of Price, while your husband's name is Ledbetter?" "Well, you see, Mrs. Lawrence," she replied cheerfully, "it's this a-way. I hadn' been acquainted with George but fo' days when I married him, an' I didn' know how I was gonter lak him nor how he was gonter lak me. Now, these divorcements betwix' married folks is a heap er trouble an' a heap er expense, too, an' I 'lowed the safest way fer us to do wus fer George to keep his maiden name an' to keep mine tell we see how our new experiment was gonter turn out."

His Authority.

Dr. Magrath was eccentric. One day he was called up to visit a sick man and as he entered the room said cheerfully, "How do you do?" "Oh, doctor," replied the patient plaintively, "I am dead." Magrath immediately wheeled about and left the room and actually reported that the man was dead. The mistake was discovered the following day, when some one took the doctor to task for issuing a false certificate. "I did it upon the very highest authority," Magrath explained, "for I had it from the man's own mouth."

Free Medical Advice.

The celebrated French physician Ricord was one day walking along the boulevards in Paris when he met an old gentleman who was very rich, but who was at the same time noted for his extreme stinginess. The old man, who was somewhat of a hypochondriac, imagined that he could get some medical advice from Ricord without paying for it.

"Doctor, I am feeling very poorly."

"Where do you suffer most?"

"In my stomach, doctor."

"Ah, that's bad. Please shut your eyes. Now put out your tongue so that I can examine it closely."

The invalid did as he was told. After he had waited patiently for about ten minutes he opened his eyes and found himself surrounded by a crowd, who supposed that he was crazy. Dr. Ricord in the meantime had disappeared.

Divine Love.

Just as a mother would not love a child the better for its being turned into a model of perfection by one stroke of magic, but does love it the more deeply every time it tries to be good, so I do hope and believe our Great Father does not wait for us to be good and wise to love us, but loves us and loves to help us in the very thick of our struggle with sin and folly.—Juliana Horatia Ewing.

Kind of Grandpa.

An old farmer was sitting in the garden under a pear tree enjoying his after dinner pipe and the weekly paper, and his little granddaughter played about among the flowers.

"Here, dranpa," she said, "'oo drink 'is nice milk."

He didn't want it, of course, but rather than hurt the little child he gulped it down.

She took back the empty cup and toddled away. He heard her murmuring as she went:

"I's kind to dranpa 'cause he's old."

Pretty soon she toddled back with another cup of buttermilk, and the good hearted old man, putting down his paper and pipe, tossed off the warm mixture with a feigned smile of joy.

"I's kind to dranpa 'cause he's old," she repeated. And in a little while she brought another cup of milk. The grandfather drank four or five of these offerings, and then for fun he followed the little girl to see where she was getting all that milk.

Her way led straight to the hogpen, and as she filled her cup at the hog trough the horrified farmer heard her say piously:

"I's kind to dranpa 'cause he's old."

A Deceiver.

Labiche was once asked to support as a candidate for the academy a certain literary mendicant, but hesitated for a long time and yielded only when he was told that if the ambitious author should fail to be elected he would die of it. Failure nevertheless did come, and the following year, when a second vacancy occurred, Labiche's vote was once more solicited in the man's behalf. "No," shouted Labiche in vehement indignation; "I will not vote for a man who does not keep his word. He did not die."

He Felt the Fire.

A millwright was converted to the way of thinking of a sect which periodically was inspired with a foreknowledge of the imminence of the day of doom and set the date, preparing for Gabriel's greeting.

The date was set, and the day came. The millwright donned his white robe and went out into the fields to await the coming meeting with the celestial throng. The day passed until it was late in the afternoon, and the millwright, having arisen at the stroke of midnight on the morn of the eventful day, grew drowsy and, throwing himself down upon a pile of hay, fell asleep at his watch.

Boys discovered him, and, with the natural mischievousness of boys, they set fire to the hay. The smoke and the heat soon woke the slumbering millwright, and, sitting up with a start, he cried with the anguish of the lost:

"Just as I expected—in hell after all!"

Old Time "Wireless."

Patrick Malone was having an argument with a friend who was well posted in history.

"How can you contend that the ancient Irish were more advanced than the old Egyptians?" said his friend. "Why, the Egyptians must have even understood electricity, as wires corresponding to our own telegraph wires have been found in archaeological excavations there."

"That may be," answered Pat, "but the fact that no wires have been found in Ireland simply makes it clear to my mind that the Irish were in the habit of using wireless telegraphy."

Try to Be Somebody.

The early formation of a purpose in life, the making up of one's mind, is one of the chief characteristics of a personality predestined to succeed. "An early aim shortens the way." "The important thing in life," says Goethe, "is to have a great aim and to possess the aptitude and perseverance to attain it."

Find your purpose and fling your life out to it. Try with all your might to be somebody.

Your purpose may not be very definite at first; but, like a river which starts in a series of ill defined pools or streams, if all your aims are in the right direction they will finally run together and, swollen by hundreds of side rills, merge into a mighty stream of purpose and sweep you on to the ocean of success.—O. S. Marden.

The Wily Earl.

Lord Reginald Bareacres once courted ardently the daughter of a New Jersey millionaire. At a seasonable moment in a dim conservatory he laid his heart at the young girl's feet. She, however, being of a rare type, spurned him. Rising to his feet, Lord Reginald said:

"I have bared to you the most sacred feelings of my inmost heart. May I ask that you will never reveal to a living soul what has passed between us?"

"I am not a gossip, Lord Reginald," the girl said haughtily.

"But promise me," he continued. "Give me your solemn promise."

"I promise," she said. "But why, Lord Reginald, are you so persistent?"

"Because," he answered, sighing with relief, "I purpose tomorrow to turn my attention to your older sister."

The Old, Old Story.

A youth who had been spending his summer by the sea was unexpectedly joined by his father and took the opportunity to ask for a new tennis racket.

"What!" cried his father. "A new tennis racket? Why, I bought you one a month ago. No, sir; you can't have it. Why, when I was a boy I didn't have tennis rackets and all those things, let alone having new ones every month. This can't go on. Look here—what are you going to do about it yourself? Some day your sons will want a new tennis racket every five minutes. What are you going to do about it?"

"Oh," said the boy calmly, winking at his father, "I'll put up the same old story. I'll tell 'em about when I was a boy."

TENDENCIES OF REPUBLICANS

About All In the Wrong Direction, According to Bryan.

INCREASE IN APPROPRIATIONS

Party Leaders Hurrying on at an Accelerated Pace--A Substitution of Presidential Successor For Plan of Popular Selection--Defense of Principle of Monopoly Supports Main Contention of Socialists

New York, Sept. 19.—Democracy's presidential campaign in Greater New York had its advent last night, when William J. Bryan, at a mass meeting under the auspices of Tammany Hall, spoke before enthusiastic thousands who filled Carnegie hall and overflowed into the streets. The ovation accorded to the presidential candidate was a brilliant climax to a day in which a united party paid Bryan a continuous reception.

Mr. Bryan spoke for over an hour on "Republican Tendencies" at Carnegie hall, and for more than ten minutes his audience applauded his appearance on the platform. Before the meeting the candidate spoke from a cart to an overflow gathering of New York's thousands who had futilely stormed the line of police to gain admission to the hall.

On his arrival here Bryan spoke at a noonday meeting and during the afternoon held constant levees at his hotel, where Democratic leaders in the city and state called called upon him. In his address at Carnegie hall Mr. Bryan said in part:

Parties are to be measured not merely by the things actually done, but by their tendencies. Since it is easier to remedy evils in the beginning than after they are full grown, it is important to know the tendencies of parties as well as to know how far they have gone. I desire to call attention to some of the tendencies of the Republican party.

Take, for instance, the matter of extravagance in expenditures. The tendency of the Republican party is to increase the expenditures of the government out of all proportion to the increase in the population. At the first session of the present congress their appropriations exceeded a billion dollars. This is twice the appropriations of a session of the Fifty-First congress, which was the highest appropriation known up to that time. The appropriations of the last session exceeded the appropriations of the preceding year by $90,000,000, an increase of almost 10 percent—showing that in matters of appriations the Republican leaders are hurrying on at an accelerated pace.

And it must be remembered that this enormous increase in appropriations is at a time when there is a deficit of $60,000,000 for the fiscal year. What would be the pace if they were not threatened with a lack of income? The increase in the number of officeholders is likewise enormous. The appropriations in the army and navy alone show an increase of $120,000,000 a year over the appropriations of eleven years ago. What excuse can be given for the trebling of the appropriations for army and navy?

There are two reasons why the Republican leaders are less careful of expenditures than the Democrats. The first is to be found in the fact that the Republican leaders are more intimately associated with the taxeaters than with the taxpayers and, being governed by public opinion with which they come into contact, they naturally lean towards extravagance.

The second reason is to be found in the fact that the Republican leaders have been representing taxation as a blessing and they naturally want to give the people as much of the blessing as possible. They argue that we should have a high tariff whether we need the revenue or not, but recognizing that there is some opposition to unnecessary taxation, they try to make the appropriations high enough to compel the extortionate tariff rates demanded by the protected interests.

The Democratic party, believing that a tax is a necessary evil, endeavors to limit the tax to the actual needs of the government economically administered.

The present campaign presents another tendency of the Republican party, namely to substitute a presidential successor for the Democratic plan of popular selection. The president felt it his duty to select a Republican nominee, and, having reached the conclusion that he ought to select such a nominee he brought the influence of his great office to bear in behalf of the candidate of his personal choice, and is now using his influence to secure the election of the candidate whom he assisted in nominating.

If Mr. Roosevelt can pick out the Republican candidate this year and then use the prestige of his office and the influence of the army of officeholders to elect him, may not Mr. Taft pick out a successor and elect him so on from administration to administration? Our government rests upon the will of the people and any interference with the free choice of the people either before nomination or after nomination is contrary to the spirit of our institutions.

The time to correct this abuse and to stop this tendency is now. If this attempt is successful it will be accepted as a precedent for another attempt and the people, having submitted once, will be less aroused by repetition of the attempt.

The third dangerous tendency of the Republican party is toward centralization. Its leaders are inclined to overlook state lines and to advocate legislation and administrative methods which enlarge the power of the central government. The safety of the Union depends upon the preservation of the distinction drawn in the constitution between state and nation. The nation has its delegated powers; the state its reserved powers. Only by the recognition of this division can the balance between state and nation be maintained.

Fourth. In its advocacy of imperialism the Republican party tends to ignore all constitutional restraint, for it administers a government in the Philippine Islands without constiutional limitations. The ignoring of the Constitution in dealing with the Philippines tends to the weakening of the Constitution at home and tends also to disregard of Constitution principles of government.

The fifth Republican tendency to which I call your attention is the tendency towards socialism. The Republican party cultivates the idea that the government must act as a wet nurse for favored industries instead of cultivating industrial independence and a spirit of self-reliance. In its latest national platform it boldly declares that reasonable profits should be guaranteed to the protected industries. It defends the principle of monopoly on the theory that competition is hurtful. In taking this position it supports the main contention of the socialists. Mr. Taft, in the speech announcing his candidacy, advocated such amendment of the anti-trust law as would make it apply only to unreasonable restraint of trade. This idea that reasonable restraint of trade is unobjectionable is the entering wedge—it is the first step towards the annihilation of the principle of competition.

The Democratic party has been called a socialistic party and I have been denounced as a socialist. I contend that the Republican party, not the Democratic party, is aiding the socialistic party, and this is evident from the fact that the socialist leaders prefer Republican success to Democratic success. They fear the Democratic reforms will retard socialism, and they believe that Republican abuses can be used to arouse opposition to the entire competitive system.

The Democratic party believes that the socialist is honest but mistaken. The Democratic party would argue with the socialist, while the Republican party denounces him, but the Democratic party would remove the spirit of unrest and discontent by eliminating the abuses that are the foundation of unrest and discontent.

We appeal to the sober sense of the American people and ask that they join us in the inauguration of reforms which will restore the government to its old foundations and win for the government the love of all the people by making it the protector of every class and the friend of every legitimate interest and enterprise.

Beveridge to Answer Bryan

New York, Sept. 19.—Announcement is made at the headquarters of the Republican national committee that Senator Beveridge of Indiana has been selected to make an extensive tour of the country and make political speeches in reply to Mr. Bryan. The committee has arranged for a long itinerary providing for many speeches and covering the distance from New York to Portland, Or. Beveridge was urged to make this extended tour largely because of the fitness shown by him to meet Bryan's arguments in a joint debate between them which was carried on in a magazine about a year ago.

Burleigh's Flattering Vote

Augusta, Me., Sept. 19.—Complete official returns from the Third congressional district give Congressman Burleigh (Rep.) 2770 plurality, an increase of 889 over his plurality of two years ago. Burleigh ran 1279 votes ahead of his ticket in the district.

Gompers Refuses to Answer

Washington, Sept. 19.—The relevancy of questions asked President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor concerning editorials in the September number of The Federationist will be passed upon by the district supreme court. Pending that action the proceedings in the contempt case against the Federation officers were suddenly suspended. Gompers declined to answer questions because the utterances attributed to him had been made since the contempt petition was filed.

Fight Imminent at Tabriz

Tabriz, Persia, Sept. 19.—A decisive struggle between the sultan and the Nationalists for the control of Tabriz is imminent. Ain-ed-Dowleh of the sultan's forces has sent an ultimatum to Satar Khan to lay down his arms and surrender the city in forty-eight hours, threatening otherwise that he will bombard the capital and that his troops will storm the Nationalist quarter. Satar Khan flatly refused to comply. Foreigners here are in great danger.

Business Gradually Improving

New York, Sept. 19.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that gradual improvement in the commercial situation is encouraging, although the volume of trade has not expanded in proportion to the growth of confidence. Resumption of work at manufacturing plants is the best evidence of progress, the number of unemployed steadily, though slowly, diminishing.

FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Smith celebrated on Sunday the 50th anniversary of their marriage at their home in Braintree surrounded by their children and grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Smith were married at the Catholic church in Randolph Sept. 13, 1858 by Rev. Fr. Roche at that time in charge of the catholic parishes in this section.

Mr. Smith was born in Kantuck County, Cork, Irland, 75 years ago and was one of a family of seven children of Richard and Margaret Buckley Smith. He came to this country when a boy and lived in Abington for several years, later mivng to this town where he has since resided.

Mrs. Smith was born in western New York, Jan. 8. 1839 and was one of 14 children. She moved to Quincy when five years old. Since her marriage she has lived in East Braintree and in the same house for the past twenty-eight years.

Twelve children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Smith, seven of whom are living as follows: George W. Smith of Weymouth, Richard F. Smith of New York, Thomas J. Smith of East Weymouth, Albert J. Smith of Rockland, Catherine wife of Robert N. Woods of East Braintree, Theresa, wife of Joseph Kelley Weymouth and Elizabeth L., wife of Dr. John Kelley, of Bridgewater.

There are 22 grandchildren and all of them were present at the celebration. Mr. and Mrs. Smith were remembered with many gifts, including gold and silver coin.

PETZE—TURNER.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Azro Turner of Washington street, Braintree, on Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock when their daughter Edythe A., became the bride of Mr. Edward I. Petze of Brooklyn, New York. The parlors were turned into a bed of ferns, clematis and hydrangeas, the large bay window being banked with foliage.

The ceremony was performed before only immediate relatives and friends the knot being tried by Rev. William C. Litchfield of Winthrop. The bride was becomingly dressed in her traveling suit, there being no attendants. After a short trip, the couple will reside in Flatbush, Brooklyn, N. Y., The best wishes of their many friends go with them.

CLERKS' NIGHT.

The Old Colony Grocers and Provision Dealers gave a banquet to their clerks at North Abington last Wednesday evening. Upwards of 150 were present. After the banquet they adjourned to the Y. M. C. A. building through the courtesy of the officers of that association. President H. W. Mansfield introduced Mr. William Bessip Sholar, who gave a very interesting lecture upon "Efficiant Salesmanship." The lecture was greatly appreciated the large attendance showed the interest in the association work through the Old Colony district.

AMUSEMENTS.

Boston Theatre.

Denman Thompson's Old Homestead is now in the third week of its record breaking engagement at the Boston theatre. The veteran actor, Denman Thompson is himself playing the part of Uncle Josh and he is supported by an exceptionally capable company. When the curtain rises on the first act of this delightful drama of rural life in New England ,there comes wafting over the footlights the sweet and wholesome fragrance of a pure New England home, the sunlight of an honest, upright character reflected in the dear old Yankee farmer. And mingled with this delightful and inspiring atmosphere of country life is a genuine strain of American humor, as racy of the soil as are the characters themselves in The Old Homestead. What need is there to say more in connection with the splendid success with which this beautiful play is meeting in the Boston theatre. This is its twenty-third successive season, and it is as pleasing today as ever.

Castle Square.

It begins to appear as if Boston could not have enough of "The Devil." One week of crowded houses has been followed by another week under the same conditions at the Castle Square theatre, and now comes the announcement that the public is so clamorous to see this remarkable play that it must be continued for a third and last week, beginning next Monday afternoon. The production of "The Three of Us" has therefore been postponed in order that the many hundreds who have been turned away from the Castle Square doors during the past two weeks may come again the coming week and not be disappointed. Rarely before has a play created the sensation that "The Devil" has aroused, and it is a credit to Boston playgoers that they have given it their thorough appreciation as it has been acted by the John Craig Stock Company.

Keith's Theatre.

The timeliness of vaudeville will never be better demonstrated than at Keith's theatre, when the leading feature of a tremendously strong bill will be John J. Hayes, winner of the Marathon race, the American champion who defeated the athletes of the world, and almost became a subject of controversy. When Hayes returned to this country he was hailed by thousands in New York as a conqueror, among those who met him being a representative of Mr. B. F. Keith, who entered into negotiations with him for appearance in Mr. Keith's theatres. Mr. Hayes proved to be as popular an entertainer as he is proficient as an athlete. During his engagement in the New York theatres thousands have been turned away. Mr. Hayes appears in the same costume he wore in the great Marathon, and describes the race, while one of the best sets of moving pictures ever taken show its progress.

CHOLERA GAINING GROUND

Nearly 500 Cases at St. Petersburg Between Noon and Midnight

St. Petersburg, Sept. 19.—From noon yesterday until midnight 471 new cholera cases were reported in this city. Since the beginning of the epidemic there has been a total of 1061 cases, of which thirty-seven recovered. In view of the rapid spread of the epidemic and the danger to children, the municipality has decided to close the primary schools of the city for six weeks and to convert the school buildings into hospitals in which the ordinary sick can be housed.

Odessa, Sept. 19.—Despite the strict preventive measures that have been taken, the cholera which now is raging throughout Russia finally has invaded this, the most important port of the Black sea. Ships are being quarantined and sanitary commissions have been appointed to take measures to stamp out the disease. The governor general has forbidden the publication of news of fatal cases. A majority of the surrounding cities are suffering seriously from cholera.

Manila, Sept. 19.—In the twenty-four hours ending at 8 o'clock this morning twenty-three new cases of cholera and six deaths have been reported. A great storm is now drenching Manila and it is believed that this will greatly assist in cleansing the city.

FLEET BIDS GOODBY TO AUSTRALIA.

Cordial Messages Between Admiral Sperry and Premier.

Albany, West Australia, Sept. 19.—Battleship Connecticut of the American Atlantic fleet sailed at 6:30 o'clock this morning. She proceeded at a speed of about thirteen knots an hour and will overtake the other vessels of the fleet Sunday morning.

The premier of West Australia, N. J. Moor, has sent a farewell message to Admiral Sperry, couched in the following terms:

"On behalf of the governor and the people of Western Australia I bid you farewell. I hope that you will retain pleasant recollections of the last Australian port at which you called. I regret that your welcome at Albany was not attended by a greater number of people and I hope that the greetings of the small community you were able to meet at Albany proved that Western Australia is as enthusiastic in its admiration of yourself and your officers and men as any other state in the commonwealth. You are leaving behind you warm friends and happy reminiscences and you and the officers and men of your fleet have our sincere admiration."

Replying, Sperry said:

"We thank heartily yourself and the governor and people of Western Australia for your kind message, which is much appreciated. We regret that circumstances made it impossible for us to see more of your great state. Our visit was enjoyable and we are taking with us pleasant memories of your hospitality and generosity. Your reception, with that of the other state of the commonwealth, always will be remembered appreciatively and sympathetically. The people of the United States wish happiness and prosperity to their friends of Western Australia."

Brides Took a Bride

Boston, Sept. 19.—That Yale's famous all around athlete and halfback on the 'varsity football eleven, Arthur E Brides of Brockton, was secretly married by Rev. Fr. John Coyle at New Haven in July, 1907, to Miss Stella E. Stuart of Boston, was made public last night through the announcement by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Stuart. Brides has been working the past summer on the street cars in Brockton and his wife has been living at her home. Brides will return to Yale this fall.

Dropped Dead on Stage

Ashburnham, Mass., Sept. 19.—Charles I. Jefts of this town, one of the leading members of the local Grange, attended the regular meeting of the Grange last night and after the business was disposed of a small play was given. Jefts had the leading role and had just begun to speak his part when he fell dead on the stage. Death was due to apoplexy. Jefts was 40 years old.

Prospects of Great Lockout

Manchester, Eng., Sept. 19.—There seems to be no hope that a lockout of 200,000 cotton operatives can be avoided, although it is possible that the cardcombers may decide to take another ballot on the question of accepting the terms of the employers. This would occupy a fortnight and meanwhile the spinners would have to remain idle.

Wholesale Smuggling Alleged

Havana, Sept. 19.—A number of Cuban editors met here and passed a resolution in support of The Diario Espanol, which, in a recent editorial, charged that the United States army was smuggling into Cuba great quantities of meat and other goods and selling them. The resoluion severely scored Governor Magoon.

Prominent Irishmen In Boston

Boston, Sept. 19.—Several hundred Irish-American citizens gathered at the South station last night to welcome to Boston John E. Redmond, Joseph Devlin and John Fitzgibbon, who have come to America to attend the national convention of the United Irish League of America, which opens here next week.

Accident to Plymouth Express

The Plymouth express, which leaves the South Station at 2.40 P. M., narrowly escaped being wrecked Friday afternoon, when the journal on the left side of the locomotive broke and dragged along, tearing up the track for quite a distance.

The train had just passed the Savin Hill station, when the mishap came, and although Engineer George Stanley applied the emergency brakes immediately, the train of ten cars did not come to a stop till the Harrison Square station was reached.

The train stopped just at the interlocking of the switches, thus blocking up the Shawnut branch as well as the outward track of the main line. This forced all traffic to the inward track, till the wrecked locomotive was towed to Neponset by the wrecking crew, and caused all the trains to be from 20 minutes to two hours late.

There was naturally a great deal of excitement, but nobody was injured. The railroad officials say that Engineer Stanley deserves great praise for stopping the train so quickly.

Granite Shipments Heavy.

Returns from the two shipping terminals for the month of August show the total amount of rough and finished granite shipped that month to have been 19,565,050 pounds. This is an increase of 8,466,583 pounds over the previous month, and shows that business in the granite line is lively. Of the grand total, 19,112,045 pounds were forwarded from West Quincy, and 6,453,095 pounds from Quincy Adams.

STRONG CANDIDATE

Robert Luce A Gentleman Of Character And Ability

Of the three candidates for Lieutenant-Governor, Robert Luce is undoubtedly the best known here in Quincy, for besides being the chief speaker at the No-License Rally in Quincy Music Hall last December, he also spoke at the No-License Rally in Wollaston, and has since spoken before the Wollaston Unitarian Club, and at the last High School Graduation.

A strong list of delegates favorable to Robert Luce has been filed in every Ward in the City, and though there are opposing delegations in each Ward, except in Ward 1 these are unpledged, and therefore it would seem that the Robert Luce delegates have an advantage, as the voters naturally prefer to know for whom they are voting, and thus make their own choice, rather than leave the choice to the delegates.

A careful reading of the following quotations will give some idea of the character, ability and service of Robert Luce.

(From Practical politics.)

"According to a writer in a recent magazine, "he man who devotes his energies to the affairs of the state is a public servant; if his chief aims are selfish, he is a politican; if he seeks the greatest good for the greatest number, he is a statesman." If this doctrine be true then Robert Luce of Somerville is a statesman in the broadest sense. For ten years he has been very active in his service to the state, and he has added to the renown and dignity of the commonwealth. His name has come to be a synonym for honor, integrity, and ability in public affairs, and he has been a potent factor in the making of laws for the benefit of the people as a whole."

"As is the case with any man whose every act is based on principle alone, Mr. Luce has made enemies during his service in the house. But no man with whom he has differed feels that his opposition has come from any but the most lofty motive, a desire to conserve the interests of the state and that every taxpayer shall receive the full value of his money."

(From Taunton Herald News.)

"Mr. Luce stands in Massachusetts for exactly the same things that Governor Hughes stands for in New York—Direct nomination, honest election, suppression of corrupt practices in elections, stringent regulation of corporations, yet with perfect justice to them.

"He will naturally not have the support of the machine or of the men who play politics the year around for personal gain, but the masses of the people who have watched his career in the legislature can relieve him of this handicap, and judging from the sentiment in this part of the state they intend to do so."

(From the Fitchburg Sentinel.)

"The strength of Luce lies in his support on the part of the temperance people and the general sympathy of the church people and what are the active forces at the State House in behalf of the law and order element of the community."

(From the Springfield Union.)

"He stands for high ideals in politics as well as in citizenship. He is a man of honesty and ability, who never sacrifices his convictions to expediency."

(From the Waltham News.)

"The "declaration of faith" which has been put forth by Representative Robert Luce in announcing his candidacy for the Lieutenant Governorship will appeal to most Republicans who are not bound up with the machine. In his public life Mr. Luce has displayed an independence of thought and action which at times have caused the "regulars" to squirm, but the average voter has generally approved. The present instance is no exception. The public likes to see a man stand on his own platform and leave people in no doubt as to his attitude.

(From the Mansfield News.)

"With all due respect to the other candidates, we are free to say that the best man for the place in every sense of the word is Robert Luce of Somerville. He is the brainiest man of all the candidates, his record is the cleanest, he is the most independent and has accomplished the most for the cause of moral reform in Massachusetts. We recommend Mr. Luce to the attention of all who favor the selection of a man who is able, clean, independent and experienced."

(From the Boston Transcript.)

"Mr. Luce is an effective speaker, and is likely to figure prominently in the campaign, particularly as he appeals to the religious interests, the temperance Republicans, and those who believe in fighting monopoly in Mr. Luce's own way."

Robert Luce Campaign Committee of Quincy,
George A. Sidelinger, chairman.

Criminal Court

The Norfolk Superior Court, September criminal sitting, came in at the court house at Dedham Monday morning, before Judge Robert O. Harris. The session was opened with prayer and the jurors were then called and sworn. All responded but four.

The following cases came before the court during the week:

Harold L. Carter of Boston, alias "Kid" Carter, for breaking and entering the dwelling house of Charles B. Appleton at Brookline, March 5, 1908, and the larceny therefrom of silver and brass ware to the value of $72.25, was given two years in the Dedham house of correction.

William F. Kilroy, for drunkenness at Hyde Park was fined $10.

Celia McCarthy, for using indecent and insulting language at Brookline, was fined $2.

Hjalmar Johnson was found not guilty of an assault on Victor Seaberg at Quincy, July 11, 1908.

In the case of Fred Welch, charged with breaking and entering the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad station at Foxboro, June 28, 1908, the jury disagreed.

Dr. Walter R. Amesbury of Milford was arraigned Thursday morning and pleaded not guilty to the charge of the murder of his wife, Anna V. Amesbury, at Hyde Park, Dec. 25, 1907. He was represented by his senior counsel, John P. Leahy of Boston. Dr. Amesbury will not be tried at this term of court.

Ronald S. Drysdale, for practicing medicine at Quincy without registration, a fine of $150.

Frederick Jacobs, for larceny at Quincy, Concord reformatory.

George Baldwin, for a statutory offence at Quincy, three years at the house of correction.

Felino Orlanto, for assaulting Antomio Anato at Hyde Park, three months at the house of correction.

Charles B. Locke, for larceny at Hyde Park, Concord reformatory.

Linehan Asks For Square Deal

A rally in the interest of the candidacy of Frank J. Linihan for congressman form the Tenth district was held last evening at St. Mary's hall. The rally was largely attended and was very enthusiastic.

Dr. Frank J. Hughes presided and addresses were made by Hon. Thomas J. Collins, Representative William L. Newton, James Toohey, William T. Walsh, Patrick H. Kelley, Councilman Welsh of Boston and Mr. Linihan.

Mr. Linihan, in his remarks, said that he had complied with every requirement of the law but his name would not appear on the official ballot as some one had stolen three of his papers. He appealed to the people of Quincy for fair play and a square deal. He said that he would have stickers at every polling place. He further said that Quincy had 500 Democratic voter at the Democratic caucuses an dto these he looked for a square deal.

Other speakers attacked Congressman, O'Connell and his manager in Quincy, Cornelius D. Austin.

Drowning Accident.

The body Ralph Smith, who was drowned in Longbridge, N. Y., Sept. 16, arrived at Wollaston Friday afternoon, and will be buried from the residence of his aunt, Mrs. A. D. Atkins of 15 Bromfield street. The young man who was 21 years of age formerly resided at Wollaston.

New Voters.

The Registrars of Voters had a busy session Friday evening and a record was made, adding 143 names in 150 minutes. Of the names added Ward One furnished 41; Ward Two, 25; Ward Three 28; Ward Four 16; Ward Five 17; Ward Six 16.

The Committee For Fair Play

Editors of the Quincy Daily Ledger:

My attention has been called to an article printed in the Ledger of Wednesday, attributing to Senator Linehan a statement that he claimed two of his nomination papers were not returned by me to the City Clerk. Your article says that Mr. Linehan was "trimmed" in this alleged operation.

I kindly ask a small part of your valuable space to most emphatically deny that Mr. Linehan was "trimmed" by the secretary of the Democratic City Committee or anyone else who had anything to do with Mr. Linehan's papers. The fact is, Mr. Editor, that three papers ,and only three, were filed for Mr. Linehan and were filed by Linehan himself in the presence of George Freeman and a Mr. Sullivan of South Boston and William J. Sullivan of Sumner street, this city. I noticed at the time that Mr. Linehan's acceptance was written on only one of the papers and called his attention to this omission. At first he said it was not necessary to have his acceptance on all papers, but when I assured him it was he replied that he would sign "the other two" papers and did so. I thereupon placed them in an envelope, sealed and signed it and not until the hour for opening papers Thursday night of last week was that envelope opened again.

It was then opened in the presence of several well known Democrats, Mr. Austin, Manager for Congressman O'Connell and William J. Sullivan, manager for Senator Linehan and also three disinterested newspaper reporters who were waiting to get the news of the nominations. When I opened the envelope and read Mr. Linehan's list, Mr. Austin asked how many names were signed. I counted the names and found 41. Mr. Austin thereupon protested, saying that 41 names were not enough. Mr. Sullivan, manager for Mr. Linehan was present, and in reply to Mr. Austin said that there were names enough. If there were any papers missing, and especially two with 50 names as claimed by Mr. Linehan, it is fair and reasonable to suppose that Mr. Linehan's manager would have protested on the spot. But he did not because there were no grounds for any such accusation.

At a rally held in West Quincy last night in favor of Mr. Linehan when the charge of two papers being done away with was made again, as it has all the week, I went onto the platform occupied by Mr. Linehan's followers that he brought from South Boston and told them and the audience this same story. I cannot be too emphatic in denying that only three papers were filed with me; and not five as claimed by Mr. Linehan. The papers filed—all of the papers filed, were returned by me to the City Clerk and he ruled that 41 names were not enough. Then, and not till then, did the story of the missing papers appear in circulation.

In view of the charges that have been preferred on the stump every night in all parts of Boston and Quincy, I felt in duty bound, both in justice to myself, the Democratic City Committee of this city, and the good name of the city of Quincy, to deny any such charges as have been made, in order that the citizens of Quincy and the 10th district may rest assured that all candidates coming before the city committee or its secretary with nomination papers will be given a fair, square deal and honest treatment.

Very respectfully yours.
WILLIAM H. FLYNN,
Secretary of the Democratic City Committee.
Quincy, Sept. 19, 1908.

Brockton Fair.

The Big Brockton Fair dates this year are Sept. 29, 30, Oct. 1, 2. Its the same big carnival of amusement this year as in the past with many new features of interest.

The lovers of harness racing will have a treat as there are besides the usual classes, to be match races between Sweet Marie, Major Delmar and George G., for purses aggregating $3750 with an addition of $1500 if the world's half-mile track record is lowered. This will give thousands of people a chance to see these speeders, many of whom have never before had a opportunity. The Stage Show is the biggest ever offered and includes 18 star acts and over 100 artists. The Horse Show will be as usual a pleasing feature and running races will be an interesting event. The Athletic Meet and Marathon Run are exciting much interest and with the many other attractions, will as in past years make the Brockton Fair the show that dwarfs all others.

Saturday last the thermometer reached the highest it has been for many years for Sept. 12, going to 98.

Merrill Claims Experience Counts

Hon. John F. Merrill who is seeking renomination and election as County Commissioner believes that if experience counts for anything he should be reelected. At the present time Mr. Merrill is the only old member on the board of County Commissioners. He has served three years and is at present chairman of the board.

Experience counts for considerable especially upon such a board as this. In addition to his experience on this board he has served as a Representative to the General Court, and also as Senator from the First Norfolk district.

THE DEDHAM TRANSCRIPT. says "Hon John F. Merrill of Quincy chairman and senior member of the Board of Commissioners of Norfolk County, and who, this year, completes his first term in that office, is a candidate for re-election. Under Mr. Merrill's administration the County debt and tax rate have been materially reduced, and because of this, we believe it for the interest of all sections of the County to return him for another term."

The Hyde Park Gazette says: "We learn that ex-Senator Sprague of Quincy is contemplating being a candidate for county commissioner, subject to the action of the Republican convention. The present incumbent, Hon. John F. Merrill of the same city, has given entire satisfaction, and is in every way worthy of a renomination and election. There is no demand for a change, and the Quincy Republicans would be doing an act of real injustice should they refuse to give a solid delegation to Mr. Merrill."

—We examine in our dark-room with modern instruments. If we find disease we send you to a reliable oculist. Williams 1473 Hancock street.

BRAINTREE.

Last Wednesday morning an adjourned meeting on grade crossings was held in the Town house but as Ex-Gov. Bates, chairman of the commission, was unable to be present, the meeting promptly adjourned to November twenty-first. This gives ample time to present perfected plans and estimates of cost.

Special memorial services for the late Allison Cleaveland Palmer were held in the First Congregational church last Sunday afternoon. The floral decorations consisted of the embankment of the pulpit with roses by the Dartmouth college fraternity of which Mr. Palmer was a member.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Dyer of Hancock street has been named Vernal Craig Dyer, by his mother and grandmother. Both mother and baby are reported well.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. James Grover are interested to learn of their voyage from New York city to Wiscasset, Maine. Mr. Grover's boyhood home, in the yacht which he built and called "The Mohawk." At last accounts the party were making the return trip.

Mr. W. J. Tirrell and family enjoyed a seventy-mile spin in their White steamer touring car, last Sunday. Stops were made at Allerton and Cohasset.

Monday evening, the Ladies Auxiliary of the Sons of Veterans observed their anniversary in the G. A. R. hall. Invitations had been extended to the G. A. R. and Sons of Veterans and quite a number responded. A choice entertainment was given. Mrs. Frank Call presided at the piano, in her usual pleasing manner. Miss Grace Holbrook rendered a solo very sweetly and responded to an encore. The readings by Mrs. E. A. Fisher were well received and elicited much applause. A fine piano solo was also given by Miss Spear. At the close, ice cream and cake were served.

Mrs. W. E. Knowlton and son Willie of Crescent avenue are both ill with diphtheria. It is hoped that the disease may be kept from spreading and that the afflicted ones may soon be restored to health.

Saturday afternoon, Miss Ethel Sprague entertained the members of the sewing club at her summer home at Bayside. At the same time the young ladies surprised one of their members, Miss Edith Brett, with a linen shower. It was a most enjoyable occasion.

Miss Frances Bickford who has been leading lady and soloist in the summer theatre there, where they have been playing the light opera. Miss Bickford has a wonderful soprano voice of unusual sweetness, she intends later going abroad to study for grand opera.

George C. Beal of Tremont street, is to be congratulated on his cleverness in being able to win the twenty-five dollars in gold for writing the best production of a moving picture which will be illustrated in the near future.

At the annual convention of the Massachusetts State Firemen's Association held last week at Nantucket chief Frank O. Whitmarsh was elected sergent-at-arms for the 13th consecutie time and was voted an annual salary of $25 and expenses.

Early in the week we received a souvenir postal from Mr. and Mrs. George E. Fogg of Quincy avenue. The view was of Vinalhaven, Maine.

The wild native clematis is in full flower. Many of our householders have obtained roots, and have cultivated the plants sufficiently to get fine results, as a flowering, climbing vine, it is adorning, piazzas and trellices on pretty houses, with its white starry clusters of blossoms and fresh vivid foliage.

Mrs. Maria K. Wallace of Allen street, observed the ninety-third anniversary of her birth on Sunday, September 13, receiving congratulations of children and friends. In her cosy home surrounded with tokens of the loving care, and tender affection of her children, she passed the day quietly. Always fond of out-door life she has spent hours in her gardens caring for her shrubs and plant the last few summers.

Miss Edna Hart returned to her duties as stenographer at the Fore River Ship yard on Monday, after her two weeks' vacation. One week was spent at Lowell with friends of that city.

MILTON.

The old Granite House is being remodelled on the inside. When alterations are completed it will be occupied by A. W. Clark.

Rev. Theodore I. Reese of Columbus, Ohio, formerly rector of the Mission of Our Saviour church, will preach at the evening service Sunday at 7.30. The vested choir will sing and a large congreagtion is looked for to meet the former rector.

F. B. Cabot and family who have been passing the summer at Pochasset, have returned home for the winter.

The fire department was called out last Saturday by an alarm from Box 52 for a fire in a house on Canton avenue occupied by a colored family named Crowd. The fire was caused by children playing with matches and a two year old state child was so badly burned that it died the following day.

Burglars at Braintree.

For the second time this week, burglars were at work in Braintree last night, the home of William C. Harding being the house entered. At some time druing the night, the window of the pantry was forced open by standing on a settee. When the pantry door was reached, however, it was found to be locked and the burglars had to go away empty-handed. Nothing is known of the person who entered the house, except that neighbors say that they saw a man in Mr. Harding's yard about 3 A. M.

GLOOMY DAY AT FORT MYER

An Official Investigation of the Aeroplane Disaster

FINDING OF BOARD OF INQUIRY

Shows Nothing but What Was Already Known--Machine Was Recovering Its Balance When It Struck--Accident Caused by Extraordinary Vibration of Wire Running From Main Planes to Fitting of Rudder

Washington, Sept. 19.—Fort Myer, the scene of Thursday's aeroplane disaster, which resulted in the death of Lieutenant Thomas E. Selfridge of the signal corps and serious injury of Orville Wright, presents a cheerless aspect.

The air of gloom that pervades the army post is in marked contrast to the scene of bustle and excitement that attended the flight of Wright's aeroplane Thursday afternoon, with its dramatic climax. This gloom was reflected in the faces of the brother officers of the unfortunate lieutenant when they met at the fort yesterday to make an official investigation of the accident in the manner in which the usual cavalry drill was gone through with over the very ground upon which the fated aerial ship was wrecked, and in the words of appreciation spoken by members of the signal corps balloon squad which had been under the direct charge of Selfridge.

Lieutenant Selfridge's body has been removed from the hospital at Fort Myer to an undertaker's, where it will remain until the arrival of the young officer's father, who wired from San Francisco that he would like to have his son buried either at Arlington or West Point. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made, but a military funeral will be held and burial will probably be at Arlington National cemetery. Professor Bell, president of the Aerial Experiment association, of which Selfridge was secretary, will come from Nova Scotia to attend the funeral.

Major Squier, acting chief signal officer of the army, convened the board of signal officers for the purpose of making an official inquiry into the death of Selfridge. The finding of the board of inquiry was given out by Major Squier as follows:

"The board finds that the accident, which occurred in an official flight made at Fort Myer, Va., at about 5:18 p. m. on Sept. 17, 1908, was due to the accidental breaking of a propeller blade and a consequent unavoidable loss of control which resulted in the machine falling to the ground from a height of about seventy-five feet.

"The board finds that First Lieutenant Thomas E. Selfridge, First field artillery (attached to the signal corps by war department orders and assigned to aeronautical duty), accompanied Mr. Wright, by authority, on the aeroplane for the purpose of officially receiving instruction, and received injuries by the falling of the machine which resulted in his death."

The signal corps will proceed with its aeronautical work and it is understood the Wright brothers will be permitted to make their official trials whenever they are ready without endangering their chance of receiving the contract price of $25,000 for their aeroplane.

Mr. Wright's assistants, Taylor and Furness, took with them to the hospital two of the broken parts of the aeroplane. They showed these to Wright, who said to Taylor: "The machine was already recovering its balance when it struck and I am sure if we had had twenty-five feet further to go we would have landed on the skids without serious damage."

Speaking for Wright, Taylor later said: "The accident was caused by an extraordinary vibration of one of the wires running from the main planes to the upper steel fitting of the rudder. This vibration was so great that it got in range of the propeller and was struck by the blade. This caused the blade to break. The other blade of the propeller flew around and, in turn, struck the same wire, breaking it. This made Wright lose control of his rudder entirely and the loss of both blades of the propeller and the breaking of the wire caused him to lose control of the planes. Shutting off power to stop the remaining propeller, he steadied the machine somewhat, but the distance to the ground was not great enough to restore the equilibrium."

Numerous telegrams of sympathy were received at the Fort Myer hospital, but they were withheld from Wright.

The Booth Failure

Chicago, Sept. 19.—Creditors whose claims against A. Booth & Co. which aggregate less than $1000 have filed a petition asking that the firm be declared bankrupt. The case will be fought by W. J. Chalmers, the receiver, when it comes up before Judge Sanborn. Chalmers estimates the liabilities of the firm at close to $6,000,000 and the assets at $8,000,000.

Suicide Follows Lovers' Quarrel

Lewiston, Me., Sept. 19.—Mrs. Elizabeth Le Clair, aged 22, the divorced wife of Joseph Le Clair of this city, committed suicide by drowning last evening in the Oxford street canal. A lovers' quarrel is said to have been the motive for the deed. Mrs. Le Clair was to have been married today.

INVESTIGATE and ECONOMIZE.

NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.

On and after September 16, we have decided

TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE

as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods

AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills over due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every day. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and take them with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Now think this proposition over, and we feel confident that you can see it just the way that we do.

SOMETHING THAT IS NEEDED HERE IN QUINCY.

A HIGH GRADE OF GOODS SOLD AT LOW PRICES.

So Remember your 5 per cent discount.

Respectfully,

Fresh Air Funds.

By Lulu Johnson.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

The sun, a great ball of red against a coppery sky, had long since ceased to shine down upon the narrow street and hung lazily upon the line of the western sky as though reluctant to leave a battlefield where he had been a mighty victor. The pavements and even the buildings gave out their scorching heat like a bake oven from which the fires have been newly drawn.

Here and there some one watered the street with a hose or turned the stream upon the tiny grass plots in front of the houses, but the heat quickly dried up the flood, and the humidity served only to add to the general discomfort.

It was a long street of old fashioned high stoop houses, once the home of fashion. Latterly society had been driven out by the resistless march of the city's progress, and the district was given over to the boarding house mistresses until such time as the needs of the growing city should require the space for factories.

Still retaining somewhat of its old fashioned dignity, the street was becoming shabby genteel. Here and there a brownstone front had been replaced by a brick tenement masquerading as a flathouse, and here and there the squalor of the poor became apparent. Already the street marked the extreme edge of the "residential district," as the boarding house mistress loved to term it, and its chief recommendation was the fact that the boarders could reach their places of employment by walking and so save the tedious cars and the 60 cents car fare that represented an important item in their weekly expenditure.

The boarders thronged the high stoops, gasping in the hot air, not daring to seek their rooms until the heat should abate a little. At Mrs. Marcy's Dudley Thearle shared the top step with Maude Ryerson. Ever since he had come to Marcy's, two weeks before, he had sought a place beside Maude until the other boarders had come to regard the top step as the joint property of the two.

Presently they would make jests on the oddly assorted pair and Thearle's love affair would share, with the weakness of the coffee and the strength of the butter, the humorous attention of the other boarders. The coffee was not weak and the butter rather better than the average, but tradition is mighty and has decreed that these jokes shall endure while boarding houses exist. Generally, too, there is some mismated pair, lost in their own happiness, to offer a third butt of ridicule.

And surely never was there such an oddly assorted pair. Thearle still wore the sunburn and ruddy coloring which proclaimed him a product of field and farm. The fortnight which had passed since he had taken a position offered him by one of last summer's boarders at the farm had not faded the flush of health, nor had the city's burdens bent the strong shoulders.

Miss Ryerson was a commercial nun, wedded to the work which took her youth and beauty and gave naught in return save the pittance which permitted a mere existence with none of the pleasures that are the heritage of youth. She was only twenty-one, but she looked thirty, for since her sixteenth birthday she had been working. Part of that time she had been the support of a younger sister, and the story of privations endured for her sister's sake was written large on the colorless skin and in the weary eyes and bent carriage.

Yet to Thearle she seemed beautiful, for she represented knowledge—knowledge of ways and manners that were strange and new to him—and he worshiped dumbly if not from afar.

Her greatest charm he found in the fact that she did not laugh at his blunders, as the others did. She seemed to him some Lady Gracious, a woman vastly different from all others, a woman most greatly to be desired.

As they sat there in silence, unwilling to make even the exertion that conversation demanded, there came the shouts of children, the complaining grind of heavy motor cars, and presently there rolled past a line of delivery trucks loaded with children as cargo.

"It's the city fresh air fund," explained the girl in answer to Thearle's inquiring glance. "The real fund sends the children to the country. This is an idea of the Evening Spark. The parks are too far for the little feet to walk, and car fare is not for the children of the tenements. The merchants lend their trucks in the evenings, and the children are taken out to the park to run on the grass and get a breath of fresh air. It is a wonderful charity."

"I wish some one would start a fresh air fund for people like me," mused Thearle. "I don't mean just that sort, of course, but I sit here on the steps because there seems to be nothing else to do."

"You could go to the park," suggested the girl. "That car on the corner goes straight out past the park into the country. It's a lovely ride, but it costs another nickel once you are past the park."

"But what good is that to me?" demanded Thearle. "I don't know my way around yet. Why can't an accommodating guide come and get us?"

"You are supposed to be able to make acquaintances and arrange picnics," reminded the girl. "You have the people at the store and at your boarding house."

"Will you come?" demanded Thearle, roused to interest. "I didn't suppose that you'd care."

"Gladly," was the smiling response, while the tired eyes lighted with pleasure. "I'll go for my hat."

In ten minutes they were speeding toward the suburbs, exchanging the narrow, ill smelling streets for the broader avenues, past the park, with its soft greens, into the open country, with now and then a suburban tract that in time would be absorbed into the city proper.

And so they came at last to the real fields, free from the advertising boards of real estate firms and patent medicines. Cornstalks cut the velvet dusk with faint green swords of light, and the smell of clover and buckwheat and the fragrant odor of apples fell gratefully upon nostrils long assailed by musty city streets.

The tense rigidity of the girl's pose relaxed. She settled back more comfortably against the seat. She no longer fought with the breeze in its struggles to destroy the prim severity of her hair, which now began to curl in loving tendrils about her low white brow.

"It's like a little visit to heaven," she breathed softly. "It is perfect out here."

"You should see my home," he answered. "It's right on the lake. The meadows slope down to the water, and just along the beach there's a little growth of young pines. I tell you it's fine in the summer to lie on the pine needles and watch the water. Then you go in and get a drink of milk and go to bed. We sleep under blankets there. It never gets so hot that we can't sleep.

"Back of the house the farms go clear over to the purple mountains, miles and miles away. There aren't any theaters or picture shows, but you don't need 'em when you have a horse and a boat."

"It must be lovely," cried the girl. "There's a little lake just off the line here. Some of the girls went there for a picnic once."

"Let's go and see it," suggested Thearle as the car came to a stop.

The girl sprang from the car and led the way down the dusty road to the trolley park, her eyes shining with delight. As the scene burst upon them in a blaze of light she gave a little cry of pleasure and paused that he might enjoy the scene.

Thearle laid his hand upon hers as they leaned against the top rail of the fence.

"It's pretty," he conceded, "but it's a city lake. My lake is wide and long and deep. It hasn't any electric lights, but there's the moon, which is better. You couldn't see the moon here for the lights. We don't have lights on the trees either. It's all soft and cool and dark and still. It's real country."

"I'm sorry," said the girl gently. "I thought that you would like it. Shall we go back?"

"I do like it," explained Thearle. "It's pretty—for the city. The lights are like jewels, but don't you see—it isn't real. You've shown me your lake, and it's like everything else in town—artificial. Won't you come with me and see the life that's real?"

"I couldn't! Think of the scandal!" she cried, shocked at the idea.

"Not if we were married," he explained. "And we'll live there always, except when we come to the city to see what we have escaped. We've known each other only two weeks, little girl, but you can trust me, can't you?"

For answer she placed her hand in his.

"You asked me to be your fresh air fund," she said, with a happy little laugh, "but, after all, you're the fresh air fund."

Religious Partnerships

Two men formed a partnership for the prosecution of evangelistic work in Manhattan and Brooklyn. At the end of two months they separated, and each proceeded to reform the world in accordance with his own theories.

"I could have told you in the beginning," said an experienced church worker to one of the men, "that it was useless to form a partnership with anybody, but it seemed best to let you learn the futility of the plan for yourself. Of all partnerships that men can enter into the religious combination is usually most short lived. Earnest laborers in that field are particularly deep set in their convictions and are likely to resent advice. I have tried several such partnerships myself, and I have seen others try them, but none of the deals lasted long. Mr. Moody and Mr. Sankey traveled together for a good many years, but with that exception most persons who combine to conduct a religious campaign, whether preachers or singers or both, soon become dissatisfied with each other's tactics and conclude that they can accomplish more by going it alone."—New York Times.

Jenny Lind and Goldschmidt.

When Jenny Lind first sang in Leipsic she appeared at a Gwandhaus concert under Mendelssohn's direction. Naturally there was a great demand for tickets, despite the fact that the prices were raised. It was therefore decided that the students of the conservatorium must waive their usual right to free admission to these concerts. But the students objected with vigor. They were as anxious as anybody to hear the "Swedish nightingale." A protest was made, and young Otto Goldschmidt, aged sixteen, was the student deputed by the others to interview the authorities. In the end he won the day. He little thought then that in half a dozen years he would be equally successful in winning the singer herself.

GAY TIMES FOR PHILADELPHIA.

Great Plans For Celebration of Founders' Week.

DECORATIONS TO BE LAVISH.

Military and Civic Parades, Historical and Dramatic Pageants, Conventions and Sports to Mark Two Hundred and Twenty-fifth Anniversary of the City's Founding.

All of the plans for Philadelphia's great celebration to commemorate the two hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of that city are now complete, and the week of the festivities, Oct. 4-10, will witness the greatest municipal celebration ever attempted in any American city. It will be a week of parades, fifteen having been provided for; the presentation to the American public of the first historical pageant ever attempted in America, a parade which it will cost $50,000 to equip; a week of conventions, of which there will be twenty; a week of field pageantry, similar to the great pageants given in London and continental Europe and more recently in Quebec; a week of exhibitions, historical, scientific and industrial; a week of naval displays in the Delaware river, in which twenty United States and foreign battleships and cruisers will participate, and many other features which have been arranged to attract the attention of people not only of Philadelphia, but of the United States.

From the beginning of the celebration at sunrise on Sunday morning, Oct. 4, when the bell of Independence hall, together with all the church chimes in the city, formally opens the celebration, to the closing of the celebration on the Saturday night following, Philadelphia will not witness an idle moment, says the New York Post. On Monday, Oct. 5, there will be a mobilization and parade of 30,000 United States soldiers, sailors and marines, with the entire national guard of Pennsylvania and representatives from all the thirteen original colonies, sailors and marines from the foreign war vessels and numerous other military bodies. In the evening of that day there will be a celebration in the Academy of Music, at which the president of the United States and government officials, the governors of all the states and the mayors of all the leading cities, together with the representatives of foreign governments, who have been invited, are expected to be present.

Tuesday, Oct. 6, will witness what will probably be the most noted gatherings of Germans ever assembled. This feature of the programme will occupy the entire morning and will commemorate the two hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of Germantown by Francis Daniel Pastorius, and representatives from all the states will take part. A parade of the German societies of Philadelphia and Pennsylvania, numbering more than 15,000 people, will take place, and following it the cornerstone of a great monument, part of the cost of which will be defrayed by the United States government, will be laid. At 1 o'clock in the afternoon there will be a great parade of the police and fire departments, showing their evolution from earliest times. In the same parade there will participate the state police of Pennsylvania, details from departments of other leading cities and the volunteer firemen of Philadelphia and Pennsylvania. In the evening the Germans will hold a celebration in the Academy of Music, and at the same time there will be a great assemblage of clergymen of all denominations in the Friends' Meeting House to discuss William Penn as a statesman and first champion of religious liberty.

On Wednesday, Oct. 7, will come the Industrial parade. It will show the birth and development of all of Philadelphia's industries. The feature of this parade will be the evolution of every industry from the crudest and earliest form of the seventeenth century up to the processes of the present day. All advertising will be eliminated. In the evening of this day there will be a parade of labor organizations of Philadelphia.

Thursday, Oct. 8, will be known as school children's and naval day. In the morning 150,000 children will gather for a special service in Independence square. In the afternoon there will be a review of the war vessels in the Delaware, followed by a parade of 500 river craft, steaming up and down the river. In the evening there will be three fireworks displays on the Delaware, opposite the city front. Also in the evening there will be a parade of 15,000 uniformed members of the Order of Red Men, with historical floats. On the morning of this day there will be a medical convention in the Academy of Music, at which there will be present representatives of all the states and foreign countries.

Friday, Oct. 9, will witness the first historical pageant ever given in the United States. It will be descriptive of the history of Philadelphia from the time of the first Swedish and Dutch settlements to the present time. About forty costly floats and 5,000 characters in costume will be shown in the demonstration. Not only will it be the first of its kind presented in any American city, but will be on a much larger scale than any ever produced in England or continental Europe. At 8 o'clock in the evening the Patriotic Order of Sons of America, with numerous historical floats, will give a big parade. On the morning of this day the Italians of Philadelphia will present to the city a monument erected to the memory of Verdi and will give a street parade.

Saturday, Oct. 10, has been devoted to athletics and Knights Templar exercises. In the morning there will be athletic sports, international automobile races, a national regatta on the Schuylkill river, special horse races and other sports. In the afternoon the Knights Templars of Pennsylvania will parade and then proceed to Fairmount park, where they will hold field exercises. At 11 o'clock in the evening the Knights Templars will return to the city hall and there bring to a close the great celebration by extinguishing the lights of the city hall.

On the six evenings of the week there will be a magnificent drama or pageant on Franklin field, University of Pennsylvania, which will show the history of Philadelphia acted. Plans for this drama, which will be known as "Philadelphia," have been in the course of preparation for five months, and it will show in minute detail the history and growth of the city. It will be presented in four acts. The first will show Philadelphia from the time of the settlement by the Indians, the Dutch and the Swedes to the arrival of William Penn and the laying out of the city. About ten scenes will be necessary to portray this. The second act will show the colonial and Revolutionary periods, and about fourteen scenes will be necessary to fully portray the history of those times. In these various scenes will be shown the part Franklin took in the early Revolutionary arrangements, Washington taking command of the patriots, the occupation of Philadelphia by the British, the work of the Continental congress and terminating with the meeting of congress on July 4, 1776, when the Declaration of Independence was agreed to. The third act will portray all the leading events of the nineteenth century, and the fourth and last act will show for the first time the part Philadelphia took with the United States and the several state troops in the close of the Spanish-American war.

Fully 1,000 characters and 200 musicians have been engaged for this great performance, and it is safe to say that between 25,000 and 30,000 people will witness it every night. The entire field will be used for the production, while on three stages will be various tableaux depicting leading events of each period. A number of grand opera stars and numerous societies will participate in all the performances.

Philadelphia will be lavishly decorated for the great celebration, and on the city hall, the largest municipal building in the world, will be the most extensive illuminations ever attempted on any single building. No less than 300,000 incandescent lights, forming set figures, etc., will be used in this one piece of decoration. All the leading stores, manufacturing plants and buildings of the city will be decorated for the week.

THEATRICAL EXPOSITION.

Whole Field of Music and the Drama to Be Exploited.

The Italian ambassador at Washington has furnished a copy of the announcement of the International Theatrical exposition to be held at Milan in 1913 in honor of the first centennial of the birth of Giuseppe Verdi, the composer:

The exposition will be divided into three sections—the theater, playhouses and productions; music, composition and interpretation; artists and theatrical literature, relics, biographies, manuscripts, etc.

The theater section will include reproduction of ancient, mediaeval and modern playhouses or theaters; ancient, mediaeval and modern productions or plays, a special division being devoted to moving picture apparatus, heating, illuminating, etc.

The music section will include ancient and modern instruments and accessories, writings of the different periods or epochs among the different races and nationalities.

The third section, which will be devoted to performances and theatrical literature, will include all that which pertains to the performers, to their work and to their memory, such as photographs, autographs, reproductions of monuments. Divisions will be devoted to sacred music, national hymns, patriotic song, war song and folk song.

A Costly Wall.

A wall which it is estimated will cost nearly a million sterling is in course of construction by the British admiralty at Spithead. Night attacks on the harbor by torpedo craft have shown that it is possible for these insidious vessels of war to creep unobserved along the shore, and the object of the wall is to divert all navigation through one recognized channel, which can easily be covered by the searchlights. The wall will consist of great blocks of concrete, each weighing sixty tons, which are being placed at intervals of a few yards along the shallows to the fort.

Through the Azure Deeps of Air.

Oh, bumblebee, careening swift
To gather honey sweet,
You needn't wear such sassy airs.
We, too, can do the feat.

Oh, lark, uprising in the morn
At heaven's gate to sing,
You needn't be stuck up. We, too,
Can warble on the wing.

Oh, hawk, descending in your flight,
To pounce upon your prey,
You needn't think yourself great shakes.
We, too, have found the way.

Oh, eagle, gazing on the sun
With proud, unblinking eye,
You won't be monarch very long.
We, too, know how to fly.

—McLandburgh Wilson in New York Sun.

THE Young Men's Christian Association OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST S. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams Street, Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

TWO FROM PITTSBURG

The New Yorks Make Another Long Stride Toward the Pennant

The pennant hopes of the New York National League club took on a tint undeniably roseate as the result of its work on the diamond yesterday. There was nothing indecisive about the results of its clash with Pittsburg at New York, and as a consequence of New York's double victory and Pittsburg's corresponding two-time defeat a further gap has been opened between the leaders and their near rivals. Chicago has now a clear title to second place, despite its defeat by Philadelphia, the tie being broken by Pittsburg's double defeat. The leaders, however, still have two more games with Pittsburg and then a series with Chicago, and will be forced to keep continually on the keenest edge to hold their advantage. The standing of the leaders is as follows:

| | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| New York | 87 | 46 | .654 |
| Chicago | 85 | 53 | .616 |
| Pittsburg | 85 | 54 | .612 |

New York, 7; Pittsburg, 0. Mathewson and Bresnahan; Maddox, Brandon and Gibson. New York, 12; Pittsburg, 7. Wiltse, McGinnity, Bresnahan and Needham; Camnitz, Leever, Vail and Gibson.

Philadelphia, 2; Chicago, 1. McQuillin and Jacklitsch; Overall and Kling.

Cincinnati, 13; Boston, 6. Rowen, Dubec and McLean; Dorner, Mattern, Lindaman and Smith.

St. Louis, 4; Brooklyn, 2. Lush and Morris. Rucker and Dunn. Brooklyn, 3; St. Louis, 0. Bell and Farmer; Sallee and Moran.

American League

In the American League, Detroit lost ground in being beaten by the New York tail-enders, while Cleveland, Chicago and St. Louis were winning. The last named club worked up close to Chicago by capturing two games from Philadelphia. The standing:

| | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| Detroit | 78 | 57 | .578 |
| Cleveland | 79 | 60 | .568 |
| Chicago | 77 | 61 | .558 |
| St. Louis | 75 | 61 | .551 |

New York, 5; Detroit, 1. Chesbro and Blair; Winter, Willett, Payne and Schmidt.

Cleveland, 2; Boston, 1. Rhoades and Bemis; Arellanes and Donohue.

Chicago, 1; Washington, 0. Walsh, Shaw and Sullivan; Johnson and Street.

St. Louis, 2; Philadelphia, 1. Powell and Smith; Flater and Powers. St. Louis, 5; Philadelphia, 4. Dineen and Spencer; Coombs and Lapp.

New England League

Lowell, 6; Haverhill, 4. Warner and Lemieux; Fullerton and Perkins.

New Bedford, 4; Lynn, 1. Conley, Murray and Monohan; Yerkes and Foster.

Worcester, 5; Fall River, 0. Leverenz and Lavigne; Wormwood and Toomey.

Fall River, 3; Worcester, 2. White and Toomey; Blackburn and Lavigne.

Lawrence, 6; Brockton, 1. Maybohm and Kelley. Barnes and Waters.

Elephant Runs Amuck

New York, Sept. 19.—Frightened by pumas, an elephant ran away in the Bronx zoo, dashed in and out of the reptile house, forced women to the sides of the building close to the reptile tanks to escape being crushed to death, tore down fences and shrubbery, and finally dashed back into the snakes' home, from which she refused to be removed. Fearing the elephant would smash in the glass of the reptile cages and set at liberty the many deadly reptiles, if force were used to eject her, the elephant, not yet fully over her panic, was chained heavily and permitted to remain there all night. Keepers were on guard as a precaution against the big beast possibly freeing herself and creating more havoc during the night.

Killed Sweetheart and Self

Alpena, Mich., Sept. 19.—A coroner's jury found a verdict of murder and suicide in the case of George Bradbury, 19, and Norah Priest, 18, who were found yesterday on a country road three miles from Alpena, shot through the heart. The young couple had been engaged and it is understood that the girl had broken off the engagement. Bradbury had evidently shot the girl through the head and again through the heart, then sending a bullet through his own heart.

Trying to Get Back Son

Hartford, Sept. 19.—Habeas corpus proceedings were brought in the court of common pleas by C. G. Sayre of Anderson, S. C., for the recovery of his 6-year-old boy, whom he claims is illegally held by the child's grandparents in East Hartford. The writ was quashed, on the ground that the court was not one of competent jurisdiction. The parents of the boy have been separated for some time.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Mrs. Margaret Bradford, a widow of Mobile, Ala., suffering mental derangement, saturated her bed with oil and then set fire to it, lying in bed to await cremation. The pain became so intense that she sprang up and ran through the streets screaming, her clothing ablaze. The woman is probably fatally burned.

Charleton R. Burnett of New York has been mysteriously missing from his hotel at Paris since Sept. 11.

Mrs. Johanna E. Callahan, aged 56, was fatally burned at her home at Boston. She attempted to light the gas with a flaming piece of paper and set fire to her clothes.

The will of the late Giovanni P. Morosini distributes the entire fortune of the former banker and art collector among his five children. No provision is made for bequests to charitable or public institutions.

BETTER THAN SPANKING.

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

The regular meeting of the Hospital Aid Association will be held Thursday, Sept. 24th, at 3 o'clock at the Quincy Women's clubhouse, Goffe street.

All parents desiring to enter their children in the Wollaston Free Kindergarten, should present them at the kindergarten, 15 Lincoln avenue, Monday, Sept. 21, at 9 o'clock.

Inspector Alfred W. Goodhue of the police department has been appointed local agent of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to animals, succeeding N. B. Furnald who voluntarily retires after many years of active service.

At the national convention of Red Men held at Bridgeport, Conn., on Wednesday, the Massachusetts membership in tribes was reported to be 14,652 and councils 3,501 a gain of 849 and 353 respectively. William Provin of Westfield was re-elected great innkeeper of wampum.

Thirty-eight members of the Lynn Historical society were in Quincy Thursday on a pilgrimage. They visited the birthplaces of the Presidents Adams, the First church and the Dorothy Q house. There were also four visitors from Ohio the same day at the birthplaces of the Presidents, and all much interested.

Juniors Entertained.

On Tuesday the Junior Endeavorers of Bethany church, to the number of about one hundred, held an "open-air meeting" on the beautiful lawns of Mrs. Theophilus King's home on Adams street. The children gathered immediately after the dismission of the schools and spent the next two hours in games which kept them all most happy and active. Refreshments consisting of rolls, milk, cake and ice cream were bounteously provided. Then came more games ending in a "peanut scramble," three cheers for the various members of the King family and a "follow your leader" procession homeward. Dr. and Mrs. Hardy, Carl R. Hayward, Miss F. F. French, Miss Crane and others were present from the workers in the church. It was a most enjoyable occasion for all.

Itch cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Never fails. Sold by C. D. Harlow & Co., Druggists.

Gypsy Moth Men Were Frauds

Albert Grass and Frank M. Fogg were arrested by Officer Larkin Friday for obtaining money by false pretenses from Atlantic residents.

When Officer Larkin returned from his vacation on Wednesday he was notified that two men were going about from place to place under the guise of agents for the Gypsy Moth Commission. It is alleged that the men would call at houses and tell the ladies who answered their knock that they were representatives of the State. They then claimed that unless the parties had their trees treated the house would be quarantined so that they could not leave it. They were prepared to treat the trees, the price being $1. Failing to get $1 they would take anything they could get even as low as twenty-five cents. They found several victims and the treatment given the trees is said to be nothing but lamp black.

The men were in court and sentenced to three months in the house of correction. It is alleged that these same men are wanted in Dorchester.

Their Objections Faded Away

The mothers' meeting held at the Washington school yesterday afternoon was very well attended, and proved to be exceedingly interesting. The mothers who had been under the impression that this half-time system was a scheme to make the work easier for the teachers, listened to Supt. Parlin, while he elucidated his reasons in favor of the half-time system. Mr. Parlin said that it was too much for a child, five years old to come to school, and sit for five hours in a little chair, when they should be out in the air exercising their bodies; and that although the children were put on half-time on account of the lack of room, still it was a great benefit to the children also. In fact Mr. Parlin is strongly contemplating putting the children of the second grade on half-time, not only at the Point, but in other parts of the city as well. The words of Mr. Parlin carried away the objections of the mothers, and after the meeting they expressed themselves in favor of half-time.

It may be an interesting fact to note, that in New Jersey, the half-time arrangement has been in vogue for the past five years, not because of the crowded conditions of the schools, but because of the benefits which experience shows can be derived from the system.

$100 REWARD, $100.
The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The Everett In a Hurricane

Among the vessels which were out in the recent hurricane, one of the first to limp into port was the big collier Everett, built at Quincy, which docked at South Boston yesterday. Almost immediately after the Everett with a cargo of 7,264 tons of coal, left Baltimore last Monday she struck the bad weather. As she proceeded north the storm grew worse, and increased until it was a veritable hurricane. The wild, rolling sea broke over the decks continually, and the big craft was constantly smothered in foam. Capt. Abbot found it almost impossible to keep the course, and all the officers declare it was the worst storm they ever encountered at this time of the year. The Everett was 24 hours late making her berth, and weathered the storm nobly.

NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.

On and after September 16, we have decided

TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE

as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods

AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills over due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every day. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and take them with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

The wooden schooner William F. Green of Boston has been purchased by the Electric Boat Company of Quincy and will at once be converted into a floating machine shop to be used during the trials of their submarine torpedo boats. Accommodations will be fitted for berthing and messing the machinists and the crews of the submarines during manoeuvres. The seven submarine torpedo boats now under construction for the Navy department of the United States will begin their speed trials and endurance tests sometime in the early summer of the coming year.

M. M. Cannon, C. E., formerly of this city, but now of Charleston, S. C., called at the Shipyard a few days ago to renew acquaintances.

Walter E. Piper, republican candidate for representative, was a visitor at the shipyard on Wednesday as a guest of George H. Corliss.

A large number of high grade steel shafts are being forged and rough machined for the General Electric Company.

Joseph M. Larkin, piece work accountant in the A department is spending an eight-day vacation at the summer home of Mr. Ward at Westboro.

Repairs to piles and facing timbers are being made to the long concrete wharf.

George Kline, of the D department, has returned to his duties after spending an enjoyable vacation at his home in New York.

Mr. Whip, of the annealing plant has just returned from his home in Maine where he has been attending the wedding of one of his sisters.

The steamer Tudor Prince, recently at these works, while veering to avoid colliding with a tug when outward bound from New York for Hong Kong with a cargo of general merchandise and two Curtis marine steam eurbines aboard, crashed into and tore away about 20 feet of the public pier at the foot of Bayridge avenue, Brooklyn. The vessel proceeded on her way uninjured.

QUINCY'S BIGGEST

Loss By the Wollaston Fire The Largest Of the Year

One of the most stubborn fires that the department has had to contend with this year was that of Sunday night, when the inside of the residence of Aaron H. Gould, at 161 Grand View avenue, Wollaston, was badly gutted above the first floor.

The alarm for the fire was sounded from Box 53 at 10.20, but the Central station apparatus was on its way to the scene before that time, having been summoned on a telephone call. The fire probably started from an open fire place on the second floor and must have been burning some time before it was discovered.

Mr. and Mrs. Gould are out of town and the children who were at home built a roaring fire in the open fire place. A strong odor of burning wood was detected as early as 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and a search was made for fire but none was located.

Earlier in the evening, the odor of burning wood becoming stronger, another search was made, and a little fire was discovered. At first the children at home thought they had the fire out, but later finding that they had not, a telephone call was sent to the fire station for help.

During all this time the fire had been gaining headway, and when the department arrived the firemen found they had a bad fire to contend with. The house is a peculiarly constructed one, as there are a number of wells behind the ceilings. These furnished excellent conducts for the flames, with the result that the fire had worked its way all around the back of the walls and beneath the floors.

When the department arrived the fire had broken through in a number of places, and it looked as though the whole house was doomed.

It was a long up hill fight for the firemen. At times it would seem that the fire was all out, but a few minutes later it would break through the walls in another place, and it was a case of hide and seek between the firemen and the fire.

The firemen persevered, however, and at last became masters, but not before the inside of the house above the first floor was badly gutted. No flames reached through to the lower floor, although the water had knocked the plastering off the ceiling in places.

Some of the children had already retired when the fire broke out, and they escaped with little more than their night garments. Had it not been for the fact that Harold Thomas was calling upon the family, they would all have been in bed.

When at last they discovered the house to be on fire they quickly pulled down the mantle and brought into use the lawn hose. Finding their efforts unsuccessful, a telephone call was sent to the fire station for aid. Some of the furniture was taken out, and a pet dog and cat was saved. One cat, however, was found drowned in the cellar.

Mr. and Mrs. Gould were at Jackson, N. H., and they were immediately notified by telephone and will arrive home today.

The loss was the largest of any fire this year, Chief Williams placing the total loss at $4,000, of which $3,000 is to the house and $1,000 to the contents.

On the Trail.

Sunday afternoon a large delegation of Wollaston Red Men visited the Fore River works, and under the guidance of Brothers Duggan and Leech, a most interesting time was had. A walking club has been organized among the members for the purpose of visiting interesting places within a radius of ten miles. The club promises to have a large membership, so the people of Quincy and vicinity may know if they see a party of enthusiastic pedestrians trailing along, that they are the Red Men's walking club.

The Loss Today At a Disastrous Conflagration In Chelsea

Chelsea which was devastated by a conflagration last April, was visited again by fire this morning and before it was under control it had wiped out $1,500,000 of property.

The fire started at 8 o'clock this morning in the box manufactory of Atwood & McManus and the 250 employes had to hurry to get out.

A high wind prevailed at the time, and the flames quickly spread to an adjoining building, and a large lumber yard. Alarm after alarm was sounded, summoning all of Chelsea's fighting force. Aid was also sent from Boston, Charlestown, Medford, Malden, Melrose, Stoneham, Somerville and Everett.

At 9.30 the peril was increased by two other distinct fires started in the residential district. At that time the box factory of Atwood & McManus, Lee Bros. shoe factory, and Pope & Cottle's lumber yard were burning.

The flames were also wafted to the new Boston & Albany freight yard, where there were 5,000 freight cars and many of these were soon on fire.

The fire covered an area of thirteen acres, bounded by Sixth and Vale streets, Everett avenue, and the Boston & Maine tracks.

When word of the fire was received in Quincy Chief Williams ordered the steamer made ready to respond and promptly proffered his services to the Chelsea commission. At 11 o'clock he received word thanking him for profered help, and saying that although still burning the fire was under control.

Resignation of Wollaston Pastor

Rev. Edmund D. Webber, pastor of the Wolaston Baptist church, read his letter of resignation on Sunday, to take effect Oct. 18. Rev. M. Webber resigns his pastorate in Quincy to accept a call to Wolfville, N. S. Rev. Mr. Webber has been the pastor of the Wollaston church for six years and has been very succesful in his work in Quincy.

Won at Whist.

DEAD HOUSES OVERCROWDED

Terrible Ravages of Asiatic Cholera In St. Petersburg

THE CONDITIONS ARE APPALLING

Officials Report 398 Cases and 141 Deaths From Saturday Noon Until Sunday Noon--Belief That Health Authorities Are Holding Reports Down to a Minimum--Disease Is Spreading to the Better Classes

St. Petersburg, Sept. 21.—St. Petersburg is in the grasp of the Asiatic cholera, which already has exceeded in severity and number of deaths the visitation of 1893. The disease is increasing daily at an alarming rate, and unless the authorities show in the future a much greater degree of ability to cope with the situation than they have in the past there is every reason to fear that it will get out of hand.

The government has threatened to apply the provisions of martial law, and this threat has driven the municipality officials to bend all their energies to the campaign of clearing the scourge. The aldermanic council yesterday voted a preliminary sum amounting to $250,000 to enlarge the hospital space, to purchase and distribute disinfectants, the supply of which in St. Petersburg is well nigh exhausted, and to expedite the interment of bodies, which has been notoriously slow. The dead houses are overcrowded and many corpses lie unburied.

The situation, which has always been serious since the very first case was reported, assumes a graver aspect from the appearance yesterday of a very virulent type of the disease, in two cases of which death followed within fifteen minutes of the first symptoms. The official statistics posted show that from Saturday noon until Sunday noon there were 398 cases and 141 deaths.

It is feared that the cholera will make further gains for at least another fortnight, this being figured on the basis of former epidemics. All varieties of Asiatic cholera have now developed here, there being numerous cases of the Algid type, which is accompanied by the greatest sufferings.

Premier Stolypin has sharply reprimanded the municipal officials for the appalling conditions. At Obuchoff hospital, which he visited on Saturday, he found that three bathrooms were doing service for 300 patients. The physicians were powerless to carry out the proper course of treatment, and the mortality at this hospital has been three times of that at other hospitals. Three of the nurses at this institution were stricken with the disease yesterday, making a total of nine nurses now under treatment for cholera.

Practically nothing has been done up to the present to put the city's market places in a sanitary condition. They are places of indescribable filth, with the atmosphere reeking with foul odors. One hundred carloads of fruit have been auctioned off and forwarded to Warsaw, Vilna and other towns, which the cholera has not invaded, and the possibility of infection from this source is very great.

As a city St. Petersburg is woefully unsanitary and the dread disease finds the conditions most suitable for its propagation. It first made its appearance among the poor people herded in wretched tenements, but it is now spreading to the better classes and it has broken out in the barracks among the troops.

The authorities had every warning of the coming of the disease, and their utter inability to take proper precautions to prevent its spread has brought out a storm of indignant criticism. As an example of the inefficiency and negligence displayed, it is sufficient to cite that many cholera cases have been conveyed to the hospitals in the city cabs, which are very numerous in St. Petersburg, after which these same cabs were permitted, without disinfection, to return to their work on the streets.

The cholera was first reported this year about the end of July. It was of a virulent type and the percentage of mortality was high. The disease spread rapidly into the provinces along the Volga. By the end of August there was an average of 1200 cases reported each week, with a mortality of upwards of 50 percent.

On Aug. 14 it was announced that St. Petersburg was threatened with the scourge, and on Sept. 8 it was definitely established that the disease was in the capital. On Sept. 11 there were fifty-eight cases here and the disease was prevalent in all quarters of the city. The record of cases and deaths from that date until the present showed alarming increase, and it is the general belief here that the health authorities, in a desire to prevent the people from becoming panic-stricken, are holding their official reports down to a minimum.

Advices from all parts of Russia show that the alarm is very general and that there is good reason for it.

Germany has become alarmed over the spread of the disease, and the German authorities have taken precautions to prevent its crossing the frontier. Austria has done the same thing. Sweden and other nearby countries have declared a quarantine against Russia, and France is ready to meet any exigency that may arise.

LINEUP FOR THE BALLOTS

Three-Cornered Contest the Feature of Bay State Primaries

Boston, Sept. 21.—Tomorrow will be an eventful day to more than one politician, as the primaries for state, county and councillor offices will be held and upon the decision of the electorate will depend in a large measure future political happenings in the city and state.

The biggest fight on the calendar is that between Speaker Cole of the house, ex-Speaker Frothingham and Robert Luce, the statesman from Somerville. Thus the contest for delegates to the Republican state convention to nominate the candidate for lieutenant governor holds the centre of the stage.

The Luce managers are claiming 776 delegates in the state and 135 in Boston.

"I shall have between 500 and 550 delegates in places where there are no contests. I am confident of carrying the lists reppresenting as many more in the contests," said Cole's manager.

The Frothingham leaders are giving no detailed figures, but say that they will carry Boston and have more than the number of delegates required to place their candidate in nomination.

While other primaries are to be held later, it is well understood that the candidate for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor who polls the biggest vote in Boston will get the nomination, although there are some of the Republican prophets who say that the next Republican convention will have "fireworks" galore.

FARMERS HURT BY LONG DROUTH

All New England Is Suffering From a Lack of Rain

Boston, Sept. 21.—Anxiety is filling the heart of the New England farmer, for a drouth, which is pronounced to be one of the severest, long-continued, dry periods in many years, has spread itself over the New England states, causing suffering to people, cattle and crops throughout the country districts.

It was on Aug. 26 that the last general rainfall came to New England, and since then, except for a few short local showers, the drouth has continued unabated. Every effort is being made to keep as much drinking water in the wells as is possible, but in many places the wells are running dry and a very serious state of affairs confronts the farmers.

Grass and vegetation have suffered severely. Water in the lakes has been receding at the rate of one inch a day. Numerous forest fires have started. Many mills have been crippled by the lack of water supply and others have been compelled to shut down for a time entirely.

In many places for two or three feet below the surface there is not a bit of moisture. Potatoes have been dug earlier than is the custom and for this reason are much smaller in size than in previous years. Country water basins have run dry. The wells are low, and in many cases it has been necessary to carry water for household use two miles. Cattle have been suffering for lack of water and the milk supply is becoming limited. There is a shortage of pasture feed, and an absence of green feed and fodder for the cattle.

Battle Against White Plague

Washington, Sept. 21.—For the next three weeks the national capital will be the scene of such a crusade as never before has been witnessed against humanity's worst common foe—the white plague. It will be an educational campaign, world-wide in its scope, the ultimate object of which is to eradicate, if possible, from the ends of the earth a disease which, statistical experts declare, cuts short the lives of from one-tenth to one-eighth of the civilized population. Distinguished foreigners and noted American physicians and scientists and others who have devoted their lives in an effort to solve this problem will actively participate.

Shah's Reply Not Satisfactory

London, Sept. 21.—A dispatch to The Times from Teheran says that the shah has replied to the Anglo-Russian note which was presented to him on Sept. 8 calling his attention to the disturbances in the provinces and the danger entailed to the lives and property of foreigners in Tabriz, and urgently recommending the shah to issue his promised proclamation ordering elections that the assembly might meet in November. The contents of the shah's reply are not disclosed, but it is understood that his answer is not satisfactory.

In Memory of Sankey

New York, Sept. 21.—An impressive memorial song service in honor of Ira D. Sankey, the evangelist singer, who died Aug. 13 last, took place last night in the Presbyterian church of the Puritans. Many of the late evangelist's favorite songs were sung. Rev. Dr. Young, pastor of the church, in the course of his sermon, said that the last words uttered by Sankey as he was dying were to quote the title of the hymn "Some Day the Silver Cord Will Break." The singing of this hymn concluded the service.

Prince Weds Rich Widow

Paris, Sept. 21.—The report is published here that Prince Miguel of Braganza, the eldest son of Dom Miguel, the pretender to the throne of Portugal, was recently secretly married to Mrs. Samuel S. Chauncey, a rich American widow.

FOREST FIRES CONQUERED

Danger In Maine Now Believed to Have Passed

Augusta, Me., Sept. 21.—The men of Maine, having fought a good fight against the state's greatest enemy, the forest fire, and come off victorious, ask only for rain to complete the work they have so ably carried on the past week.

In almost every section where the conflagration has roared night and day for almost a week the report is that the flames are under control. The only exception is about Ellsworth, where the fire burned fiercely all Sunday, yet was held in check to the extent that no dwellings were consumed and the danger turned from the village.

In the Androscoggin valley the fire has been practically extinguished, and Greenfield, which was Saturday night entirely surrounded by fire, has been preserved through the strenuous efforts of wo companies of firemen from Old Town. The men worked through the night and battled so successfully with the flames that not a building was lost.

Except a high wind arises to fan into fury the smouldering embers, it is believed the danger is now past, although in view of their experience of the past week none will rest fully content until a heavy rain has drenched the woods and fields.

CONSTABLE GETS THRUST FROM DIRK

His Assailant Killed by a Man Previously Assaulted

Plymouth, Mass., Sept. 21.—In resisting arrest on a charge of assault, John Monte, a Cape Verde islander, who has been employed as a cranberry picker, was shot and killed at South Carver by Arthur L. Atwood, who was assisting Constable James B. Vaughan. The latter, who is 60 years old, is in a critical condition from the dirk wound in the chest and Atwood is also suffering from several wounds caused by Monte's knife.

Monte was 50 years old and was employed at the cranberry bog of Dexter Atwood in South Carver. He was discharged on Saturday by the foreman, Arthur L. Atwood, and afterwards attempted to assault the foreman with a dirk. A warrant for Monte's arrest was sworn out and yesterday Vaughan took the warrant and, accompanied by Foreman Atwood, went to Monte's house to arrest him. Monte resisted and in the scuffle both the constable and Atwood were stabbed, the constable receiving a dangerous wound between the ribs, penetrating the chest cavity. The constable is said to have ordered Atwood to shoot, whereupon the latter seized the constable's revolver and fired several shots, one of them entering Monte's temple and killing him instantly.

$5,000,000 Fire In Paris

Paris, Sept. 21.—Fire broke out last night in the Central Telephone building and spread with such rapidity that the telephone employes were forced to fly hastily to the streets. The entire building was soon in flames and this, together with the postoffice, was totally destroyed. The loss is estimated at $5,000,000, but a much greater loss is likely to be involved through the complete interruption of all telephonic communication in the centre of Paris, as well as communication with the provinces and abroad. The origin of the fire is a mystery. A big fire in a department store in the Faubourg-St. Denis yesterday did damage to the extent of $800,000.

Pope Meets American Jackies

Rome, Sept. 21.—The pope yesterday received an audience of seventy sailors from the American battleships Maine and Alabama, which are now at Naples. The audience was held in the throne room at the Vatican and the pontiff, who is always interested in sea-going men, expressed pleasure at their smart appearance. Each of the men kissed the pope's ring and received from him a medal. The pope thanked them for their visit and prayed that God would reward them with His grace. He then gave them his apostolic benediction.

Fatalities In Anti-German Riot

Vienna, Sept. 21.—Anti-German demonstrations at Laibach, in which a large body of Slavonians have been taking part for several evenings, culminated last night in an attack upon the police. Finally the police fired a volley, killing two of the rioters and wounding four. They then charged the crowds with drawn sabres and succeeded in putting them to flight.

Consul Wyndham Resigns

Boston, Sept. 21.—Captain William Wyndham, British consul at the port of Boston since March 1, 1904, has tendered his resignation, to take effect Oct. 15. Wyndham, who is 65 years of age, entered upon his career in diplomacy in 1880. No reason is given for his resignation.

Fishermen Had Good Luck

Lunenburg, N. S., Sept. 21.—The Lunenburg Grand Bank fishery season is the best in years, 110 vessels being engaged and the total catch being 138,625 quintals, an increase of 15,000 over last year. The vessels averaged 1256 quintals each.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Tuesday, Sept. 22.
Sun rises—5:32; sets—5:42.
Moon rises—2:18 a. m.
High water—9:15 a. m.; 9:30 p. m.
The weather will be fair and warmer in New England.

CITY OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace Of Two Burial Place Of Two

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grandfather of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

BIRTHPLACES OF PRESIDENTS

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) at Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural momuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. The funeral of John Quincy Adams was held in this church. Beneath the entrance is the Adams tomb, reached by stairways from the vestibule. Near the tomb is the box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams, also the old town hearse. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock cemetery across the street from First church contains many old stones. Among the old graves are those of Henry Adams founder of the Adams family who died Oct. 5, 1646; Rev. William Thompson, 1st pastor over the Braintree church who died Dec. 10, 1666; Rev. Henry Flint who died Oct. 11, 1668; Rev. John Hancock father of the Patriot who died May 7, 1744 and many other notable people.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

WHY TAFT SHOULD WIN

Prosperity Depends on Republican Success.

A RECORD OF ACHIEVEMENT.

Nation Has Grown Rich and Great Under Sound Principles and Wise Policies of Grand Old Party—Democracy's Record Is One of Failure.

Because the principles and policies, the men and measures of the Republican party are essential to the prosperity of all our people and to the welfare of our beloved land the president of the United States and all associated with him in authority, the congress which formulates the laws for our protection and the courts which construe the laws in accordance with the letter and spirit of our constitution should be in sympathy with the purposes of the Republican party, whose administrations have made this mighty nation respected and admired wherever governments are known among men.

The principles of the Republican party are the same as were employed by Washington, Hamilton and their compatriots in the early days of the republic. They were the guides of Marshall and Webster in expounding the nation's organic law. They lighted the pathway of Lincoln and Grant, of McKinley and Dewey and were the beacons of progress for Roosevelt, Taft and their associates in the administrative affairs of the nation.

The strongest argument in favor of continuing the Republican party in power is the record of its achievements contrasted with that of the Democratic party and applying reasonable deductions therefrom to the chief issues before the people at this time.

First.—A revision of the customs tariff to meet changed conditions in trade and industry.

In 1883, 1890 and 1897 the Republican party revised the tariff. In each instance success crowned its labors. In 1897 it gave us the present tariff, and ten years of the most marvelous and universal prosperity the world has ever witnessed was the result. The Democratic party revised the tariff in 1894, and the country suffered industrial and financial disaster, which ended only with the return of the Republican party to power and the re-establishment of the tariff upon adequately protective lines.

Nothing in the language of human experience so eloquently appeals to the confidence of men as the magic word success. The policies of the Republican party have been successful. The wonderful record of American achievement under Republican administrations is a comfort to the hearts and inspiration to the hopes of American freemen.

The Republican party came into power in 1861. It has maintained the policy of protection to home industries, which has been and is now opposed by the Democratic party. The value of our farms in 1860 was less than $8,000,000,000; of our manufacturing plants less than $2,000,000,000. In 1900 our farms were valued at $20,000,000,000; our manufacturing plants in 1905 at $12,000,000,000. The annual value of our farm products increased $3,000,000,000. The addition of 3,000,000 salary and wage earners (in manufacturing plants established under protection) with individual yearly incomes increased from $290 in 1860 to $596 in 1905 contributed to make our home market the best in the world.

Grateful should a people be upon whom despite their opposition blessings unnumbered are bestowed. Eleven southern states of the American Union rejected the policies of the Republican party in 1861 and attempted to set up a government based upon free trade. The plan failed. In 1860 those states had capital invested in manufacturing to the amount of $108,000,000. In 1905 they had invested in manufacturing $1,151,000,000. The increase of investments in manufacturing in those states during five years only ending with 1905 was $475,000,000, or four times the value of all manufacturing plants within their borders when the Republican party arose to power and usefulness in the republic.

Second.—A reorganization of the banking and currency laws to furnish a safe currency for the convenience of our people in their daily exchanges.

The Republican party established the gold standard. Instead of "ruin," predicted by the Democratic party, wages and prices have risen, the former in so much greater ratio that at no time anywhere would a day's labor buy so much of the necessaries and luxuries of life as in the United States today. More than $1,000,000,000 in gold in our treasury is the greatest amount held by any nation. The Republican party gave us safe bank notes and provision for additional currency in emergencies, all "as good as gold." The Democratic party offered free silver coinage as a solution of the money question. Now it advocates United States notes, which it opposed when the Republican party issued such notes as a means of saving the Union.

Third.—The making of laws to insure that rich and powerful corporations shall not take tribute from smaller producers and consumers; that accompanying our increasing wealth production there shall be a check upon waste of our natural resources; that the courts shall be perfect safeguards of our people in the true spirit of liberty restrained by law, which is the cornerstone of our republican institutions.

The Republican party gave to the nation the anti-trust laws for the protection of the people against control of the market places by combinations of capital. It perfected the railway rate law, provided punishment for secret rebating to favored corporations and secured to all shippers equality in rates of transportation. Having given us industries which utilize natural resources in adding to the comforts of life, the Republican party will enact wise laws to prevent waste of those resources. With fidelity to the basic principles of the nation, unmoved by appeals of demagogues or clamor for class legislation, the Republican party will safeguard private rights through the processes of the courts to the end that justice shall remain a shield and protector to every citizen.

The Democratic party opposed the principles and policies of Washington and Hamilton until the decisions of Marshall fixed them securely in the laws and in the hearts and minds of the American people. It opposed the principles of union, for which Lincoln gave his great and gracious soul. It opposed the policies of the Republican party in meeting the issues which grew out of the civil and Spanish-American wars. In the decisions of the courts and in the approval of the people the Republican party has found complete justification.

The policies of the Republican party for dealing with the issues of the present are opposed by the Democratic party, but the plaudits of the people will again testify to the wisdom and patriotism of the Republican party when it shall have solved these problems in government, as surely it will if intrusted with that duty.

Devoted to principles which make for the betterment of our people in their domestic and foreign relations, steadfast in support of policies which have brought prosperity, honor and glory to our country, the Republican party exhibits in its record conclusive proof of ability to administer government in keeping with the best traditions of the republic. For that reason it should be successful in November.

Government ownership? Never.
Government regulation? Yes, with every person and every interest treated alike.

A Bryan Shout.

"Protection is robbery!" shouted the Democratic party. "Cut out all the protection to American workingmen!" shouts Mr. Bryan and enact "a tariff for revenue only." And then he has the monumental gall to turn around and ask the workingmen to contribute to "the cause."—Rochester Post-Express.

TAFT AND CONSTRUCTION or BRYAN AND DESTRUCTION?

Concerning the question of publicity of campaign funds, Mr. Bryan's contention that it is better to make the contributions public before the election seems a sound one. We are not sufficiently convinced, however, that the vote of the mass of Americans are on the auction block to consider this question of great importance.—Philadelphia North American.

There is no American institution that Bryan at some time has not desired to destroy.

Comprehensive Reply to Bryan.

Letter of an Old Time Democrat to His Son.

COMPARES TWO CANDIDATES.

Demonstrated Ability of Mr. Taft Contrasted With the Vacillation of the Democratic Leader — Progressive Conservatism Versus Radicalism.

My Dear Son—You are now of age and about to exercise the right of an American citizen for the first time. Since you appear undecided as to which party to ally yourself with and have asked my advice upon this point, I will impart to you my own feelings in the matter.

I have regarded with increasing alarm the growing radicalism of the Democratic party and have long questioned the wisdom of many of its measures and both the sincerity and ability of certain of its leaders. I have, however, never hesitated until the present election to give it my unqualified support, for, while disliking Mr. Bryan and heartily disapproving a platform devoted to the free and unlimited coinage of silver as opposed to sound money and a gold standard, I nevertheless remembered my party loyalty and voted the Democratic ticket. For the same reason I voted as I had always done in the election of 1900, though less in sympathy with the Democratic platform than ever before and thoroughly convinced that the humanity of the American people would in the long run entirely approve the action of a Republican administration in liberating Cuba and the Philippines from the shackles of Spain, in developing their resources and in governing them wisely and firmly until such a time as they should be enabled to stand upon their own feet.

When in 1904 Mr. Parker received the nomination of my party I entertained lively hopes that we had at last hit upon a man who would unite the conservatism of the old with the progressiveness of a new Democracy. You will perhaps recall how bitterly I was to be disappointed, both in the makeshift policy of the party and in the bloodless character of the man.

After the overwhelming defeat of 1904 I gradually awoke to the fact that I was almost totally out of sympathy with the controlling forces in my party and began to feel something of disgust for the advocates of Populism, bimetallism, imperialism and radicalism. I am now of the opinion that the Democratic party cannot hold its conservatives and its Socialists at the same time. The bonds were bound to break and have done so. Feeling the lack of a leader, thousands of the moderate wing of the Democratic party have flocked to the Republican standard. I have watched whole states become Republican which had always been stanchly Democratic. This will undoubtedly be true of Kentucky and Tennessee, and I should not be surprised to see Georgia and Florida following in their lead.

In looking over the platforms of the two principal parties I have been able to discover so little dissimilarity and hostility in all of the more vital measures that I begin to feel strongly that the ensuing elections will be a question of men rather than of issues and for this reason advise you to scrutinize the characters and careers of the respective candidates with the greatest care.

Both are men of the highest personal character and irreproachable in private and personal qualities. The crucial test is in the showing of their qualifications for public administration of large affairs and in their perception of the true public interest in the issues of the day. Such a test and such a comparison, it seems to me, are greatly in favor of Mr. Taft. He has had large experience in a variety of offices of trust and authority, exhibiting administrative ability of a very high order in every position to which he has been called. His rule in the Philippines and Cuba excited most favorable comment throughout the country. His superb equipment for the presidential office must appeal to the judgment of a large class of more or less independent voters when compared with Mr. Bryan's entire lack of experience as an administrator and his superabundant endowments as a theorist and a manufacturer of phrases. I can never forget that he has been defeated in almost every contest, whether national or local, into which he has ever entered, while the only two issues, the distinct product of his own brain, "sixteen to one silver" and "government ownership of railways," have been forcibly repudiated, the former by the American people in the elections of 1896 and 1900 and the latter by the Democratic party itself. Of the two men I am inclined to regard Mr. Taft as the broader and less sectional and the less inclined to arouse class hostility.

Two years ago I could not have voted the Republican ticket, but should have stayed away from the polls altogether. Recently, however, I have come to consider my duty as an American citizen as paramount to any obligations that I may owe to my party. Though admiring him personally, I really fear Mr. Bryan politically and believe it my duty and for the good of the country to vote for his opponent.

You will ask if I am not afraid to let the Republicans stay longer in power. A decade ago I should have answered "Yes," but when I reflect upon the patriotic administration of Mr. Roosevelt, who has ruled as one of the best and wisest presidents of our entire history, and when I further reflect upon the great strides which we have made in the production of wealth and general prosperity and that under the guidance of the Republican principles the American people have become the richest nation in the world, with wealth today exceeding that of England and all her colonies and that of France and Germany combined, why, then I am forced to say "No." If this great prosperity has come to us under Republican rule we can, I think, then safely trust it in office for four years more.

In consideration of the somewhat questionable filibustering of the Democratic minority in the house of representatives during the past session there were nevertheless many wholesome and progressive laws enacted which will prove of great benefit to the country. A congress has little need to apologize for lack of work accomplished which has passed an emergency currency bill, appointed a national monetary commission, an employers' government liability bill, a widows' pension bill, a child labor law for the District of Columbia, a new statute for the safety of railway engineers and firemen and repealed the unfair statute applying the American coastwise laws to the Philippines.

In a word, my dear boy, much as I regret the necessity, I nevertheless feel it my duty to vote the Republican ticket and sincerely trust that you will upon the outset of your career ally yourself with that party which has done so much for the laboring and agricultural classes in particular and the entire people in general. Affectionately, YOUR FATHER.

Shall the people rule—or Bryan?

They Can't Lose Him.

And Sherman gets his wind,
When Taft gets back in clover
And Kern gets back to Ind.,

EDITORIAL.

The Daily Ledger heartily endorses the editorial of the Traveler, which read; "To those who know the character of the work he has done as a member of the Massachusetts Senate, the announcement by Charles F. Jenney of Hyde Park that he will not be a candidate for the Senate this fall, and in consequence will make no further campaign for its presidency, will be received with regret not only by Republicans, but, regardless of party, by all those who are anxious that the making of laws shall be entrusted to men of high character and intelligence. During his term of office, Mr. Jenney has always proved himself to be broad-minded and tolerant; a close student of proposed legislation and fearless in voting for or against measures as his conscience dictated. He could neither be coaxed by corporations nor cowed by clamorous demagogues, and after having shown his worth to the commonwealth, his voluntary retirement to private life is a distinct loss to the state.

Most of the clergymen of the city took occasion on Sunday, to urge all voters to go to the polls on Tuesday, and vote. The church people should be more interested in good politics than they are.

Please don't! Please don't! Do not send locals or other news to the Daily Ledger without your name accompanies the same. Many annonymous news items go into the waste basket every day.

Yachting Party

Capt. Edgar Emery had quite a party of guests on the Mudjekeewis on Sunday. The party left Quincy Point in the morning and sailed down the harbor as far as Boston light. There was a fine sailing breeze and the sail was a delightful one. Lunch was served on board, the party returning to Quincy Point in the afternoon. The guests on board were: Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Peterson, Misses Doris and Marion Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Browning, Mrs. Emery, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene R. Stone, Miss Mabel Stone, Mrs. Morrow and Chester Mellen.

After Coombs' Scalp.

The Referendum Union of Quincy, at a meeting held Sept. 20, at the residence of the secretary, voted unanmiously to resist with their utmost effort the renomination and election of Redner P. Coombs as Representative to the General Court from the Sixth Norfolk district, compressing Wards Four, Five and Six of this city.

Rally Day.

"Rally Day" was observed Sunday, Sept. 20, at the Washington Street Sunday school, Quincy Point. About 200 were in attendance and Superintendent Charles Sherburne called for the following program:—Processional of Primary and Intermediate departments; song, "Yield not to temptation;" remarks by the superintenent of the adult department; song by the primary department; remarks by John Hendry, supertendent of intermediate department; remarks by Tom Skinner, William Lee and T. B. Pollard; address by the pastor; song by the school. The school has a present enrollment of over 200 and will reach the 250 mark before winter.

Now is the time to think about fall house furnishings. Buyers should bear in mind that the annual fall home furnishing bargain sale is now on at Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

NEW CONTRACTS

The Quincy Shipyard Will Build Two More Destroyers

Secretary Metcalf on Saturday awarded contracts for the construction of the ten torpedo boat destroyers, authorized at the last session of Congress. Two boats go to each of five companies. Among these is the Fore River company of Quincy, which is to build the boats according to plans drawn up by themselves for hull and machinery.

The Cramp company will also build according to their own plans, but the other six boats will be built on governments plans.

The Fore River company will build their boats for $610,000 each, the lowest price of any of the companies. The highest price is on plans drawn up by the government and calls for $665,000 for each boat, the contract going to the New York Shipbuilding company.

These contracts with others will cause the Quincy shipyard to hum all winter.

An official of the Fore River Co. states that the boats are not to be built on the company's designs, but those of the government, and the Fore River Co. designs for the machinery. It is probable that they will be fitted with oil-burning machinery, being the first government boats to be thus equipped.

Monatiquot—Puritan.

Monatiquot lodge, K. of P. will entertain Puritan lodge, I. O. O. F. next Wednesday evening, Sept. 23, in Pythian hall, Braintree, the object being to strengthen the fraternal feeling which exists between them.

Grand Chancellor George W. Penniman and suite will be there as will other distinguished member of the Knight of Pythias. Supt. George E. Wragg will represent the insurance department, and Col. Frank L. Ready of the 3d Mass. Regular the uniform rank. For entertainment beside the speaking there will be Prof. J. W. Maynard, a male quartet, and an eight piece orchestra.

USE OF AEROPLANES IN WAR.

Could Drop Shell From Them Into Ship Funnel, Says Orville Wright.

The chance remark of a sergeant of artillery at Fort Myer during the recent aeroplane flights of Orville Wright, the famous aeronaut, was the basis for a discussion of one of the most important features of the government's interest in aerial craft for purposes of war. The discussion took place at a dinner tendered to Mr. Wright by naval officers. Said the sergeant, "Airships aren't any good to launch a shell from because you can't get the 'centrifugal force' that is necessary to hit an object."

The idea which the noncommissioned officer intended to convey was that the whirling motion given a shell by the modern steel bore guns could not be accomplished in dropping an explosive shell from an airship.

The main facts brought out in the discussion of the aeroplane as an instrument of war were that a machine such as that of the Wright brothers would be practically invulnerable as a target for the enemy's guns, that with a little target practice an explosive could be dropped on a war vessel with damaging results and that the aerial war craft could be launched from the deck of a battleship.

Mr. Wright said that he had made experiments with a swinging weight to see how closely he could hit objects over which he was flying.

"I found that after a little practice it became comparatively easy to put the weight just where I wanted to," said Mr. Wright. "One allowance which must be made is the effect of a wind striking the course of the airship at right angles."

"On your present machine how much weight could be added in the shape of a gun?" Mr. Wright was asked by Lieutenant Sweet, the naval officer detailed to observe the Fort Myer aeronautical tests.

"One hundred and fifty pounds," Mr. Wright replied.

The merits of launching an explosive from a gun were then discussed. Mr. Wright said there would not be sufficient "kick" to cause the aeroplane to diverge from its course. A shell could be dropped into the funnel of a warship, causing terrible damage to the machinery and completing its work of destruction by bursting the boilers.

JUDGE'S OFFER TO A BOY.

To Get $100 if He Gives Up Revolvers and Yellow Backs Until Twenty-one.

"Stop carrying a revolver and quit reading yellow backs until you are twenty-one. Then come around to my office and I will give you a check for $100 to help you along."

Judge John T. Sims of Kansas City, Kan., was moved to generosity the other morning when James Higgins of 2800 North Tremont street, Kansas City, a youth of sixteen, entered the police courtroom in that city and, stepping up to the desk, laid down a 32 caliber revolver and a pile of paper back novels.

"There they are, judge, all of them," he said. He started to run away, but a new thought struck him. "I like to read stories of hunting and of adventure, and, as for the revolver, I only used it to practice shooting when I went down to the river bank."

Judge Sims looked at the paper backs. Two of them were of the Tip Top Weekly series and were entitled "Dick Merriwell In the Wilds" and "Dick Merriwell's Red Comrade," both stories of hunting in the mountains. The other was of the Nick Carter Weekly series, entitled "Nick Carter's Japanese Rival." It was a detective story of Japan.

"These may not be so bad," Judge Sims commented. "But as a general proposition such reading is bad for a boy, and too often it leads to evil. There is something good in you, something hopeful, something manly. See that you quit reading such things, stop carrying a gun, make a man of yourself and the $100 is yours."

A FROHMAN JOKE.

Brother Daniel Springs It on the Theatrical Managers' Meeting.

Daniel Frohman, the theatrical manager, exploded this at a recent meeting of the Theater Managers' association in the Hotel Astor, at New York city: The managers were discussing Rostand's new play, "Chanticlier," in which Coquelin may appear in the United States. It is a play of birds, symbolic of human emotions. The discussion aroused much interest.

"In what language do the birds speak?" asked a facetious manager.

"All French except the chanticleer," said Mr. Frohman quickly, "and he speaks cockney."

Improving City Life.

While considering the subject of uplifting life that's rural
Why not make it somewhat broader—let the uplift be made plural?
Why not ring the urban changes clear from attic unto cellar
Till life holds naught unpleasant for the harassed city dweller?

Why not penalize the neighbor who, with nerve that's nickel plated,
Throws her windows wide, wide open when her voice is cultivated?
Why not fine the milkman noisy who persists in tin can rattling
When for precious beauty slumber at the dawning you are battling?

Why not class as crime unpardonable the crowing of the rooster,
Eke the loud and raucous throating of the rooter baseball booster?
Check the noises phonographic—make the book agents less active—
And the life of city dwellers will be slightly more attractive.

—Arthur Chapman in Denver Republican.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

What is "Tag Day"?

Tomorrow, joint caucuses, 12 M. to 9 P. M.

The mails on Sunday and this morning were flooded with political literature.

H. P. Barnes of Quincy has sold a tract of land in Hingham to Hon. W. B. Strout, who will erect a bungalow for occupancy.

Every Democrat and every Republican should do his duty by voting at the joint caucuses tomorrow, Tuesday, from 12 M. to 9 P. M.

Joint caucuses will be held in all wards of the city tomorow. Owing to the number of contests, they will probably be largely attended.

Meeting of the City Council Committee on Water Supply, Public Buildings, and Licenses, have been called for Mondayvening before the Council meeting. a N. B. Furnald reports that he has not resigned as agent of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals; his commission covering Norfolk county. He has been an agent for 30 years.

The field is now clear for J. Mitchell Galvin for the Republican nomination for representative from the Tenth district, for Saturday Charles H. S. Robinson withdrew from the contest.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held tonight. Just what business will come before the meeting will depend upon what the three committees who have called meetings for 7 o'clock decide upon reporting.

The submarines Tarantula, Viper and Cuttlefish had their endurance test at Newport on Saturday. The result will be made known as soon as the Secretary of the Navy examines the report. The contracts call for 8 3-4 knots an hour for four consecutive hours.

At the dog show held at Framingham on Wednesday in connection with the South Middlesex's County fair Mr. Haupt had four Cocker Spaniels entered who succeeded in winning 3 firsts and 2 reserve winners, the same team being exhibited at Riverside show held under the auspices of the Ladies' Kennel Association of Massachusetts on Thursday brought back 1 second, 4 firsts, 1 winners, and one reserve winners.

TEMPERANCE CAUSE

Would Be Advanced By Election of Representative Luce As Lieut. Governor

The Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League says:

"As the campaign progresses it becomes more evident that the principal contest for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant Governor must be waged between the forces of Robert Luce and those of John N. Cole, and one or the other of these two men will in all probability receive the nomination. Some of the newspapers supporting Cole claim there is no issue except the question of men.

"If this were true, Luce should certainly be chosen by reason of his superior ability and splendid public record, over which not a shadow of criticism in point of honor and integrity has ever been cast.

"But there is a vital issue in this campaign. It is—Shall the temperance reform in Massachusetts go backward or forward? The nomination of Mr. Luce, who for years has led the temperance forces of the Legislature, would be a decided step forward. The nomination of Mr. Cole, who within the year has done more to prevent temperance legislation than any other one man in the Legislature, would be a step backward, and a calamity to the temperance cause in this Commonwealth.

"Last January, after promising a delegation of prominent temperance men that he would appoint a fair Liquor Law Committee, Speaker Cole named the worst Committee on Liquor Law that has been appointed in a generation. We have now the double opportunity of rebuking Mr. Cole for that appointment, and of rewarding Mr. Luce for his very effective championship of the temperance cause, by preventing Cole's nomination and securing that of Luce on the Republican ticket. The citizens of this State should now make it plain that it is politically safer for legislators to stand for sane, practical legislation in the interest of morality and decency, than for vicious legislation in the interest of the saloon.

"The time has come when the party leaders outside the State House, who have much influence in shaping legislation, should be told unmistakably that for the sake of party welfare, at any rate, they must at least give fair treatment to the reasonable requests of the temperance forces for progress that shall keep pace with the growth of public sentiment on this question."

(From the Springfield Republican.)

"Representative Robert Luce of Somerville is Cole's rival for the nomination for second place on the state ticket. His canvass rests upon different grounds. For session after session, he has been identified with the temperance element of the state in its persistent effort to hold the liquor trade more strictly in check.

"He stands always for larger power for the people and would help them to break away from the control of politicians and wirepullers by means of conventions and other party machinery. He has courage, is never afraid to stand in a minority when he knows beforehand what his fate is. He is one of the most forceful speakers in the House. Somehow the politicians do not take to him and his reliance is not upon the Republican machine. That will demand harder work from his friends."

Benjamin C. Lane in the Jamaica Plain News says:

At Harvard College he paid his expenses in part by doing the college news for the Boston Globe, graduating in the class of 1882. My own attention was first drawn to him as far back as 1891, when he captured a prize of $100, offered by "Public Opinion" for essays on "Taxation, National, State and Municipal." It was competed for by able writers all over the country and Luce's paper, afterward published in book form, remains a monograph of interest and value.

"After experience as a teacher and journalist his trained mind saw the possibilities of combining both in one occupation and founded the Press Clippings Bureau of which he is still President. Few industries could give their creator as a result such broad general information. It has appeared in his whole Legislative career. For nine years he has been one of the most hard-worked, efficient and influential members of the House, one of the few men whose opinions are not handed to them ready-made by influential friends, leaders, newspapers or corporations, but represent thorough and conscientious personal investigation. He has been one of the men we always knew where to find; always not only voting but speaking and working against salary grabs, corporation grabs and graft of every kind, and always on the side of progressive legislation of the ideal, but practical sort; always doing the hard, disagreeable, but necessary work which must be done.

"We get altogether too few men like Robert Luce in public life and one reason is that too often, after years of faithful service, they are side-tracked by some genial, respectable and popular newcomer without half of either the character or the ability.

"This year, however, let us hope for better things. Luce has always put his faith in the people, and while his direct nomination bill failed to pass this year's legislature, his friends propose to put a delegation in his favor in every town and ward, so that the Republicans of Massachusetts may, if they will nominate for lieutenant-governor the man who is admitted, even by friends of the other candidates, to be the ablest man in the House today."

Joint Caucuses.

City Clerk's Office, Sept. 2, 1908.

The voters of the City of Quincy, members of the Democratic and Republican Parties, are hereby notified to assemble at the voting places in their respective wards as designated in an order of the City Council passed Aug. 31, and approved by the Mayor Sept. 1, on then and there to give in their votes for the nomination of candidates as follows:

TUESDAY, SEPT. 22, 1908,

One Representative in Congress for the 10th District, one Representative in the General Court from the 5th Norfolk District—Wards 1, 2, 3—and one Representative in the General Court from the 6th Norfolk District—Wards 4, 5, 6.

Also for the choice of delegates as follows:

By the Democratic voters, for the State, Councillor, County and Senatorial conventions, Wards 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, one each; Ward 4, two.

By the Republican voters, for each of the conventions, Ward 1, three; Wards 2, 3, 4, and 6, two each; Ward 5, four.

The polls are to be opened at twelve o'clock at noon and closed at nine o'clock in the evening.

Nomination papers, signed as the law requires, must be filed as follows:

By the Democratic voters, with the Secretary of the Democratic City Committee, between 5.00 o'clock P. M. Tuesday, September 8, and 7.30 o'clock P. M., Thursday, Sept. 10.

By the Republican voters, with the Secretary of the Republican City Committee between 5.30 o'clock P. M. Wednesday, Sept. 9 and 7.30 o'clock P. M., Thursday, Sept. 10.

Blank nomination papers may be obtained from the Secretary of either of the parties above named.

The voting places for the Caucuses have been designated as follows:

Competitive Tests For the Cruisers

All the plans for the final acceptance trials, competetive runs, coal and endurance tests, have been arranged for the scout cruisers Chester, Salem and Birmingham, the latter two of which were built at Quincy. The three boats are now at Charlestown being drydocked and cleaned in preparation for the trials.

The information concerning the trials came as a surprise, as it was thought the boats would remain at Charlestown till the middle of October. As it is now, the Birmingham sails next Tuesday, the Salem on Oct. 1, and the Chester Oct. 8.

The long coal and endurance tests will be held at Hampton Roads, while the standardization, acceptance coal and water tests will take place on the course off Rockland, Me.

Ray F. Weston of Newport avenue has left for Van Buren, Me., where he will join a lumber camp.

Many of the Wollaston young people will take part in the Business Men's Carnival, to be held in Music hall on the evenings of October 3 and 4.

Rathburn E. Sprague of Park street has left for Hanover, N. H., where he will enter his sophomore year at Dartmouth.

The Ladies' Missionary society of th Park and Downs church will give a supper on Wednesday evening, September 23.

The fall conference of Congregational churches for East Norfolk, meets at Stoughton, Sept. 29. Quincy will be well represented.

Mrs. Laura Holt, who was elected president of the W. R. C. Norfolk County Association, is past president and treasurer of Corps 103, of Quincy. Mrs. Holt appointed as her secretary, Mrs. Elizer Penniman who is also past president of Corps 103.

Mrs. Mary M. Newcomb of Gay street announces the engagement of her daughter, Lucie Frances, to Walter Palmer Emery of Boston, Dartmouth '05, a son of Judge and Mrs. A. D. Emery of Auburn, New Hampshire.

Two Waltham people, Charles J. DeMarque and Nellie W. Pettingill, who started for Quincy Saturday morning to visit Mr. DeMarque's sister, went to Providence instead, and word has been sent that they were married in that city.

William H. Flynn, secretary of Democratic city committee, made a sworn statement in the presence of a justice of the peace Saturday, that Frank J. Linehan filed only three papers with him, instead of five as Linehan claims.

Prof. Wrigley wants twelve ladies and twelve gentlemen for bridesmaids and jurymen, also a few for chorus, to take part in a performance of "Trial by Jury" by Sullivan. Will be glad if those who wish to join will write or call at 24 Coddington street, on Friday evening next, between 8 and 9.

The management of the Auditorium has engaged a good bill for the coming week, among the vaudeville acts being Fred Bowman of Smith and Bowman, direct from the Keith circuit. James Whyte the bass soloist, is billed for this week, and an interesting set of pictures will be put on the feature picture being "The Sheath Gown." Amateur night Wednesday as usual.

JAMES SPEAR.

In St. Francis church, South Braintree, last Monday morning the funeral of James Spear was held, conducted by the assistant pastor, Rev. A. F. Fitzgerald, assisted by Rev. Julian E. Johnstone of Quincy as deacon and Rev. John J. Casey of Quincy as sub-deacon. Solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated and the music was in charge of Miss May Shea. At the offertory Mrs. Winifred Dee sang the "De Profundis" and at the conclusion of the absolution service she sang "Only Waiting."

The bearers were Maurice Gurney, William H. Cuff, James Donahue, Henry A. Monk, Joshua M. Bunker and L. A. Dyer. The casket was draped in the flag of which he was so fond. Mr. Spear was one of Sheridan's troopers in the Shenandoah campaign, and before that one of the men who served under Gen. Bank. He was a member of Gen. Sylvanus Thayer post 87, G. A. R. and his comrades were the bearers. Following the church service which was attended by town officials and friends of many years standing, the body was taken to St. Mary's cemetery, West Quincy and was escorted by members of post 87. At the grave the Grand Army services were read and military honors were given.

Mr. Spear was a member of the famous 3d cavalry during the Civil war serving from Dec. 10, 1862 till Dec. 28, 1865. He was one of three brothers one of whom fought in 24 battles and the other 18. Mr. Spear participated in 10 battles and many skirmishes. He leaves a son and daughter both tenderly caring for him during his advanced years. His trade was that of a shoe maker and for years he was employed by Franklin Arnold and his father before him. He leaves a large circle of friends who miss his genial companionship.

The property of the Milford Mass. Pink granite quarries was sold at mortgage sale Thursday to A. M. White, a New York attorney for $200,000. Mr. White did not intimate what he intended to do with the property. The property was mortgaged to secure an issue of $350,000 bonds on which $35,000 has been paid.

Governor Says Journalist Distorted Public Records and Manufactured Statements For Base Political Purposes--Proposes That Committee of Editors Hear Evidence Under Oath to Settle "Infamous Slander"

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Governor Haskell of Oklahoma last night gave out the following telegram, which, he said, he had sent to William R. Hearst:

"You are stating in speeches and press, in substance, that during the year 1899, when Attorney General Frank S. Monnet of Ohio had several cases pending in the supreme court of that state against the Standard Oil company, that I sought to influence him to dismiss those suits. I have said, and now repeat, that your statement is absolutely false, and that I never had any relations of any kind or character with the Standard Oil company.

"Our conflicting statements prove nothing. You, as a newspaper man, may, and should desire, a reputation for truthfulness; I, as a public official, demand that those who accuse me stand forth and make known their proof. You know that a suit against you for civil damages, or a criminal prosecution for libel, means long delay and affords your character of journalism a chance to cover your expenses before being called upon to settle. I do not want your money; I simply desire to expose you to the public as a false accuser who has distorted public records and manufactured statements for base political purposes.

"For the purpose of forever settling this infamous slander which you are circulating in your newspapers and on the stump, I now propose that a committee of fire, or any three of them, composed of the editors of the Springfield, Mass., Republican, the Chicago Journal, the New York World, the Indianapolis News and the St. Louis Republic, be selected to hear you and me under oath and all other evidence they may desire as to the truth or falsity of your charge, at the earliest possible moment, and render their decision to the public in writing.

"Should this committee find your charges sustained, I will withdraw from all connection with the present presidential campaign. Should the verdict be against you, as I know it will, there need be no other penalty than the public contempt due every assassin of character."

Foraker Eliminates Himself

Cincinnati, Sept. 21.—Senator Joseph B. Foraker has cancelled all of his speaking engagements in the national campaign. As to Foraker's senatorial candidacy, The Associated Press is authorized to state his position as follows:

"Senator Foraker will leave the selection of his successor to the legislature, but will do all in his power to see that a Republican legislature is elected."

In addition to this information, Foraker told his friends that he should, at the proper and convenient opportunity, make a speech in answer to the Hearst charges and in defense of himself, and then would campaign the entire state in behalf of his senatorial candidacy, but under the jurisdiction of no political committee.

Disease Spreading at Manila

Manila, Sept. 21.—Fifty-eight new cases of cholera and nineteen deaths are reported for the twenty-four hours ended at 8 o'clock this morning. The infected areas in the city and suburbs are spreading somewhat. The army transport Sheridan, which has been detained at quarantine for several days, owing to the discovery of two cases of cholera aboard, has been fumigated and a clean bill of health has been given. The Sheridan sailed today on its way to San Francisco.

Wright Hears of Selfridge's Death

Washington, Sept. 21.—Orville Wright has learned of the death of Lieutenant Selfridge. Every reasonable precaution was taken to guard against Wright knowing of the army officer's fate, but a letter of condolence opened by the injured aeroplanist referred to Selfridge's death, and the doctors had no alternative but to state the truth. For several hours after reading the letter Wright seemed much depressed.

No Trace of Miss Hilbert

Northampton, Mass., Sept. 21.—One hundred men, under the direction of John Hilbert and Deputy Sheriff Allen, scoured the woods and fields about Chesterfield all day Sunday in a vain search for some trace of Esther Hilbert, the 19-year-old schoolgirl who disappeared from her mother's summer home in Chesterfield one week ago yesterday. The search brought out nothing new.

Woman Dead, Husband Fatally Hurt

Buffalo, Sept. 21.—Mrs. Stephen R. Lee, wife of Assistant Secretary Lee of the Erie County bank, was killed and her husband fatally injured last night in a collision between their automobile and a freight train. Lee's skull is fractured.

By George M. A. Cain.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Time was when Nellie More enjoyed two distinctions above the other pretty girls who sold everything conceivable from the counters of the big store on Sixth avenue. The first of these distinctions was that of being the cleverest manipulator of the latest slang. The second was that of being Michael Maloney's "steady company."

When Mike had arrived from the Emerald Isle and had been made a clerk in the branch of the Amalgamated Tea Stores company all on the same day he had been easily persuaded by some friends who had preceded him into the land of freedom to attend a dance of the Moonlight Athletic association in the evening. There Nellie had seen him and, seeing, had been—well, impressed.

"Who's the new harp?" she had asked with well disguised interest, whereupon she was duly presented to "Mr. Maloney, just over from Dublin."

Perhaps it was the unconventionality of her conversation that attracted the young Irishman from the start. Perhaps it was her fresh, young beauty. Perhaps it was the snap and go that marked all she said and did.

At all events, Mike and Nellie were "steadies" from that evening forth. In another sense Michael Maloney was as steady a young man as ever became a citizen of New York, and when he was promoted to the position of manager in the branch store being his sweetheart became a real distinction for Nellie.

But shortly after Michael's promotion Nellie acquired a new distinction which entirely eclipsed one of her old ones and certainly went far toward finishing the other. It all began innocently enough. No one would have suspected the results when she borrowed one of her favorite author's novels. There was no sign of danger until she had got well on toward the end of the book.

In fact, at the middle of the second page the girl had handed the volume back to its owner, with the comment, "I can't dope out this talk." But the other had urged perseverance, assuring Nellie that she would get used to the "swell guy talk" of the story and that the tale itself was "somepun grand."

And, sure enough, at page 223 Nellie was shedding real tears over the sorrows of the heroine. She nearly forgot to wait on customers, so absorbed had she become. The worst of it was that she had become fascinated with the "swell guy talk" itself. At the end of the book she began anew to study the lofty phrases of the empty conversations, for she had been converted to the idea that really nice people used that sort of language instead of the very lucid style of her past colloquies.

She instituted a process of self reformation. She suddenly forsook the dances of the Moonlight Athletes. She went to night school classes in English. She attended lectures on English at the settlement house. Her progress in the improvement of her conversational style was a thing to delight the hearts of the settlement workers.

In two weeks she had got so far that instead of remarking that it was a "swell day" she imparted to Mamie McDonnell that "the sun bids fair to shed his illuminating rays unimpeded by nebular obstacles."

Mamie promptly admonished her to "come off the roof." One by one her old friends forsook her and left her to the society of a pocket dictionary and grammar—and more of her author. Her little brothers and sisters took to spending their evenings on the sidewalk beyond her correcting influence—and palm.

Her father and mother openly sighed in relief when she sallied forth to attend her classes. But all these things only added zest to her earnestness by giving it a flavor of martyrdom. She had the makings of a real reformer.

It was when she undertook to reform Michael that she waded in the waters of real sacrifice to principle. Michael did not yet know how to wield the east side slang, but he had a brogue that could be cut only with an ax, and that brogue was incompatible with Nellie's new ideas of the refinement that must mark her future home.

At first she explained her lofty ambitions to her lover. He assented rather vaguely to the proposition. He even agreed to help her upward move, but his interest began to languish when she corrected his pronunciations.

For awhile he would repeat his words a second time with solemn earnestness. Then he merely said "all right" to her interruptions of his disquisitions and went on with what he was saying. He was hard hit by Cupid's arrows and was willing to stand for a good deal.

But on the evening when he had screwed up his courage to the point of asking that their relation as "steady company" be changed to that of a real betrothal, in spite of his misgivings about the recent changes in her makeup, she made a fatal mistake.

"Don't call me 'swatehear-rt,'" she said petulantly. "It should be pronounced 'sweetheart.'" His whole declaration of unbounded love had been given in language very different from that of similar declarations in the works of her favorite, and she felt disappointed.

His response to her correction must have been even more disappointing. The brief expletive used was more enlightening to Nellie than any other words could have been. It showed her that in her beautiful programme of home refinement, of polite conversation, of high thinking and speaking, Michael Maloney was incapable of taking a part.

Promptly she explained to him that she felt convinced that future years would find them happier for avoiding the error of continued friendship. The venture of matrimony would be perilous where dispositions were so widely at variance. She hoped that he would remember her as she would remember him, etc. She had a good deal of her author by heart.

From all of which Michael gathered that he was being turned down. He walked away, his big shoulders stooped, his red locks drooped over his freckled face. And Nellie walked the other way, her back very straight, her "Merry Widow" hat very high over her eyes, which showed a strong suspicion of moisture.

No more did she suggest to her mother that she needed exercise when she came home in time to hear one of the younger Mores being sent on an errand to the tea store.

No more did she arrive at that emporium of close priced groceries just at the hour of closing. No more did she walk the shaded bowers of Stuyvesant square leaning upon Michael Maloney's manly arm, not for awhile. She spent a still greater amount of her spare time at the settlement house, improving her English, for awhile.

It was one Saturday afternoon in July that she sat in a front seat in the lecture hall of the institution for the improvement of herself and other Nellie Mores. A very famous authority had condescended to speak to the children of the slums, and up to one remark Nellie sat very erect and tried to look wise and not wish she was down at Coney Island with Michael Maloney.

After the making of that remark Nellie sat rather limp, looked toward the door and wished she were away almost anywhere. The great authority had stated distinctly that "the very best English spoken in the world is that of Dublin, Ireland."

With the directness of the American girl under such circumstances, she made her way boldly to the tea store just at the time when the clerks had gone home and Mike was there finishing up. She invested in a can of corn. Then she asked Michael if he would accompany her home.

As soon as they were started she began her apology. "Michael, it is my desire to request your pardon for my own grievous errors as to your use of English. I have learned today for the first time that the inhabitants of the city of Dublin are the best examples of the correct usage of your mother tongue."

"Is that so?" asked Michael, the hopeful look fading, then swiftly returning as he looked at her. "I nivver gave much thought to the quistion. There is another matther as is worritin' me a lot more. Will ye marry me, Nellie More?"

"Yes, Michael." She still held out for the full name.

It was somewhere near Fort Wadsworth that he pressed her little hand to his lips for the twentieth time as they sat in a secluded corner of the Coney Island steamboat. It was about the same place that he ventured to risk the truth.

"Nellie, me darlint, maybe ye won't be takin' me afther all. But Oi cudden't be lying to ye. Oi nivver saw Dublin in all me life. Sure, Oi come from Cork."

Nellie did not withdraw her hand. She gave the first real hearty laugh that had passed her lips in months.

"Aw, quit yer kiddin'," she said gayly. "I've got troubles of my own thinkin' what a dub I've been. Why, Mike, I'd love you if you was a Dutchman."

The Empty Chair.

It was a sale of wild animals, and a handsome tiger had just been knocked down to the highest bidder, a stranger.

The late owner of the circus sidled up to him.

"Are you starting a show?" he asked.

"No," was the answer.

"Bought the tiger for some one, I s'pose?"

"Yes, for myself."

The showman glanced reflectively at the tiger and then at its purchaser.

"Now, young man," he said, "you needn't take this tiger if you don't want to. There are plenty here who will take it off your hands. Surely you don't want a brute like that?"

"But I do," said the young man quietly. "You see," he added by way of explanation, "my dear mother-in-law has lived with us for ten years. A fortnight ago she left us forever, and—and I miss her." He paused to steady his voice. "So I've bought the tiger," he said.

"I understand," said the showman. "Say no more." And he turned away to hide his emotion.—London Scraps.

Put Into Practice.

Poor Pattison went into the chemist's shop for some plaster for his head. "I've always tried to bring up my children to think before they speak," he said, with a sigh, "but I am convinced it is a wrong principle."

"Surely not, sir," answered the chemist sympathetically.

"Yes, sir," Pattison replied. "I've told my children always to count ten before they say anything. This morning I went out for a walk with my eldest boy. We were walking near some partially built houses when Tom called out, 'Oh, father'—

"'Now, steady, my boy,' I said, seeing he was excited; 'count ten.'"

"Did he obey you?"

"Yes, worse luck, he did, but before he had got to five the brick he had seen falling hit me on the head. Thank you. How much?"—London Mail.

SEVEN YEARS' LEGISLATION

Much Done For Social and Economic Benefit of Country

REVIEW OF IMPORTANT ACTS

President Pleads For Election of Congress Which Will Not Be Hostile to Taft, to the End That There Should Be Complete Harmony Between Them--Failure to Elect the Ohioan Would Be a Calamity

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 21.—President Roosevelt, in a letter to Chairman McKinley of the Republican congressional committee, just made public, appeals to disinterested citizens to join with the national Republican committee and the congressional committee in a movement to elect William H. Taft as president and a Republican congress to support him. The letter follows:

I have received your letter of Aug. 28. I agree with all that you say as to the amount of affirmative and constructive legislation for the social and economic benefit of our people which has been accomplished by the congress during the last seven years. The law establishing a national system of irrigation was of vital importance, and stands in its line as second only to the homestead law. The interstate commerce law has been amended so as to make it a new law, with three-fold the efficiency of the old law. The enactment of the pure food law was of almost or quite equal importance.

The creation of the department of commerce and labor, together with the creation of a bureau of corporations, which marks the beginning of federal control over the huge corporations doing an interstate business, the employers' liability law, the safety appliance law, the law limiting the working hours of railway employes, the meat inspection law, the denatured alcohol law, the anti-rebate law, the laws increasing the powers of the department of justice in dealing with those, regardless of wealth and power, who infract the law; the law making the government liable for injuries to its employes, the laws under which the Panama canal was acquired and is being built, the Philippines administered, and the navy developed; the laws creating a permanent census bureau and reforming the consular service and the system of naturalization, the law forbidding child labor in the District of Columbia, the law providing a commission under which our currency system can be put on a thoroughly satisfactory basis, the laws for the proper administration of the forest service, the laws for the admission of Oklahoma and the development of Alaska, the great appropriations for the development of agriculture, the legal prohibition of campaign contributions from corporations—all these represent but a portion of what has been done by congress, and form a record of substantial legislative achievement in harmony with the best and most progressive thought of our people.

It is urgently necessary, from the standpoint of the public interest, to elect Mr. Taft, and a Republican congress which will support him; and they seek election on a platform which specifically pledges the party, alike in its executive and legislative branches, to continue and develop the policies which have been not merely professed but acted upon during these seven years. These policies can be successfully carried through only by the hearty cooperation of the president and the congress in both its branches, and it is therefore peculiarly important that there should obtain such harmony between them.

To fail to elect Mr. Taft would be a calamity to the country; and it would be folly, while electing him, yet at the same time to elect a congress hostile to him, a congress which under the influence of partisan leadership would be certain to thwart and baffle him on every possible occasion. To elect Mr. Taft, and at the same time to elect a congress pledged to support him, is the only way in which to perpetuate the policy of the government as now carried on. I feel that all the aid that can be given to this policy by every good citizen should be given.

Both your committee and the national committee are endeavoring to secure the active co-operation on the stump of senators and congressmen, party leaders and independent citizens generally. I most heartily join in urging the importance of such co-operation. I hope that every disinterested private citizen, whose sole concern in politics is to have the right kind of man carry out the right kind of policy, will join in backing up your committee as well as the national committee in this movement. No service is as effective, as valuable, as the disinterested service given in such manner by men whose one concern is for the triumph of the principles in which they believe; and I appeal with all the strength there is in me to such men to give such support.

Convict Lease Bill Signed

Atlanta, Sept. 21.—Governor Smith has signed the convict lease bill, which hereafter prohibits the leasing of felons except by the consent of the governor and the prison commission. The bill was passed by the legislature Saturday after $35,000 had been spent in an extra session that lasted nearly a month. The new law does away with a system which had been in existence since 1865.

ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH SOLD TO TELEPOST

Great Results Are Promised by the New Company

New York, Sept. 21.—By purchasing control of the Atlantic Telegraph company the new telegraph company, the Telepost, has acquired the use of a working line over 150 miles long, from Boston to Portland, Me. President Sellers of the Telepost company made the following announcement today:

"It is true that we have acquired control of the Atlantic lines from Boston to Portland and will immediately install our rapid automatic system of telegraphy on this line, accepting business at our uniform rate of 25 cents for twenty-five words, 5 cents for each additional ten words. The Western Union's Boston-Portland rate is 30 cents for ten words.

"Our Boston-Portland service will be an object lesson in the possibilities of 1000 words a minute telegraphy at lower rates than the public has ever dreamed of. Mr. Delany's invention, which we control exclusively, introduces a new era in wire transmission both in respect to speed and economy. We are able to utilize the full capacity of the wires by machines which send and receive at speeds of 1000 words a minute. The old wire companies are limited by hand transmission to a small fraction of this speed. This is the explanation of the superiority of the Telepost system and of our lower rates.

Portland will be the starting point westward of our transcontinental trunk line, on which we are actively at work. Our plans for the opening up of other territories are well advanced, but we are not now ready to announce details. The fulfilment of these plans, however, will soon become evidence to the public, just as in the case of the Atlantic lines, when all our arrangements are completed.

"The Atlantic lines touch Lowell Lawrence and other Massachusetts cities, besides Dover and Portsmouth, N. H., and several Maine towns. We shall have five offices in Boston and expect to get more than our share of the 10,000 messages that pass daily between Portland and Boston.

Seeking Freedom of Ireland

Boston, Sept. 21.—The freedom of Ireland and the general uplifting of the Irish race is the keynote of thought dominating a gathering of distinguished men of Irish blood now in this city. The annual convention of the United Irish League of America will open its regular sessions tomorrow. Already several preliminary gatherings have been held and the cause of Ireland is being strenuously pleaded on every occasion.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The body of Jesse Mills of Rochester, N. H., 50 years old, a teamster, who had been missing for two weeks, was found in the water in the Salmon Falls river. The coroner gave a verdict of suicide.

John Burnham of Gardiner, Me., 84 years old, committed suicide by hanging. It is believed that despondency over the loss of work prompted him to end his life.

Lemuel G. Trott, one of the best authorities on trotting in the country, died as the result of falling from a train at Winchester, Mass. He was born at Woolwich, Me., in 1844.

Frank C. Gowen, aged 30 years, was drowned in the Saco river at Saco, Me. While attempting to moor his boat to a pier he lost his foothold and fell into the water.

Charles McCann, Jr., 14 years old, was struck and killed by an automobile driven by Peter McGuire at Greenwich, Conn.

Up to Date Here In Gotham.

A Pleasant Hour With the Head Masters. Broadway From a New Viewpoint. The Perfect Illusion.

(From Our New York Correspondent.)

I NEVER knew until recently that there exists an almost militant competition among Gotham's preparatory schools. With the intention of getting at some accurate information on an educational subject in which I am slightly interested I mailed to the heads of six of the leading institutions of this kind a request to be supplied with a catalogue or year book. It was an innocent escapade on my part, but I soon had abundant reason to regret my indiscretion.

Of course I got what I wanted—by return mail. What I got that I didn't want came a little later. On my return to my uptown apartment after an unsatisfactory and somewhat disquieting interview with an editor with whom I was not at one in a certain matter in which agreement seemed to be vital I found three persons awaiting me, and before I had time to discover the upshot of the visitation the party was augmented by the arrival of a fourth.

"Are you Mr. Stuyvesant Brown?" four voices demanded in cheerful unison.

There was no merit in denying it, and I didn't, although at the moment I could ascribe the presence of the strangers only to a concerted effort on the part of certain carping creditors to add to my discomfort.

"Let me have a word with you—in private," suggested the visitor most adjacent to me, a well groomed and remarkably self possessed gentleman of middle age.

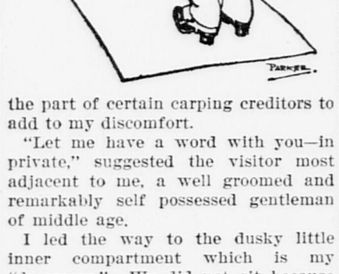

I led the way to the dusky little inner compartment which is my "dreamery." We did not sit because the place is not designed for sitting.

"I believe you are the father of a young son," he said in a mysterious half whisper.

I will not deny that I was somewhat relieved. Instead of a man who had come to remind me of disagreeable things I had only a more or less insistent madman to deal with.

"I am the head master of the Priory school," he went on with the requisite dignity. "I am quite sure that I shall be able to make it clear to you that ours is the very best preparatory institution in the city. If your son"—

"Permit me," I interrupted, a light breaking in on my submerged consciousness. "Since I have not yet become a benedict, wouldn't it be rather premature for me to anticipate paternity in such a reckless manner?"

I could not see him gasp, and I did not hear him, but I felt sure that it was precisely what he was doing. "But your letter?" he queried reproachfully.

After all, he was a reasonable fellow and a jolly. When I had explained everything he was first to "get merry" over it, and our outburst must have made waiting even more tiresome to the expectant men without.

"The other three are also heads of boys' schools," he said as soon as he could speak. "Promise me that you will give them the opportunity I have had and I will call it quits."

I was strictly impartial in the matter and gave each one of them an equal chance. The last who interviewed me in the dismal little cubbyhole confessed that he had come prepared to make himself irresistible to a sulky, book hating boy in his early teens. One of the two who did not make their appearance must have been of the same opinion, for he sent me a charming letter expressed in terms intelligible to boyhood and invited me to lunch with him at Breese's, whose ice cream is famous.

A society woman of my acquaintance, a native of the upper part of Manhattan Island and a stickler for Gotham's pre-eminence in every particular, has recently made the discovery of her life. During the period of fervid late summer heat she had occasion to make a business visit to town and was obliged to remain overnight. The evening was so sultry and the hotel so stuffy that she was driven to seek relief in the open air. Trusting in her incognito—not a soul of her acquaintance knew of her whereabouts—she was led to do something which made her quite a heroine in her own eyes. Taking the precaution to walk a block or so away from the hotel entrance, she actually boarded an open trolley car and was borne leisurely down Broadway!

Most amazing of all, she liked it—really and truly enjoyed a new and vastly agreeable sensation in the novel experience—for her. The sense of security from observation, the easy motion of the plebeian vehicle, the unstinted quantity of good, refreshing Broadway air that came in to her, the perfect novelty of the situation, all appealed to her with a positive relish. "Never until that night," she admitted candidly, "had I really seen dear old Broadway. It was a perfect dream. The pavements were filled to the curbs with crowds of gay theater goers in holiday attire, the shops and countless places of amusement were ablaze with electric lights and varicolored transparencies, and everything was instinct with life and the determination to enjoy it. I was positively disgusted with myself for having been a lifelong stranger to these delights. I certainly saw more of Broadway during that all too brief outing than I had ever seen before that memorable night. I had made personally conducted tours of the Bowery and through Chinatown and to half a dozen other unsavory and rather ticklish regions, but this little independent expedition of mine up and down New York's great center of life and movement made all the others tame and uninteresting.

"It was a real shock, though, just as I was leaving the car—a safe distance, I thought, from my hotel—to be accosted by Colonel Raisin—Tom Raisin, you know, who ought to have been at Lenox instead of popping up in that disconcerting fashion. 'Am I dreaming?' he asked. 'I wish you were,' I retorted.

"AM I DREAMING?" HE ASKED.

"I felt reassured, however, when he confessed that he was so addicted to the form of enjoyment which I had just found out for myself that he actually comes to town now and then out of season to gratify his taste for seeing life from an open street car."

During a somewhat extended career of theater going and play "making and breaking" I have experienced the perfect illusion but thrice. In every instance the dramatic spellbinder was a woman. When Helena Modjeska, as Beatrice in "Much Ado About Nothing," comes tripping up the stage with a bunch of white lilacs in her hand she transports me to the rural England of the Bard of Avon's time. When Ellen Terry, as Olivia in the play made from Goldsmith's "Vicar of

THE PERFECT ILLUSION.

Wakefield," is told that she is to visit her home again she becomes the real thing for a few brief moments. Last of all comes Henrietta Crosman with her little lapses into genuine womanliness in "Mistress Nell." Thus far no portrayer of tragedy, even the scholarly Irving or the "divine" Sarah, has deceived me for a moment.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

Tomorrow, joint caucuses, 12 M. to 9 P. M.

Wedding bells rang on Saturday at the Point.

Grace Harris was visiting at the Point last week.

Business looks good for Quincy for the winter.

Six more boats have come in at Baker's Basin.

Mr. and Mrs. Dearing of Edison street have returned from the South.

Fred Barnard of Quincy Point started Saturday for Oberlin College

J. Fitton of the scout cruiser Salem, built at Quincy was home on Sunday.

George Drake of Washington street is moving his stable onto Baxter avenue.

Are you prepared to vote for good citizenship at the caucuses on Tuesday evening?

Sunday was an ideal day and large congregations were in attendance at the churches.

These are beautiful fall days but the fishermen are wishing for a cold snap to make the smelts bite.

Twenty-seven loads of household goods passed through Quincy in one day, last week, enroute from the shore to the city.

Every Democrat and every Republican should do his duty by voting at the joint caucuses tomorrow, Tuesday, from 12 M. to 9 P. M.

Wednesday evening is to be an enjoyable occasion at the Point church, especially for some of the young people of the Point who soon leave for schools and colleges.

In memory of Carleton Whittemore, late son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Cummings, a picture of Christ has been placed in the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church.

A. W. Mitchell fo several years ticket agent at the Quincy station, has been transferred to a more responsible position as that of towerman, in the switch and signal tower Boston Terminal yard.

Rev. Mr. Retz, who preached at Quincy Point over 30 years ago, has been visiting former parishioners the past week. He noted many changes and improvements and rejoiced in the present prosperity of his former parish.

Shortly after 10 o'clock Saturday night Inspector Goodhue visited the house at 141 Elm street and arrested John H. Andersen, the alleged proprietor, on a warrant charging him with keeping a noisy and disorderly house.

Work on the new dormitory at the Sailors Snug Harbor, moves on satisfactorily. The underpinnings and foundation are in and the stone cornices are laid, and the brick work is being completed on the first story. There are about 50 men employed on its construction and it will be finished before Christmas time.

ATLANTIC WINS

Makaria Team Went Up in Air In Rubber Game Of the Series

Atlantic and Makaria clashed for the fifth time on Saturday at Merrymount park. It was the deciding game of the series, and on the result depended who would be called the champions of Quincy. There was a vast crowd on hand to see the fun, the largest perhaps that ever gathered at Merrymount to witness a game. There were rooters for both sides, and they vied with each other to see who could make the most noise when their favorites made a good play.

Both teams and their backers expected a hard, close battle, but it was anything but close and hard. It was a case of players, who had never played in such a deciding contest against a team of seasoned players who had been through the mill several times. The Makaria boys have played good ball all the season, and in former seasons they have made good too. Under the coaching of the old National league star, "Charlie" Ganzel, they have learned a lot of baseball. But Saturday they were nervous, and went up in the air, while their opponents were cool at all times and played the game at all stages. This is practically how the game was lost by Makaria.

As is the case in all championship games, there was much wrangling ever the decisions of the umpire. It was not so much the players as the crowd from Atlantic which made things disagreeable. It is true that some of Umpire Langdon's decisions were questionable, but most of the time they were in favor of Atlantic. And again when a team has a clean lead of 5 or 6 runs, and is playing good fast steady ball, they ought, it seems, to be satisfied with the umpiring. The Makaria team has always played good clean ball, and Mr. Ganzel is a good, fair, sportsman. As has been said, it was not the players, but the crowd, for the Makaria players kicked as much as the Atlantic boys. We hope both sides will take this as good fair criticism, because it is said in that light, and meant to keep baseball what it always has been in Quincy, a good, clean game both by teams and spectators.

But now to the game itself. There was much doubt as to who would be on the firing line for Makaria, Penly or Michael. When they warmed up Penley was the choice and he stepped to the mound confident of holding Atlantic down. Fred Smith was behind the bat, ready to stop anything with his big mitt. Fay, who signed with Lynn last week, was the first to bat, and worked Penley for a pass. He was caught at first and there Armstrong and Fitzgerald went on grounders to second and short.

Leahy went in to pitch for Atlantic and passed "Honey" Curtis to first. R. Ganzel was hit and Curtis went to second, and was out stealing third. Ganzel stole third and scored when Nicoll went out at first. F. Smith fanned.

In the second, Atlantic got after Penley after two were down. Duggan got a triple into the crowd in centre, and Duffy received a base on balls. Both scored on a hit by Wallace, who went to third on Leahy's single. Wallace scored on Fay's single and Armstrong ended the agony with a fly to Curtis.

Makaria went in order in their half of the second, Granahan making two fast assists to first.

In third, Makaria went up in a balloon completely. On exactly two hits Atlantic scored 5 runs. Fitzgerald hit to centre and took second on an error, and went to third on an error. Donaher got a life at first and both scored on Granahan's single. Duggan sacrificed him to second. Duffy was safe on an error by Nicoll and when William Troupe threw into the crowd back of first to catch Wallace, Granahan and Duffy scored. Wallace stole third and came home on Leahy's fly to centre. Fay out second to first.

Makaria came back in their half. Leahy filled the bases with free passes and then Fred Smith came to time, after two were out, with a long triple to right centre, and three runs came in. W. Smith went out on a hit to the pitcher. This ended the scoring for Makaria till the eighth.

In the fourth, there was a big change in the Makaria line-up. F. Smith who hurt his thumb was sent to right field, and Walter Troupe took his place, and R. Ganzel was sent to second, in place of W. Troupe who took the bench. Michaels went in to pitch and Penley went to centre, "Bill" Smith taking a seat on the bench. The change was a good one, for Atlantic scored only one run and this on two errors. Michaels held them to four runs after this, only two being earned, these in the seventh. Fitzgerald doubled and was forced at third when Donaher hit to short. The latter scored on Granahan's three-bagger, who in turn crossed the rubber when Duggan hit to second. Duffy ended with a strike-out.

The eighth was full of excitement. scored on Tupper's hit. Walter Makaria started to fight for the game. After one out, Fred Smith got his third hit of the game. "Jimmy" Michael followed with a single,—and with two on bases, "Wes" Ganzel, who had not hit the ball all day, picked out a good one and slammed it to deep centre for three sacks. Smith and Michael tallying. Ganzel scored on Tupped's hit. Walter Troupe was safe on an error, and then "Dave" Leahy put on steam, and to show them he was master of the situation, made Penley pop to the catcher, and he himself took care of Curtis' fly which went right to straight. This ended all scoring and left the score 13-7 in favor of Atlantic, and the new "champs" were cherred to the echo.

The features of the game were contributed by Duggan, Granahan and Fitzgerald, who fielded and batted in fine style, while Fred Smith and Curtis were the only ones who played the game for Makaria, Fred getting three hits, and being robbed of a fourth, and probably a "homer" in the ninth, by a beautiful running catch by Donaher in deep left.

It is too bad that Makaria did not support their pitchers. Twelve hits is a lot, to be sure, but ten errors are too many for a team which claims the championship. Atlantic was clearly far superior to Makaria on Saturday, but as has been intimated above, if Makaria were seasoned players like Donaher, Duffy and Leahy, it would be different.

Special cars were waiting to take the big crowd away, and there were between two and three thousand present. The Atlantic team was cheered all the way home. Although full of errors and wrangling, there was lots of fun for a disinterested spectator, and plenty of excitement for the rooters. It was a long drawn-out game, and was fast growing dark when the last man was out.

The score:—

An Atlantic young lady contributes the following parody on "The ball game."

Take me up to the ball game,
Take me to Merrymouth park,
Give me a horn and a rattling can,
We don't care if we make them all mad.

For we'll root, root, root for Atlantic's
If they don't win, its a scheme,
One, two, three cheers, for our boys
At the last three games.
"Hurrah, hurrah, for Atlantic."

ECHOES OF THE GAME.

A big crowd.

"Charlie" Ganzel can bat them out yet, as he showed when he hit them down to the Makaria team in practice.

Fay is certainly fast and sure. He ran the bases in fine style Saturday and his fielding shows he is a "comer."

It is too bad Fred Smith hurt his thumb on Saturday. It helped to put the team up in the air, for Fred is a good steady man, and always stays in the game. Under the tutelage of Mr. Ganzel he has developed into one of the best hitting and throwing catchers in this vicinity, and is nearly ripe for faster company.

Delcevare King was at the game and rooted hard for Makaria. "Charlie" Rich, the royal rooter for all Quincy teams cheered for Makaria all through the game, never giving up hope.

The crowd was the biggest ever seen in the Park, surrounding the field on all sides, with many out in centre field sitting on the ground.

Michael held the "Champs" in good style, considering the fact that they have batted against him about ten times this summer. If "Mike" had gone in at first and received any kind of support, the game would have been close and interesting.

Dave Leahy, the Atlantic box-artist, is a cool, smooth worker. In the eighth, when the Makaria crowd were cheering wildly to rattle him, he stood there with a confident smile, and when he got ready he pitched the ball. The result was victory.

"Jack" Duffy the old timer is still in the game strong. He scored from first on a wild throw Saturday, and got a great hand from the third base bleachers.

OTHER GAMES.

On French's common, Braintree, on Saturday, the Braintree team beat the Royal White Sox for the second time in the series for the championship of Braintree. The score was 11-7. The game was called in the eighth on account of darkness.

Randolph won its seventh straight game Saturday, defeating Rockland 5-3, in the Old Colony league series. Foley and Sweeney of Holy Cross worked for Rockland.

Fore Rivers Win at Football

From what at first seemed like a crushing defeat for the Fore Rivers, the team by quick and accurate team play scored a decisive victory from the J. & P. Coats team on the Fore River grounds, Saturday afternoon. The Coats were the winners of last year's championship in the New England league, and were looked upon as well nigh invincible.

During the first half of the game they played a remarkably strong game while the Fore Rivers played a weak game. The visitors were strong kickers, and in spite of all the home team could do, they did some telling work. The visitors scored three goals during the first half, and they were made so easy that it seemed as though the fates were against the home team.

The Fore Rivers braced up a little during the latter part of the first half, and during a scrimmage Richardson managed to score a goal. Every time the visitors made a kick there seemed to be a man on the spot to help it along. It was as pretty an exhibition of team play as seldom seen.

When time was called for the second half, the Fore Rivers lined up with a determination to win, which they did. From the first they played a rapid game. They worked the pass play to perfection, and it was not many minutes before Forsythe had scored a goal, which was quickly followed by another goal by Carrathers. This tied the score and enthusiasm was at a fever heat. After this the visitors fell off in their play, and when Eliot made a goal by a kick from centre, the visitors apparently went to pieces. Then D. McDonald made a centre kick and scored the sixth goal for Fore River.

This came near ending the game. The ball had been outside and the visitors made the claim that the ball was not in play when the goal was made. They started to leave the field threatening to do the referee bodily harm. After some talk, during which the manager of the Coats team came onto the field and had a conference with the captain, play was resumed.

During a scrimmage one of the visitors strained the muscles of his leg and although he was unable to kick the ball thereafter, he stayed in the game until the finish. During the latter part of the second half the visitors went to pieces, and but for the excellent work of its goal keeper, there is no telling what the score would have been.

It lacked but a few minutes of time when Nutter scored the seventh goal for Fore River by a side kick. This was the last straw and for the remainder of the time play on both sides was loose. The summary :

| FORE RIVER. | J. & P. COATES |

Score—Fore River, 7; J. & P. Coates, 3. Goals—Forsythe 2, Richardson, Carruthers, Eliot, D. McDonald, Nuttle, Harvey, Bowden, Wilmot. Referee—Barden, of Fall River Rovers. Linesmen—T. Burgess, Carrigan. Times—Two 45- minutes halves.

Pocahontas and Stranger Win

The Wollaston Yacht club wound up its season's racing on Saturday by a race to decide the club championship in classes A and B. The wind was strong from the east making ideal racing conditions. The Pocahontus won the race in Class A, beating the Claytonia by 13 seconds corrected time. In Class B. Commodore Dawes' Stranger was an easy winner. The summary:

CLASS A.

| | El time h m s | Cor time h m s |

New Class Squantum Club

The yachting season of 1909 will see a one-design class at the Squantum Yacht club. This is an idea of Commodore C. M. Bryant, and he is taking an active interest in it, for he thinks it will create interest in yachting at the club. He has appointed G. W. Glover, Hamilton Flood, William Croucher, Stanley Ferguson and E. F. Drew, a committee to develop the idea. The type of the boat will be fixed at some future meeting.

QUARRY ACCIDENT

Biggest Derrick In This City Falls But All Quarrymen Escape

A score of workmen at the quarry of J. S. Swingle had a narrow escape this morning, when the large derrick fell. The derrick is the largest in Quincy, the main stick being 108 feet long. A large block of granite was being hoisted when a guy parted.

A number of men were at work nearby, but fortunately they all escaped. Men immediately went to work clearing away the guys, preparatory to raising the derrick again.

While there at work John Jacobson of Carlmark street became tangled in the guy wires and was thrown. Fortunately no bones were broken, and he escaped with a few bruises. The police ambulance was called and he was taken to the City Hospital.

SCHOOL BOARD

Give Hearing On Charges Preferred Against Coal Company

A special meeting of the School Board was held Monday evening to hear charges preferred by the Teamsters' union of Boston against the Neponset River coal company of Dorchester which received the concontract for supplying the schools with coal.

There was a large delegation from the union present, most of them being former employes of the Company. They were represented by M. J. Sheehan as spokesman, who offered the committee a copy of charges which the union had filed. The charges were signed by five men.

In substance the charges were that the coal company had sold screenings to the city along with the sift coal and that the hind horses were placed on the scales when the coal was weighed at the yard, and that sometimes the foreman of the yard stood on the scales at the off side of the teams.

Mr. Sheehan said the janitor of the High school had protested to the drivers of the wagons against screenings being delivered with the coal, and said if it did not stop he would complain to the School Board. He asked that the janitor be summoned.

Stephen J. Craddock, Walter Whiton and Marshal Cheever, former drivers for the company, testified they delivered coal to the High school and that the janitor complained to them of the screenings.

Mr. Sheehan said he examined the coal delivered for Lehigh at the Adams school and found about one quarter Lehigh and three quarters Lackawanna in the bins. At the Wollaston school he said he found more Lehigh than at the Adams school.

One of the men being asked if he worked for the company at the present time, Mr. Sheehan replied, saying all but one had been dismissed and intimated they had been discharged because they joined the Taamsters' union. The man who was not discharged, he said, left of his own desire.

Craddock said there was a place in the yard where there were 25 tons of screenings and that soft coal was dumped onto the pile.

Marshal Cheever said he had backed his horse onto the scales with his team at the orders of the yard boss.

All of the drivers said that the weigher could not stand at the rod of the scales and look out onto the platform to see "if the horses were being weighed with the coal.

Francis M. Curtis, who acted as weigher of the coal for the city of Quincy on the coal bought by the School Board, said there was a certain amount of screenings in the yard, but he denied telling any driver there were screenings in his wagon, because he couldn't see the bottom of the wagons when they were filled with coal. He said there was no possibility of his vision being odscured while tending the scales and that he could see if a horse was standing on the scales while the coal was being weighed.

At this point Mr. Craddock asked if Mr. Curtis had not asked him what the screenings were doing in the soft coal on the wharf.

Mr. Curtis said he did not ask such a question, but did ask "What are those screenings down there near the soft coal pile?"

In answer to another man, Mr. Curtis said it might be possible for a man to be standing on the scales on the other side of the wagon and not be seen by the weigher, but he did not think it probable. He said he was there in the interest of the city of Quincy, and had fulfilled his duty to the letter. Asked again about being able to see the platform of the scales from where he stood, Mr. Curtis said he was positive he could see the platform, and had asked several times to have the cracks around the platform cleaned as he could not see the platform clearly at all times. Later in the evening, while Mr. Sheehan was referring to the weighing of the coal, he said that Mr. Curtis was a sworn weigher for the city, but Mr. Curtis said he was not a sworn weigher although he had been sent by the School Board to weigh the coal for the board.

Manager Winslow of the company said that any coal bought of his company by the School Board as Lehigh coal and delivered as Lehigh, was Lehigh coal to his best knowledge. As far as the charge of screenings was concerned, he said, the statements made were false and that four-fifths of the coal which went to the School department came from the barges direct through chutes into the wagons. He said that the weigher was able to see the platform of the scales at all times, and he never saw coal more accurately or faithfully weighed than by Mr. Curtis.

Mr. Winslow said the whole trouble arose from the fact that his company had incurred the enmity of the Teamsters' union, although the company was paying more money than the rates demanded by the union. He said the union had been holding this thing as a club over the head of the company, and was trying to ruin its business here and in Dorchester.

Considerable hot cross talk was caused by the statements of some witnesses on both sides, and at one time Mr. Winslow pointed out one man and said he wanted to sell his organization a year ago for $100. This man intimated he would defend his name and reputation at law if necessary.

Mr. Sheehan said that if the coal delivered to the schools in Quincy should be reweighed and found to be correct, his organization would stand the expense, but if it differed in weight his organization would stand only part.

The meeting adjourned without any definite action being taken but it was intimated that the law department of the city might be asked to take the matter up, as the School board had no power to summons or swear witnesses.

Immediately after the departure of the labor men the School Committee went into executive session, but it was not decided what action the committee would take in the matter, and will not be until after another hearing Wednesday evening. This hearing will be on the complaint of the local Coal Drivers' union.

In addition, Mr. Winslow of the Neponset River Coal Co. will probably be present to present books and papers to rebut some of the charges made by the labor men at Monday night's meeting.

The members of the School Committee present at Monday night's meeting were: Chairman Hunting, O'Hara, Bushnell, Owens, Newcomb, Duggan and Wadsworth. The absentees were John L. Miller and Dr. W. G. Curtis.

Witnessed Extraordinary Performance of Aeroplane

A MOST IMPRESSIVE FLIGHT

Wilber Wright Accomplishes a Signal Triumph In Capturing the World's Record From Brother Orville by Remaining In Air Nearly an Hour and Forty Minutes--Aviator Overwhelmed With Congratulations

Le Mans, Sept. 22.—In the presence of the officials of the French Aero club, the American ambassador, Henry White, General Bazaine-Hayter, a large number of French and foreign officers and aeroplane experts and a wildly cheering crowd, numbering 10,000, Wilbur Wright, the American aeronaut, captured the world's record from his brother, Orville Wright, with a marvellously impressive flight in his powerful machine of one hour, thirty-one minutes and fifty-one seconds, covering in that time an actual distance of nearly sixty-one miles.

Owing to the recent accident at Fort Myer, yesterday's trial for the Michelin cup, for the greatest distance covered by an aeroplane in 1908, and the aero club prize of $1000 for the longest flight over an enclosed ground, attracted intense interest, although the spectators displayed the utmost deference and sympathy.

At 5:15 last evening, in the teeth of a breeze which was then blowing gently at about four miles an hour, the aviator got away nicely, sailing majestically up the field amid thundering cheers. Red flags were posted at regular intervals, which permitted the spectators to estimate the distance as the flight proceeded.

After rounding the upper turn, Wright swept back to where the thousands were gathered and began describing elipses. Round and round he went with the regularity of clockwork and the steadiness of a railroad train. The great crowd was at once delighted and amazed at the remarkable stability shown by the aeroplane.

Wright at first manifested extraordinary prudence, flying so low that he seemed almost to skim the earth, but on the thirteenth round he rose sixty feet. The sun was just then setting, glowing like gold, and the aeroplane appeared like a huge bird circling the plain. Spontaneous cheers greeted the picture and these were redoubled as he successively surpassed his own record and then his brother's.

In the gathering darkness the spectacle became thrilling. The aeroplane could no longer be seen at the farther end of the field; it appeared and disappeared in the gloom like a white phantom, but the sound of the ceaseless churn of the propellers told the multitude, which had now grown frantic, that Wright still was in the air. Matches were lighted to keep watch on the fleeting minutes and night had fallen when, at the end of the thirty-third round, Wright shut off his motor and came lightly to the ground in front of the derrick.

With a mad cheer the crowd broke through the lines and rushed forward, only being prevented from hoisting the American in triumph on their shoulders by charging cavalry.

Among the first to reach Wright's side was White, who told the smiling aeronaut of the keen pleasure he felt in witnessing his victory. The ambassador said he knew he was expressing the sentiments of President Roosevelt and the entire American people in congratulating him. Other friends were equally enthusiastic. Subsequently White said he believed the American people should present a testimonial to the Wright brothers.

Wright told The Associated Press that he had descended only because of darkness, as he still had sufficient essence in the tank to last an hour. Wright took his achievement with his usual modesty, but he said that he was especially glad to have established a new world's record for Orville's sake. He denied the report that he does not intend hereafter to carry a passenger.

Wright's Condition Satisfactory

Washington, Sept. 22.—Although suffering from restlessness yesterday, Orville Wright's condition is satisfactory. He succeeded in getting several hours' sleep yesterday afternoon and after the news of his brother Wilbur's record-breaking flight in France was shown him he was in better spirits.

Hard Work Necessary to Win

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Republican State Chairman Woodruff spent some time in conference with the president yesterday. They went over the political situation generally, but with special reference to New York state, and Woodruff left Sagamore Hill bearing the impression that, while the president was well pleased with the situation, there was need of hard work to ensure Republican success.

Bank Examiners Are Negligent

Washington, Sept. 22.—Severely arraigning the methods of bank examiners, declaring that they have failed to discover embezzlements, defalcations and dishonesty, and frequently failed to approximately estimate the value of bank securities, Comptroller of the Currency Murray, before a conference of bank examiners, pointed out needed reforms.

Did You EVER THINK of That?

IT WILL HELP QUINCY!

IT WILL HELP YOU!

Don't You Like This Town?

You live here. Your business interests are here. Your home is here.

You are reading a Mail Order Catalogue. That indicates that you are not spending your money in this town. You are spending it with strangers in a big city. That city has no use for this town except to get your money.

This town has use for your money. If spent here, your money will help to build up the town. It will help to build up your own business.

In the long run more of your money will come back to you if you spend it at home than if you send it to Chicago or some other large city. You spend a dollar with Smith, up the street. Smith spends it with Brown, around the corner. Brown is just as likely to spend it with you as with anybody else. Did you ever think of that?

All of us have to spend money. There is an art in spending it where it will do the most good. If spent so that it will circulate around this town and community, it will help this town and community. You belong to this town and community. Therefore it will help you. Isn't that good logic?

Suppose you think it over next time you pick up the Mail Order Catalogue.

TO WARD OFF CHOLERA

Extraordinary Precautions Are Being Taken by Our Government

Washington, Sept. 22.—On account of the rapid spread of cholera in Russia Surgeon General Wyman of the public health and marine hospital service has decided to send to that country an agent of the bureau who will be a cholera expert. He will not only advise the home office as to the situation, but also take such steps as may be considered desirable in preventing the spread of the disease to the United States, of which there is considered to be always strong possibility through immigrants.

United States consuls in a number of European ports from which Russian emigrants are most apt to embark have been instructed to restrain all Russian emigrants departing for the United States for five days, in accordance with the regulations of the treasury department provided for such detention when circumstances render it advisabe.

The consuls to whom these instructions have been sent are stationed at Libau, Hamburg, Bremen, Rotterdam, Antwerp, London, Liverpool, Southampton and Glasgow. All these ports, with the exception of Libau, are outside of Russia, but all of them are used as places of embarkation by Russians for the United States.

The action of the bureau is predicated upon the reports from Russia concerning the cholera situation in that empire. The reports to the public health service also show that cholera is epidemic at many points in China.

In addition to the prevalence of cholera in Russia and Asia, the outbreak in the Philippines is being watched with great interest. During the past month cholera has appeared in various Philippine provinces.

CHELSEA'S SECOND FIRE VISITATION

Loss of Nearly $400,000 Before Flames Were Checked

Chelsea, Mass., Sept. 22.—The embers of yesterday's big fire in this city, near the Everett line, have cooled sufficiently to enable a more careful estimate of the loss to be made, and it is evident that nearly $400,000 will be added to the year's fire list, that the taxable property of the city has been still further reduced, and that the remaining residential section of the city narrowly escaped the fate which swept over so many homes last spring.

The fire started shortly before 8 a. m. in the Atwood & McManus box factory and it was well under way by the time the local department arrived on the scene.

Unfortunaetly two of the local engines broke down almost immediately, and as the box factory proved good food for the flames, it became necessary to call again on the neighboring cities for help, and Boston, Everett and Revere responded.

A Boston engine which arrived early on the scene was soon overwhelmed by falling walls and nearly destroyed. The fire then broke its original bounds and, sweeping east and west along the tracks of the Boston and Maine railroad, enveloped Lee Bros.' shoe factory on the one side, Pope & Cottle's lumber yard on the other, and then extended to four smaller factories and five tenement houses. An hour after the start it looked as if it would keep right on into the other factories which survived the April conflagration and also into the residential district beyond.

Fortunately the width of Everett avenue on the north side, with vacant spaces on the opposite side to the fire, proved too great a space to leap over, and by massing the firemen on the other sides the progress of the flames was stopped. The tenements were nearly all occupied by Italians, whose loss was comparatively small.

Democrats to Force Fighting

New York, Sept. 22.—Chairman Mack of the Democratic national committee is planning to force the fighting in the Pacific coast states, and during the month of October speakers of national prominence will be sent west to aid in swinging all debatable states into line for the Democrats. Mack says that the reports received from California, Oregon, Montana and Colorado are of such character as to lead him to the belief that with a strong effort they will be captured for Bryan and Kern.

President Leaves Oyster Bay

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 22.—President Roosevelt this morning ended his vacation and, with his family and executive staff, left for Washington. The president will reach Washington this evening. No formal farewell was prepared by the residents of Oyster Bay, but practically everyone in town was at the railway station to see the president depart and say farewell to him.

Searching Party Found Body

Lyme, Conn., Sept. 22.—The body of Katie Yurkiewdiz, a Polish housekeeper, missing since Sept. 7, was found in a slough hole in a swamp at North Lyme. The body was found by a party organized for the search by State Attorney Hull and Sheriff Brown. Coroner Brown is investigating. No arrests have been made.

CITY OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace Of Two Burial Place Of Two

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grandfather of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

BIRTHPLACES OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace of John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States, Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Admission charged.

Birthplace of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of the old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponsit river.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) at Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural momuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. The funeral of John Quincy Adams was held in this church. Beneath the entrance is the Adams tomb, reached by stairways from the vestibule. Near the tomb is the box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams, also the old town hearse. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock cemetery across the street from First church contains many old stones. Among the old graves are those of Henry Adams founder of the Adams family who died Oct. 5, 1646; Rev. William Thompson, 1st pastor over the Braintree church who died Dec. 10, 1666; Rev. Henry Flint who died Oct. 11, 1668; Rev. John Hancock father of the Patriot who died May 7, 1744 and many other notable people.

JOHN HANCCCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declcration of Independence, was born.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

REPUDIATION OF FORAKER

The President Adds a Contribution to the Controversy

THE DISCLOSURES BY HEARST

Claim That They Show That Men Behind Foraker and "Haskell and His Associates" Would Have Lasting Satisfaction In the Defeat of Taft--Latter Objected to Being Jointly Endorsed With Senator

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Late yesterday Secretary Loeb gave to representatives of the press a formal statement by the president, which was called forth by the recent exchanges between William R. Hearst and Senator Foraker of Ohio. Mr. Hearst, in public utterances, had accused the senator of relations with the Standard Oil company inconsistent with his duties as a senator and his attitude as a representative of the Republican policies and professions.

The "statement," which is really a forceful attack on Foraker and his alleged dealings with the Standard Oil company, reviews conditions in Ohio and charges that the Standard Oil interests are behind Bryan as well as behind Foraker.

SENATOR FORAKER.

"Senator Foraker," says the president, "has been a leader among those members of congress of both parties who have resolutely opposed the great policies of internal reform for which the administration has made itself responsible.

"His attitude has been that of certain other public men, notably (as shown in this same correspondence published by Mr. Hearst) Governor Haskell of Oklahoma. There is a striking difference in one respect, however, in the present position of Governor Haskell and Senator Foraker. Governor Haskell stands high in the councils of Mr. Bryan and is the treasurer of his national campaign committee. Senator Foraker represents only the forces which, in embittered fashion, fought the nomination of Mr. Taft and which were definitely deprived of power within the Republican party when Mr. Taft was nominated."

In yesterday's statement President Roosevelt makes another appeal for the support of Mr. Taft and declares that his defeat would bring "lasting satisfaction to but one set of men, namely, to those men who, as shown in the correspondence published by Mr. Hearst, were behind Mr. Foraker, the opponent of Mr. Taft, within his own party, and who now are behind Governor Haskell and his associates, the opponents of Mr. Taft in the opposite party."

The statement embodies a letter written by Taft to a friend in Ohio on July 20, 1907, in which the present Republican candidate for the presidency refuses to acquiesce in the plans of the Ohio state central committee to endorse Taft for the presidency and Foraker for re-election to the senate in a single resolution.

The president points out that Taft's attitude has always been directly opposed to that charged against Foraker by Hearst regarding the moneyed interests. The president cites the Brownsville affair as a case where the agitation was a phase of the effort "by the representatives of certain law-defying corporations to bring discredit upon the administration." It was, he says, in large part "not a genuine agitation on behalf of colored men at all."

Nothing From Taft or Foraker

Cincinnati, Sept. 22.—William H. Taft read and re-read the production of President Roosevelt inspired by the Foraker and Hearst controversy. After considering the question carefully he concluded to make no addition to the subject at this time. Taft did not indicate that he would hereafter make a statement.

Senator Foraker said that he was not prepared to make any comment on the statement issued by President Roosevelt relative to the position Taft had taken on the endorsement of Foraker for re-election. The suggestion was made that he might wish a statement by him to appear in the same editions of the newspapers in which the president's statement would be published. Foraker, in reply, said: "I as not so fond of the president's company as mat." He said that he might make a statement today if, after consideration, he deemed any comment was necessary.

BRYAN ON THE AGGRESSIVE

Hurls Defiance at Republicans In Empire State Speeches

Buffalo, Sept. 22.—"The president has seen fit to give the Republican candidate another endorsement. It seems that I am running against two Republicans instead of one, but our platform is so plain and the purpose of our party is so well expressed in that platform that I am prepared to meet the argument of one or both of them." Hurling defiance at his Republican opponents, William J. Bryan, speaking here last night before immense audiences, so declared himself.

From the moment he began speaking in this state at Brockport, early in the day, until he had concluded his remarks here, the Democratic candidate took the bit in his teeth and assailed at every turn President Roosevelt, Mr. Taft and the Republican leaders. He spoke of the conflict which he said existed between the president and the Republican managers of congress, replied specifically to certain queries propounded to him in an open letter in the Chicago Tribune, attacked the president for what he said was his failure to enforce the anti-trust laws and from which he said the president could not escape, denounced Senators Platt and Depew as having betrayed the people, charged the Republicans with turning the financial system over to Wall street, and finally poured a volley of denunciation into the Standard Oil company.

It is admitted on all sides that at no time during the present campaign has Bryan been so aggressive. He made a dozen speeches to large and enthusiastic crowds all along the line.

BAY STATE CONTESTS

Hot Fight For Second Position on State Republican Ticket

Boston, Sept. 22.—With three well known politicians in the field as candidates for lieutenant governor on the Republican ticket this fall, Speaker Cole of Andover, former Speaker Frothingham of Boston and Representative Luce of Somerville, and all three having completed a three months hard struggle for control at the state convention in this city on Oct. 3, the Republican primaries today throughout the state are expected to be better attended than for many years.

The campaign managers of the three aspirants for the second place on the party ticket claim that their particular candidate will surely obtain at the caucuses a sufficient number of delegates to the state convention to ensure his selection on the first ballot.

The lieutenant governorship campaign this year has been the hardest fought in the history of the party for many years. All three candidates are personal friends, having served together in the lower branch of the legislature.

Cole was the first to hurl his glove into the political arena, followed by Frothingham and in June by Luce. During the past three months all three candidates have toured the state, and have frequently appeared on the same platform or at the same banquet table. Their campaigns have been ably managed and their workers have sent campaign literature into every city and town, and speakers into nearly every prominent place.

Three sets of delegates to the state convention have been filed in nearly all the cities and towns and it is for these delegates that the party voters are casting their ballots today.

Won't Correspond With Haskell

New York, Sept. 22.—William R. Hearst returned to this city last night and soon afterwards issued a statement concerning the challenge of Governor Haskell of Oklahoma. In his recent speeches Hearst had charged that Haskell, who is now treasurer of the Democratic national committee, had sought, in 1899, to influence Attorney Monnet of Ohio to dismiss certain suits then pending against the Standard Oil company. In a telegram to Hearst, which he made public, Haskell invited Hearst to publicly prove his charges before a committee of editors.

Mr. Hearst refuses to accept the suggestion of an editorial board of arbitration in a letter to The Associated Press in which he says:

"I address this communication to you, as I cannot have the slightest correspondence or controversy with a man of Mr. Haskell's character.

"The court records, the complaint of ex-Attorney General of Ohio, Mr. Monnet, the affidavit of the present assistant of the present attorney general of Ohio, Mr. Burnett, the court records of the state of Oklahoma in the Prairie Oil and Gas company case, accuse Mr. Haskell, and not I. Mr. Haskell has had many years in which to sue Mr. Monnet, if that gentleman committed a libel in naming C. E. Haskell as one of the men who attempted to bribe him in the Standard Oil case. Mr. Haskell's proposition to arbitrate the matter now shows that he has a sense of humor, even if he has not a sense of honor."

Hitchcock Still at the Helm

Cincinnati, Sept. 22.—William H. Taft's telegram expressing confidence in National Chairman Hitchcock, assuring him that he is in supreme control and welcoming with him the assistance of Senator Crane and the executive and advisory committees, is the one news prediction of the Republican presidential candidate. The telegram was brought forth by publications yesterday indicative that Hitchcock was to be virtually, although not nominally, subordinated in the control of the campaign.

DAINTY WAYS OF COOKING APPLES

It is a poor housewife who has the apples at her disposal and will not see to it that her family table is abundantly supplied with the king of fruits, cooked or uncooked, and that liberal provision is made at the same time for the lean wintry days to come.

For cooking a moderately tart apple has the preference. Sweet apples require a much longer time for baking or boiling and never reach the same stage of tenderness. Just now the Red Astrakhan is in perfection, and jelly made from it is exquisite in color and delicious in flavor.

Apple Jelly.—Wash the apples clean, cut out all imperfections, but do not peel or core. Put into an earthen jar, set in a pan of hot water or cook in the preserving kettle with just a little water to keep from sticking to the pan until mushy and tender. Be careful that you do not let the apples stick and scorch. Cover closely to keep all the steam in. When ready pour into a jelly bag and let the juice drip through. To every pint of the juice allow a scant pound of sugar. Put the sugar in shallow pans in the oven, leaving the door open, so the sugar will not get hot enough to melt or turn yellow, and put the juice in a clean kettle over the fire. Cook the juice just twenty minutes from the time it reaches the boiling point and add the sugar, which should be hot enough to hiss as it strikes the hot juice. Stir until dissolved, remove the spoon, boil a moment longer, then turn into glasses that have been rinsed in hot water. This jelly will be firm, clear and of a deep rose pink. It may be left unflavored or flavored with a little pineapple cooked with the apples, with lemon juice or rose geranium. For the latter simply lay a rose geranium leaf in the bottom of the glass in which you are to pour the jelly and turn the hot jelly over it. The addition of a quince for every dozen apples also gives a fine flavor to the jelly.

Apple Jam.—To every pound tart apples, pared, cored and chopped, allow three-fourths pound sugar and the juice of the finely cut yellow rind of a lemon. For each three pounds of apples add a heaping teaspoonful of ginger. Stew together for an hour, stirring frequently with a wooden spoon, turn in pots or jars, cover carefully and keep in a cool, dry place.

Useful and Artistic.

The brass watering pot has taken its place in the house and is very attractive. It is not only useful, since so many flowers are grown indoors, but decidedly ornamental. These pots are not expensive, ranging from $2.50 up, according to the amount of decoration upon them.

A Witty Toast.

The most famous wit of the Emerald Isle was a celebrated lawyer, John Philpot Curran, who was outwitted on one occasion by a woman. The following story, taken from a volume of biographical reminiscences entitled "Mrs. Brookfield and Her Circle," furnishes an amusing example of how Curran was once outdone:

A brisk young widow in some part of Ireland used to preside at the table of a coffee house patronized by Curran. Her name was Honor, and one day there was some disputed charge.

Curran slyly winked at the friend who happened to be dining with him and proposed "Honor and Honesty."

"By all means," added the widow briskly, holding her glass to be filled, "let us drink to Mr. Curran's absent friends."

Collects Menu Cards.

The emperor of Austria is a man with few hobbies. One of them is the editing of an official court journal. Another is the collection of menu cards, and his stock, which is continually being augmented by contributions from other monarchs, is a very wonderful one. A rare specimen is that which was used at the dinner given by the czar to President Faure some years ago. This "card" is a square of perfect black marble beautifully painted by a famous French artist, the names of the various dishes being lettered in ivory.

Wearing Five Buttons.

Girls have gone in for many Chinese fashions, such as the mandarin jacket, the kimono sleeve, the chrysanthemum embroidery, but the wearing of five buttons on the coat or jacket is a new idea, unknown to the many.

The Chinese wear these five buttons to remind them of the five chief moral virtues which were recommended by Confucius. These are humanity, justice, order, rectitude and prudence.

Two Kinds of Dusters.

The automobile halted before the general store of the village. The owner-chauffeur alighted and accosted a drowsy clerk. "I want a linen duster," he said.

"I am very sorry," said the clerk, "but we are just out of linen dusters. I can let you have a nice feather duster."

HE ATE THE SOAP.

Garland Would Have Swallowed It If It Had Killed Him.

Augustus H. Garland, who was attorney general under President Cleveland, was very fond of practical jokes and during his term of service in the senate frequently turned the laugh on his colleagues. Senators Voorhees and Vest, with whom he was very friendly, finally determined to turn the tables. Mr. Garland had a habit, like Voorhees, of munching candy, and Vest and Voorhees made it up between them to take advantage of his fondness for sweets to play their trick. They had some tempting looking chocolate caramels prepared, with the interior filled with brown soap. These they took to the senate chamber, and Voorhees placed them on his desk. The lid being off, when Mr. Garland sauntered down the aisle he noticed them at once.

"What have you there, Dan?" he inquired.

Voorhees looked up carelessly from his writing and responded: "Caramels. Help yourself."

Garland needed no second invitation and, picking up two or three, placed one in his mouth. Steadily he chewed away, his face betraying no sign of the conflict within him. This alarmed Voorhees, who went to Vest's desk and said:

"He's eating them, Vest! What shall we do? The stuff will kill him sure!"

Senator Vest replied that it could do no more than make him sick. Garland swallowed the stuff, although he was foaming at the mouth from the soapsuds. He related the incident afterward with great gusto and said he would have swallowed it if it had killed him.

FLY FOGS IN INDIA.

A Plague That at Times Makes Life Unbearable In Calcutta.

One of the evils of Calcutta is the plague of green flies, from which the whole city suffers at certain times in the year. The happy hunting time of these minute insects is during the late autumn and early winter. They are a serious nuisance both in and out of doors. They wing their way through all the open doors into the houses and into every room, making life unbearable.

Like most insects, the little green flies have a great affection for the flame. On occasion the inhabitants have found it necessary to put out all the gaslights, even at a public dinner, and to take their meals practically in deep gloom, illuminated only by flickering candles.

Naturally it is not at all pleasant to go on eating with dense clouds of insects swarming overhead or, roasted to death, falling about one in pattering showers.

They seem to spring into existence from nowhere. Perhaps it is almost dusk when the lights of the street lamps are becoming visible. Then suddenly the air, which a moment before was quite clear, is full of myriads of green flies, drifting in misty patches and obscuring the street lamps.

Often the number of insects which have been scorched to death is so great that little heaps of them collect inside the lamps, while bucket loads have to be swept up from the roads next morning.—London Answers.

Judging a Melon.

Is there any way for a purchaser to tell a good melon without cutting and testing it? That is exactly what an expert melon grader is expected to do, to judge the flavor of the melon as well as the size. The best external indication in a netted Gem and melons of similar type is a golden greenish color, the melon being deeply ribbed and thickly overlaid with rather coarse gray netting, the edges of which rise perpendicularly from the surface. The melon should be heavy. There should be no ragged or broken stem to indicate that the melon was torn from the vine before it was ripe enough to part freely. If one follows these points he is pretty sure to get the perfection of melon produced by the quality of the seed planted. If the seed has come from a tasteless melon the result will be disappointing even with thorough culture and the best care in picking and shipping.—Baltimore American.

Bore and Critic Both.

Midnight came and still the bore remained.

"Do you like music?" asked the beautiful girl just to break the monotony.

"Passionately fond of it," replied the bore. "In fact, music will always carry me away."

She rushed over to the piano and played several popular airs.

"You are still here," she said, turning on the stool.

"Yes," yawned the bore.

"But I thought you said music always carried you away?"

"So I did—music!"—Dundee Advertiser.

The Value of a Good Memory.

If men only realized how great an asset in life is a retentive memory they would take care to see that their children's were properly trained. The simplest method consists in learning every day a few lines by heart. None of our faculties can be trained so easily as that of memory. — Stuttgart Familienblatt.

The Pantomime.

"Pop, what is a pantomime?"

"A pantomime is a piece in which no one speaks."

"I shouldn't think a piece with no women in it would be interesting."—Yonkers Statesman.

If you want to know how old a woman is, just ask her sister-in-law.—Atchison Globe.

EDITORIAL.

There are many cheaper ways of committing suicide, but as a rule the man who has an automobile doesn't care for the expense.

The United States Treasurer, Mr. Charles H. Treat, is credited with saying that we should eat seven times a day. It is supposed, from this utterance, that the job of treasurer is even better than was ever suspected.

The political stories about Mr. Taft saying that a dollar a day was enough for a workingman, and Mr. Bryan's designating workmen "Beggars" are among the threadbare and worm eaten stage properties of past campaigns.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

GREAT SHOCK

Death of Of Fred W. Tirrell Blow to Family And Business Men

The sudden death of Frederick W. Tirrell Monday noon was a severe shock to the business men in City Square, many of whom had conversed with him as late as 11.50. Mr. Tirrell was about City Square all the morning, and when he took the 11.50 car for Houghs Neck he was apparently enjoying his usual health.

Arriving at his summer home he started to take a bath. Being unusually long in the bath room the maid became alarmed, and summoned help who broke in the door. They found Mr. Tirrell with his head and shoulders in the water and his feet hanging over the side of the bath tub. He was evidently seated on the edge of the bath tub when he had an attack of heart trouble and fell over.

Some weeks ago he had a severe attack of heart trouble, and was seriously ill, and Monday he probably had a renewal of his former attack.

Word reached the Daily Ledger office after the paper had gone to press. The presses were stopped, however, and a short announcement of the death inserted. Five minutes later before any bulletin was issued, Mrs. Jesse F. Curtis, a sister of Mr. Tirrell, came to the Daily Ledger office to purchase a paper. She had not then been informed of her brother's death and upon taking up the paper the announcement of his death was the first thing she saw. The shock to her was a severe one and for a time she was almost prostrated. The news was also a great shock to his mother, Mrs. Laura Tirrell, and to his widow.

Mr. Tirrell was a son of the late C Philip Tirrell and was born in Quincy March 31, 1865. He received his education in the public schools and at Bryant & Stratton's business college. Leaving school he served a few years apprenticeship at the saddle and hardware business. He then entered the carriage manufactory of his father.

Upon the death of his father in 1892 he assumed charge of the business, and continued it until the manufacture of carriages was given up several years ago. Since that time he has been interested in the laundry business as well as looking after the real estate of the family.

He married Miss Riah E. Dennen, a daughter of Joseph W. Dennen, who survives him.

He was a member of Rural lodge of Masons, having been raised in May, 1898. He was also a member of the chapter the Commandry and Shriners. He was a sargeant of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, and was the first exalted ruler of Quincy lodge of Elks. A few years ago he was the Democratic candidate for Mayor of the city.

In falling his head struck the edge of the bath tub rendering him helpless, sothat he was unable to help himself and he drowned.

FREDERICK W. TIRRELL.

Every Democrat and every Republican who has not already voted at the joint caucuses today should be sure to cast his ballot before 9 P. M.

The first grade in the new Quincy school numbers many wee tots among the entering scholars. This accounts for the quietude that reigns supreme in Atlantic during the school day.

Suburban Press Association Guest of Waltham Watch Company

Members of the Suburban Press Association of New England, accompanied by ladies, spent several hours in Waltham, Monday, guests of the Waltham Watch Co., and the C. F. Hathaway Co., baker. The party of about fifty ladies and gentlemen left the North station, Boston at ten o'clock, in a special car on the Fitchburg division and left the train at Riverview station. In five minutes time under the leadership of Editor Starbuck of the Waltham Daily Free Press—Tribune the visitors were across the Charles River and entering the mammoth building of the Waltham Watch Co. They were met by the officials of the company and with guides escorted through the various departments.

The original factory was built and first occupied in 1854, and in the fifty-four years that have passed since then its enlargement has been gradual, but steady and healthy, until now it constitutes the largest Watch Factory in the World. In 1854 there were about ninety people employed in the factory, and the product of their united labor was five watches per day. In 1907 there was an average number of 4,297 employed, who produced an average of 3,133 watch movements per day. The Company is planning continued enlargement of its facilities, and the near future will probably see a factory in which 6,000 persons are employed. Eight sizes of watch movements are now manufactured, and each size embraces a variety of grades.

There are within a few feet of two miles of main shafting employed in driving the thousands of machines, the aggregate value of which is about $2,500,000. These machines perform the work of manufacturing the (about) 160 pieces which compose a watch movement, and in the making of which 3,746 distinct operations are required.

The Waltham Company maintains its own time system, having its own observatory, transit instrument and standard clock room with two master clocks and a sidereal clock. The clock room is constructed with special care to avoid all jarring and atmospheric or thermometric disturbances. The clocks have been rated for a variation of less than three-tenths of a second a day.

Nearly one-half of the employees of the company are women. All the employes are intelligent, attractive in appearance and skiled in their special work receiving better wages than are paid in any other watch factory in the world. Although there have been attempts by outside labor organizations to unionize the employes so far they have failed.

The president of the company makes it his duty to see that all the employes are satisfied. At twelve o'clock there was a sight long to be remembered when the army of watch makers walked out the driveways to their dinner. While they were gone the visitirs were guests at dinner of the Waltham Watch Co.

The visitors next boarded two special electric cars, and proceeded to the large new bakery of the C. F. Hathaway Co. Gradually outgrowing the facilities of the old shop the company began the erection last year of a modern, concrete, two-story building, with all the latest and best improvements in sanitation and machinery that modern science could suggest.

This new bakery has a capacity of 15,000 loaves of bread, besides the baking of pies, cookies, doughnuts, etc. Twenty-five barrels of flour are used daily. The pay roll is about $600 per week.

After the inspection and sampling of food the members of the press association held their regular monthly business meeting and then the visitors departed for Boston on the 4.09 train having spent a profitable and enjoyable day.

One of the most enterprising housewives on Billings street was asked a few days ago as she stood holding a basket of pears, if she was going to put them up. She smilingly returned that at present she was busy putting them down.

The Candidates Working Hard To Get Out A Large Vote

Polls opened in all wards at 12 o'clock today for the great battle of ballots that will determine who the nominees will for some of the most important offices in the gift of the people. The polls will remain open until 9 o'clock tonight, and the various candidates, friends and ward committees are making every effort to get out a large vote.

Outside of the contest for Lieutenant Governor and Congressman there are several local contests that are creating unusual interest. First there is the contest between County Commissioner John F. Merrill and ex-Senator Eugene H. Sprague for County Commissioner. Then there are contests among the Republicans in both the Fifth and Sixth Representative districts, each district having three candidates seeking the nomination.

In the Fifth district the candidates Walter E. Piper, William R. Thomas and William T. Spargo; and in the Sixth district, Frank E. Badger, Louis F. R. Langelier and Edward J. Sandberg.

The only mixup reported up to the time of the Daily Ledger going to press was in Ward Three. In the State delegates the Frothingham delegates appears under the head of Councillor head. This is causing quite a mix up. The mistake is said to have been caused by an error in marking the nomination papers forwarded to City Clerk Keith. The error was not discovered until this noon, when it was too late to have new ballots printed. Stickers containing the names of the Frothingham delegates: George Prout and Harry S. Nicoll, have been prepared and are being used.

Anyone who desires to attend the caucuses need not walk, for there are as many carriages on duty at the polls as on election days. All the candidates for Lieutenant Governor have carriages, as well as some of the candidates for Councillor. Representatives and County Commissioner.

Congressman O'Connell also has carriages on duty at the polls.

Suicide at Randolph By Shooting

Richard E. Kelly of Boston committed suicide Monday in Randolph, near the Quincy line, by shooting himself in the head with a revolver. Kelly had been in ill health and had become despondent on this account. He selected an unfrequented spot, and no one heard the shot; but Joseph L. Dunne found Kelly lying near the roadside and notified the police. Kelly was still alive, when the police arrived, but died within an hour.

Letters were found in his pocket addressed to Mrs. R. E. Kelly, Boston, and through these he was identified. The body was turned over to an undertaker by the medical examiner.

Miss Grace Lamb of West Quincy has gone to Concord, N. H., where she has accepted a position as a teacher in the public schools. Miss Lamb was graduated from the Quincy High school in 1906. She then took a two years' course in Miss Simond's school of Boston, graduating last June.

SEEING AND LISTENING.

Nearsighted Man Wears Glasses In Talking, but Not In Reading.

"Here's a sort of queer thing," said a nearsighted man. "I am very nearsighted. Strong glasses are indispensable to me for ordinary, general seeing in my goings about, but when I sit down to read I take off my glasses and bring the print up to within the natural focus of the eye. It seems to me that reading with the natural eye I read with a more intimate and a clearer understanding.

"So much for my reading without spectacles, and now here is the thing that is queer to me. If when I am reading thus, with my glasses off, somebody comes along to speak to me, why, then, to get a clear understanding of that question I must have on my spectacles.

"So I say, or I would say if this happened at home where I know the people, 'Wait a minute till I get on my spectacles,' and I would put them on and then say, 'Now go ahead,' and really, with my spectacles on, with my power of seeing at its best, with the sharpest definition of things in general to the eye, I get the clearest apprehension of things said to me.

"So in reading I do best with my glasses off, but in understanding things said to me, in listening, I do best with my glasses on. There is one modification to this—where there is no light, as in a dark room, where I can't see, I can understand equally well with or without glasses."—New York Sun.

QUEER TITLES.

Bestowed on His Favorites by an Emperor of Haiti.

Among the whimsical titles which appear on the pages of national history few are more apparently frivolous than the Duke of Marmalade, the Count of Lemonade and the Earl of Brandy. They are or were, however, real titles bestowed by a genuine monarch on three of his favorites, and that, too, during the last century.

In 1811 a revolution occurred in Haiti, and Christophe, a negro, declared himself emperor. Through conspiracy and plot, his life often attempted, he retained power till 1820, preserving to the last the pageantry of a royal court and creating a numerous nobility. Among them were the three already mentioned, and the oddity of the titles has suggested to many writers the frivolousness of the African character.

In fact, however, all three names were those of places, the first two being originally plantations, but latterly towns of some importance. This not being generally known, a misapprehension has arisen with regard to the titles themselves, which, however absurd, were scarcely more so than some which were bestowed in France and Germany during the middle ages.—Pearson's Weekly.

Liberty.

The spirit of liberty is indeed a bold and fearless spirit, but it is also a sharp sighted spirit. It is a cautious, sagacious, discriminating, farseeing intelligence. It is jealous of encroachment, jealous of power, jealous of man. It demands checks, it seeks for guards, it insists on securities, it intrenches itself behind strong defenses and fortifies itself with all possible care against the assaults of ambition and passion. It does not trust the amiable weaknesses of human nature, and therefore it will not permit power to overstep its prescribed limits, though benevolence, good intent and patriotic purpose come along with it. Neither does it satisfy itself with flashy and temporary resistance to illegal authority. Far otherwise. It seeks for duration and permanence. It looks before and after, and, building on the experience of ages which are past, it labors diligently for the benefit of ages to come.—Daniel Webster.

The Blue Sky.

The blue sky which reveals itself as the hemispherical vault of the firmament in the absence of clouds is the far depths of the air sending back to the observer some part of the solar illumination which they receive. The light thus returned to the eye is "blue" simply because the particles of the air are of such exceedingly diminutive size that they can effectively deal with only the smallest of the luminous vibrations—that is, with the "blue" undulations. There are a few faint interminglings of the other colored rays in the blue of the sky, but they are in such trifling quantity that the blue swallows them up.

The Cricket's Chirp.

The variation of speed in the chirping of crickets depends so closely on temperature that the height of the thermometer may be calculated by observing the number of chirps in a minute. At 60 degrees F. the rate is eighty chirps a minute, at 70 degrees F. 120 per minute, and the rate increases four chirps to the minute with a change of one degree. Below a temperature of 50 degrees F. the cricket is not likely to make any sound.

Vague.

Lady of Uncertain Age—Ah, major, we're none of us as young as we were. Major (absentmindedly, but vaguely aware that a gallant answer is indicated)—My dear lady, I'm sure you don't look it.—Punch.

A Mean Reply.

She—Do you remember that thirty years ago you proposed to me and that I refused you?

He—Oh, yes. That's one of the most treasured recollections of my youth.

Not ignorant of misfortune, I learn from my own woes to aid the wretched.—Virgil.

POLLING PLACES

Councilman Freeman offered an order designating the polling places for the State election of Nov. 3.

Upon motion of Councilman Moir the polling place of Ward Six, precinct one, was changed from Music hall to Edwards store, Sagamore street. The order was then adopted.

HORSE FOR POLICE.

Councilman Broughton offered an order apropriating $300 fo a horse for the police department. Referred to Committee on Police.

REPORT WANTED.

Councilman McGilvray offered an order that the Committee on Licenses report on the application of Mrs. R. A. Pagnet at the next meeting. Adopted.

Adjourned at 8.05 until Oct. 5.

Special of Council.

A venire was received this morning for the drawing of five jurors for the sitting of the superior court in October. This will make it necessary for the Mayor to call a special meeting of the City Council.

The venire was expected and Constable Hayden was at the post office Monday night in hopes that it would arrive in time for the drawing of jurors to have been held at the regular meeting that night. It did not arrive, however, until this morning, having beeen mailed at Dedham at 7 o'clock Monday night. Now 23 men must be called together for that purpose. It seems as though it would be a good idea to notify the clerk of the court the dates upon which regular meetings of the City Council are to be held, so that the drawing may take place on these evenings.

Norfolk County And Vicinity

The First Baptist church of Hyde Park, held the opening exercises in the week's celebration of its 50th anniversary, Sunday, Sept. 20. Large congregations were present at all the services. Rev. Guy C. Lamson gave an historical address in the morning, and Rev. Frank W. Padelford, of Lynn, addressed the congregation at the evening service.

"Tag day" was observed Saturday, in Norwood, under the direction of the district nurse committee of the Norwood Woman's Club. Tags were sold to everybody, and it is estimated that in all $400 were collected. One young woman took in $40 herself.

Capt. Fred Stanley, keeper of the Fourth Cliff life-saving station, at Scituate, is improving rapidly. He has just undergone a surgical operation on one foot.

Mr. and Mrs. George S. Marsh, of Hingham, celebrated the 15th anniversary of their marriage on Sunday, having family party at their home on Cottage street.

Wellesley college has the largest registration this year in the history of the college, there being 450 in the entering class. This brings the total enrollment close to 1400.

Miss Helen Dow of Messinger street, Canton, has gone to Belton, Texas, where she has accepted a position as a teacher in a college.

Esther Hershenson, the 18-months-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Hershenson, of Foxboro, died Sunday from burns received Saturday. The child was in her crib and got hold of some snap matches, with which she set her clothing on fire. She was badly burned about the face and body.

Theodore S. Wilde, one of the oldest and most respected citizens of Holbrook, celebrated his 82d birthday on Sunday at his home on Weymouth street. Mr. Wilde is a Civil war veteran, and has lately devoted his life to farming. He enjoys good health and is in possession of all his faculties.

Mr. Mathews, the Sharon station agent, is attending with his wife, the annual outing of the New England station agents, held at Niagara Falls. The station looks lonely without "Mathews."

GOING BEFORE RETIRING BOARD

Colonel Stewart Again Prominent In the Public Eye

UNFIT FOR MILITARY SERVICE

Physical Examination to Determine Whether He Was Able to Take Test Ride Revealed Partial Blindness and Heart Trouble--Had Been Given Opportunity to Retire but Refused to Do So Unless Promoted

Washington, Sept. 22.—Colonel William F. Stewart of the coast artillery, whose case, because of his detail to the ungarrisoned post at Fort Grant, Ariz., has been before the public for some time, has been ordered to appear before a retiring board at Washington, where he will be examined as to his disability, its nature and whether it was incurred in the line of duty.

This action by Secretary Wrght is the outcome of the physical examination of Stewart by a board of officers at Fort Huachucha, Ariz., when he appeared recently at that post for the purpose of taking the test ride of ninety miles, directed by President Roosevelt. That board reported that the colonel was practically blind in one eye, and that because of this and the additional fact that he had heart trouble, he was incapable for military service. The privilege to take the ride was denied Stewart, the examining board in its report declaring that to do so would endanger his life.

Prompt acquiescence in the department's order is expected of Stewart, and if this is complied with he should reach Washington in a week.

Colonel Stewart's "exile" to Fort Grant dates back a year. Before being sent there, however, he was given an opportunity, while at Fort Barrancas, Fla., to retire, but to this offer Stewart replied: "If appointed brigadier general will retire; if not will remain on duty."

The department's intentions regarding Stewart at the time were to send him to Fort Grant, without command, until he reached the minimum age of 62, permitting his compulsory retirement by the president, unless in the meantime he should voluntarily retire, after forty years' service. When information was sought at the war department as to the basis for such action, the only comment forthcoming was that Stewart was "temperamentally impossible." Stewart, it had been asserted, was unfit for commanding a body of men and he did not get along well with subordinates.

Last spring the case of Stewart was discussed with much warmth in the senate. On two occasions Senator Rayner of Maryland criticised the president for what he termed "his petty attitude" towards Stewart.

Predictions of Revolution

Lisbon, Sept. 22.—Insistent declarations that a revolutionary outbreak in Portugal is impending continue to make their appearance in the local newspapers. A new feature of these reports is the statement that the monarchial extremists, realizing that the Republicans are arming for a revolt, are making ready for their defense by storing secretly large quantities of arms in the convents of Lisbon, where the authorities dare not penetrate. The movement is said to be supported actively by the Clerical party.

Standard Oil Methods

New York, Sept. 22.—Testimony in justification of the business methods of the Standard Oil company was given by Vice President Squires of the Standard Oil company of Ohio in the hearing of the government's suit charging violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. According to Squires, the Standard Oil company of Ohio had never inaugurated cuts in oil prices. Not until rival companies attempted to undersell the Standard had the Standard retaliated by meeting the cuts.

Regulation of Fisheries

Washington, Sept. 22.—That the conclusion of a convention between the United States and Great Britain by which the regulations of the fisheries of the contiguous waters of this country and Canada will be assumed by the two governments marks a distinct epoch in the history of American fisheries was the declaration of the American Fisheries society in a resolution adopted here at its thirty-seventh annual meeting.

Tufts Gets Big Windfall

Medford, Mass., Sept. 22.—A gift of $500,000 to Tufts college under the provisions of the Braker will, recently admitted to probate in New York, was announced to Tufts students last night by President Hamilton at the annual Tufts night to welcome the members of the freshman class. The money is to be used as a foundation for a school of finance and accounts.

Fire Sweeping Forest Lands

North Creek, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Thousands of acres of public and private forest lands surrounding this village are being burned over and if rain does not fall within a few hours the destruction will be widespread. For more than a week the smoke from the fires has been hanging in a thick pall over this village and objects 500 yards distant are partially obscured.

INVESTIGATE and ECONOMIZE.

NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.

On and after September 16, we have decided

TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE

as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods

AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills over due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every day. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and take them with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Now think this proposition over, and we feel confident that you can see it just the way that we do.

SOMETHING THAT IS NEEDED HERE IN QUINCY.

A HIGH GRADE OF GOODS SOLD AT LOW PRICES.

So Remember your 5 per cent discount.

TRYING TO HOODWINK NEGROES

Democrats Pursuing Their Usual Double Faced Policy.

Upholding Disfranchisement In the South While Forming Colored Bryan Clubs In West.

[From the Baltimore Sun, Dem.]

General Winfield S. Hancock, who was the Democratic nominee for president in 1880, declared the tariff was principally a "local question"—that is to say, a Pennsylvania Democrat might be a protectionist for protection's sake, while a Democrat in Georgia or in Iowa might hold fast to the doctrine of a tariff for revenue only. The Massachusetts Democrat might be a free trader without reservation of any kind, while the West Virginia Democrat might be a free trader only with respect to commodities which were not produced by his own state. General Hancock's pronouncement was considered an ingenious evasion of the tariff issue, but it did not produce harmony in the Democratic party, and the general was defeated.

Twenty-eight years have passed since General Hancock defined the tariff as a local question upon which the Democrats of each state were free to act with regard chiefly to local interests. The principle which he then formulated seems to have been adopted by Democrats in the west in respect to the relation of the Democratic party to the negro. Last week the West Virginia Democratic convention embodied in its platform planks demanding certain qualifications for voters, designed to disfranchise many negroes. Their platform also contains a declaration in favor of separate coaches for white and negro passengers on railroads. The West Virginia Democrats not only refuse to hold out the olive branch to the negro and invite him into their fold, but they are determined to limit his political activity by a disfranchising law and to bring him under the operation of a "Jim Crow" law when he travels on the railroads of that state.

What Are the Promises?

Out in Nebraska and in Kansas the Democratic campaign managers are organizing negro voters into Bryan clubs. In Ohio no effort will be spared to secure the support of the negro voters for the Democratic national ticket. What pledges have been given and what inducements have been offered does not appear. But it is a fair inference that the managers have promised to do "something for the negro," perhaps to recognize him in the distribution of offices, if Mr. Bryan should be elected, and also to take such action as the negroes may demand in respect to the reinstatement of the negro battalion dismissed from the army by President Roosevelt for the attack on Brownsville. Last week when the West Virginia Democrats were declaring for a disfranchisement law and for a "Jim Crow" law the Democratic convention in the Twelfth congressional district of Ohio adopted a platform favoring "the enactment of laws which shall accord to all men accused of wrongdoing, whether soldiers or civilians, a fair and impartial trial and an opportunity to be heard before conviction or punishment." This apparently refers to the Brownsville incident. It may also have a broader meaning and a more extended application and may be susceptible of an interpretation which will make southern Democrats open their eyes with amazement and possibly with apprehension.

Race Question "Local Issue?"

There seems to be no ground for reasonable doubt that the Democratic campaign managers in the west, in the effort to secure negro support for their national ticket, are acting upon the principle that the race question is only a "local issue." It is evident that the south does not approve this plan of campaign, but is powerless to check it. The Democracy of the south is in full accord with the position taken by the West Virginia Democrats last week. And yet it is assumed by those who are trying to get negroes to support Mr. Bryan that the south will act in hearty co-operation with the Ohio, Nebraska, Kansas and Illinois Democrats who are welcoming the negro into free fellowship in the Democratic party and probably promising to annul the decision of President Roosevelt in the Brownsville matter. The theory of western Democrats that the race problem is merely a local issue is calculated to give the south much concern. Many Democrats in that section may question whether it is worth while to elect a Democratic president who may open wide the door of political opportunity to the negro.

Chafin Needs an Ark.

"Never since the flood has water reached such a high tide as at present," says the dry candidate for president. Looks as if he might be swept away in the freshet.

Rattling the Skeleton.

Eugene W. Chafin, the Prohibition candidate, was born in Waukesha, Wisconsin's foremost watering place.—New York Mail.

None of the Bryan phonograph records has the speeches advocating free silver and immediate government ownership of the railways, nor have they the "great commoner's" attacks on Roger Sullivan, Colonel Watterson and Guffey. These omissions tell an important story.

EXPENSIVE TEA.

The Famous Golden Tip and the Way It Is Obtained.

The tea looked like golden floss silk, like shredded golden satin, like the fluff of dandelions dyed gold. "And is this tea?" said the reporter.

"This," the tea merchant answered, "is the best tea in the world, and it is worth $90 or more a pound, for this, sir, is the famous Golden Tip. I'll tell you why it is so costly.

"Every chest of the best dollar and a half tea contains some handfuls of undeveloped leaves of small, gold tipped leaves called Flowery Pekoe. Sort out from a chest these leaves; wrap them, a handful at a time, in a square of satin; shake the satin lightly; empty the leaves back into the chest. Clinging to the satin remain a few golden shreds, a golden fluff, a golden lint. You brush it off carefully into a jar. You cull more handfuls of undeveloped leaves from another chest, and, shaking them up in the satin, you are again rewarded with some more golden fluff.

"That is Golden Tip, and by the time you have obtained in this tedious manner a pound of it it is no wonder that the exquisite product is worth $90, or $100, is it?" He shook the tea about in its Satsuma jar. The fluffy golden stuff shimmered like satin. "Only emperors drink it," he said. "A cup costs more than a bottle of champagne."—New York Press.

CAPE COD.

A Nomadic Piece of Land That Is Constantly Changing.

Cape Cod itself is sand and, like everything of a desert nature, is nomadic. Like the Arab, it is always silently stealing away, so that the appearance of the peninsula constantly changes. The prevailing winds in the winter being from the north, the sand is blown south; in summer it is blown t'other way. But, the winter winds being stronger, the land is gradually working south. Monomoy, at the lower end, used to be an island, its extremity being called Cape Malabar, a name not used now—why I cannot say. This island of Monomoy is rapidly growing toward Nantucket, it having advanced some five miles in the last fifty years. One of the Rubes told me that his father used to fish where the light is now. Of course you can always strain Rube talk and pick out about 50 per cent sediment, but the old charts show that the point is working south fast.—From "Knocking About Cape Cod," by T. F. Daly, in Outing Magazine.

Sarsaparilla.

The druggist was serving a couple of men with sarsaparilla.

"Did you ever stop to think where this delicious stuff comes from?" he asked.

"Sassafras, isn't it?" they hazarded.

"Sassafras nothing," said the druggist. "Sarsaparilla is made of zarza roots, and zarza roots come from the Amazonas swamps of Brazil.

"Fearful swamps they are—smelly black mud, mosquitoes in millions, snakes and crabs, heat, poison, orchids, fever. And here the natives camp for weeks at a time gathering zarza roots for the sarsaparilla trade. The vine runs along the ground, the roots are located, and half of them are taken, the remaining half being carefully covered with soil again, so that they will sprout for next year.

"It is because sarsaparilla, like quinine, grows in fever soil that it is good for fever."

Progress.

"Yes," said Mrs. Malaprop, "my boy is doing first rate at school. I sent him to one o' them alimentary schools, and his teacher says he's doing fine. He's a first class sculler, they tell me, and is head of his class is gastronomy, knows his letters by sight and can spell like one o' these deformed spellers down to Washington."

"What's he going to be when he grows up?"

"He wants to be an undertaker, and I'm inclined to humor him, so I've told the confessor to pay special intention to the dead languages," said the proud mother.—Harper's Weekly.

Not a Flier.

"What bird is it," asked the school inspector, "that is found in Africa and, although it has wings, cannot fly?"

The class was unable to answer this very puzzling question. Thinking to encourage them, the inspector offered a sixpence to the little boy or girl who could tell him. After a brief hesitation a little girl of five years put up her hand.

"Well, my little dear," said the inspector, "what is it?"

"Please, sir, a dead un."—London Fun.

Alarming.

"Now, don't tell me any story about misfortune an' wantin' to be a hard worker an' all that," said the hard faced lady. "I can see right through you."

"Gracious!" said Dismal Dawson. "I know I ain't had nothin' to eat for three days, but I didn't know it had thinned me down like that."

Tender Touch.

A man who is rough and awkward at everything else will show a delicacy and skill greater than any woman's when he has to patch a ten dollar bill.—Atchison Globe.

More Than Equal.

Lady—You look robust. Are you equal to the task of sawing wood? Tramp—Equal isn't the word, mum. I'm superior to it. Good mornin'!—Chicago News.

MAXIM'S NEWEST IDEA

Smokeless Powder Inventor Now Plans to Lengthen Life.

TO USE CHLORINE SOLUTION.

Believes He Can Force It by Electricity Through All Parts of Body—Death Dealing Ability Will Be Turned to Killing Disease Germs—Features of His Device.

Hudson Maxim, inventor of the maximite smokeless powder, high explosives and torpedoes which are the most powerful life destroying agents in the history of the world, has suddenly turned his line of effort from the field of death and is working assiduously along lines entirely opposite. His present efforts are being devoted to the perfection of a device that will cure all disease with a solution of chlorine passed through the human body by the aid of electricity.

Already drawings of the cabinet in which the treatment is to be administered have been filed in the patent office at Washington, and the great inventor expects soon to be granted his patent. All that he is now looking for is the proper electric current—one that has a higher potential than any heretofore used safely on the human body.

The great inventor was seen at his villa, situated picturesquely on the shore of Lake Hopatcong, New Jersey.

"I can hardly explain," he said to a reporter of the New York American, "how I turned from the manufacture of instruments of death to the invention of something that will prolong human life. I've seen the success of one, and perhaps I am tired of that and desire something new. I have great faith in my newest idea and hope that it will become a practical part of life, and before long too I wish to say frankly, however, that at the present time it is in embryo, but it is none the less, to my mind, perfectly practical.

"A good deal of experimenting has already been done by different medical men with high potential electric currents, both for the direct germicidal influence of the electricity itself and also for the purpose of passing remedial agents into the tissues, but no great success has yet been attained.

"My idea is to use electric currents of very much higher potential than heretofore. Of course the amperage of the current need not be great.

"A well known process of making chlorate of sodium and chlorate of potash is by passing chlorine out of solution through a partition impervious to the flow of a liquid, but previous to the passage of the molecules of chlorine under the influence of the electric current, so that the potash solution on receiving the chlorine through the impervious partition is converted into chlorate of potash.

"My idea is to interpose the human body as a portion of such partition and to pass chlorine, or an equivalent remedial agent, through the human body by means of a very high potential electric current of low amperage."

"Then do you claim prolonged life for mankind?" was asked.

"By killing the disease germs in a man's body you naturally lengthen his life," responded the inventor.

"But do you claim or expect that you can prolong life indefinitely?" persisted the interviewer.

"No," quickly answered Mr. Maxim, "because death is as much a part of life as is birth. Life can only be prolonged in the human body to a certain point. If my device proves successful we shall be able to do what Bob Ingersoll said he would do if he was God Almighty—'make good health catching.'"

At the request of the reporter Mr. Maxim made a diagram of his new device. It will be a cabinet of considerable size and will be divided into three parts. On either side will be tanks. One will hold an alkaline solution, while the other will contain a solution of chlorine. In the compartment between these two, wherein will sit the patient under treatment, will be another solution, which is the secret of the whole thing. Its nature the inventor refused to make known.

In the two outer compartments are powerful electrodes, and by the electricity as the agent the chemicals from the various solutions will be passed through the body.

The main idea is to interpose the human body as a part of the diaphragm, in electro osmosis, or cataphoresis, and in this way force the germ killing chemicals into and through the human tissues, lymph and blood.

An Interesting Railway.

An interesting railway will be opened in Moscow, Russia, in the near future. The line forms an irregular oval around Moscow at various distances from the city barriers. It intersects all nine of the Moscow railway lines and will be used for transferring goods from one line to another, thereby saving cartage and also considerably relieving the congested state of the streets of Moscow. It will also tap a whole series of factories which have hitherto been off any line.

To Grow Japanese Grasses.

The department of agriculture has succeeded in obtaining 455,000 plants of the grasses used in Japanese matting and will experiment with them in several southern states.

American Patents In Japan.

Arrangements will soon be perfected for the proper protection of American patents in Japan. At present the Japs appropriate anything that suits them.

BETTER THAN SPANKING.

Spanking does not cure children of bedwetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

The Lincoln and Douglas Debates

Commemorating the Anniversary of an Event Which Stirred the Country Fifty Years Ago.

NEXT year will be notable for the celebrations in honor of the centennial of Abraham Lincoln's birth. In the meantime this autumn brings the semicentennial anniversary of the famous Lincoln-Douglas debates which had so much to do with crystallizing sentiment in the north on the slavery issue and defining the questions which were to be settled a few years later through a resort to arms. These debates between Lincoln and his opponent as a candidate for the United States senate from Illinois, Stephen A. Douglas, began at Ottawa, Ill., on Aug. 21, 1858, and continued at intervals of a few days in the towns of Freeport, Jonesboro, Charleston, Galesburg and Quincy and ending with the debate at Alton on Oct. 15.

The occasion for the debates, the struggle for the senatorship, was felt even at the time to be an important one, though just how fraught with import it was could not be realized until the flight of years enabled the historian to show how many and great events hung on the issue of the contest and its sequel. For Lincoln did not win the senatorship. Had he done so possibly he might never have been president.

Douglas was then a candidate for senator to succeed himself. He regarded the election as a stepping stone to the Democratic presidential nomination in 1860. But in order to win the senatorial election in Illinois, where anti-slavery sentiment was strong, he had to make some concessions to this sentiment. In doing so he offended the south and lost its support in the contest for the presidency two years later. At the time of the debates Lincoln was little known outside of Illinois and Douglas had a national reputation as a brilliant orator and a great statesman. He was not in harmony with Buchanan and was opposed by the agents of the administration at Washington. Many Republicans advocated the election of Douglas on the ground that in view of the differences in the Democratic ranks he and his faction of the Democratic party might be won over to the Republican side on the questions becoming of greater and greater moment. Illinois had always been carried by the Democrats in a national canvass up to this time, and everybody expected Douglas to win in the senatorial campaign. He did win, but by a very small margin, and the result, as afterward appeared, meant his speedy elimination from politics. Lincoln, who was then forty-nine, became a national figure at once, and the strength he showed marked him out as the future leader of the party which was to carry to a successful issue the principles he upheld in this famous controversy. The debates occasioned great outpourings of the people, as many as 15,000 sometimes assembling in the open air to hear the battle of words between the orators.

The accompanying portrait of Lincoln shows him as he appeared about the time of the debates and is from an ambrotype taken in Springfield shortly afterward. The owner, W. P. Brown of Philadelphia, gave this account of it: "This picture, along with another of the same kind, was presented by President Lincoln to my father, J. Henry Brown, deceased, miniature artist, after he had finished painting Lincoln's picture on ivory at Springfield, Ill. The commission was given my father by Judge Read (John M. Read of the supreme court of Pennsylvania) immediately after Lincoln's nomination for the presidency. One of the ambrotypes I sold to the Historical Society of Boston, and it is now in their possession." The miniature referred to is now owned by Mr. Robert T. Lincoln. It was engraved by Samuel Sartain and widely circulated before the inauguration. After Mr. Lincoln grew a beard Sartain put a beard on his plate, and the engraving continued to sell extensively.

NEW ROCK DRILLING DEVICE.

One That Lessens Noise and Danger and Hastens Work.

A device to lessen the noise, the annoyance and the danger of blasting in tunnel construction and at the same time to increase the rate of progress in putting tunnels through and in leveling the rocks which rise above grade in many of the unbuilt upon streets of New York is in course of construction in the upper part of the city. Rock dredge would be a fair popular name for the new engine for the penetration of the solid underworld, for it seems by description to scoop up the rock as readily as a steam shovel eats into a sand pile.

This new, many clawed mechanical paw is the invention of Olin S. Proctor, a mining engineer of Denver.

The old rate of progress in the construction of an eight foot tunnel through rock was by hand drills about five feet a day and by air drills and blasting from five to eight feet a day, according to the stories of the friends of the new device.

By Mr. Proctor's invention progress of twenty feet a day is promised, while a rate all the way up to sixty feet a day is confidently expected, with a profit in earning capacity of $500 a day over present methods, to say nothing of the elimination of the noise of blasting and of dangerous accidents.

The new machine is a steel construction twenty-three feet long, running on a track and actuated by an engine of 500 horsepower, with a cylindrical head eight feet in diameter, in which the potent mechanism of the whole operates. This mechanism comprises twenty-four separate drills so directed as to deliver 600 slanting blows a minute upon the face of the rock, the whole head constantly revolving slowly.

The pressure of the head against the face of the rock is kept up by the power of the driving engine, which for this purpose is geared down from 200 revolutions a minute to 100. Then rock chips are gathered up by the rotating head and dumped into receptacles on a conveying belt, which deliver them to cars at the rear of the machine.

Only two men are required to operate the machine, the engineer and a man who keeps busy directing the various details of its work. It is claimed that this machine operates so neatly that it will leave a perfectly safe and solid roof of rock of only eight or nine inches thickness. The machine operates only on a level.

A smaller machine, it is said, has already shown its efficacy in mining in Colorado.

PLANTS AS ANIMALS.

Charles Darwin's Son Says They Have Memory, Habits and Moods.

Francis Darwin, a son of Charles Darwin, the author of "The Origin of Species," who delivered the presidential address at the opening of the British Scientific association at Dublin the other day, is the first botanical president at the association's annual meetings for forty years. Few more imaginative and more original speeches have been delivered from the presidential chair than his, though the scientific audience shook their heads. Mr. Darwin said he appeared as the champion of a lost cause—the doctrine of the inheritance of acquired characters.

His argument was that plants must be classed as animals in the way they respond to touch. He advanced proof to show that plants have memory, can develop habits and behave differently according to what we may call their mood. He went so far, in fact, as to argue that there is in plants something that corresponds very nearly to the nervous system in animals, and he asserted that plants are quite as sensitive to certain agencies as animals and quite as capable of telegraphing from one part of the organism to another.

"We must believe," Mr. Darwin said, "that in plants there exists a faint copy of what we call consciousness in ourselves."

Growth itself, in his view, was a sort of habit, made possible by memory in the cells, so that growth could be changed at any period of progress by the surrounding if not by a sort of free will. These changes in growth are remembered by successive generations and in this way among the plants and lower animals. At any rate, acquired characters not only can but must be inherited if that word is to have any meaning.

Oxygenated Football at Chicago.

Oxygenated football will be played at Marshall field, in Chicago, this fall. It's the same old game, but under the influence of a respectable intoxication produced by the element oxygen. The maroon football players have only to inhale deep drafts from a rubber tube connected with the gas tank to slaughter Illinois, Minnesota, Cornell and Wisconsin, the four teams dreaded by Coach Stagg. The coach will drill his braves down to the moment of the game, and the oxygen will do the rest. Coach Stagg got the idea in London. The British savants made a successful experiment after the Olympic games, and the athletic officials of England believe the oxygen treatment is a valuable discovery in athletics.

Hatboxes In Small Space.

No wonder those women who travel hope that hats soon will shrink to reasonable size, since the space the boxes have taken in trunks has been appalling. However, a little relief has been offered by a clever milliner, who has made a box which may be folded up and laid away at the bottom of a trunk. With no hat in it the box is only one and a half inches high.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

Exit baseball; enter football.

Primaries today. May the best men win.

The joint caucuses are open today till 9 P. M.

The winter time table of the N. Y., N. H., & H. R. R. goes into effect on Sunday, Oct. 4.

Samuel C. Melville of East Howard street has entered the evening law school of the Boston Y. M. C. A.

Quincy will look festive next Saturday with everything tagged for "Tag Day." The tags are all colors and sizes.

Every Democrat and every Republican who has not already voted at the joint caucuses today should be sure to cast his ballot before 9 P. M.

The Quincy High School football season opens Wednesday, when the team goes to Bridgewater to play the team of the State Normal school of that town.

Another Quincy boy has broken into the ranks of league baseball. This time it is Fred Smith of the Makaria team, and he has signed a contract to catch with Providence, Hugh Duffy's Eastern league team.

The scout Cruiser Birmingham, built at Quincy, which last week received orders from Washington, to sail Sept. 22, from the Boston navy yard, will not sail as ordered. She is not yet ready to leave, and it will probably be Oct. 1, before she is prepared to sail.

"Lady Squantum," Dr. W. G. Kendall's beautiful Boston terrier, won two first and the special prize at the South Framingham show on Sept. 16th and on the following day won similar prizes at the Ladies' Kennel club at Riverside. "Squantum Vogue" and "Squantum Somis" French bull dogs, also won the first prizes in their class at these shows.

TODAY'S COURT.

David Duellette, Jr., was fined $15 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

Brockton's Big Show.

The Big Brockton Fair, Sept. 20, 30, Oct. 1, 2, is a fitting finale for the season of out-door enjoyments and pleasure seekers never feel the round of amusement complete until thy have attended this annual feast of entertainment. Over $40,000 in purses and special attractions, the Horse Show, Firemen's Muster, the fastest harness racing horses in the country, stage shows embracing over one hundred vaudeville stars, running races, balloon novelties, cattle and poultry exhibits, three high-class bands, Amateur Athletic meet and Marathon Run, a mile of merry Midway and thousands of happy people all together completing a living picture that fills the mind with memories that brighten the dull, gray days of winter to come. The Brockton Fair is Autumn's tonic for New England.

QUINCY FLEET

Of Submarines In Interesting Manoeuvres About Newport

There is a very remarkable flotilla at Newport under the command of Lieut. Charles E. Courtney. It consists of the submarines Octopus, Viper, Cuttlefish, Tarantula, all built at Quincy and the Plunger. This flotilla has been manoeuvering all summer at Newport, the Octopus going down 107 feet, while the other four worked at a distance of 50 feet below the surface.

One of the most prominent men in the fleet is Lieut. Joseph F. Daniels, who is in command of the Tarantula. He has solved perhaps the greatest difficulties that submarine officers have had to contend with, namely to overcome the cloudiness of the periscope, caused by the salt water. Lieut. Daniels has worked for years on this problem, and although the secret has not been published, those on the inside at Washington say this discovery has been one of the greatest advances in submarine work. Lieut. Daniels started in as an apprentice boy, and worked himself up from the ranks to the position he now holds. This is an example of what can be done by earnest, hard work.

Possibly the most important announcement in regard to submarines is the proposed trip of the flotilla to the Philippines on their own bottoms.

The process required to direct the course of these sturdy little craft is most interesting and is a puzzle problem to the layman.

On going aboard the craft the fortunate visitor is amazed by the mass of machinery crowded into the small hull and the workings of the various mechanisms is beyond conception, yet after he has made a trip and seen the ease with which the boat is controlled, it is not so complicated after all.

Upon entering the hull by way of a hatch abaft the conning, tower, and when everything is ready for sea, the life rail is removed and stowed below and the hatch, which is water tight, securely bolted.

The first thing the officer has to consider is the amount of weight he has on board and to allow for the proper amount of water ballast he must take on board to secure the proper buoyancy. This accomplished, places the craft submerged to a level with the conning tower, or just out of the water.

While the vessel is awash she is running under the gasoline engine, which is directly connected with the electric generator and propeller shaft, and when submerged the propeller is driven by the electric generator.

One man is stationed at the horizontal rudder and he has before him, a guage which indicates the exact position of the vessel to the surface of the water. He steers the horizontal rudder according to orders exactly as the helmsman at the wheel.

When ready to dive the commanding officer makes an observation through the pericope to secure his bearings and then commands the tanks to be filled with water. The depth submerged is indicated on gages, for example, at a depth of 100 feet they show 44 pounds per square inch.

These boats make an average of 6 or 8 knots per hour either on the surface or submerged and during the past week in Buzzards bay they worked for four hours each day at a depth of 50 feet.

Each craft is equipped with two periscopes, one for the conning tower and one for operating below.

The average crew consists of about six men and one officer, although the Octupus, which is the largest of the flotilla, requires 10 men.

The temperature at first seems close and stuffy, but when below the surface it cools off to about the temperature of the water.

Sept. 19, at Merrymount Park; Atlantic, 13; Makaria, 7; Leahy and Fitzgerald; Penley-Michael and Smith.

Total games won—Makaria, 5; Atlantic, 4.

Ovation for Atlantics.

The Atlantic base ball team received great ovation Saturday after their victory over the Makaria's team. The Atlantics were cheered all the way home from Merrymount park.

TENNIS

Tennis at Atlantic.

Daily tennis games on the Atlantic street court still continue. There are many contestants for the champion stand.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

James Gallagher, master boiler maker of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, has purchased the high-speed motor-boat "Minnie" from Capt. Bill Godfrey, foreman of the shipwright department. The "Minnie" has captured several valuable cups this past summer. Capt. Gallagher expects to spend his vacation on a trip along the Maine coast in his new launch.

The Wellman-Seaver-Morgan Co., Cleveland, builders of the immense 100-ton gantry crane on the long concrete wharf at the shipyard, has been awarded by the navy department the contract for installing a 100-ton floating crane at the Bremerton, Wash., navy yard at the contract price of $230,000.

According to the Moniteur de la Flotte, the funds set apart for the Japanese navy for the year 1908-1909 amount to $42,498,150. The sum for new ships amounts to $10,710,570, and that for their armament to $4,871,000. The new ships are to be provided with boilers fitted for liquid fuel firing.

Canada has ruled out steam trawlers, that is from fishing within the three-mile limit, but similar action in this country will have no effect on the steam trawler Spray built at Quincy. The Spray does now and always will fish hundreds of miles off the coast. An order in council passed by the government of the Dominion of Canada prohibits fishing by means of steam trawlers within the bays and harbors of the Dominion, or within the three-mile limit. The order is a result of recent attempts to introduce this means of taking fish by trawlers from Scotland and the North sea, where this method is in common use. The government took prompt action to prevent the extermination or serious diminution of the fish supply.

THE BIG LEAGUE FIGHTS

Contestants For Pennants Are All Closely Bunched

If anything had been needed to make of more absorbing interest to baseball enthusiasts the series to be begun today between the New York and Chicago National League teams, yesterday's happenings on the baseball diamond supplied it.

New York was again obliged to lower her colors to Pittsburg in a close game, and as Chicago won both ends of a double header the present leaders lost a great part of the advantage they had gained by their recent scoring of successive victories. This morning the New Yorks have a lead of but 20 points over Chicago. Four games will probably be played by these two clubs in the present series, and by winning them all Chicago would assume the lead in the National League race. An even break, or even the winning of one game out of four, however, would still leave the leaders in first position. In the meantime Pittsburg, seven points behind Chicago, will be playing in Brooklyn, and not inconceivably may gain substantially on one or both of the two clubs now preceding it in the standing. The standing of the three leading teams:

| | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| New York | 87 | 48 | .644 |
| Chicago | 87 | 53 | .624 |
| Pittsburg | 87 | 54 | .617 |

Pittsburg, 2; New York, 1. Willis and Gibson; Mathewson and Bresnahan.

Chicago, 3; Philadelphia, 1. Kroh, Overall and Kling; Sparks and Dooin; Chicago, 3; Philadelphia, 2. Coakley and Kling; McQuillin and Dooin.

Cincinnati, 8; Boston, 5. O'Toole, Dubec and Schlei; McCarthy, Ferguson, Graham and Bowerman.

Brooklyn, 8; St. Louis, 3. Rucker and Farmer; Lush, Sallee, Raymond and Bliss.

American League

Not less interesting and even closer is the race in the American League, which yesterday witnessed the displacement of Detroit from the leadership, assumed now by Cleveland. Only five points behind Detroit is Chicago, also a winner yesterday, with St. Louis keeping up the pace 13 points to the rear of Chicago and with only 20 points between St. Louis, in fourth place, and Cleveland. The standing of the leading quartet is as follows:

| | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| Cleveland | 81 | 60 | .574 |
| Detroit | 79 | 59 | .572 |
| Chicago | 80 | 61 | .567 |
| St. Louis | 77 | 62 | .554 |

Cleveland, 5; New York, 3. Berger and Bemis; Lake, Warhope and Blair.

Boston, 4; Detroit, 3. Burchell and Criger; Killian and Thomas.

Chicago, 2; Philadelphia, 0. Walsh and Sullivan; Schlitzer and Powers.

St. Louis, 5; Washington, 0. Powell and Spencer; Keeley and Street.

Barnes Bows to Party's Will

Albany, Sept. 22.—Standing on the steps of the state Capitol last night William Barnes, Jr., Albany county Republican leader, in introducing Governor Hughes to a host of serenaders pledged to the Republican state ticket the earnest support of the Albany county Republican organization. Barnes had opposed the renomination of Hughes at the recent state convention, but, bowing to the will of the party, he declared last night, it becomes the duty of the minority to proceed in united column against their opponents Governor Hughes, addressing the crowd that had gathered on the Capitol green, tendered his thanks for the good will expressed by the assemblage. The governor lauded the national candidates, referred briefly to national and state issues and in conclusion urged harmony and co-operation.

Hatters' Demands Refused

Danbury, Conn., Sept. 22.—The employes of the making department of the hat factories of E. A. Mallory & Sons and H. McLachlan & Co. quit work because their demands for money deducted from their pay envelopes to pay for hats damaged in course of manufacture were refused. Following this action the forming mills in a majority of the factories were shut down by the manufacturers.

Two Charged With Murder

New Haven, Sept. 22.—A true bill of murder in the first degree was brought in by the grand jury against Raffaelo Carfano and Guiseppi Compagnolo, aged 21 and 27 years, respectively, charging them with shooting to death George D. Sheehan.

White People In Danger

Windhoek, German Southwest Africa, Sept. 22.—The native leader, Simon Copper, again is on the wathpath and the white inhabitants of the eastern division of the protectorate are in danger.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Thomas and Langelier Win

Luce Ahead In City for Nomination as Lieut. Governor

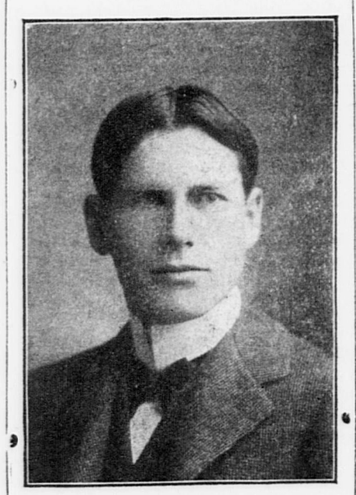

With contests in nearly every ward of the city on the Republican ticket, the caucuses of Tuesday were long drawn out affairs. A large vote was polled throughout the city and owing to the splits in the vote it took considerable time for the complete returns to be complied. Up to 11.30 not a return of any kind, official or unofficial, had been received.

At that hour the Ward Two official returns made their appearance. From then on the returns came in slowly until 2.54, when Ward Five was received and the City Clerk shut up shop for the night.

The greatest local interest was in the contests for Representatives. The Repubicans of both districts had three candidates in the field, and it was a case of hustle all day in the three corner fight.

In the Fifth district, comprising Wards One, Two and Three, the contest narrowed down between Walter E. Piper and William R. Thomas. The third candidate William T. Spargo did considerable hustling, but he failed to carry even his own ward. Mr. Thomas carried Wards One and Two, the former by 100 votes and the latter by 44 votes. Mr. Piper carried his home ward by 132. This was not enough to win, and the nomination goes to Mr. Thomas, the ex-City Solicitor by 12 votes.

In the Sixth districts the Republican contest was between ex-Representative Frank E. Badger, ex-Representative Edward J. Sandberg and ex-Councilman Louis F. R. Langelier. Mr. Sandberg carried his own ward by 80 votes, but he fell off in Wards Five and Six, receiving a total in the district of 220. Mr. Badger was low man, receiving hardly more than a complimentory vote in any ward. Mr. Langelier, who won the nomination, carried Ward Five by 195 votes, and

W. R. THOMAS.

Ward Six by 117 votes, giving him a grand total of 477, and a plurality of 257.

For County Commissioner, John F. Merrill carried every ward but Ward Four, defeating Mr. Sprague in the latter's own ward. The Ward Four list was unpledged, but was claimed by Mr. Sprague. In Ward One the Merrill list ran from 334 to 360 and the supposed Sprague list from 100 to 106. In Ward Three both lists were unpledged the supposed Merrill list receiving 227 and 234, while the supposed Sprague list received 142 and 165. In Ward Five the Merrill delegates received from 237 to 252, while the Sprague list ranged from 151 to 173. In Ward Six the supposed Merrill list received 154 and the supposed Sprague list 117.

For Senator, Representative Hultman had no opposition and therefore secured every delegate.

There was one other local contest and that was over the Councillor delegation. Arthur P. Bussell the local candidate carried every ward. In Ward One the largest Russell vote was 247 and the largest Codman vote 186. In Ward Two, Russell had 129 and Codman 61. Ward Three an unpledged list had 198 and Codman 69. In Ward Four, Russell had 97 and Codman 32. In Ward Five, Russell 262, Codman 155. In Ward Six unpledged list 139, Codman 111.

I. F. R. LANGELIER.

There was quite a spirited contest over the State delegates. But one list was designated, favorable to Cole. That was in Ward One. There was a list in every ward favorable to Luce and a list in every ward supposed to be favorable to Frothingham. Some of the latter were so marked on the ballot and some were not. The Frothingham list won out in Ward One. In Ward Two the delegation was a split between an unpledged list and Luce, each receiving one delegate. In Wards Three and Five, the Luce delegation won out. Ward Four elected an unpledged delegation supposed to be favorable to Frothingham. In Ward Six the unpledged, or supposed Frothingham list, won out. There was quite a mix up in Ward Three from the fact that the two Frothingham delegates appeared under the head of Councillor, so that Frothingham was not represented.

When the secretary of City Committee forwarded the papers to the City Clerk to be printed on the ballot he made a mistake and wrote the words Councilller on the paper instead of State. The City Clerk had no way of knowing why the marks were not right, and the ballots were printed according to the way they were marked by the City Committee.

The largest vote received by each delegation in the several wards was: Ward One,—Frothingham, 194; Luce, 143; Cole, 109. Ward Two,—unpledged, 106; Luce, 84; Ward Three—Luce, 240; unpledged, 162. Ward Four—Unpledged, 115; Luce, 42. Ward Five—Luce, 232; unpledged 192. Ward Six—Unpledged, 151; Luce, 114. This gives Luce 7 delegates, Frothingham 3, and unpledged 5.

There was no contest in any ward over the nomination of J. Mitchell Galvin for Congressman on the Republican ticket.

The delegates elected:

STATE CONVENTION.

WARD ONE—(Favorable to Frothingham) George E. Adams, Joseph L. Whiton, Jr., Arthur W. Stetson.

GREAT BREACH IN GUN TURRET

Big Gun Explodes on French Armored Cruiser

CREW OF THIRTEEN MEN DEAD

Killed Outright, While Many Others Are Seriously Injured--Dismembered Bodies Hurled In All Directions, Causing a Horrible Spectacle --Most Rigid Investigation Likely to Be Made

Toulon, France, Sept. 23.—During gunnery drill, one of the big turret guns on the French armored cruiser Latouche Treville exploded with terrific violence, completely wrecking the after turret and killing outright the entire gun crew of thirteen. A number of men were seriously injured, some of them probably fatally.

The accident was similar to that aboard the gunnery schoolship Couronne off Les Salina d'Hyeres Aug. 12 last, when, by the bursting of the breach of one of the guns, six men were killed and eighteen injured.

The drill yesterday had been proceeding for a considerable time when, without warning, the whole turret seemed to blow out. Dismembered bodies were thrown in all directions and several of them were hurled into the sea through the great breach caused by the explosion.

The spectacle was horrible, the dead and wounded, together with shattered arms and legs, littering the decks. A call to quarters was sounded and as speedily as possible the wounded were cared for.

The gun that exploded was 7.6 inches bore, of which the cruiser carried two. Happening so soon after the accident on the Couronne the explosion has caused a sensation in naval circles and doubtless will lead to a most rigid investigation.

The Latouche Treville carries a complement of 370 men.

Whole Village Starved to Death

Seattle, Sept. 23.—Frozen stiff and evidently dead for a long time, all the inhabitants of a village of Siberian Esquimo were found on the Siberian coast by a party of Indians who went in a canoe to see their comrades. Their provisions exhausted, the Esquimo had eaten the walrus skin covers from their houses and the clothing that covered them. This tale is told by Rev. Edward O. Campbell, who is in charge of the Presbyterian mission station at St. Lawrence island, in a letter received by Rev. Wallace Lee of Seattle.

Flurry In Stock Market

New York, Sept. 23.—The stock market showed more disturbance yesterday than at any time since the troubled period of last October in the time of the panic. Sensational and repeated downward plunges in prices followed each other, and it was not until late in the day that any material relief was shown from the drastic purging process under way. Enormous lines of stocks were thrown upon the market without apparent regard to the price they would bring. The day's sales aggregated 1,436,000 shares.

Prepared to Combat Disease

New York, Sept. 23.—Dr. Doty, health officer of the port of New York, declares that he is not at all disturbed by the wide spread of cholera, bubonic plague and yellow fever in various parts of the world from which immigration comes to America. In the event, however, of the appearance of cholera here it would be met, he says, by "the most thoroughly equipped and disease-fighting and preventive system in the world."

Death of Artist Howarth

Philadelphia, Sept. 23.—F. M. Howarth, aged 43, one of the best known comic artists in the country, died at his home in Germantown from pneumonia. He is credited with having originated the comic series, using the same characters day after day, in the newspapers. Two of his best known series were "E. Z. Mark" and "Lulu and Leander."

Full Time and Lower Wages

Palmer, Mass., Sept. 23.—The 600 operatives employed at the cotton mills of the Thorndike company have been notified that a reduction in wages will go into effect on Monday next and that the plant will go on a full-time schedule at the same time. The mills have been running only four days a week since last November.

Cholera Receding at Manila

Manila, Sept. 23.—Official reports give only eleven deaths and thirty-six new cases of cholera for the twenty-four hours ended at 8 o'clock this morning. This is the smallest gain made by the plague in several days.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. While now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams Street, Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

FOOLED BOTH WAYS.

The Experience of a Visitor In a Lunatic Asylum.

"I was staying," says a writer in the Liverpool Mercury, "with an uncle who was on very friendly terms with a doctor who kept a private asylum and who occasionally gave a dance for the patients, while also inviting some of his friends.

"During my visit we received an invitation, and on the appointed evening we arrived to find the room crowded with people all in evening dress.

"My first partner was a man whom I thought looked decidedly queer, such a restless, hunted expression in his eyes, and occasionally during the dance he stopped and glanced searchingly around. Dear me, how glad I was when the dance was over, and, making some excuse, I hurried away, only to run up against my hostess and to be introduced to my second partner.

"Ah, me, what a handsome man, and, girl-like, I fell head over ears in love. I put out my most bewitching ways and hoped I looked my best and took care that I helped him find a cozy corner for the sit-out.

"It was delightful, and I was just lamenting that it was about time for the next dance when, horrors, clutching hold of my hand and frantically waving his other hand, he started roaring out texts, when suddenly, to my relief and astonishment, who should come up, followed by two men, but my first partner, whom I found to be a doctor, while my handsome partner was a religious maniac!"

AUSTRALIAN RAIN.

When It Does Fall It Pours Down In a Perfect Flood.

How different things are in the old world from what they are in the far-away tropics!

"They had no rain here for a fortnight, and they called it a drought!" wrote an Australian from Scotland in a scornfully superior tone calculated to induce the belief that it never rains in Australia and that droughts last a hundred years. Not so. Australia is the land of contrasts. A drought has lasted for seven years. But what is there even in Scotland to compare with the persistency of Australian rain when it does see fit to fall?

For eleven weeks without stopping did the rain continue to moisten the dry places of Sydney some years ago, washing out most cruelly the brief, bright season of winter, when the Australian looks for living instead of existence and peace instead of pressure. And what rain! It shot from the clouds like arrows, and the whole world was a battlefield during that July. As the arrows darted into the earth the earth rose and dashed into the air, and rain and mud met and grappled with each other day after day, night after night, week after week. And the battle was neither to the rain nor to the mud. A strange and horrid situation arrived. Sydney ran clean out of galoches.

For two weeks not a galoche was to be had in the rain drenched city for love or money. Then a fresh shipload arrived from somewhere or other. And then—the rain stopped!—London Mail.

One Trouble After Another.

"I have just found out about the woman opposite me after two years of mystery and anxiety," said the flat dweller. "She is a pretty, fat, rolly poly woman with a white complexion who sits at her window half of her time doing nothing. She has a boy of about ten. Her life seemed so simple and still I didn't see how she lived. Evidently she didn't support a husband, but who supported her? The thing worried me, but last night I found how it was. Her husband is a violin player who plays all night long at some concert hall and sleeps the livelong day. I'd rather work for my living than keep the house quiet for a husband who has to sleep all day, then gets up just at the time you want to go out for a little rollicking and plays the violin somewhere." — New York Press.

Gathering Roses.

I've gathered roses and the like in many glad and golden Junes, but now, as down the world I hike, my weary hands are filled with prunes. I've gathered roses o'er and o'er, and some were white and some were red, but when I took them to the store the grocer wanted eggs instead. I gathered roses long ago, in other days, in other scenes, and people said, "You ought to go and dig the weeds out of your beans." A million roses bloomed and died; a million more will die today. That man is wise who lets them slide and gathers up the bales of hay. —Emporia Gazette.

Setting It Right.

"In your paper this morning, sir, you called me a 'bum actor.' I want an explanation."

"I shall be happy to explain, young man. That word 'actor' was inserted by the proofreader, who thought I had omitted it accidentally. I shall take care that it doesn't happen again."—Chicago Tribune.

Pumps.

"Women," declared she, "have bigger intellects than men."

"I won't dispute it," responded he. "A man can't wear footgear that has to be kept on by mental power alone." —Kansas City Journal.

Hairbreadth.

Stella—I suppose you have had many hairbreadth escapes? Knicker—Yes; a woman's coiffure was all that kept me from seeing a play once.—Harper's Bazar.

The amity that wisdom limits not, folly may easily untie.—Shakespeare.

"BRYAN CAN DO NO HARM."

A Frequent Statement That Will Not Bear Analysis.

The apologetic Democrat who wants to remain regular and who has swallowed Bryanism takes care to repeat as often as he is accused of inconsistency that Mr. Bryan can do no harm even if he is elected. It is time that this statement was met and smashed. Mr. Bryan if elected could and would do a great deal of harm in so many ways that it is almost impossible to enumerate them. In the first place, he would have an opportunity during his term to pack the supreme court, and no one doubts that he would so pack it that the confidence of the American people in its greatest institution would be lost or severely shattered.

Mr. Bryan would appoint a cabinet from his friends and not from his enemies, and it must be admitted that the best men in the Democratic party are not close friends of Mr. Bryan. He would appoint judges and district attorneys throughout the country who would carry out his designs as far as possible, but the greatest harm of all that could come upon the people through the election of Mr. Bryan would be the loss of confidence in business circles and the probable stagnation that would come over the country and remain for four years at least.

There is no measuring this blight that would come to our nation through the election of William J. Bryan. We endured it from 1893 to 1896 under a Democratic president of far sounder views and much more stable character than the present Democratic candidate for president. Mr. Bryan as a weather vane would be a great success, but as a president he would not only be a failure, but failures would come to every American institution and every American industrial center.

A "tariff for revenue only" means a general reduction of wages. There is no possible alternative.

REASON FOR CONVERSION.

Why the Baltimore Sun Decided to Support Taft.

[From the Baltimore Sun, Dem.]

It is our deliberate judgment that for the next four years the material interests of the people of this country would be safer with Mr. Taft at the head of the national government than with Mr. Bryan. We further believe that, while lawbreakers would be brought to account by Mr. Taft with as little fear or favor as Mr. Bryan could display, the methods employed by Mr. Taft would not curtail the workingman's opportunities for employment by disturbing the business of law abiding men and corporations as has been witnessed in the last few years.

Mr. Taft's experience in important administrative posts, his judicial temperament, his patience and thoroughness in investigation, justify the belief that as president he would execute the law faithfully and well, but not spectacularly. And, while this type of man ought to be in the White House all the time, he seems to be especially needed now, when the country is emerging from an industrial and financial depression which brought distress and suffering into many homes.

No weather vane for president. Our chief magistrate should have settled views, sound principles and honest methods.

Imagine It!

In commenting on the appeal made by Mr. Bryan to the farmers asking them to contribute to his campaign fund and to send their contributions to his personal newspaper office the New York Sun caustically asks its readers to imagine if they can "James Buchanan or Stephen A. Douglas or John C. Breckinridge or General McClellan or Horatio Seymour or General Hancock or any other Democratic candidate for the presidency save and except William Jennings Bryan demanding money from the farmers of the United States in order to put him in the White House?"

Mr. Bryan is reported as already planning what he will do when he is elected president. Mr. Bryan's ability to dream without the aid of narcotics is one of his most enviable characteristics.

Measures Up to Requirements.

Mr. Sherman says much in little space in his speech formally accepting the Republican nomination for vice president and says it admirably. The New Yorker on the Republican national ticket measures up to the requirements of his post and shows the qualities of an experienced and responsible public man in his acceptance address. —New York Mail.

Does any one doubt that Lincoln would support Taft in preference to Bryan?

The Democratic convention made a collective fool of itself by pledging the passage of a law forbidding contributions by corporations, a law which the last Republican congress passed.—Philadelphia North American.

Mr. Kern's record far outshines that of Mr. Bryan, since the latter was once elected to an office to which he was nominated—representative in congress—while the former's proud catalogue of repeated defeats is dimmed by no stain or blemish.

YOU COULD See This CITY GROW

If Your Dollar
Circulated in Quincy.

Why Do Country Boys Flock to Big Cities?

Most small towns are short of young men. As a rule there are plenty of agreeable girls who would not object to matrimony; there are plenty of old people and enough babies to go around. But the boy—oh, where is he?

The boy, the young man, has gone to the city, where he imagines there are opportunities. To him the old home town is dull and stupid. He sees no future for himself there. Both for social and financial considerations he rushes off to the great city. Very frequently he finds that he is lonesomer there than at home—nearly always so; and even more frequently he finds that riches do not grow on ten story walls.

BUT STILL HE GOES TO THE CITY.

In going there the boy simply follows his daddy's dollars. For years his daddy and his mother and his big sister and his Aunt Mary Ann have been mailing their money to the big city for Mail Order bargains.

Result: Home merchants don't thrive, grass grows in the streets, no jobs are to be had, no opening for a new business, and the young man goes to the city because it is a place where people have traded at home and built up their own community and provided opportunities for outsiders as well as for themselves.

CITY OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace Of Two Burial Place Of Two

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grandfather of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

BIRTHPLACES OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace of John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States, Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Admission charged.

Birthplace of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of the old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponsit river.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) at Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural momuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. The funeral of John Quincy Adams was held in this church. Beneath the entrance is the Adams tomb, reached by stairways from the vestibule. Near the tomb is the box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams, also the old town hearse. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock cemetery across the street from First church contains many old stones. Among the old graves are those of Henry Adams founder of the Adams family who died Oct. 5, 1646; Rev. William Thompson, 1st pastor over the Braintree church who died Dec. 10, 1666; Rev. Henry Flint who died Oct. 11, 1668; Rev. John Hancock father of the Patriot who died May 7, 1744 and many other notable people.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

DOROTHY Q. HOUSE.

Hancock street, corner Butler road, Quincy, Old Quincy homestead in which Dorothy Q was born. Owned by the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames. Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting feature. Open free to the public on Saturdays, from 11 A. M. until 4 P. M. Other days admission charged

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 30, 1621, guided by the Indian Tisquantum.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

THE ACT OF DYING.

Reasons For Believing That It Is an Easy Matter.

The mere ultimate process of dying may be a relatively easy matter. Any person who has been long ill probably suffers more on any given day of his life than he will suffer in the act of departing from his body. It is probable that a broken bone, a delirious fever, a disordered vital organ, may cause more anguish than the final struggle. I have my doubts whether the last pang is as bad as it seems, declares Elizabeth Stuart Phelps in Harper's Bazar. We are told by surgeons that chloroformed patients may give apparent evidence of acute agonies which they do not feel. Death itself is often an anaesthetic so merciful that what people call "living trouble" is obviously a worse matter.

I, for instance, who have never fainted and never been anaesthetized in my life, have twice become from serious causes unconscious for a short time, and I have often wished that I could make over to some recoiling soul whose name has been heard ringing upon the last roll call the unspeakable comfort which that brief experience has given me. There was no pang, no terror, no time, no chance, for either. One seemed to glide gently and swiftly down a warm abyss, flower scented, grass grown, safe and beneficent, into unutterable content. One melted into peace. One drifted into ecstasy beside which the deepest joys of consciousness are poor, pale things.

If one in truth should evade the body in such a moment, death would stand chosen as the supreme delight of living.

HIS THREE WIVES.

They Were All In One Picture, but Did Not Stay There.

Allan Cunningham in his "Lives of British Painters" tells a story of Copley, the father of Lord Chancellor Lyndhurst, which reveals what a portrait painter endures from the vanity and eccentricity of his sitters.

A certain man had himself, his wife and seven children painted by Copley in a family piece.

"It wants but one thing," said the man on seeing the finished picture, "and that is the portrait of my first wife. This one is my second."

"But," replied the artist, "she is dead. What can I do? She must come in as an angel."

"Oh, no; no angels for me. She must come in as a woman."

The portrait was added, but several months elapsed before the man again called at Copley's studio, and when he did a strange lady held on to his arm.

"I must have another sketch from your hand, Copley," said he. "An accident befell my second wife. This lady is my third, and she has come to have her likeness included in the family picture."

The painter introduced the likeness of wife No. 3, and the man expressed himself satisfied with the portraits of his three spouses. But the lady remonstrated. Never was such a thing heard of. Her predecessors must go. The artist painted them out. Then the man disputed the price. Copley sued him, and his son, the future Lord Lyndhurst, signalized his call to the bar by gaining his father's cause.

A Bad Dream.

It is not likely that any English speaking people understand so keen and punctilious a devotion to the niceties of language as that which characterizes the French grammarians. We may help ourselves to understand it perhaps by reading a story told of M. Lamany.

One night he awoke and sprang out of bed with a wild cry. His wife came running. He was in alarm and despair.

"Why, what is the matter?" she gasped.

"I dreamed," said the professor. "Oh, I had a horrible, a heartrending dream!"

"What was it?"

"I dreamed I was talking, and I distinctly heard myself utter a sentence which had a grammatical error in it!"

Couldn't Miss the Chance.

One scarcely looks for humor in an undertaker, but that this, like most rules, has its exceptions was proved recently in Scotland. A tract distributer had affixed this text to a tree on the highroad, "It is appointed to man once to die." This was too good an opportunity to be missed by the local purveyor of coffins, who promptly added the following announcement: "Funerals economically furnished by Blank."

Honor.

"What they call 'honor' is a mighty curious thing," observed Uncle Jerry Peebles. "I know a man who would cheerfully starve himself to pay a gamblin' debt, and he still owes the preacher that married him twenty-seven years ago."—Chicago Tribune.

Art In the Soup.

The artist's wife leaned over and looked at her husband's soup after she had handed it to him.

"Oh," she cried, "look at the scroll the fat has made in your soup. Isn't it artistic? Don't eat it. It is so beautiful."

Forced Economy.

"Poor Tom, it cost him a terrible lot to give up his sweetheart."

"Then why did he?"

"Because it would have cost him a great deal more if he hadn't."—London Tatler.

You have only got to owe a man money to appreciate what a small place the world is.—Lloyd's Weekly.

Holed Out and Pulled the Hole In After Them.

Up to about 1869 the Mammoth Cave of Kentucky was widely advertised by its owner. But the owner died that year and left the cave to thirteen heirs scattered over the country. The lucky thirteen devoted themselves to dreams of spending the big income which the cave had been earning for many years because it had been advertised. But they forgot to keep up the advertising.

Now the cave is visited by comparatively few persons instead of by many thousands annually, as in the days when it was advertised.

But the great cave conveys a lesson to every business man. If you quit advertising, your place will be ignored by the public even more than Mammoth Cave is ignored, because you are not even a natural curiosity.

BETTER HOME LIFE.

Reform Urged by the President In American Families.

PRESENT STATE NOT IDEAL.

Husbands, Wives and Children Live Too Far Apart, He Says—Declares We Can Pattern From Foreigners. His Family Club Idea Explained by Secretary Loeb.

President Roosevelt, in khaki attire, attended the garden party given on the grounds of John Weekes, Jr., at Oyster Bay, N. Y., the other afternoon for the benefit of the Nassau hospital and during his stay remarked to a number of men, women and children who had congregated around him that he deplored the conditions existing in American family life.

He had visited and enjoyed many exhibits on the grounds and was then escorted to a Swedish and Norwegian weaving booth, decorated with red, white and blue. He regarded the weaved goods displayed there with intent.

"Is this still done in Sweden?" he asked.

When told it was he remarked:

"I hope the Swedes who come here to live will keep their work up. I want to see all the good customs of the old countries transplanted and thriving here. I want the Germans who come here to keep up their clubs and societies, where the fathers, mothers and children visit together. I have worked to bring about a general observance of such a system. It has been hard work, however, but I still have hopes.

"Here in America," he went on, raising his voice so all who had grouped about the booth could hear, "our husbands and wives live too far apart.

"If a man joins a club or organization his wife will have nothing to do with it. If a wife belongs to a society nothing apparently will induce her husband to have anything to do with it. We must have a better family life here in America and learn lessons from Sweden, Norway and Germany. These countries give us some of our best citizens.

"Look at prosperous Minnesota, where men of Swedish and Norwegian parentage are rival candidates for governor. It's good—very good. I hope we have more of it."

When President Roosevelt was interviewed the next day he declined to state directly what ideal club and home conditions he is working for in America as announced in his informal talk at Mrs. John Weekes' garden party.

Late in the evening, however, Secretary Loeb stated that he had become fully conversant with the president's wishes along the social line and believed that it was one of the most important pieces of work undertaken by Mr. Roosevelt.

By stating that he had been working for a social condition in which entire families would belong to the same clubs the presideot is said to have meant that he had constantly advocated such a condition and had shown marked consideration to organizations made up of entire families.

The president believes that the growing divorce record and the constantly increasing extravagance in America are due to a growing indifference to home life. He believes that men and their wives are being educated to have absolutely diverse lines of entertainment and that the condition can be remedied by providing a society system that will arrange better for their mutual interests.

"The splendid social systems in Germany, for instance, or in Denmark or Sweden, or the societies among the Jewish people," said Mr. Loeb, "are what the president hopes to see established here. He wishes to see it made popular for entire families to take their evening entertainment together, to see places provided where they can meet other families amid enjoyable surroundings.

"The president has worked hard along this line. He never has hesitated to go out of his way to address societies made up of men and women both and help them plan to extend their work. Often he has given such societies preference over much larger organizations composed simply of men.

"His present plans for a farmers' commission has this point chiefly in view. By providing agreeable meeting places for the families in farming districts, the president believes, the boys and girls will grow up to love country life and not be so constantly drawn to the cities."

The president, it was explained, believes that the farmers' families of the country should combine, much as they have combined in Denmark, and provide themselves with many benefits in a social way never before thought of.

What would be true of the farming districts, the president believes, would be true in the cities. He believes that the majority of men and women would prefer to have their entertainment in company if the proper system of societies and clubs be arranged.

In the president's next message to congress it is intimated that he will have a unique idea to advance along this line.

Collecting Eskimo Data.

The American Museum of Natural History and the Canadian geological department are working together in the collection of an immense amount of data about the Eskimo.

PRIVATE HOWARD ARRESTED

Fort Rodman Artilleryman Charged With Murdering Wife

New Bedford, Mass., Sept. 23.—Following an investigation covering two days, Private William C. Howard of the corps of United States artillery, stationed at Fort Rodman, was placed under arrest by the civil authorities on a charge of murdering his wife, Ida, whose body was found floating in the Apponegansett river in the town of Dartmouth on Sunday.

When the body was taken from the water no marks were found upon it except an abrasion behind one ear. The case was thought to be one of suicide, but the police investigated the case carefully, with the result that it was decided to arrest the artilleryman.

Howard was arrested several months ago on a charge of shooting and killing Edward Dewhurst at Hazelwood Park, but was acquitted on the ground that Dewhurst interfered with the soldier and a young woman who were sitting together in the park.

Howard married a young girl in Sevelrville, Tenn., before he came to New Bedford. The two did not agree, and last month Mrs. Howard had her husband arrested for non-support and they separated. Before the separation, Howard, during a quarrel over his wife's charge that he was friendly with other women, told her that he was the man who shot Dewhurst three years ago, and Mrs. Howard notified the police.

ESTHER HILBERT'S BODY IS FOUND

Coroner Renders a Verdict of Suicide by Shooting

Chesterfield, Mass., Sept. 23.—That Esther A. Hilbert of Philadelphia, aged 19, whose body was found in the woods a short distance from her mother's summer home in this town yesterday afternoon, committed suicide by shooting through the head with a revolver, was the verdict of Medical Examiner Kimball, after an autopsy. This report dispels the theories of foul play that have been circulated since the girl's disappearance from home a week ago Sunday.

No reason is known for the suicide. The girl had been studying during the summer in preparation for the entrance examinations to Smith college and just before Esther left the house her mother asked here if she dreaded going away to college.

"Why, no, mother," the girl said. "What makes you ask such a question?"

These were the last words the girl was heard to speak.

Thinks Conductors Dishonest

New York, Sept. 23.—Through uncollected fares, or those not turned in by conductors, his company suffered a loss of 8 percent is the estimate made by General Manager Root of the Metropolitan Street Railway company at a public service commission hearing. Root admitted that on the basis of 8 percent loss of fares the Metropolitan suffered to the extent of about $1,400,000 a year. The witness said that the company was experimenting with devices to stop the leak.

Braker's Bequest to Tufts

New York, Sept. 23.—The probating in this city of the will of Henry J. Braker, a millionaire importer, reveals the source of the $500,000 bequest to Tufts college for founding a school of finance and accounts. Nearly $4,000,000 is disposed of by the bequests of the will, which include $1,300,000, left in trust to Mrs. Braker, with power of disposal by will, and $1,000,000 for founding in this city a Braker memorial house. Braker died in England late last month.

The President In Washington

Washington, Sept. 23.—President Roosevelt returned to Washington from Oyster Bay last evening. The special train bearing the presidential party was met at the station by many officials, including members of the cabinet, army and navy officers and others. The president was the picture of health and vigor as he alighted. He spoke to several of the newspaper men, but his remarks had no political significance.

Germany's Attitude Toward Morocco

Berlin, Sept. 23.—Germany's reply to the Franco-Spanish note on Morocco was delivered last evening. The tone of the note is most conciliatory, but Germany makes the point plain that she cannot permit any power to occupy an extraordinary position in relation to Morocco.

Damage of $1,000,000 a Day

Washington, Sept. 23.—Dr. W. J. McGee of the geological survey, who has returned to this city after a visit to the Adirondacks, states that a conservative estimate of the damage being done in that section by the forest fires is $1,000,000 a day.

Actor Goodwin Sues For Divorce

Reno, Nev., Sept. 23.—Nat C. Goodwin, the actor, has filed suit for divorce against his wife, known on the stage as Maxine Elliott. Goodwin's attorneys refuse to give out any information regarding the suit. Goodwin left Reno last night.

A Hundred and Ten Drowned

Seattle, Sept. 23.—A cable dispatch to the army signal corps confirms the loss of the Star of Bengal on Coronation Island. Twenty-seven were saved and 110 drowned, including nine whites.

EDITORIAL.

A word from Weston W. Osborne who is now in Quebec, says: We are now at the Chateau Frontenac. The day is most beautiful. We visited Sunday morning the oldest church in Quebec, 300 years aged, the Basilica, and the English church where we felt more at home. We have been to the Montmorence Falls, twice. The first time with the party and the second time, by ourselves, where we could remain several hours and see all that was to be seen. We expect to leave Quebec Monday noon, homeward bound.

As Low as the Lowest.

Charles C. Hearn, the Quincy square druggist, has published a list of prices, for the public, of the druggists goods which are most commonly used today. This list gives evidence of the quality and variety of goods sold at Hearn's and shows that he is catering to the people of Quincy now as he has done for the past twenty years, since he started in business. Mr. Hearn's long experience as a druggist has made him capable of giving the highest satisfaction in filling prescriptions. "Always reliable" is Mr. Hearn's slogan, and he carries it out to the letter.

New Organ.

A force of men has been at work for the past few days removing the organ at the First church, preparatory to setting up a new and larger instrument. When the old organ, which has done excellent service for many years, was removed, a brass plate was found attached bearing the date 1851. Considerable work in the way of alteration is necessary before the new instrument can be set up. It was found that it would be necessary to lower the floor beneath the organ considerable and this work is now being done.

A Jolly Evening.

A large attendance was present at the regular meeting of the Loyal Ladies, on Tuesday evening, in Clan McGregor hall. After the regular business was transacted, the president, Mrs. Minnie McNeil, requested all to remain to the social hour as the amusement committee had a surprise waiting for them.

It was certainly a great surprise when a large table beautifully decorated and ladened with many good things was displayed. The menu consisted of "Scotch" cakes, scones, crackers, cheese, cake, fancy cookies and tea. It was delicious and thoroughly enjoyed by all. After the luncheon, solos were rendered by Miss Polly Leslie and Miss Margaret Esson; and duets by Miss Margaret Michael and Miss Esson. Dancing was then enjoyed by the younger members, with Mrs. Charles Barnicoat at the piano:

The meeting was indeed an enjoyable one and much praise is due the president, Mrs. McNeil, and her faithful committee who have made the meetings for the past year so pleasant. Those on the committee are vice president, Mrs. McDonald, Mrs. Duncan, Mrs. Arthur Mitchell, Mrs. Steinburn, Mrs. L. McIntosh and Miss Elsie Martin.

Fines Imposed Amounting to $40

But for the prompt arrest of John Hill, on Tuesday afternoon, by Officer Hinchon, murder might have been committed. Hill, who was under the influence of liquor, made his appearance at Brewers corner looking for trouble. He entered several stores and wound up at the store of Mrs. E. Lark. While there he asked for a glass of milk, which was furnished him. When asked for pay for the milk, he refused, and said if they were looking for trouble, he would give it to them. Just about this time Officer Hinchon, who had heard of the man making threats in various stores, entered Miss Lark's store, and placed Hill under arrest. Then it was that the officer found that Hill had a loaded revolver in his hip pocket. In court, the revolver was confiscated, and a fine of $35 imposed for carrying the revolver, and $5 for drunkenness.

Miss Brady Bride of Chas. W. Hodgkinson

Miss Martha E. Brady, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Brady of 36 Newcomb street and Mr. Charles W. Hodgkinson, were married Tuesday evening, at the residence of Dr. E. N. Hardy. They were attended by Mrs. A. C. Marnock, sister of the bride, and Mr. Herbert M. Hodgkinson, brother of the groom.

The bride was becomingly dressed in a handsome gown of white Brussels net, trimmed with val lace and insertion, with beautiful yoke of Irish crochet, and carried a shower bouquet of brides roses. The matron of honor, her sister, was handsomely gowned in white batiste trimmed with val lace and insertion, and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

On their return to the home of the bride, a reception was held to the relatives of the bride and groom. Mr. and Mrs. James Brady, the bride's parents, and Mr. and Mrs. Hodgkinson, groom's parents, assisted them in receiving. One of the pleasant features of the evening was the presence of four generations of the bride's family.

The house was beautifully decorated with palms, ferns and pink and white asters. There were relatives from Roxbury, Marshfield, Boston and Quincy present.

Many friends of the young couple, surrounded the house and expressed their friendship with horns, cow bells, red lights, banners, etc., and on their appearance, showered them with rice and confetti, but allowed them to depart on their wedding trip to New York and Niagara Falls.

On their return they will reside on Paul Wild terrace, and will be at home to their friends Wednesdays after Nov. 1.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Miss Maria, Whitney, dressmaker advertises that she makes a specialty of children's clothes.

Miss Connolly of Malden is the guest of her sister, Mrs. William T. Donavon, of Upland road, for a few days.

Miss Laura Tollman of Winchester, one of the popular teachers in the Quincy school has decided to board in Atlantic during the winter.

Bowling Chief Leech, is getting the bowlers of the Wollaston Red Men together to form another league for winter.

The regular meeting of the Hospital Aid association will be held on Thursday afternoon at Quincy women's club house.

The next opportunity for registration will be Friday evening, when the Registrars will be in session at the Hose house, Wollaston, from 7.30 to 9 o'clock.

Miss Mary Marden, for years teacher of the seventh grade at the Washington school, has been confined to her home by illness for the past few days.

William A. Field, a well known young man who has always made Quincy his home, has associated himself with Mr. Curtis another old resident of Quincy, to do a general curb exchange business on the reorganized Boston, Curb.

Michael Pitts of Hancock street had unusually good luck this year with his tomato plants, one of which grew to a height of ten and one-half feet. From this plant alone Mr. Pitts has already picked 192 ripe tomatoes, and there are several dozen green fruit left on the vines.

Owing to the death of Past Exalted Ruler Frederick W. Tirrell, all business scheduled for the meeting of Quincy lodge of Elks on Tuesday evening was suspended, and a meeting of sorrow was held. The lodge will attend the funeral services in a body Thursday afternoon.

Hrs. G. H. Jaques of Main street has good reason to be proud of her beautiful little maltese and Yorkshire terriers. At the dog show held last Wednesday at South Framingham, they won three firsts, one second, two winners and two specials. At the show of the Ladies' Kennel association held at Riverside on Thursday they again came to the front, winning two firsts, two seconds, winners, reserve winners and five specials. This makes nineteen ribbons in two days, a record of which any one may well be proud.

NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.

On and after September 16, we have decided

TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE

as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods

AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills over due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every dav. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and take them with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Now think this proposition over, and we feel confident that you can see it just the way that we do.

SOMETHING THAT IS NEEDED HERE IN QUINCY.

A HIGH GRADE OF GOODS SOLD AT LOW PRICES.

So Remember your 5 per cent discount.

DEMOCRATIC CAUCUSES.

Practically the only contest among the Democrats was over Congressman. But one name, that of Joseph F. O'Connell, appeared on the official ballot. Frank J. Linehan, however, had stickers in every ward but they did him little good. Congressman O'Connell, carried every ward easily. The O'Connell--Linehan vote by wards was as follow:

| | O'Connell. | Linehan. |
|---|---|---|
| Ward One | 36 | 5 |
| Ward Two | 58 | 10 |
| Ward Three | 57 | 14 |
| Ward Four | 122 | 27 |
| Ward Five | 15 | 0 |
| Ward Six | 26 | 5 |
| | 314 | 61 |

The only other contest among the Democrats was over the Senatorial delegation in Ward Three, between William A. Kelley and James P. Dougherty. The latter won out receiving 32 votes to Kelley 28.

The delegates elected:

Braintree Caucuses.

The Republican caucuses in Braintree on Tuesday were perhaps the hottest and most largely attended in the history of the town. In all there were 433 ballots cast, 201 in South Braintree, 162 in Braintree and 70 in East Braintree.

The tickets presented by the Republican town committee won, two to one, over those presented by the Citizens' committee.

The delegates go to the state convention unpledged, although there was a movement on foot to pledge them in favor of Robert Luce. This however failed. The delegates to the Representative convention are pledged to Charles H. Mellen.

These delegates were elected:

State,—Aubrey Hilliard, Joel F. Sheppard, Plummer C. Spring, Philip H. Sullivan.

Congressional,—Isaac W. Gammons, Charles G. Sheppard, William C. Harding, Charles O. Miller.

Councillor,—F. Eugene Dyer, Chas. M. Lothrop, Charles G. Jordan, George A. Arnold.

County,—Hartley L. White, Stillman F. Pratt, William P. Kelley, Foster F. Tupper.

Senatorial,—John Kelley, William Gallagher, John E. Arnold, B. Herbert Woodsum.

Representative,—Charles B. Cummings, Frank W. Brett, Otis B. Oakman, Will W. Mayhew, Herbert A. Rhoades, Henry W. Davenport, Washington I. Jordan, William Orr, J. Parker Hayward, Harry S. Snow.

Republican Town Committee for 1909,—Henry M. Storm, Charles G. Sheppard, William Orr, John Kelley, Charles O. Miller, Plummer C. Spring, John E. Arnold, Hartley L. White, Will W. Mayhew, James E. Folsom, George W. Stevens, Foster F. Tupper, Wilford F. Woodsum, F. Eugene Dyer, Carroll A. Holbrook.

Smelt fishing is said to be excellent in Hull harbor. A large fleet of fishermen is seen daily in the inner harbor and on Sunday there were hundreds of boats.

Sheriff Samuel H. Capen was off duty Tuesday, at the Dedham court house, and Assistant Deputy Wentworth of Cohasset had charge.

At a meeting of the selectmen in East Weymouth on Tuesday afternoon it was announced that trolley baggage and freight delivery over the lines of the Old Colony street railway is now assured for Weymouth. A representative spent considerable time going over the details.

The Medfield lodge, I. O. O. F., will entertain grand officers and have a banquet Friday evening.

The Margaret Council, Knights of Columbus of Hyde Park, have voted to celebrate Columbus day, October 12. There will be a banquet and literary exercises in Central hall.

The fire department and citizens of the Beechwood district of Cohasset had a hard struggle with a miniature forest fire on King street Monday afternoon. The fire lasted about four hours and burned over several acres.

Miss Edith Crane entertained a number of friends from Cohasset and Hingham on Monday evening at her home in North Scituate. Whist was played during the evening and a luncheon was served.

Word has been received in Hyde Park of the death of John Beatey, a former fire chief, and a wealthy Florida phosphate manufacturer. He was 72 years old. Mr. Beatey was a Civil war veteran and a member of the Masonic bodies of Hyde Park.

The local friends of Miss Florence Stuart Goodhue, formerly of Brookline, are interest in her marriage to Jerome Bond Williams which took place recently in Los Angeles, Cal., the present home of the bride. Mr. Williams is also of New England stock, being a descendant of Roger Williams.

Thomas E. McKenzie of Hingham, has lost a valuable Boston terrier by death. The dog, Autumn Boy, has won many prizes this year, and recently Mr. McKenzie had an offer of $400 for the dog, which he refused.

The body of Franklin W. Parker, aged 52 years, a well-known resident of Wellesley Farms was found Sunday morning, in Lake Waban, near Wellesley College. Mr. Parker had gone fishing Saturday, and had been tipped into the water of the lake when his boat capsized. The police dragged the lake, and after a few hours found the body. Mr. Parker leaves a wife and son.

Allan Forbes of the Dedham polo club was found guilty in the Salem police court on Tuesday of cruelty to a pony during the game at Hamilton Sept. 9. He was fined $50.

S. Warren Bullard of Sharon, aged 75 years, wandered away from his home Tuesday afternoon about 1 o'clock and his family on missing him searched everywhere, but in vain. About 10 P. M. the fire alarm was rung, and a party of 200 started to search. They found the old man in an exhausted condition about midnight, a quarter of a mile from his home. He was carried home and will suffer no ill effects.

The new hose wagon ordered by the town of Holbrook, has arrived, and was sent to the Central station. The machine came over the road from Clinton.

The Randolph basket-ball team has organized with Jeremiah O'Niel and Edward Brady as managers. The schedule and list of players will be announced soon.

Edward Brady of Randolph, while walking along Warren street Saturday, late in the evening, was chased by two men until he neared Main street, when the men gave up the chase. Brady reported the incident to the police, but no trace of the men could be found. It is thought that this and similar hold-ups in the past is the work of local characters.

REPUBLICANS OF BAY STATE

Name Frothingham as Nominee For Lieutenant Governor

LONG AND SPIRITED CONTEST

Four Present Representatives to Congress Who Were Opposed Are Favored For Another Election--Lomasney-Fitzgerald Machine Gets a Black Eye in Boston--No Opposition to Draper For Head of Ticket.

Boston, Sept. 23.—The feature of the Republican primaries held throughout the state was the spirited contest for the lieutenant governorship of the party ticket between three well known men, Speaker John N. Cole of Andover, former Speaker Louis A. Frothingham of Boston and Representative Robert Luce of Somerville, there being no opposition to the advancement of Lieutenant Governor Draper of Hopedale to the first place on the ticket for the November election.

Returns in the contest for lieutenant governor from 22 cities and 262 towns give Frothingham 467, Cole 299, Luce 245, unpledged or doubtful 105, a total of 1116, out of a total to the state convention of Oct. 3 of 1550.

The caucuses also decided four interesting congressional contests, those among the Republican candidates in the Second and Fourteenth districts, and, through the operation of the "joint caucus act," Democratic contests in the Ninth and Tenth districts. In the Second district, Congressman Gillette won a sweeping victory over former Senator Feiker of Northampton, while in the Fourteenth, Congressman Lovering of Taunton was favored for another term over Senator Wheatley of Abington. In this city Congressmen Keliher and O'Connell, both Democrats, won in the Ninth and Tenth districts.

The fight for the lieutenant governorship among the Republicans began last spring and was waged with the utmost vigor by the three candidates, especially during the past six weeks. The campaign, however, was utterly devoid of personalities, all three candidates frequently speaking on the same platform or behind the same banquet table. They all, however, made several tours of the state, and shook hands with thousands of voters.

In this city the contest was a particularly warm one, but Frothingham succeeded in winning a majority of the delegates, getting 131 out of a total of 233, leaving 71 for Cole and 31 for Luce. Returns show that Frothingham was also strong in Norfolk, Barnstable and Worcester counties, and picked up many delegates in other parts of the state.

There were an unusually large number of contests for councillor, senatorial and representative nominations, but as the vote for lieutenant governor was counted first the result of these other contests was not known until a late hour.

The towns of Nahant and Dalton sent Senators Lodge and Crane as delegates, but refused to pledge them for any one of the three candidates.

There was a particularly spirited fight in the town of Andover, Cole's home, but he was successful in winning the four delegates by a vote of 369 to 180.

Notwithstanding it was an ideal day for getting out the voters and that there were numerous bitter contests in many of the wards, the vote of Boston at the primaries was light, compared with many other years. Frothingham carried the city by a strong majority.

The predictions proved false in some of the wards, the biggest surprise being the capture of ward 23 by the Frothingham ticket, Luce having claimed the ward. Cole carried ward 10, Boston's strongest ward, but it was a close call and Cole won out by but thirty votes. Considerable significance is given to the fact that Luce took the eighteen delegates in ward 24, which is the home ward of Mayor Hibbard, who had championed the Frothingham ticket. The anti-saloon element had much to do with the vote, however.

In the congressional fights, Congressman O'Connell won the Democratic nomination of the Tenth district, even defeating Linehan of South Boston in the latter's own district. The contest has been one of the keenest and most strenuous of the campaign. In the Ninth district Keliher was renominated by the Democrats, his opponent, Conry, who had the backing of the Lomasney and Fitzgerald forces, being defeated.

Officers of Defunct Bank Sued

Boston, Sept. 23.—In the United States circuit court here, Judge Lowell referred to a master a suit brought against former President Luce and the directors of the defunct Central National bank of Boston by Receiver Allen to recover moneys alleged to have been lost through bad investments while the defendants were in charge of the bank. George L. Huntress was appointed master.

Wandered About In Forest

Bretton Woods, N. H., Sept. 23.—After being lost in the forest in the vicinity of Mt. Echo for nearly thirty hours, H. R. Goodnow and his daughter, aged 16, of New York, finally found their way out of the woods. Aside from exhaustion, neither experienced and ill effects from the experience.

EFFECT OF CLOTHES.

Women Uplifted or Degraded by Beauty or Ugliness of Apparel.

That clothes have a tremendous influence on the feminine mind has always been acknowledged, but it has remained for the ultra modern experiments to prove that this influence is a vital one and can be turned to account in reforming the criminal and insane.

The poor demented creatures who fill our insane asylums are compelled to wear the institution's "wrapper," a hideous garment which would destroy the beauty of a goddess.

Several writers who have been taking up the subject lately are maintaining that if the insane women were allowed to wear pretty clothes the effect upon them would be quieting and helpful.

The wrapper takes away their self respect and makes them feel that they look hopelessly ugly, and they do not care how they behave when they have it on.

On the other hand, when some of them have been "dressed up" they have immediately shown a tendency to have better manners and behave quietly with a decorum entirely foreign to them in their ugly garments.

Of course these experiments have not been made on the violently insane.

A French magazine recently published a long article claiming that experiments had been made in a certain reformatory for women which went to prove that the worst type of women criminals can be controlled by the power of clothes.

The rules of this institution provide that the inmates shall dress according to their behavior. This means from prison stripes for the sulky and unmanageable to house gowns of lace for those who prove themselves worthy to wear them decorously and with appropriate manners.

The article goes on to say that no prisoner ever wears the stripes longer than the first week. Immediately she begins to feel the degradation of them and aspires to be the best dressed woman in the prison.

These women are shut off from the world and see no one but their fellow criminals, and yet they remain contented, many of them, for years because they are allowed to dress according to their satisfaction.

The simple deduction from all this is that properly gowned all women would be "perfect" ladies—i. e., good and docile and obedient.

The conquering spirit of clothes—who can deny it in the face of the following pathetic little anecdote?

It is said that a box of old clothes which had been sent in charity to a certain poverty stricken home where a little girl lay very ill contained a half wornout pair of colored, beribboned dancing slippers. These caught the sick child's fancy, and she immediately began to take an interest in living.

With the one idea in her mind that when she got well she could wear those slippers on the street the poor little bit of femininity conquered her malady.

Dyeing Feathers.

It is said that the best way to dye feathers is first to wash them in soapsuds and gasoline, then dip them in the solution made from squeezing a tube of paint into a bowl and adding enough gasoline to get the right tone.

After the feathers have taken on the desired color they are hung out to dry. If a woman has not tried this method she should not go into it wholesale with a lot of handsome feathers.

It would be wise for her to try it first on a small white feather, which, if ruined, will not be much loss.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Gray hairs will have their way when they get a good start, and nothing will stop them except sometimes scalp massage.

An important beauty consideration is the poise of the head. It should be tipped slightly backward so as to make the eyes seem larger. Lowering the chin causes wrinkles and also has a tendency to form a double chin, which is a special bugbear of every woman, thin or fat.

The virtues of a few drops of essence of peppermint are well known, and one writer even asserts that it will gradually cure stomach troubles. It is a most harmless remedy to give to children who do not seem to assimilate their food. A few drops on sugar is the easiest way to give it to children unless you can make the large white mint drops.

Glossy hair generally indicates that it has been well and carefully kept—that is, shampooed every few weeks, thoroughly brushed with the usual fifty strokes every day and the scalp massaged regularly. Brilliantine is not used so much to impart a gloss to the hair as to keep short hairs from blowing about the face.

For burns and scalds there is nothing more soothing than the white of an egg, which should be poured over the wound. It is softer than collodion as a varnish for a burn and, being always at hand, can be applied immediately. It is the contact with the air which gives the extreme pain. White of egg excludes the air and prevents inflammation.

If a double chin has made its appearance, one of the best exercises for remedying it is to lift the head as high as possible, then from the point of the chin with open hand press firmly down, keeping the head thrown backward at the same time. Bathe the chin and throat frequently with cold water. Another method is to apply some good skin food, pick up the flesh in tiny folds and roll it firmly between the thumb and forefinger, this having a tendency to dissolve the excessive fat cells.

FLEETS OF AIRSHIPS.

British War Balloon Expert Says Time For Them Is Near.

In the opinion of Colonel James Templer, former superintendent of the balloon factory of the British army at Aldershot, who talked at the Waldorf hotel in New York the other night on military aeronautics, it will be only a comparatively short time when the United States and other countries will have large fleets of large dirigible balloons for emergencies of war.

The colonel went to New York after witnessing the tests of Captain Thomas S. Baldwin's war balloon at Fort Myer, Va. He said countries like the United States and England, instead of having only two or three little dirigibles, carrying two or three men each, would ultimately be content with nothing less than several hundred war balloons.

"I was delighted," said the colonel, "with Captain Baldwin's balloon, as it was just the right shape and size efficiently to train men, and it certainly was a great personal success for Captain Baldwin—who, by the way, is a splendid chap—as hitherto that size balloon had never been made so that it could be both dirigible and buoyant. The fact of its taking up two men rendered the ascent made by Captain Baldwin and Lieutenant Lahm very surprising to me and a most unqualified success.

"I am delighted to think that it is under consideration that Captain Baldwin is to receive instructions to build a larger dirigible balloon for your war department as soon as the money can be obtained. This matter should be pushed with all possible facility.

"I am delighted with my reception. I am delighted with the country. Unless I get orders I shall stay here until the Wrights' aeroplane tests are over. I want to see those, not that I have any doubt as to the Wrights meeting all the specifications of the war department, but because I believe they can do even more. I spent one whole day with Orville Wright, and I cannot tell you how favorably he impressed me. The Wrights are, in fact, the best up to date with aeroplanes. They have the best heavier than air machine that I have yet seen or read of. We have a man in England, Cody by name, who will really surprise people with an aeroplane that he will soon test for the British army. Then—ah, but I musn't say anything about that—no, not a word," said the colonel seriously.

MAY CUT BRYAN IN GRANITE.

Amateur Sculptor Has Carved Fifty-four Faces on Small Block.

Elmer Burkett of Wayne, Pa., mine owner and amateur sculptor, who arrived at New York recently on the Cunarder Lusitania with a small piece of granite in his pocket, is looking for William Jennings Bryan. He met Mr. Taft abroad and managed to get the impression of the Republican candidate's head on the granite rock and is now in pursuit of Mr. Bryan for a sitting.

Mr. Burkett has chiseled some crowned heads on his talisman, and, although the stone is only 3 by 7 by 7 inches, he has carved upon it the faces of fifty-four persons of note he has met. Mr. Burkett said that many years ago, before he became wealthy, he was walking along the tracks of the main line of the Pennsylvania railroad and found the piece of granite. A few days later fortune smiled upon him, and no amount of money, he said, could tempt him to part with it.

He has a set of small, sh[illegible] steel tools, made especially for [illegible] and they are always wrapped up [illegible]h the rock and guarded more carefu[illegible] than his purse. While on his way [illegible]o Liverpool a year ago on the Cunar[illegible]er the sculptor received an offer [illegible] $10,000 from an art collector for the rock of many heads, but he refused to sell it.

HOOKLESS WAIST.

Hoboken Inventor Shows Dressmakers Labor Saving Device.

While fourteen young women of various sizes and styles of architecture tried on corsets for the benefit of the 400 delegates to the convention of the Dressmakers' Protective association in Masonic temple at New York the other night official announcement was made that hereafter it will be unnecessary for any woman to call for assistance in buttoning her waist in the back.

A public benefactor who lives in Hoboken, N. J., submitted for the approval of the dressmakers a small metal device which, he said, would soon take the place of buttons and hooks and eyes throughout the civilized world. More than a dozen men who did not know that admission to the dressmakers' convention was limited to women spent the evening in the corridor, where the man from Hoboken explained the beauties of his discovery.

According to his optimistic prediction, his device, consisting of a chain running between two lines of sockets with a ring at the top, will soon be in general use and will bring surcease of care to thousands of husbands.

"One pull on the ring," said the orator from Hoboken, "and the dress is buttoned or unbuttoned, hooked or unhooked, as the case may be. Any child can operate the device."

"Give me $5 worth," said one of his auditors, and others also purchased.

OPPOSITION AND PROMISE

Candidate Taft Thus Terms the Democratic Record

HE PAYS RESPECTS TO BRYAN

Reviews In Extended Manner Some of the Issues Which His Opponent Has Brought Forward as Pa amount In Previous Campaigns and Later Abandoned--Advocated Radical Reforms Now Rejected

Cincinnati, Sept. 23.—What William H. Taft really thinks of William J. Bryan as a statesman and a politician was told last night by the Republican candidate to the National League of Republican Clubs. The Bryan feature of Taft's speech came at the conclusion of a 10,000-word address in which the accomplishments and purposes of the Republican party were contrasted with what the speaker termed the Democratic record of opposition and promise.

"Turning now to the other picture," said Taft, after his review of the issues, "what is it that we have to expect from Mr. Bryan? Have we anything to expect but what he promises? Have we anything to expect but what is based upon his eloquence and his adroitness as a public critic? Has he ever given any practical demonstration of his ability to meet problems and solve them? Has he ever done anything but formulate propositions in his closet of an utterly impracticable character, largely with a view of attracting votes by their plausibility and very little with a view of their operation?

"What is the history of Mr. Bryan? It is from the beginning to end a record of failures on public questions. We find him first in congress, in the second administration of Mr. Cleveland, a member of the ways and means committee and most active in formulating the provisions of the Gorman-Wilson tariff bill. After five months' debate, it passed both houses and came to Mr. Cleveland in such a shape that he denounced it as a piece of perfidy.

"After having assisted in this suicidal policy, after the country was nearly dead, after the farmers and the wage-earners were staggering under debt and mortgage, penury and almost starvation, Bryan defeats the efforts of the only great Democrat they have had in the party for many years, Grover Cleveland, and hurls at him billingsgate and denunciation, for what reason? Because he opposes Bryan's pet hobby, that of the free coinage of silver without the consent of any other nation.

"In that campaign Bryan prophesied that the continuation of the gold standard meant uncertainty in employment of labor and hardship to the wage-earner; that it would send down the price of farm products—wheat below 50 cents; corn below 30 cents, and oats to 5 cents. He did not have to live two years to see every prophesy that he made in that campaign refuted by the fact.

"Then there came on the campaign of 1900. In that campaign he still adhered to his free silver fallacy. But lest the issue of free silver had become a little shopworn he brought out as a paramount issue that of anti-imperialism. He announced that if he were not elected in the next election, patriotism would have ceased to be in this country, the celebration of the Fourth of July would become a memory, and that liberty would die. His agitation on this question continued the war in the Philippines against the authority of the United States for nearly two years longer, and many a poor fellow who lost his life in the service of his country in those far-distant islands owes it directly to the inspiration which the opposition of the Democracy under Bryan made to the policy of McKinley in the Philippines. He was beaten on these issues, and we continue to celebrate the Fourth of July with fervor.

"At the end of the next four years Mr. Parker was nominated. Bryan still insisted on inserting in the platform a clause in favor of free silver, but it was left out. He then joined with Parker in making the paramount issue the tyranny of Theodore Roosevelt, executive usurpation and militarism. He denounced Roosevelt as completely subject to corporate interests and held up to the country the dangers of war to which it would be subject under a Roosevelt administration. Although the same policy was being pursued in the Philippines as before, imperialism had ceased to be then a paramount issue.

"The prophesy which Bryan made with reference to the warlike tendencies of Roosevelt and to his subjection to corporate influence he had only to wait some two years to find them utterly refuted. For never in the history of the world has any chief executive had such a triumph in making peace as Theodore Roosevelt, in the Russian-Japanese war, in Central America, in Santo Domingo and in Cuba, and never in the history of the country has there been such a complete triumph over the corporate influence as that which Theodore Roosevelt has wrought during the present administration.

"In the campaign of 1904 and in previous campaigns Bryan has denounced militarism and imperialism, but this year he was advised that the visit of our navy to the Pacific had aroused such an interest in the navy and made it so popular on that coast that his Pacific friends persuaded him to approve a plank in the platform for an adequate navy for the protection of the Pacific coast. Yet with characteristic inconsistence Bryan attacks the Republican party for making suitable appropriations for the increase of our naval force.

"In 1906 Bryan went around the world and upon his return he declared that he was convinced that the only solution of the railroad problem ultimately would be government ownership. He had previously declared in favor of a national initiative and referendum and also in favor of the election of federal judges. All these most radical propositions have now been excluded from the Democratic platform.

"The record of Bryan and his character as it is understood by a twelve years' acquaintance with him have impressed the business community of this country and those whose judgments determines whether or not capital shall be invested that he is not a safe man with whom to try experiments in government; that he loves financial theories that are full of sophistry and are impractical; that he advances propositions with but little sense of responsibility as to how they may be carried out in practice, and that he gives but little attention to the welfare of the conservative business community in his suggestions of reform.

"Certainly his record justified this judgment of him by the business men. If he were to be elected, it will mean a paralysis of business, and we should have a recurrence of the disastrous business conditions of the last Democratic administration."

ROOSEVELT IS REBUKED

Bryan Will Not Permit the Misrepresentaton of Democrats

Detroit, Sept. 23.—The most sensational development in the present campaign was the sending yesterday by William J. Bryan of a telegram to President Roosevelt demanding that he produce proof that Governor Haskell of Oklahoma, treasurer of the Democratic national committee, ever was connected with the Standard Oil company.

Seizing upon the opportunity thus afforded him, Bryan took occasion to serve notice on the president that he would not permit any responsible member of the Republican organization to misrepresent the attitude of the Democratic party in the present campaign, and further, that the Democratic party was making "an honorable and honest fight" in defense of its principles and policies and that it expected and demanded fair and honorable treatment from those in charge of the Republican campaign.

Copies of the telegram were given out for publication just before Bryan's departure for Ann Arbor late in the afternoon. The program of the local committee included an opportunity for Bryan to take a long rest in the forenoon, but the statement of President Roosevelt, in which the president endorsed the charges made against Haskell by William R. Hearst, that Haskell had been connected with the Standard Oil company and had attempted to bribe Attorney General Monnett of Ohio, was sufficient to cause him to forego that much needed luxury and devote himself to the subject of preparing a reply. Altogether he consumed five hours in consultations before concluding to address his telegram to the chief executive.

Arriving here at 6:30 o'clock in the morning, Bryan was given a rousing reception. The journey to Ann Arbor was made in his special car and upon his arrival there he was accorded a cordial greeting. To a gathering of several thousand persons Bryan discussed the tariff, the trust question, the labor question, government guarantee of bank deposits, the Democratic party's attitude on the injunction question and on contempt of court trials, and severely criticised Taft for his characterization of the Democratic platform plank on this question as loosely drawn and an attack on the judicial system.

Returning to Detroit shortly after 6 o'clock, Bryan addressed a monster Democratic rally in the Light Guard armory. Outside there were thousands whose desire for admission availed them nothing, as the building was packed to the doors, but he gave them a brief overflow talk. In both addresses he compared the platforms of the two parties and went over practically the same ground he did at Ann Arbor.

Camel For Prohibition Emblem

Chicago, Sept. 23.—State Chairman Wilson of the Prohibition party announces that the Prohibitionists have decided to adopt the camel as their mascot, replacing the emblems of the fountain and the rising sun, which have stood as the insignia of prohibition. Among the reasons advanced by Wilson for the selection are that the camel is the original water wagon, that it can discern a fresh supply of water further than any other quadruped, that it can travel faster than the elephant or the donkey and that it always has a hump on itself.

Hitchcock Changes Plans

Chicago, Sept. 23.—After securing tickets for the return of himself and party to New York, Chairman Hitchcock of the Republican national committee changed his plans and decided to remain here until Thursday. This will give him an opportunity to consult with Mr. Taft in this city this evening, such a conference being desired by the presidential candidate.

Haskell Will Not Reply

Guthrie, Okla., Sept. 23.—Governor Haskell declined to issue a statement in reply to the Roosevelt and Hearst Standard Oil charges, for the reason, he said, that William J. Bryan had answered them in his telegram to President Roosevelt.

PROTEST FROM LABOR

Kind of Letters Unions Are Sending Mr. Gompers.

DISTRUST PARTY OF BRYAN.

Camden Central Labor Union Holds the Democracy Responsible For Deplorable Condition of Workers In the Southern States.

At the regular semimonthly meeting of the Camden (N. J.) Central Labor union held Aug. 18, 1908, a communication from national headquarters was received in which the work of the national convention of the dominant parties was set forth and commented upon. The letter closed with an appeal to "stand faithfully by our friends; oppose and defeat our enemies." Accompanying this communication was a request for a contribution to help make it possible to wage a successful campaign for the establishing of labor's rights. The matter was disposed of by the secretary being instructed to forward to the national office the following letter:

Camden, N. J., Aug. 18, 1908.
Samuel Gompers, Esq., President of the American Federation of Labor:

Dear Sir and Brother—We beg to acknowledge the receipt of an address issued by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor under date of Aug. 1. Accompanying this is an appeal for funds to carry out the political programme set forth in the address, in which you call upon the workers of our common country to stand faithfully by our friends. We hereby return to you both documents, not that we do not think the wageworkers should stand by their friends and defeat their enemies, but for the reason that we fail to agree with you as to who are our friends and who are our enemies. You claim to believe the Democratic party to be friendly to labor because at its last national convention it promised to do certain things if elected. For this reason you ask the trades unionists of the country to do the utmost to elect its candidates and to furnish means for carrying on its campaign.

The Central Labor union of Camden believe they have sufficient intelligence to designate who are the friends of labor and who are its foes. We take no stock in any party's promises made just prior to election when we have the record of that party to guide and direct us. We refuse to believe that any political party that has a continuous record for permitting the most degrading forms of labor to exist in states where its jurisdiction is complete can or will reverse itself when it comes into possession of the national government. Labor has found the Democratic party faithless and tyrannical in state government. By what legerdemain are we to believe it will do better when it has still greater power to oppress? In the southern states, where Bryan Democracy has been in the saddle for years and where it dominates every office from the highest to the lowest, are the places to get the party's record in its relation to the working class. Let us judge it by what it has done and is now doing in places where it is in power, and not by any promises it may make to gain our votes. The rule of the Democratic party in the south has produced conditions that rival the worst in the world. In the factories over which they have legislative control we find wages the lowest, the hours the longest and child labor the severest. Only under Democratic rule do we find peonage and convict labor farmed out by the state, with thousands of men and boys working with ball and chain, sentenced there by a Democratic official upon a trumped up charge of vagrancy. Nowhere in this broad land do you find the misery of the worker so hopeless or his poverty so degrading as you do in states ruled by the Democratic party.

Mr. Gompers, how can you ask the working class to support any party with such a damnable record? Are you so piqued because the Republican national convention handed you a lemon that in order to defeat its candidates you would foist into power a political party that for the past fifty years has never had the manhood to raise its voice in protest against any injustice or indignity suffered by the working class? The rule of the Democratic party whenever in power has been most tyrannous and degrading to labor. Upon what line of reason should the working class help a party that has never missed an opportunity to oppress it?

William Jennings Bryan, as the standard bearer you ask us to support, has never done anything to merit our votes. There has never yet occurred a crime to labor of sufficient magnitude to induce him to protest.

Mr. Gompers, the working class cannot trust a man to be high in power who is not brave enough to assert his belief in the innocence of men persecuted by parties who furnish the sinews of war to carry on his campaign. At no time has Mr. Bryan squarely faced the enemy of the working class and denounced their crimes. He has beheld the tragedies that have befallen labor with stony eyes and a muzzled jaw.

When Packingtown struck against a reduction of wages to $6.40 from $7.20 per week no Democratic politician raised his voice in protest. What the working class has suffered in the last few years for the sake of principle would stir the heart of Washington monument, if it had one, yet throughout it all Bryan, who stands as the champion of labor because he needs our support, has been as silent as the tomb.

If labor's friends are to be found in the Democratic party, labor would have no problem to solve and nothing to complain of in states controlled by the Democratic party. The fact that the worst blows labor is today receiving come from Democratic Alabama and by persons high up in the national councils of the Democratic party is conclusive proof that the working class has nothing to gain by supporting the party or its candidates.

Free press and free speech, the bulwark of the workers' path to a better condition, have time and again been attacked, and never once has any prominent Democratic paper or party leader raised a voice to protest. Our friends are they who stand by us continuously and are ever willing to fight our battles. Whenever trades unionism is attacked it is not the Democratic party or press that comes to our assistance, but the party and press of our class. If labor owes any allegiance to a political party it is certainly to a party composed of and guided solely by our class and not to one in which labor exploiters congregate and labor's enemies control, however much they may promise in order to secure our support. It is time for labor to awaken to the necessity of political action, but in doing so let it take no backward step or make any false moves. Respectfully yours,

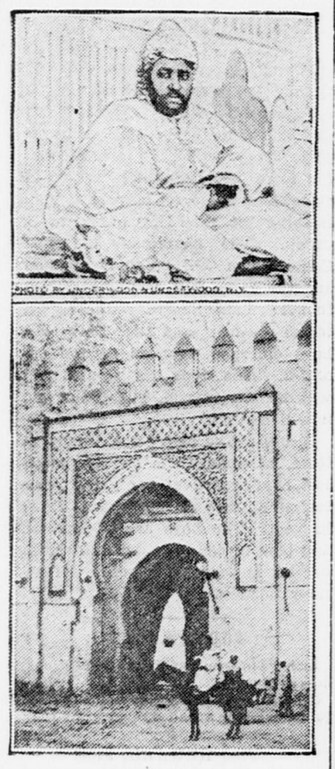

CAMDEN CENTRAL LABOR UNION,
R. M. Hartman, President.
W. T. LORING, Secretary.

The sending of this letter was authorized by an almost unanimous vote. There was one dissenting voice and two members not voting.—Camden Daily Courier, Aug. 19.

MULAI HAFID.

New Moorish Ruler Who Is a Bone of Contention In Europe.

Since Mulai Hafid of Morocco caused a note of discord in the concert of the powers in his efforts to upset the throne of his brother, Abdul Aziz, the personality of this aspiring young man has assumed leading international interest. It is not that the world in general cares so much whether Morocco is ruled by one brother or the other. It is bound to be ruled badly in either case. But the powers of Europe agreed upon certain policies with respect to Morocco at the Algeciras conference, and, Mulai having come along and taken the throne away from his brother, the situation is somewhat "cumfuddled," so to speak, in consequence. France has eyes on Morocco, and Germany has eyes on France. The kaiser is jealous of French interference in the affairs of Morocco, and it was this in part that made it difficult for the powers as represented in the Algeciras conference to agree on a policy which would assure their respective commercial interests in the empire of the Moors and keep its principal ports open for business with the world without giving the French too much to say about ruling the domain. The agreement which was reached was supposed to have adjusted the matter satisfactorily, but now that Mulai has defeated his brother in several battles and practically established himself in power the peace of Europe is again threatened by the question of how, when and where the recognition of the more powerful of the two contestants for the throne should be accomplished.

Abdul Aziz, who of course ought now to call himself Abdul Aswas, having served about sixteen years as sultan, is loath to give up the job, which in spite of its attendant dangers has afforded him considerable sport. He has amused himself a good deal with bicycles, cameras, automobiles and other novelties of the age, and his brother Mulai, who claims to be more orthodox in the Mohammedan faith, proclaims all such things "Christian deviltries." Mulai has succeeded in replacing his brother in the affections of the Moors in part by representing that Abdul Aziz has fallen from grace. However, even Mulai fell once, when he allowed himself to be photographed, a proceeding contrary to the teachings of the Koran. He only permitted a likeness of himself to be taken on the understanding that no copy of the picture should be made public in Morocco, which goes to show that, like many other people, he thinks it not so bad to sin if only you are not found out.

AUTOMOBILE AMBULANCES.

The Federal Government Is Introducing Them In Naval Hospital Service.

Two new steamer ambulances were recently delivered to the United States navy department for use in the service of naval hospitals. One was for the naval hospital at New Fort Lyon, Colo., and the other for the hospital at Philadelphia. The advantage of using ambulances propelled by steam, electricity or gasoline is now being generally recognized. It is found that, as a rule, better time can be made with ambulances so propelled than with horses and that less danger to pedestrians in the streets is involved. Hospitals of all kinds are beginning to make use of the automobile ambulance.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

Mr. and Mrs. William Coleman have returned from a week's vacation at East Kingston, New Hampshire.

Miss Edith Randall and niece Miss Ethel Randall returned Tuesday from abroad, where they have been touring the continent since May, the last few weeks being spent with relatives and friends in England.

Miss Mary Carney and Miss Margaret Brumback of Brockton spent Sunday with friends in Quincy.

Mrs. Charles Grindell of Quincy is visiting in Brockton, at the home of Mrs. Charles Finn.

If anyone is sick or injured at Quincy Point this week, it will be necessary to send to Quincy for a doctor, for Dr. and Mrs. Bushnell have gone to Vermont, while Dr. Middleton is also taking a much needed rest.

Dr. Walter G. Kendall of Atlantic street has the distinction of raising pears of such enormous size that their reality is discredited at a first glance. A few days ago, a Kansas miller sent into the Chamber of Commerce in Boston a pear that he claimed was the largest seen this year. The miller was duly proud of his discovery and the men in the Chamber of Commerce were marvelling at the wonder, when one of their members reached into his desk and drew out a pear of Dr. Kendall's production. The contract was not in favor of the miller for the great yellow fruit from the Kendall farm was indeed the pear peerless.

Would Not Repeat The Experience

Dr. Ross K. Whiton has arrived home from Europe after an eventful trip, such as he would not care to repeat. He was a passenger on the Muritania, which met with the mishap to her propeller. Dr. Whiton says that when the accident happened everything was confusion, and but for the stewards there would have been a panic.

For twelve hours, it was a question among the passengers as well as the crew if the vessel would ever reach shore. Not only did the propeller break, but there was also trouble with the engines.

When the pilot boarded the vessel at Sandy Hook the first thing he did was to order the anchor dropped, refusing to proceed until the engines were repaired.

After working all night they were put in working shape and the vessel proceeded slowly into port.

Dr. Whiton says when the pounding came, the very floors of the cabin lifted up, and it seemed as though the vessell would break in two at any minute. The doctor says he is glad to have had the experience, but does not want it again.

FOOTBALL

League Football On Saturday

If you happen to be out walking at Quincy Point some fine evening, and see something flit by with white trunk and a sweater on, don't thing it is some crazy man. It is only one of the Fore River football team, and sometimes three or four in a bunch, training for their big game on Saturday. The champion J. and P Coates team will be their opponents and the game will be played at Pawtucket. Last Saturday these same teams clashed and the Fore River boys emerged winners by the score of 7-3. This week the Coates team will be out to win, and a hot game it will be, too.

A big crowd will accompany the team, to cheer them on to victory, and as Fore River is going pretty fast now, they do not expect to root in vain. The boys are in fine fettle and lack of condition will not be held out as an excuse, in case defeat is their portion.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

BASE BALL

Yannigans Challenge Makaria Team

The Makaria team, in what will probably be the closing game of the season, will play the "Yannigans" on Saturday, at Merrymount Park. The "Yannigan" team is one picked up by Mr. Ganzel, the Makaria coach, and on this team will positively be seen "Charlie" himself, playing the initial sack. It will be a great drawing card to see the old leaguer in his togs again, and it will recall old times to some of the former day fans. The game will start at 3 P. M., not 3.30 as formerly. Penley will be on the slab for Makaria, with Troupe on the receiving end, while "Jimmy" Michael and Smith with work for the "Yannigans." "Joe" Langdon will umpire.

An Auto Trip Of 108 Miles

On Tuesday, Sept. 22, another interesting automobile trip was made in the Frayer-Miller car of Gilbert M. Miller, with "Jimmy" Canfield at the wheel as usual. Mr. Miller had charge of the party which consisted of four people.

They left Quincy at 6.23 A. M. and went to Boston where they put on a load of new furniture weighing about a ton and a half and valued at $1,050, which they were to take to Taunton.

They left Boston at 7.45 A. M. and it was just 2.05 P. M., when they landed in Taunton, and this, too, by taking what is known as the long route, which runs through the Bridgewaters.

Leaving Taunton, where they dropped their load of furniture, the course was to North Attleboro. They arrived there at 5.15 and taking on a two ton load of furniture they started back to Quincy at 6.15. The auto arrived here at ten o'clock, having been on the road 10 hours and 42 minutes.

Deducting one and one-half from this for meals and oiling, we have a total running time of 9 hours and 12 minutes, from the time the party left Quincy.

The total distance covered was 108 miles and the trip was made without a mishap. The machine ran perfectly all the way which is very remarkable considering the fact that it hasn't been overhauled for five months. They used altogether ten gallons of gasoline and five quarts of lubricating oil.

MARGIN OF SIX POINTS

Chicago Nationals Get Still Closer on Heels of New York

Chicago's double victory over New York on the latter's home grounds yesterday brought the leaders down to within six points of their formidable western rivals for the National League pennant. It now needs but the winning of today's game by Chicago to put that club in the lead in the race. So narrow is the margin and so easily may it be wiped out altogether, that interest in the two games of the Chicago series yet to be played is at the very highest pitch. Pittsburg dropped back a bit, as compared with Chicago, by winning but one game to the latter club's two, but gained materially on New York. The record this morning is as follows:

| | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| New York | 87 | 50 | .635 |
| Chicago | 90 | 53 | .629 |
| Pittsburg | 88 | 54 | .620 |

American League

Cleveland drew further ahead in the American League race, again defeating New York, while Detroit was once more beaten by Boston. Chicago and St. Louis did not play, and the former team is now but one point behind Detroit. The record is:

| | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| Cleveland | 82 | 60 | .577 |

Fifty Thousand Acres Ablaze

North Creek, N. Y., Sept. 23.—The forest fire conditions in all parts of the Adirondacks are growing worse hourly, with no sign of relief. Although fully 5000 men are engaged in fighting the flames, not a single fire has been checked and the smaller burning areas are rapidly spreading into vast conflagrations. At least 50,000 acres of valuable forest lands are ablaze and the extent of the destruction may be much greater.

West Gets Much-Needed Rain

Chicago, Sept. 23.—The drought in the central states was broken by rains that extended from St. Louis to St. Paul and Minneapolis. The rainfall did not cover the entire country between those points, but it occurred at many points. The rain brought greatly needed relief in many parts of the west, where there has been but little precipitation since the first of August. It is believed that additional rain will fall today.

Woman Killed In Auto Wreck

Providence, Sept. 23.—Mrs. W. D. Gavey, wife of a wholesale confectioner of Fall River, was killed, and her two children and a Mrs. Borden, also of Fall River, were badly hurt in an automobile accident in East Providence. The touring car collided with a trolley car at the turn of a road.

Killed by Fall From Trestle

Brattleboro, Vt., Sept. 23.—A. J. Kelly of Boston, aged 55, foreman of a gang of men building a dam across the Connecticut river near here, was knocked off a trestle by a derrick load and was killed. The man's neck was broken by striking on a platform.

NEWS IN BRIEF

United States Senator Gallinger has declined a request made by Henry B. Quinby, Republican candidate for governor of New Hampshire, asking that the senator continue as chairman of the Republican state committee.

The Aldrich public library, given to the city of Barre, Vt., by Leonard F. Aldrich, was dedicated with appropriate exercises. The building was erected at a cost of $44,000. A fund of $25,000 was also given by Aldrich.

The successor to Baron Von Sternburg as German ambassador to the United States, according to the Berlin Tageblatt, will probably be Baron Mumm von Schwartzenstein, the present ambassador at Tokio.

On account of the scarcity of water all the coke ovens in the Deckers Creek valley, Virginia, have suspended, throwing nearly 1500 men out of work.

Night riders have posted the Williams ginnery in Greenville county, S. C., warning owners not to gin cotton during the present low prices.

The report of the North German Lloyd Steamship company, covering six months, shows a falling off of about $2,750,000 as compared with the same period last year.

A MICROSCOPE.

How It Opens Up the Wonders of the World of Nature.

If you want to keep your boy out of mischief, give him a microscope, not one of the elaborate, intricate, expensive affairs that the bacteriologists use when hunting for germs, but a common one with two or three lenses that revolve on a pivot and fold into a cover which protects them from injury when carried in the pocket.

There is no better way of interesting the boy in the wonders of the natural world than this simple contrivance, which opens to his eyes visions of a universe of which he knew nothing. Seen through the microscope, the most insignificant flower becomes a thing of wonderful beauty. The interior of a nasturtium is a fairy cavern, showing a dozen different tints and hues of color, with dainty white stalactites and stalagmites almost touching each other midway between floor and roof.

He will find monsters, too, for the head of an ant seen through a microscope is a terrible object, and he cannot help thinking what an awful aspect such a creature would present if it were as big as a horse. He has heard about the creatures that are to be found in water from a stagnant pool. He will find them for himself and show them to other boys, and all his crowd will become interested and bring in things to look at and wonder about. He may not develop into a Darwin, but if he has any faculty of observation at all it will be sharpened by what he sees, and he will learn that there is more in nature than what we discern on the surface.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

SILENT CRANES.

A Nature Story by One of the Mount Taurus Climbers.

The mountaineer glanced complacently at his hard calves.

"We climbers," he said, "up there on the white heights see lots of things worth seeing. I tell you we could if we wanted to outdo the nature fakirs without deviating from the truth. For instance, take the Mount Taurus cranes. Do you know the cranes of Mount Taurus?

"Well, these birds are great chatterers. They chatter, chatter, chatter, as they fly. Hanged if they're not worse than women! Up on the heights the eagles lie in wait for them, hidden behind crags or ice blocks. They don't have to show themselves at all. Their ears, not their eyes, tell them of the cranes' approach, and, swooping down on those bundles of feathers and noise, they take home a mess of crane for dinner.

"With their chatter and babble and gossip the cranes of Mount Taurus give themselves away in that still air to the eagles, and in all eagle households crane is the staple dish.

"But the old cranes fly without a sound—never a word out of them as they sail and wheel in the blue air. That seems against nature, and it is against nature. The old cranes to restrain their innate love of talk fly with large stones in their mouths.

"Shoot one of these crafty and silent birds and you will find his beak tightly closed upon a large stone."—Exchange.

His Plan Was Simple.

Frederick the Great once requested his generals to submit to him plans of campaign for a supposititious case. Hans Joachim von Ziethen, the famous cavalry general, produced a queer diagram in black ink. It represented a big blot in the center, intersected by two black lines, whose four terminals ended each in a smaller blot. The king was furious and upbraided his old comrade in arms bitterly for what he considered disrespect.

In explanation Von Ziethen said: "Why, your majesty, I am the large blot in the center. The enemy is any one of the four smaller blots. He can march upon me from the right or left, from the front or rear. If he does I simply advance upon any of the four lines and lick him where I find him."

Frederick was satisfied.

Statistics.

In all probability the first administrative act of the first regular government was to number its fighting men and to ascertain as nearly as was possible what amount of taxation could be levied on the rest of the community. As human society grew more highly organized there can be no doubt that a very considerable body of official statistics must have come into existence. We know that such was the case in Greece, Rome and Egypt, but it was not until within the last two or three centuries that systematic use of the information available began for purposes of investigation rather than mere administration.—New York American.

Businesslike England.

The English are not a revengeful people. They forget everything after a fight in their eagerness to trade with their late enemy. It is not so much the spirit of forgiveness of sins which prompts them as the spirit of pushing trade. That is the central impulse in their being.—Dublin Irish Homestead.

Where He Was Slow.

"Alexander the Great conquered the entire world."

"Yes," answered Mr. Dustin Stax. "He conquered it, but some of us moderns could have shown him a thing or two about making it pay dividends."—Washington Star.

Her Adored One.

Father—You can't have him! Daughter—Oh, papa, you once said you could deny me nothing! Father—Well, he comes as near being "nothing" as anything I know of.

MANY WITNESSES

Refute Testimony At First Hearing Relative to Coal Charges

The Neponset River Coal Company, the firm which furnished the public schools with coal, had its innings Wednesday night.

Charges against the coal company were made by both the local and the Boston unions with many things of a serious nature in their dealings with the city.

At a special meeting of the School Committee held Monday evening, a number of the members of the Boston Union were present and testified among other things that screenings had been mixed with the coal delivered to Quincy, and that men and horses had been weighed as coal.

Wednesday evening the local union was invited to be present, that the committee might hear what they had to say as to their complaint.

The coal company was also invited to appear and give answer to the charges made. The hearing of the union was called for 8 o'clock and of the coal company at 9 o'clock.

None of the local union men put in an appearance, and after waiting half an hour the coal company were invited to come in. At that time seven of the nine members of the Committee were present. The absent members being John L. Miller and Dr. Bushnell.

Temple Winslow, treasurer of the coal company stated that he desired to show the falsity of the statements made at the meeting Monday night. All coal is weighed by sworn weighers, and the law gives every purchaser the right to weigh coal in transit if he desires. In the case of the City of Quincy, it sent its own agent to the yard, and he weighed every pound delivered. As soon as this coal is delivered and signed for the company's liability ceases.

Regarding the statements made: that the horses hind feet were on the scales and weighed with coal; that men stood on the scales; and that screenings were mixed with coal;—he was prepared to repudiate by witnesses. He was positive no screenings were delivered, and he was willing to pay the expense of an expert to examine coal delivered.

As to the statement that the amount of coal credited to certain teams could not have been loaded onto those teams was not true, as was fully demonstrated to your committee today that even more could have been loaded onto these teams.

The members of your committee who were at our yards today can also repudiate the statement made at the hearing of Monday, that Mr. Curtis could not see whether the horses feet were on the scales, or a man standing on them.

Mr. Winslow, in turn, called upon John Landis the foreman and others.

Mr. Landis said that he had been foreman for a year and a half. He had never stood on the scales when coal was weighed. He had never ordered any of the men to do so. He had never seen any horses feet on the scales or seen screenings mixed with the Quincy coal.

Patrick Finn, one of the drivers who hauled coal to Quincy, said he never knew of screenings being mixed with the coal. He had never weighed his horses feet or been weighed himself with coal. He was a member of the union.

John Walsh said he worked about the yard at the wharf. He had never seen the foreman stand on the scales or any other man, or horses feet. He had never seen screenings mixed with Quincy coal. It could not have been done without his knowledge.

John J. Lines, employed by the coal company for a year, and who had delivered coal to Quincy also answered no to questions as to screenings being mixed with Quincy coal, or to the horses or men being weighed with the coal.

William W. Guptill never stood on the scales. He did not think the horses could be on the scales and he not know it. Never to his knowledge was it done. He could not say that he had seen any man standing on the scales when Quincy coal was weighed.

Patrick Murphy helped load teams on the wharf for Quincy, and never saw screenings mixed with Quincy coal. Never saw horses or drivers weighed with the coal. He would have seen it if it had been done.

Thomas Henry had helped load coal for Quincy; his testimony was practically the same as other drivers.

John H. Winslow, president of the company, was present when most of the coal was weighed. As to the statement of fourteen tickets being given a janitor in a bunch to sign he could readily explain. It was at the Willard school. Mr. Winslow said he drove there in a buggy while the teams were unloading and handed the janitor the slips. The janitor held the slips in his possession and did not sign and return any of them until all the teams had delivered their loads, and he had counted the teams and made sure he had them all.

Miss McQuaid, the bookkeeper produced the books and slips, showing that the Curtis transaction was a legitimate one. The original day-book showing where the order was entered, also the journal, and ledger showing how the charge had been carried along in the regular course of business, and the date of payment of the bill. These books showed that it would have been impossible to have changed the original entry since the hearing Monday without immediate discovery.

She further said that Mr. Curtis was always very careful before he weighed the coal to see that the teams were set right on the scales. She had never given orders for any man to stand on the scales, and it had never been done to her knowledge. It was possible for a man standing at the weighing beam to see if the team was all right on the scales.

As to the man Curley, who was mentioned at the Monday hearing he had been employed but five days by the company since last September. These five days were in July, and no coal was delivered to Quincy at that time. Curley was soliciting orders and when the company found that he was selling for less than the market price he was discharged.

As to S. J. Crattic, who testified at Monday's hearing about screenings being mixed with coal and horses hind legs and men being weighed with coal, Miss McQuaid told of the reason of his discharge, and also read letter from Crattic written after his discharge asking to be taken back.

Miss McQuaid explained at length the system of bookkeeping used by the firm and the use of coal slips.

Mr. Winslow, in closing the hearing, denied emphatically that he had ever ordered screenings mixed with the Quincy coal, or that it was done. Never to his knowledge was a man or horse weighed with the coal. Most of the Quincy coal was loaded onto the teams direct from the barge in which it was transported to the wharf. The men who were here Monday night came to me and told me they would put me out of business if I did not sign their bill. He then exhibited his books, showing that the wages he paid were more than that called for by the union bill.

After the hearing the School Com-

HASKELL GETS THE BIG STICK

Denounced In No Uncertain Language by the President

BRYAN CHALLENGE ANSWERED

Roosevelt Claims That Governor of Oklahoma Was Controlled by the Standard Oil Company and Makes Fresh Charge That "Forms the Conclusion That Haskell Is Unworthy Any Postion In Public Life"

Washington, Sept. 24.—President Roosevelt last night, following upon a prolonged conference with members of the cabinet at the White House, prepared and gave out his reply to William J. Bryan relative to W. R. Hearst's charges that Governor Haskell, treasurer of the Democratic campaign committee, had represented Standard Oil interests both in Ohio and Oklahoma. Mr. Bryan had demanded proof of the charges, promising that in the event of their substantiation Governor Haskell would be eliminated from the campaign.

Dismissing the Ohio case, which involved an allegation of attempted bribery, with the explanation that he had made no direct charge against Haskell as regards that particular instance, President Roosevelt takes up the matter of the Prairie State Oil and Gas company and argues that Haskell's action in stopping legal proceedings begun by the attorney general of Oklahoma demonstrates conclusively that he was controlled by the great corporation to which the Oklahoma company was subsidiary.

After contrasting Bryan's defense of Haskell as against Mr. Taft's repudiation of Foraker in connection with Hearst's charges against the Ohio senator, the president proceeds to declare that Haskell's "utter unfitness for association with any man anxious to appeal to the American people on a moral issue" has been abundantly shown by other acts of his as governor of Oklahoma. The president condemns Haskell's conduct in connection with various matters as disgraceful and scandalous, and calls special attention to what he describes as "prostituting to base purposes the state university."

This fresh charge against the governor rests on an article in the "Outlook," from which the president quotes and which, he says, forms the conclusion that Haskell is unworthy of any position in public life.

Some of the president's sharpest thrusts at Bryan follow:

"I am not in charge of the campaign, but am greatly interested in it."

"It is up to you to say what shall be done with Governor Haskell."

"The facts concerning Haskell which I give you were available before he was chosen treasurer of your campaign committee."

"You may have advocated more radical measures against private monopolies than I have, but they will never work out in practice."

"Any measure you advocate would merely throw the entire business of the country into hopeless and utter confusion."

"I'll put Taft's deeds against your words and let the public judge which is the more lasting."

"It is entirely natural that the great law-defying corporations would wish to see you president rather than to see Taft elected."

"Your plans to stop corporation abuses are wholly chimerical."

The latter portion of Roosevelt's deliverance is devoted to criticism of Bryan's plan for regulating the trusts, which he characterizes as a measure that sounds more radical than any advocated by the Republicans, but which in practice would not work. Concluding, the president declares that no law-defying corporation has anything to fear from Bryan "save what is would suffer from the general paralysis of business which would follow Democratic success."

The president spent almost the entire day in getting the letter in shape. An hour was given yesterday morning to making a rough draft of it, which was submitted to Secretary Garfield and Postmaster General Meyer, both of whom made suggestions as to portions of the communication. Yesterday afternoon all of the members of the cabinet now in the city, Secretaries Wilson, Straus, Wright, Metcalf and Garfield and Postmaster General Meyer, met with the president in the cabinet room at the executive offices for a conference on the subject, which lasted until after 5 o'clock. Two hours more was required to make minor changes before Secretary Loeb gave it to the press.

Deeming the reply too long to be sent by wire, the method of communication Bryan had employed in his challenge to the president, it was forwarded by mail to the Democratic candidate at Lincoln, Neb.

Dissatisfied With Haskell

New York, Sept. 24.—It has become known at Democratic national headquarters that several national committeemen are preparing to use every influence to bring about the removal of Governor Haskell from the office of treasurer of the national committee. This is a result of the publication of charges that Haskell, as governor of Oklahoma, declined to permit the state to prosecute the Prairie Oil company, a subsidiary company of the Standard Oil company.

Charges that Haskell had been identified with several railroad promotions in this city, which are said to have been unfortunate in the matter of consummation, are said to have also tended to increase the feelings of these national committeemen that the time has about come for Haskell to resign from the committee or be removed.

It is made plain by national committeemen that when Haskell was selected as treasurer of the committee there was not the slightest knowledge that any charge or suggestion could be made against him with regard to his attitude or reported connection with railroad promotions and that Bryan himself had no knowledge of the matter. Chairman Mack declares that if the charges against Haskell are proved he will expect him to resign.

Haskell Defended by Kern

Baltimore, Sept. 24.—Before two large audiences in widely separated sections of the city last night, John W. Kern took up the cudgel in defense of Governor Haskell and roundly scored President Roosevelt for his letter on the subject. He also took occasion to reply to statements made by Attorney General Bonaparte in an interview called forth by charges made by W. J. Bryan that the so-called steel trust was permitted to exist in defiance of law.

Sees Nothing to Reply To

Guthrie, Okla., Sept. 24.—Governor Haskell, when shown The Associated Press story from New York to the effect that an effort was making by several national committeemen to effect his removal from the treasurership of the Democratic national committee, said he had no statement to make. "I cannot see anything in this that seems to require any reply from me," he said.

Mack May Comment Later

New York, Sept. 24.—The reply of the president to the telegram of Mr. Bryan was read at Democratic national headquarters last night. National Chairman Mack said that as the communication was addressed personally to Bryan, he had no comment to make. However, he thought that he might something to say today upon the matters that had been thus publicly discussed.

Taft's Attitude Toward Labor

Chicago, Sept. 24.—William H. Taft speaking before the Railway Men's Independent club last night, paid his respects to union labor, dealing particularly with decisions in labor cases rendered by him when judge. A large crowd, forming an overflow meeting, surrounded Taft as he reached Orchestra hall, and, standing in his automobile, he delivered an informal address. He said he believed that no judge had ever had the interest of the laboring man at heart more than he had now and had had when a judge. He was proud to say that he frequently had been called in consultation with President Roosevelt on labor questions and that his own and the president's views were in accord. He referred to Mr. Bryan and Samuel Gompers as "among those people who are always full of enthusiasm for union labor when they are running for office. But," continued Taft, "you've got to get men like Theodore Roosevelt when you want them to do things."

Bryan In Buckeye State

Columbus, O., Sept. 24.—Twelve speeches to enormous crowds marked the second entry of William J. Bryan into Ohio during the present campaign. His concluding speech was made here last night to an overflow crowd of 20,000 persons, while just previously he had addressed the largest audience that ever had assembled in Memorial hall. In none of his remarks did he touch on the bribery charge against Governor Haskell. His remarks last night were on the issues of the campaign generally, but his speech to the members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen was devoted exclusively to the labor question and more particularly the plank in the Democratic platform demanding a trial by jury in cases of indirect contempt. In these remarks he took occasion to refer to the attempts made in 1896 to pass a law covering such cases, and quoted a telegram signed by heads of various labor organizations, asking that the proposed law be passed.

Hisgen Strikes Hostile Audience

Fort Worth, Tex., Sept. 24.—Thomas L. Hisgen spoke here last night. He had not proceeded far in his speech before he referred to the disclosures connecting Senator Foraker with the Standard Oil company and he coupled Senator Bailey of Texas with the senator from Ohio in connection with Standard Oil. Hisgen was speaking to Bailey's staunchest friends and the audience immediately assailed the speaker with a roar of hisses and jeers. Congressman Howard appealed to the audience to hear respectfully a stranger, whereupon he was administered by the auditors not to slander the Texas senator. Hisgen, after quiet had been restored, declared his surprise that the people of the south would be guilty of the demonstration which greeted him. He reminded his audience that he had paid for the hall and expected to be heard respectfully. He then told the apple story on Rogers, and here the crowd again broke into hisses.

Glasscock For Governor

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 24.—The bitter feud in the Republican party in West Virginia following the dual conventions and rival state tickets placed in the field last July, headed respectively by Charles A. Swisher and Arnold C. Scherr, was ended last night when, following the withdrawal of Swisher Monday night, Scherr and his fellow candidates on the Lincoln Republican ticket agreed to retire in favor of the new candidate of the regular Republicans, William E. Glasscock. The other state candidates of the regular faction stand as nominated last July

INVESTIGATE and ECONOMIZE.

NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.

On and after September 16, we have decided

TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE

as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods

AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills over due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every day. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and take them with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Now think this proposition over, and we feel confident that you can see it just the way that we do.

SOMETHING THAT IS NEEDED HERE IN QUINCY.

A HIGH GRADE OF GOODS SOLD AT LOW PRICES.

So Remember your 5 per cent discount.

Respectfully,

City Square, Quincy. JOHNSON BROS. Hancock Street, Corner Maple.

AN ELECTION PRIMER

Pertinent Points About Our Election Machinery For New Voters and Old

THE ELECTION OF 1904.

Who were the two leading presidential candidates in 1904?

Theodore Roosevelt and Alton B. Parker, both of New York.

Did Roosevelt receive a majority of the popular vote?

He did. His clear majority over all candidates was 1,736,264. There were four lesser candidates.

And who were they?

Eugene V. Debs of Indiana, Socialist; Silas C. Swallow of Pennsylvania, Prohibitionist; Thomas E. Watson of Georgia, Populist, and Charles H. Corrigan of New York, Socialist Labor.

What was the vote of these candidates?

Debs, 402,283; Swallow, 258,536; Watson, 117,183; Corrigan, 31,249.

Did any of these lesser candidates carry any electoral votes?

No. The total electoral vote was 476, of which Roosevelt got 336 and Parker 140. The electoral vote for the vice presidential candidates, Fairbanks and Davis respectively, was the same.

Is not that always the case?

Not necessarily. In 1896, when Bryan was nominated on both the Democratic and the Populist tickets for president, with Arthur Sewall of Maine for vice president on the first ticket and Thomas E. Watson of Georgia for vice president on the second ticket, Watson received twenty-seven electoral votes for the vice presidency.

What was Roosevelt's plurality over Parker?

It was 2,545,515. Roosevelt's total vote was 7,623,486; Parker's total, 5,077,971.

TAFT'S KINDNESS TO BLIND.

Overrules Washington Monument Regulation For Benefit of the Sightless.

The kind heartedness of Mr. Taft and his sincere, common sense sympathy with the unfortunates in this world has just been brought to the attention of the blind in a peculiar way.

Away up in the top of the Washington monument, where thousands go to behold the beauties of the nation's capital, the Columbia Polytechnic institute, which seeks to make it possible for the adult blind of the United States to rise above conditions of dependence by becoming self sustaining, placed on sale souvenir post cards manufactured by its blind. Some sentimental persons took the view that this was undignified and succeeded in having the superintendent of public buildings and grounds order the cards removed. F. E. Cleaveland, principal of the institute, appealed to Mr. Taft, then secretary of war and within whose jurisdiction came the office of public buildings and grounds. It took only a few words to convince the secretary that the blind should have the benefit of this privilege, and the cards were again placed on sale in the monument.

"For this action," said Principal Cleaveland in discussing the incident, "Mr. Taft deserves the gratitude of every blind person, particularly the progressive blind, who are striving to help their less fortunate fellows."

We favor the enactment of a law requiring common carriers engaged in passenger traffic to furnish separate coaches or compartments for white and colored passengers.

Elective Franchise Plank.

Believing that the extension of the elective franchise to a race inferior in intelligence and without preparation for the wise and prudent exercise of a privilege so vital to the maintenance of good government was a mistake if not a crime committed by the Republican party during the reign of passion and prejudice following the civil war for political ends and purposes, we declare that the Democratic party is in favor of so amending the constitution as to preserve the purity of the ballot and the electorate of the state from the evil results from conferring such power and privilege upon those who are unfitted to appreciate its importance, as it affects the stability and preservation of good government.

Taft's Religion.

To dispose of questions which should not be asked as speedily as possible let us say that Mr. Taft is not a Roman Catholic. He is a member of the Unitarian church. That was the church of his parents, and he has never separated himself from it. His wife, however, is an Episcopalian, and he worships more often beside her in her church.

These are the facts, which are utterly and absolutely unimportant. The matter of a man's religion has no rightful place in consideration of his fitness for the presidency. The constitution of the nation, ordained and established "to secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity," expressly places the very suggestion of such thought outside the pale of patriotism.

No words can be clearer than these from our country's fundamental law, "No religious test ever shall be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States."

The numerous queries about Mr. Taft's religious belief show simply the extent to which his enemies have gone to rouse some prejudice against him. Since there was no spot upon his whole clean record of private conduct and public service to which they could point to Taft's detriment they displayed their willingness to descend to any depth of petty, cowardly, contemptible attack that might do him harm.—Philadelphia North American.

Same Old Story.

Taft talked "straight talk" to his countrymen about every issue that engrosses the thoughts of Americans today. Bryan promises a series of postscripts to dispose of tariff, railroads, currency, trusts and everything else of real importance. And then he engages in one of his melancholy searches after a "paramount issue" and finds it in the rhetorical, fustian and tinsel platitude, "Shall the people rule?"

It is the old, old story. The garb of the conservative does not sit well upon the born Crusader. Mr. Bryan has put forth a tactful, smoothly phrased bundle of generalities, and he has done so at the very moment when the mental appetite of the whole people is sharpened for strong meat and not wind pudding.

With a score of honestly disputed and important questions open, he chooses deliberately to select as the chief issue of the campaign a query to which there is absolutely no negative response—"Shall the people rule?" The people always have ruled and always will rule.—Philadelphia North American, Aug. 15, 1908.

Reciprocal Boosting.

Judge Parker is laboring for the Bryan cause in California, which recalls the fact that Bryan's campaign in Nebraska for Parker kept the Republican majority in the state down to 86,000.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Mr. Bryan criticises Mr. Taft for adding to the Republican platform. In the meantime the number of "paramount issues" which Mr. Bryan subtracted from the Democratic platform would fill several large volumes.—Omaha Bee.

CITY OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace Of Two Burial Place Of Two

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grandfather of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

BIRTHPLACES OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace of John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States, Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Admission charged.

Birthplace of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of the old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponsit river.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) at Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. The funeral of John Quincy Adams was held in this church. Beneath the entrance is the Adams tomb, reached by stairways from the vestibule. Near the tomb is the box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams, also the old town hearse. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock cemetery across the street from First church contains many old stones. Among the old graves are those of Henry Adams founder of the Adams family who died Oct. 5, 1646; Rev. William Thompson, 1st pastor over the Braintree church who died Dec. 10, 1666; Rev. Henry Flint who died Oct. 11, 1668; Rev. John Hancock father of the Patriot who died May 7, 1744 and many other notable people.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

DOROTHY Q. HOUSE.

Hancock street, corner Butler road, Quincy, Old Quincy homestead in which Dorothy Q was born. Owned by the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames. Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting feature. Open free to the public on Saturdays, from 11 A. M. until 4 P. M. Other days admission charged

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 30, 1621, guided by the Indian Tisquantum.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

FORGERY AND LARCENY

Charges Against Alleged Swindler Captured by Boston Police

Boston, Sept. 24.—Oliver Veauvans, aged 35, of England, wanted by the police of New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Buffalo, as well as by Boston officers, on charges of larceny and forgery, and whose picture and record, it is claimed by the Boston officers, are in the rogues' gallery, was arrested by Inspector Conboy in this city.

Beauvans was held as a fugitive from justice on notice from New York, where he is wanted for larceny from Oxford University Press of that city. Later charges of forgery were made on behalf of Hotel Bellevue, the Adams House and Dr. A. C. Christian of this city.

Beauvans is a splendid looking fellow, well dressed and evidently comes from a fine family. He had been selling high priced medical works for the Oxford University Press and it is charged had secured advance payments and commissions on books which he had failed to have delivered. In addition, it is charged, he has forged checks on prominent physicians with whom he has come in contact in various parts of the country.

Beauvans will probably be held in this city to meet the charges of forgery before being turned over to the New York officers.

CANDIDATES ARE HUSTLING FOR VOTES

Unwilling to Concede the Nomination of Frothingham

Boston, Sept. 24.—According to the latest reports obtained from the 354 towns and cities in the state, the returns give Frothingham 666 delegates, Cole 446 and Luce 303. The unpledged delegates number 135. This report shows that Frothingham has swept the state in the bitter three-cornered fight for the Republican lieutenant governorship nomination.

But notwithstanding the official figures none of the candidates remained idle yesterday, and probably put in the busiest day since the campaign started in an effort to corral the unpledged delegates. Each one of the trio sent out claims for the unpledged ones yesterday.

Many of Cole's friends claim that the machine leaders showed their hands plainly in the primaries, notwithstanding the fact that they had promised to keep their hands off the fight, and they declare that they will make the convention one of the liveliest in the history of the Republican politics in this state.

That Frothingham will be an easy winner, however, is conceded by those who shape things in a political way.

Convicted of Murdering Sheriff

Rutland, Vt., Sept. 24.—A jury brought in a verdict of murder in the second degree against Antonio Vallenti, charged with causing the death of Deputy Sheriff Frank A. Hayden of Ludlow. Hayden went to the woods to serve a civil writ on Vallenti on account of a mortgage held on his house and a quarrel arose, during which Vallenti struck the officer with an axe.

Captain Lost and Cargo Ruined

New York, Sept. 24.—Fruit steamer Senator arrived from Port Antonio in charge of First Mate Patteson, Captain Aarsbold having been washed overboard during the recent hurricane when trying to save a sail which was being carried away. The Senator had two boats smashed and eight of her vents broken. Her cargo of fruit will probably be a total loss.

The Goodwin Divorce Suit

Reno, Nev., Sept. 24.—Nat C. Goodwin instructed his attorneys to permit the representative of a Reno newspaper to see the sealed complaint for divorce against his wife, Maxine Elliott, which he filed recently. The complaint is simply one of desertion for more than one year and contains nothing startling. It is said there will be no contest.

Killed Himself With Dynamite

Springfield, Vt., Sept. 24.—The body of George Walker was found in a pasture in this town, badly mutilated. Apparently Walker met his death by the explosion of a dynamite cartridge. It is supposed that he committed suicide. He was 63 years old and had been despondent on account of ill-health and lack of employment.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Royal Canadian Yacht club has decided to challenge for the Canada cup, now held by the Rochester Yacht club, the race to take place in 1909.

Drayton Hillyer, for many years one of the leading men in Hartford, died at his home there in his 93d year. He was a director in several Hartford institutions.

Returns of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company on its steam lines for traffic during the first three weeks of the present month indicate for the first time in many months a more or less definite revival of business.

It is announced at Boston that the prices to be paid to the farmers for milk by the Boston contractors will be the same this coming winter as they were last winter.

Temporary insanity, caused by brooding over the death of her husband and of other relatives, is believed to have been the cause of the suicide of Mrs. Julia Meader of Newmarket, N. H., by hanging. She was 65 years of age.

The Scrap Book

Mistaken Courtesy.

A guileless rustic who wished to be employed on an English railway emerged from the examination room and informed his expectant father that he had failed because he was color blind.

"But you can't have!" said his father. "You're no more color blind than I am."

"I know that, feyther," he replied, "but it's all through bein' polite."

"What do you mean? Explain yourself."

"Well, feyther, I went into a room, and a chap held somethin' up for me to look at. 'This is green, isn't it?' ses he. 'Come, now, you're positive it's green?' quite pleading-like, and, though I could see plain enough that it wor red, I couldn't find it in my heart to tell him so. So I agreed with him, and they bundled me out. No more perliteness for me. It don't pay."

SOWING THE SEED.

Some are sowing the seed of word and deed,
Which the cold know not nor the careless heed,
Of the gentle word and the kindly deed
That hath blessed the earth in its sorest need.
Sweet will the harvest be.

And some are sowing the seed of pain,
Of dire remorse and a maddened brain,
And the stars shall fall and the sun shall wane
Ere they root the weeds from the soil again.
Dark will the harvest be.

All Right Either Way.

General Dabney H. Maury tells in his "Recollections of a Virginian" of an old lady in Fredericksburg who was reduced to taking in boarders in order to make both ends meet. On one occasion of peculiar stress the larder was so empty that the good lady took to her bed and summoned her servant. "Nancy," she said, "there's nothing in the house for my boarders to eat except mush. But give them that. If they are Christians they will accept it in resignation and thankfulness, and if they are not Christians it is a deal too good for them."

Lamartine's Modesty.

Lamartine in 1848 was at the acme of his glory and a cabinet minister. He had just contributed "La Marseillaise de la Paix" to the Revue des Deux Mondes, and Buloz, the editor, called on him at the ministry. "I believe I owe you 2,000 francs. Here is the money," said Lamartine, producing a bundle of bank notes.

"Pray deduct the amount of the Revue's indebtedness to you for your poem," said the editor.

"I meant to make you a present of it," rejoined the poet.

"Not at all. I insist upon paying you."

"How much?"

"Your own price, whatever it may be."

"Ah, well, if you will have it so I must oblige you," said Lamartine, and, with a magnificent gesture, he swept up the whole bundle of notes representing the 2,000 francs and restored them, with solemn dignity, to his pocket.

Grew Some.

A keeper in a zoo was feeding the pythons. Several live rabbits were tossed into the cage and were immediately and greedily seized by the reptiles. The struggling rabbits, although seemingly almost as large as the snakes, were swallowed whole one after another. The grisly sight prompted the scholarly looking man to exclaim:

"Grewsome, eh, keeper?"

The keeper turned a glance of scorn upon the professor:

"Yaas, and you'd 'a' grew some, too, if you'd e't all that live stock, I guess."

A Parting Shot.

Two young persons had been engaged, had quarreled, but were too proud to "make up." Furthermore, both were anxious to have it believed they had entirely forgotten each other.

One day the young man called, ostensibly on business with her father, on which occasion it chanced she should answer the doorbell.

The young man was game. "Pardon me," he said, with the politest of bows—"Miss Eaton, I believe. Is your father in?"

"I am sorry to say he is not," the young woman responded without the slightest sign of recognition. "Do you wish to see him personally?"

"Yes," replied the young man as he turned to go down the steps.

"I beg your pardon," called out the young woman as he reached the lowest step, "but who shall I say called?"

Effects of Reason.

Reason, like the magnetic influence imparted to iron, gives to matter properties and powers which it possessed not before, but without extending its bulk, augmenting its weight or altering its organization. Like that to which I have compared it, it is visible only by its efforts and perceptible only by its operations.—Caleb C. Colton.

Fleeing From Fate.

An English village rector while walking out one day noticed an old man in front of him hobbling along as fast as his legs could carry him and apparently trying to escape him. Seeing that it was one of his congregation, who had not been to church of late, the vicar hurried after him.

"Hello, John!" said he. "How is it that I haven't seen you at church lately?"

At first the rector could get nothing out of him, but after a little persuasion he said:

"Well, zir, it be your youngest darter, Nelly, I be afeared of."

"What! Afraid of Nelly, a girl of nineteen and only just returned from school?"

"Yes, zir. You see," replied John, "when I went a-cortin' an old forchin teller told me as 'ow I should be spliced three times, first to a black an' then to a yeller an' then to a ginger. Now, when I buried my poor yeller Sally three months ago an' your darter wi' the ginger 'air comed 'ome from schule I says to myself, I says: 'That's 'er. That's the ginger 'un, an' if I don't keep away from church she'll nab me.'"

In a Bad Way.

The English spoken by the "Pennsylvania Dutch," as the inhabitants of certain districts in the eastern part of the state are popularly known, affords some rare specimens of expression. A man who was passing a small house on the outskirts of "Sous Besselem"—that is the nearest possible spelling of the local pronunciation—heard the daughter of the family calling her brother in to supper. "George," she said, "you come right in now. Pa's on the table, and ma's half et!"

A Careful Man.

When Dawson reached town he was suddenly seized with a terrific toothache, and he flew to a dentist. Investigation showed that the tooth was in such a condition that the only way to extract it comfortably was to put the sufferer under the influence of gas. Consequently Dawson threw himself back in the chair, and the tube was applied. He did not succumb any too readily, but in the course of time he was sleeping peacefully, and the offending molar was removed.

"How much, doctor?" asked the patient after the ordeal was over.

"Ten dollars," said the dentist, business being dull.

"Ten dollars!" roared Dawson.

"Yes, sir," said the dentist. "It was an unusually hard job getting that tooth out, and you required twice the ordinary amount of gas."

"Humph!" ejaculated Dawson as he paid up. "Here's your money, but I tell you right now the next time I take gas from you you've got to put a meter on me."—Harper's Weekly.

"Ours."

Today a woman's property is sacred—at any rate as sacred as a man's. A certain host remarked before his guests lately that he would send his motor to the station to meet So-and-so.

"Our motor," corrected the hostess, who wants tone.

As the lady had actually bought the motor, the correction was severe and rankled. Next morning the host came down very late to breakfast. He was chaffed about this and explained: "I'm sorry. The fact is I mislaid our trousers."

Little Courtesies.

William Wirt's letter to his daughter on the "small, sweet courtesies of life" contains a passage from which a deal of happiness might be learned: "I want to tell you a secret. The way to make yourself pleasing to others is to show them attention. The whole world is like the miller at Mansfield, who cared for nobody—no, not he—because nobody cared for him. And the whole world would serve you so if you gave them the same cause. Let every one, therefore, see that you do care for them by showing them what Sterne so happily calls the small courtesies, in which there is no parade, whose voice is too still to tease and which manifest themselves by tender and affectionate looks and little acts of attention, giving others the preference in every little enjoyment at the table, in the field, walking, sitting or standing."

Chopin's Kick.

Chopin hated playing at social festivities. To a lady who after the dinner asked him to play he melancholically answered: "Is it really necessary? I ate only so little."

Schoolmates.

A conductor sent a new brakeman to put some tramps off the train. They were riding in a box car. The brakeman dropped into the car and said, "Where are you fellows going?" "To Atchison." "Well, you can't go to Atchison on this train, so get off." "You get!" came the reply. And as the new brakeman was looking into the business end of a gun he took the advice given him and "got." He went back to the caboose, and the conductor asked him if he had put the fellows off. "No," he answered. "I did not have the heart to put them off. They want to go to Atchison, and, besides, they are old schoolmates of mine." The conductor used some strong language and then said he would put them off himself. He went over to the car and met with the same experience as the brakeman. When he got back to the caboose the brakeman said, "Well, did you put them off?" "Naw; they're schoolmates of mine too."

An Unfortunate Participle.

A college professor who preferred the participle "gotten" to "got" telegraphed to his wife: "Have gotten tickets for the theater tonight. Meet me there."

The telegraph operator rendered this into "Have got ten tickets," etc.

Mrs. Professor was delighted with the opportunity of entertaining her friends and accordingly made up a party of eight besides herself, whose greetings to the professor at the rendezvous were probably more cordial than his feeling until matters were explained. He now makes an exception to his customary use of "gotten."

EDITORIAL.

An injustice was done to Louis F. R. Langelier when the mistake in the Ward Three ballots was attributed to him. The nomination papers used before the caucuses are prepared by the City Clerk and must be used in filing nominations. They are issued by the secretaries of the different city committees; in this case by Mr. Langelier, who stamped the papers before they were circulated, either for State or Councillor convention as requested.

Somehow a Councillor paper was circulated in Ward Three to place in nomination State delegates and of course it was unsuccessful, as it really nominated for the Councillor convention.

When the above Councillor list was filed it was in a State convention envelope but the envelope amounts to little.

Professor Thomas, of the Chicago University, has written a book called "Sex and Morality" which is as little flattering to woman as the famous letter of Lord Chesterfield in which he described women as "merely children of a larger growth having an interesting tattle and sometimes wit, but devoid of sound sense and incapable of reasoning or acting consequentially for four and twenty hours together." Professor Thomas points out the origin, and cause of what are generally considered the foibles, weaknesses and blandishments of the sex.

"There is a basis of truth," he says, "in Pope's hard saying women have no characters at all, because their problem is not to accommodate themselves to the solid realities of the world of experience and sense, but to adjust themselves to the personality of man. It is not surprising that they should assume Protean shapes."

He points out that primitive woman was practically a slave and beast of burden, but with the growth of civilization she gained control over man by coquetry. He asserts, however, that man is so affected by the charms of woman that he offers an easy mark for her machinations and exploitations. The professor is unusually severe in his strictures and out does both Schopenauer and Lord Chesterfield in his critical dissection. It is strongly suspected that he has had some experience not flattering to his self love, and is trying to revenge himself with his pen.

GREATEST YEAR YET

The Plans of Committee For Boys' Department Of the Y. M. C. A.

For the past two weeks committee meetings have been held in the Y. M. C. A. building of all classes of boys, student, employed and junior, for the purpose of getting ready for the fall and winter's work. The boys of these committees are planning first of all an opening reception, Thursday Oct. 8. A reception commencing at 7.45 will be held for employed boys. Every employed boy in Quincy is invited, and a large number are expected to attend. During the evening a game tournament will be held including bowling and pool. Music and refreshments will be a part of the informal program.

Saturday evening, from 7 to 9, a reception for junior boys will be held, two hundred boys are expected. Music, games, refreshments and stereopticon views are in order for the juniors. Every school boy under fifteen is invited.

Friday evening, Oct. 16, will be student night, and every fellow who attends High school is invited to come and help make it an enjoyable evening. Music, game tournament, refreshments, etc., will make up an informal program.

The work in the boys' department is fast rounding into shape and an exceptionally big year is looked for. The social life of the department this year is to be exceedingly strong. Bible study is to be made a main feature and by the middle of October several classes will be started. Practical talks for employed boys are to be a feature. Religious meetings for young and older fellows will be held. Every fellow in Quincy is invited to join and make this the greatest year in the history of the boys' department of the Quincy Young Men's Christian Association.

Houghs Neck Associates Meet

The Houghs Neck Associates held their monthly meeting at their new clubrooms in the Pandora building, Wednesday evening. The members turned out in fine shape and a lively meeting was the result. Henry W. French, president, presided.

Superintendent Conway and Division Superintendent Gammons of the Old Colony were present. After an address by Mr. Conway and remarks by many members, the railroad officials agreed to give the Houghs Neck line half hour time the coming winter during the busy part of the morning and afternoon, with a late car Wednesday and Saturday nights. A. F. Baird was appointed to confer with Superintendent Conway and draw up a running schedule.

A committee was appointed to meet the members of the Public Building committee of the City Council, and select a suitable site for a four-room school-house at Houghs Neck.

The secretary was instructed to write a letter of thanks to the Mayor and the City Council for the excellent police protection given at the Neck during the summer, also for the generous appropriations for street lights.

The public landing committee reported that over five hundred signatures were on the petitions for public landing, and that a fund was needed to carry on the work.

Mayor William T. Shea was endorced for re-election and a candidate for the City Council from Houghs Neck will be selected at the next meeting.

Dennis Driscoll made an appeal for voluntary subscriptions to pay the expenses of the Associates. He said that dues was a bad thing for any organization, and asked the members to consider carefully before voting for any regular monthly assessment. The matter was laid on the table until next meeting.

B. W. Reardon Passes Away

Another of Quincy's old and respected citizens has passed away, Bartholomew W. Reardon being called to his last rest this morning. He had been ill for the past ten days and died at his home, 54 Common street, West Quincy. Mr. Reardon was born in Ireland about 76 years ago, and came to this country at an early age, with his mother and brothers. During his earlier years in this country he spent many years in the Southern states, and he was in that part of the country when the Civil war broke out. Of course living in the south, he was compelled to join the Confederate forces, and he saw much service among their ranks. Later he came north and joined the Union ranks, doing considerable fighting against his old comrades.

After the war was over he came to Quincy and settled down, going into the granite industry for a livelihood, a business which he has followed for forty years.

Shortly after coming to Quincy he was married to Catherine Donavon of Concord, N. H., and he has lived in Quincy ever since.

He is survived by a wife, seven sons, one of whom is Dr. Daniel B. Reardon, of 22 School street, Quincy, three daughters, a brother Patrick Reardon in San Francisco, and a step-brother Timothy Sullivan of Concord, N. H.

Thirty years in the druggist business, of which twenty has been in Quincy, has given C. C. Hearn, the City Square druggist, an enviable reputation. Nothing but reliable goods are carried in stock and the time worn phrase "Just as good" is never heard in his store. Every prescription is compounded by a registered pharmacist just as the doctor orders it. Mr. Hearn does not believe in booming any one-concerns line of goods, but carries a full line of drugs, medicinces, patent and proprietary preparations, compounded and manufactured by reliable chemists. Just at the present time he is advertising extremely low prices on a number of standard articles.

Weymouth Fair.

Weymouth has an ideal day for the opening of the annual fair of the Agricultural society. An unusual fine array of attractions together with good purses for the horse racing, insures a good attendance. The fair will be continued Friday and Saturday.

Miss E. B. Collins, the City Square milliner, announces her annual autumn opening of fine hats and novelties, commencing Saturday, and continuing until the end of the month. All ladies are cordially invited to inspect her large stock.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

C. Webster Newcomb of Quincy Neck is again employed in Boston.

The Merrill house corner Washington and Pine streets is being painted.

Percy Holman has painted the new woodwork in the Point church this week.

The Fresh Air Camp Association is contemplating a new line of work for the winter.

The yards about East Howard street are being graded with loam from the reservoir.

The Independence League has nominated Charles J. Kidney for Congressman in the Tenth district.

Mr. Gragg has in his store window, at Quincy Point an exhibition of of war and encampment medals.

Supt. Parlin is to speak at the Point church on Sunday evening. His address will be of special interest to parents.

The State Sunday school convention, will meet Oct. 6, 7 and 8 at Worcester, and all Quincy churches will be well represented.

Henry Totman, one of the oldest residents of the Point, is critically ill at his home on Chubbuck street. There is small hope of his recovery.

The entertainment committee of the Red Men are to hold a dance in Music hall, Atlantic, Nov. 6 and have several interesting events planned to keep the brothers interested.

A meeting of persons interested in the transportation of boats, etc., across the "Shore Boulevard," will be held at Wollaston club house Friday evening, Sept. 25, at 8 o'clock.

Several old and poor horses are noticed in our city, attached to hucksters teams. One such was seen last week with a raw back, another was seen this week so poor it looked like a lot of bones, and the driver let it rest at frequent intervals. In neither case was the animal ill-treated and we suppose life is sweet tho' severe to these old and faithful servants of mankind.

At a meeting of the senior class at Boston College on Tuesday, Thomas W. Buckley of West Quincy, was elected treasurer for the ensuing year. This is a position of considerable responsibility, because it involves the handling of several hundred dollars, paying commencement expenses, etc. This reflects well on the honesty of Mr. Buckley, and shows in what esteem he is held by his classmates.

"Ted" Keohane, the popular young grocery clerk of Atlantic, has entered the employ of the Quincy Daily Ledger, where he will learn the ins and outs and all the points of printing. If he makes good at this, as well as he does at base-ball, he will be all right, and the Ledger will have added one more good man to its force. "Ted" graduated from Quincy High school last June, and there he was very popular and prominent in baseball, being captain of the 1908 team.

Many Witnesses Refute Testimony

mittee discussed the evidence presented but did not come to any conclusion as to what disposition would be made of the charges.

The regular meeting of the committee will be held next Tuesday evening, at which time representatives of the local Central Labor Union will be invited to appear before the board if they desire.

After that the committee will give its finding on the charges.

From facts brought out at the hearing of Wednesday, it appears that several of the members of the School Committee visited the yard of the coal company that afternoon to see for themselves whether the statement made by Mr. Curtis, who weighed the coal for the city, or that of the labor men was correct.

Mr. Curtis claimed that standing at the weighing beam he could see the platform of the scales and whether the horses' feet were on it or a man was standing on it. The labor men claimed that he could not see.

The School Committee found that the statement of Mr. Curtis was correct and that of the labor union was not correct.

In the matter of the statement of the labor men that it was impossible to load onto a team the amount said team was credited with having delivered, the committee found that several hundred pounds more than was credited to the team could have been and was loaded in their presence.

They also found that most of the Lehigh coal was loaded direct from the barge to the teams, and some of the members even went so far as to trace the barge back to the port where it was loaded for the Coal company.

They also satisfied themselves that the transaction of selling coal to Mr. Curtis was a legitimate one, and that there was no evidence to suport the intimation of the labor men that Mr. Curtis received his coal free of charge.

Of the six State delegates elected in Weymouth, 5 are said to be for Frothingham and 1 for Luce.

Returns from Milton credit the four State delegates elected at the caucus as being favorable to Frothingham.

The Baptist church of Hyde Park continued its 50th anniversary celebration Wednesday evening with a banquet in the vestry, followed by speaking in the auditorium.

Capt. Walter L. Bouve and the officers of Co. K, 5th regiment, are looking over land in Hingham for a site for the new State armory. The Whiton lot on Central and Elm streets, and the Mary Whiton estate on North street, are the two most available sites found so far.

Henry W. Savage has sold the Hancock place in Bellingham to John G. Gardella. The property consists of seven acres of land, an eight-room house, stable and poultry house. The estate is situated on the State road and is one of the finest places in the town.

The Dreamwold farm of Thomas W. Lawson, at Scituate, will ship 25 head of prize Jersey cows to the Brockton fair. The herd will be headed by the $7,500 bull, Champion Flying Fox.

The Republicans of Wrentham gave one delegate to Frothingham, Edward F. McClennan being elected.

The Republican caucus held in Wellesly was one of the most largely attended in the history of the place. Three Frothingham men were chosen over Luce men by a vote of 131 to 32.

John Eichorn, known as the oldest furrier in the United States, died Wednesday at his home in Brookline. He has been in the fur business since he was eighteen years old and the past 40 years his office has been on Kingston street, Boston. He is survived by four sons and two daughters.

Several people who have passed by the entrance to Great Pond in Randolph have reported that a strong stench is noticed in the vicinity where the unknown man was found dead a year ago. It is thought that another dead man may be in the underbrush nearby and a search will be instituted. At the time the other body was found, it was thought another body might be there, but it could not be discovered.

The Golden Star commandery of Holbrook held a meeting Wednesday evening complimentary to their new deputy. Delegations were present from the Liberty commandery of Stoughton and the Lincoln commandery of Brockton.

FILIBUSTER PLOT IS DISCLOSED

Overthrow of the Colombian Government Its Object

MEN AND EQUIPMENT READY

Recruits to the Number of Six Hundred to Serve In Infantry, Cavalry and Artillery Enlisted In Massachusetts--Expedition Scheduled to Sail From Boston on the First of October--Disclosures by a Reporter

Boston, Sept. 24.—The Boston Post prints the disclosure of an alleged filibustering expedition to start from this city on Oct. 1, composed of 600 men, fully armed and equipped, for the overthrow of the United States of Colombia in South America.

Attention was first called to the proposed expedition by advertisements in local papers several months ago calling for recruits, graduates of the United States navy and army preferred, the advertisements being signed merely "W. A. B." A reporter of the paper in question claims to have enlisted as a recruit and secured the information of the expedition.

According to The Post, offices were opened in Boston, Worcester and Lynn, and 600 men were secured. These were divided into 300 infantrymen, 200 cavalrymen and 100 artillerymen. One hundred of the men were secured in Worcester and about the same number in Lynn, with the rest from Boston. The men were to receive $15 a month until departure, then $30.

The recruiting was under the direction of A. W. Blanchard, a mining engineer, with offices in New York. The Lynn recruiting office was under the charge of M. F. Kane.

Mauser carbines, United States cavalry sabres, 45-calibre revolvers, four machine guns and two Hotchkiss guns, with other equipment, it is claimed, had already been purchased from Bliss & Co. and Francis I. Bannerman of New York. The arms were to be shipped to Boston and held here until the departure.

A British tramp steamer had been secured, it is claimed, to transport the troops and arms to South America. A fishing schooner was to take the men and arms out of Boston harbor to the three-mile limit, where the tramp steamer would be met.

The departure was originally set for July 1, but owing to the death of an ex-army captain, who was to have command, the start had to be postponed. Later a former major in the United States army, who lives in Providence, was secured to command, and the date of departure set for Oct. 1.

The ship was to proceed to the Carribean and land the force at the mouth of the Magdalena river, from which point the forces would march upon Barranquilla, ten miles inland, and attack the government houses.

It is claimed that the expedition was hatched in Colombia late last year and arose through the jealousy of former members of the cabinet of President Reyes. Having overthrown the government, it was believed the army could readily be won over and a new government installed. It was even proposed that Colombia might be merged with Ecuador and possibly Venezuela.

Head Cracked With Sledge

Brandon, Vt., Sept. 24.—While three Italian laborers were drilling a hole in the side of a ledge the gravel at the upper part of the bank caved in, burying the three men. Two of them were taken out alive, but severely injured. The third, Michael Orassi, was dug out dead, with his skull fractured. Orassi was holding the drill and it is supposed that just as the cavein occurred one of the men who were hammering hit him accidentally on the head with his sledge.

Great Drop of Sardines

Lubec, Me., Sept. 24.—Seven thousand cases of canned sardines slid into the Eastern Steamship company's dock here last night when the floor of the Lubec Sardine company's warehouse collapsed. There were 21,000 cases of the fish, all without covers, but two-thirds of the goods did not go into the water. The accident is attributed to the weakening of the warehouse supports by the jar of the vessels against the wharf. The total loss is $7000.

Charged With Arson

Portland, Me., Sept. 24.—Howard C. Sabine, whose admissions to the police strengthened their belief that he has a mania for ringing in the fire alarm and seeing the apparatus respond, was bound over to the January term of the superior court on the charge of arson in connection with the alleged incendiary fire in a stable. Bail was fixed at $500.

Eberhard Guilty of Murder

Hackensack, N. J., Sept. 24.—August Eberhard, on trial for the murder of his aunt, Mrs. Ottillie Eberhard, changed his plea to guilty and was sentenced to serve thirty years in state prison.

PUBLIC PUNISHMENT.

The Days of the Whipping Post, Stocks and Branding Irons.

Up until the end of the war and a little while after the whipping post and stocks stood not far from the northwest corner of the courthouse and between that building and the present postoffice, and there the last whipping took place, though as it began it was sought to be stopped by a federal officer. The sheriff was, however, simply carrying out the mandate of the old court of pleas and quarter sessions.

In those days the stocks and the whipping post, too, were special attractions, notably to boys. The latter were allowed to ridicule people who sat in the stocks, which held their hands and feet, but not to throw anything at them.

Of course this deprived the boys of some degree of pleasure, yet they contrived to get a good deal of fun out of the thing anyway. It seems odd now even to think of such scenes as these must have been. Figure to yourself passing by the courthouse green at Charlotte or Raleigh and seeing a gentleman held by the ankles and wrists by wooden bars, sitting there in the sunshine for all the world to look at.

Those were the days of the branding iron too. A set of gyves of iron, in use for holding the ankles or wrists, are on exhibition here, but of branding irons there are none. These were used here in January, 1865, for the last time.—Raleigh Cor. Charlotte Observer.

VANITY OF CONVICTS.

The Way Some Men Spruce Up In the Penitentiary.

"The vainest lot of men I ever did know are behind these walls," remarked a convict in the penitentiary. "For fastidious dressing and cleanliness I have never seen anything like it. Those who have been accustomed to sleeking up on the outside grow much worse in here, and those who never even combed their hair on the outside have it as cleanly parted as they can. I know of a hundred instances where convicts have risked being paddled or having time taken away just for the sake of shaving. They get hold of a razor or improvise one and keep it in their cells. They all have mirrors in their cells along with the calendars.

"I know of one instance of a trusted prisoner who begged for weeks to be allowed to wear a hat instead of the prison cap because he thought he did not look well in it. Whenever they get an opportunity they press their trousers. They save collars for Sundays and appear very clean and neat and nice in chapel. I guess it is all because they have time to think about themselves more than ever. If a man has nothing but himself to think about he takes more pride in himself. Or maybe they want something with which to pass away the time in their cells."—Columbus Dispatch.

Blankets of Bark.

In Ecuador, one of the South American republics, the bark of a tree which grows on the slopes of the Andes is utilized for the making of blankets. The blanket is over six feet long and over five feet wide and is as soft and pliable as though it were made of flannel. It is about the thickness of a good flannel blanket and can be rolled up and put in a strap without hurting or injuring it. This tree or bark blanket is merely a strip of bark cut from a section of the trunk of the blanket or demajagua tree. The Indians make a cutting around the trunk to get it, and they prepare it by soaking it in water until it is soft. It is then pounded so that the rough outside can be stripped off and the inside alone left. The inside is of fine fibers so joined together by nature that it makes a beautiful blanket, warm enough to be used as a cover and soft enough for a mattress.

A Clock Case Made of Pennies.

A novelty in clockmaking consists of a timepiece whose case is made of English pennies. The coins, of which there are ninety-six, all bear the date 1797 and were beaten out to almost double their original size and then riveted together, while the figures were made of small strips of copper cemented on to the face. The clock stands fourteen inches high and is eight inches broad at the base. That "time is money" is an adage with which we all more or less agree, but this is a case in which the saying might be reversed and still remain true. The clock is owned by a resident of Laurel Bank, Ilkley, Yorkshire, England.

The Family Dog.

To Save Time.

WHIMS IN WILLS.

Curious Desires Have Actuated Many Testators.

The dryness of the law is sometimes alleviated by the freaks and whims that appear in wills.

Some persons have used their wills as means of paying off old scores. In 1770 Stephan Swain of the parish of St. Olaves, London, left "John Abbott and Mary, his wife, 6 shillings each for a halter for fear the sheriff should not be provided." In 1793 Philip Thickness willed that his right hand be cut off and sent to his son "in hopes that such a sight may remind him of his duty to God after having so long neglected the duty he owed to a father who once affectionately loved him."

Lieutenant Colonel Nash got even with his wife by leaving the bell ringers of Bath abbey £50 a year on condition that they muffle the bells of said abbey on the anniversary of his marriage and ring them with "doleful accentuation from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m." and on the anniversary of his death to ring a merry peal for the same space "in memory of his happy release from domestic tyranny and wretchedness."

Jasper Mayne, who died in 1620, must have been a person of humor. He left his servant an old valise, stating that it contained something that would enable him to drink. When the valise was opened it was found to contain only a red herring.

Occasionally a testator exhibits an original idea as to the disposition of his body. Sieur Benoit, whose will was probated in Paris in 1877, ordered that he be buried in his old trunk to save the expense of a coffin. He added that he was attached to the trunk, it having gone around the world with him three times.—New York Post.

FAKE PAINTINGS.

One of the Ingenious Tricks of the Picture Dealer.

The tricks of the picture dealer? They are not to be counted. Here is one that was played quite recently. A dealer ordered from an artist a tavern scene in the old Dutch style signed in the corner with a facsimile of Jan Steen's signature. When the smoky look of age had been given it the dealer eyed it with approval.

"Splendid!" he said to the needy artist. "It's a pity you shouldn't have the credit of it. Pray sign it with your own name. It may make your reputation."

The poor artist, delighted, painted over the signature of Jan Steen and set his own name there. Three weeks later the picture started for New York, consigned to a Fifth avenue merchant of paintings. But by the same boat went an anonymous letter to the custom house officials warning them that an attempt was being made to smuggle in a chef d'oeuvre of the Dutch school worth $40,000. The picture was seized. Experts were called in. They scraped off the signature of the artist and found underneath that of Jan Steen. The importer had to pay a fine of 50 per cent—that is, $20,000—and in addition $8,000 duty. Three days later, however, he sold his Jan Steen (guaranteed by the United States government) for the round sum of $50,000. Thus he made a fair profit, for the original cost of the picture was $14—70 francs paid to the poor devil of an artist.—Broadway Magazine.

The Sneeze Inopportune.

"Of all the embarrassing predicaments, the one that I was in was the worst ever," said a prosperous downtown business man, addressing his partner in their office on the fifteenth floor of one of the Broadway skyscrapers.

"I got in the elevator a few moments ago," he continued, "and the draft as we shot roofward caused me to sneeze. I felt it coming, and as I opened my mouth for a hearty 'achu' out popped my $150 set of false teeth. Say, when that car full of silly stenographers began to snicker I could have gone through a keyhole without touching sides, top or bottom!"—New York Globe.

Forces a Discharge.

"The Japanese servant has many curious traits," said the man who keeps one, "besides his constant habit of eating raw fish, but he is inordinately polote, as a rule. For instance, he never will give you notice that he wishes to leave you. Instead his work will grow steadily worse and worse till you can't stand it any longer, and so you fire him. It's always done purposely to avoid the necessity of telling you outright that he is tired of you and wants to quit."

Social Analogy.

Mrs. Subbubs—That Mrs. Newcome just moved into the Dudley's old house on Saturday, so I called today. Mr. Subbubs—Well, well, how like poker this social game is! Mrs. Subbubs—How do you mean? Mr. Subbubs—Why, in poker you also "call" when you want to see what the other person's got.—Philadelphia Press.

The Missing Feature.

"That meadow scene looks far from natural," declared the stage manager.

"What can ail it?"

"Begosh, I believe it's the absence of advertising signs!"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Sneaky.

Magistrate—Sneaky sort of man? What do you mean, sir? Witness—Well, sorr, he's the sort of man that'll never look ye straight in the face until your back's turned."

There's no phosphorescence in flowers to speak of, but they may lighten up many a darkened spot in life.—Manchester Union.

DENIES THAT BRYAN "COULD DO NO HARM."

Congressman Burke Says Office of President Is Infinitely More Powerful Than Congress.

Congressman James Francis Burke of Pittsburg in an address on "The Powers of the President" says:

"The American people can make no greater mistake than to elect Mr. Bryan on the assumption that he can do no harm in the face of an adverse senate. As between the executive and legislative departments of the government, the former has infinitely greater power to rule and ruin than the latter.

"Mr. Taft and Mr. Bryan are wholly different types of men. Each possesses a strong individual character, which would certainly assert itself in the White House. What either of these men would do during a four years' term in the White House is causing as much anxiety among thoughtful Americans as the mere matter of the election alone.

"As a disturber of moneys the president is without a rival in the world. Through the agencies under his control he will this year disburse a billion dollars, showing the great things we are doing in adding to the unparalleled list of the world's achievements.

"In view of the fact that during the fifteen years of Bryan leadership the states controlled by his party have decreased from 23 to 12, the number of senators from 48 to 31, the number of representatives in congress from 220 to 164 and in that time the Democratic party was in control of the ground, whereas it is now, as a consequence of his teachings, a hopelessly heterogeneous mass of Populistic elements, the American people can see little prospects of a constructive policy if Mr. Bryan should succeed."

Things Bryan Would Forget.

The most important, because the most curiously novel, feature of Mr. Bryan's address is his apotheosis of the party platform. A new doctrine of infallibility is embodied in these sentences at the very beginning of Mr. Bryan's speech:

A platform is binding as to what it omits as well as to what it contains. A platform announces a party's position on the questions which are at issue, and an official is not at liberty to use the authority vested in him to urge personal views which have not been submitted to the voters for their approval.

It is natural that Mr. Bryan should disavow certain "omitted issues," such as free silver, government ownership of railroads, the initiative and referendum, attacks upon the courts and other theories which at times he sanctioned overhastily in the past. But he is unfortunate in his manner of expressing that disavowal.

A party platform is not political holy writ. The American people choose for president a man, not a clerk, to carry out the orders of a convention committee. A platform is not a prophetic code of conduct, but a summary of basic principles, to be altered, amended or enlarged according to the country's needs.—Philadelphia North American.

Union Labor Vote.

Hon. William H. Buchanan is one of the leading union men of western New York and in 1907 was the Democratic candidate for assemblyman in Chautauqua county. This is what he has to say of the effort of Mr. Gompers to turn the labor vote over to Mr. Bryan:

"I am a union labor man, and I want to say further that no man can carry the labor vote into the Democratic camp. I know how union labor men feel in this city, and three-fourths of them will stand by the Republican party because only in that way have they the assurance of freedom from the business disturbance that Mr. Bryan promises for at least four years if he can be elected. We workingmen can't earn wages if statesmen are put in office to disturb business and make trouble."

Campaign Funds.

"We welcome Mr. Taft to this advanced ground," said Mr. Bryan in one of his numerous interviews since the Denver convention. The ground referred to is Mr. Taft's statement that no campaign contributions would be received from corporations. Mr. Bryan intended to convey the impression that Mr. Taft had come to that determination after the Denver convention. In that the Democratic "peerless one" is not honest. Mr. Taft is a law abiding citizen. Such contributions are unlawful, made so by a law passed by a Republican congress at the instance of a Republican administration of which Judge Taft was a part six months before the Denver convention. Be honest, Mr. Bryan, if you can!

Keeping In the Spotlight.

Candidate Chafin, having fallen into the water tank out west and having stopped half a brick with his person at Springfield, will, if he is going to keep in the limelight, have to lose his diamonds or do a buck and wing with Mrs. Nation.—Minneapolis Journal.

Kernology.

It is said the Democratic vice presidential candidate is not a vegetarian after all. Kerniverous, eh? Help! Police!—New York Mail.

Not a Wail For Bryan.

"Let us have the worst," says the Brooklyn Eagle. That sounds like, though it isn't a declaration for Bryan. —New York Tribune.

Candidate Sherman has been presented with a loving cup. The next thing in order is to present Candidate Kern with a shaving cup.—Omaha Bee.

Doctors Declare Dust Disseminates Disease.

Dust on store shelves and stock indicates disease.

It indicates a sluggish condition of the business blood.

Dust accumulates where trade decays.

Dusting the shelves with a duster is like taking drugs—a dose now and then relieves, but it doesn't cure.

Build up the blood of your business and make the microbes migrate.

CRUISER YANKEE ASHORE

Speedy Work Necessary to Save the Vessel From Destruction

Washington, Sept. 24.—Dispatches received at the navy department show that the cruiser Yankee, which went ashore at the entrance of Buzzard's bay during a fog, is seriously injured, and it is feared that unless she is floated before heavy weather sets in she may prove a total loss. There are a number of punctures in the bottom of the vessel, some of the frames are bent, and A2 forward compartment is full of water.

Wrecking apparatus with divers and vessels to lighten the ship by removing her cargo have been hurried to the locality of the accident, and every effort is being made to save the ship. An assistant naval constructor stationed at the Brooklyn navy yard has been directed to proceed to the wreck and to give the officers in charge information and advice. The colliers Nero and Lebanon and two tugs also have been sent to Buzzard's bay, the coaling ships to be available in lightening the Yankee of her guns and cargo if necessary.

The Yankee's armament is made up principally of three-inch guns, of which there are about a dozen. The board of inquiry will be appointed to determine the responsibility and cause of the accident.

HOWARD IS HELD WITHOUT BAIL

Miss Sturtevant Denies Claims of Murder Suspect

New Bedford, Mass., Sept. 24.—Grace F. Sturtevant, the young woman who stood by William C. Howard and secured his acquittal by her testimony supporting his own in a recent murder trial, will leave him to his own resources now that he has been arrested on the charge of killing his wife, Ida Howard.

The statement came from her own lips—a prompt and emphatic denial of all claims made by the prisoner to the effect that she had been in his company last Saturday night at the time that his wife is supposed to have met her death in the river.

"He will have to fight for himself," she said. "I was not in his company, and he will get neither support of his false statements nor comforting words from me."

The prisoner was arraigned in court yesterday, pleaded not guilty, and was held without bail till Oct. 3 on the charge of causing the death of his wife, whose body was found in three feet of water last Sunday.

After his arraignment came further disgrace and humiliation. He was served with a notice in his cell that he had been dishonorably discharged from membership in the fifty-second company of the United States coast artillery at Fort Rodman.

United Irish League Pledge

Boston, Sept. 24.—The national convention of the United Irish League of America brought its biennial session to a close in Faneuil hall late yesterday with the election of officers and the passing of resolutions approving the work of the league's representatives in the English house of parliament. The resolutions pledged the league to the raising of $80,000 for the perpetuation of the work in the cause of Irish freedom in the next two years. Michael J. Ryan of Philadelphia was elected national president.

Record Volume of Testimony

New York, Sept. 24.—No such volume of testimony, it is said, has ever before been taken in any case as already has been produced by the government's suit against the Standard Oil company, taking of testimony in which was closed yesterday in this city, to be resumed in Chicago on Wednesday next. As to the number of words, it mounts up to nearly 2,000,000. Five volumes of exhibits also contain probably 1,750,000 words. Every word of the testimony was taken by Robert S. Taylor of St. Paul.

Constable Vaughan Dead

Middleboro, Mass., Sept. 24.—Constable James E. Vaughan, aged 50, who was stabbed last Sunday while attempting to arrest John Monte, a Portuguese, died last night of his injuries. The struggle in which Vaughan received his death wound resulted from his efforts to arrest Monte, who was wanted for an attempted assault on Arthur C. Atwood, who assisted Vaughan when he went to arrest Monte. Atwood fired a shot which instantly killed Monte after he stabbed Vaughan.

Checking Forest Fires

North Creek, N. Y., Sept. 24.—After days of ceaseless battling with forest fires that have been destroying thousands of acres of timberland throughout the Adirondacks and which threatened to spread to villages and summer resort places, the army of fire-fighters last night succeeded in checking the more serious fires and the situation is greatly improved. Very few of the fires have been extinguished, however, and there is still great danger.

Automobile Kills a Boy

Beverly, Mass., Sept. 24.—An automobile driven by Charles M. Amory of Boston struck and fatally injured Donald Gilmartin, 7 years old. Amory furnished $5000 bonds for his appearance in court. The boy succumbed to his injuries in a short time.

GIANTS OF THE FOREST.

The California Big Trees, Which Were Threatened With Destruction.

Among the wonders of the world are the big trees of California, and no little interest was occasioned by the news that fire threatened with destruction the remarkable giants of the forest known as the Calaveras group. The danger aroused all the forest rangers and residents of the section, who rallied to their protection.

California has forests covering an area larger than that of the states of New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Delaware and Maryland combined. Seven national forest reserves in the state cover an area of 8,511,794 acres. The big tree of California, Sequoia gigantea, is the largest and is supposed to be the oldest of growing things on earth. Some of these trees reach 325 feet in height and 38 feet in diameter, and their age is believed to be about 5,000 years. The great fallen hulk known as "the mother of the forest," 327 feet long and 78 feet in circumference, was in the path of the fire which recently broke out. Muir "never saw a big tree that had died a natural death." The only living specimens of the Sequoia gigantea are those found in California, and the Calaveras grove contains the most remarkable examples of the species.

IN MEMORY OF A PUGILIST.

Monument In New York In Honor of Featherweight Champion.

It is rather unusual for a monument to be erected in a public thoroughfare in honor of a pugilist. But that is what has been done in a street in New York. And the monument takes the form of a fountain from which flows nothing stronger than water. The pugilist was not one of the amateur or millionaire kind either, but was a plain professional fighter and a colored man at that. In short, he was George Dixon, the late negro boxer and one time champion featherweight of the world. At first the committee appointed to devise some way of perpetuating the memory of the boxer suggested placing a handsome monument over his grave. It was decided that a fountain in a public place would serve the purpose best, and in due time the funds were raised and the permit from the city for the erection of the monument was obtained. Terry McGovern, Young Corbett and Joe Humphreys were the principal factors in collecting subscriptions. The fountain is of a simple and beautiful design. The side facing the sidewalk provides water for thirsty human beings who may be passing by, and the opposite side, that facing the street, contains a watering trough for horses. An inscription reads:

THE DIXON FOUNTAIN IN NEW YORK.

"In Memory of George Dixon. Erected by His Friends. 1908."

The Reason of It.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

Mrs. E. E. Hoxie and daughter Miss Lillian Hoxie of Beale street are registered at the Batchelder house, Raymond, H. N.

Delegates to the Congregational conference at Stoughton next Tuesday, who go by trolley, allow two hours for the trip from Quincy.

The funeral service of Stanwood S., son of Mr. and Mrs. Abel S. Gomez of 81 Mill street was held at his parents home Wednesday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. A. R. Atwood.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary E. McWiggin of Wollaston was held this morning from St. John's church. Mass was celebrated by Rev. John J. Casey. The burial was at old Dorchester cemetery.

Mrs. Mary Jane Walsh, formerly of Elm place, Quincy, has purchased for a home, the Howard or Wales place near the Baptist church on North Main street, Randolph, the sale being made direct by the owner, William H. Fay, late secretary of the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Co., who reports active inquiries in answer to the advertisement of his Quincy properties in another column.

Quincy Point Streets.

A little repairing on some of the streets at Quincy Point would not be amiss. Chubbuck street is one, and the trouble here is grass and weeds on the sidewalk. Both on the outside and inside edges the grass is so high and thick, that in some places it is hardly possible for one person to pass another.

These conditions become much worse when the grass is wet. Before the sewer was put through Chubbuck street, people could use the middle of the road, but now this is in no condition for pedestrians. The other street in question is South street, that part between Chubbuck and Howard streets, known as Carter's hill. Here the stones are in such abundance it is almost impossible to step without turning on one. Such conditions could be remedied easily and cheaply, for two or three men with a tipcart could put them in shape in a couple of days, three at the most.

—The oldest existing picture painted since the beginning of the Christian era is one of the Madonna and Child, in an Italian church, painted in the year 886.

—Gas was first used as a street illuminant in Baltimore, gas lamps being introduced in that city in the year 1816.

VICTORY AT START

Quincy High Football Team Wins from Normal School

The Quincy High school football team opened the season of 1908 very auspiciously Wednesday, when they journeyed to Bridgewater and lined up against the Normal school team, which is always one of the best on the gridiron. Result—Quincy, 5; Bridgewater, 0.

Normal school makes football her leading sport, and a victory over her speaks well for the victor.

About 50 rooters went along with the boys and met many more former Quincy High students at Bridgewater, which made quite a cheering squad for the team.

After a little signal practice up and down the field, the pigskin was placed in the centre of the field, the whistle blew, Clapp kicked the ball far down the field, and the game was on. For fifteen minutes the teams struggled for supremacy, first one side gaining, then the other. When time was called for the first half, the honors were even, neither side having scored.

After a few minutes rest, the teams were at it again. Normal school presented the same lineup, and Quincy made one change, Hill going to left end in place of Marsh. Both teams were playing a fast game at this point, with Bridgewater's weight telling against the lighter Quincy Eleven. Quincy was pushed back, till on the third down, she had about 20 yards to gain. The natural tactic now was a punt. Here a trick fooled the Normal team. Warden dropped back for a kick, but the ball went to Clapp who, when the Normal team spread out to go down the field under the kick, went through the center of the line for about 25 yards.

This brought Quincy within striking distance of the goal line and by constantly bucking the line, Clapp was finally pushed over the line for a touchdown. He failed to kick the goal. On the very next play Clapp had the wind knocked out of him, and was forced to retire from the game.

With about five minutes to play, "Stan" Bates went in at left half and Bridgewater failed to score, leaving Quincy a winner 5 to 0.

Quincy used the much talked of forward pass successfully, Clapp and Nash working it several times for substantial gains.

For Quincy Capt. Warden, Clapp and Nash played well, and Wheeler and Prario were the stars for Bridgewater. By the way, Prario is a Quincy High school graduate, and learned the rudiment of football there in time of Miller and Wright.

DROP-KICKS.

A victory for Quincy in the first game means a whole lot to the team. This with support from the students ought to enable the team to make a good record.

The next game will be with Everett High, on Tuesday at Merrymount park. A big crowd should be on hand to encourage the team to make it two straight. Everett has a good team, and it will be a hard game.

It is too bad that Quincy teams cannot have the benefit of good coaching. It would make a big difference in the team, and with the good material at hand would produce excellent results.

Clapp, the new man on the team made a fine impression in his first game. He appears to be "the goods" as a football warrior. Keep it up, Clapp.

There will be a scrimmage this afternoon between the first and second teams. They have been practicing against each other all the season, and there ought to be some fun when they meet. A second team is an innovation at Quincy High, and it is a good thing. In fact the only way to get real practice is to line up against a team and have a real game.

Speaking of coaching, the Everett team which comes here Tuesday, has a regular training system. They even went up on a farm in New Hampshire, two weeks before school opened, so they would be in good condition to open the season. Here in Quincy the boys don't even have a coach, not to talk of a trainer, and a training table besides. It seems as if they might get some one, twice a week at least. This would help a lot.

BASE BALL

The Elks Proud of Championship Cup

The silver loving cup, emblematic of the champion team among the fraternal orders of Quincy, was presented to the Elks Tuesday night by John D. Smith of the Copeland club.

The cup was offered by the Copelands, and the struggle to win it took place Labor day, at the Copeland field day between the Knights of Columbus and the Elks Each team had beaten the other once and this was the deciding contest. The game went eleven innings and the Elks finally came out the winners. And so they won the cup.

Captain Leo McMasters of the Elks, says next year they will have a uniformed team in the field that will beat them all.

The cup is appropriately engraved and after being on exhibition in a City Square store, will be placed in a glass case and kept in the parlor of the Elks' club room on Foster street.

The inscription on the three panels of the cup are as follows: "Base Ball, 1908. Championship of Quincy, won by Quincy lodge of Elks at Copeland club carnival, Sept. 7, 1908."

"Quincy lodge of Elks team 1908,—Elcock, c.; McMaster, p.; G. Williams, 1b.; R. Williams, 2b.; Lynch, ss.; Dunn, 3b.; Fouche, lf.; Dillon, cf.; Larkin, rf."

"The official suite—L. J. McMaster, manager; T. M. Butler, chief rooter; D. J. Deasy, P. E. R. coach; J. Hardy Welsh, trainer; E. J. B. Desmond, umpire; Charles Mullane, scorer.

"Series of 1908: July 24, K. of C., 11; B. P. O. E., 8. Aug. 1, B. P. O. E., 6; K. of C., 3. Sept. 7, B P. O. E., 18; K. of C., 14."

The cup which is of silver, gold lined, stands fourteen inches high.

BASEBALL FANS STIRRED

Dispute Over Doubtful Play on New York Polo Grounds

GIANTS SCORED WINNING RUN

Chicago Protests to President of National League and Enters Forma Claim to the Game--Man on First Base Did Not Continue to Second When Team Mate Scored Deciding Run--Melee Seemed Imminent

New York, Sept. 24.—According to the official scorer of the New York Baseball club, the local Nationals won yesterday's game from the champions at the polo grounds by a score of 2 to 1.

President Murphy of the Chicago National League club last night entered formal claim to the game in behalf of Chicago.

The trouble arose in the latter half of the ninth inning when, with the score a tie, 1 to 1, New York was at the bat. With two out, McCormick on third and Merkle on first base, Bridwell smashed a single to centre, scoring McCormick, the batter being declared safe at first. Just then the crowd, wild with excitement, ran on the field, and Captain Chance of the Chicago team claimed that Merkle did not go to second. He and Evers tried to get the ball there to claim a force, but McGinnity caught the sphere among the crowd and threw it into left field. Merkle insisted that he had touched second base and the Chicago players were equally positive that he had not done so. Chance claimed the run did not count, as there was so much interference that his men could not get control of the ball.

Umpire Emslie was judging the baserunning and is credited with saying that he did not see whether Merkle went to second or not. Umpire O'Day, later on, declared that the run did not count.

While the players were arguing, a small sized riot was going on and a general melee seemed imminent, but the blue uniforms of the Metropolitan police were easily distinguishable in the midst of the twisting, swirling mass of people on the field, and what threatened to be a serious outbreak was quelled without anyone being injured.

In the absence of official action in the matter the game goes on record as it was played and in the tables of standing this morning a victory is accredited to New York and a defeat to Chicago.

Pittsburg, winning from Brooklyn, pulled up to within 3 points of Chicago and among today's possibilities is the assumption of second place by the Pittsburg team—something which would happen should New York again defeat Chicago and Pittsburg take the final game of the Brooklyn series.

Today's New York-Chicago game, by reason of yesterday's dispute and the certain amount of bad blood engendered, will be watched with even keener interest than any which have preceded it. The standing is as follows:

| | Won | Lost | Pct |

NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.

On and after September 16, we have decided

TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE

as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods

AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills over due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every day. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and take them with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Now think this proposition over, and we feel confident that you can see it just the way that we do.

SOMETHING THAT IS NEEDED HERE IN QUINCY.

A HIGH GRADE OF GOODS SOLD AT LOW PRICES.

So Remember your 5 per cent discount.

Respectfully,

City Square, Quincy. JOHNSON BROS. Hancock Street, Corner Maple.

Surprise Party to Arthur Allen

A surprise party was tendered to Arthur Allen of Granite street, by several of his friends, Thursday evening, in Electa hall. "Archie," as he is known among his friends, was completely surprised when he discovered what was going on, and when Joseph D. Uppling stepped up and presented him with a pair of solid gold cuff links, he did not know what to do or say. He responded befittingly, however, and at his words "on with the dance," the fun began.

Mrs. E. F. Rhines was at the piano and played for the dancing and singing. Solos were given by Joseph D. Uppling, Master Joseph Uppling and William Weeden. The committee of arrangements included William Weeden, Harold Richards and Joseph D. Uppling.

Among those present were: George Van Idelstine, William Jones, Charles Dahl, Henry Dahl, Samuel Johnson, George Sullivan, Murray Kerr, Clifford Johnstone, Miss Dr. Nutting, Emma Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Richards, Frances Burke, Edith Spargo, Emma Landrone, Edith Johnson, Annie Peterson, May Mathison, Esther Johnstone and others.

Refreshments were served during the evening and dancing was enjoyed till 12 when the party broke up.

A Rural Ruse At Quincy Point

One of the famous "Bean Suppers," so well known to Quincy Point people, was served Thursday evening in the Washington Street Congregational church. The supper, which was up to the usual high standard, was at 6.30, and was very well attended.

An entertainment followed the supper, which consisted of a one-act farce entitled "A Rural Ruse." This was very interesting, as well as funny, being a representation of a home life down on the farm. The entertainment lasted about an hour and was prononunced the best ever.

The cast of characters was:

"Solomon Slenker" (a widower) — Carl Sherburne
"Amos Burns" (Pansy's lover) — Alfred Brown
"Pansy Weston" (a romantic maiden of 18) — Auwelda H. Melville
"Content Weston" (Pansy's maiden Aunt) — Marion E. Johnson

NEW LIGHT On Water Rates To Shipyard City Not Paid For Water Ballast

Editors of the Daily Ledger:—

My attention has been called to an article which appeared in the Ledger September 1, 1908, during my absence in the West, and which I have just seen today for the first time, entitled "Carries out threat—Fore River Co. begins construction of reservoir for water supply," and describes the contemplated reservoir, stating that the company expects that it will supply all the fresh water needed.

The article was apparently intended as an attempt to discourage any further effort to have their water rate properly adjusted. Yet in striking contrast with this is the fact that only a few days after it appeared in the Ledger, the company notified the city authorities that the reservoir would be inadequate for the company's needs, and that it (the company) would still have to depend upon the city supply in whole during part of the year, and in part during the remainder of the year. The natural inference would seem to be that this was known to the Company at the time the article appeared in the Daily Ledger.

Before introducing the resolution in the Council in regard to the water rate enjoyed by the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, I was told that if I persisted the company would get its entire supply elsewhere, but I was also authoritatively informed by those who were in a position to know, that this would be impossible, and such is now admitted by it to be the fact.

My action in bringing the matter to the attention of the Council was not in any way intended as antagonistic to the company. I had found on investigation, that under the statutes applying to the Water department, certain payments must be made from the water receipts. The Commissioner of Public Work informed me that in order to raise the amount so required a minimum rate of about twelve cents per thousands gallons of water would be necessary. In spite of all the circumlocution contained in the reply to the Commissioner to my inquiry quoted at the end of the article in question, the fact remains that the Fore River Shipbuilding Company was and is still paying a flat rate of only eight cents per thousand gallons. In other words, the city is losing four cents on every thousand gallons sold to the Company.

In addition, the company had been using large amounts of water which was not metered, and for which it paid nothing. Instead of having the water supply metered at the street, as is customary, the different buildings within the yard were metered and the city was paying for all the waste between the street and the various buildings. Furthermore, the private fire hydrants in the yard were not metered and the company had been wilfully using water from them for ballast and in order to fill the tanks of the vessels which were built or repaired at the works, so that for this water they were paying absolutely nothing.

In discussing this matter in the Council I characterized the conduct of the company as nothing more than stealing. Since then the city has at last metered the private fire hydrants, and during the month of August alone the company used over 400,000 gallons of water from them, and not a drop of it was for fire protection. This would be at the rate of at least 4,800,000 gallons per year, for which the company has heretofore paid nothing.

The effect of all this is evident when it is remembered that for this water which costs the city twelve cents and which is sold to the Fore River Shipbuilding Company for eight cents, the general public is obliged to pay thirty cents in order to meet the expenses of the department.

In conclusion, I can only repeat that I have absolutely no ill will toward the Fore River Shipbuilding Company. I think it should be favored as much as possible in regard to the water rate, but in no event should that rate be less than cost. Any such favoritism is bound to result in injustice to the general consumer of water.

THE PARTY OF YOUTH

Why Young Men Vote the Republican Ticket.

IT STANDS FOR PROGRESS.

New Voters Proud to Ally Themselves With the Party of Lincoln—Its Past Performances Presage a Still More Glorious Future.

It is not without significance that young men who have just attained their majority are found, as a rule, voting the Republican ticket. The reason is plain. Those young men look on the Republican party as the party of hope, the party of promise and of performance, the party for whose candidates they will be proud to say in later years that they cast their first ballot, the party whose past needs no apology, no balm of oblivion for blunders and for crimes, no record of slavery, rebellion and attempted repudiation, each stamped out in its turn by American freemen under Republican leadership.

The Republican party is eminently the party of youth. With Republicans the memory of the glorious past is but an incentive to make the future still more glorious. To the Democracy is left the congenial occupation of floundering in the marsh of bygone Democratic vagaries, lured on by some new and delusive will-o'-the-wisp to the quagmire of quadrennial failure.

The youthful voter finds no attraction in such company. He prefers to march forward on firm ground, with the party of Lincoln, of Grant, McKinley and Roosevelt, of Taft and Sherman and Hughes—of nearly every great American, living and dead, whose career has added luster to the closing half of the old century and the beginning of the new. The young man prefers the Republican party because it holds out a prospect for his own advancement, because in building up the nation as a whole it offers fresh opportunities to the individual, because under Republican administration there is a fair field for every one, and every citizen is protected in the enjoyment of that which he has rightfully acquired.

The new voter who takes his place in the Republican ranks and casts his ballot for Taft and Sherman will have the satisfaction not only of sharing in the Republican victory, but also of knowing that he has helped to assure prosperity for the country at large and an immeasurably better chance in life for himself and those in whom he is interested than if the harpies of Bryanism had been permitted to befoul the feast.

LABOR TURNS TO TAFT.

Toilers Scent Danger In the Fallacies of Mr. Bryan.

Convincing evidence was furnished by the conference at Cincinnati last week by Judge Taft with Oscar Straus, secretary of commerce and labor, and T. V. Powderly, formerly general master workman of the Knights of Labor, that the attitude of labor is growing each day more friendly to Taft. The campaign of education which the Republicans have been carrying on has been effective, and the laboring man, so Mr. Powderly told the candidate, is beginning to appreciate the fact that a restoration of business confidence through the election of Mr. Taft means more work and prosperous times for him.

Secretary Straus announces his intention to go out on the stump for the specific purpose of exposing some of the Bryan fallacies in regard to labor. Said Mr. Straus: "The most dangerous of these fallacies is presented in Bryan's slogan, 'Shall the people rule?' and well may he ask it, for every one of his leading doctrines is a denial of that rule."

Mr. Straus classes Mr. Bryan's government guarantee of bank deposits as next in point of danger to his plan for the government ownership of railroads. Mr. Straus believes this guarantee proposition is as great menace as the old 16 to 1 hobby. "To guarantee deposits," said Secretary Straus, "is to guarantee the loans of the banks, for, as a matter of fact, a large part of the bank's deposits is made up of credits extended by the bank to borrowers and by them deposited or placed on the books of the banks as deposits."

Mr. Powderly said among other things after his talk with Taft: "Labor never was better organized, better paid, more independent or more respected than it is today. Never was it more secure in its share of the outcome of the commodity or the good will and confidence of employers. All this is due to the effort of nonpartisan, well officered unions. What labor organizations now enjoy, and they enjoy more than they ever enjoyed in the civilized world before, came as the result of intelligent, co-operative effort exerted in a nonpartisan way through their unions.

"Of course there are many men out of employment as the result of the recent depression, but to my knowledge men are returning to their old occupations all over the country and at their old rates of pay. I recall the awful panic of 1873 and that of 1893, and in neither case did men go back to work at their old wages. The case is different now, and to my mind it would be suicidal for labor to vote in such a way as to imperil the return of full prosperity, so rapidly manifesting itself."

The issue is just this: Taft and prosperity or Bryan and paralysis.

DAILY LEDGER READERS

will be pleased with LADY BETTY, the pretty young sister of The Duke of Stanforth.

Be Ready to Greet Her Next Tuesday.

Why He Felt Happy.

"Vernon told me this morning," related the lady with the cold blue eye, "that he passed the tree where two years ago he carved your initials and his own and encircled them with a heart. He says he felt so glad he almost danced for joy."

"Ah," said the tall brunette anxiously, "then he must still love me, after all! Did he tell you why he felt so happy?"

"Yes, dear. He said some men were cutting the tree down!"

By Proxy.

Priscilla laudeth not her skill
In rare housewifery.
She smiles, but modestly is still Touching her industry.

Yet are her talents widely known
And how she doth excel.
The explanation? I must own,
She makes each minute tell!

—Puck.

As Others View It.

Short—I wouldn't trust a stranger.

Long—Then you are not a believer in reciprocity.

Short—What do you mean by that?

Long—Why, only a stranger would be likely to trust you.—Detroit Tribune.

Hot and Cold.

Hot and sultry was the day,
So I've since been told,
When I proposed to May,
Who gave it to me cold.
The mercury stood at ninety-three,
As the mercury often will,
But the answer May handed back to me
Gave me an awful chill.

—Chicago News.

What She Said.

Bobbie—That Mrs. Castleton said something nice about you.

Mrs. Von Blumer (purring)—What was it, Bobbie?

"She said you didn't show your age."—New York Life.

Poor Man!

It was a wild, despairing cry
Which echoed through the dull resort.
It startled all who loitered nigh,
But all their thrills, alas, were short,
For, though it broke the listless spell
A moment, it was soon restored.
Because too well they knew that yell,
"Man overbored!"

—Kansas City Times.

A Damper.

"Have you ever loved and lost?" sighed the swain.

"Nope," responded the maiden promptly. "I've won every breach of promise suit I ever brought."—Cleveland Leader.

Blue.

A Problem.

"Riches have wings."

"So I've noticed. But why don't they ever employ 'em in flying toward me instead of in flying away?"—Cleveland Leader.

Tall and Slender.

"Woodman, spare that tree!"
The woodman laughed with glee.
"'Tis spare enough," said he.
You see, 'twas a poplar tree.

—Detroit Tribune.

Rather Contradictory.

"Can you actually foretell the future?"

"Madam, in foretelling the future I am a past master."—Baltimore American.

Pretty Near Right.

"The plural, then, of 'wife' is what?"
The teacher asked. Said Bess,
A most precocious little tot,
"It's bigamy, I guess."

—Philadelphia Press.

The Mightiness of Truth.

"Truth is mighty," said the moralizer.

"Yes," rejoined the demoralizer, "it is mighty scarce."—Detroit Tribune.

All Aboard!

Soon will we see the airship fly
With graceful ease
And hear the aviator cry,
"Step lively, please!"

—Washington Star.

Two of a Kind.

CITY OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace Of Two Burial Place Of Two

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grandfather of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

BIRTHPLACES OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace of John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States, Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Admission charged.

Birthplace of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of the old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponsit river.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) at Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural momuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. The funeral of John Quincy Adams was held in this church. Beneath the entrance is the Adams tomb, reached by stairways from the vestibule. Near the tomb is the box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams, also the old town hearse. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock cemetery across the street from First church contains many old stones. Among the old graves are those of Henry Adams founder of the Adams family who died Oct. 5, 1646; Rev. William Thompson, 1st pastor over the Braintree church who died Dec. 10, 1666; Rev. Henry Flint who died Oct. 11, 1668; Rev. John Hancock father of the Patriot who died May 7, 1744 and many other notable people.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

DOROTHY Q. HOUSE.

Hancock street, corner Butler road, Quincy, Old Quincy homestead in which Dorothy Q was born. Owned by the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames. Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting feature. Open free to the public on Saturdays, from 11 A. M. until 4 P. M. Other days admission charged

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 30, 1621, guided by the Indian Tisquantum.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

POLITICS IN GOMPERS CASE

Labor Leader Draws Taft's Name Into Hearing

CHARGES AGAINST VAN CLEAVE

President of Manufacturers' Organization Declared to Have Attempted to Bribe Labor Leader to Desert American Federation of Labor and Betray Its Secrets--Men Suborned to Spy Upon Fellow Laborers

Washington, Sept. 25.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, yesterday introduced the name of former Secretary Taft and made serious charges against W. J. Van Cleave, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, in his testimony in connection with the proceedings against himself, Vice President Mitchell and Secretary Morrison of the Federation, on the charge of contempt in violating the injunction decree of the supreme court of the District of Columbia, directing them not to publish the Bucks Stove and Range company of St. Louis as "unfair." Gompers was at the time under cross-examination at the hands of his attorney, Jackson H. Ralston.

Mr. Gompers in effect charged that Taft had supplied the sentiment behind the injunction decree, while the direct charge was made that Van Cleave had had Gompers and other Federation officials shadowed by detectives and had undertaken to have Gompers bribed to desert the cause of organized labor and join its enemies.

Mr. Ralston's efforts were directed towards showing a counter conspiracy by the manufacturers to destroy trade unionism, and in the course of his questioning Gompers he directed a number of inquiries to the political aspects of the controversy. In connection with one of these, he read a portion of Taft's presidential nomination acceptance speech bearing on the anti-injunction plank, and, commenting upon the extract, Gompers said:

"It is substantially the basis of this injunction suit and these contempt proceedings under that injunction."

Mr. Ralston: "I understand you then, it is in reliance upon Mr. Taft's decisions that you are here today?"

Mr. Gompers: "Justice Gould in his opinion so asserts and he quotes from injunctions issued by Judge Taft while upon the bench."

Mr. Ralston: "Judge Taft's standing in the matter then having the endorsement of the National Association of Manufacturers?"

Mr. Gompers: "Yes."

The witness related his experience with detectives and others with thrilling detail. Approaching questions relative to personal espionage upon himself, Ralston asked Gompers whether there had been any general effort to break down organized labor, and he replied:

"Men have been suborned to spy on their fellow laborers in shops, factories and mines; to report the proceedings of union meetings; to spy on the personal conduct of workmen after working hours, and to follow from place to place labor leaders visiting other cities than their homes. Money has also been used to bribe representative labor men to cease their connection with the labor organizations and direct their activities to the National Manufacturers' association. They have not only been offered bribes in money, but have been offered substantial safeguards for the future."

Mr. Gompers then told of being approached in New York by a man named Broughton Brandenburg, who, he said, had attempted in 1907 to bribe him in the interest of Van Cleave.

Relating the particulars of a second meeting in New York, Gompers said that after some preliminary talk between himself and Brandenburg the latter disclosed to him his purpose, saying that he knew it to be the intention of Van Cleave to destroy his (Gompers's) character, but that he (Brandenburg) had persuaded Van Cleave that it would be better in the interest of Van Cleave's purpose to make an ally of Gompers and to prevail upon him to betray the secrets of the Federation of Labor, "revealing." Mr. Gompers added, "whatever information I possessed which might reflect detrimentally upon labor organizations.

"He assured me," said Gompers, "that I would be given a good lump sum, and that Van Cleave would guarantee me beyond question that I would be cared for for the rest of my life, even going so far as to tell me that the guarantee should be underwritten. He said that I could deliver lectures in opposition to the labor movement, and that if I did not receive as much as $5000 or $6000 a year, Van Cleave would make up the difference."

Mr. Gompers declared that he had said very little during the interview beyond what was necessary to lead Brandenburg to disclose all he had in mind. At another meeting, said Gompers, "Brandenburg showed me checks, drafts and vouchers on official letterheads of the National Association of Manufacturers and under the signature of Mr. Van Cleave which were made payable to Brandenburg. I told him I would consider the proposition," continued Gompers. "I did not reject it, because I wanted him to continue under the belief that I might accept. Of course I was just as determined then as I am now and always have been to be true to myself, to my conscience and to my fellows." During the week following, Gompers said, The American Industries had published a tirade against him, charging him with malfeasance in office and general dishonesty.

Attorney Davenport gave notice of a motion to strike all of this matter out of the record as not only irrelevant, but scandalous. As going to show the impossibility of the story, he called attention to the facts that Gompers had said nothing about these occurrences while on the stand in the injunction proceedings and that Van Cleave had denied all knowledge of them.

Mr. Gompers had not concluded when the examination was suspended for the day.

"GOMPERS KNEW IT TO BE A LIE"

Van Cleave's Reply In Answer to Charges Against Him

Washington, Sept. 25.—James W. Van Cleave, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, who came here to have a conference with Daniel Davenport and James H. Baker, counsel for the Bucks Stove and Range company of St. Louis, late last night gave out a statement in reply to Samuel Gompers in the contempt case which has been on hearing here for several weeks. Van Cleave said:

"I have never employed detectives or intermediaries to shadow Mr. Gompers or any other official of the American Federation of Labor. Neither have I ever offered him a bribe of any kind, nor have I ever had any connection with the men he claims that shadowed him and offered a bribe. Every reference made therein to me or action on my part is false, and I believe that Mr. Gompers knew it to be a lie when he made the statements. He seems to be trying to make a cheap martyr of himself. I never have and never will employ any methods that are not straight, square and aboveboard in my dealings with organized labor. I make this statement without equivocation."

Insurance Company In New Hands

New York, Sept. 25.—The control of the Washington Life Insurance company has passed from the hands of Levi P. Morton, Thomas F. Ryan and Harry P. Whitney to a Pittsburg syndicate, headed by William C. Baldwin, president of the Pittsburg Life and Trust company. Baldwin was elected president of the Washington Life Insurance company to succeed John Tatlock. Nearly all the old members of the board of directors resigned, and their places were filled with men who are associated with Baldwin and interested with him in the purchase and control of the Washington Life.

Thinks Suicide Club Exists

Lee, Mass., Sept. 25.—Following the death of George Gazelle, who committed suicide by shooting, comes a revelation, made by the wife of one of the prominent men here, that a suicide club exists in the town, which has for its object the extinction of half a dozen lives, it is feared. The woman declared that the inability of numbers of former employes of the mill to secure work had brought about the formation of the deadly pact.

Brown and Young Expelled

New York, Sept. 25.—A. O. Brown and Lewis G. Young, the Stock Exchange members of the suspended firm of A. O. Brown & Co., were expelled from the New York Stock Exchange, the announcement being made from the rostrum by R. H. Thomas, president of the exchange. Following the announcement, their seats on the exchange were ordered sold forthwith. The firm was charged with "wash" dealings.

Taking No Chances

New York, Sept. 25.—In view of the cholera situation in Russia, Health Officer Doty and his staff promptly set to work to take the temperature of all the cabin and steerage passengers, as well as the crew, of the Russian steamer Korea, from Libau. Doty deemed it prudent under the circumstances to take more than the usual precautions as well as to hold the ship for a thorough examination and disinfection.

Naval Boom For Australia

Melbourne, Sept. 25.—The British admiralty has given its general approval to the scheme of the Australian commonwealth for the formation of a flotilla of six torpedo boat destroyers, nine submarines and two depot ships as the nucleus of an Australian navy. The idea of building up a local navy in Australia was given a great impetus by the recent visit of the American battleship fleet.

Big Raise In Price of Milk

Boston, Sept. 25.—Claiming that the cost of keeping cows has considerably increased, several milk producers in the vicinity of Boston have notified their customers that they will demand 12½ cents a quart for milk after Oct. 1. In the city it is understood the majority of dealers will demand 9 cents a quart after Oct. 1. The present price is 8 cents a quart.

Drowned While Fishing

Burlington, Vt., Sept. 25.—While attempting to change positions in a rowboat from which they were fishing on Lake Champlain, the boat was overturned and Arthur A. Perkins was drowned. His companion, H. L. White, was rescued just as he was going down for the third time by W. P. Conger. Perkins was 27 years of age.

EDITORIAL.

"The state is myself" is the much quoted remark of Louis XIV. The "Independent Party" "I am it" might be the corresponding expression of William Randolph Hearst.

It is said that the newly elected governor of Maine is a manufacturer of canned tomatoes. There can be no competition between him and other statesmen who are dealing extensively in canned oratory.

It is said that we are to have directoire bathing suits next summer. Why can't the modistes let the old fashion alone? There is not sufficient cloth in the average bathing suit to cut a slash to be noticeable.

It is said that they have invented indoor picnics in Jersey. This is taking an unfair advantage of mosquitoes and other creeping things, but the Jersey lightning will be there all the same.

A boarding house keeper disposed of his wife and furniture to a boarder for $15, but inasmuch as the wife was neither real estate nor chattel, it is understood that he sold the furniture and threw her in for good measure.

"Washington does not know whether it wants Taft or Bryan," says a Washington paper. The capitol of the United States, however, will have to take what the rest of the country gives it, and will succeed in being "happy with either when the other dear charmer's away."

It may astonish many, but there is in the United States today no such measure as a bushel. What is regarded as a bushel in one state is pounds short of that weight in an adjoining state. There is no such thing as a standard ton of coal. The long ton of 2,240 pounds—legally 28 bushels of 80 pounds to the bushel, is unknown in New York and undreamed of in New York City.

A more general recognition of the power of thought exists today than ever before. To think right means largely to live right. It is coming to be generally recognized by expert and layman alike, says Michael Williams in October Van Norden Magazine, that man has power within himself to govern his condition and plane in life; that every person can develop this power by his own will; that optimism—the power of courageous, hopeful belief, as opposed to fear, anger or worry—is the instrument by use of which the will of any person con develop the power to govern his conditions.

Grade Crossing Hearing Postponed

Owing to a misunderstanding on the part of the railroad, the hearing on the abolition of the grade crossings at Saville and Water streets, scheduled to be held Saturday morning, has been postponed until a further date not yet decided upon.

—The great New England Food Fair and house furnishing exposition will open at Mechanics Building, Huntington avenue, Boston, on Monday evening, October 5, and continue until Saturday night, October 31.

Milton Police Auto Marked But Efforts To Snap Fail

Automobile drivers when they cross the line into Milton keep a sharp lookout for the Stanley car numbered 7711. This is the car owned by the Milton police department, and used by them in overtaking automobiles that are being driven at a greater speed than is permitted by law. The police car is driven by Officer Fallon and not unfrequently Chief Maurice Pierce is with him.

Boston papers have long desired to get a picture of Maurice and the Automobile Association desired a picture of the car with Officer Fallon operating it, but up to date all efforts to get the desired pictures have failed.

Thursday the Milton police had some speeders in court, and the Automobile Association knowing this, thought it a good time to snap the desired picture.

Chief Pierce and Officer Fallon came to Quincy that day in the car, and a little later a newspaper photographer arrived on the scene and took a position near the police car. No argument would induce the photographer to give up his job, and it looked for a time as though it was all up as far as the police were concerned.

Officer Fallon tried to find a city ordinance that would permit of the photographer's arrest, but could find none.

A consultation was held, and then a broad smile illuminated the face of Chief Pierce, which meant that he had a scheme to outwit the snap shot artist. What his scheme was soon become apparent.

Supt. Austin of the Electric Light Co. was near the court room in his car and in this the Chief disappeared down Hancock street, and Officer Fallon disappeared in the same direction. A few minutes later Supt. Austin returned with a man from Gould's garage who got into the police car and drove off.

Light of the trick that was being played then dawned upon the photographer, and he started on the run after the car. His wind soon gave out, however, and returning to City Square he boarded a street car for Boston.

When the police car arrived back at the garage, the Chief and Officer Fallon, with smiles on their faces, and big cigars between their teeth, got in and returned to Milton.

Beautiful Flowers For F. W. Tirrell

Many and beautiful were the floral tributes that surrounded the casket containing all that was mortal of Frederick W. Tirrell, whose funeral was held Thursday afternoon at the chapel of the First church.

The services were of a simple nature and were conducted by Rev. Ellery Channing Butler, pastor of the church. Mr. Butler read the scriptures and then spoke briefly of the eternal life. "In the world of life we are in death." Not one of us but who does not believe in God." "He ordained life, He ordained death, which is but a change of form." Continuing he said "Eternal life is not defined. It is something beyond, something to be hoped for when our eyes are closed. If you do not believe these things it would have been better not to have been. If all the glory of manhood, if all the grace of womanhood. is to end in endless night, what is the good of it all? Some of us are getting old. The signal there in the twinkling of the eye, a sudden clutch and we are gone, like our friend. At the best it must soon be over, then the endless life begins. In the meantime let us live an upright manly life so then when the time comes we may know the future life."

During the services the Apollo quartet sang "Eternal Goodness," "When the mist has cleared away," and "Gathering Home."

At the conclusion of the services an opportunitywas given for a last look of him who had so suddenly been taken from life.

The chapel was filled with relatives, and his many friends, all of the organizations with which he was affiliated being represented. The Ancients by Capt. Jacob Fottler, Sergt. H. Wilmoth, Lieut. George Shackford, Capt. A. Basch, Lieut. William Best, Sergt. H. Maley, Sergt. William McKinna, Sergt. John Fisk and about twenty of its members.

Aleppo temple of Mystic Shrine was represented by Potentate C. C. Henry and a delegation of twenty nobles.

Quincy lodge of Elks by Exalted Ruler W. R. Thomas and fifty of the brothers who marched from the club house to the church.

Delegations were present from Rural lodge of Masons, St. Stephens chapter, and South Shore Commandery, Knights Templars.

The employees of the Old Colony laundry were also present in a body as well as Mayor Shea and several of the city officials and local business men, of the city. As a mark of respect many ofthe business houses drew the curtains of their places of business during the hour of the services.

The flowers were many and beautiful. These included besides pieces from the immediate family, a host of bouquets and set pieces from many of his friends. There were also set pieces that were sent by the several organizations. Aleppo temple sent a hugh mound on the face of which was the insignia of the order. South Shore Commandry sent a standing cross and crown, the A. H. A., a wreath of galxy leaves and roses; St. Stephens chapter, a floral key stone; Rural lodge, a flat bouquet; Quincy lodge of Elks, an arch pillow on the face of which was an Elks head. There was also a massive standing cross from the employees at the Old Colony laundry.

At the conclusion of the services the remains were taken to Forest Hills

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Tag day tomorrow. Who is it?

Mayor Shea has called a special meeting of the City Council for next Monday night to draw jurors.

Who is Lady Betty?

The Charitable Ten's circle of King's Daughters will meet with Mrs. F. S. Davis on Monday afternoon, Sept. 28, from 4 until 5.

Lady Betty is sure to captivate the men of Quincy, as well as the ladies. The Daily Ledger will introduce her next Tuesday.

When a pretty young lady plays tag with you tomorrow, play the game well and when caught and properly tagged don't fail to contribute generously to her mite box for the cause is a worthy one.

Who is Lady Betty?

An inquest was held before Judge Avery this morning on the death of Fannie Galer, the little girl who was killed by the cars on Water street on Saturday evening, Sept. 12. The inquest was private.

The half yearly business meeting of the Christian Endeavor society of the First Baptist church, Wollaston, was held in the church vestry Thursday evening. This was followed by a pleasant social time, conducted by the retiring social committee, of which Miss Drew is chairman. Mr. Roach was re-elected president.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

Estimates and plans are being prepared by the Fore River company for their bids on the proposed U. S. battleship Utah.

Eight cargo ports between the lower and main decks on the steamship Creole are being removed and the openings sealed up.

The W. L. Douglas Shoe Company is having a number of knives re-tempered and buffed at the shipyard.

The bow ornament for the U. S. first-class battleship North Dakota is having the finishing touches put onto it in the machine shop. This bow ornament is of composition, cored out as much as practicable for lightness, and will be imbedded against the ships's sides at the bow in a thick layer of red and white lead putty, or Neuchatel asphaltum cement as will be decided later. Great care must be taken in installing this mammouth ornament to make all joints absolutely water-tight, to prevent the accumulation of water underneath and leakage therefrom. Workmanship of the best quality throughout is required.

In the pipe shop a new hydraulic pulling machine is under construction which later will be installed in that shop.

Mr. Clarke estimator in the office of Mr. Hill assistant to manager, starts on his annual vacation tomorrow.

Barge Perkasie of Philadelphia is discharging a cargo of soft coal at the company's coal wharf.

The Vermont House on Howard avenue, owned by the company, is having a new coat of paint put on the outside which greatly adds to its appearance.

Saturday afternoon the Fore River football team plays a game with the J. & P. Coats team at Pawtucket.

The Marine Review, of New York and Cleveland, considered the leading marine publication of the world, of which George H. Corliss with the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., is New England correspondent, has on the face of their new envelopes the following data concerning American shipping:

"By the threatened defeat of the shipping bill American business men are 3000 miles farther off from South American markets than their English, French and German competitors.

"Out of 1000 steamers of 2,468,000 tons that entered Buenos Aires last year not one flew the American flag.

"What in Hades are we thinking of?

"There are sixteen United States battleships on the Pacific Ocean but only eight American merchant ships.

"It is to laugh.

"The American battleship squadron on its Pacific cruise was accompanied by twenty-nine British colliers and one lone American collier. Our warships cannot move without the permission of foreigners. Can any American take pride in that?

"Sixty years ago the United States opened up the Hermit notion to the modern world. Now Japan controls the merchant shipping of the Pacific Ocean. She has awakened with a vengeance. Shall we continue to sleep?

"England pays $6,000,000, France $5,000,000 and Japan $4,000,000 annually for postal and admiralty subventions. Would they continue this practice if they did not get results?

"The part of wisdom is to follow a practice that experience has proved to be wise."

Lady Betty sees things, and she says things in a way you can't easily forget.

Norfolk County And Vicinity

Miss Alice Watson and Dwight Brown of Stoughton were married Wednesday by the Rev. Thomas W. Illman, pastor of the Universalist church, at the parsonage. The couple will reside in Sharon.

A harvest supper and festival was held Wednesday evening in Hingham, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Waite Simmons, Fort Hill street. The affair was under the auspices of the Universalist association and was largely attended.

The annual meeting of the Esculapian club of Milford was held Thursday with Dr. N. W. Sanborn in Bellingham. It will be the usual social gathering, with a unique entertainment outlined by Dr. Sanborn.

A wagon belonging to the Quincy Oil Company was struck by an electric car on Commercial street, East Braintree, Wednesday afternoon, and was badly smashed. The horse escaped injury, but the driver was pretty well shaken up.

James J. Dumas, a brakeman, was knocked off a freight train Thursday morning, and instantly killed, while the train was passing under the Kingsbury street bridge in Wellesley. Dumas lived in Springfield. While he was walking on top of a car before daylight, his head struck the iron work of the bridge, and he was knocked from the train.

The new hose wagon, which was received at the Holbrook central fire station last Tuesday evening, won a blue ribbon at the Worcester county fair last week. The bell on the wagon is one used on the old Holbrook hand tub 50 years ago.

The elections at the Republican caucus in Stoughton last Tuesday were so close, that a recount was necessary. It took place in the town clerk's office Thursday evening, but the results remained the same.

An explosion of chemicals Thursday in the works of John Coffin & Co. on Middle street, East Weymouth, severely burned Marshall R. Wright, the foreman, and Dennis Keefe, an employe. Part of the building was destroyed by the fire which followed. The cause of the explosion is not known as the processes used is not divulged.

Lady Betty is sure to captivate the men of Quincy, as well as the ladies. The Daily Ledger will introduce her next Tuesday.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE

By virtue of and pursuant to the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Charles Warren and Margaret S. Warren, in her own right, both of East Weymouth, in the County of Norfolk, in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, to Lorenzo D. Baker, dated December twenty-seventh, A. D. 1905 and recorded in the Registry of Deeds for said Norfolk County, Book one thousand and seventeen, Page one hundred and thirty, for breach of the condition of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold at public auction on the premises hereinafter described, in said Quincy, on the twenty-sixth day of October A. D. 1908, at three o'clock in the afternoon thereof, all and singular the premises, in that part of Quincy known as Quincy Point, in said County of Norfolk, described in said mortgage deed, namely:

A certain parcel of land situated in that part of Quincy known as Quincy Point, being lots numbered seventy-six, seventy-seven and seventy-eight on a plan of Riverside Lawn made by H. T. Whitman, Civil Engineer, and recorded at the Registry of Deeds for said Norfolk County and further bounded and described as follows: Beginning at the north-west corner of Washington Street and Riverside Avenue, as shown on said plan, thence running in a north-easterly direction along the boundary line of Riverside Avenue two hundred and twenty-seven (227) feet, thence in a north-westerly direction fifty-five and eight tenths (55.8) feet, thence in a south-westerly direction turning at an obtuse angle along the boundary line of the estate of H. M. Federhen, Trustee, two hundred and twenty-five and three tenths (225.3) feet thence in a south-easterly direction sixty-three (63) feet along Washington Street to the point of beginning; containing in all thirteen thousand eight hundred and eighty-one (13,881) square feet, more or less and being the same premises conveyed to the said Margaret S. Warren by deed of the said Lorenzo D. Baker duly recorded in said Registry of Deeds.

Said premises will be sold subject to any and all unpaid taxes, liens and assessments.

Three hundred dollars ($300.) will be required to be paid by the purchaser at the time and place of sale and the balance of the purchase price in ten days.

LORENZO D. BAKER, JR.

Executor of the last will of Lorenzo D. Baker deceased, and present holder of said mortgage.

Lady Betty Across the Water

By C. N. and A. M. Williamson

The novel you have been waiting for so long to be run in this paper, with

Illustrations by Henderson

Added to the fascination of the Williamsons' style we have the scene laid in America, with the piquant remarks of Lady Betty, British aristocrat, on American society. Of course there is a love story told as only these authors can tell it.

It is simply a captivating story, every word worth reading. The Williamsons have done no more enjoyable work than with this.—Grand Rapids Herald,

Japan Not Pleased With Carrying Chinese Grievances Over Manchuria to Other Countries--New Minister to Replace Wu Ting Fang--Valuable Presents to Be Given to American Officials

Pekin, Sept. 25.—Tang Shao Yi left here yesterday on his much-heralded trip around the world. By the time he returns to Pekin he will have made a tour of the world. He is accompanied by a numerous suite and is making this tour on instructions contained in an imperial edict. His principal purpose in America is to thank the American government for the remission of a portion of the "Boxer" indemnity and to enlist the co-operation of Americans in the development of northern China. From America he will continue his travels to Great Britain, France, Germany, Russia and home through Siberia.

The preparations for Tang Shao Yi's departure brought out the interesting news that Wu Ting Fang, the present Chinese minister to Washington, is to be replaced in December of this year. His successor is Chung Men Yew, who was consul general of the Chinese empire at Manila in 1904 and who goes to Washington with Tang Shao Yi. The change will take place after Tang Shao Yi has been received and welcomed in Washington by Wu Ting Fang.

Presents to be taken for American officials include ten ancient porcelains, relics of the Manchu conquest, taken from the palace of the present ruling family at Mukden, and other valuable porcelains and jades obtained in the Pekin markets. The dowager empress is sending special presents to President Roosevelt, as well as several valuable jades to Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, in remembrance of Mrs. Longworth's visit to Pekin in 1905. The dowager empress recently presented a rare Yungching vase to the Smithsonian institute in acknowledgment of the restoration by the United States of one of the ancestral tablets of the reigning family that was looted from Pekin in 1900. The gifts are so numerous that several cars are required for their transportation.

The mission of Tang Shao Yi is replete with political possibilities, and its outcome is being regarded with great interest by some of the European powers interested in Manchuria. Efforts have been made to discredit it, but the send-off given the envoy indicates that no matter what is thought of his purposes, personally he is regarded as a most able diplomat.

Tang Shao Yi has been given plenary powers with the rank of ambassador, and this, together with the other honors conferred, indicates the importance attached to his mission. Tang Shao Yi will study the financial, industrial and political conditions in the countries he visits, giving particular attention to international relations, and his reports will be used to elaborate the reforms promised the people of China under the new constitution.

The mission will spend a fortnight in Shanghai and three weeks in Japan, where Tang Shao Yi will confer with the Tokio authorities on Chino-Japanese questions. Japan would seem to be more or less concerned with what Tang Shao Yi may do and say on his trip around the world. She does not view with equanimity his carrying Chinese grievances over the Manchurian situation to America and elsewhere, and it is declared here that some of the other powers look at this matter in the same light.

It is felt by foreigners in Pekin that Tang Shao Yi is about to make an effort to attempt to remove the obstacles to China's freedom in Manchuria by securing American sympathy and support through American investment, and an American loan would not be popular with some of the powers interested in Manchuria. The mission has been characterized here in some quarters as a political blunder. Tang Shao Yi will leave Yokohama Nov. 4 on the steamer Mongolia for San Francisco.

Maine Gets Some Rain

Portland, Me., Sept. 25.—The drouth, which began Aug. 26 and has resulted in extensive forest fires throughout the state, was broken last night when rain began falling lightly. This will at least have the effect of deadening the fires, but two or three days of heavy rain will be required to completely extinguish them.

Workmen Attacked by Mob

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 25.—A mob of fifty persons attacked Canadian Pacific railroad workmen at St. Boniface. Richard Brown was perhaps fatally injured. A strong force of police was rushed to the railroad yards and dispersed the rioters. Several arrests were made.

Plot Against Alfonso's Life

Pau, France, Sept., 25.—The police have arrested several dangerous anarchists, who, with others, were engaged in elaborating a plot to assassinate King Alfonso of Spain when he passed through Barritz on Saturday on his way to Paris.

ABOUT GRASSHOPPERS.

A Menace to Crops When They Appear In Great Numbers.

The boys who walk through the fields and see a few grasshoppers jumping about little think perhaps that creatures apparently so harmless actually eat people out of house and home sometimes in the west. They come in great droves and multiply into greater droves and then overrun the country and eat the crops.

They were so bad in a certain county of Utah a few years ago that they defied all the efforts of the farmers to get rid of them, and the result was that all the crops were destroyed. The following year the farmers adopted a novel means of fighting the pests. They arranged a series of entertainments to be given in the several towns of the county, admission to which might be had on presentation at the door of a half bushel of grasshoppers as a "ticket"—dead grasshoppers, of course.

The notion caught and spread like a prairie fire, and at the first entertainment 150 people appeared, each with a half bushel of the pests. That county saved its crops.

THROWING STONES.

Why Girls Are Unable to Compete With Boys In This Pastime.

It is hardly worth while to tell you that girls cannot throw stones like boys. You have all seen them try it and perhaps have laughed at their efforts, which was wrong, of course, but natural, for it really is a funny sight. But it is likely that you did not attribute their failure to the right cause. You thought perhaps—that is, you boys thought—that it was merely a girl's awkward attempt to imitate a boy, but in that you were wrong, for it is a physical impossibility for a girl to throw with the free movement of the arm that a boy has because her collar bone is larger than a boy's and is set lower.

This comes from a physician in a girls' college who has made a careful study of the matter, impelled thereto, it may be, by the importunity of the girls, who were ambitious to equal or excel the boys in this physical accomplishment, as they have done in many others. In any sport where this free use of the arm and shoulder is not required a girl may excel, but she may as well give up all hope of ever throwing stones the same way as boys do. In spite of all this we find a girl now and then who can throw almost as far.—Chicago News.

"Mr. Funny Looking."

This queer looking man can be made the cause of lots of fun if he is put together correctly. To make him get a piece of cardboard 10 by 7 inches. Fasten the outer edges together with mucilage. Then make two holes in the sides wherein to stick two cardboard arms, with hands on the ends. These arms and hands are first drawn on the cardboard and then cut out. Now draw a comical face on the cylindrical part and cover the bottom of the cardboard cylinder with a round piece of muslin, gluing it on securely. Drop a big marble or small ball into the inside and place the funny manikin on a slightly slanting table. The marble rolling about will make "Mr. Funny Looking" a ridiculous object.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Riddles.

Why is it dangerous to take a nap in a train? Because the train always runs on sleepers.

Which is the strongest day in the week? Sunday, because all the rest are weak days.

Which is easier to spell, fiddle-de-dee or fiddle-de-dum? The former, because it is spelled with more es.

What fish is most valued by a loving wife? Answer—Her-ring.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Good One.

What is the longest and yet the shortest thing in the world, the swiftest and yet the slowest, the most divisible and the most extended, the least valued and the most regretted, without which nothing can be done?

Answer.—Time.

They Are Hurled Into Camps of Both the Old Parties

M'LAURIN WROTE TO ARCHBOLD

Could Beat Tillman If "Properly and Generously Supported" -- Sibley Asked For $1000 For a "Rep. Senator"--Haskell Declared to Have Been an Ally of Steel Trust--Kern Must Look Out For Himself

New York, Sept. 25.—William R. Hearst, addressing last night the state convention of the "Independence League party," as the New York state branch of the national Independence party is officially known, renewed his attack upon members of both the Republican and Democratic parties and produced another batch of letters, alleged to have been written by John D. Archbold of the Standard Oil company.

One of the letters was addressed to John L. McLaurin, then United States senator from South Carolina, and there was also a letter from McLaurin to Archbold in which the writer declared he could "beat Tillman if properly and generously supported."

Mr. Hearst read also a letter from Representative Joseph C. Sibley of Pennsylvania, who was represented as the author of "confidential letters" to Archbold, and a letter from Archbold to a "rep" senator, whose name did not appear in the copy of the correspondence in Hearst's possession. The Sibley letter was dated Nov. 23, 1903, and reads as follows:

"A Rep. United States senator came to me today to make a loan of $1000. I told him I did not have it, but would try and get it for him and would let him know in a day or two.

"Do you want to make the investment? He is one who will do anything in the world that is right for his friends if ever needed. Please telegraph me yes or no. I will give you name when I see you.

"I don't know but what I ought to come over and see you. Events are crowding and I am on the inside of them, and think I am playing no small hand and want to know whether to go ahead. The nomination of a Repubblican president is not yet settled. No man can safely predict the nominee and I guess I have got hold of the real situation as closely as anyone here.

"If you need me for any purpose, telegraph me and I will come over."

Renewing his assault upon Governor Haskell of Oklahoma, treasurer of the Democratic national committee, Hearst declared that not only was he a "Standard Oil tool and promoter of crooked railways, but was one of the organizers of the steel trust."

He quoted from what he said was a court record of a suit brought by John P. Bailey, Haskell's law partner in Ohio, against the Illinois Steel company and the Federal Steel company for services rendered by Haskell as attorney "and organizer." The amount of the suit was $50,000.

Mr. Hearst also quoted from what he declared was a recent speech of Haskell's, defending the Standard Oil company "as having done wonders in the country."

"We know," said Hearst, "that it has done wonders in the United States senate." The new charges were received with great enthusiasm.

Incidentally Hearst intimated that Mr. Kern, the Democratic nominee for vice president, might appropriately be looking about for somebody to defend him. This would seem to indicate still another attack to come.

All of the officers on the ticket were filled by candidates chosen by a "committee on candidates," the slate being unanimously ratified by the convention. The ticket complete follows:

Governor, Clarence J. Shearn, New York; lieutenant governor, D. W. Finnimore, Pottsdam; secretary of state, Frank Stevens, Nassau; comptroller, Willard Glenn, Onondaga; state treasurer, W. I. Sirovics, New York; attorney general, W. A. De Ford, Albany.

The delegates were explosive in their enthusiasm, loudly cheering the mention of the names of members of their own organization and greeting with groans and hisses the name of national figures in both the old parties. The convention adjourned at midnight.

Will Get Rid of Haskell

Cincinnati, Sept. 25.—Upon authority second only to that of Mr. Bryan himself, the statement can be made that probably before the beginning of next week formal announcement will be made of the resignation by Governor Haskell of the office of treasurer of the Democratic national committee. It is known that Bryan yesterday virtually decided definitely to request Haskell's resignation if the governor should not within the next forty-eight hours tender it voluntarily.

Bryan Asks For "Square Deal"

Cincinnati, Sept. 25.—"All I ask of the president is that he put into practice for a month and a half what he has talked about for seven years, and that is a square deal."

Twice yesterday William J. Bryan gave expression to this utterance. It was not a square deal, he charged, for the president to pick out one Republican and nominate him over other Republicans, and it was not a square deal for the president to use his office, which belonged to all the people, as a party asset. He added a new feature to his speeches during the campaign by comparing the personal record of himself and Mr. Taft.

After a memorable day in the history of campaigning in this state, Bryan arrived here last night from Dayton. As his train pulled into the station through a gauntlet of red fire, thousands of throats sent up a mighty yell of "Hurrah for Bryan." The reception accorded the candidate on his way from Columbus was remarkable. Large crowds turned out all along the line, but it remained for Dayton to overwhelm him.

Taft Pleases Wisconsin Crowds

Milwaukee, Sept. 25.—Wisconsin had a political climax in the complete and emphatic manner in which Senator La Follette first declared W. H. Taft to be a radical in political ideas and then gave him his own unqualified endorsement. This endorsement was delivered at Madison before the National Farmers' convention. La Follette was greeted with hearty applause as was also the reply of Mr. Taft, who paid his compliments to the senator.

There was every evidence throughout Taft's day, which began at 6:30 o'clock, that the enemy's country was somewhere else than the Wisconsin towns visited. Big crowds every few minutes greeted the speeding Taft special.

The tariff speech of the candidate last night at Milwaukee was the final act of the day. Taft stated that he believed that he would be elected president. He reviewed the promises of his party for tariff revision, and then showed that in doing this work the party would adhere to its promises.

Kern Discusses Roosevelt Letter

Ellicott City, Md., Sept. 25.—"Mr. Roosevelt will find it quite impossible by the raising of side issues and the muddying of water to divert the minds of the people from the questions that must be decided by their votes in November." In this language John W. Kern concluded a discussion of the last letter of President Roosevelt to William J. Bryan with reference to the charges made by W. R. Hearst against Governor Haskell in a speech in this city. He declared that the president had abandoned his original charges against Governor Haskell and had taken up a criticism of his official acts to cover his own embarrassment over his failure to work reforms in his own party.

Haskell Starts East

Guthrie, Okla., Sept. 25.—Governor Haskell, treasurer of the Democratic national committee, left last evening for Chicago, accompanied by State Treasurer Menefee. They go to confer with the national committee and Mr. Bryan with reference to the charges made against the governor by President Roosevelt and W. R. Hearst. A thorough investigation of the charges is to be made.

Quits Congressional Race

Shelby, O., Sept. 25.—Congressman Laning has withdrawn from the race for re-election to congress for the good of the Republican party. Laning was recently found not guilty upon the charge of embezzling twenty shares of the stock of the Norwalk Savings bank. F. V. Owen afterward was nominated for congress from Laning's district.

TO RESUME WORK IN PAPER MILLS

Workmen Accept Wage Reduction After a Long Strike

Boston, Sept. 25.—News of a settlement of the strike of paper workers, which has been in progress nearly two months, was received last night at some of the mills of the International Paper company in New England. At Franklin and Berlin, N. H., and at Greenfield, Mass., the superintendents of the mills of the International Paper company in those towns received orders from the New York office of the concern to get the mills in readiness for a resumption of work next Monday.

At Bellows Falls, Vt., and Rumford Falls and Livermore Falls, Me., where the company has large paper-making plants, no information regarding the strike settlement or the starting up of the mills was given out, but it is thought probable that these mills will also resume operations in the near future.

Superintendent Everett of the Franklin mills received a notice saying that the Papermakers' union officials have accepted the reduction in wages amounting to about 5 percent. The original reduction proposed by the company averaged 10 percent.

Most of the mills of the company in New England have been completely shut down since Aug. 1.

Long Run of Autos

Boston, Sept. 25.—Sixteen of the automobiles of the twenty-one which started at 10 o'clock Wednesday night on a twenty-four hours' endurance run to Bretton Woods, N. H., had arrived at the Bay State Automobile clubhouse last night when the checking committee finished its work. The winner of the $200 trophy is still in doubt, however, as nine cars finished with perfect scores. The contestants made the run with but one hour's rest at Bretton Woods.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Saturday, Sept. 26.
Sun rises—5:36; sets—5:35.
Moon sets—6:27 p. m.
High water—11:45 a. m.; 12 m.

BOY WIZARD'S FEAT.

Invents Device to Catch Wireless Telephone Messages.

VOICES FROM AFAR HEARD.

Twelve-year-old Youngster Amazes Electricians by His "Receiving Box" Contrivance to Reproduce Words. Worked It Out Alone on Hotel Roof.

William E. D. Stokes, Jr., twelve years old, son of the proprietor of an apartment hotel in New York city, has astounded experts in wireless transmission of messages by electrical energy by designing what he calls a "receiving box." His contrivance not only catches dispatches sent in the ordinary code used by the Marconi and De Forest systems, but reproduces the words and sounds of wireless telephony in volume deep enough to be heard at a distance of four feet from the apparatus.

Working alone and concealing the secret of his invention from his father, the boy stuck to the completion of his task all of a recent day and well into the night. The next day about noon he had perfected the last coil in the mysterious "box" and ran down from the roof to his father's office on the sixteenth floor, shouting:

"Come up, pop! Come up! She's talking all right! Come and listen!"

Stokes senior had indulged his son for more than a year with electrical devices of different characters and had permitted him to string wires between the two towers on the roof of the building and connect them with a dynamo in the dynamo room of the building. The father had heard the click of the dot and dash snatched from the air, which was not entirely new, but he was wholly unprepared, says the New York World, for the demonstration that greeted him when he was called to the roof by the eager youngster.

"Just wait a minute," exclaimed W. E. D. junior as he opened a square receptacle and turned a lever. Instantly there came the sound of a human voice with a metallic twang.

"Do you catch my signal?" were the words. "Is that right? Say"—

There was a break and an indistinct buzz on the wire. The young inventor moved his lever the fraction of an inch.

"I won't stand for this," was the message roared out. "You go to that firehouse and see if you can't get a better connection."

The elder Stokes was speechless with astonishment. There was no indication of where the messages came from. The first was presumed to be from Philadelphia, where secret experiments are being made in wireless telephoning to connect with the tower of the Metropolitan Life building in New York city. This supposition was borne out by another message that came when the lever was moved back to the point it first covered. The tone and inflection of the voice were the same:

"Mr. Polliton, don't you get me? What's the matter, Mr. Polliton?"

"Do you understand that, pop?" asked the boy. "It sounds like Mr. Polliton, because the conditions are not good. I'll tell you what he is trying to say. It is Metropolitan. They are trying to call Metropolitan. Here is another."

The delicate metal guide was shifted again, and a clear, high baritone called:

"It will be fifteen thousand on machinery—fifteen thousand—burr, burr, Brant Rock, Boston"—and then silence. Once more the lever was turned, and a wailing voice broke in:

"Oh, that sauerkraut was tough! No more for me. This isn't the time for sauerkraut—not on your life."

Then came fragments of a rollicking chorus, a deep bass recitation and a series of words and phrases in high and low key, just as the apparatus was attuned by the shifting of the lever to seize and reproduce the flying sounds.

The young inventor has figured out that the clear and distinct words enunciated through the receiving box come either from Philadelphia or from within 100 miles of New York and that the sounds of lesser clarity are projected from Boston or thereabouts. The weaker sounds, he calculates, by comparative reasoning must come a distance of from 700 to 1,000 miles. He has not attempted to design a transmitter to send wireless telephonic messages, but he can transmit the ordinary telegraphic code and capture messages on the wing as well as an expert.

The boy has thought out and designed the apparatus without help. He has been a student of electrical science since he was ten years old. He is a pupil of a school in New York and in common with other boys of his own age and older has had object lessons in mechanical devices in visits of the class to industrial establishments. The only branch that interested him was electricity, and in that he has displayed a precocity which one of the leading experts in wireless telegraphy says is without precedent.

Young Stokes said he is not ready to divulge anything more concerning his invention. There are secrets involved in the perfection of the system which he does not mean to have any other wizards feast upon.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

GAME DECIDED A TIE

New York Still Leads, With Chicago and Pittsburg Tied

On the returns as so far officially passed upon by the National League officials, the conclusion of the New York-Chicago series finds New York still leading in the race by a margin of 13 points. The leaders' undisputed victory of yesterday adds one to their "won" column and makes up for the subtraction of the victory previously credited on the result of Wednesday's game, now decided a tie. Corresponding changes in Chicago's totals and the addition of Pittsburg's victory of Thursday place Chicago and Pittsburg on equal terms in second place. The standing is as follows:

| | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| New York | 88 | 50 | .638 |
| Chicago | 90 | 54 | .625 |
| Pittsburg | 90 | 54 | .625 |

American League

In the American League the race was made closer by the defeats of Cleveland and Chicago. Detroit is now only 2 points behind Chicago. St. Louis pulled up to within 4 points of Detroit and is only 16 points in the rear of the leaders. The standing is:

| | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| Cleveland | 83 | 61 | .576 |

ELECTROCUTED DURING A STORM

Fate of Young Man In Charge of Power Station

Salisbury, Mass., Sept. 25.—During a violent electrical storm which prevailed here last evening, Chester Parker, 20 years old, an electrician at the electric transforming station here, was instantly killed.

Parker was alone at the station when the lightning, attracted by the charged wires and instruments, struck the switchboard, setting the insulation on the wires on fire. Parker reached for an iron pail filled with sand for such an emergency, but the whole station had by that time become charged, caused by the insulation being burned off the live wires, and the young man was electrocuted, receiving 13,000 volts.

The station receives its electricity from Portsmouth, N. H., and transforms it to furnish power for the Haverhill and Amesbury and the Citizens' street railways. When attention was attracted to the station by the street cars being stalled for lack of power, Parker's body was seen hanging to the pail. As everything around him was alive with electricity no one dared to enter the station, and the body was suspended from the pail for over half an hour before the power was shut off.

Barge Sunk by Steamer

New York, Sept. 25.—Shipping movements were rendered extremely dangerous by a dense blanket of fog that settled over the bay and city. A score of more of steamers, including a number of Atlantic liners, are fog-bound outside the harbor, and in the thick fog in the lower bay the West Indian fruit steamer Senator ran down and sank the barge Josephus. No lives were lost.

Elsie Vanderbilt Gets Divorce

New York, Sept. 25.—Justice Gerard, in the supreme court, signed the final decree of absolute divorce in favor of Elsie F. Vanderbilt from Alfred G. Vanderbilt. The custody of the one child, William H. Vanderbilt, now 6 years of age, is given to the mother. Vanderbilt and Elsie French were married on Jan. 14, 1901.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Fog was responsible for a head-on collision between two cars near Chester, Pa., in which about fifty workmen were injured. The cars were wrecked.

Augusto B. Legula, the recently elected President of Peru, was inducted into office at Lima.

Dazed from an epileptic attack, John Donovan, 24 years old, walked into the Pawcatuck river at Westerly, R. I., and drowned before help could reach him

TODAY'S COURT.

George W. Harvey was fined $16 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at the Blue Hills reservation. Charles H. Chandler and Ralph M. Wyatt were found guilty of the same offence and their cases placed on file.

Fully 600 children were present Thursday, the opening day of the Weymouth fair. There was also a large crowd of adults. The Old Colony club won in the matinee cup meet between the Old Colony and Brockton clubs. The ball game between the Wildey and Winthrop teams was won by the former by a score of 8 to 7.

The Fore River football team will meet the J. & P. Coats team again Saturday at Pawtucket, R. I. There will be no game on the home grounds.

Lady Betty is sure to captivate the men of Quincy, as well as the ladies. The Daily Ledger will introduce her next Tuesday.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.
LAND COURT.

To Richard D. Chase, George Irwin, Annie E. Larkin, Edward D. Larkin, Catherine T. Larkin, Joseph M. Larkin, Gertrude Larkin, Annie D. Larkin, Richard J. Larkin, Paul M. Larkin, Henry M. Faxon, Charles J. Anderson, William Mewis, Ellen Gregory, Isabella M. Gregory, Mary E. Gregory, William A. Gregory and Mrs. Henry Lavelle of Quincy, in the County of Norfolk, and said Commonwealth; the Waltham National Bank, a duly existing corporation having its usual place of business in Waltham in the County of Middlesex, and said Commonwealth; Edwin B. Alger of Quebec, Canada; any heirs, devisees or legal representatives of James C. Goodhue and of Horace Alger, late of Braintree, in said County of Norfolk, deceased, and of Jane Alger, late of Eaton, in the Province of Quebec, deceased, who have not released their interest in the premises hereinafter described; and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Albert Nelson of said Quincy, to register and confirm his title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Quincy, bounded as follows: Southerly by Gilmore Street one hundred and one (101) feet; easterly by land of the heirs of Richard Larkin one hundred and nineteen (119) feet; northerly by land of H. M. Faxon and of William Mewis one hundred and one (101) feet; and westerly by land of the Waltham National Bank one hundred and twenty-one (121) feet; containing twelve thousand one hundred and twenty (12120) square feet of land.

Petitioner claims as appurtenant to the above described land a right of way over Gilmore Street (private way) as shown on the plan hereinafter mentioned to and from Hancock Street in common with the owners of other lands on said Gilmore Street.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition, and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the nineteenth day of October A. D., 1908, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, Leonard A. Jones, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-third day of September in the year nineteen hundred and eight.

Attest with Seal of said Court.
Seal.

AMUSEMENTS.

Keith's Theatre.

A show that gives promise of making an almost ideal vaudeville has been arranged for next week's at Keith's theatre, the Eight Kellinos, Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Crane and company, Adeline Dunlap and company, Cameron and Flanagan, "Christmas on the Island," Carroll and Cook, and the Three Weston Sisters being among the bookings already made. There is no better novelty vocal art than "Christmas on the Island" as done by Sydney Deane and his trio of assistants. Carroll and Cooke with a bright line of talk and some new songs; the Three Weston Sisters in a dainty instrumental offering; Juggling DeLisle and new Kinetograph pictures will help to round out a capital bill.

Boston Theatre.

Denman Thompson's "The Old Homestead" has been played continuously, under one management, for a longer period than any other play ever staged in this country. Denman Thompson himself is playing the part of Uncle Josh, at the Boston theatre and the engagement is now in its fourth week. "The Old Homestead" has been seen in every city of any consequence in this country, and has been played in New York city more than a thousand times. The demand for the play became still heavier, as its fame grew apace, and Mr. Thomspson soon had two companies before the public. It would be next to an impossibility to give anything like accurate idea of the territory over which the home of Joshua Whitcomb, Grace church, and the other well known scenes of the play, were moved back and forth during the first half of their existence. For some years there has been only one company presenting the play, and this is the one now performing at the Boston.

Castle Square Theatre.

After a three weeks' run of "The Devil" at the Castle Square, the bill will be changed Monday evening, and "The Three of Us" will be given its first stock company production in Boston. This highly popular romantic drama of western life has won great success both in this country and in England and it has been pronounced by competent critics to be one of the best plays of its kind ever written. Its scenes are laid in a Nevada mining camp, and its characters are as alive and as real as though they had just stepped out of actual life upon the stage. The John Craig Stock Company is esepcially adapted to give a fine presentation of "The Three of Us." Mr. Craig wil lact the leading role of Stephen Towniey, and Mary Young will have in Rhy, the heroine, a delightful character in which she will bring all her personal charm and cleverness. The scenery will give a picturesque series of the view of Nevada life, and the play will be given under the personal stage direction of William Parlo.

Hollis Street Theatre.

The theatrical annals of Boston do not record such a towering success as "The Round-up." Klaw Erlanger's stupendous production of Edmund Day's famous play which broke all records last season for big receipts. It returns for a limited engagement to the Hollis Street Theatre, Monday Oct. 5. This play with its heart interest and thrills and extraordinary sensationalism in the most realistic battle scene ever presented, has a popular appeal that has resulted in an unbroken succession of crowded audiences wherever seen. The scenes of the play are laid in Southern Arizona and the characters and atmosphere of this region are most graphically and faithfully portrayed. The broad art of the scene painter and the marvels of stage-craft have never produced such scenes as those represented in "The Round-Up." The eye looks upon the great distances of arid desert and up the towering gigantic canyons with wonderment that paint and brush, stage mechanism and light effects can have such magic use as to present such vividly real scenes. "The Battle Scene" is almost appalling in its realism.

Orpheum Theatre.

Williams and Walker in "Bandanna Land" at the Orpheum theatre, Boston, begin the last week of their engagement there on Monday, Sept. 28. This unusually clever musical comedy with its sensational "Dance Of Salome" has packed the Orpheum Theatre to the doors at nearly every performance. No matter what the taste, there are many things in it to please. "Bandanna Land" is just such a musical concoction as pleases everybody, and it has been aptly called "three hours of solid laughter." It is alone worth the price of admission to hear Bert Williams sing "At Peace Wid De World," while apparently under the influence of an over indulgence in applejack

Athletic Notes Of General Interest

Clapp, the star halfback on the High school team, is only a freshman. He has a good career ahead of him as a football player, if his ability at present can be taken as any criterion.

"Joe" Elcock and brother "Tom," both running for the South Boston A. C., have entered the games at the Brockton fair; Joe in the 100 and 220, and Tom in the quarter and half mile runs.

Makaria against "Charlie" Ganzel's "Yannigans" at the Park, on Saturday, at 3 o'clock. Smith, who has signed with Providence, and Michael, will be in the points for the "Yans." Penley will be on the mound for Makaria, with Troupe on the receiving end. "Charlie" Ganzel will show the present day fans and players how the game was played years ago. He can still bat some, and Saturday, just watch him.

One of the hottest games in this vicinity will be played Saturday at the Stony Brook reservation in Hyde Park between Hyde Park and the Hyde Park A. A. The game is for the championship and each side will fight every inch.

The Avon football team is practicing faithfully for its first game, Oct. 3, against the Avon Cubs. The team will attend the production of "The Merry Widow" in Boston some evening next week.

A Little Confidential Chat with the People of Quincy.

The average man in business today cannot buy an artlicle at wholesale for 75 cents and sell it for 76 and make a very sumptuous living. Were he getting 85 cents he would not be getting very rich. Admitting that he has been selling for 85 cents, suddenly he has a dream that he can get rich quicker by selling it at 76 cents and announces the fact to the DEAR PUBLIC, that he has been charging too much. He is very sorry to have taken so much of their good money and in the future he is going to be a good little boy and only take for himself one big cent on a sale of 76 cents worth of goods. What a Philanthropist! One of the noble characters of the day! A man of the people willing and anxious to be looked up to by his fellow men as a marvel of Goodness.

And his poor deluded fellow man walks into his store looking for the "bargains." He calls for say a silk handkerchief that he sees advertised for 76 cents. The Philanthropist is there and tells "him you don't want a silk handkerchief. You want a boot-jack" and before the poor man realizes it he has bought and paid for a boot-jack that he never wanted, instead of the handkerchief he went in for.

Now bring this little talk down to the drug business. You are attracted by a sign, circular or newspaper "adv." "Know-a-Little's Pills" 35 cents. Dirt cheap! Guess I'll get a box! You walk into the store and call for them, and You are immediately assailed with, "My Dear Man, You don't want them, you want Mr. Know-it-all's Pills. The best thing that ever grew." The crowned heads of Europe take them to bed with them, children cry for them, and President Roosevelt is going to speak of them in his next message to Congress on "How I elected Taft." These are just what you want, 30 cents. Thank You, just Right. Call again.

And the man behind the counter looks gleefully at the customer as he sadly wends his way out of the store with something he does not want and he says to his assistant.

"You see how easy it is to fool them. Give them hot air, and plenty of it and they will stand for it.

Talk up the Know-it-All remedies and I will give you 10 per cent commission on all your sales, because the profit on these goods is such I can afford to. Don't sell the others because there is no profit in them."

That method of Doing Business does NOT GO in My Store.

A person coming into my store gets what he asks for at my published price, and no substitute.

I BELONG TO NO DRUG TRUST

I am not interested financially in any medicine-making concern outside of my own store. My clerks will give what you ask for, and at the published prices.

I Must Decline to be Undersold by Any Store in Quincy.

I have told you my method of doing business and with efficient service, polite attention and "No Substitution" I respectfully ask a continuance of your very valued patronage.

The Social Realm

Ladies fair the end is near;
Soon will lie upon its bier
Every lovely blossom here.
Posies e'en with which the year
Strives to hide her swift decay,
Now must pass from us away,
And in death be laid beside
Flowerets that in summer died.
Zinnias, uashing fire's bright hue;
Marigolds, whose buds pursue
Golden Sol, from east to west;
Lilies, of all blossoms best
For the dying season's shroud;
Daisies, to St. Michael, vowed;
Dahlias, set in order prim;
Asters, loaded to the brim
With the weight of tears unshed;
Hollyhocks, pink, white and red;
Dainty columns wreathed with bloom;
Violets of rare perfume;
Roses, pallid, aye, and wan,
Yet so sweet; all will have gone!
Ladies fair, the end is near;
Dying is the sylvan year.

ROOSEVELT'S STATEMENTS

Denied In a Vigorous Broadside From Foraker

NOT A CHAMPION OF TRUSTS

Will Have Plenty of Company If Every Man Who Has Had Relations With Standard Oil Is Driven Out of Public Life--Says Taft Recommended Trust Lawyer to Roosevelt as Eligible to an Important Appointment

Cincinnati, Sept. 26.—Senator Foraker, in a lengthy, carefully worded and elaborately circumstantial statement, defends himself against those who, as he states, are trying to take from him the good name that he prides himself upon being able to leave as a heritage to his family.

In the first place he produces letters to refute President Roosevelt's allegation that he has been the champion of trusts. He shows that he was the regularly paid counsel of the Standard Oil company only until the time when it was dissolved as a trust in Ohio, after which he declined to accept a retainer for representing the corporation in the state courts.

He denies that he has ever tried to influence legislation through his position as a United States senator, and explains his attitude on the railroad rate bill and the Brownsville affair.

Some of the senators hits at President Roosevelt and Mr. Taft follow:

"The president says in his answer to Mr. Bryan of Sept. 23 that I was the champion and defender of corporations in the senate. There is not a word of truth in any such statement, whether made by him or anybody else."

"I have not at any time or in any way sought Mr. Taft's help for re-election to the senate."

"Without disparaging genuine morality, it can be truthfully said that less imaginary and professional 'rightness of action' and 'moral awakening' and more commonsense in the policies of the administration would have been better for the country."

"Apparently every man who has any relation to the (Standard Oil) company is to be driven out of public life. If so I shall probably have a great deal of company."

"Mr. Taft asked the president to appoint Mr. Doyle, one of the principal attorneys of the Standard Oil company in Ohio, as judge of the United States district court."

"When Mr. Taft visited Middle Bass and Toledo he was the guest of Mr. O. T. Lewis of the law firm of Doyle & Lewis, who have been attorneys of the Standard Oil company for many years, and when Mr. Taft had occasion to pass back and forth between Middle Bass and Toledo, where I had the pleasure of meeting him, he traveled on the yacht of Mr. Richardson, a prominent magnate of the glass trust, and when traveling from Hot Springs to Toledo he rode in the private car of one of the officers of the road. What a series of unpardonable crimes!"

"In this whole matter (the Brownsville case) I had no revenge to seek or personal ends to serve, but was anxious to see that common justice was done to the representatives of a noble and loyal race, every one of whom by nature is a Republican."

Gompers Continues Testimony

Washington, Sept. 26.—President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor occupied the entire day yesterday on the witness stand in the contempt proceedings against himself and others. Attorney Davenport, for the prosecution, sought to obtain further details concerning the efforts which Gompers had said had been made to bribe him and also concerning the shadowing of himself by detectives, but no important developments in that connection were elicited.

Iceberg Damaged the Erik

St. Johns, Sept. 26.—With her hull damaged by collision with an iceberg, steamer Erik, which accompanied the Peary expedition to the north, is on her way to this port. The damage to the vessel is said to be all above the waterline, and she is not leaking. The Erik put into Turnavik harbor, Labrador, where temporary repairs were effected, after which she proceeded slowly south.

Not Attentive to Duty

New London, Conn., Sept. 26.—Supervisors of Steam Vessels Withey and Stark have ordered the licenses of Captain Macbeth and Second Mate Googins of the Clyde line steamship Chippewa suspended for thirty days. The supervisors found that in the grounding of the Chippewa at Montauk point Macbeth and Googins were responsible through negligence.

Nomination Formally Accepted

New Haven, Sept. 26.—Amid much enthusiasm, the Democrats of the state formally opened the campaign here last night, the nominee for governor, A. H. Robertson, accepting the honor tendered him by the recent convention of the party.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Sunday, Sept. 27.
Sun rises—5:37; sets—5:33.
Moon sets—6:25 p. m.

INVESTIGATE and ECONOMIZE.

NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.

On and after September 16, we have decided

TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE

as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods

AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills over due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every day. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and take them with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Now think this proposition over, and we feel confident that you can see it just the way that we do.

Half Price.

A well known actor was taking dinner at a fashionable Chicago hotel when a young man came in and sat down at the same table. He apparently recognized the actor, for after gazing at him intently for a couple of minutes he pulled a two dollar bill ostentatiously from a large roll and, shoving it across the table, remarked:

"I always feel as if I had to pay to see a famous man, don't you know."

The "famous man" calmly tore the two dollar bill in half and returned one section to the young man.

"Children half price," he observed composedly.

LISTEN!

Whoever you are, as you read this,
Whatever your trouble or grief,
I want you to know and to heed this—
The hour draweth near with relief.

No sorrow, no woe, is unending.
Though heaven seems voiceless and dumb,
So sure as your cry is ascending,
So surely an answer will come.

Whatever temptation is near you
Whose eyes on these simple lines fall,
Remember, good angels will hear you
And help you to stand if you call.

Though stunned by despair, I beseech you,
Whatever your losses, your need,
Believe when these printed words reach you,
Believe you were born to succeed.

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Got Half of It Back.

The famous painter Corot and his sister were joint owners of some house property in the Faubourg Poissonniere. One day one of the tenants, a tailor, came to Corot and said he could not pay his rent. "What can I do for you?" asked Corot. "I cannot intercede for you with my sister because I am not on good terms with my family." As a matter of fact, Corot was regarded as a "failure" by his family. "However," he added, "here is the money to pay the rent, only don't let any one know I have given it to you."

The tailor after this used to return periodically when his rent was due and obtain the money from Corot, who remarked on one occasion, "I appear to be very generous, but I am not, because I get half of it back from my sister as my share of the rent."

Barred Out.

Two souls approached St. Peter, side by side, and the younger was repulsed sternly by the saint on the ground that since he had never been married he had never known suffering.

The older man advanced, with glad confidence. He stated that he had been married twice.

But him, too, the saint repulsed, saying:

"This is no place for fools."

His Improvement Plan.

"A Chester lawyer married a young woman of exquisite mind—a thin, big headed girl in spectacles," said a West Virginia man. "A friend from the east was introduced to the lady one night, and later on the bridegroom said to him:

"'George, what do you think of her?'

"George puffed thoughtfully on his cigar.

"'Well,' he said, 'to tell you the truth, she isn't much to look at, is she?'

"The husband's face fell.

"'Ah, but,' he said eagerly, 'what a mind she has! Externally perhaps she isn't all that could be desired, but within—ah, George, she has a beautiful mind!'

"George smiled. 'Then have her turned,' he said."

The First Eviction.

An Irish tenant who had just bought under the purchase act boasted to the agent that his landlord was now "God Almighty" and that he need fear nothing.

"Don't you be too sure, Pat," was the reply. "Remember God Almighty evicted his first two tenants."

A Cook to the End.

"A good cook has the spirit of cookery born in him," said a French chef, "and in him it never dies. His first lisped baby word is of food, and a sauce or a navarin is the subject of his last dying breath.

"Did you ever hear of poor Gaston Laurent, the distinguished cook of Paillard's? Gaston went on a voyage to the south seas in 1895. His ship was wrecked, and he and his party were captured by cannibals. Being plump, Gaston, alas, was the first of the ill fated party to be consigned to the great iron casserole. And the survivors say that nothing could have been more touching and more sublime than Gaston's last cry from the great pot as the water began to smoke and bubble and he began to cook—Gaston's last calm cry of a great artist:

"'Come, come! It is already past the time for the pepper and salt!'"

Pride In Riches.

He that is proud of riches is a fool, for if he be exalted above his neighbors because he hath more gold how much inferior is he to a gold mine!—Jeremy Taylor.

A Noisy Process.

Mr. Fletcher was a plasterer and bricklayer. The chimney projecting from the roof of his one story cottage was in the last stages of dilapidation and needed to be torn down and rebuilt. A hundred times or more Mrs. Fletcher had called his attention to it and begged him to mend it, but he was always too busy. He would attend to it when he "got time."

At last there came a bright, clear day when he had absolutely nothing to do, and his wife promptly suggested that he take up that long delayed job and finish it.

"I just can't do it today, Emily," he said. "On a day like this I ought to be out hunting work." And he went out and slammed the door behind him.

A few minutes after he had gone away a neighbor called and knocked at the front door. As Mrs. Fletcher admitted her a terrific racket was heard on the roof.

"Goodness alive! What does that noise mean?" asked the caller.

"I think it means," said Mrs. Fletcher, with a smile, "that my husband has changed his mind."

"For the land's sake!" exclaimed the other. "Does it always make a noise like that when he changes his mind?"

Badly Injured.

"A woman came into my office one afternoon and said she wanted to see a lawyer on a rather important matter," said a lawyer. "She was very prim and self possessed.

"'What can I do for you?' I asked.

"'Well,' she said in an easy tone, 'my husband was hurt in the wreck the other day.'

"I noticed she was dressed in mourning, but from her indifferent tone I gathered that it had no connection with her husband's accident.

"'Was your husband badly injured?' I asked.

"'Yes,' she answered in the same quiet voice. 'He got his head cut off.'"
—Kansas City Independent.

Lever and the Archbishop.

Charles Lever, the novelist, was once the guest of Dr. Whately, the archbishop of Dublin, at his country seat. Among the other guests were some of the expectant clergy, who paid submissive court to their host. While the archbishop and his guests were walking through the ground the prelate plucked from a bush a leaf which, he declared, had a most nauseous flavor.

"Taste it," said he, handing the leaf to one of the clergy. The latter smilingly obeyed and then, with a wry face, subscribed to the botanical orthodoxy of the archbishop.

"Taste it, you, Lever," said the gratified prelate, handing the leaf to the novelist.

"No, thank you," said Lever, laughing. "My brother is not in your grace's diocese."

An Unreasonable Wife.

John Vigors complained one night at supper that the tea was weak, the meat tough, the potatoes soggy, etc.

His wife at last burst into tears.

"John Vigors," she cried, "I have cooked faithfully for you for seventeen years. My one thought has been to please you. There is not a man in this town has better cooked food than you, and this is all the thanks I get—growlings and complaints, growlings and complaints day after day. Why can't you praise me once in awhile?"

"You are the most unreasonable woman I ever saw," he said coldly. "Many and many a time I've sat down to a meal and never said a word about it from start to finish. Wasn't that enough of a compliment for you? Don't you know perfectly well that if there had been the least little bit of a thing to find fault with I'd have found it?"

Chaos In Knowledge.

And so, I say it most confidently, the first intellectual task of our age is rightly to order and make serviceable the vast realm of printed material which four centuries have swept across our path. To organize our knowledge, to systematize our reading, to save out of the relentless cataract of ink the immortal thoughts of the greatest, this is a necessity unless the productive ingenuity of man is to lead us at last to a measureless and pathless chaos. To know anything that turns up is in the infinity of knowledge to know nothing. To read the first book we come across in the wilderness of books is to learn nothing. To turn over the pages of ten thousand volumes is to be practically indifferent to all that is good.—Frederic Harrison.

Got His Fees.

A quaint character was Sagar, the verger of Halifax parish church. On one occasion a bridegroom after the service said that he had no money with which the pay the verger's fees.

Sagar went to the bride in his most winsome way and asked her: "Hast ever seen Black Bibles? We've a rare lot on 'em in this 'ere vestry."

"No," she replied, not having the faintest idea of what a Black Bible was.

"Coom along. I'll show yer them."

He lured her into the inner vestry.

"There's the Bibles," he said, pointing to them, locked up as they were in a bookcase with glass panels, of which he had not the key. "Wait awhile till I coom back."

He turned the key of the vestry on the bride and, going to the bridegroom, said, "Lass is all right, but you'll no have her till you have paid."

The bridegroom hastily dug up.

Danger Assured.

An Englishman was invited by a New Yorker to accompany him on a hunting trip on Long Island.

"Large or small game?" laconically asked the Briton, who has hunted in every quarter of the globe.

"You don't expect to find lions and tigers on Long Island, do you?" queried the New Yorker.

"Hardly," responded the Briton, with a laugh, "but I like a spice of danger in my hunting."

"If that's the case," answered the other, with a grin, "I'm your man, all right. The last time I went out I shot my brother-in-law in the leg!"—Harper's Weekly.

BEN FRANKLIN'S FORESIGHT

Culmination of Founding of Union From Fund of a Century Ago

Boston, Sept. 26.—Franklin Union, the culmination of the splendid foresight and beneficence of Benjamin Franklin, who left a bequest of £1000 for the founding of such a union in 1791, to the city, was dedicated last night in a magnificent new stone building at the corner of Berkeley and Appleton streets.

The main hall of the building was crowded with an interested throng and the exercises throughout reflected the greatness of Franklin and the ultimate success expected from the establishment of this new training school for "mechanics and artificers."

Richard Olney, as chairman of the board of managers, presided over the meeting and addresses were delivered by Professor Hollis of Harvard, Dr. Rouillion, director of the educational work of the Mechanics' Institute, New York; Professor Swain of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Elihu Thomson of the Thomson-Houston Electrical works, W. B. Russell of the Franklin Union and Rev. Thomas I. Gasson of Boston college. A letter from Mayor Hibbard, who was unable to be present, was read.

The courses of instruction will be opened next week and already the applications for admission almost equal the accommodations of the Union.

BROKERS CHARGED WITH LARCENY

Members of Firm of A. O. Brown & Co. Are Arrested

New York, Sept. 26.—Detectives from police headquarters appeared in the A. O. Brown company case, giving it a sensational turn when they arrested five members of the failed Stock Exchange firm as they emerged from the federal building, where a hearing into the affairs of the firm has been going on for some days. A sixth arrest would have been made if sickness had not detained still another member of the firm in a New Jersey hospital, beyond the jurisdiction of the New York police.

The charge against the members was that of grand larceny and it was preferred by a former client of the firm, Miss Helen S. Abernethy of this city, who alleges the loss at their hands of twenty shares of Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway common stock, valued at about $600, and twenty-five shares of United States Steel preferred stock, valued at $1184, on or about Aug. 27 last.

The men arrested were A. O. and S. C. Brown, E. F. Buchanan, L. G. Young and W. R. Whitman. They were all bailed out in $2000 each, and at the same time bail was furnished for G. L. Stout, the sixth person mentioned in the complaint, the attorneys for the firm saying they will produce him in court when the case is called for examination, which was set for Oct. 5.

State Buys Shaker Property

Lancaster, Mass., Sept. 26.—As a result of the consummation of a deal yesterday the state of Massachusetts acquired the extensive property owned by the Shirley Shakers in this town and Shirley, to be used as an industrial reform school. The property consists of twenty buildings and 620 acres of land. Fifty years ago the property was the home of a flourishing colony of Shakers, who practiced the Quaker religion in all its peculiar severity. Since then the members have died off until now but one elder and two sisters are left. The survivors will join the Shaker colony at Harvard.

Shipping Handicapped by Smoke

Sydney, N. S., Sept. 26.—The Dominion Coal company here has been obliged to discontinue coal shipments up the St. Lawrence, owing to the dense smoke caused by the forest fires raging in the vicinity. It will be necessary for them to charter additional vessels to overtake their shipments this fall. Several collieries are idle as a result of the cessation of shipments. No less than twenty-two ocean liners are now somewhere in the river between Montreal and Quebec and there is a number of smaller vessels held up.

Treasurer and Funds Gone

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 26.—A warrant for the arrest of Antone Augustus, supreme treasurer of the St. Michael's Beneficent society, a Portuguese organization, who is alleged to have absconded with about $1600 belonging to the society, was issued by the Fall River police at the request of the officers of the order. Augustus disappeared from his home here last Friday and detectives have been employed by his bondsmen to search for him.

Fortune Left to Governor Fort

Trenton, Sept. 26.—Governor Fort has been left $250,000 by the will of Mrs. Abby Reasoner, which was probated here yesterday afternoon. The governor is made the residuary legatee of Mrs. Reasoner who, although not a relative, was a close friend of the Fort family. Mrs. Reasoner's late husband was an official of the Lackawanna Railroad company.

Disagreement of Clark Jury

Belfast, Me., Sept. 26.—The jury in the case of Nathan E. Clark of Lincolnville, charged with burning Tranquility Grange hall in that town, reported a disagreement and were discharged. The grange hall fire was the third mysterious one in Lincolnville within a year.

MILTON.

The funeral of George Pew, who died Sunday, was held Tuesday afternoon from his late resiedne. Services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Cudiford of the East Congregational church. They were attended by John Adams aerie of Eagles. The burial was at Milton cemetery. The death of Mr. Pew was the fourth in the family since January, the deaths including the mother and three sons, all due to tuberculosis.

There has not been much doing at the Thursday Evening club thus far this season. Things are expected to start up, however, after the first of October.

The Republican caucuses were held Tuesday evening and the Democratic caucuses Wednesday evening. There was but little local interest in either party, and the caucuses were not largely attended.

The Mission of Our Saviour church was filled to overflowing last Sunday evening to hear the former rector, Rev. Theodore I. Reese. After the service Rev. Mr. Reese met personally many of his old friends. He left Monday for his present home in Columbus, Ohio.

One case of diphtheria at East Milton was reported to the Board of Health this week.

WEYMOUTH.

The engagement was announced in Weymouth last week of Miss Hazel May Brackett of Winchester and Dr. Oliver G. Tinkham of Weymouth.

Miss Johanna C. Dunphy, of Weymouth, died at Brockton, on Friday, September 18, after a long sickness. The funeral was held from the home of her sister Mrs. Frederick White, 17 Norfolk street, Weymouth, on Monday, September 21, at 8.45 A. M. Requiem mass at church of the Sacred Heart followed at 9.30 A. M.

Miss Mary F. Loud and her nephew Francis Loud of M. I. T. spent the week end at Marion.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry N. Willoby of Baker avenue, will be guests of their son, Charles H. Willoby of Worcester, over Sunday.

HOLBROOK.

Mrs. Edward Graham who has been the guest of Mrs. Walter Wood returned to her home in Boston.

Miss I. E. Kennerson, the recent guest of Mrs. E. F. Wheeler has returned to her home in Winchendon.

Rep. Louis Flye, who represented this district in Mass. legislation in 1907-08 has been mentioned as republican candidate for senatorial honors to succeed Senator Jenney of Hyde Park.

Miss Mabel Loud has rrturned from a vacation in Norwood with her sister.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Staples gave them a hearty welcome on their return from their boneymoon Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moore and daughter Hazel, formerly of this town, spent Tuesday with Mrs. Moore's parents Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peckman.

Miss Fannie Randall, of Rockland, is the guest of Miss Emily Greenwood.

The Old Turner ball players are once more going to don base ball uniforms, and will battle against the Holbrook A. A. this afternoon. An exciting game is expected.

Mr. and Mrs. Waterman, of Albany, New York, who have been spending the summer with her father, Everett Holbrook, have returned to their home.

Mr. and Mrs. William Vease and family, of Boston, have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Wood.

Miss Nellie Cote who has been spending her vacation in Lowell, arrived home Wednesday.

HELD UP FOR DIAMOND.

Mr. C. W. Clapp nearly lost his valuable diamond yesterday afternoon. He was returning from Boston on the 2.40 train and at the Braintree depot folded his newspaper to leave the train. As he stepped into the car aisle a young man who had been seated opposite sprang ahead of Mr. Clapp but before reaching the door started to back. While he was doing this trick another young man with an overcoat over his arm pushed against Mr. Clapp's left side and at the same time pulled the diamond stud fastener in his shirt front.

Fortunately the diamond did not pull easily. Mr. Clapp quickly grabbed at the fellow and secured his overcoat which he retains as a souvenir. The two robbers dashed from the train and disappeared among the bushes near the Monatiquot river.

Although the car was filled with passengers so quickly was the thing done there were no thoughts of catching the rascals. Men and boys near the station attempted to locate the would be thieves but were unsuccessful.

The love affair of Lady Betty will be an interesting bit of gossip for the ladies of Quincy.

BUT FEW POINTS APART

Pennants Not Within Grasp of Any of the Leaders

New York suffered a serious setback in the National League pennant race yesterday by dropping both games of a double-header to Cincinnati. This morning her advantage over the Chicago team, which won in Brooklyn, is but a single point. Pittsburg lost an opportunity to step into first place by losing one of two games in Boston and is now in third place. Today's possibilities include changes in position of all three of the leading teams, the standing of which is as follows:

| | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| New York | 88 | 52 | .629 |
| Chicago | 91 | 54 | .628 |
| Pittsburg | 91 | 55 | .623 |

| At New York: | R | H | E |
|---|---|---|---|
| Cincinnati | 7 | 10 | 1 |
| New York | 1 | 6 | 0 |

Batteries—Spade and Schlei; Marquard, Durham, Taylor, Bresnahan and Needham.

| Second game: | R | H | E |
|---|---|---|---|
| Cincinnati | 5 | 13 | 0 |
| New York | 2 | 10 | 2 |

Batteries—Dubec and McLean; McGinnity, Crandall and Bresnahan.

| At Brooklyn: | R | H | E |
|---|---|---|---|
| Chicago | 5 | 9 | 0 |
| Brooklyn | 1 | 3 | 1 |

Batteries—Overall and Kling; Rucker and Farmer.

| At Boston: | R | H | E |
|---|---|---|---|
| Boston | 2 | 5 | 4 |
| Pittsburg | 1 | 4 | 1 |

Batteries—Ferguson and Smith; Maddox and Gibson.

| Second game: | R | H | E |
|---|---|---|---|
| Pittsburg | 6 | 12 | 3 |
| Boston | 1 | 8 | 5 |

Batteries—Leifield and Gibson; Chappelle, McCarthy and Bowerman.

| At Philadelphia: | R | H | E |
|---|---|---|---|
| Philadelphia | 11 | 13 | 0 |
| St. Louis | 1 | 5 | 2 |

Batteries—Lush, Sallee and Bliss; McQuillan and Jacklitsch.

American League

Detroit in the American League won twice from Philadelphia and regained second place, Chicago not playing and dropping to third position. Here, as in the National League, the race is still exceedingly close, probably remaining to be fought out between the four western clubs when they play the season's final games among themselves. The standing:

| | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| Cleveland | 83 | 62 | .572 |
| Detroit | 81 | 61 | .570 |
| Chicago | 81 | 62 | .566 |
| St. Louis | 79 | 63 | .556 |

| At Cleveland: | R | H | E |

| Boston | 3 | 8 | 1 |
| St. Louis | 1 | 5 | 2 |

Batteries—Steele and Criger; Powell and Spencer.

Factory Explosion Kills Two

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 26.—Two persons were killed and nine others injured as the result of an explosion at the factory of the Ideal Comb company in this city. The explosion, according to the police, was caused by the sudden ignition, from some unknown cause, of the celluloid product used in the manufacture of combs. The injured suffered severely from burns. Rence Villeneube, 12 years old, was instantly killed by the explosion. Frederick S. Flagg, 47, one of the proprietors of the plant, was so badly injured that he died last night.

Accidentally Killed by Friend

Sanford, Me., Sept. 26.—While returning from a hunting trip with his brother Raymond and Seth Chambers, Ralph Downs, aged 21, was accidentally shot and killed by Chambers. The three stopped on their way home to shoot at a target. As Chambers was loading the rifle the shell exploded, the charge entering Ralph's back. Raymond Downs, in hurrying for help, was thrown from a wagon and seriously hurt. Chambers, who is 28 years old, was not arrested.

Business Continues to Improve

New York, Sept. 26.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that while the temperature has been too high for best results in fall retail trade, the volume is steadily increasing and manufacturing plants have extended operations still further. There remains the drawback of low water that retards mill work and river transportation. Leading industries are receiving larger contracts, especially steel and cotton mills.

NEWS IN BRIEF

EDITORIAL.

May there not be something sinster in the prophecy of Gov. Hughes' friends that he will run like a race horse this time.

A man in Texas is proclaiming that if he was sure that marriage was a lottery, he would have his mother-in-law indicted for running the one that scooped him.

Donovan, the ex-pugilist and instructor in the manly art, it is said, is writing a history for President Roosevelt. He had better keep up his guard, however, for his musicle is no guarantee that he may not be knocked into the Ananias club.

Now they are suggesting that names of cities shall be painted in huge letters on the roofs of houses for the convenience of the navigators of the air, and in due course there will be ordinances compelling owners to do this additional painting, thus furnishing more work for the painters at $3 a day of eight hours, under the supervision of a foreman chosen by themselves.

While Governor Haskell, of Oklahoma, is in the lime light, it is interesting to know that he is not only Governor, but a member of the Oklahoma Text Book Commission, and that one of the text books adopted by the commission contains the interesting information that when the future historian writes the history of Oklahoma, he will pay tribute to Gov. Haskell, who was elected as a reward for his able counsel and leadership in behalf of the people.

The official of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company take exception to the statements in the letter of Councilman George W. Abele of Friday. They claim several mistakes were made, but are not anxious to get into a controversy.

They deny that they have received free the water used as ballast in the ships. While the water was not metered, they had an understanding with the Commissioner of Public Works, and the capacity of the ships were estimated, and the city notified of the quantity used, when a bill was rendered.

They admit the hydrant service in the shipyard is not metered, but don't know why it should be.

Lady Betty will come to Quincy next Tuesday.

Surprise Party.

The many friends of Charles Moyle a very popular Quincy lad, gathered at his home on Quincy avenue Friday evening, to show him their friendship by presenting him with a handsome suit case and fountain pen. The presentation was made by John Souter. Later he was presented with a small doll and nursing bottle by Henry Leet. "Chick" responded with much enthusiasum. Henry Leet furnished the party with a few mandolin selections and George Reynolds with a few vocal selections. Games were played and refreshments served.

The gathering consisted of about 80 young people, and many of his friends from out of town were present.

Real Novelty Show Next Week

A new wrinkle in the show line is promised Friday and Saturday nights next, when "The Business Men's Carnival" will be presented at Music Hall, under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A. The cast of 300 of our young people is now in diligent rehearsal under the direction of Mrs. M. A. Harris. New and novel features galore are in store, so those who are in the secret say, and from the opening grand march to the closing skit, there is not a dull minute.

As to just what is to be done—well, that would be telling, but we are at liberty to throw out just a hint or two. Poor Lawyer De Wolf, carried away by the artful charms of a fair opera singer, forgets his fee; George Washington, Henry Clay, Thomas Jefferson, Madison Peters explains the duties of a "stenographer to a livery stable;" the blacksmith decides he can't shoe a sawhorse; the wary learn how to propose without fear of breach of promise, and the poor Editor has trials enough with Sam, his wicked office boy, and Miss Pipkins, an antique poetess, to drive a weaker man to drink; in fact, laugh follows laugh so rapidly that you just get the habit, and go home and laugh for weeks to come,—thereby improving both your temper and your digestion.

From this it will be seen that the carnival is a hodge-podge of mirth, and melody, too. The very latest and most uptodate songs, the hits of all the successful comic operas will be used, and if you don't know them now, you'll be whistling them all the next day. Vaudeville, of the most refined kind, with every possible objectionable feature removed, is what the carnival is. Irish, German, Yiddish, Italian, Spanish, Blackface and Farmer comedians quickly succeed each other in the drollest turns.

But mirth isn't all, some very pretty and charming little domestic scenes are introduced, and some fine tableaux or "stage pictures," as beautiful as the other sketches are funny, are given. The lovers of the classical music, too, will not be disappointed, for they will hear some beautiful and appealing numbers. Everyone will be pleased, young and old.

The production is being furthered by our most progressive merchants, for the carnival has a novel way of presenting their interests and marks the acme of artistic advertising. It is given under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A., and will be held in Quincy Music Hall, Oct. 2 and 3.

Tickets can be exchanged for reserved seats, at Y. M. C. A. building; Copeland's pharmacy, Wollaston; H. T. Sterling's Pharmacy, Atlantic; on and after Tuesday, Sept. 29.

The love affair of Lady Betty will be an interesting bit of gossip for the ladies of Quincy.

—Tufts college is to receive a bequest of $500,000 from the estate of J. Braker a New York millionaire for a school of commerce, finance and accounts.

MAYOR EXPLAINS

Water for Hydrant Service At Shipyard Recently Metered

Mayor Shea when seen this morning in regard to the article in the Daily Ledger of Friday relative to the water furnished the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. had this to say regarding the contract between the city and the Fore River Co.

"The rate the Fore River Co. is paying for water was agreed upon some years ago between the city and the company and has been adopted by all subsequent administrations.

"This year the city did not enter into any specific contract or agreement with the company, and the matter has been under consideration between the company and the city, in the hope that if the present rate was not a proper one the matter could be amicably adjusted and in a manner that would fully protect the city's interest.

"Concerning the metering of water supplied to the Fore River Co., evidently there is some misunderstanding on the part of the author of the article concerning the facts. The facts are these: There are three water mains into the premises of the company, from the cities supply pipes. Two of these have been metered at the street line and all of the buildings are suplied from these two mains. The third main is used only for fire hydrants and to supply water for ballast for vessels. Prior to this year this main was not metered. An agreement existed between the city and company under which the company furnished the city each month a statement of the water used for ballast purposes. This year the city caused a meter to be placed on this main within the company's yard, it being generally understood that insurance companies object to having a meter placed on a line between a fire hydrant and the main supply pipe in the city."

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Lady Betty will come to Quincy next Tuesday.

Lady Betty will come to Quincy next Tuesday.

Lady Betty sees things, and she says things in a way you can't easily forget.

Officer Michael Donovan's house on Hunt street is receiving a new coat of gray paint.

At directors meeting of National Mt. Wollaston Bank, held Tuesday, Henry M. Faxon was elected vice president.

Lady Betty is sure to captivate the men of Quincy, as well as the ladies. The Daily Ledger will introduce her next Tuesday.

Charles and Joseph H. Duggan of Squantum leave today for Cuba, where they will be employed by a Boston contractor.

The Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters will hold their next meeting, Sept. 27, at 7.45 P. M., with Mrs. O. N. Estes, of 30 Billings street.

Rally day will be observed Sunday Sept. 27, at Wollaston Methodist church, Rev. A. B. Kendig, D. D., will preach at the morning service and address the Sunday school. The chorus choir will resume work.

The love affair of Lady Betty will be an interesting bit of gossip for the ladies of Quincy.

The Charitable Tens Circle of King's Daughters will meet with Mrs. F. S. Davis, 25 Elm street on Monday afternoon, Sept. 28, from 4 until 5.

Miss J. M. Newell has returned from New York, where she has been attending the openings and inspecting many pretty costumes and gowns, advance styles for the winter season.

The friends of Quincy's popular druggist, Edward J. Murphy, will be sorry to learn that his father Robert Murphy, died this morning. Mr. Muryhy was a resident of Monson, Mass., and one of its oldest citizens. He was 78 years old.

The W. C. T. U. having been more successful this year in adding members to their Union, making forty-two in number. During the year 1908 they received $65.94 and expended $56.70. The Quincy Union is making strenuous efforts to renew the interest of the Union.

Charles W. Hanscom of this city has been elected to represent the central labor of Quincy at the State convention of the American Federation of Labor, to be held at Lowell, Oct. 12.

For the last few evenings the young men of Atlantic have been enjoying themselves by fishing in the Neponset river. Last evening there was upwards of 50 sitting along the piers waiting to get a "bite."

Edward Cuniff, a popular young man of this vicinity, is preparing for a trip of a few months to the back woods of Maine and while there he intends to learn the elements of lumber cutting. He will be a loss to the young men as an entertainer.

Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Barker are moving this week into Miss Prescott's new house on Russell park. Dr. Barker is a successful osteopath with an office in the city and will reserve special days at his new home for Quincy patients. Mrs. Barker is also a graduate of and practices osteopathy with great success.

Rehearsals have begun for the Business Men's Carnival to be given early in October under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A. The entertainment is to be on light comedy lines, latest song hits, tableaux, specialities, humorous skits and choruses, participated in by three hundred well known people.

A farewell party was given for Miss Margaret Robertson of Standish avenue by Miss Edith Armstrong of Warren avenue and Miss Dorothy Kingsbury at her home on Newton street last evening. The affair was well planned by the young folks and was a complete surprise to Miss Robertson, and given because her family are leaving Wollaston next week. Games were played including the "donkey game." First prize was won by Miriam Robertson, and the booby by Bayard Robertson. Supper of sandwiches, ice cream, cake and fruit punch was served. The bonbons created much amusement. At the party were Priscilla and Martha Robinsonfi Miriam Robertson, Anthony Cain, Eric Patch, Frederick Robertson, Bayard Robertson, Fred Kingsbury and Stedman Howarth.

Narrow Escape For School Boy

What nearly proved to be a serious accident was averted by good fortune, yesterday noon at Quincy Point. A little Italian boy, John D'Orazio, who is in the first grade of the Washington school, was running along behind a team on which some of his companions were hanging. When he got in front of the school he ran out from behind the team, and in doing so tripped and fell. This fall perhaps saved him, for there was an automobile coming up by the team at the time. The automobile just grazed the boy, but did not injure him, scaring him more than hurting him. If the boy had not tripped he would have run directly in front of the machine and his chances would have been very slim for escaping injury. Dr. F. E. Jones, who happened to be in the auto in question, stopped his car and came back to the boy. Upon examination he was found to be uninjured and was taken into school.

Sports at the Weymouth Fair

The weather was ideal yesterday for the Weymouth Fair, and this with the good list of sports carded, tended to bring out a big crowd. It was the second day of the 44th annual, and was the best day so far.

The first event on the sporting program was the horse-racing. The track was in perfect condition and the races were fast and close. The 2.19 class was the best race of the afternoon, having the largest field of starters. Outcast won in the fast time of 2.18 1-4.

The big field feature of the day was the ball game between the Deweys of Weymouth Landing and Stoughton. It was the last game in the Old Colony league series and was close and exciting all through. It went 12 innings, when darkness put a stop to all proceedings. The score stood 6-6. Harry Drake of Quincy was behind the bat for Dewey, and caught a good game.

The exhibition hall was crowded all day, a fine display of vegetables, fruit and flowers being on exhibition.

The Show of All Shows.

The Brockton Fair never fails to live up to its obligations to the public. The best obtainable in every department is served to its thousands of patrons yearly. The stage show this year embodies 18 star acts and over a hundred performers. The Martland Band, the Salem Cadet Band and Burke's Band, three of the best bands in New England, furnish the harmony, Sweet Marie, Major Delmar and George G. will furnish the speed. The Horse Show, the Firemen's Muster, with 22 prizes aggregating $1550, the cattle and poultry exhibits, the balloons, the mile of Merry Midway and countless other attractions will furnish amusement for the thousands who will be on hand to see something going on every moment at this people's festival—Sept. 29, 30, Oct. 1, 2.

Grade Crossing Hearing Nov. 7

As announced in Friday's Daily Ledger, the hearing to have been held this morning on the abolition of the grade crossings at Saville and Water streets was postponed.

Mr. Slocum of the special commission came to Quincy, and was met at City Hall by City Solicitor McAnarney, who represents the city.

As it was generally understood that the hearing would be postponed, no one appeared but the two gentlemen mentioned above.

After a conference it was announced by Mr. Slocum that the hearing stood adjourned until Saturday, Nov. 7, at 10 A. M.

Funeral of B. W. Reardon

The funeral of Bartholemew W. Reardon, one of West Quincy's long and honored citizens, was held this morning from his late residence at 54 Common street, followed by a solemn high mass of requiem at St. Mary's church.

The services at the church were largely attended, friends of the family being present from Concord, N. H., Northampton, Boston and Weymouth.

The celebrant at the mass were Rev. William Duffy, with Rev. Henry T. Grady as deacon, and Rev. John Sheehan of Somerville as sub deacon. On the altar were Rev. John J. Coan of St. John's church, and Rev. John P. Cuffe of the Church of the Sacred Heart.

Schmidt's mass was sung, under the direction of Miss Mary McConarty as organist, by a quartette composed of Miss Helen Galvin, Miss Angelia McCarthy, Joseph Burns and D. J. S. McCurdy. At the offer- Miss Helen Galvin sang Pie Jesu.

The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery, the bearers being the six sons of the deceased: William P., John J., Dr. Daniel B., Francis D., M. Vincent and Charles A. Reardon.

The flowers were very many and beautiful, and included besides those from the family, a cross of white carnations, lilies and cypress leaves surmounted by a dove, from the Copeland club, a wreath of pinks from G. D. Emerson of Boston, where one of the sons is employed, and a flat bouquet of asters and fern from the class of 1909 of the Woodward Institute.

Bon Voyage For Miss Leslie

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Hall on Franklin street Thursday evening, Sept. 24, Miss Polly Leslie, who is a member of the Hall household, was surprised by about three score of her friends dropping in and presenting her a handsome traveling bag, a toilet set and a five dollar gold piece.

Miss Leslie is on the eve of her departure for Scotland to visit her old home, and friends. She was without doubt taken by surprise, and when handed the tokens of her friends esteem, gave way to her womanly feelings. She however, soon recovered and an evening of enjoyment was commenced, which lasted until midnight.

Those who helped in the amusements of song, etc., were Miss Nellie Drummond, Miss Margaret Hall, Miss Helen Troupe, Mrs. Culbert, Mr. E. Collins, Miss Margaret Craig, Messrs. Walter and William Field, Miss Jennie Grassick, Miss M. Esson and Miss Margaret Michael. Miss Leslie, too, sang a number of comic songs which were greatly appreciated.

Refreshments were served during the evening. On departing all bade Miss Leslie bon-voyage, and a safe and quick return.

New Exhibit At the Library

A beautiful collection of photographs at the Public Library this week and for the next two weeks is that of the English Lakes. The Lake District comprises a portion of the counties of Cumberland, Westmorland and Lancashire, about 45 miles square. The picturesque attractions of the district are unequalled by any other part of England including as it does the largest lakes and highest mountains. To the beauties of nature must be added the literary interest arising from her residence and writings of Gray, Southey, the Coleridges, Wilson, De Quincey, Mrs. Hemans, Harriet Martineau, Dr. Arnold of Rugby, and Dorothy and William Wordsworth.

Attention is called to the winter schedule of hours as will be seen by the advertisement in another column. Those who may wish to come to the library for quiet study and reference work will find Wednesday forenoon from ten o'clock an excellent time, when from the conditions only adults may be found in the reading room.

But the children say they enjoy their room because it is quiet and certainly it growing in popularity, registration there already numbering about 480. The room opens at 11.30 and is not open while the schools are in session, from 1.30 till 3.30. It has been gratifying to find the children disposed to take such excellent care of their pretty new quarters and to note an increasing percentage of solid books, in proportion to the fiction a much larger percent than is taken out from the main library.

Old Timers Dance At Houghs Neck

The Old Timers of Houghs Neck were in their glory last night at the entertainment and dance given in their honor by Mrs. Phil Catarius of Parkhurst street, at the Quincy Yacht Club. Over thirty of the old bunch of "Natives" were present and enjoyed themselves dancing and drinking "pink" lemonade. Be tween dances a splendid entertainment was furnished by a few of the talented ones of the crowd. Miss Ethel Batting of Boston kept the crowd in roars with a very clever monologue act, in which she "knocked" every one present. Archie F. Baird of Great hill gave a very instructive and interesting address entitled, "How to get the coin." Arthur H. Dunham, sang with great success a very laughable ballad entitled "Whose Boss." The feature of the entertainment was a duet by Mrs. Phil Catarius and Mrs. Frank Smith entitled "If I only owned a telephone company." The affair was a decided success from start to finish. The party broke up about eleven o'clock.

Among those present were:—Mrs. Frank Smith, Thomas Fay, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fenney, Miss Ethel Batting, Samuel Barr, Mrs. Mabel Kimball, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Catarius, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Archie F. Baird, Harry S. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Mains, Hon. Joseph Brickley, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Dunham, Mr. and Mrs. Neil J. Regan, Miss Emma Howe, Walter Woods, Philip Schaefer and J. George Kutz, Jr.

Norfolk County And Vicinity

At the annual meeting of the Cyprus Commandery, K. T., in Hyde Park, on Thursday evening, Samuel H. Capen, sheriff of Norfolk county, was elected to the office of eminent commander.

The Metropolitan Park Commission will change the park police force at Nantasket in November, reducing the number of men now on duty.

The 50th annual exhibition of the Hingham Agricultural society will be held Sept. 29 and 30 in Agricultural hall.

The Needham lodge 75 A. O. U. W., will hold its annual memorial service at the Needham Heights Methodist church on Sunday morning, Oct. 4. The Rev. Edward E. Marsh will preach the sermon.

The Rev. George A. Hathaway of Scituate will leave next week for his new pastorate in Montana.

Henry Paine, while on a fishing trip at one of the ponds in Holbrook this week came across a monster turtle lying in a pool of water beside the pond. It weighed 25 pounds.

The two-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Porter of Stoughton, accidentally stuck a fork in his eye last Monday, and was taken to a hospital in Boston for treatment. It is feared that the sight of the eye may be lost.

Recount of Votes In Fifth District

A recount will be held Monday night of the votes cast at the Republican caucuses in Wards One, Two, and Three for Representative. This will be done by the Registrars of Voters, in compliance with petitions filed them and signed by ten voters from each of the wards.

Chapter Visitation.

A special convocation of St. Stephens chapter Royal Arch Masons, will be held next Wednesday evening, at which time it will receive a visitation from Alfred Howard Nash, district deputy grand high priest of the seventh capitular district, who will be accompanied by Charles F. Dudley as deputy grand captain of the host. The most excellent Master degree will be exemplified. Music will be furnished by the Bostonia quartet.

DU PONT STEPS DOWN AND OUT

Resignation of Director of Speakers' Bureau Is Accepted

HE ALSO LEAVES COMMITTEE

Hitchcock Assumes All Responsibility For Appointment Said to Have Been Objected to by Roosevelt and Taft--Connection With Powder Trust, Being Sued by the Government, Gave Rise to Criticism

New York, Sept. 26.—Following many rumors on the subject which were afloat here and in Washington, Chairman Hitchcock last night announced that General T. C. Dupont of Delaware, head of the bureau of campaign speakers of the national committee, had resigned as head of that bureau and also as a member of the executive committee of the national committee, and that his resignation has been accepted. Du Pont's letter of resignation is as follows:

T. COLEMAN DU PONT.

"Recently I have noticed various criticisms of my being the director of the speakers' bureau and a member of the executive committee, on account of my relation to the E. I. Du Pont-De Hemours Powder company, which is being sued by the government. The merits of that suit will be determined in the due course of judicial procedure.

"I have always been a loyal supporter of the Republican party, both in state and in nation, and I am not willing to be in any wise the means of bringing criticism upon the party organization, however unfounded I may deem such criticism to be.

"I therefore respectfully tender my resignation as a member of the executive committee and as director of the speakers' bureau, fully appreciating the great courtesy which I have uniformly received at the hands of yourself and my other associates."

Chairman Hitchcock said no successor to Du Pont had yet been selected, but that action in this matter would follow soon. No one had been suggested for the place, Hitchcock said, and he had no one in mind.

Being asked if President Roosevelt and Mr. Taft had not objected to Du Pont at the time of his appointment, Hitchcock replied indirectly that the chairman of the national committee always made such appointments and in this case he (Hitchcock) assumed all responsibility, as he assumed full responsibility for all other things done in this campaign.

Every member of the executive committee, except Du Pont, was present at the Manhattan hotel when the resignation of Du Pont was received, and it was discussed for some time by the committeemen in a general way.

After Hitchcock had given out the statement of Du Pont's resignation, he said substantially, referring to his manpected, when he took the chairmanship, to be criticised, and he was surprised that there had not been more criticism. He said he was well satisfied with the progress of the Republican campaign so far, adding that the plans now being worked out were for the most part such as had been originally made, those plans having met with general approval. From now on the campaign, according to Hitchcock, is to be aggressive along the whole line.

THE "CLEVELAND" LETTER

Doubt Expressed That It Was Written by Former President

New York, Sept. 26.—The Times today prints a letter which it received from S. S. Hastings, executor of the estate of the late Grover Cleveland, in which the writer questions the authenticity of a political article purporting to have been prepared and signed by the former president and which was published by The Times after his death.

The article in question, which The Times explains it had purchased of a magazine writer, made Mr. Cleveland compare Mr. Taft and Mr. Bryan as presidential candidates to the disadvantage of the latter.

The publication of the article over Cleveland's signature caused wide comment and not a little discussion as to its authenticity. Mrs. Cleveland at the time was quoted as saying: "I do not believe it is genuine."

The Times also publishes letters from the man from whom the article was purchased and early communications from Hastings in which the publishers were assured of the genuineness of the matter attributed to Mr. Cleveland. "In his letter written to The Times yesterday Hastings says in part:

"Since our interview of Sept. 22 * * * there has come to my knowledge 'evidence' which leaves in my mind no doubt of the fact that the said article was not written nor signed by Grover Cleveland and therefore is, in my opinion, no longer entitled to credit as his production. Mrs. Cleveland, in my judgment, was right regarding it when she positively declared to us since its publication, 'I do not believe it is genuine.'"

GRANITE STATE DEMOCRATS

Man Who Refused Honor Is Nominated For Governor

Concord, N. H., Sept. 26.—George H. Bingham of Manchester, one of the justices of the New Hampshire supreme court, was nominated by acclamation for governor at the Democratic state convention held in this city. This action was taken despite the fact that both a letter and a telegram from Bingham, refusing to permit his name to be considered, had been read to the delegates. It is not yet definitely known whether Bingham will accept the nomination.

The resolutions unanimously adopted by the convention endorse the national platform and candidates, and in state matters demand the abolition of the lobby and the free pass, revision of the tax laws, election of railroad commissioners by the people, direct primaries and "genuine local option."

The platform opposes "Republican extravagance, Boston and Maine railroad methods in politics and transportation, and its domination of the state," and denounces "the hypocrisy of the Republican party in nominating a Boston and Maine railroad candidate on a reform platform."

Iowa Pepublicans Get Together

Des Moines, Sept. 26.—Iowa embraced her opportunity yesterday, as did Wisconsin Thursday, to demonstrate that both the radical and the conservative elements of the Republican party are "regular" when it comes to the national ticket. Governor Cummins, radical leader and candidate for the senate, and Major Lacey, conservative opponent of the governor for senatorial honors, rode in the Taft special train from the time it entered the state early in the morning, and each participated in the two dozen meetings which the Taft special hurried into and away from in its flying swing from Clinton to Des Moines. The candidate took early opportunity to show his appreciation of the significance of his escort.

With his voice but a ragged ruffle of its former resonance, Taft virtually campaigned by hand throughout the day and the politicians who saw him do it declared him to be a "mixer" of great ability and effectiveness.

In size and enthusiasm yesterday's crowds even surpassed those encountered in Wisconsin. All of the candidate's efforts at speaking met appreciative approval.

Bryan Cross Examines Taft

Terre Haute, Ind., Sept. 26.—Addressing two large gatherings here, William J Bryan reiterated his charge that President Roosevelt was not giving him a square deal, but that the president was using federal officeholders as a Republican asset. He denounced the Republicans for their policies and pleaded with his audience to stand together and elect the state and national Democratic tickets.

Mr. Bryan, in his remarks on the labor question, the trusts, the tariff and publicity of campaign contributions, injected a new feature. He conducted an imaginary cross-examination of Mr. Taft on the issues of the campaign in which he placed Taft in the attitude of finally admitting, after a good deal of pressure, that the Republican platform was all wrong and unsatisfactory to him, and that the Democratic platform was right. The novelty of this method of argument created no little amusement in the crowd.

Sherman Fears Free Silver

New York, Sept. 26.—In an address before the Commercial Travelers' Sound Money league, James S. Sherman, Republican candidate for the vice presidency, made a spirited attack on Mr. Bryan's free silver record. He declared the country should not lull itself into fancied security by what he called the tactful silence of the Democratic presidential candidate on this subject in this campaign. He declared that "no one can say that the pied piper of Nebraska, if elected, would not wander off into the cloudy dreamland of his financial vagaries."

Democrats' Choice For Governor

Boston, Sept. 26.—Senator James H. Vahey of Watertown and John Golden of Fall River, a labor leader, were selected by the executive committee of the Democratic state committee to lead the Democratic party in the coming state campaign. The selection was made with but little contest, it is claimed. The committee also selected the officers and committees for the annual state convention to be held on Oct. 1.

Debs Headed For the East

Chicago, Sept. 26.—The "red special" bearing Eugene V. Debs, Socialistic candidate for president, has started on its eastern trip. The train arrived in Chicago after a 9000-mile trip through the west and northwest, and after a halt of four hours proceeded on what is said will be one of the longest campaign trips on record.

THE FRESHMAN'S COMPLIMENT.

A certain college president was entertaining a freshman at dinner, when the conversation turned upon football. To the student's surprise, the president displayed a thorough familiarity with the game, and proceeded to discuss it as earnestly as though it had been Greek or mathematics. Indeed, his treatment of the topic brought out so many points that the freshman had overlooked, that the youth was moved to remark to his hostess:

"Well, this talk with President Blank has showed me how true it is we never meet any one from whom we can't learn something!"

FREE TO YOU—MY SISTER

Free to You and Every Sister Suffering from Woman's Ailments.

I am a woman.
I know woman's sufferings.
I have found the cure.

I will mail, free of any charge, my home treatment with full instructions to any sufferer from woman's ailments. I want to tell all women about this cure—you, my reader, for yourself, your daughter, your mother, or your sister. I want to tell you how to cure yourselves at home without the help of a doctor. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any doctor. I know that my home treatment is a safe and sure cure for Leucorrhoea or Whitish discharges, Ulceration, Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Uterine or Ovarian Tumors or Growths; also pains in the head, back and bowels, bearing down feelings, nervousnnss, creeping feeling up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weariness, kidney and bladder troubles where caused by weaknesses peculiar to our sex.

I want to send you a complete ten day's treatment entirely free to prove to you that you can cure yourself at home, easily, quickly and surely. Remember, that it will cost you nothing to give the treatment a complete trial; and if you should wish to continue, it will cost you only about 12 cents a week, or less than two cents a day. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. Just send me your name and address, tell me how you suffer if you wish, and I will send you the treatment for your case, entirely free, in plain wrapper, by return mail. I will also send you free of cost, my book—"WOMAN'S OWN MEDICAL ADVISER" with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer, and how they can easily cure themselves at home. Every woman should have it, and learn to think for herself. Then when the doctor says—"You must have an operation," you can decide for yourself. Thousands of women have cured themselves with my home remedy. It cures all old or young. To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain a simple home treatment which speedily and effectually cures Leucorrhoea, Green Sickness and Painful or Irregular Menstruation in Young Ladies. Plumpness and health always results from its use.

Wherever you live, I can refer you to ladies of your own locality who know and will gladly tell any sufferer that this Home Treatment really cures all women's diseases, and makes women well strong, plump and robust. Just send me your address, and the free ten day's treatment is yours also the book. Write today, as you may not see this offer again. Address

TREASURER HASKELL OUT

Resigns His Position In National Democratic Committee

REPEATS HIS FORMER DENIALS

Says He Never Had Anything to Do With Standard Oil Company, but Admits That Resignation Is Direct Result of Charges Made by Roosevelt and Hearst--Desires to Relieve His Party of Embarrassment

Chicago, Sept. 26.—Governor Charles N. Haskell last midnight resigned as treasurer of the Democratic national committee. His resignation was announced by himself three hours after his arrival in Chicago from Guthrie, Okla., and after he had conferred with officers of the Democratic national headquarters.

In giving out his decision Haskell, in response to a question, declared that he did not desire to be responsible for any embarrassment which might result to the Democratic party by retaining the office of treasurer.

That his resignation is the direct result of the charges made against him by William R. Hearst and President Roosevelt Haskell also admitted. At the same time he did not by his resignation intend to admit that any of the charges were true.

When Mr. Haskell arrived in Chicago at 9 o'clock last night he declared that he had not then resigned, did not intend to resign and that Mr. Bryan had not asked him to resign. He then went from the station to Democratic headquarters at the Auditorium Annex. He was closeted for a long time with National Committeeman Wade of Iowa and Josephus Daniels, chairman of the Democratic press committee.

It was midnight when Mr. Haskell reappeared from the room. He had in his hands a written resignation addressed to National Chairman Mack.

In answer to a series of questions as to his relation to the Citizens' Alliance, said to have been organized at Muskogee, Okla., to fight the local labor unions, Haskell denied that the Alliance was ever organized. In reply to questions concerning the Standard Oil company, he repeated his former denials of ever having had anything to do with that company.

Mr. Bryan is due to arrive in Chicago today. Whether he and Haskell will meet is not officially stated at Democratic headquarters. Bryan is scheduled to remain here for only two hours before he is to leave for Madison, Wis.

POPULACE FRENZIED BY SUFFERINGS

Plague Stricken and Starving People Attack Troops

Lisbon, Sept. 26.—There has been a resumption in the Azore islands of the serious rioting that broke out about ten days ago as a result of the anger of the population aroused by the failure of the local authorities to take preventive measures against the bubonic plague.

The people of Horta, on the Island of Fayal, which is isolated because of the plague, are dying of hunger, and when the governor, at the head of a platoon of troops, attempted to prevent the landing of a boat from Pico island with supplies, the maddened populace, frenzied by their hunger and sufferings, attacked the troops with all sorts of weapons. Many persons on both sides were injured. The government finally yielded and there was a scene of wild revelry when the supplies finally reached the excited people.

The plague on the island is increasing in intensity and heartrending tales are told of the misery, privation and death.

Disastrous Wreck In Montana

Livingston, Mont., Sept. 26.—Plowing through a snowstorm, an east-bound passenger train running over the Northern Pacific railroad crashed head-on into a freight train at Young's Point, where the trains were to pass. In the demolition that resulted a score of lives were crushed out and a score of persons were injured, several probably fatally. The freight flagman failed to signal the passenger train in time to prevent the collision, it is said, because of the blinding snow.

Fatal Injuries to Chauffeur

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 26.—Wilfrid J. Adams, aged 24, is dead as the result of an automobile accident in Northboro. Adams, who is a chauffeur, was driving his car behind a carriage and, in attempting to pass, skidded into the gutter, the car turning turtle and pinning him beneath. His skull was fractured and he received multiple injuries.

Trying to Raise the Yankee

Newport, R. I., Sept. 26.—The naval collier Lebanon arrived from New York last night and joined the fleet of wrecking vessels about the cruiser Yankee. It is understood that the work of recovering the batteries of the Yankee will be begun at once to assist in raising her clear of the ledge on which she struck at high tide during a fog.

NURSERY IN A CHURCH.

Fathers and Mothers of Congregation Delighted With Innovation.

As Mrs. William Marlborough sat in a big rocking chair in the northeast corner of the new gallery of the Centenary Methodist Episcopal church in Syracuse, N. Y., on a recent Sunday morning listening to the sermon she said, "This is the first time I ever had any comfort in church." The remark was prompted by the fact that her little Dorothy was reposing comfortably on a soft couch in a room adjoining, with a dainty white capped and white aproned maid in attendance and plenty of toys within reach in case she should want them.

There were other babies, too, and other mothers sat in the gallery within call in case of need, for the Centenary church wants the mothers of the congregation to be able to come to church in peace, and to that end a nursery for the babies was opened recently.

The nursery is sound proof and has accommodations at present for about eight babies. There is a big couch where half a dozen good sized infants can sleep at once and a crib where two more can be stowed away. There are a supply of playthings and a well equipped medicine cabinet.

The idea originated with the pastor of the church, the Rev. Ernest Lynn Waldorf, and he invites all mothers with small children to make use of the nursery whether members of the congregation or not.

After service on the first Sunday of the new regime the fathers fairly bubbled over with enthusiasm. Heretofore they had to share with the mothers the responsibility of taking care of the baby at church if they came to church at all, and they declared that it took more virtue out of them than any preacher could ever put back. They believe now that the fathers and mothers of little children will have a chance to get some religion.

SURGERY BY ELECTRICITY.

Noiseless Spark From Knife Point Said to Excel Scalpel.

Surgery by electricity is what is alleged to be possible with a remarkable electric knife just devised by a firm of medical instrument manufacturers in Berlin. The knife is now undergoing exhaustive trials at the hands of Professor Bier, the head of the university surgical clinic, with the view of demonstrating its efficacy.

It is claimed for it that operations can be performed more quickly and that the healing process is more rapid than is the case where the ordinary scalpel has been used.

To one end of a six or eight inch glass rod, through the center of which passes a conducting wire, is fastened the blade without a cutting edge of a form similar to that of the commonly used surgical knives or like the simple probe. A high frequency current is employed, and when this is turned on a noiseless spark half an inch long appears from the point of the knife or probe. The spark incises the soft tissues with the same ease as a hot knife goes through butter without any apparent cauterization, but Professor Bier's experiments have so far shown that a more profuse hemorrhage ensues than by the use of the common knife.

It is further claimed for the instrument that it sterilizes as it cuts, requires no sharpening and can be easily cleaned.

THUMB PRINTS ON PASSES.

Jacob Shubert's Scheme to Keep the Unprivileged Out of Theaters.

J. J. Shubert of Sam S. & Lee Shubert has had an imprint of his right thumb made. Presently that thumb mark will appear on the passes to the Shubert productions, and duplicates will be posted in the firm's box offices of their theaters. Then when anybody presents a pass the box office man will compare the two portraits of Mr. Shubert's thumb and make sure they are alike.

Mr. Shubert says New York city is overrun with men who forge passes and sell them as genuine to trustful theater goers. He expects that the adoption of the thumb mark system used by the police in identifying criminals will help to kill the traffic.

Joke on Would Be Joker.

In the international cricket match between the United States and Canada at the Germantown (Pa.) Cricket club recently one of the players who were numbered among the visitors wore a large brimmed straw hat. Bat in hand, he sauntered from the clubhouse, preparing to go on the field ready to try for a good stand before the wickets. One of the spectators, around whom was gathered a bevy of young girls who were discussing everything but cricket, espied the noble figure walking out to the crease and thought he would perpetrate a little joke for the amusement of his girl friends. "Ah, here he comes," he said, "to take his innings! See me call him down, girls." Shouting at the top of his voice, the would be joker said, "I say, you, haven't you stolen the donkey's bedding?" "Yes," came back the prompt reply in a still louder voice. "But don't worry, my lad. You can have it back when I'm out!"

Cultivated Huckleberries.

After long experimenting John Niblet, a farmer near Delmar, Del., has succeeded in raising a stand of cultivated huckleberries. This is the first time that the berries have been cultivated at Delmar, but they are fully worth the trouble, as they are three times the size of the wild fruit. Juicier pies are now in order.

A Traceless Poison

[Original.]

Having been summoned as an expert in chemistry in the Nolan case, I concluded my testimony with the remark, "A person desiring to kill another would be more likely to use a poison that would leave no trace," whereupon the prosecuting attorney asked me if there was such a poison. I having replied that there was, he asked me to name it. The judge forbade me to do so. The prosecutor insisted, but the judge was immovable. He would not permit me to name publicly a poison that would leave no trace.

Immediately after my testimony was published I was deluged with letters inquiring the name of the poison that left no trace. Most of them doubtless came from idle curiosity, but I was astonished at the number of those which showed plainly, from the pains the writers took to conceal their identity, that they were written for an evil purpose.

One day I received a call from a woman who asked for the secret. She said she had made a bet with her brother, who was a scientist, of $1,000 that there was such a poison, and she desired to prove it to him by trying it on a dog. If I would give her the name or the poison and she won she would give me half the amount.

I questioned her, then, going into another room, returned with a tiny pill, which I gave her, saying that if it killed the dog and left no trace she might refer her brother to me for evidence that she had won the bet. When she left I sent a housemaid to follow her, who brought me her address. Sending for a detective, I directed him to establish some sort of a watch on the house where she lived, to shadow her when she went out and report to me any case of illness that might occur to any one with whom she might be connected.

In a few days my man reported that the lady's husband had died suddenly. It had been given out that he had suffered an apoplectic stroke and had not lived an hour after.

I was thunderstruck. I alone knew the nature of the pill I had given the woman, and of course she would keep the secret. Nevertheless I was very much troubled at the result. I directed the detective to keep her under strict surveillance. Later he reported to me that she had visited the office of a life insurance company. Upon inquiry he had learned that her husband had been insured for $50,000. I hurried to the insurance office, called on the president and advised him before paying the claim to make sure that there was no trickery connected with it. But I would answer no questions.

The next I heard of the case was that upon examination of the body—exhumed for the purpose—it was discovered that it was the remains of the brother of the man insured. The insured himself had disappeared. Payment was refused, and the woman was arrested on a charge of fraud, to which was added a charge of murder.

The body of the deceased was given over to physicians with a view to discovering if the man had died a natural death. One reported apoplexy as the cause, another heart trouble and another kidney disease. Three different experts reported three different poisons found in the body. There was opium, arsenic and one other, the name of which I have forgotten. I was summoned as a witness for the prosecution and produced a sensation by refusing to testify on the ground of self incrimination.

Afterward I consented to give my evidence. I informed the court of the woman's visit to me, of her request for a poison that would leave no trace and the use she proposed to make of it. Then I told them that I had given her the pill. At this point a technical objection was interposed by the defendant's counsel, and the judge sustained him. I was forbidden to tell what was in the pill, the reason being that it had not been proved that the pill had been used. This left me in a very unfortunate position.

After a long trial the woman was acquitted of the charge of murder, and the charge of fraud was never pressed. The prosecution had failed to prove she knew that the man who was buried was her husband's brother or that she had poisoned him. Her counsel contrived to throw all the blame on her husband, who had disappeared.

After her acquittal the woman came to see me. She was curious to know if I had been deceived by her story about the bet and if I had really given her a traceless pill. Before replying I asked her to explain the case to me, and, after a solemn promise on my part to keep her secret, she did so.

Her husband's life was largely insured, and since they were an ill mated couple she resolved to poison him. Just as she was about to give him the pill I had furnished her her husband's brother came to the house for a visit. His health had been broken down by excesses, especially drugs that he had taken in large quantities. While at their house he suddenly died, probably of heart failure. The woman proposed to her husband that he disappear and his brother, who resembled him closely, be buried in his stead. This was done.

I told her she would find an explanation of my part in the matter in the paper the next morning.

My explanation recited my experiences as to a traceless poison and my desire to make a test case. The whole filled two columns, at the end of which I gave the contents of the pill I had given the woman.

It was made of bread.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

Who is Lady Betty?

Mrs. Doherty formerly of Wollaston Park is visiting Mrs. Frank Knowlton.

Rev. A. R. Atwood preaches to-morrow at the United Presbyterian church, Brockton.

Frank Knowlton of Beach street, Wollaston Park, left Thursday for Australia, in the interest of the United Shoe Machinery Co.

Miss Irene M. Bradbury of Quincy, a graduate of the class '08 at Woodward Institute, has accepted a position as teacher at Zoar, Mass.

The tuberculosis committee of the Quincy Women's club is to meet at the club house at ten o'clock Monday morning to arrange for the Tuberculosis exhibit at City Hall the last of October.

The Mt. Olive Rebekah lodge, I. O. O. F., of Canton, opened its social season Thursday night, with a dance in the Town hall. There was a large attendance, and guests were present from Boston, Hyde Park, Dedham and other surrounding towns.

On Tuesday and Wednesday evenings next, Prof. David Nyvall will preach and lecture at the Swedish Congregational church. The subject of the lecture will be "Is the Bible a book for the young?" Professor Nyvall is second to no Swedish lecturer.

Miss Corlew will open her class in dancing at Wollaston on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 3, at 3 o'clock. The matrons are Mrs. Clinton Jones, Mrs. Eugene H. Sprague, Mrs. William G. Curtis and Mrs. Walter E. Simmons, Jr. Applications may be made to the matrons.

Patrons at the public library appreciate the new hours, the library being open every day from one until eight; Wednesdays from ten until eight, and Saturdays from ten until nine. The noon hour opening two days a week will accommodate a great many who have heretofore been unable to enjoy the privileges of the library.

Mrs. Lucy French, aged 95 years, widow of Bela French, died at her home, 925 Commercial street East Weymouth, yesterday morning. She was a native of Weymouth and lived there with her husband for 65 years. The funeral will take place at her home at 2.30 Sunday afternoon, but in accordance with her request the burial will take place next day.

Who is Lady Betty?

—The following advertisement appeared the other day in an English paper: Wanted—Gentleman desires two plainly furnished rooms, with board and attendance, in country village, for wife who is subject to fits of temper.

—In Belgium severe penalties are imposed on persons who have the right to vote, but do not avail themselves of it.

Lady Betty is sure to captivate the men of Quincy, as well as the ladies. The Daily Ledger will introduce her next Tuesday.

Athletic Notes Of Local Interest

There is going to be good game in Holbrook, today when the old time Holbrook A. A., champion semi-professional team of 25 years, will play the present day defenders of the name. This game will be of special interest to Quincy people, because our popular police chief, Frank Burrell will catch for the old "champs." Frank used to be a star performer behind the bat, and will try his hand again today.

Somerville High and Everett High clash on the gridiron today at Somerville. As Everett comes to Quincy, next Tuesday, it is a good chance to get a line on what they can do. Quincy also plays Somerville later in the season.

Dedham High and Cambridge Latin meet today at Dedham. This game will be interesting to Quincy High football fans, because both teams come here to play next month.

The Yannigan bowling team of Houghs Neck went to Brockton on Wednesday night to bowl the Walkover team of that place. It was a return match, the Walkovers having been to the Neck about two weeks ago. In the first match the Yannigans were victorious, but Wednesday night the Shoe City boys came out ahead. It was a close and exciting match, the Yannigan losing three straight strings. Even at that, in the totals there was only 16 pins difference. This gives some idea of the closeness of the match. A special car was chartered for the occasion and about 50 people accompanied the team.

At the Rochester, N. H., fair yesterday, the Hancock hand engine of Brockton won first place in the play-out, sending a stream 194 ft., 6 in.

Harry J. Histen, champion shot-putter of the Y. M. C. A., has entered this event at the Brockton Fair games. Harry will also try his luck in the broad jump.

Vincent Sheehy of Weymouth is captain of the Tufts foot-ball eleven this fall, and is playing his usual brilliant game. Local followers of athletics will remember this dashing player, as the star half-back of the Weymouth High team a few years ago.

—Mrs. Clarence McKay, who has done so much for the schools of Roslyn, Long Island, has just offered two prizes of $25 for the best essays in favor of woman suffrage written by the pupils in the different classes.

The Division Of Ward Five

The Registrars of Voters met in Wollaston last evening and added 79 names to the voting lists. Of this number, 75 were from Ward Five and four from Ward Six. This registration brings the total number of registered voters on the Ward Five lists up to 954.

This is the only ward in the city that has not been divided into precincts. Up to the present time the voters have vigorously opposed dividing the wards into precincts, and it has never been done. The result is that on election nights this ward is the last to be heard from, and it is always very late in making returns.

Under the law when the ward has 1000 voters it must be divided into divide the ward this year, it is sure dividethe ward this year, it is sure to come next year.

Who is Lady Betty?

Fast Cape Flyers To Race for Purse

As announced in a previous issue of the Daily Ledger, the yachts Arawak, Busy Bee and Iris have each won a championship this year. There is a proposition on foot for a race between the Dartwell and these three boats, to see which is the best boat. The plan is for each of the boats to contribute $25, making a purse of $100, the winner to take the whole purse. While the proposition is to bring these four yachts together, any class D boats that would put up its $25 would be welcomed.

The Arawak, Busy Bee, Iris and Dartwell are doubtless the fastest boats of the D class in Massachusetts waters, and a race between them would be interesting. If the race is to be held, it is planned to hold it this fall, probably over the Quincy Yacht club course.

Lady Betty is sure to captivate the men of Quincy, as well as the ladies. The Daily Ledger will introduce her next Tuesday.

Lady Betty will come to Quincy next Tuesday.

The Business Men's Carnival

The stage of Music Hall will present a scene whose like was never before witnessed on its boards on Friday and Saturday evenings.

On the stage those nights will be over two hundred young women and men, comprising our city's best local talent, who in a number of amusing vaudeville turns, will represent the prominent business interests of our city. There will be clever Irish, German and Jewish comedians in laughter provoking character specialties, in which the latest popular songs will be introduced. The characters will range from the printer's devil to the demure little maid with her sewing. The sketches are full of dramatic scenes, and amusing situations.

Much clever local coloring will be diffused throughout the different numbers.

Don't fail to be there promptly at 8 o'clock as the March of the Fairies which forms the opening number composed of forty-eight girls, costumed as fairies is in itself well worth the price of admission. Reserved seats.

Ideal Sunday.

Sunday was a rare day for the latter part of September. It started in warm in the early morning, and by noon had become sultry, like a mid summer day. Thousands of people, realizing that perhaps this would be the last mild weather day of the season, took advantage of it for one more outing. Extra cars were run on all lines of the street railway and it was noticed that even then there were few vacant seats. The travel was heavy until late in the evening.

SHIPYARD WATER

The Taxpayers Getting New Light Every Day on Water Question

The statement of Mayor Shea, in relation to the water furnished the Fore River Co., published in Saturday's Daily Ledger, furnished some additional information which, for some reason, the general public has been kept in the dark.

While no one questions the honesty of the Fore River Co., it would have been well if the hydrant from which the water for ballast was taken, had been metered long before.

According to the statement of Mayor Shea, there had been an arrangement with the Fore River company made by some previous administration, whereby they were to take water from a hydrant for ballast purposes. The company knew the capacity of the compartments filled with water, and at the end of each month the amounts used were furnished the city and later when a bill was rendered it was paid.

These were evidently some of the facts that Councilman Abele was seeking when he asked for certain information from the Commissioner about the Fore River water agreement last April. At that time he was furnished with a statement which did and did not answer the questions asked.

One thing is sure however, that the Fore River Co. have been paying eight cents for their water. The City Officials claim this costs the city four and one half cents. Councilman Abele claims the cost to be twelve cents. In making up his figures Councilman Abele takes all the items that enter into the water question such as loans, interest, maintenance, leakage, Metropolitan assessments, etc., claiming that they all are a part of the expense of the department, and in figuring out the cost of water they should be taken into consideration.

Prisoner Had An Open Razor

Promptness on the part of Inspector Goodhue, probably saved him from being slashed with a razor in the hands of Edward Collins Saturday night.

Collins was under arrest, and was being taken to Quincy. While in the South Terminal, Inspector Goodhue noticed that he was holding his right hand under the back of his coat. Asked what he had in his hand, Collins replied nothing. A quick movement on the part of the officer brought the hand to light, and in it was an open razor. It required the efforts of two men to get it away from him. It is thought that Collins intended to use the razor on the officer.

Collins was arrested as he was about to take the boat for Bangor, Maine, for the larceny of two watches, two chains and a quantity of underwear from James Brady at the boarding house at 4 Watson terrace, Quincy Point. It is alleged that Collins went into Brady's room during the noon hour Saturday.

The loss was soon discovered and reported to the police. Collins who had been working at the shipyard had been talking of going to Bangor, and Inspector Goodhue was sent in to watch the boat. Part of the property stolen was found in Collin's possession. He was arraigned in court.

Weymouth Fair Has Record Crowd

The Weymouth Fair came to a close Saturday, and there was a record breaking crowd in attendance; Saturday half-holiday, good weather, and first class program attracting crowds from everywhere.

It was horse Saturday, and an unexpected feature was the presence of Charles Taylor, 102 years old, the oldest active reinsman in the United States. He gave two exhibitions of driving, sitting behind horses that he had never seen before, and received a great ovation.

The baseball games kept the crowd interested, Thayer Academy beating the Riversides of South Weymouth 9-8, and Dewey trimming Rockland 6-0, in the Old Colony league series.

In a relay race between Franklin High and Weymouth High, the former won by 50 yards.

The closing feature of the day was a balloon ascension with a double parachute drop.

The large attendance of the three days made the fair a financial success.

Bitten By Dog.

A son of W. H. Doble on Elm street was bitten last week by a French bull dog belonging on the same street. The peculiar actions of the dog caused the owner to send for Dr. Abele, who pronounced it rabid. The State House was notified, and an expert sent, who confirmed the diagnosis. The head was sent to Harvard College and they reported the dog rabid. The Doble boy is now taking the Pasteur treatment. What has happened to that dog catcher who was reported doing such good work at Atlantic a few months ago?

All children can obtain a free picture of Lady Betty by calling at the the Daily Ledger office on Tuesday.

—Lieut. Robert E. Belcher of the signal corps has been dismissed from the service. He had charge of the funds to pay the men on duty at the Chelsea fire and it is alleged he retained them for his own use. He was tried by court-martial.

Lady Betty will come to Quincy next Tuesday.

OVER SEVEN THOUSAND DEAD

Awful Results of Asiatic Cholera Epidemic In Russia

DISEASE IS NOW DECREASING

Improvement During Last Few Days Due to Betterment of Sanitary Conditions--Death Rate Between Thirty and Thirty-Five Percent--Ignorance and Superstition Increase Difficulties of Situation

St. Petersburg, Sept. 28.—Since the beginning of the epidemic there have been 15,683 cases of Asiatic cholera reported in Russia and 7102 deaths. In St. Petersburg alone, since the presence of the disease was officially admitted on Sept. 8, there have been 4931 cases and 1875 deaths reported.

The figures with reference to the invasion of the city by the disease cannot be relied upon as, on a number of occasions, private but trustworthy statistics showed the number of cases and deaths in a single day to be far in excess of that announced by the authorities.

The efforts of Premier Stolypin and some of the higher government officials, however, which recently have been directed towards arousing the municipal authorities to action, have resulted in appreciable betterment of the sanitary conditions and a consequent decrease in the disease. For the twenty-four hours ending at noon yesterday the number of new cases in the city was 268 and the number of deaths 143, as compared with 312 new cases and 153 deaths for the previous twenty-four hours and 357 cases and 162 deaths between Thursday noon and Friday noon.

The people have taken heart because of this improvement, and the health officers and scores of doctors attached to the cholera corps have redoubled their efforts toward the eradication of the disease.

Notwithstanding the fact that since the beginning of the epidemic the cases multiplied at an alarming rate, the health officials have been encouraged because of the comparatively low death rate. In 1892, when the cholera carried off thousands in Russia, the death rate reached 50 percent. The death rate in the present epidemic has been between 30 and 35 percent, and since the improvement in sanitary conditions began the particularly virulent type of the disease has begun to disappear.

Difficulty has been experienced in dealing with the workmen of St. Petersburg, who, with their families, comprise three-fifths of the population, and who are both unable and unwilling to comply with the sanitary precautions. The ignorance of the lower orders and the superstition of all classes greatly increase the difficulties of the situation.

During the early stages of the epidemic few could be prevailed upon to undergo preventive innoculation, which is provided free of charge, but latterly the authorities have made innoculation, as far as possible, compulsory in some quarters of the city.

Cholera Situation at Manila

Manila, Sept. 28.—There were fourteen new cases of cholera and three deaths reported for the twenty-four hours ended at 8 o'clock this morning. A serious situation is caused by the small supply of disinfectants. The bureau of sciences is experimenting with electricity and sea water to produce chlorine for use until new supplies of disinfectants arrive.

Rushing Work of Stripping

Newport, R. I., Sept. 28.—The work of stripping the cruiser Yankee, which went ashore on the Spindle last Wednesday morning, continues, the sea remaining smooth and aiding materially in the work. Five hundred men, complete wrecking outfits from Boston and from New York, two naval colliers, three naval tugs, two submarine tenders and torpedo boats from the third flotilla are all engaged, in addition to several lighters, in stripping the Yankee. Searchlights have been used nights and days on account of the fog.

Boy Killed In Automobile Wreck

Lexington, Mass., Sept. 28.—Turning out to avoid a collision with a boy on a bicycle, an automobile containing five people ran against the side of an embankment in this town and was overturned. Samuel Parks, 16 years old, was pinned under the machine and instantly killed, and Victor Van Zant, the chauffeur, suffered the fracture of several ribs, while all the other members of the party were badly bruised.

Slain Baby Left In Church

Northampton, Mass., Sept. 28.—The body of an infant female child, several days old, which had been killed, probably by suffocation, was discovered wrapped in newspapers in a pew in St. Mary's Catholic church by the assistant pastor, Rev. Father Connor, two hours after the evening services had closed. There seems no identity to the person who left the body in the church.

Our Warships at Samoa

Apia, Samoa, via Auckland, N. Z., Sept. 28.—Several of the vessels of the American Pacific fleet have arrived here, the residents of Apia giving the Americans a hearty greeting. The first day was devoted to official visits and native festivities. Boatloads of fruit were sent out to the warships for distribution among the men.

DETECTING A DETECTIVE.

[Copyright, 1907, by J. G. Reed.]

Detective Quirk of police headquarters was a good man. With outsiders that meant that he was honest and faithful and would not betray his trust. With his chief it meant that he did not have to watch him quite so closely as he did the others of his staff. Mr. Quirk had never read the stories by Gaboriau, De Boisgobey or Vidocq. Romance had nothing to do with his taking up detective work. He was not down on crime and criminals and hunting bad men into prison from any feeling of duty toward the law.

Mr. Quirk realized that as a detective he had a good thing in his grasp. There was a field open to him that is open to no other man outside the profession. It was for him to work that field. Detectives have sold themselves out for a few hundred or a few thousand dollars. In Mr. Quirk's opinion such men were asses and had mistaken their vocation. He sighed to be rich, but he didn't propose to blunder about it. He must first get a standing with his superiors and the public. He worked for five years to accomplish this. A dozen traps were set for him, but he escaped them all by being incorruptible. He worked a case for all it was worth, and he never let up or compromised. If he caught a broker in a gambling house he had no more mercy on him than the thief he caught stealing lead pipe. The burglar who offered him $1,000 to look the other way for a moment fared as did the politician who offered him a like sum to "let up" in court. His fellow detectives pocketed their "divvies" and called him a fool, and his chief looked over his reports and almost believed that he had found a subordinate deserving of a medal.

The day came when Mr. Quirk realized that he had established his reputation and that he could pull off his scheme with safety. He had it in view for a year. He had several times been called in by the president of the —— National bank to straighten out crooked things and had thus become well acquainted with the bank messenger, old Folsom. Folsom was sixty years old. He walked with a hobble. He had rheumatism, and old age had weakened him. Yet the bank kept him, and seemingly by some act of Providence he had never been attacked by the class always looking for a good thing. In making his rounds he sometimes carried $500,000 in checks. In returning to the bank he sometimes brought $200,000 in cash with him. Mr. Quirk fully realized what an easy thing it was, but he uttered no word of warning. He was waiting to establish his reputation.

After calling at the last bank on his route old Folsom always took a short cut through an alley to reach his own institution. It wasn't an alley so much as it was a passageway. It was only six feet in width and used by pedestrians only. At any moment from 10 o'clock in the morning till 3 in the afternoon you could look up or down the alley and count at least twenty pedestrians coming or going. There were doors opening into the rear of office buildings, and there was one door opening into an empty building that had formerly been a rag shop. One afternoon Folsom failed to return to the bank at his usual hour. When half an hour had passed, an alarm was given. Men were found who had seen him in the alley, but an alarm of fire was on at the time, and there were much excitement and confusion. At 10 o'clock that night Folsom was found in the old rag shop. He had received a severe blow on the head and was tied and gagged. Something like $130,000 in cash had been taken from his satchel. It was Mr. Quirk who was given the case, and it was Mr. Quirk who found the old man after a long hunt.

It was four days before Folsom regained consciousness and told his story. There was very little to tell. He had backed up against the door to stand for a moment and look for the fire, and the door had been opened, he had been drawn in, and then followed the blow on the head and darkness. He had not even seen his assailant. He was very grateful to Mr. Quirk, and he felt the fullest confidence in him, and yet there was a clew that he suppressed. Why he did he could not have told himself. As he fell he must have grasped the man's coat and torn off a button, for there was the button clinched tightly in his hand. They took it from him at the hospital and, strangely enough, said nothing about it until two weeks later when he was discharged. Then it was among his things. Folsom could not make it out at first. It had the name of a tailor on it, and he had never patronized the man. He believed he had seen buttons like that on a business suit, and it came to him after that the suit belonged to Mr. Quirk. The tailor corroborated him.

Mr. Folsom was old, but he did not lack wit and acumen. He set himself to work, and inside of a fortnight he found men who had noticed the detective in the alley on the day he was assaulted. In the dust on the floor he found tracks and measured them. He had been bound with new rope. He discovered who had purchased it and where. As a matter of fact, he worked up a good case against Mr. Quirk and had him arrested, and ten hours later the missing money was found under the floor of the latter's room. He would not confess, but the jury found him guilty, and he got a sentence of twelve years and died after serving half of it. He had planned for years only to be caught by a man from whom he thought he had nothing whatever to fear.

FOREST FIRES AND DROUGHT

An Unprecedented Situation In Portions of Three States

LOSS OF MILLIONS OF DOLLARS

Majority of Population of Afflicted Zone Suffering From Throat Affections and Serious Epidemic Is Feared--Thousands of Men Out of Employment Because of Enforced Suspension of Industries

Pittsburg, Sept. 28.—With losses aggregating several million dollars from forest fires and heavy damage to crops and live stock, the reported loss of a number of lives due to fighting timber conflagrations, the enforced idleness of thousands of workmen owing to the suspension of manufacturing establishments because of lack of water, the health authorities anticipating a serious epidemic of contagious diseases and many small streams dried up and practically obliterated, the drouth of 1908, which has held western Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio and West Virginia in its grasp for more than two months, remains unbroken, each day gradually increasing the seriousness of the unprecedented situation.

Aside from the property loss, probably the most serious phase of the situation is the threatened disease epidemic. A majority of the population of the afflicted zone are now suffering from throat affections caused by the great accumulation of dust and heavy clouds of smoke. It is feared that when rain does come it will wash great amounts of filth into the already stagnant streams with the result that disease, especially typhoid fever, will become epidemic.

Next in importance comes the enforced suspension of numerous industries and the throwing out of employment of thousands of workmen, many of whom had just returned to work, following the recent depression. The low stage of the rivers has caused a congestion of much coal in this vicinity, and with all available barges tied up, with nearly 20,000,000 bushels in the Pittsburg harbor, the river coal mines have been compelled to shut down for the want of shipping facilities. There are 15,000 miners employed in river mines along the Monongahela valley.

In West Virginia lumber plants, glass factories and iron and steel mills, located along the rivers, are closed on account of insufficient water. In eastern Ohio the same conditions prevail, and it is feared the great iron and steel mills at Youngstown, O., employing over 20,000 men, will have to suspend operations unless the drouth is speedily broken.

In all sections of the zone prayers are offered up daily and these prayers will continue until they are answered with rain.

Forest Fires Beyond Control

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 28.—The forest fires in the Adirondacks, fanned by a strong south wind which prevailed Saturday night and yesterday, are now beyond control of the hundreds of men who have been fighting them, and according to reports received here large areas are being swept by the flames and several small villages and camps are being wiped out.

A relief train left this city last night with 100 men prepared to fight as long as their services are required. A relief train also left Herkimer, and unless rain intervenes much more assistance will be necessary.

Rain Quenches Forest Fires

Milwaukee, Sept. 28.—Dispatches report that forest fires which have been raging in upper Michigan and northern Wisconsin for some time were quenched by heavy rains Saturday night and Sunday.

New Option Law In Indiana

Indianapolis, Sept. 28.—Governor Hanly has signed the Cox county option bill, which passed the house Saturday by a vote of 55 to 45. The measure provides that upon 20 percent of the voting population signifying their desire, a special election shall be held to decide whether that county shall have saloons or not. If it is decided the county shall be "dry" no change can be made for two years, after which time another election can be had.

Murder and Suicide In Camp

Manila, Sept. 28.—A tragedy occurred at Camp Jessman Saturday night, resulting in the death of Lieutenant Edward J. Bloom of the Fourth Infantry and Private Suttles of the same regiment. Suttles for some reason shot Bloom and then cut his own throat. Suttles died immediately, but Bloom lingered until Sunday night.

Thrown From Car Into River

Concord, Mass., Sept. 28.—Walter White, aged 50, a trolley car conductor, was on the running board of his car when he collided with a telegraph pole and was thrown off as the car was crossing the Sudbury river bridge. He fell into the river and was drowned before assistance could reach him.

The Weather Forecast

INVESTIGATE and ECONOMIZE.

NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.

On and after September 16, we have decided

TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE

as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods

AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills over due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every day. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and take them with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Now think this proposition over, and we feel confident that you can see it just the way that we do.

NEW THAW PROSECUTOR

Famous Case Is Now Outside the Jurisdiction of Jerome

White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Harry K. Thaw's plea for a jury trial to determine his present mental condition was denied by Justice Mills in the supreme court. At the same time, however, Mills informed counsel in the case that on Oct. 5 next he would give Thaw a summary hearing under the application and that in the meantime the prisoner will be held in the county jail here.

One of the interesting developments of the day was the formal withdrawal from the Thaw case of District Attorney Jerome of New York county, who conducted the prosecution of Thaw at both trials and who has had an active part in the efforts to prevent Thaw obtaining his freedom since he was committed to the asylum for the criminal insane at Matteawan.

Jerome's announcement of his withdrawal was made after Mills had declined to direct transfer of the hearings from White Plains to New York. Jerome said he did not feel justified in incurring any more expense to his office in connection with the case outside of his own county. However, he offered his personal assistance to District Attorney Winslow of Westchester county, who now will assume the conduct of the case against Thaw.

WON THE CONTEST BY A LARGE MARGIN

Woodchopper Shows What Can Be Done In a Single Day

Windsor, Vt., Sept. 28.—The boast of Maxwell Evarts, a loyal son of Vermont, at a dinner in Washington, that the old Green Mountain state possessed a woodchopper who could go out into the woods, cut down, chop up, split and pile five cords of wood between sunrise and sunset, and which he backed by liberal wagers, was made good in the woods at the north of this town, when Edward Moot of Weathersfield not only chopped, cut up, split and piled his five cords, but did it in an hour and a half less than the required time, had an eighth of a cord over in his pile and half a cord of chopped and split wood on the ground.

The novel contest was witnessed by a notable gathering of distinguished men whom Evarts had brought from Washington, New York and Boston, and by about 1000 residents of the state, who had gathered to encourage and applaud the prowess of the state champion.

Wagers aggregating several thousand dollars were placed on the contest. It is claimed, so assured was Evarts that his state possessed a man capable of performing the task he claimed. Evarts' wager was made with Samuel G. Blythe of New York, assistant secretary of the United States treasury, and A. B. Kittredge of South Dakota, who were both present at the contest. That there were a number of other wagers among the members of the party was not denied, while Moot, besides receiving $100 for his day's work from Evarts, won $100 on one side wager and it is understood netted considerable more on other bets.

Was Posted on Finance

Lynn, Mass., Sept. 28.—Samuel N. Aldrich of Boston, financier and former railroad man, president of the State National bank of Boston and former assistant treasurer of the United States sub-treasury at Boston, died at his summer home here of a complication of diseases, brought on by pneumonia. He was born in Upton, Mass., in 1839. He was admitted to the bar in 1863 and practiced in Marlboro until 1874. He was a member of the Massachusetts state senate in 1879 and 1880 and of the house of representatives in 1882. In 1880 he was Democratic candidate for congress.

A Victim of Alcohol

New York, Sept. 28.—Fred D. Yuengling, son of the late wealthy brewer, a man-about-town whose exploits a decade or more ago furnished New Yorkers with numerous sensations, died in the prison ward at Bellevue hospital last night. Yuengling, whose home was in Yonkers, was arrested on a charge of failing to pay a bill for automobile hire. The prison authorities gave the cause of death as chronic alcoholism. He was 42 years old and married.

Political Riots In Cuba

Havana, Sept. 28.—Political disturbances have begun to assume some gravity in Cuba. A Conservative meeting at Sancti Spiritus was the occasion of a riot yesterday at which many were injured, and in Havana last night a meeting of the negro party, headed by General Estenoz, was broken up by Liberals, who kept up a continuous shouting.

Launching of Big Liner

Hamburg, Sept. 28.—Steamship Cleveland, the latest acquisition of the Hamburg-American line, was launched here at the yards of Blohm & Voss. She is a sister ship of the Cincinnati, which was launched in July. The Cleveland is about 18,000 tons and is destined for the service between New York, England and the continent.

Revolutionists Had Big Stock

Tiflis, Sept. 28.—A warehouse stocked with arms for the revolutionists has been located in a subterranean passage on the edge of the town. The police who raided the place seized several tons of explosives, stacks and cases of rifles and pistols and 150 primed bombs.

A Little Confidential Chat with the People of Quincy.

The average man in business today cannot buy an article at wholesale for 75 cents and sell it for 76 and make a very sumptuous living. Were he getting 85 cents he would not be getting very rich. Admitting that he has been selling for 85 cents, suddenly he has a dream that he can get rich quicker by selling it at 76 cents and announces the fact to the DEAR PUBLIC, that he has been charging too much. He is very sorry to have taken so much of their good money and in the future he is going to be a good little boy and only take for himself one big cent on a sale of 76 cents worth of goods. What a Philanthropist! One of the noble characters of the day! A man of the people willing and anxious to be looked up to by his fellow men as a marvel of Goodness.

And his poor deluded fellow man walks into his store looking for the "bargains." He calls for say a silk handkerchief that he sees advertised for 76 cents. The Philanthropist is there and tells him "you don't want a silk handkerchief. You want a boot-jack" and before the poor man realizes it he has bought and paid for a boot-jack that he never wanted, instead of the handkerchief he went in for.

Now bring this little talk down to the drug business. You are attracted by a sign, circular or newspaper "adv." "Know-a-Little's Pills" 35 cents. Dirt cheap! Guess I'll get a box! You walk into the store and call for them, and You are immediately assailed with, "My Dear Man, You don't want them, you want Mr. Know-it-all's Pills. The best thing that ever grew." The crowned heads of Europe take them to bed with them, children cry for them, and President Roosevelt is going to speak of them in his next message to Congress on "How I elected Taft." These are just what you want, 30 cents. Thank You, just Right. Call again.

And the man behind the counter looks gleefully at the customer as he sadly wends his way out of the store with something he does not want and he says to his assistant.

"You see how easy it is to fool them. Give them hot air, and plenty of it and they will stand for it.

Talk up the Know-it-All remedies and I will give you 10 per cent commission on all your sales, because the profit on these goods is such I can afford to. Don't sell the others because there is no profit in them."

That method of Doing Business does NOT GO in My Store.

A person coming into my store gets what he asks for at my published price, and no substitute.

I BELONG TO NO DRUG TRUST

I am not interested financially in any medicine-making concern outside of my own store. My clerks will give what you ask for, and at the published prices.

I Must Decline to be Undersold by Any Store in Quincy.

I have told you my method of doing business and with efficient service, polite attention and "No Substitution" I respectfully ask a continuance of your very valued patronage.

EDITORIAL.

The daily cartoon service of the Ledger is making a great hit.

No wonder things took a notion to burn in Paris. It's is such a hot town.

Standard Oil money must look good to people in the United States Senate.

Those Canadian forest fires want to stop blowing smoke in our face.

The opposition to Governor Hughes in New York disappeared behind the corner of his whiskers.

The "humor and philosophy" of Duncan M. Smith is a feature of the Daily Ledger that is sure to be of interest.

Governor Haskell, of Oklahoma, continues to exclaim, "Thou canst not say I did it;" but Mr. Hearst not only goes right on accusing the Governor of having served the Standard Oil Company, but seems to have some awkward records in his possession.

It is interesting and instructive to analyze the presidential vote since 1896 in some of the states which Democratic forecasters class as doubtful, and see what Mr. Bryan will have to overcome in order to place any of them in the Democratic column.

Wherever factional contests have threatened the solidarity of the Republican vote, the factionists have not allowed their disagreements to jeopardize the Republican national ticket. These factional troubles will not cost Mr. Taft any considerable number of votes if their effect is at all apparent in the general round-up.

Two More Breaks At Braintree

Burglars tried their hand at Braintree again Sunday night, when they appeared at the home of Mr. Dyer, of Dyer & Sullivan, on Hancock street. The burglars had some silver all packed up ready to take, but they were caught just in time and were forced to go away empty handed. This makes the third burglary in Braintree in as many weeks.

Reward Offered For Missing Boy

James Thompson, aged 15 years, who has been employed at his uncle's restaurant in City Square, has been missing since Sept. 9. The only reason that can be attributed to his disappearance is because he did not want to go to school. Although the boy's father lived in Neponset, he has been making his home with his uncle at 58 Coddington street. During the last week of vacation the boy talked regretfully about returning to school, and on the day the schools opened he dropped out of sight. Since that time his uncle has made diligent search for him, but without result, other than a conductor on a New York train recognized the picture as one of his passengers on the 10.03 train to New York the day he disappeared.

The boy is a Greek by birth and has large dark eyes and is of dark complexion. He is 5 feet 1 inch tall, and weighs 115 pounds.

Mr. Thompson is willing to give a reward of $50 for the boy's return and Chief of Police Burrell is sending out circulars to that effect to the principal cities of the country.

Accidentally Killed In St. John's, Oregon

John Sinclair, 32 years of age, late of Quincy, was accidentally killed Sunday night, Sept. 20, as the result of a fall while walking on a footboard from the British ship Beechly, now in dry dock at St. John's, Oregon. Sinclair was a machinist and had been working on the vessel. The vessel was high in the dock and the plank which extended from the deck to the dock was 50 feet high. Sinclair started across the plank, and missing his footing, fell; he suffered injuries from which he died half an hour later. A doctor was summoned and efforts made to take Sinclair in an ambulance to one of the hospitals, but he died before the ambulance reached there. Coroner Norden was notified and took charge of the remains.

The Summer Was Warmer and Drier

L. A. Wells, the observer at the Blue Hill observatory sums up the summer weather as follows:

The summer of 1908 was warmer and drier than usual, with a great abundance of sunshine and many pleasant days. The mean temperature of the season was 68.7 degrees, 2.2 degrees warmer than normal and the highest since 1901. The maximum temperature reached was 97 degrees on July 7, and the lowest was 44 degrees on August 29th. The temperature rose above 80 degrees on 41 days and above 90 on four days, and did not fall below 50 degrees from June 17 to August 29.

The total rainfall of 9.70 inches was .68 inch less than the average, but much greater than that of the summer of 1907, when only 6.64 inches fell.

There was very little precipitation during June and the first part of July and vegetation suffered accordingly, but in the latter half of July and during August there were copious rains. For the last three weeks, however, a severe drough has persisted and since August 27th only .19 inch has fallen, there having been no rain at all since Sept. 6th.

The mean relative humidity for the season was somewhat less than usual and the total number of hours of sunshine was the greatest on record.

There was the average amount of wind and there were no gales. The predominating wind direction was south, there being a marked absence of east and northeast winds and a corresponding increase of southerly and westerly winds.

Thunderstorms occurred on 19 different days. Aurora was observed on three nights, the display of Sept. 4th being especially brilliant, and an earthquake was experienced on the evening of August 15th.

For the past ten days whenever the wind has been from the west the air has been filled with smoke from the distant forest fires in Minnesota and the western lake region.

According to a statement made by the secretary of the Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Commission there is not the slighest danger of a shortage of water in the Metropolitan district, the great reservoirs at Clinton and elsewhere containing an ample supply, that is equal to the consumption of the district for nearly two years.

In a time like the present, when there has been protracted drought such a statement calls attention pointedly to the splendid provision that has been made for supplying water to Boston and the cities and towns grouped about it. When the taxes are assessed people are accustomed to grumble about what the town has to pay, but very few complaints are heard when from all about come reports of shortage of water, while the people of this district do not even have to curtail their usual consumption.

Aside from the satisfaction derived from knowledge of a plentiful supply of water, is that due to the feeling that the sources are carefully guarded so that they shall not be contaminated and result in the spreading of disease. Much care is taken to protect the large reservoirs and storage basins and they are so located that the danger of contamination is slight compared with that of individual and even of local sources of supply.

Big Potatoes.

Gershom Thomas of Mechanic street, the well-known letter carrier of Quincy, has put his spare time to gardening, and in the potato line he has had great luck. He brought seven samples to the Daily edger office today, and the largest of these tips the scales at a pound and a half. The seven together weigh seven pounds and six ounces, making an average weight of about one pound. The seed was bought at Johnson Brothers' store, and was of the Green Mountain variety. These potatoes are pretty near the season's record, at least for Quincy, and speak well for the farming abilities of Mr. Thomas.

Norfolk County Criminal Court

Among the cases tried in the superior Criminal court at Dedham last week were these of local interest:

Joseph Noonan, William Mulhern and John Shea, all of Roxbury, were sent to the house of correction for two and a half years each, for making an assault on Alfred Dahlquist at Quincy, July 26, 1908, and robbing him of $180.

Frank Waldron, James G. Peters, alias James G. Peterson, William Rooney and Charles Reardon, all of Roxbury, charged with the same offense, had their cases nol prossed and were discharged from further custody.

Era White, for a statutory offense at Randolph, was given a two months sentence in the house of correction, and James J. Robertson, for a like offence in the same town, received three months in the same prison.

Mrs. Bessie Jones of Randolph pleaded guilty to drunkenness and Jeremiah D. O'Connell to a charge of being idle and disorderly. Both were placed on probation.

Edward Moran, for the larceny of a $5 hammock, the property of Wm. A. Harrington, a Boston police officer, at Houghs Neck, Quincy, August 15, 1908, went to the house of correction for two months.

James Hanlon and Daniel Sullivan were found not guilty of larceny at Quincy.

The novel you have been waiting for so long to be run in this paper, with

Illustrations by Henderson

Added to the fascination of the Williamsons' style we have the scene laid in America, with the piquant remarks of Lady Betty, British aristocrat, on American society. Of course there is a love story told as only these authors can tell it.

It is simply a captivating story, every word worth reading. The Williamsons have done no more enjoyable work than with this.—Grand Rapids Herald.

MR. ROOSEVELT LAUDS TAFT.

True Friend of Reform and Foe of Abuses.

NAMES HIM POLITICAL HEIR

Republican Candidate Stands For Same Policies as Present Administration—Can Be Trusted to Do Justice to Both Capital and Labor—A Champion of the Right and True Representative of All the People.

In the following letter of President Roosevelt to Mr. Conrad Kohrs of Montana he tells why voters should support William H. Taft at the polls.

Mr. Conrad Kohrs of Helena, Mont., is an old time Montana cattleman and one of the most prominent citizens of Montana. He and the president came into close relationship more than twenty years ago, when they were both members of the Montana Stock Growers' association, the president being at that time the representative of the little Missouri stock growers in the association. The intimacy has been kept up ever since. Mr. Kohrs is one of the pioneer citizens of the northern Rocky mountain region and one of the men who has taken a leading part in its great development.

Mr. Kohrs' letter was called forth by Mr. Bryan's statement that he (Mr. Bryan) was the president's heir and natural successor:

Sagamore Hill,
Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 9, 1908.

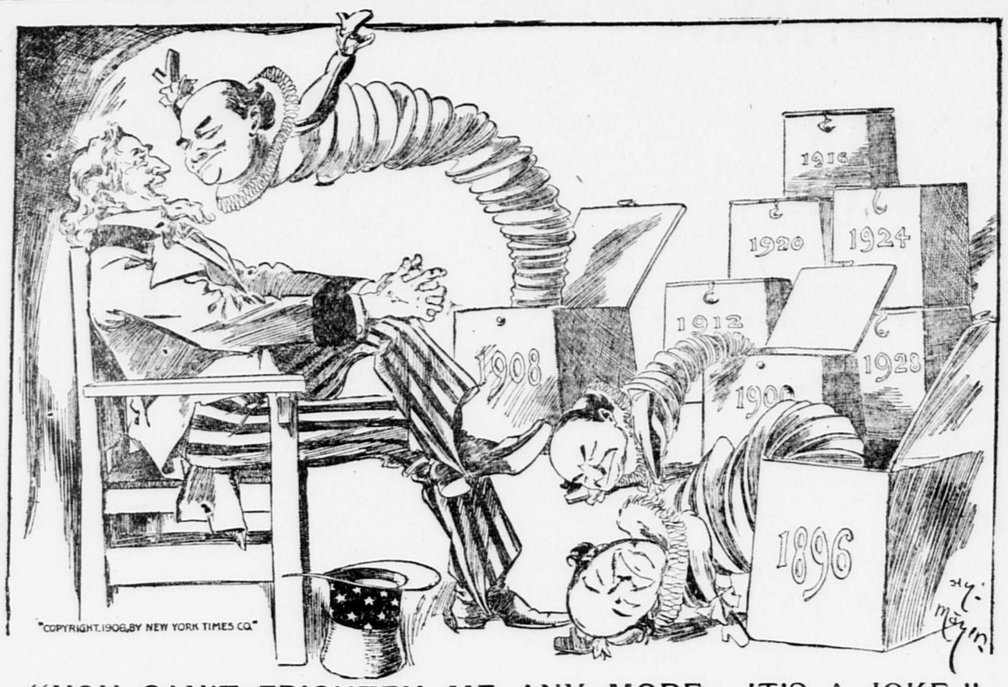

My Dear Mr. Kohrs—I have received your letter about the candidacy of Mr. Taft, the man who I feel is in an especial sense the representative of all that in which I most believe in political life.

Every good citizen should desire to see both prosperity and justice, prosperity and fair and righteous dealing as between man and man, obtain permanently in this great republic. As a people we are justly proud of our business industry, of our energy and intelligence in our work, and it is entirely right that we should ask ourselves as to any given course of conduct, "Will it be profitable?" But it is also no less emphatically true that the bulk of our people, the plain people who found in Abraham Lincoln their especial champion and spokesman, regard the question, "Is this morally right?" as even more important than the question, "Is this profitable?" when applied to any given course of conduct. Indeed, in the long run our people are sure to find that in all dealings, alike in the business and political world, what is really profitable is that which is morally right. The last few years have seen a great awakening of the public conscience and the growth of a stern determination to do away with corruption and unfair dealing, political, economic, social. It is urgently necessary that this great reform movement should go on. But no reform movement is healthy if it goes on by spasms, if it is marked by periods of frenzied advance, followed, as such periods of frenzied advance must always be followed, by equally violent periods of reaction. The revolutionary and the reactionary really play into one another's hands to the extent that each by his excesses necessarily tends to arouse such disgust, such a feeling of revolt, in the minds of quiet people as temporarily to restore the other to power.

To permit the direction of our public affairs to fall alternately into the hands of revolutionaries and reactionaries, of the extreme radicals of unrest and of the bigoted conservatives who recognize no wrongs to remedy, would merely mean that the nation had embarked on a feverish course of violent oscillation which would be fraught with great temporary trouble and would produce no adequate good in the end. The true friend of reform, the true foe of abuses, is the man who steadily perseveres in righting wrongs, in warring against abuses, but whose character and training are such that he never promises what he cannot perform, that he always a little more than makes good what he does promise and that, while steadily advancing, he never permits himself to be led into foolish excesses which would damage the very cause he champions. In Mr. Taft we have a man who combines all of these qualities to a degree which no other man in our public life since the civil war has surpassed. To a flaming hatred of injustice, to a scorn of all that is base and mean, to a hearty sympathy with the oppressed, he unites entire disinterestedness, courage both moral and physical of the very highest type and a kindly generosity of nature which makes him feel that all of his fellow countrymen are in very truth his friends and brothers, that their interests are his and that all his great qualities are to be spent with lavish freedom in their service. The honest man of means, the honest and law abiding business man, can feel safe in his hands because of the very fact that the dishonest man of great wealth, the man who swindles or robs his fellows, would not so much as dare to defend his evil doing in Mr. Taft's presence. The honest wageworker, the honest laboring man, the honest farmer, the honest mechanic or small trader or man of small means can feel that in a peculiar sense Mr. Taft will be his representative because of the very fact that he has the same scorn for the demagogue that he has for the corruptionist and that he would front threats of personal violence from a mob with the unqualling and lofty indifference with which he would front the bitter anger of the wealthiest and most powerful corporations. Broad though his sympathies are, there is in him not the slightest tinge of weakness. No consideration of personal interest, any more than of fear for his personal safety, could make him swerve a hair's breadth from the course which he regards as right and in the interest of the whole people.

I have naturally a peculiar interest in the success of Mr. Taft and in seeing him backed by a majority in both houses of congress which will heartily support his policies. For the last ten years, while I have been governor of New York and president, I have been thrown into the closest intimacy with him, and he and I have on every essential point stood in heartiest agreement, shoulder to shoulder. We have the same views as to what is demanded by the national interest and honor, both within our own borders and as regards the relations of this nation with other nations. There is no fight for decency and fair dealing which I have waged in which I have not had his heartiest and most effective sympathy and support, and the policies for which I stand are his policies as much as mine.

It is not possible in the space of this letter to discuss all the many and infinitely varied questions of moment with which Mr. Taft as president would have to deal. Let him be judged by what he has himself done and by what the administration in which he has played so conspicuous a part has done. But to illustrate just what his attitude is let me touch on two matters now prominent in the public mind.

"YOU CAN'T FRIGHTEN ME ANY MORE—IT'S A JOKE."

Mr. Taft can be trusted to exact justice from the railroads for the very reason that he can be trusted to do justice to the railroads. The railroads are the chief instruments of interstate commerce in the country, and they can neither be held to a proper accountability on the one hand nor given proper protection on the other save by the affirmative action of the federal government. The law as laid down by the federal courts clearly shows that the states have not and cannot devise laws adequate to meet the problems caused by the great growth of the railroads doing an interstate commerce business, for more than four-fifths of the business of the railroads is interstate, and under the constitution of the United States only the federal government can exercise control thereover. It is absolutely necessary that this control should be affirmative and thoroughgoing.

All interstate business carried on by the great corporations should in the interest of the whole people be far more closely supervised than at present by the national government, but this is especially true of the railroads, which cannot exist at all save by the exercise of powers granted them on behalf of the people and which, therefore, should be held to a peculiar accountability to the people. It is in the interest of the people that they should not be permitted to do injustice, and it is no less to the interest of the people that they should not suffer injustice. Their prime purpose is to carry the commodities of the farmers and the business men. They could not be built save for the money contributed to them by their shareholders. They could not be run at all save for the money paid out in wages to the railroad employees, and, finally, they could not be run judiciously or profitably to any one were it not for the employment by them of some masterful guiding intelligence, whether of one man or of a group of men. There are therefore several sets of interests to be considered. Each must receive proper consideration, and when any one of them selfishly demands exclusive consideration the demand must be refused. Along certain lines all of these groups have the same interests. It is to the interest of shipper, farmer, wageworker, business man, honest shareholder and honest manager alike that there should be economy, honesty, intelligence and fair treatment of all. To put an effective stop to stock watering would be a benefit to everybody except the swindlers who profit by stock watering. It would benefit the honest shareholder because honest investments would not be brought into competition with mere paper. It would benefit the wageworker because when the money earned does not have to go to paying interest on watered capital more of it is left out of which to pay wages. It would benefit the shipper because, when only honest stockholders have to be paid interest, rates need not be improperly raised. It would benefit the public because there would be ample money with which to give efficient service. Similarly the prevention of favoritism as among shippers does no damage to any one who is honest and confers great good upon the smaller business man and the farmer, whom it relieves of oppression.

Again, such supervision of accounts and management as will prevent crookedness and oppression works good, directly or indirectly, to all honest people. Therefore everything that can be done along all these lines should be done, and no man's legitimate interest would thereby be hurt. But after this point has been reached great care must be exercised not to work injustice to one class in the effort to show favor to another class, and each class naturally tends to remember only its own needs. The stockholders must receive an ample return on their investments or the railroads cannot be built and successfully maintained, and the rates to shippers and the wages to employees, from the highest to the lowest, must all be conditioned upon this fact. On the other hand, in a public service corporation we have no right to allow such excessive profits as will necessitate rates being unduly high and wages unduly low. Again, while in all proper ways rates must be kept low, we must always remember that we have no right and no justification to reduce them when the result is the reduction of the wages of the great army of railroad men. A fair working arrangement must be devised according to the needs of the several cases, so that profits, wages and rates shall each be reasonable with reference to the other two, and in wages I include the properly large amounts which should always be paid to those whose masterful ability is required for the successful direction of great enterprises. Combinations which favor such an equitable arrangement should themselves be favored and not forbidden by law, although they should be strictly supervised by the government through the interstate commerce commission, which should have the power of passing summarily upon not only the question of the reduction, but the raising of rates.

This railroad problem is itself one of the phases of one of the greatest and most intricate problems of our civilization. For its proper solution we need not merely honesty and courage, but judgment, good sense and entire fair mindedness. Demagogy in such a matter is as certain to work evil as corruption itself. The man who promises to raise the wages of railroad employees to the highest point and at the same time to reduce rates to the lowest point is promising what neither he nor any one else can perform, and if the effort to perform it were attempted disaster would result to both shipper and wageworker and ruin to the business interests of the country. The man to trust in such a matter as this is the man who, like Judge Taft, does not promise too much, but who could not be swayed from the path of duty by any argument, by any consideration, who will wage relentless war on the successful wrongdoer among railroad men as among all other men, who will do all that can be done to secure legitimately low rates to shippers and absolute evenness among the rates thus secured, but who will neither promise nor attempt to secure rates so low that the wage earner would lose his earnings and the shareholder, whose money built the road, his profits. He will not favor a ruinous experiment like government ownership of railways. He will stand against any kind of confiscation of honestly acquired property, but he will work effectively for the most efficient type of government supervision and control of railways, so as to secure just and fair treatment of the people as a whole.

What is here said as to his attitude on the railway question applies to the whole question of the trusts. He will promise nothing on this subject unless he firmly believes he can make his promise good. He will go into no chimerical movement to destroy all great business combinations, for this can only be done by destroying all modern business, but he will in practical fashion do everything possible to secure such efficient control on behalf of the people as a whole over these great combinations as will deprive them of the power to work evil. Mr. Taft's decision in the Addystone pipe line case while on the bench is proof by deeds, not by words, of the farsighted wisdom with which he serves the interests of the whole people even when those of the most powerful corporations are hostile thereto.

If there is one body of men more than another whose support I feel I have a right to challenge on behalf of Secretary Taft it is the body of wageworkers of the country. A stancher friend, a fairer and truer representative, they cannot find within the borders of the United States. He will do everything in his power for them except to do that which is wrong. He will do wrong for no man and therefore can be trusted by all men. During the ten years of my intimate acquaintance with him, since I have myself as governor and president been obliged to deal practically with labor problems, he has been one of the men upon whose judgment and aid I could always rely in doing everything possible for the cause of the wageworker, of the man who works with his hands or with both hands and head.

Mr. Taft has been attacked because of the injunctions he delivered while on the bench. I am content to rest his case on these very injunctions. I maintain that they show why all our people should be grateful to him and should feel it safe to intrust their dearest interests to him. Most assuredly he never has yielded and never will yield to threat or pressure of any sort, as little if it comes from labor as if it comes from capital. He will no more tolerate the violence of a mob than the corruption and oppression and arrogance of a corporation or of a wealthy man. He will not consent to limit the power of the courts to put a stop to wrongdoing wherever found. This very fact should make the labor people feel a peculiar confidence in him. He has incurred the bitter hostility of foolish and bigoted reactionaries by his frank criticism of the abuse of the power of injunction in labor disputes, and he is pledged to do all he can to put a stop to the abuses in the exercise of the power of injunction. He will never promise anything that he will not do all in his power to perform. He can always be trusted to do a little better than his word, and the fact that before election he will not promise the impossible is in itself a guaranty that after election all that is possible will be done.

His record as a judge makes the whole country his debtor. His actions and decisions are part of the great traditions of the bench. They guaranteed and set forth in striking fashion the rights of the general public as against the selfish interests of any class, whether of capitalists or of laborers. They set forth and stand by the rights of the wageworkers to organize and to strike as unequivocally as they set forth and stand by the doctrine that no conduct will be tolerated that would spell destruction to the nation as a whole. As for the attack upon his injunctions in labor disputes made while he was on the bench, I ask that the injunctions be carefully examined. I ask that every responsible and fair minded labor leader, every responsible and fair minded member of a labor organization, read these injunctions for himself. If he will do so, instead of condemning them he will heartily approve of them and will recognize this further astonishing fact that the principles laid down by Judge Taft in these very injunctions, which laboring people are asked to condemn, are themselves the very principles which are now embodied in the laws or practices of every responsible labor organization. No responsible organization would now hesitate to condemn the abuses against which Judge Taft's injunctions were aimed. The principles which he therein so wisely and fearlessly laid down serve as a charter of liberty for all of us, for wageworkers, for employers, for the general public, for they rest on the principles of fair dealing for all, of even handed justice for all. They mark the judge who rendered them as standing for the rights of the whole people. As far as daylight is from darkness so far is such a judge from the time server, the truckler to the mob or the cringing tool of great, corrupt and corrupting corporations. Judge Taft on the bench—as since, in the Philippines, in Panama, in Cuba, in the war department—showed himself to be a wise, a fearless and an upright servant of the whole people, whose services to the whole people were beyond all price. Moreover, let all good citizens remember that he rendered these services not when it was easy to do so, but when lawless violence was threatened, when malice, domestic and civic disturbance threatened the whole fabric of our government and of civilization. His actions showed not only the highest kind of moral courage, but of physical courage as well, for his life was freely and violently threatened.

Let all fair minded men, wageworkers and capitalists alike, consider yet another fact. In one of his decisions upon the bench Judge Taft upheld in the strongest fashion and for the first time gave full vitality to the principle of the employers' liability for injuries done workmen. This was before any national law on the subject was enacted. Judge Taft's sense of right, his indignation against oppression in any form, against any attitude that is not fair and just, drove him to take a position which was violently condemned by shortsighted capitalists and employers of labor, which was so far in advance of the time that it was not generally upheld by the state courts, but which we are now embodying in the law of the land. Judge Taft was a leader, a pioneer, while on the bench in the effort to get justice for the wageworker in jealous championship of his rights, and all upright and farsighted laboring men should hold it to his credit that at the same time he fearlessly stood against the abuses of labor, just as he fearlessly stood against the abuses of capital. If elected, he has shown by his deeds that he will be president of no class, but of the people as a whole. He can be trusted to stand stoutly against the two real enemies of our democracy—against the man who to please one class would undermine the whole foundation of orderly liberty and against the man who in the interest of another class would secure business prosperity by sacrificing every right of the working people.

I have striven as president to champion in every proper way the interests of the wageworker, for I regard the wageworker, excepting only the farmer, the tiller of the soil, as the man whose well being is most essential to the healthy growth of this great nation. I would for no consideration advise the wageworker to do what I thought was against his interest. I ask his support for Mr. Taft exactly as I ask such support from every farsighted and right thinking American citizen, because I believe with all my heart that nowhere within the borders of our great country can there be found another man who will as vigilantly and efficiently as Mr. Taft support the rights of the workingman as he will the rights of every man who in good faith strives to do his duty as an American citizen. He will protect the just rights of both rich and poor, and he will war relentlessly against lawlessness and injustice whether exercised on behalf of property or of labor.

On the bench Judge Taft showed the two qualities which make a great judge—wisdom and moral courage. They are also the two qualities which make a great president. Sincerely yours,

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Mr. Conrad Kohrs, Helena, Mont.

WHY TAFT WILL WIN.

Business Interests Working For Republican Success.

The president of the Claflin company in an annual statement of that company to stockholders sums up the business situation with much accuracy and fairness. He said that after six months of severe depression in the dry goods industry a recovery occurred in June and since then has been well maintained, but no great improvement can be expected until the presidential election is over.

Expressed or implied, a marked revival within the next few weeks is predicted by the most cautious business men in the country because of the inferential belief that Judge Taft will be elected on Nov. 3. Recent accounts of the iron trade show that the gain of the early summer is being held; bank clearings and railway gross earnings tell a similar story. To every one the evidence is unmistakable that if the election of Judge Taft was now placed beyond peradventure business would take on an immediate boom. For this reason masterful minds everywhere in industrial and commercial activities are bending every energy for the election of Taft.

Depositors Safe.

Congressmen and others will be interested to note that, although thirteen banks and trust companies closed their doors in consequence of the October panic, not one of the 51,000 depositors will lose a dollar. Some of these institutions had been wickedly mismanaged, but in every case the men responsible have been expelled, some indicted, and some have committed suicide. It hardly looks in these circumstances as if we needed federal guarantee of national bank deposits. If that were provided, as the Democrats propose, one great agency for holding bank officers up to a proper sense of individual responsibility for the safe and proper conduct of their institutions would be removed.—Boston Transcript.

So far as honorary degrees are concerned, Mr. Bryan is a doctor of laws. Measured by his profession and practice, he is simply a would be tinker of statutes.

CENTRALIZING OF CAPITAL

President Opposed to Tendency to Check Competition

ANOTHER REPLY TO BRYAN

Has Something to Say of Olney's Record In Office and Hints That Haskell Will Be Placed on the Rack --Approved Steel Trust's Absorption of Tenessee Coal and Iron to Check Panic--Harriman's Donation

Washington, Sept. 28.—President Roosevelt late last night made reply to W. J. Bryan's recent speech in which he maintained that the Democratic party and platform were not getting a "square deal" in the campaign that the president's professions of fair treatment entitled them to.

Mr. Roosevelt's reply deals particularly with Bryan's assertion that the administration has been neither sincere or effective in the prosecution of trusts. Roosevelt combats this charge with characteristic emphasis and sets forth in detail what has been done under his direction toward curbing the tendency of capital to centralize with a view to destroying competition.

President Roosevelt's reply is remarkable for two things. One is an unmistakable rap at Richard Olney's failure to prosecute, successfully, cases under the anti-trust law. The other is the significant hint that the interior department will take active measures to bring Governor Haskell of Oklahoma to trial for his alleged complicity in the town site fraud of the Creek nation.

The president's statement is the longest he has issued during the present campaign. Two-thirds of it deals with Haskell and reviews again the charges that Haskell has been the friend and the ally of the Standard Oil monopoly.

The matter of campaign contributions is passed upon, and reference is made to the famous returned donation of E. H. Harriman.

Also the president finds space to enumerate the several prosecutions which his administration has successfully consummated.

To show that there was no measure of prosecution aimed at Harriman the president instances the fact that when the Salton sea dam broke and one of Harriman's railway corporations expended a fortune in mending the break he (the president) took pains to impress on congress the justifiable necessity of reimbursing Harriman's railroad for the money it had thus expended.

According to the president's own statement he thoroughly acquiesced in the steel trust's absorption of Tennessee Coal and Iron. He did it, he says, in order to stave off what might have been a panic of the most widespread disaster.

"Instead of controlling 50 percent of the entire output, the steel company only increased its output 4 percent," declares President Roosevelt.

EXCHANGED COURTESIES

But Taft and Bryan Did Not Have the Anticipated Handshake

Minneapolis, Sept. 28.—William H. Taft and William J. Bryan exchanged courtesies here yesterday. Bryan arrived about 2 o'clock in the afternoon and immediately sent a message to Taft that he would be glad to call on him at the hotel at 5:30 o'clock. Taft sent word back to Bryan that he would be glad to see him at the hotel at that time.

Mr. Taft was scheduled to speak at the dedication of a new Y. M. C. A. building in St Paul at 2:30 o'clock and he hurried back in an automobile to keep his engagement with Bryan. When he arrived at the hotel he found a message from the Nebraskan which said that Bryan was sorry, but that he had forgotten that he had a dinner engagement at 5:30. Bryan suggested that if it was convenient for Taft he would drop in at the hotel on his way to the railroad station about 7 o'clock and shake hands with him. Taft, however, had an engagement to speak before the congregation of the Fowler Methodist church in the evening and he sent a messenger to explain the situation to Bryan and to convey his regrets.

Mr. Bryan expressed his regret at missing an opportunity to greet Taft and after asking about the condition of Taft's voice said he hoped that he would speedily recover.

Mr. Bryan's arrival in the city was signalized by vociferous cheers from a great crowd which had assembled at the station. En route from Milwaukee to this place, Bryan was greeted by several large crowds that cheered him and demanded that he make a speech. Bryan, however, informed his hearers that it was his invariable rule not to make political talks on Sunday. In the frantic struggle of the crowd at the Minneapolis station to get to him and shake his hand, a man suffered a broken arm. Bryan left last night for Mitchell, S. D.

Mr. Taft's Y. M. C. A. speech in St. Paul was before a large audience. At the conclusion of his speech he held a reception, meeting among others about eighty St. Paul preachers of all denominations.

The speech at the Fowler Methodist church was on foreign missions and was the same address that he has delivered on that subject before.

Mr. Taft left here this morning for North Dakota. His principal meeting in that state will be at Fargo tonight. His voice is considerably improved.

WYLIE FOR GOVERNOR

Bay State Prohibitionists Put Their Ticket In the Field

Boston, Sept. 28.—The Prohibition party of Massachusetts will be led at the November election this year by Willard O. Wylie of Beverly, who received the nomination for governor at the state convention held in this city. The balance of the state ticket is as follows:

For lieutenant governor, Frank N. Rand, Haverhill; secretary of state, Herbert B. Griffin, Boston; state treasurer, Edward Kendall, Cambridge; state auditor, Wilbur D. Moon, Lynn; attorney general, Henry M. Dean, Hyde Park.

The feature of the platform was the endorsement of the national principles of the national platform and the party candidates for president and vice president.

Mr. Wylie, who received the nomination for governor, was the permanent chairman of the convention and made an eloquent speech in which he pointed out the progress made by the party throughout the country and criticised the magazine article of Professor Munsterberg of Harvard on the liquor traffic.

A Three Cornered Contest

Boston, Sept. 28.—The only contest in sight at the Republican state convention next Saturday in this city, with the party unanimously agreed upon Eben S. Draper of Hopedale as the state leader, is that for the second place on the ticket, with three aspirants, Louis A. Frothingham of Boston, John N. Cole of Andover and Robert Luce of Somerville, who have been struggling for the nomination, still confident of the outcome.

At the caucuses held last Tuesday the returns indicated that Frothingham was the choice of 666 delegates, that Cole was favored by 446, and that Luce had the support of 303, leaving 135 unpledged or in doubt. All three candidates since that event have been striving to obtain the support of the unpledged delegates, and all three have reported considerable success. There is every indication that a ballot will be necessary to determine the candidate.

Congressman Gardner will be the permanent chairman of the convention, while the platform will be presented to the convention by Edgar R. Champlin of Cambridge, who led the movement last spring in opposition to instructing the delegates to Chicago for any presidential candidate.

Ridder Is Made Treasurer

New York, Sept. 28.—Herman Ridder of The Staats Zeitung and vice chairman of the publicity bureau of the Democratic national committee has been appointed by National Chairman Mack as treasurer of the national committee to succeed Governor Charles N. Haskell of Oklahoma, who resigned his position Saturday in Chicago. Ridder was seen at the Hoffman House, and said:

"Mr. Mack offered me the position of treasurer and I accepted for the reason that I favor tariff reform, and as the only hope of tariff revision is in the success of Bryan and the Democratic party, I considered it my duty to take the office and do everything in my power to assist the Democratic party to win, that the people may be relieved from the extortion of the trusts protected by the high tariff."

Calls Roosevelt a "Four Flusher"

Guthrie, Okla., Sept. 28.—Governor Haskell last night addressed a large number of citizens on the steps of the Royal hotel. He denounced President Roosevelt as a "four-flusher" and repeated his defense to the charges made against him by the president. Haskell showed a telegram from Chairman Finley of the Democratic state committee of Ohio, urging the governor to fill a week of speaking dates in that state. He also received a telegram from J. D. Reynolds, a member of the Ohio state committee, urging him to speak in Ohio and promising him a rousing reception. Haskell said that he would go to Ohio in a few days in answer to the invitations.

Mack Wanted at New York

Buffalo, Sept. 28.—Unexpected developments in the political situation in the east necessitated a change in the plans of Chairman Mack of the Democratic national committee, and instead of departing for headquarters in Chicago he took a train late last night for New York city. Mack left New York late Saturday night for Chicago, where he expected to remain about two weeks. On his arrival here he received a message asking him to return to New York. The chairman would not indicate the nature of the political developments that caused him to suddenly defer his western trip.

Little One Ground to Pieces

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 28.—Edna M. Ekberg, aged 3, was struck and run over by an electric car near her home and instantly killed. The body was drawn under the car and ground up into almost minute fragments by the machinery of the car. The accident was declared unavoidable by spectators, and the motorman and conductor were overcome by the accident.

Empire State's Big Bank Account

Albany, Sept. 28.—New York, the richest state in the Union, will have nearly $27,000,000 in its treasury when the finance year closes next Wednesday, the largest amount the state has ever had in its possession, according to a statement issued by State Treasurer Hauser. The state's money is deposited with 250 national banks and trust companies.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

The worst about relations is that those that are not too poor are apt to be too rich to be comfortable and convenient.

The principal reason why people can't be happy on a thousand a year is because they can't raise the thous.

Ever notice that many people seem to think it necessary to talk in a loud voice in order to call attention to the fact that they have nothing to say?

One of the perfectly splendid things in life is that we don't think the same next week.

The man who discovers a hero in his neighbor is reasonably sure of a good thing.

Some men are so unsophisticated that they can't tell the difference between love and hay fever.

Hidden sins may be and undoubtedly are bad enough, but it is those that he boasts of that show what a fool a man is.

While most of us are great admirers of integrity, there is no doubt that the majority would rather be comfortable than candid.

There is always a choice even in bad habits, and it is well to keep changing lest you become too fixed and expert in any one.

He is really a smart person who keeps himself from being suspected of it.

An unsophisticated person would rather be an angel, but the experienced exploiter would rather have an angel.

Just a Mixup.

A little ray of sunshine,
A little dash of rain,
A little streak of pleasure,
A little spell of pain,
Some moments of contentment,
Some days of care and strife,
Peace coming after conflict—
These go to make up life.

A meal of eggs and bacon,
Hash after Christmas fare,
And once or twice each season
A breath of country air,
A feast when company visits,
A famine in its wake,
A touch of rheumatism
Or even stomach ache.

A quarrel with a neighbor
About a trifle small,
A wrestle with a mortgage,
A game of basket ball,
A season of hay fever,
A swollen dentist's bill,
Forgetfulness in slumber,
Some quinine for a chill.

Perhaps it seems a hundrum
All laid away on ice,
But there are, you will notice,
Variety and spice,
Some luck without an effort
And failure, though we strive,
Enough to keep a fellow
Aware he is alive.

Too Close For Safety.

"Who was the man you nodded to?"

"My tailor."

"Introduce me."

"I can't. I never speak to him except from across the street."

Humble Calling.

"See that fellow over there?"

"Yes."

"He is master of the hounds."

"Something like dog catcher, I presume," said the wild westerner as he moved on.

Child of the Rich.

"They are coaching him for his examinations."

"No."

"So I hear."

"Pshaw! They are automobiling him!"

Working at His Trade.

"Where has old Bill Scraggs gone?"

"Out west somewhere."

"What is he doing out there?"

"Trying to earn a dishonest living."

Good Reason.

"Why were you so still last night?"

"Me?"

"Yes; you never moved."

"Oh, my 'Merry Widow' hat had only two pins in it."

The Contingency.

In letting public contracts
For marble, coal or wool
The lowest bidder gets it
If no one has a pull.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

Who is Lady Betty ?

Sunday was a delightful September day.

The Importers' Outlet Co. is having a three days' sale of butter, coffee, etc.

The Altar Guild of St. Chrysostom's church will meet at the rectory Thursday evening.

Col. Edward Anderson occupied the pulpit at the Pope Memorial church at Hull on Sunday.

Although Quincy has had no heavy frost, the leaves are falling. It is because of the very dry weather.

Walter Lacey of Grand View avenue has successfully passed his entrance examinations to Harvard college.

The whole town is anxious to know more about Lady Betty Across the Water. She will arrive tomorrow.

Mrs. Albert W. Fay of Newport avenue entertained a party from Sherburne on Sunday, including her sister, Miss Ella Mann.

The second district Republican Councillor convention will be held Friday, Oct. 2, at 3 P. M., in Wesleyan hall, Boston.

Lady Betty is sure to captivate the men of Quincy, as well as the ladies. The Daily Ledger will introduce her next Tuesday.

The executive committee of Corps 103 will meet with Mrs. Elberta Hewson, Chairman Tuesday afternoon, at her home Newcomb street

Miss Susie Halloran of Atlantic has resumed her studies with Signor Vannini of the New England Conservatory of Music for the coming year.

The Girls' Friendly society of St. Chrysostom's church will hold the first meeting of the season in the parish rooms Friday evening at 7.45 o'clock.

A large number of Quincy people took the opportunity on Sunday to climb "Big Blue" hill. The reservation is very attractive at this season.

Charles E. Ford of the Brown & Crowell company is having his vacation, and with his son Lawrence, has gone to New York to see the sights of the big city.

The annual banquet under the auspices of the Ladies' Benevolent society of the Wollaston Baptist church will be held on Thursday evening, October 8.

Heat is a form of energy, says W. A. Bradford and if you want heat see him and have the Gurney system explained. Consult him also for plumbing and gas fitting.

H. B. Cole, one of the teaching corps af the Quincy High school, is to open an evening school Oct. 5, at the High School building, for writing, business, bookkeeping, etc.

Fred S. Nowlan of Acadia, Nova Scotia, is the guest for a few days of his aunt, Mrs. George E. Thomas of Newton street. Mr. Nowlan is entering Harvard College this year.

John B. Bass, our young and popular Boston curb broker, is confined to the Quincy City Hospital with typhoid fever. The boys all pray for John's speedy recovery and return to the street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Harley and Mr. and Mrs. William Kelley of Pawtucket, R. I., were the guests of F. W. Baillie of 178 Washington street on Sunday. They made the trip in their new auto.

B. F. Thomas and A. Millett of 279 Belmont street will return home Sunday from a two weeks' trip, stopping at Windsor, Halifax, Chester, Martins River, New Rose, Mahome Bay, and Sunenburg, Nova Scotia.

The best of everything in the food line is carried every day in the week by R. E. Foy & Co., at their Water street store. Their prices are at the very lowest. This accounts for the firms daily increasing patronage.

The wonderful performing bears of Mlle. Carrino will be at the Auditorium this week, and Manager Magann is right in advertising it as the greatest animal act ever shown in Quincy. This popular play house is now drawing large audiences every night.

ANOTHER VICTORY

Fore Rivers Go to Pawtucket And Win from Coats Team

The Fore River football team journeyed to Pawtucket on Saturday to play the J. and P. Coats of that city. It was the second time these teams have met this season, the Coats team being defeated a week ago at Quincy Point, 7-3. Saturday the game was closer, and when time was called the Fore River kickers were only one goal to the good. The final score was 2-1 in favor of Fore River.

It was the third game for Fore River in the New England league series, and makes two wins and a tie for the Quincy boys. This will keep them near the top of the league all right.

The play was fast and exciting all through, the team work of both teams being spectacular. D. McDonald and Richardson played well for Fore River, and Willmont and Haddon were the stars for Coats.

The summary:

| FORE RIVER | | COATS |
|---|---|---|
| Esplin | g | Healy |
| Temple | rb | Reynolds |
| Melville | lb | Lough |
| Elliot | rh | Smith |
| Stevenson | ch | Haddon |

Atlantic A. A. Football Team

The Atlantic A. A. football team have reorganized for the coming season with the hope of making as good a record as last year on the gridiron. They have been practising the last week every evening at Holbrook's field and are already in nearly mid-season form.

There are many promising players out for the team of whom much is expected. Among these is "Phil" Clapp, who is making such a creditable showing on the High School team. Clapp with "Babe" Hinckley and "Red" Ward make a back-field hard to beat.

The line will be strengthened by the addition of "Willie" Price, who is considered the fastest man on the team. His all round work last year was well worthy of the credit he received while a member of the Walnut, A. C.

The team is being managed by William Geekie, who is also acting captain, as the choice for this position is rather dubious for the time being.

Any teams desiring games should write to the manager soon, as all the dates are nearly filled.

Golf for Cup.

In the third round for the president's cup, played at the Wollaston golf club links Saturday, A. H. Goodale beat D. E. Little 1 up, and G. A. Tyler beat G. F. Kelley, 2 up and 1 to play. The final will be played Saturday.

High Man at Whist.

In the final game of the summer series at the American whist club on Saturday, E. E. Hoxie of Wollaston, with his partner W. E. Dow, were the winners. Their score was plus 11 1-2. The next nearest was plus 7 1-2. The Howell system was used.

TODAY'S COURT.

Edward Corrigan and Dennis O'Brien were arrigned for drunkenness at Braintree. Each were fined, the costs in the case of Corrigan amounting to $5.72 and O'Brien $1.52.

Walter R. Roel for drunkenness at Weymouth was fined the costs amounting to $2.45.

Joseph Gleason and Harry Sampson were sent to the State farm for being tramps at Braintree.

Edward Collins was sentenced to four months in the house of correction for larceny at Quincy.

John Wallace was fined $15 for assault on Annie Lack at Quincy.

IS ANYBODY'S RACE

Remarkably Close Fight For Pennants In the Major Leagues

Never before in the history of professional baseball has the home stretch in the race for the pennants of the two major leagues been reached with the leading clubs so closely bunched and with the followers of the game excited to such a pitch of acute interest. In both leagues, the leaders hold the honors by one point. Chicago, in the National League, is seven points ahead of Pittsburg, while Chicago, in the American, is but three points behind Cleveland for second position, to which place the latter club fell Sunday. The standing of the leading clubs in the two leagues is as follows:

National League

| | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| New York | 90 | 52 | .634 |
| Chicago | 93 | 54 | .633 |
| Pittsburg | 92 | 55 | .626 |

American League

| | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| Detroit | 83 | 61 | .576 |
| Cleveland | 84 | 62 | .575 |
| Chicago | 83 | 62 | .572 |
| St. Louis | 79 | 64 | .553 |

Only a casual glance at these figures is needed to show that at the present moment in both leagues it is anybody's race, and probably, until the last game is played, the decision as to which two clubs shall have the honor of unfurling the banners emblematic of superiority and of playing against each other for the world's championship will remain in doubt.

The world's series means much to the men financially, for they get a goodly share of the receipts of the first four games played. This series consists of seven games and the winner is the club which scores the first four wins.

BECAUSE HE WORE SOLDIER'S UNIFORM

Marine Denied Admittance to Hebrew Temple In Boston

Boston, Sept. 28.—E. R. Williams, a marine of the United States ship Constellation, wearing a United States uniform, was refused admittance to the Temple Adath Jeshur in Roxbury yesterday, where he went, being a Hebrew, to attend worship.

On being asked why Williams was denied admittance Joseph Rudnick, vice president of the temple, told the newspaper men that admittance had been refused because the man wore a uniform. "Any man ought to be ashamed to wear a United States soldier's uniform at divine worship," declared Rudnick. "He should have had more sense than to have tried to enter the temple in the uniform, and especially on Atonement day."

Protest Against Licersing Bill

London, Sept. 28.—Of the great demonstrations held in Hyde Park in recent years, that of yesterday to protest against the licensing bill was by far the largest, the crowd being estimated at 300,000. The various processions were accompanied by 100 bands. Ninety speakers declaimed against the bill at different central points, and at a bugle sound a resolution condemning the bill was proposed and carried with a great outburst of cheering.

Twenty Sailors Drowned

Launceton, Tasmania, Sept. 28.—The British ship Loch Finlas, from Port Pirie, South Australia, for Callao, was wrecked off Foster island yesterday and twenty of the crew of twenty-four were drowned. The other four of the crew were picked up by a passing steamer.

NEWS IN BRIEF

President Harris of Amherst college has come out strongly against hazing at Amherst college, making the announcement that from now on hazing must stop in Amherst.

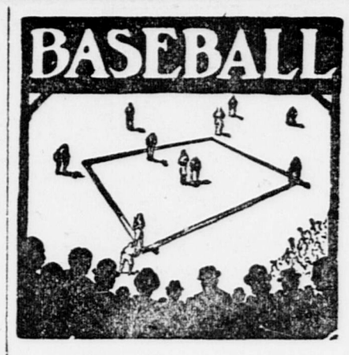

Mrs. Sophia Baker of Boston, aged 33, died of burns received when a lamp she was carrying exploded and set fire to her clothes.

Rose Suster, 4 years old, was run over and killed by a team at Boston.

James A. Lagerberg, aged 48, committed suicide at Cambridge, Mass., by asphyxiation.

After an absence of forty-one years, Booker T. Washington, the negro educator, visited his birthplace near Roanoke, Va. He stood in front of the cabin in which he was born 49 years ago and addressed a crowd of 22 persons.

Mrs. Marion Sheehan of Lawrence, Mass., aged 21, committed suicide by throwing herself into the Merrimack river. Family troubles are said to have caused the deed.

With Charley Ganzel of the old Boston Nationals playing first base, and Roger Chase of the present day Doves covering the centre garden, the Yannigans were taken into camp Saturday, at Merrymount Park by the Makaria regulars, to the tune of 7-1. There was a good sized crowd on hand to witness the sport and to see if the old timer was still in the game.

Although Charley was a little stiff, he showed the fans that he could still field in fine style, and there was not one present, who did not marvell at the snappy work of the old leaguer. It is no wonder that this big ball-tosser was the idol of the fans in the times when Boston was winning pennants, and that he was considered the fastest all-round first sacker that ever donned a Boston uniform.

Penley and Michael were the opposing slab artists, and both twirled good ball, but Penley was a little more effective. There was no scoring in the first two innings, but the Regulars broke the ice in the third. With a combination of three errors and two hits, they managed to get three runs across the rubber. Again in the fifth, on the same kind of a combination, they got two more.

In this same inning the Yannigans, on two errors coupled with two passes, scored their only run of the game. They had a fine chance to make more runs in this inning, but Charley Ganzel, with three on the bases, failed to connect safely, knocking a grounder to second and being retired at first.

There was no more scoring by either side till the eighth, when the Regulars brought their total up to seven by sending two more tallies over the plate.

Penley pitched good ball all the way, holding the "Yans" to one hit, a single by R. Ganzel. Michael twirled a good steady game, and with better support, would have held the Regulars down. Only six hits were gathered off his delivery and these were scattered.

Mr. Ganzel failed to get a hit, but he recived great applause every time he stepped to the plate, and when he donned the mask and mitt and went under the stick, the fans gave him a great hand. His fielding and that of his son Rupert, were the features of the "Yannigan's playing, while "Bill" Troupe and Curtis played best for the Regulars.

A Few Grounders.

The Regulars had it all their own way, the "Yans" being unable to knock the ball out of the infield.

"Ted" Penley was going good Saturday. One single was the most the "pick-ups" could get, and that, too, with two National leaguers batting against him. "Ted's" underhand ball is a puzzler.

Several of those who saw Mr. Ganzel play Saturday, are of the opinion that, with a little practice, he would make some of the present day big league first basemen look like bush leaguers.

All the boys were decorated with the Day Nursery tags.

If Frank Ewen could only field bunts the way he can catch flies, he would make a star third sacker. He is full of tricks, and always in the game.

Fred Smith's batting was missed Saturday. Fred can certainly bang the ball some, and he showed this against Atlantic when, with the rest of the team wildly beating the air, he batted out three slashing hits.

"Mattie" Nicols was there with the stick Saturday, knocking out three hits out of four times at the bat.

When Charley Ganzel went in to catch, Joe Langdon who had been umpiring all from behind the bat was forced to go into the diamond. He couldn't see over Charley.

Sporting Notes Of Various Kinds

The Hingham veterans firemen are planning to go to the muster at the Brockton fair on Friday with their tub the Hingham "Vet." Last year at the fair they took first prize, and it is their hope to duplicate this feat again this year.

There are several Quincy boys entered in the games at the Brockton Fair on Friday. In the 440 yard novice, T. F. McLaughlin, J. F. Phelan, Harry Heffernan and Leo Elcock will appear, and "Tom" Elcock is entered in the 440 and 880 yard handicap. Joe and Leo Elcock will also be seen in the 100 and 220 yard handicap. Some prizes ought to come to Quincy with this array of talent entered.

Gossip of the Gridiron.

Quincy High plays Everett at Merrymount park Tuesday. It ought to be a good game as Everett held Somerville to 6 points last Saturday. Quincy will have to hustle.

With the Carlsons in the line, one on each of the centre, it will be hard for the opponents to gain, while the two ought to tear big holes in the opposing defense.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

By C. N. & A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1906, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

Dear Reader—If you will ever feel that you simply have to love a girl, the girl you will love will be just like Lady Betty Bulkeley, sister of the Duke of Stanforth. You will love Lady Betty even if you are the stanchest of Yankees, with an inherited suspicion of the English, for she will snuggle down, in spite of yourself, in the coziest corner of your inmost heart. She is the sunshine of her own pleasant Surrey meads, added to the moonlight glinting on the surface of the Hudson she found so admirable. We have sent many of our fair maids abroad, and the balance of trade in this respect is heavily in England's favor, but we should immediately let down all bars, tariff or other, that prevent more sweethearts like Lady Betty from coming "across the water."

Chapter I

I DON'T know yet whether I'm pleased or not, but I do know that I'm excited—more excited than I've ever been in my life, except perhaps when Miss Mackinstry, my last governess, had hysterics in the schoolroom and fainted among the tea things.

I suppose I shan't be able to decide about the state of my feelings until I've had more of them on the same subject or until I've written down in this book of mine everything exactly as it's happened. I like doing that. It makes things seem so clear when you try to review them afterward.

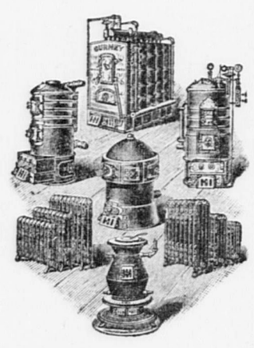

The excitement began at breakfast by mother having a letter that she liked. I knew she liked it by the way her eyes lighted up, as if they had been lamps and the letter a match. All the other letters, mostly with hor-

F. C. Hultman Is Nominated

The First Norfolk Senatorial convention was held in Wesleyan hall, Boston, Monday night and Representative Eugene C. Hultman of Quincy was nominated by acclamation.

Ex-Senator B. Herbert Woodsum of Braintree was chairman of the convention, and ex-Representative George L. Barnes of Weymouth was secretary.

Judge E. C. Bumpus presented the name of Eugene C. Hultman, and he was nominated by acclamation.

H. Clifford Gallagher of Milton was reelected a member of the State committee.

After the convention the delegates were entertained at dinner at Young's hotel. There was but little speechmaking at the dinner.

Little Change By the Recount

A recount of the voters cast at the Republican caucuses in Wards One, Two and Three for Representatives, was held Monday night, by the Registrars of Voters on a petition.

The count of the caucus officers in the three wards gave Thomas 561, Piper 549 and Spargo 72.

The recount changed but one vote, that was in Ward Three, where Mr. Spargo gains one, and Mr. Thomas lost one. Mr. Thomas plurality is now 11.

rid, tradesmanny looking envelopes, which had been making her quite glowery, she pushed aside.

Mother won't have a crown on her envelopes. She thinks it's vulgar. Besides, putting it only on the paper saves expense. This envelope had a great sprawly gold crest, but she didn't seem to disapprove of it. She read on and on, then suddenly glanced up as if she would have said something quickly to Victoria. She didn't say it, though, for she remembered me. I am never taken into family conclaves because I'm not out yet. I don't see what difference that makes, especially as I'm not to be allowed to come out till after Vic's married, because she was presented four years ago and isn't even engaged yet. So for all I can tell I may have to stay in till I'm a hundred or leak out slowly when nobody is noticing, as Vic says girls do in the middle classes. This time I didn't mind, however, for I couldn't see how the letter concerned me, and as I was dying for a sight of Berengaria's puppies, which were born last night, I was glad when mother told me not to fidget after I'd finished breakfast, but to run down to the kennels if I liked.

Soon I forgot all about the letter, for the puppies were the dearest ducks on earth (can puppies be ducks, I wonder?), and besides, it was such a delicious June morning that I could have danced with joy because I was alive.

I often feel like that. But there's nobody to tell, except the trees and the dogs and my poor pony, who is almost too old and second childish now to understand. She was my brother Stanforth's pony first of all, and Stanforth is twenty-eight. Then she was Vic's, and Vic is—but mother doesn't like Vic's age to be mentioned any more, though she is years younger than Stan.

I took a walk in the park and afterward went through the rose garden to see how the roses were getting on. There were a lot of petals for my potpourri, and gathering them has kept me for some time. Then as the jar stands in Vic's and my den (she calls it her den, but it has to be part mine, as I have no other), I was going in by one of the long windows when I heard mother's voice. "The question is," she was saying, "what's to be done with Betty?"

I turned around and ran away on my tiptoes across the lawn, for I didn't want to be an eavesdropper, and it would be nearly as bad to have mother know I had heard even those few words. She would be annoyed, and mother chills me all the way through to my bones when she's annoyed. It is wonderful how she does it, for she never scolds. But the thermometer simply drops to freezing point, and you feel like a poor little shivering crocus that has come up too soon by mistake to find the world covered with snow and no hope of squeezing back into its own cozy warm bulb again.

I stopped out of doors till luncheon and played croquet against myself, wishing that Stan would run down, for although Stan rather fancies himself as a gorgeous person since poor father's death gave him the title, he is quite nice to me when it occurs to him. I'm always glad when he comes to the Towers, but he hardly ever does in the season, and then in August and September he's always in Scotland. So is Vic, for the matter of that, and she hates being in the country in May and June, though Surrey is so close to town that luckily she doesn't miss much. But this year we seem to have been horribly poor for some reason. Vic says it's Stan's fault. He is extravagant, I suppose. However, as everything is really his, I don't see that we ought to complain. Only it can't be pleasant for him to feel that mother is worrying lest he should marry and make her a frumpy dowager before we two girls are off her hands.

At luncheon mother mentioned to me that she had wired to ask Mrs. Stuyvesant Knox and her cousin, Miss Sally Woodburn, down to dinner and to stay the night. "You will be pleased, Betty, as you like Miss Woodburn so much," she said.

"I like her, but I don't like Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox, and I don't know how to pronounce her," said I.

"For goodness' sake, don't call her Mrs. Ess Kay to her face again," cut in Vic.

"I didn't mean to; it slipped out," I defended myself. "Besides it was you who nicknamed her that."

"Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox is a very charming person and a thorough woman of the world," mother asserted in that way she has of saying the word which you had better leave for the last if you know what is good for you.

I did leave it for the last so far as answering was concerned, but inside, where, thank goodness, even her eyes can't see, I was wondering hard when mother had formed that flattering opinion. A fortnight ago I heard her announce that Americans "got upon her nerves," and she hoped she would not soon be called upon to meet any more. As she had made this remark directly after bidding Mrs. Ess Kay goodby, I naturally supposed that lady to be the immediate cause for it. But now it seemed this was not the case.

"You would be very ungrateful if you disliked her," mother went on, "as she took such a tremendous fancy to you."

"Dear me, I didn't know that!" I exclaimed, opening my eyes wide. "I thought it was Vic she"—

"You are her favorite, as you are with Miss Woodburn also," said mother, who gets the effect of being so tremendously dignified, partly, I believe, from never clipping her words as the rest of us do. "I am asking them down again especially on your account, and I want you to be particularly nice to them."

"It's easy enough to be nice to Sally Woodburn, but"—

I caught a look from Vic and broke off my sentence, hurrying to change it into another. "As they're sailing for the States so soon, I shan't have time to spread myself much."

"Don't be slangy, Betty, it doesn't suit you," said mother. "You pick up too many things from Stanforth."

"Trust him not to drop anything worth having," interpolated Vic, which was pert. But mother never reproves her.

"Perhaps Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox and Miss Woodburn won't come," I said for the sake of getting on safer ground.

"Not come? Of course they will come. It is short notice, but if they have other engagements they will break them," returned mother. And though it would be as impossible for her to be vulgar or snobbish as it would for a tall white arum lily to be either of these things, still I couldn't help feeling that her unconscious thought was, "The invitation to a couple of unknown touring Americans from the Duchess of Stanforth is equivalent to my receiving a royal command."

She was probably right, anyhow so far as Mrs. Ess Kay is concerned. As for Sally Woodburn, I don't think she has a drop of snobbish blood in her veins. She's southern—not South American, as I was stupid enough to think at first, but from some southern state or other, Kentucky, I believe it is. She's short and plump and olive and smooth as ivory satin, with soft, lazy brown eyes, a voice like rich cream, a smile which says, "Please like me," and pretty, crinkly dark hair that is beginning to glitter with silver network here and there, though she isn't exactly old, even for a woman, perhaps about thirty.

I knew that Miss Woodburn rather fancied me, and I was quite pleased to take her up to her room when she and her elder cousin arrived about an hour before dinner. I stopped for a few minutes and then left her with her maid, while I went to help Vic and get myself ready. We've only one maid between the three of us nowadays, which means (unless there's some reason why Vic should be made particularly smart) that mother gets more than a third of Thompson's services. That's as it should be, of course, and we don't grudge it. But Vic's rather helpless, and I always have to hurry to see her through.

This evening, though, I found Thompson in Vic's room, next to mine, and just as I scientifically dislocated my arms to unhook my frock, which does up behind, mother came in. "Betty," she said, quite playfully for her, "I have a very pleasant surprise for you. You would never be able to guess, so I will tell you. I have consented to let you go and visit Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox and Miss Woodburn in America. Aren't you delighted?"

I felt as if the wall of the house were tumbling down and I would presently be crumpled up underneath.

"My goodness gracious, mother!" I managed to stammer, forgetting how I've always stood in awe of her since I could toddle. "How—how perfectly extraordinary! Why am I going? And is it all decided, whether I like or not?"

"Of course you will like. To travel with pleasant companions and see a great, new country under such charming auspices is an immense privilege—a very unusual privilege for a young girl," mother replied promptly. "As for the 'why,' you are going because you have been cordially invited; because I think the experience will be for your advantage, present and future; because also it will be good for a growing girl like you to have the bracing effect of a sea voyage."

"Mother, I haven't a thing the matter with me, and I haven't grown the eighth of an inch this whole last year. You can see by my frocks," I protested, more on principle than because it would be of any use to protest or because I was sure mother wanted to change her mind. Naturally the protest had no effect, but mother's mood mercifully remained placid and she didn't give me a single freezing look.

"Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox is a woman of good family and position in her own country," she went calmly on. "I have satisfied myself on those points beyond doubt or I should not dream of allowing you to be her guest. She has a cottage at Newport and will take you there, as summer, it seems, is not the season in New York. You may stay with her through July and August—even for September, if you are amusing yourself. Later Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox will send you home with friends of hers, who can be trusted to take good care of you. She knows several people, she tells me, who are crossing in the autumn to winter abroad, and they would bring you to me. Of course I should have to be nice to them by way of showing my appreciation of any trouble you had given, but a dinner and a Saturday to Monday at most would be quite enough."

So it was all arranged, even to the details of my homecoming and the price to be paid for returning me, like a parcel, to my owner! Suddenly I remembered the words I had overheard at the window of the den, "The question is what is to be done with Betty?"

Mother had evidently been so anxious to have the question answered that she had at once taken measures to settle it. But why should anything be done with me? Nothing ever had been so far, except when I was sent last autumn to stop with my aunt, and she was so much annoyed because my Cousin Loveland came home unexpectedly that after that I could do nothing to please her and was packed back to Battlemead Towers in disgrace. I never could understand for what crime.

"How did Miss Ess—I mean Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox—happen to ask for a visit from me?" I ventured to wriggle out, like a worm who isn't sure whether it had better turn or not. I was certain that for some reason of her own mother had suggested the idea, if only hypocritically. But she seemed almost too frank as she answered, and it was frightening not even to be snubbed.

"I told you today that she had taken a fancy to you, my dear. Of course she could not hope to secure Victoria, even if she preferred her, for Victoria has important engagements which will carry her through the season and afterward to Cowes and up to Scotland for the shooting at Dorloch castle. But you are still almost a child, and children do not have engagements. Nevertheless you are Lady Betty Bulkeley, the Duke of Stanforth's sister, and as such, though in yourself you are an unimportant little person, it's not impossible that as a member of your family these Americans may think you worth cultivating. One hears that they worship titles."

Livingstone.

Livingstone died April 29, 1873, at Chitambo's village, on the Lulimala, in Ilala. His body was carried by his faithful servants to Zanzibar, from which point it was taken to England and borne with all honors to its last resting place in Westminster abbey.

Well Proportioned Men.

In a well proportioned man the distance between the tips of the middle fingers when the arms are stretched out laterally should be equal to the length of his body.

LA FRANCE SHOE FOR WOMEN

Very often we hear women say that their shoe troubles would be over if they could find a shoe that would look as well in daily wear as it does when they first see it and try it on in the store.

We advise every woman who has this feeling to find out about La France shoes. This shoe is not only one of unusual beauty and general merit, but it keeps its lines and looks shapely, graceful and beautiful long after ordinary shoes present a wrinkled, rundown and generally disreputable appearance.

The reason for this is in the quality of the materials used and the extremely skillful, workmanlike manner in which they are put together.

Every woman who sees these shoes and tries them on immediately becomes keenly interested in them. We would like to have you come in and let us interest you.

Are you troubled with foot discomfort? If so, ask to see the La France Flexible Welt—they are something new in an extremely elastic leather sole which adapts itself to every movement of the foot, and affords an amount of ease and comfort found in no other model.

TUBERCULOSIS CONGRESS OPENS.

Cortelyou Welcomes Delegates For Administration.

A WAR ON WHITE PLAGUE.

Opinion Expressed That Medical Science Will Ultimately Overcome Great Scourge--Ovation to Dr. Koch, Who Tells What Is Being Done In Germany to Combat Disease--China Neglecting Her Duty.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Monday witnessed one of the most notable gatherings ever assembled in the national capital, when medical scientists representing every civilized nation united with their brothers in America in an effort to solve the problem of how best to cope wth tuberculosis.

The occasion was the official opening of the sixth triennial international congress on tuberculosis. The great auditorium of the new National Museum was filled with men who have consecrated their best talents to the study of tuberculosis, representatives of the sovereigns of foreign countries, high officials of the government and others. The keynote of every utterance reflected the hope that the day is not far distant when medical science shall triumph over the great scourge.

When Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou, as the personal representative of the President of the United States, officially declared the congress open, there were grouped on the platform such distinguished men as Dr. Robert Koch, the discoverer of the tubercle bacilli; Dr. A. Calmette of Paris, Professor Bernard Hang of Denmark, Dr. Arthur Newshole of London, Dr. G. Sims Woodward of Cambridge, Eng., Dr. Clemens Von Pirquet, Dr. R. W. Philip of Edinburgh, founder of the first tuberculosis dispensary; Professor L. Landouzy, Dr. N. Tenderloo of Leyden, Dr. Simon Von Unterberger, honorary physician to his majesty's court of St. Petersburg; Dr. Camillo Callaja of Madrid and many others.

When Dr. Koch arose to respond in behalf of the German government, there was a remarkable demonstration in his honor, men and women waving hats and handkerchiefs for nearly five minutes.

The official welcome on behalf of the United States government was extended by Secretary Cortelyou. His address evoked warm and frequent applause. Then followed the responses of the official representatives of thirty foreign countries.

When his name was called Dr. Koch declared that Germany takes a particular interest in all that tends toward the solution of the tuberculosis problem, and that his government would watch with the keenest interest the deliberations of this congress. The tuberculosis situation in Germany, he said, has become distinctly favorable during the past three decades, the mortality from tuberculosis in Prussia having been reduced practically one-half.

"We are active in trying not only to maintain, but enhance this diminution," said the speaker. For a more thorough study of tuberculosis in all its aspects and in order to find new ways and means for effectually combatting tuberculosis, the Robert Koch Stiftung has been created. All nations, he added, would be benefited by the work of that institution.

Dr. Jee, the Chinese delegate, declared that notwithstanding tuberculosis has a strong hold upon this country, his government was doing little for the prevention of this disease. He expressed the hope that the next congress would be held in China.

At the conclusion of the responses to Secretary Cortelyou's address, the congress adjourned and will not again meet in general session until Oct. 3. The afternoon was devoted to the deliberations of the various sectional meetings, where a number of addresses were made.

YALE MAN KNOCKED OUT.

New Haven, Sept. 29.—While playing with the scrub team against the Yale 'varsity football team on Yale field, Lewis B. Warren of New York, a member of the class of 1910, Sheffield Scientific school, was kicked on the head and rendered unconscious. On regaining consciousness he became violently insane. He fought with other members of the team for an hour and a half, when he again lapsed into unconsciousness, in which state he still remains.

THE CUBAN DSTURBANCES.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Dispatches received at the war department from Provisional Governor Magoon show that at least two men were killed and a number injured as a result of political disturbances in Cuba Sunday. At Sancti Spiritus the disturbance was caused, according to information which comes from the mayor of the city, by one of the conservatives waving a Spanish flag in the faces of some of the spectators.

LINEMAN ELECTROCUTED.

Canton, Mass., Sept. 29.—While at work on the top of a pole, repairing one of the Edison Light company's wires, William Kennedy accidentally grasped a live wire and was instantly killed.

THE BASEBALL CONTESTS.

New York and Detroit Still Lead In Their Respective Leagues.

This morning still finds New York and Detroit leading respectively in the National and American League races for the pennants. New York was the only one of the leading teams in the National League to play a game yesterday and by trouncing Philadelphia in the ninth inning of a contest that the spectators thought surely would go to the Philadelphians added two additional points to the one point lead it held over Chicago after Saturday's games had been concluded. The standing in the National League this morning is:

| | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| New York | 91 | 52 | .636 |
| Chicago | 93 | 54 | .633 |
| Pittsburg | 92 | 55 | .626 |

|---|---|---|---|
| Boston | 3 | 6 | 3 |
| Brooklyn | 2 | 6 | 1 |

Batteries—Flaherty and Graham; Rucker and Dunn.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Detroit and Chicago in the American League both played yesterday, but as the former won from Washington and the Chicagos drew at ten innings with Boston, Detroit moved up three points, while Cleveland and Chicago still retain their Monday percentages. With 27 points separating her from Detroit, St. Louis seems practically eliminated from the pennant race. The standing of the leaders is as follows:

| | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| Detroit | 84 | 61 | .579 |
| Cleveland | 84 | 62 | .575 |
| Chicago | 83 | 62 | .572 |
| St. Louis | 80 | 65 | .552 |

| Boston | 2 | 6 | 2 |

Batteries—Smith, White, Schreck and Shaw; Young and Criger. Ten innings; called on account of darkness.

AERONAUTS DROP SIX THOUSAND FEET.

Collapsed Balloon Spread Out and They Escape Injury.

Dusseldorf, Ger., Sept. 29.—Captain Von Abercron and Lieutenant Von Goltzheim, two aeronauts, had a miraculous escape from death during the course of an ascent in a spherical balloon. Thousands of spectators had gathered to witness the ascent and they were horror-stricken at the accident, which occurred high in the air.

On being released from its fastenings the balloon soared almost directly upwards to an altitude of 6000 feet, when the envelope suddenly ripped open. The gas escaped in streams and the balloon shot downward. The aeronauts swiftly clambered into the network in the desperate hope of avoiding the shock of contact with the ground.

After a fall of 2000 feet, however, the envelope spread out, seemingly in a purely accidental manner, forming a sort of parachute, which checked the descent. The balloon then gradually came down, taking an hour and a half to reach the earth, the two men clinging to the ropes and the basket. They suffered no injury except a few scratches. The cause of the accident was the sudden expansion of the gas.

FLEET NEARING PHILIPPINES.

Manila, Sept. 29.—Wireless communication between the Atlantic battleship fleet and the station at Zamboanga was established at 8:45 o'clock this morning. The Zamboanga station says that it received wireless calls from the flagship Connecticut last night and could have taken and delivered messages but for the inability to make the Connecticut hear the answering calls. Early communication with the fleet is expected.

FIRE DESTROYS SLOOP.

Rockport, Mass., Sept. 29.—The auxiliary sloop-yacht Mona, a six-ton vessel owned in Marblehead, was burned to the water's edge off Thatcher's island, her occupants, Paul and Albert Osgood, brothers, escaping by jumping into the dory astern. The Osgoods are aged 24 and 19 years, respectively. A lamp exploded, igniting the gasolene and causing the explosion of the gasolene tank.

GERMANS AIDING DESERTERS.

Paris, Sept. 29.—General D'Amade, commander of the French fores in Morocco, has telegraphed that he has in his possession written instructions from the German consul at Casablanca to a clerk of the German consulate, ordering him to arrange for the embarkation of deserters from the foreign legation.

EDITORIAL.

The thanks of the publishers of the Daily Ledger are extended to the merchants of Quincy, who were quick to grasp a good opportunity when it was presented. It needed but little argument to convince them that it was worth their while to have a big "Ad" in the Daily Ledger today. In addition to the regular edition of nearly 2,000 copies, there have been printed today over 2,000 extra copies for free distribution into the homes of Quincy—an edition of 4,000 in all. Readers are requested to patronize Daily Ledger advertisers.

Lady Betty is sure to captivate the men of Quincy, as well as the ladies.

HEART TO HEART TALK.

THE DAILY LEDGER, with its thirty columns of live advertising, certainly makes a healthy, vigorous appearance today. All the wide-awake, PROGRESSIVE MERCHANTS of the city are represented, and the publishers are confident that all will find the Daily Ledger a good medium in which to advertise and get results. Not only the best method of reaching the homes of Quincy and vicinity, but at the same time the cheapest. A column "ad" today at a cost of only $2 will have nearly 20,000 readers. It would cost more than that to distribute 1000 flyers, and do it well, and not 500 of them would be read.

A successful newspaper can do more for a city and its business interests, than one which is struggling for an existence. The Daily Ledger has in the past had to struggle, but at the same time it has EXERTED ITSELF TO THE LIMIT TO ADVANCE QUINCY. First, as a business centre; second, as a residential city, and third, for a clean and progressive government of municipal affairs. It has published a newspaper for the homes; it has fostered the churches of all sects, the Y. M. C. A., the Christian Endeavor, the King's Daughters, the City Hospital, the Granite City Club, the Board of Trade, the Citizens Association, the No-License cause, the public schools, the Public Library, the Women's Club, the secret societies, the yacht clubs, the social clubs, the base ball and football teams, the men's clubs, the Day Nursery, the Fresh Air Camp, the Historical society, the Savings bank, the Cooperative banks, the National banks, the Insurance company, the shipyard, the granite industry AND ALL OTHER INDUSTRIES, and the business houses in general in advocating home trade.

The Daily Ledger is now a welcome visitor in hundreds of the homes. IT SHOULD GO INTO EVERY HOME! Not because the publishers want the subscription, but because it will afford the household much more than two cents' worth of pleasure every day. It informs its readers where money can be saved in the purchase of goods and supplies; it tells where one may help his fellow man and broaden his life.

But the Daily Ledger should have the kind word and encouragement of the people of Quincy because it offers a medium which will bring success to business, money to charitable objects, profit to entertainments, and help to worthy movements.

To day the merchants HAVE CROWDED THE PAPER to such an extent that many of the regular features do not appear. It is local news first with the Daily Ledger, but in addition to the local and telegraphic news some of the regular features will be a continued story, short complete stories, a column of "humor and philosophy," campaign cartoons, columns for women, etc., etc. The serial which begins today—"Lady Betty across the Water" is a great story and one of the "best six" novels. It is 95 columns long, and in instalments of two columns will continue for two months. Another serial will follow, and also new features.

To encourage the Daily Ledger please tell the advertiser that you saw his advertisement in the paper; trade in Quincy when possible, and help business generally and the city as a whole. Have a kind word for the publishers WHEN THEY DESERVE IT.

Have you even given the Daily Ledger credit for the omission from its columns of the family quarrel of your neighbor, the unpleasant gossip that is going around about some lady or gentleman of your town, a factional fight in your school board, city council or lodge rooms or perhaps in the church choir, all of which are actual occurrences and the facts fully known to the editor, who is always first to know the true facts in such cases—all this is NEWSPAPER CHARITY. Yes; the charity of the country newspaper man is more marked by what he does not print than by what he gives out of his store of small financial means or by the free use of the columns of his paper.

Republicans United in Sixth

The feeling of harmony which prevails this year among the Republicans of the Wollaston and Atlantic wards argues well for the election of Louis F. R. Langelier as Representative to the General Court.

Last year there was a split among the Republicans of these two wards in the Representative fight with the result that Rednor P. Coombs, the Democratic candidate, was elected.

This year things are said to be different. According to reports from these two wards, the hatchet has been buried, the pipe of peace has been smoked, and all hands are now pulling with a long pull, a strong pull and a pull all together.

Special Meeting City Council

A special meeting of the City Council was held Monday evening, called for the purpose of drawing jurors, and this was the only business transacted.

Councilman Abele, Beal, Broughton Cherrington, Falconer Hogan, McGilvray, and Teasdale were absent.

A venire was received for the drawing of juriors, and the Mayor and City Clerk assisted by Councilman Whiton drew the following jurors: Charles B. Tilton, George Sheppard, James Hector, George T. Westland and William J. Parker.

The love affair of Lady Betty will be an interesting bit of gossip for the ladies of Quincy.

—When an inch of rain falls few people realize that it means 100 tons of water to the acre.

—Russia is China's best tea customer, and buys five pounds to one bought in in this country.

Brief Locals Of a Busy City

Mrs. H. L. Kincaide and baby have returned from a two weeks' visit to relatives in Provincetown.

Mr. and Mrs. John Broughton of Quincy Point are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter.

Miss Florence Cairns of Prince Edwards Island is the guest of Mrs. Charles H. Burgess of Whitney road.

Frends of Mr. and Charles W. Hall of Hancock street will be pleased to learn of the arrival of a little son at their home.

Clark G. Boynton of Park street has returned from Cuba, where he enjoyed many weeks visiting the scenic portion of the "Queen of the Antilles."

Frank Cray, who has been spending the past few weeks as the guest of Thomas Larkin of South Walnut street, has returned to his home in Holyoke.

The younger element find plenty of amusement, now that the leaves are failing off the trees ,especially along Atlantic street, where they form a small pile at short distances from each other and then watch them burn.

Bargains in tea and coffee, can be found at 7 Granite street, at the Folsom Tea Co. Merchants legal stamps are given with all purchases, and on Thursdays a special offer is made, double legal and gold stamps being given on china, crockery and agate ware.

With his 17 years experience, and he says experience counts, T. L. Williams, the optician, is capable of testing, grinding, fitting eye glasses in the best of style. With his big stock of wedding presents he can give any one whatever is desired. See his advertisement for rings, of width and sizes.

The patrons of the Thomas Crane Public Library will miss Mr. Schumacher from his place at the delivery desk this week, as he leaves to attend the Divinity School of Harvard University. The position will be filled by Miss Katherine L. Stegmaier, a graduate of Simmons College.

THE PRICE PROPOSITION ON WATCHES.

We are going to give the people what they want at the price they wish to pay.

Do not ay you are not interested before you have seen our proporsition, and if possible one of our watches.

Until you have seen it, you do not know what it is, or whether you will be interested or not. You may have become sceptical on watch buying for various reasons. STOP ! ! ! therefore and investigate our proposition. REMEMBER, please, that it is your own case you are deciding, not ours.

We are going to give a few friendly pointers about things that may be found profitable to you, regarding WATCHES.

The first, and the most important is to tell you all that you need to know and as you know in these days of strong advertising competition, if a concern is to market its goods successfully, the advertising must be tremendously large or absolutely a big fact in a small space.

In this issue we merely call attention to the grades of Watches and of our entry in the race of price competition, which will be more fully illustrated in advertising space later. We are distributors of Howard, Waltham and Elgin Watches, and shall be pleased to show the various grades or send one to you by mail or by our representatives.

Norfolk County And Vicinity

Thomas Stretton of Stoughton, while picking pears at his home Saturday had the misfortune to have the ladder break under him. He was thrown to the ground and sustained a broken wrist.

The schools in Avon have closed for the week, on account of the Brockton fair. All the stores will close on Wednesday .

Russell White, aged 29, a well-known young man of Holbrook, died Saturday of typhoid fever after a brief illness. He is survived by parents and a sister.

A big day for the Odd Fellows of Weymouth will be the day when the traveling cabinet of the Montezuma lodge of Boston is moved to South Weymouth from Brockton, where it now is. The visitation is scheduled for Oct. 17.

William Kennedy of Manchester, N. H. ,while working on the Edison Light company's wires in Canton, on Monday, accidentally grasped a live wire and was instantly killed.

An unclaimed row boat and a cargo of personal effects, was found on the shore of Bunkin island on Monday morning. It would seem that the occupant jumped overboard or was washed in to the sea and drowned, but no one is reported as missing. Chief of Police Reynolds of Hull has been notified and is searching the surrounding shores.

A plan of campaign for the winter is the task of the Cohasset Men's club. It is a club composed of 100 members, including all the business men of the place and bars politics. The club has been organized about a year and works for the benefit of town government.

At a crowded Republican caucus in Brookline last week the delegates chosen to the councillor convention were favorable to Albion F. Bemis and the delegates to county convention were favorable to Everett M. Bowker.

—A Pennsylvania man, suing for divorce, charges his wife with pulling him out of bed by his whiskers. It doesn't seem to have occurred to him, notes the Washington Post, that it would cost less to get rid of his whiskers than to get rid of his wife.

All children can obtain a free picture of Lady Betty by calling at the the Daily Ledger office on Tuesday.

The Opening Reception

As the cool weather advances, various activities at the Y. M. C. A. have taken on new life.

Practice for the Business Men's Carnival keeps a throng of young ladies as well as gentlemen at the building both afternoon and evening.

The bowling alleys have been put in fine condition and are being kept busy.

Gymnasium and baths are shining with new paint and improved electric lights. In short the whole plant is in first class condition in readiness for the open house event which takes place tomorrow night.

An efficient committee under the direction of Erastus Osgood, Harry Brooks and John J. McGregor have the affair in charge and a good time is assured to all who attend.

Every young man in Quincy is invited to visit the building Wednesday evening, and enjoy the program and refreshments.

7.30--8.15--Concert by Mandolin club.
8.15--8.45--Class work and games in gymnasium.
8.45--9.15--Refreshments.
9.15--One-act "Farce."

A Household Necessity.

If you live anywhere in New England, there is one publication that should be in your home every day. There is no other paper in Boston or New England that compares with the Boston Daily and Sunday Globe. Fathers like it, mothers like it, children like it.

In no other paper is there a household page that compares with the one run by the practical housekeepers of New England in the Boston Daily and Sunday Globe. A careful perusal of this page in the Globe every day is of the greatest help to women in keeping their household expenses down and setting a table that will please all the members of the family.

In addition to its many features, the Globe has the best equipped force in New England, over 1000 men being employed daily in the publication of the Daily and Sunday editions. You get the results of their labors in the Daily and Sunday Globe; also special features, which cost in the course of the year thousands of dollars.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

George Jennings foot ball team will play the White Stars on Saturday.

Tag day was a great success and the Day Nursery association is planning for another one at some future date.

Maurice Powers of Bigelow street was taken suddenly ill on Sunday with acute indigestion, and Monday evening was removed to the City Hospital for an operation for appendicitis.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Fraser and family of Quincy avenue are on a trip through the Provinces via the Yarmouth line.

The funeral of Mrs. Annie, widow of Mr. Joseph Curley, was held this morning from St. Mary's church. Mass was celebrated by Rev. William Duffy. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery.

William Moffat of Atlantic, who has recently returned from a trip abroad, has many pleasant stories to tell his friends, who are always ready to grasp the opportunity of hearing them.

The annual meeting of the Quincy Day Nursery association is to be held on Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 6, at three o'clock at the Quincy Women's club house. Every one interested is invited to attend.

Changes of advertisements have been received for D. E. Wadsworth & Co., Henry L. Kincaide & Co., Mrs. G. W. Wheeler and others which will appear tomorrow. The "Ad" department of the Daily Ledger was "swamped" with new advertisements today and severely taxed.

Quincy Department Food store advertises in today's Ledger, a big list of specials for the week of Sept. 29 to Oct. 4. All kinds of meats, vegetables, fruit and household supplies can always be found at Berry Bros., Quincy Square, and if you can't carry them home, they will send them for you. See the "specials" in today's Ledger.

The largest clothing store in Quincy, has put in a stock of fall and winter clothing and gents' furnishings. Remick Brothers in Music Hall block are the Quincy agents for the perfect fitting "Kuppenheimer clothing," and have a variety of models and patterns that it is hard to duplicate, even in Boston. Lamson and Hubbard hats and Regent shoes also help to make a line of merchandise satisfactory to everybody.

Whist Party And Dance

The Ladies' Auxiliary, division 24, A. O. H., held one of their good times Monday evening in Electa hall, and there was a good crowd present to enjoy the program arranged. Whist was played from 8 to 10, there being 25 tables in all.

There were four prizes for the four highest scores, and the first prize was won by Miss N. D. Diggins, while the second, third and fourth went to Mrs. Myer Abrams, Miss Lillian Coffee and William Mullin, in the order named.

There were also two consolation prizes, one for the lowest score, and one for the next lowest. Mrs. Catherine York had the lowest score, and Miss Nora Flanagan was next. Both received Teddy bears for their good work.

After the whist was over, dancing was enjoyed till twelve, Thompson's orchestra furnishing music for the terpsichorean artists. There were about fifty couples on the floor. Refreshments were served during the evening.

Reception To Candidate

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Republican City Committee was held Monday evening. Arrangements were made for a reception to J. Mitchell Galvin, the Republican candidate for Congressman from the Tenth district. It will be held next Monday evening at Republican haed-quarters to which all Republicans are invited. Refreshments will be served.

Lady Betty sees things, and she says things in a way you can't easily forget.

—Germany is exporting many pianos to South America, South Africa and India, but most of them are of American make.

The love affair of Lady Betty will be an interesting bit of gossip for the ladies of Quincy.

INVESTIGATE and ECONOMIZE.

NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.

On and after September 16, we have decided

TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE

as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods

AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills over due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every day. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and take them with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Now think this proposition over, and we feel confident that you can see it just the way that we do.

SOMETHING THAT IS NEEDED HERE IN QUINCY.

A HIGH GRADE OF GOODS SOLD AT LOW PRICES.

So Remember your 5 per cent discount.

Respectfully,

City Square, Quincy. JOHNSON BROS. Hancock Street, Corner Maple.

Home trade! Home trade!
It's better far than roam trade.
So keep your darling dollars in the town.
Lend them, spend them.

Around the world to wander up and down.

The celebrated American poet who penned those immortal lines might have added a prose footnote to the effect that roam trade will cease when home trade makes the same effort to get business as roam trade makes—in other words, when the home merchant advertises adequately in the home paper.

Did THAT ever occur to you?

THE BAHAMAS HURRICANE.

The Long String of Islands Suffered Severely.

LOSS OF LIFE IS HEAVY.

Scarcity of Food and Water and People Finding Shelter In Caves, Their Habitations Having Been Swept Away--Flood of Salt Water Removed Every Trace of Vegetation--Natives Lose Everything.

Nassau, Bahamas, Sept. 29.—Only very fragmentary reports have yet reached the seat of government here as to the damage done to the outlying islands of the dependency which were ravaged by a terrible hurricane from the 11th to the 14th instant, but such news as has arrived is sufficiently bad.

The storm appears to have originated near Turks island, and swept with ever-increasing fury up the long string of islands running southeast from here. All appear to have suffered badly, though Long island is the only one from which coherent reports have so far been received. There the gale blew for two days with excessive fury and the settlements are practically obliterated from end to end.

The inhabitants are hard put to it to find shelter in caves, and food and water is scarce. It will be weeks before the full accounts will reach Nassau, but there is no doubt that the loss of life is very heavy, and the whole countryside is scalded and burnt as if with fire from the terrible driving of the salt water across the land. In the islands that got the full force of the gale not a trace of green vegetation is to be found.

While the actual money loss is insignificant, the houses destroyed for the most part being mere shanties, nevertheless the loss to the owners is a very heavy one, representing as it does practically everything that they possess in the world. The government has taken all necessary measures of relief and schooners are being daily dispatched laden with supplies for the sufferers.

LONG DROUGHT ENDED.

New York, Sept. 29.—The long drought in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, which has resulted in serious forest fires, stopped industrial pursuits and caused a water famine in many districts, has been broken. Rain, which fell lightly yesterday morning, increased in volume as the day advanced, and reports from throughout the affected territory announce that the rainfall has become general and heavy.

High winds accompanied the storm and are damaging telegraph wires, thereby interfering with communication. Brief dispatches, however, have come to hand from many points in the Catskills, the Adirondacks and other regions which have suffered from forest fires, announcing that copious rains are falling and that the fires are being rapidly obliterated. Although reports from some Adirondack districts still indicate menace from the flames, it is believed that the effects of the rainfall accompanying the widespread storm will soon be beneficially felt throughout the whole district.

The drought, which has been the most prolonged in many years, has lasted about eight weeks. So serious has been its effect, especially in the country districts, that prayers have been offered in many churches for speedy relief.

ENGINES SHOULD USE OIL.

Albany, Sept. 29.—Forest Commissioner Whipple, in a letter to the public service commission, requests the commission, in view of the large number of forest fires, to compel the railroad companies operated through state forest preserves in the Adirondack and Catskill mountains to use oil for fuel instead of coal.

"As near as I can determine," says Whipple, "during the last forty days there have been more than 300 fires set by sparks from railroad engines. At great expense and labor, ever since spring, we have been patrolling the railroads and guarding against fires, and have used as high as 4000 men at a time, all of which can be prevented and safely secured if oil is used for fuel in the engines."

RAIN FOR NEW ENGLAND.

Boston, Sept. 29.—A rainstorm, the first since the middle of August, reached this city late last night, promising to relieve the greatest drought which has prevailed for many years. There is every indication that the precipitation will be general over New England and check the forest fires, which have been raging since July. For a week the temperature has ranged from 70 to 90 and the atmosphere has been so charged with smoke that navigation along the coast has been seriously handicapped.

RAIN IN VERMONT.

Rutland, Vt., Sept. 29.—The long drought, which has held Vermont in its grasp for nearly two months, was broken last night by a heavy rain, which set in early in the evening and continued to pour steadily throughout the night. With the exception of a light shower about two weeks ago this is the first rain that has fallen in this state for about two months.

A Little Confidential Chat with the People of Quincy.

The average man in business today cannot buy an article at wholesale for 75 cents and sell it for 76 and make a very sumptuous living. Were he getting 85 cents he would not be getting very rich. Admitting that he has been selling for 85 cents, suddenly he has a dream that he can get rich quicker by selling it at 76 cents and announces the fact to the DEAR PUBLIC, that he has been charging too much. He is very sorry to have taken so much of their good money and in the future he is going to be a good little boy and only take for himself one big cent on a sale of 76 cents worth of goods. What a Philanthropist! One of the noble characters of the day! A man of the people willing and anxious to be looked up to by his fellow men as a marvel of Goodness.

And his poor deluded fellow man walks into his store looking for the "bargains." He calls for say a silk handkerchief that he sees advertised for 76 cents. The Philanthropist is there and tells him "you don't want a silk handkerchief. You want a boot-jack" and before the poor man realizes it he has bought and paid for a boot-jack that he never wanted, instead of the handkerchief he went in for.

Now bring this little talk down to the drug business. You are attracted by a sign, circular or newspaper "adv." "Know-a-Little's Pills" 35 cents. Dirt cheap! Guess I'll get a box! You walk into the store and call for them, and You are immediately assailed with, "My Dear Man, You don't want them, you want Mr. Know-it-all's Pills. The best thing that ever grew." The crowned heads of Europe take them to bed with them, children cry for them, and President Roosevelt is going to speak of them in his next message to Congress on "How I elected Taft." These are just what you want, 30 cents. Thank You, just Right. Call again.

And the man behind the counter looks gleefully at the customer as he sadly wends his way out of the store with something he does not want and he says to his assistant.

"You see how easy it is to fool them. Give them hot air, and plenty of it and they will stand for it.

Talk up the Know-it-All remedies and I will give you 10 per cent commission on all your sales, because the profit on these goods is such I can afford to. Don't sell the others because there is no profit in them."

That method of Doing Business does NOT GO in My Store.

A person coming into my store gets what he asks for at my published price, and no substitute.

I BELONG TO NO DRUG TRUST

I am not interested financially in any medicine-making concern outside of my own store. My clerks will give what you ask for, and at the published prices.

I Must Decline to be Undersold by Any Store in Quincy.

I have told you my method of doing business and with efficient service, polite attention and "No Substitution" I respectfully ask a continuance of your very valued patronage.

Bay State Republicans Are Lining Up For Battle.

SECOND PLACE CONTEST.

Gubernatorial Candidate For Frothingham as Running Mate and Is Said to Have Support of the Lodge Forces--Cole and Luce Claim to Be Confident of Winning Fight For the Lieutenant Governorship

Boston, Sept. 29.—Senator Crane comes to town today, following the visit of Senator Lodge yesterday, and the Republican state committee meets amid the most tense feeling over the lieutenant governorship that ever is remembered in the Republican state organization.

When Senator Lodge arrived at Republican state headquarters and was besieged by the newspaper men he dodged every question and declared that he was taking no part in the selection of a candidate for lieutenant governor.

Senator Crane's word will be final before the meeting of the claus on the night before the convention. The junior senator has just returned from the west, where he has helped Chairman Hitchcock with the national campaign.

Where Crane stands on the lieutenant governorship a great many people would like to know. It was said that he was greatly incensed at Mr. Frothingham some time ago because of the story that he had promised to support Frothingham and had broken his promise.

That Lieutenant Governor Draper is anxious for the nomination of Frothingham is not denied, and the Lodge-Draper men say that the junior senator has given his word that there shall be no change in the program.

Much of the political talk at the various headquarters is not above the level of gossip. But that many Lodge men are working hard for Frothingham and confidently predicting his nomination is everywhere apparent.

The state committee meets today to make its preliminary arrangements for the convention. There is a committee on ballots and a committee on resolutions by districts to be named. Every county will have a ballot chairman agreeable to each of the three candidates for lieutenant governor.

All day yesterday there was the ominous silence of a coming storm about the political headquarters. At the Frothingham headquarters they said the thing was as good as settled. At the Cole headquarters Speaker Cole was beaming and saying that there was no hitch. At the Luce headquarters there was the same activity, with the announcement that Luce held the balance of power. There is much talk of a dark horse.

The chairman of the convention next Saturday is Congressman Gardner, son-in-law of Senator Lodge. He has been claimed by both Cole and Frothingham, but he was elected as a Frothingham delegate.

Everybody expects that the convention will be the liveliest in years. Every precaution is being taken to prevent disorder, which is a rare occurrence in a Republican state convention The night before promises to be crammed with incidents. The tip is that the first ballot will not decide it.

TAFT LOSES HIS VOICE.

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 29.—Big crowds manifesting both interest and enthusiasm, surrounded the Taft party wherever it stopped in its course through Minnesota and North Dakota.

The sixteen speeches which Taft delivered during the day and evening worked havoc with the splendid voice he started out with yesterday morning, and it is again in bad condition. He can hardly speak above a whisper.

The day had two features—the Grand Forks, N. D., meeting and the Fargo rally. In both places tremendous crowds were out, and in each city the candidate had to make three speeches.

The Fargo meeting included a huge barbecue. Two steers and twenty sheep furnished food for the multitudes. The feast was participated in by thousands of excursionists.

It was just dark when the Taft special reached the end of its day's run, and residents of Fargo were out in force to extend a welcome. A torchlight procession, exhilarated by the music of fourteen bands and made picturesque by the squad of mounted cowboys, escorted the Ohioan through the town and out to the fort.

The speeches at the barbecue were made in a natural amphitheatre in a cleared place in the woods. The crowd was the largest the candidate has addressed in the open air since his trip began.

BRYAN IN SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux City, Ia., Sept. 29.—Conducting one day's campaign in South Dakota, W. J. Bryan poured volleys of criticism into the Republican platform, Mr. Taft and President Roosevelt. He covered a good deal of ground in the state and last night stayed in Sioux City. He left this morning for Rock Island, Ills.

Mr. Bryan spoke a dozen times yesterday. His favorite arguments were on trusts, guarantee of bank deposits and publicity of campaign contributions before election. He inveighed against Roosevelt because, as he said, of the president's failure to land any trust magnates in the penitentiary, and attacked Taft for dodging his platform. At every place visited by the Democratic candidate, or where his train stayed a short time, he was met by large, cheering crowds.

Observing at Mitchell that the windows of stores and houses were placarded with lithographs of himself, Bryan urged the people to remove them and hang up in their stead pictures of Taft and "thus show him the same courtesy that you have shown me."

PUBLICITY OF FUNDS.

New York, Sept. 29.—Herman Ridder, speaking of the duties of his new office as collector and custodian of the funds for the national Democratic campaign, said: "I will devote all my energy to collecting funds for a successful campaign. All names of contributors and amounts contributed will be made public on Oct. 15, and sums received after that date, up to the close of the campaign, will be published daily." He also said that he would obey Mr. Bryan's instructions in refusing contributions from favor-seeking trusts and corporations and that no contribution would be accepted from a person who expected favors in return.

THE PARAMOUNT ISSUE.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—Opening the Republican campaign in Cook county last night, James S. Sherman, vice presidential nominee of the party, began a speaking tour which in the next two weeks is to take him through Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. Other speakers at the opening of Sherman's tour were Congressman Longworth and Senator Smith. Declaring that confidence in the business world could be maintained only by the election of a Republican president and a Republican majority in the house of representatives, Sherman said that the paramount issue of this campaign related to a continuation of Mr. Roosevelt's policies.

BRYAN SEES FEW NEW POINTS.

Yankton, S. D., Sept. 29.—President Roosevelt's letter of Sunday to William J. Bryan was not read by the Democratic candidate until he arrived late yesterday afternoon at Tripp. A newspaper was there handed to him, and, at the conclusion of his speech at that point, he carefully read what Mr. Roosevelt had to say. Mr. Bryan, when he had finished going over the letter, remarked that he would not reply to it by letter, but would answer soon "the few new points it contains in a statement."

ROOSEVELT TO STUMP?

Washington, Sept. 29.—Official announcement that President Roosevelt will take the stump for Taft is expected at any moment. The president believes he has by far the best end of the Bryan-Roosevelt controversy.

Secretary Loeb admits that the president has been seriously considering the stumping question. "Nothing is decided so far," said Loeb, "so I can say nothing about it now." There is no question, however, but that the president will make some speeches in the west.

Meanwhile the national committees on both sides are in despair. The Republicans do not like President Roosevelt's entrance into the controversy, and think the spotlight should shine on Taft, while the Democratic committeemen have pleaded in vain with Bryan to quit the controversy. Both the president and Bryan are stubborn and refuse to be called off.

SERIOUS TROLLEY COLLISION.

New York, Sept. 29.—Two men were probably fatally hurt, six others so badly injured that they were taken to a hospital and a dozen others were seriously bruised and cut with broken glass when two trolley cars crashed together in Brooklyn. Both cars were crowded with passengers and the impact of the collision was so great that every pane of glass in both cars was broken and the passengers were thrown together in confused heaps.

TRAIN AND SHIFTER COLLIDED.

Portland, Me., Sept. 29.—In a collision between a Montreal train and a shifting engine which was pushing freight cars onto a siding here, Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens, national president of the W. C. T. U., and Miss Anna Gordon, vice president-at-large, who had started for Chicago, were considerably shaken up, while other passengers were slightly bruised. The train was delayed about two hours by the accident.

RUNNING AT A LOSS.

New York, Sept. 29.—Upon application of Attorney General Jackson, Justice Gerard, in the supreme court, appointed Joseph B. Maher receiver for the Twenty-Eighth and Twenty-Ninth street cross-town line. The earnings for the year ending March 30, 1908, showed a deficit of $72,192. The line is one of the few street railway lines in New York still operated by horse traction.

BEERS SURRENDERS.

Boston, Sept. 29.—Alfred M. Beers, who is said to have been missing since Aug. 13 last, gave himself up to the police of this city and furnished $500 cash bail for his appearance in court to answer a charge of having operated a bucketshop. The case is one of the first under the anti-bucketshop law passed by the legislature of 1907. According to the police, Beers has numerous creditors.

Slight Fire At Quincy Point

The alarm from Box 272 at 4.12 Monday afternoon was for a slight fire on the roof of the piazza at the house 63 Madison avenue, occupied as a boarding house by Mrs. Alice Browning. A few minutes previous to the bell alarm Hose 4 had responded on a still alarm for the fire. The fire was probably caused by one of the boarders throwing a lighted match or cigar stub onto the dry shingles. The loss was confined to a few shingles.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Building Continues Active in Quincy

Warren S. Parker, the insepctor of buildings, has issued the following permits for new buildings:

To L. C. Merrill for a three-family house on Fayette street.

To Etta May Barry for a cottage on the corner of Newton and Sea streets, Houghs Neck.

To Carl A. Anderson for a cottage on Northfield avenue, Germantown.

To the Fore River Ship Building Co. for a store house 60 by 70 feet at their plant.

To Mrs. Mary P. Tilley for a cottage on Bird street, Houghs Neck.

To James M. Nowland for a dwelling on Edgemere road.

To Mrs. Dollie McDonnell for a cottage on Mears avenue, Houghs Neck.

Tree Cut Down.

Alex Beaton of Phipps street did a clever job on Monday at the residence of Frank F. Prescott. A large swamp maple tree had grown to such large proportions that it overshadowed everything and kept out the sunlight. Although within fifteen feet of two houses, Mr. Beaton and his assistant trimmed off a few branches and then toppled it over exactly where he planned without injury to houses or trees. He was complimented by many who witnessed the job. The tree was so big that a person could not reach round it, and was about 60 feet tall.

Lady Betty sees things, and she says things in a way you can't easily forget.

The Quincy Department store is the exclusive agent for the "Timbro" flexible Welt Shoes, a stylish and durabel make. Also for the famous "Queen Quality" shoes for women. Read the long list of bargains in today's Ledger.

—Most Americans complain about taxes and those who do will get consolation from reading the cable reports from Berlin, on the theory that misery loves company. erGmany finds it necessary to increase its taxes. The imperial debt amounts to the modest sum of a billion one hundred and twenty-five million dollars. On this the annual interest is forty million dollars. Over there, as here; the interest must be kept up and it makes a big aggregate after all the other expenses of government are paid. This indebtedness is increasing and it is calculated that at its present rate of growth in five years it will be five hundred million dollars more. These are pretty big figures for the Kaiser and his advisers to look at and they are a great deal bigger in the eyes of the property owners and taxpayers.

—Boston's milk consumers will probably have to pay nine cents a quart for their milk the coming winter. The producers demand 44 cents for an 8 1-2 quart can and the contractors declare that if they have to comply with this demand, the consumers will have to stand the raise. The milk producers threaten to open a milk depot of their own in Boston unless the contractors come to their terms. Present conditions have somewhat reduced the supply and this accentuates the demand for the higher price.

—While repairs were under way on the exterior of the lighthouse towers on the Gurnet, some of the singles were torn off nad disclosed that old newspapers were used for sheathing papers. One torn out was a copy of the Old Colony Memorial, and the date was Sept. 2, 1857. The paper was well preserved.

—The French are rapidly advancing the wireless telephone toward a state of commercial usage and already the experts there have succeeded in talking with each other when 500 miles apart. Poulsen of Denmark claims that he will soon have his machine in condition so that it can be used to converse across the Atlantic though.

New Class of Squantum Club

The committee of the Squantum Yacht club of the one design class, of which George W. Glover is chairman, are very busy securing plans, and it is practically decided that they will have a modern cat boat. Commodore Bryant is pushing the affair and it now looks as though the spring of 1909 would see twelve or fifteen snappy new cat boats in Quincy bay.

Off to Cuba With Best Wishes

Charles A. Callahan, a well known and popular young man of Quincy, departed Saturday for Cienfuegos, Cuba, where he is to superintend the installation of a sewer and water system, for a New York contracting corporation, who were successful in securing the big contract, involving $4,000,000. Over 100 of his friends surprised him at his home at Squantum on the evening of Sept. 25, and presented him a handsome traveling bag; presentation being made by Councilman Thomas J. Casey of South Boston. A very beautiful poem written for the occasion was read by the author, J. J. Mackin, President of the Ushers Literary Club.

The evening will long be remembered by all who participated in the occasion, as also on the following evening when the stillness of the night was rent by the deafening shouts of many of his friends who were at the South Station when the midnight train pulled out for New York, to wish him success. Mr. Callahan expects to be in Cuba five years.

Sporting Notes Of Various Kinds

The largest crowd of the season gathered Saturday at Holbrook to see the "Old Timers" against the Youngsters. The former team won 15-14. Frank Burrill, the Quincy Chief of Police, caught for the old boys, and his batting and catching were the features of the games.

At a ball game on McAuliffe's field in Randolph on Saturday afternoon, Henry Morgan was hit with a batted ball. The force of the blow stunned him for some time and the services of a doctor were required.

It is interesting for a passerby to listen to the young and old men alike, who congregate in and about the Atlantic ball field and discuss the results of the coming champions of the two leagues. Sometimes the arguments wax hot, and a general opinion is formed that a bout is going on. But on the other hand it is only a heart to heart talk on base ball, and when the curfew rings the meeting is adjourned.

Today the new polo field of the Norfolk Country club will be used for the first time. Polo will commence at two and continue during the afternoon. This field will tend to make Dedham a centre for polo.

Clapp will be seen at halfback and there will surely be some playing worth watching when he starts in. He is fast and sure both in the offensive and the defensive.

Dedham and Cambridge Latin, two teams which appear here this season, played Saturday, the former winning 10-0. Quincy ought to be able to get away with one of these two, if not both, as the High school boys are going at a fast clip just now.

LABOR KICKS

Because School Committee Made Coal Contract With Outsiders

Dismissed for not being substantiated, was the verdict of the School Committee on Tuesday evening on the charges made against the Neponset River Coal Co. by former drivers and agents of the company.

After the regular business meeting of the School Committee, representatives of the Central Labor Union were given a hearing, this hearing having been requested by that organization.

John J. Connors of the local Coal Teamsters' union was the first speaker. He said he believed it a case of injustice to labor and citizens to let the contract for coal go out to Quincy. The difference in the contract price was not large. We find that the School Committee has employed an agent to weigh the coal for which $35 has been paid. It was never necessary to weigh coal when a Quincy dealer had the contract, and there had never been any complaint as to weight. He was not present to say anything about the company who had the contract, or throw any mud. It was a matter of dollars and cents to the teamsters of Quincy, citizens and taxpayers.

The $3,000 expended for coal if given to Quincy dealers would have been distributed in Quincy. The firm which has the contract does not leave one cent here.

Charles W. Hanscom had no complaint against the company who had the contract, but as a citizen of Quincy, believed the contract should have been let to a Quincy dealer, as he understood the difference in the price was but $75 or $80. He also understood a weigher was employed which was never considered necessary in Quincy. The dealers in Quincy are residents and taxpayers, and pay union wages.

The taxes paid by the Quincy dealers goes to pay for maintaining the streets and city government. The Neponset River Coal Co. pay no taxes here. We should patronize home dealers.

In reply to a question, Mr. Wadsworth chairman of the committee on supplies, said the difference in contract price was $87.37. There was a weigher employed who was paid $35 making a net saving of $52.57. If the contract had been let in Quincy it would have been weighed by the weigher of the School Committee as was stated in the advertisement.

Mr. Hanscom then started in to ask Mr. Connors question about street rumors of the Neponset River Company, but the chairman stopped him, stating that the School Committee were not present to consider rumors.

Mr. O'Hara asked Mr. Hanscom if he did not think the difference in price warranted the contract being awarded out of town. He relied that he was unable to answer, but he did not consider the difference a large one.

Mr. Connors, again addressing the Committee, said when men of this community get good living wages why can not the contract be given to firms who pay living wages, and have union conditions. He believed it an injustice to work men long hours as the outside company did. In Quincy we have ten hours and a half holiday each week. All we want is justice.

Mr. O'Hara asked of Mr. Connors if during the present year he had not worked for the city during the day and delivered coal after his day's work for the city was done.

Mr. Connors first said no, and then said yes.

James Watson, secretary of the Central Labor Union, believed in patronizing Quincy dealers, other things being equal. A man obliged to work long hours does not have any time for his home. If you think teachers in the schools are overworked, should teamsters be obliged to be overworked?

This closed the hearing.

After the hearing the matter of the Water street case, where it was alleged that the Neponset River Company had been obliged to refund money for alleged short weight, was explained.

Letters and bills had been sent to the committee, showing that in delivering coal at the woman's house the building had been damaged, and that the bill paid by the coal company was for repairs to the building.

The charges of the former drivers and agents of the coal company were then taken up.

These charges in brief were that the company had sold coal to the city not correctly weighed and that horses had stood on the scales when coal was weighed; also of men standing on the scales; and of screenings being mixed with the coal.

The committee then passed the following vote:

Voted, that the charges made by former drivers and agents of the Neponset River Coal Co. be dismissed as in the opinion of the School Committee none of them have been substantiated.

Mayor Shea The Best Man

Very quietly today, at noon at the St. John's parochial residence, was solemnized the marriage of two popular young Quincy people, Mr. Thomas J. Dunphy of Chestnut street, and Miss Alice C. Ring of Quincy Point.

Rev. John J. Coan of St. John's church performed the ceremony. Hon. William T. Shea, Mayor of Quincy, was best man. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Annie E. Ring, who was gowned in light cloth. The bride wore her travelling gown of mulberry broadcloth.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunphy will make their home at 27 Elm avenue, Wollaston Park, where they will receive their friends after December first.

Threatened to Commit Suicide

An unknown man who was thought to be insane, caused no end of excitement in Atlantic Tuesday afternoon. He passed along Hancock street saying that he was going to commit suicide. He went to the end of Walnut street and down to the water's edge ostensibly to jump overboard, but was prevented from so doing by two young men who arrived on the scene at the opportune moment. They succeeded in preventing him from doing so after a lively tussle, and with the timely assistance of Officer Larkin the man was brought to police headquarters and locked up.

Balky Horse Wins the Day

A balky horse gave its driver considerable trouble on Granite street this morning. The horse was one of a pair attached to a large heavily loaded team marked "M. M. Chandler." The team loaded at the old aluminum factory early this morning and at 9 o'clock attempted to start for Boston. Then the horse in question balked. A box of oats was held in front of him, and other methods were tried to move him, but without result. Up to 1 o'clock the team had only reached the post office. Then the driver became disgusted and unhitching the horses went off with them, leaving the team standing in the street. Half an hour later the driver brought the horses back to the team again. When the Ledger went to press the team was still standing in front of the post office.

Lady Betty Across the Water

By C. N. & A. M. WILLIAMSON ✱ COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY McCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO.

"I'm sure they can't worship them as much as some people in our own country who haven't got them do," I cried, defending Americans for Miss Woodburn's sake. "Vic says"—

"Never mind what Victoria says," returned mother. "The less you think on these subjects the better, my dear Betty. I merely hinted at a possible and partial incentive to these people's friendship for you, so that you need not feel it incumbent to be oppressively grateful, you know. I should wish you to keep your dignity among foreigners, even though you would, of course, look upon Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox as, in a way, your guardian. Now I must call Thompson and have her put me into my dinner dress, as there is no more time to waste. When Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox speaks of your visit you will know what to say."

I mumbled something vaguely dutiful and began to dress as quickly as I could. But the more I thought of it the more I felt that I hadn't been fairly treated, to be disposed of in such an offhand way. After all, I am eighteen, and a person of eighteen isn't a child.

I'm not sure I wasn't pouting when Vic came in, ready for dinner, asking if she should fasten up my frock. I had nearly finished it, for practice has made me almost as clever as a conjurer about manipulating my hands behind my back, but when Vic flew at me and began giving useless little touches I guessed that she wanted to whisper something in my ear without mother seeing, if she should happen to prance in at the wrong moment, as she often does.

"Look here, Betty, are you going to be a good little girl and do what you're bid without making a fuss?" she asked in a quick, low voice.

"I'm not certain yet," said I. "I'm thinking it over. I don't see why I should be sent off across the water with strangers at a moment's notice, and I"—

"'Tisn't a moment's notice. It's five days. They're not sailing till Wednesday, and as they've a suit engaged—the best on the ship, Mrs. Ess Kay says—your going won't put them out a bit, and they'll love having you. As for the whys and wherefores, mother's been telling you, hasn't she?"

"She talked about my health and valuable experiences and a lot of things in the air, but I feel there's something behind it, and I hate mysteries"—

"If I can convince you it's for the good of the family in general, if not yours in particular, will you be a nice white woolly lamb and go with your kind little American friends?" Vic broke in, with her head on my shoulder and an arm slipped around my waist.

"Mrs. Ess Kay's neither little nor kind," said I, "but of course I'll do anything to help if only I'm treated like a rational, grownup human being."

"And so you shall be. I told mother it would be much better to be frank with you, if you are a baby. It's too late to explain things now, but if you'll be sweet to Mrs. Ess Kay and agree with everything everybody says about your trip, when we come up to bed and mother's door's shut I'll make a clean breast and show you exactly how matters stand."

With this we separated, for we could hear Mrs. Ess Kay's voice in the corridor talking to Sally Woodburn on the way downstairs. Her voice is never difficult to hear; rather the other way, and Miss Woodburn's soft little drawl following it, reminded me of a spoonful of Devonshire cream after a bunch of currants.

Mother was with them both in the oak drawing room when Vic and I got down, and I found myself staring at Mrs. Ess Kay with a new kind of criticism in my mind. Indeed it hadn't occurred to me before to criticise at all. I'd only felt that I didn't want to come any closer to her. Now I was to come much closer it seemed, and I looked at the glittering lady, wondering how it would feel to be so close, wondering what she herself was.

Outside she's more like the biggest and most splendid dressmaker's model ever made for a Paris show window than anything else I can think of. At least she is like that from under her chin down to the tips of her toes. I say under her chin, for that feature as well as all the others above it are miles removed from a pretty wax lady in a show window.

I never supposed till I met Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox that a live woman could have a figure exactly like the fashion plates, swelling like a tidal wave above an hourglass of a waist and retreating far, far into the dim perspective below it, then suddenly bulging out behind like a round, magnificent knoll, after a deep curve inward under the shoulders. But Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox's figure does all these things even when she stands still and a great many more when she walks, which act she accomplishes in a grand, sweepy kind of a way, with her head a little thrown back, as if she wants everybody to know that she is tremendously important in the scheme, not only of the world, but of the universe.

Yet, in spite of all, in the end it's her face which impresses you even more than her figure, which is a real triumph, as the figure is so elaborate and successful. On top of her head is a quite little coil of hair that lifts itself and spirals up like a giant snail shell. A dagger keeps it in place and looks as if the point plunged into Mrs. Ess Kay's brain, though I suppose it doesn't. Over the forehead is a noble roll which has the effect of a breaker just about to fall into surf, but never falling. It's a black breaker, and the straight, thick eyebrows an inch below it are black too; so are the short eyelashes, also thick and straight, like a stiff fringe, but the eyes are gray—gray as glass, though not transparent. Sometimes they seem almost white, with just a tiny bead of black for the pupil. I never saw anything so hard (except the glass marbles I used to play with), and they look at most people as if something behind them were doing a mental sum in arithmetic, for the something's own advantage. They don't look at mother in that way; no eyes in the world would dare, but I'm talking about ordinary people, who are not tall white arum lilies with the air of having grown in kings' gardens.

Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox's nose is well shaped and rather large. So is her mouth, with a "thin red line" of lips. But somehow it's the chin—the feature you simply take for granted and hardly remember on most faces—which dominates the rest. It comes rounding out under her lips, making them seem to recede, though they don't really. And it's square, with an effect of the skin being laid on over some perfectly hard material, like marble, or the same ivory her teeth are made of. Besides all this—as if it weren't enough—she's a widow, one of those women who look as if they had been born widows. Anyway, I'm certain that Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox can never have been a child.

Sally Woodburn's chin is rather full too. I wonder if in spite of her lazy ways and slow, soft speech she is very decided, like her cousin, who is so much older and bigger and apparently able to make the gentle little southern relative do as she wills?

Mrs. Ess Kay, terribly glittering this evening in a gown contrasting strongly with our simple things, was almost too nice to me, saying several times over how glad she was that I was going to visit her. At dinner she painted word pictures of the "good times" she would give me, and though I've never been able to care for her and don't a bit more now, I began to be rather excited by her talk, for she made things seem so interesting and new. Besides, it appears that Sally Woodburn will be at Newport most of the summer, so I shall have her to fall back upon.

As for me, I was good as gold, and Vic threw me approving glances, for which I was grateful, for I like being in Vic's good graces. She doesn't often bother with me much, but when she does she is so sweet it makes up for everything—and she knows that well.

I could hardly wait to hear her "explanations," and so I was glad Mrs. Ess Kay and Miss Woodburn were hypnotized by mother into thinking they wanted to go early to bed. Mother is very clever about such things.

She didn't come again to talk to me in my room. I suppose she thought it best to let the new ideas simmer. Anyhow, she sent Thompson away and shut the door between Vic's room and hers sooner than usual. Presently Vic slipped quietly in to me, in the new blue dressing gown which was to have been mine, only when she saw it finished she wanted it and had four inches taken up above the hem.

"Well, how are you feeling about things now?" she asked, sitting down in front of the mirror with her hairbrush in her hand.

"I'll tell you after you've told me why I ought to feel one way more than another," I said with prudent reserve.

"Then, like a good child, brush my hair. I wouldn't let Thompson do anything because I knew you'd be dying to have me, and I can talk so beautifully while my hair is being done. It makes me wish I were a pussy cat, so that I could pur."

"I hate having mine touched by any one," said I.

"Well, perhaps I should hate it, too, if mine were curly and about six inches thick and came down to my knees. I should be afraid of being pulled to pieces. There! That's heavenly. Well, now I can begin. You know, baby, this isn't a quite new idea about your going to America. Mrs. Ess Kay did say something on the subject when she was staying here before."

"Oh, yes, when she was going away she said how much she would like to have either of us visit her. Is that all?"

"It's something, isn't it? Enough to make a handle of when a handle's needed."

"But why is a handle needed?"

"I'm going to tell you the whole truth and nothing but the truth. Mother had a letter from Sir Gilbert Mantell this morning.

"Oh, that big, splashy crest was his, then. It looked like him, now I come to think of it. Nobody but a brand new knight, with piles and piles of money, would need one more than half the size."

"Don't sneer at his money, my good child. We want it badly enough in this family."

"Not his."

"Yes, we do. And I see a reasonable prospect of our getting it if you'll go to the States with Mrs. Ess Kay."

"What can that have to do with it? I don't know one bit what you mean."

"That's because you're such a great baby. If you must have every 't' crossed and every 'i' dotted, Sir Gilbert has apparently conceived a patronizing toleration for your Victoria, which is likely if properly fostered and encouraged to develop into something more satisfactory."

"Patronizing indeed! That dull elephant!"

"Elephants are not as a rule dull. And forty thousand a year in any form can afford to patronize a daughter of a hundred dukes without a penny, whereas I'm merely the granddaughter of three. In fact, my dear, I'm humbly anxious that Sir Gilbert should propose, and as he's been rather nice and as he's written almost asking for an invitation to come down with Stan from next Saturday to Monday, although he carefully states he's been invited for the same time by Princess Paul of Plon, things look hopeful. The only trouble is—you."

"Me!"

"Yes, you. The one time he ever saw you was when you had that frightful cold and looked hideous, with your poor dear nose twice its size and your eyes half theirs. But—well, Betty, you're a beauty, and I'm not, though I do flatter myself I'm not bad looking. I'm 'penny plain' and you're 'tuppence colored,' and the Mantell man can afford tuppence for a wife. You are so frightfully, luridly pretty that it's almost improper, and if he comes down and sees you he'll probably think you better worth his money than I am."

"What nonsense! And if he were such an idiot of course I should refuse him."

"You would. That's one of mother's difficulties. Even you must see that would do no good from the family point of view."

"I could keep out of the creature's way."

"You couldn't without Stan making some blundering remark or some contretemps happening. It would be sure to. It's much safer to have you absolutely out of the way, and it was when we were talking it over this morning that mother hit upon the plan of sending you to the States. You know how prompt she is once she's made up her mind! Mother is really a wonderful woman. Twenty minutes later she sent a telegram to Mrs. Ess Kay asking her to come down and certain under providence that she would, for an intimate sort of invitation like this when we're alone (especially after the great disappointment) would be too flattering to a woman of that type not to be snapped at, no matter if a dozen engagements had to be trampled in the dust."

"What 'great disappointment' are you talking about?"

"Infant in arms! Why, Stan and Miss Woodburn."

"I—didn't know—nobody told me"—

"Fancy needing to be told! As if that weren't the only reason why mother smiled on Mrs. Ess Kay in the beginning. It was because she thought Miss Woodburn might do for Stanforth, who must marry money, and is too poor, horribly poor, to be much of a catch with most English heiresses, who aren't as keen on titles as they used to be unless there's some solid foundation for them to stand on and not wobble. Every one says Miss Woodburn's a great heiress, and though she's a few years older than Stan she's a lady, a charming creature and not bad looking. Mother thought all that out the day they were introduced to her at the Northminster's concert, so she invited them here. But Stan and the Woodburn wouldn't look at each other. It was useless even for mother's genius to attempt the impossible, so she resigned herself to the inevitable and gave the thing up. She meant to drop the Americans gently, which she could easily do, as they were going home soon, when this new idea popped up. It's really important for me, dear. I do want you to see that. It will be so much better all around if you are out of the way, anyhow until I'm safely engaged and the wedding day fixed. Then, you know, if you haven't meanwhile picked up an American millionaire on the other side—don't look so horrified—mother will be able to devote herself to you, heart and soul, as she has to me. Next spring you can be presented"—

"Don't bribe," I said, feeling as if I wanted to cry. "If you want to get rid of me I'll go without that, but I should have thought I might be sent again to Aunt Sophy's."

"Not again until our magnificent cousin's safely married. She wouldn't have you there. Remember how she sent you home last time. Poor Loveland! He, too, must think about collecting honest gold (somebody else's) to brighten up his coronet. We're a poverty stricken lot, my child, and it's for me, with your help, to retrieve the fallen fortunes of this branch of the family."

"That's settled, then," said I as dryly as I could, with wet tears in the background. "And now let's go to bed, please, I'm sleepy."

I wasn't, but my eyes were hot, and there was a lump in my throat. I was homesick—dreadfully homesick for something—I don't know what, but it seemed to be something I've never had yet and probably never can have. That is why I wanted to be alone and write everything down exactly as it has happened.

POLICEMAN OUT OF A JOB

Failed to Answer Citizen's Civil and Proper Question

HE THEN BECAME ABUSIVE

Denies That He Used Insulting Language or Had Ever Seen Complainant, but Trial Board Has Proof to the Contrary--Boston Police Get a Tip on the Subject of Politeness From Commissioner O'Meara

Boston, Sept. 30.—"Any person who puts a civil question to a Boston policeman must be assured of a civil answer."

The failure of Patrolman William Curran of the East Boston division to comply with the foregoing mandate resulted in his dismissal from the police department at rollcall last evening. Public announcement was made from the commissioner's office in a general order in which the commissioner severely criticised the officer for his general misconduct.

Patrolman Curran was charged with failure to answer a civil and proper question concerning a street car asked and repeated by a citizen, who was one of a group of three standing together. It was also claimed that Curran walked away from the group and then suddenly without cause returned and addressed them in insulting and threatening language, which showed that he had heard the question.

In his written report on the complaint and his sworn testimony at the hearing Curran denied that he had spoken to or even seen the complainant. He denied seeing the friends of the complainant. He denied that he was at the spot named at the specified time, though he did acknowledge that he was in the immediate vicinity of the place.

His testimony at the hearing was contradicted by a witness whom the commissioner claims to have every reason to be friendly with the officer. The complainant and his two friends took the number of the officer at the time, and at the hearing all three positively identified him as the man who had insulted them.

The trial board finds that Curran is guilty as charged and recommends punishment duty, but through the fact that this is Curran's third conviction by a trial board within a year for the same offense, the commissioner approves the finding of guilty only and orders that instead of the punishment duty Curran be immediately dismissed.

In commenting on the case, the commissioner says: "It is evident that Patrolman Curran is not the kind of man required for the credit of the police force and the proper service of the public. Any person who puts a civil question to a Boston policeman must be assured of a civil answer. Common sense, a decent regard for the rights of the people who pay his salary, the regulations of the department and the frequent admonitions of the commissioner in the past two years take from a policeman all possible excuse for misconduct of this kind."

CHARGE OF MURDER IN FIRST DEGREE

Davis Held In $10,000 Bail In Rustin Murder Case

Omaha, Sept. 30.—Following a five days' hearing before Judge Crawford, Charles E. Davis was held to answer the charge of murder in the first degree for the alleged killing of Dr. Frederick Rustin on the morning of Sept. 2. Bail was fixed at $10,000 and was furnished.

Attorney Gurley, for the defense, forcibly criticised the characters of witnesses placed on the stand by the prosecution, and scored Mrs. Abbie Rice, of whom he said:

"When the physician was lying on the floor of his home at the foot of the sairs, losing consciousness as his wife bent over him, whose name did he call? It was not his wife's name; it was not the name of any man. It was 'Polly, Polly, Polly.' And Polly was Mrs. Rice, his paramour, his companion, who four times had agreed to shoot him. Whose face was it he last saw before the shot was fired that caused his death? Was it not Polly, Polly, Polly?"

County Attorney English, closing the argument for the state, also dwelt on the connection of Mrs. Rice, declaring that sufficient evidence had been given to show that she had nothing to do with the final act which resulted in Rustin's death.

Held Up and Robbed

North Attleboro, Mass., Sept. 30.—Two masked men, each armed with a revolver, held up Joseph Semple under a railroad bridge as he was returning home late last night, and while one of the highwaymen made Semple hold up his hands at the point of a revolver the other took $18 and a gold watch. The robbers then disappeared.

Fleet Due at Manila Friday

Manila, Sept. 30.—A telegram has been received from Rear Admiral Sperry announcing that the Atlantic fleet will arrive at Manila Friday afternoon.

ONE POINT IN THE LEAD

Chicago Climbs Ahead of New York In National League Race

The New York club lost its place in the lead of the National League pennant race yesterday by dropping to Philadelphia the second game of its double-header with that club while Chicago was winning from Cincinnati. Only three points separated the two leading clubs yesterday and Chicago gained three by her victory, while New York lost one point. New York is just one point behind Chicago, which assumes the lead in the gruelling contest. Pittsburg, winning two games from St. Louis, pulls up to within three points of New York. The standing of the leaders is:

| | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| Chicago | 94 | 54 | .635 |
| New York | 92 | 53 | .634 |
| Pittsburg | 94 | 55 | .631 |

Must Raise $500 to Pay Fine

Boston, Sept. 30.—Joseph H. Campbell, proprietor of the Bunker Hill Sale and Commission stable, pleaded guilty in the United States district court to an indictment charging him with using the mails in a scheme to defraud farmers in horse deals. Judge Dodge suspended sentence in order to allow Campbell to raise $500, which the government has agreed to accept as a fine in disposing of the case.

Mill Men Fined For Conspiracy

Boston, Sept. 30.—Convicted of conspiracy to bring English mill operatives to this country, in violation of the immigration laws, Henry Burnison of Methuen and Mitchell Northrop of Graystone, R. I., were each fined $500 by Judge Dodge in the United States district court.

Bucket Shop Operator Fined

Boston, Sept. 30.—Arthur M. Beers, charged with maintaining a bucket shop, was fined $100 in the municipal court. Beers first pleaded not guilty, but, on the advice of his counsel, changed his plea to guilty. Beers is 39 years old.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

THINKING IT OVER.

I've been on my vacation.
I've jogged a bit about.
I feel so full of scenery
It must be sticking out.
I took my meals on landscape,
Mixed in with pork and beans
And pumpkin pie and doughnuts
And awe inspiring scenes.

A chunk of jagged mountain,
A canyon down below,
Cows fading in the distance,
A moving picture show,
A mountain torrent tumbling
With studied unconcern,

POLICEMAN OUT OF A JOB

Failed to Answer Citizen's Civil and Proper Question

HE THEN BECAME ABUSIVE

Denies That He Used Insulting Language or Had Ever Seen Complainant, but Trial Board Has Proof to the Contrary--Boston Police Get a Tip on the Subject of Politeness From Commissioner O'Meara

Boston, Sept. 30.—"Any person who puts a civil question to a Boston policeman must be assured of a civil answer."

The failure of Patrolman William Curran of the East Boston division to comply with the foregoing mandate resulted in his dismissal from the police department at rollcall last evening. Public announcement was made from the commissioner's office in a general order in which the commissioner severely criticised the officer for his general misconduct.

Patrolman Curran was charged with failure to answer a civil and proper question concerning a street car asked and repeated by a citizen, who was one of a group of three standing together. It was also claimed that Curran walked away from the group and then suddenly without cause returned and addressed them in insulting and threatening language, which showed that he had heard the question.

In his written report on the complaint and his sworn testimony at the hearing Curran denied that he had spoken to or even seen the complainant. He denied seeing the friends of the complainant. He denied that he was at the spot named at the specified time, though he did acknowledge that he was in the immediate vicinity of the place.

His testimony at the hearing was contradicted by a witness whom the commissioner claims to have every reason to be friendly with the officer. The complainant and his two friends took the number of the officer at the time, and at the hearing all three positively identified him as the man who had insulted them.

The trial board finds that Curran is guilty as charged and recommends punishment duty, but through the fact that this is Curran's third conviction by a trial board within a year for the same offense, the commissioner approves the finding of guilty only and orders that instead of the punishment duty Curran be immediately dismissed.

In commenting on the case, the commissioner says: "It is evident that Patrolman Curran is not the kind of man required for the credit of the police force and the proper service of the public. Any person who puts a civil question to a Boston policeman must be assured of a civil answer. Common sense, a decent regard for the rights of the people who pay his salary, the regulations of the department and the frequent admonitions of the commissioner in the past two years take from a policeman all possible excuse for misconduct of this kind."

CHARGE OF MURDER IN FIRST DEGREE

Davis Held In $10,000 Bail In Rustin Murder Case

Omaha, Sept. 30.—Following a five days' hearing before Judge Crawford, Charles E. Davis was held to answer the charge of murder in the first degree for the alleged killing of Dr. Frederick Rustin on the morning of Sept. 2. Bail was fixed at $10,000 and was furnished.

Attorney Gurley, for the defense, forcibly criticised the characters of witnesses placed on the stand by the prosecution, and scored Mrs. Abbie Rice, of whom he said:

"When the physician was lying on the floor of his home at the foot of the sairs, losing consciousness as his wife bent over him, whose name did he call? It was not his wife's name; it was not the name of any man. It was 'Polly, Polly, Polly.' And Polly was Mrs. Rice, his paramour, his companion, who four times had agreed to shoot him. Whose face was it he last saw before the shot was fired that caused his death? Was it not Polly, Polly, Polly?"

County Attorney English, closing the argument for the state, also dwelt on the connection of Mrs. Rice, declaring that sufficient evidence had been given to show that she had nothing to do with the final act which resulted in Rustin's death.

Held Up and Robbed

North Attleboro, Mass., Sept. 30.—Two masked men, each armed with a revolver, held up Joseph Semple under a railroad bridge as he was returning home late last night, and while one of the highwaymen made Semple hold up his hands at the point of a revolver the other took $18 and a gold watch. The robbers then disappeared.

Fleet Due at Manila Friday

Manila, Sept. 30.—A telegram has been received from Rear Admiral Sperry announcing that the Atlantic fleet will arrive at Manila Friday afternoon.

ONE POINT IN THE LEAD

Chicago Climbs Ahead of New York In National League Race

The New York club lost its place in the lead of the National League pennant race yesterday by dropping to Philadelphia the second game of its double-header with that club while Chicago was winning from Cincinnati. Only three points separated the two leading clubs yesterday and Chicago gained three by her victory, while New York lost one point. New York is just one point behind Chicago, which assumes the lead in the gruelling contest. Pittsburg, winning two games from St. Louis, pulls up to within three points of New York. The standing of the leaders is:

| | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| Chicago | 94 | 54 | .635 |
| New York | 92 | 53 | .634 |
| Pittsburg | 94 | 55 | .631 |

Batteries—Lindaman and Graham; Bell and Farmer.

American League

Almost equally close is the race between the three leading clubs in the American League. There were no changes in the standing of that league's leaders as the result of yesterday's games, Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago all winning two games each from their eastern opponents. The standing is:

| | Won | Lost | Pct |
|---|---|---|---|
| Detroit | 86 | 61 | .585 |
| Cleveland | 86 | 62 | .581 |
| Chicago | 85 | 62 | .578 |

Must Raise $500 to Pay Fine

Boston, Sept. 30.—Joseph H. Campbell, proprietor of the Bunker Hill Sale and Commission stable, pleaded guilty in the United States district court to an indictment charging him with using the mails in a scheme to defraud farmers in horse deals. Judge Dodge suspended sentence in order to allow Campbell to raise $500, which the government has agreed to accept as a fine in disposing of the case.

Mill Men Fined For Conspiracy

Boston, Sept. 30.—Convicted of conspiracy to bring English mill operatives to this country, in violation of the immigration laws, Henry Burnison of Methuen and Mitchell Northrop of Graystone, R. I., were each fined $500 by Judge Dodge in the United States district court.

Bucket Shop Operator Fined

Boston, Sept. 30.—Arthur M. Beers, charged with maintaining a bucket shop, was fined $100 in the municipal court. Beers first pleaded not guilty, but, on the advice of his counsel, changed his plea to guilty. Beers is 39 years old.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Professor Max Fiedler of Hamburg, who is to be conductor of the Boston Symphony orchestra, arrived at New York on steamer Kronprinz Wilhelm.

The coinage of the United States was criticised at the convention of the American Numismatic association at Philadelphia.

John J. Moran died at his home at Lowell, Mass., aged 106 years. He was born in Ireland in 1802, but did not come to America until he was 46 years of age. He never wore glasses and was a reader until within a few days of his death.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

THINKING IT OVER.

I've been on my vacation.
I've jogged a bit about.
I feel so full of scenery
It must be sticking out.
I took my meals on landscape,
Mixed in with pork and beans
And pumpkin pie and doughnuts
And awe inspiring scenes.

A chunk of jagged mountain,
A canyon down below,
Crags fading in the distance,
A moving picture show,
A mountain torrent tumbling
With studied unconcern,
As though it were an actor
And did a circus turn;

A farmhouse on the prairie
That passes on the fly,
With little children watching
To see the train go by;
A peaceful little village,
With architecture crude—
You see it all in passing
Except the village feud.

So many scenes and faces
Half caught in passing by,
It all appears a jumble

EDITORIAL.

"The touch of a friend," remarks a Missouri contemporary, "may hurt more than the cut of an enemy." No doubt about it. Especially if the friend forgets the amount he touched you for.

Prof. Hugo Muensterberg's latest contribution to the literature of the day is headed, "Can you tell the whole truth?" Certainly not, professor. We don't want to lose all the friends we have.

It was on Friday last, only five days ago, that the Daily Ledger suggested that Lady Betty was coming to town. Now everybody knows it, an illustration of what a little printers' ink will do in a short time. When you have a good thing, advertise it liberally, and you will be sure to get prompt results.

MERCHANTS' EDITION.

The Natick Bulletin did itself proud in its issue of Sept. 25, in honor of its merchants' week celebration, and the merchants should congratulate themselves upon having a gentleman like George C. Fairbanks as editor of their home paper. The program of the celebration is set forth in a concise and attractive form, and is plentifully illustrated with cuts showing some of the business blocks of the town gaily decorated for the event, as well as some of the floats that appeared in the parade. The issue also gives many columns of local news of Natick and its suburbs. It might also be mentioned that among the illustrations is a fine picture of Editor Fairbanks who is the Republican nominee for Representative. The district would make no mistake in sending him to the State House.

—Fifty natives for the Eskimo village at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition arrived in Seattle recently. The natives brought with them their huts, sleds, reindeer, ivory carving tools and everything that goes to make up a complete reproduction of their native habits.

Brief Locals Of a Busy City

Miss Bessie Drew of Walker street left Monday to resume her musical instruction at Hampton Institute, Hampton, Virginia, where she is one of the most popular teachers.

The new Daily Ledger serial "Lady Betty across the water" has already met with favor among readers, and is sure to become more and more interesting.

The first meeting for the season of 1908-9 of the Child Nurture club of Wollaston will be held at the residence of Mrs. Willard E. Keyes, 362 Beale street on Monday, Oct. 5, at 2.30 P. M. The meeting is in charge of Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham, the subject being, "The formation of habits."

News has arrived from Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hammond, formerly of Atlantic of their pleasant situation in Detroit where they are keeping house. Mr. Hammond, who is in the employ of the government, is at work on several large buildings.

The Civic Betterment committee, are planning to give another of their successful dancing parties in Atlantic Music hall this winter. Arrangements are to be made early in the season, and the affair will be carried out with regard to all necessary details.

The Ladies' Benevolent society of Memorial Congregational church will elect new officers at their next meeting. Their work last year was very successful and their fair was one of the best that has ever been given in Atlantic.

Mrs. Robert Harding of Botolph street has arrived home after a five weeks' visit in Rockland, Maine. Mrs. Harding was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. York and her granddaughter, Ada Blanche York who will remain for a few weeks.

The houses being built on Sagamore street are creating a great deal of attention and passersby stop invariably and inquire what sort of buildings are to be erected. As a matter of fact, they are to be dwelling houses.

Something There To Please All

A new evidence of the brightness and progressiveness of Quincy will be given Friday and Saturday evenings, when 300 or our most popular belles and beaux will exhibit their versatility and talent in the Business Men's Carnival, which is to be held in Music Hall under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A.

The author of this sprightly entertainment, Mrs. M. A. Harris, of Carlisle, Pa., has been in our town for some time drilling and rehearsing the large cast for this carnival, which is the very latest in home talent productions, and is of the vaudeville order.

25 spirited specialties are introduced each night, in rapid and sparkling succession: Jews, Reubens, droll colored gentlemen, maiden ladies, wicked boys, Spaniards, Italians and Irishmen to say nothing of the Germans, chase each other in one long ha-ha. Farce and frolic, sense and nonsense, beauty and music vie with each other in the rush to please. All the best and most tuneful of the popular airs will be sung.

Then there are appealing classical pieces to be rendered by our leading vocalists, for those who love really good music.

The skits present the merits of our leading business men in an entirely novel way. Wherever the carnival has been presented, the unanimous verdict has been that it was the very best home talent performance ever given.

Did you ever see two lovers quarrel? Come and see it produced and hear the charming and beautiful music to it, sung by the most gallant of spanish cavaliers and the daintiest of senoritas.

Did you ever see any fun in Washday? Well, you'll see it here; poor Mrs. Brown probably didn't, but you'll be sure to roar.

Suffice is to say there is something in the carnival to please all, and you'll miss some good home talent efforts if you fail to go and see it.

Norfolk County And Vicinity

Miss Ella M. Clark of the Norfolk County clerk of court's office, DEDHAM, was run over Tuesday forenoon in Memorial square, but was not seriously injured. She was walking across the square when the accident happened.

The Men's Club of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, NORTH WEYMOUTH, held a supper in the vestry Monday evening. After the supper, Rev. Edward Anderson of Quincy spoke on the subject, "From the Civil war on to now."

The Three Bachelors of CANTON will hold a social in Odd Fellows hall on Saturday evening.

Edward McEttrick, clerk to the selectmen of BROOKLINE, is seriously ill at the Deaconess hospital in Longwood. An operation will be necessary, but up to now it has been postponed, waiting developments of the patient's condition. His many friends feel his illness keenly. He recently received a degreee from the B. Y. M. C. A. law school.

There was a young man about the town of RANDOLPH this week soliciting money for the Catholic church of that place. Rev. Daniel J. Gleason was asked if any one was authorized to do such collecting, and he said there was not. The police were notified, but the man disappeared.

STOUGHTON Grange held a harvest festival in Odd Fellows' hall Monday evening. There was a large attendance and an excellent display of vegetables, the sale of which brought a good price.

William D. Brown of AVON has some record squashes which he raised this season, and says they can't be beat. He has fifteen averaging 50 pounds a piece in weight. The largest weights 70 pounds.

Eight boys landed in HOLBROOK late Monday night on their way to the Brockton Fair. They came from Melrose and Somerville and had to walk from Holbrook, as the car only went that far.

A harvest supper will be served in the vestry of the MEDWAY Methodist church this evening.

The Business Men's association of HYDE PARK have voted to co-operate with a like club in Springfield, to help better New England business. Two new members have been elected. Congressman Weeks will speak to the members Oct. 26.

The Boston Yacht Club station at HULL has been closed for the season. Monday there was a banquet at the station and the club ensign was hauled down.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

The last day of September.

The corner stone of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. building was laid Sept. 29, 1904, by Gov. John L. Bates.

On Sept. 30, 1799, the town of Quincy thanked President John Adams for a clock put into the First church.

The new Daily Ledger serial "Lady Betty across the water" has already met with favor among readers, and is sure to become more and more interesting.

D. D. G. H. P. Alfred H. Nash, of the seventh capitular district, accompanied by Charles F. Dudley as D. G. C. of the Host will make an official visitation to St. Stephen's chapter, Royal Arch Masons, tonight.

The weekly whist tournaments at the Granite City club, which were so popular last winter, will be inaugurated tonight. Refreshments will be served after the tournament.

Dr. C. T. Sherman is moving his office from the Hancock building. The rooms will be occupied as the office of the clerk of the district court. This will now make the whole of this floor devoted to court purposes.

Ladies and misses should make note of the good values in coats, suits, skirts and waists that D. E. Wadsworth & Co. are showing this week. They are well worthy of examination.

Home furnishing bargains such as linoleums, tapestry carpeting, rugs, etc., are some of the specials advertised by Henry L. Kincaide & Co. for this week. They also mention some special cash bargains in dining room, parlor, bed room and kitchen furnishings.

The wharves of George E. Frost & Co. are located in Neponset just across the Neponset-Quincy bridge. Their "ad" tells how they can be reached by telephone. The firm has no connection with the Neponset River company.

Specials for Friday at Wheeler's (formerly Miss Hubbards) are advertised today. These specials are all staple articles and absolutely necessary to every lady. A full line of dry goods and small wares is also carried in stock.

BRYAN REFUTES ACCUSATIONS

Not In Sympathy With or Controlled by the Trusts

ANSWERS PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Chief Executive Changed With Ingenious but Not Sound Argument In a Bid For Support of Trust Magnates--Democrat Candidate Promises to Enforce Anti-Trust Laws--About Haskell and Campaign Funds

Rock Island, Ills., Sept. 30.—"I have lived in vain if your accusations have lost me a single friend," said William J. Bryan in a letter addressed to President Roosevelt, replying to that of the president, written Sunday last.

Mr. Bryan points to his record and declares that it is sufficient answer to the insinuations of the chief executive that he is in sympathy with, or controlled by, the trusts.

Reverting to the charges against Governor Haskell, Bryan says that the president, in response to his request, did not deign to suggest a tribunal which could determine those charges, but instead, proceeded to pass judgment on him, and he informs the president that the occupant of that high office cannot deny to the humblest citizen the right to protect his reputation and vindicate his name in the courts.

Taking up the president's assertion that certain trust magnates, fearing prosecution under Taft, will support the Democratic candidate, Bryan charges that the president worded his statement in such a way as to demand the support of all the trust magnates "and yet put it on the ground that they are supporting your party for patriotic reasons, rather than for the promotion of a selfish interest."

Such an argument, he contends, is ingenious, but not sound. In proof of the fact that he would not be controlled by the trusts, Bryan says that, if elected, he will enforce the anti-trust laws "not spasmodically and intermittently, but persistently and consistently."

Mr. Bryan, in dealing with the Democratic campaign fund of 1896 as compared with the Republican campaign fund of 1904, charges that the president pays "more attention to the mote than to the beam," and asserts that in 1904 the Republicans used in one state alone a fund almost as large as the entire sum the Democratic party had in its control.

"The reflection upon the people involved in your charge that they would misuse the knowledge which publicity would give," says Bryan, "is unworthy of one who has been elevated to so high an office by the votes of the people, and I venture for assertion that you cannot procure from Mr. Taft an endorsement of your defense.

"He is now before the people; he is offering himself as a candidate for the presidency; he dare not tell the people to whom he appeals that they have not sense enough to form a just and correct opinion as to the purpose which leads parties interested in special legislation to make big contributions.

"You fear that we would misrepresent the motives of those who are contributing to the Republican campaign fund and cast an unjust suspicion upon Republican candidates if the names and amounts were made known before the election. Your argument, if sound, would prevent publication after the election; for why should an unjust suspicion be cast on officials after the election any more than before? Does not the secrecy before the election increase this suspicion?

"We are going to give you an opportunity to misrepresent the motives of those who give to our campaign fund, and to arouse all the suspicion you can; we are going to prove to the people that we are making a fight for the whole people and not for those who have been enjoying privileges and favors at the hands of the government, and we expect that the honest sentiment of the country will rebuke the party whose convention refused to endorse any kind of publicity and whose candidates are not willing that the people should know until after the polls are closed what predatory interests have been active in support of the Republican party."

Stewart's Request Denied

Washington, Sept. 30.—Colonel William S. Stewart of the coast artillery, known as "the exile of Fort Grant," appeared under orders yesterday before an army retiring board which will detemine whether he should be retired on account of heart disease. He requested a delay of two weeks' time before undergoing the physical examination necessary before the board can reach a verdict, but was directed to appear today before the medical members of the board.

Opposed by Bankers

Denver, Sept. 30.—The trust company section of the American Bankers' association went on record in opposition to the bank deposit guarantee proposition, making the third subsidiary association of the American Bankers' association to declare itself thus on this subject. All the speeches made were against the postal savings bank plan. The resolution against the guarantee of bank deposits was carried. 74 to 5

INVESTIGATE and ECONOMIZE.

NEW SYSTEM AT JOHNSON BROS.

On and after September 16, we have decided

TO CATER TO THE CASH TRADE

as well as to the credit trade of Quincy, and we have arranged a system by which we can supply our trade with the same grade of goods

AT A GREATLY REDUCED PRICE.

It costs us more each year to do business the old way, and calling for and delivering orders, is the largest item of expense. Now we propose to divide that expense with our trade. And we announce to all who buy of us, and pay cash, and take their purchases home with them, we will besides reducing the price of our entire stock, give a

Special Discount of 5 per cent FOR CASH.

By this means you will be able to purchase the very BEST QUALITY, for which Johnson Bros. are famous, at a GREAT SAVING to you.

We have never bid for the cash trade of Quincy before. But we feel that the TIME HAS NOW COME, when careful buyers demand LOWER PRICES, and all over the country, the people are looking for just what we propose to give to the people of Quincy.

This same system is being carried out in the wholesale as well as the retail trade, and we think it is only just to our customers that we now adopt this MODERN WAY OF DOING BUSINESS, and we say again, that to all who purchase goods of us who PAY CASH, and carry the same home with them, we will give a DISCOUNT OF FIVE PER CENT off the amount of purchase.

Besides we will sell goods at the VERY LOWEST MARK and where can you find anything better than at JOHNSON BROS.

Now, in order to give these low prices and special discounts to our trade, we will practically have to pay spot cash to enable us to take advantage of our own discounts from the wholesale dealers, and we will have to pay our bills when due, as they charge us Interest at 6 per cent, so we will be obliged to state to our trade that all bills over due, we shall charge the same rate of interest, six per cent, that we have to pay the wholesale dealers.

We shall call for and deliver orders just the same as we are doing every day. The expense of each team is FOUR DOLLARS PER DAY, and the average call for each team is fifty, making the expense of each call about eight cent. We can deliver ten orders while the team is taking one order, and by our trade ordering at store or through the mail or over the phone, it will help us carry out our NEW SYSTEM, and it also gives us more time to give each order our special attention. So we offer this SPECIAL INDUCEMENT to encourage our trade to call at the store and select their goods and take them with them.

We shall commence this month to remodel the interior OF OUR STORE, so that we can display our goods with the PRICE MARKED in plain figures, so that every one can see just what they are buying and paying for.

And Johnson Bros. GUARANTEE OF QUALITY is your protection. Anything bought of them you may be sure is the best that money can buy.

Now think this proposition over, and we feel confident that you can see it just the way that we do.

SOMETHING THAT IS NEEDED HERE IN QUINCY.

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889
The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.
Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.
The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE Young Men's Christian Association OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title ~ Incorporated 1892.)
The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.
Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.
The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

YANKEE BADLY DAMAGED

Boilers and Wireless Apparatus Are Now Out of Commission

Newport, R. I., Sept. 30.—That the United States cruiser Yankee, which is aground on Spindle rock in Buzzards bay, did not weather Monday night's storm as well as had been reported was made evident when the corps of naval apprentices from the training station, which went out to the stranded vessel, returned here.

The fireroom of the Yankee is now flooded with water, extinguishing the fires which had been kept up in the ship's boilers since she went aground, and also putting the wireless apparatus out of commission. The fact that the fireroom is full of water leads to the belief that another hole was stove in her hull during the severe pounding which the vessel received.

The Yankee is now resting on an even keel, having been lightered of all pig iron ballast, stores and ammunition, and all the coal she carried has been thrown overboard. The cofferdam was also severely damaged, and men have been busy repairing it.

BUCKED THE TIGER WITH DUMMY CASH

Lord Rosslyn Quickly Dropped $50,000 at "Monte Carlo"

London, Sept. 30.—The unique gambling contest between Sir Hiram Maxim and Lord Rosslyn came to an end yesterday afternoon and shows defeat for the system advanced by the latter.

Lord Rosslyn claimed that by his system of play it was possible to win at roulette against the Monte Carlo bank. Sir Hiram said this was impossible, and in order to settle the controversy the two men began playing roulette in a Piccadilly club ten days ago, Sir Hiram conducting the game in the same way it is played at Monte Carlo. Lord Rosslyn started to play with $50,000 in "dummy" money and the bank had an equal amount.

Lord Rosslyn's system has been proved to be utterly fallacious. At one period of the contest he was about $16,000 to the good, but in the last three days the bank was a steady winner until his lordship's capital in "dummy" money became exhausted yesterday afternoon.

Policeman Accidentally Killed

Springfield, Mass., Sept. 30.—Daniel J. Donovan, a reserve officer of the Springfield police force, was accidentally shot and killed while in the central police station at rollcall. Myron H. Bullard, another officer, was preparing to go on duty, and in putting his night stick and revolver into his pocket, dropped the latter, which, on striking the floor, went off. The bullet entered Donovan's body in the abdomen. Bullard is absolved of all blame for the accident by his brother officers who were present.

Big Reward For Murder Evidence

New York, Sept. 30.—Firm in his belief that evidence exists which, if brought to light, would bring about the arrest and conviction of his son's murderer, Henry Dexter, multi-millionaire and nonogenarian, made public the announcement that he would pay a reward of $10,000 for such evidence. Dexter's son, Orlando P. Dexter, was shot from ambush on the Dexter estate in the Adirondacks in September, 1903, but every effort has failed to establish the identity of the murderer.

Mill Superintendent Missing

Saxonville, Mass., Sept. 30.—One hundred men were called out by a special alarm on the fire bells at 11 o'clock last night to search for Fred Dawson, aged 35, the superintendent of the mills, who disappeared early last evening. At 6:30 he harnessed his horse and left home without telling his family where he was going. At 7:15 the horse and carriage were found near his house, but there was no trace of Dawson.

Boston to Have Trade School

Boston, Sept. 30.—Acting under a recent statute, the Boston school committee, at a special meeting yesterday, passed the preliminary orders for the establishment of a school for industrial training, consisting for the present year of a central school in the Mechanic Arts high school and branch schools at Charlestown, East Boston and Roxbury, to be called the Evening Industrial school.

Night-Riders Terrorize Negroes

Atlanta, Sept. 30.—Negroes in portions of Calhoun, Baker and Miller counties, Georgia, are terror-stricken because of raids of night-riders. In a raid through this district the riders destroyed thirteen negro churches and schoolhouses, covering a district that has been the scene of several lynchings.

Engineer Fatally Scalded

Barre, Vt., Sept. 30.—James Nute, aged 55, an engineer at the Jones Bros. granite works here, was fatally injured by the bursting of a throttle valve on an air compressor which he was repairing. The escaping steam scalded him terribly, and he died without regaining consciousness.

Porto Rican School Statistics

San Juan, Sept. 30.—The Porto Rican school year has opened and the statistics show the very gratifying attendance of 95,000 pupils at 1575 schools. A total of 1650 teachers are engaged in the work of instruction and the school appropriation amounts to $1,429,590.

MR. TAFT DOES THINGS.

One Incident That Shows the Quality of the Man.

This incident affords perhaps as good an insight into the psychology of Mr. Taft as any that could be cited. It illustrates the way Mr. Taft does things, the way he works and the way he plays, for when he plays he plays as hard and zestfully as he works. With him the thing is to do it. Accomplishment is ever his aim. It happened while Mr. Taft was on the sea, bound for Manila to open the Philippine assembly. The narrator watched the proceedings at close range. Three men stood between decks on the steamship, away up in the eyes of the ship, and contemplated a hole ten feet above their heads. A narrow iron ladder led perpendicularly to the deck. The circumference of the hole seemed to approximate that of a sugar barrel. One of the men, Ambassador O'Brien, bound for Tokyo, was tall and spare, lean and sinewy. The second, Judge Thomas Burke of Seattle, was short and rotund. The third, Mr. Taft, was larger and heavier than the other two put together.

"It would be easier for the camel to go through the needle's eye, Mr. Secretary, than for you to get through that hole," bantered Judge Burke.

"I wouldn't like to try that climb, I'll confess," said the ambassador.

"Well, I don't know," rejoined the 285 pound secretary of war. "It looks like a tough proposition."

For a moment the three turned aside to examine something to which their attention was directed. Unregarded, Mr. Taft stepped to the foot of the ladder and observed it contemplatively. One might have deduced from his manner that his thoughts ran something like this: "That's a hard climb, and that hole looks smaller than my body, but those fellows don't believe that I can climb up that ladder and get through the hole. I believe I can. I'm going to try it."

Before he was spied Mr. Taft had half scaled the ladder. Ambassador O'Brien and Judge Burke, despite their lesser weight, expressed in their faces an approximation of dismay when they saw what the secretary was about. "You'll never make it; better come back," advised the ambassador. "Look out the ladder doesn't break," cautioned Judge Burke. Round after round the secretary progressed until his body was halfway out of the hole. When the circumference of his girth came into conjunction with the circumference of the hole it was a toss-up for a minute which would win. But Mr. Taft proved that he had an elastic waist line, which won over the unyielding limits of the hole. But it was a struggle. He stuck to it grimly and doggedly. The lifting of 285 pounds of dead weight by the muscles of the arms is a task that would tax the strength of a far lighter man. A final heave and Mr. Taft hopped upon the deck as lightly as a boy. He was smiling all over. He had won. The passengers who had watched gave him a cheer. He would have stayed in the hole and fought it out for an hour rather than retreat. That is Taft.

NEGRO AND DEMOCRACY.

Would Be Suicidal For Colored Men to Vote For Bryan.

One of the greatest negroes this country has known, a leader of his race and the honored confidant of President Grant and Secretary Fish, recently said: "It would be suicidal for colored men to vote for Bryan. They have nothing to hope for from the Democratic party, which has disfranchised them in the south and which professes to regard them as unfit for the ballot anywhere. The only chance for the negro is with the Republican party, and it will be a sad day for the negro when a Republican president will be elected without the votes of negroes having helped to place him in power."

In view of the fact that Bryan himself has approved negro disfranchisement in the south there can be no doubt of his attitude should he be elected to the presidency, while the southern Democrats would regard northern negro votes for their candidates as an indorsement by the negro race of southern treatment of the negro.

It is impossible to believe that any negro who has studied intelligently the history of his race will go into the voting booth and cast a ballot in favor of Bryan and against Taft and Sherman, the Republican candidates—the candidates of the party which opened the door of hope to the colored man, which gave him the ballot and safeguards him in its use in every state in which Republicans rule.

Democracy Divided.

Thomas L. Hisgen, Hearst candidate for the presidency, looks for the election of Taft and then a new alignment of political parties. Mr. Hisgen says:

"The Democratic party is dividing. The radical and the more conservative elements can pull together only a little while longer. After Bryan is defeated for a third time there is bound to be a new alignment of the people, and the Democratic party will disintegrate. The Republicans will get some of those former Democrats, and the Independence league will get more of them. The campaign of 1912 will be fought out by a different set of political parties from those now in the field."

Bryan's great handicap in running for the presidency is that he cannot run away from his record.

The wind bloweth where it listeth. So does William Jennings Bryan. It is a way they both have.

ARCHBOLD SHEDS LIGHT

Tells How Stolen Letters Came Into Possession of Hearst

A STATEMENT FROM McLAURIN

Saw No Impropriety In Enlisting Assistance of Standard Oil Company and Sounds Its Praises--Hypocritical Morality and Selfishness of Certain Political Leaders Responsible For Condition of South

New York, Sept. 30.—A new phase of the discussion of the so-called "Standard Oil correspondence," made public recently by William R. Hearst, was entered upon when John D. Archbold, vice president of the Standard Oil company, made a statement to The Associated Press, setting forth details of the alleged theft of correspondence from his files. Former United States Senator McLaurin of South Carolina also entered the field with a signed statement declaring his attitude in the matter of the correspondence between himself and Archbold.

"In response to many inquiries as to the theft of letters from my files," Archbold says, "the following may be made known:

"Over three years ago a report reached me that certain of my letters had been offered for sale to newspapers of this city, avowedly as stolen letters. Examination showed that some letters were missing and that they could only have been taken by some one not only familiar with the office details, but highly trusted. The party on whom suspicion fell stoutly denied all guilt. A little later, however, a man who represented himself as acting between the thief and those to whom the letters had been sold proposed to return some of the letters for a consideration. His story was that the idea of the theft had been conceived by his brother, who had at one time been in the company's employ, and that this brother had induced the employe already suspected to accomplish the theft.

"According to the go-between's story, he had disposed of the letters or some of them to two men who purchased them on behalf of Mr. Hearst's newspaper, The Journal. Not only had stolen letters been thus traded for, but the thief was induced to carry off one or more letter copying books, many of whose pages he claims were photographed, other pages being removed altogether. The books in question were, the go-between said, returned after forty-eight hours. It is impossble to say how many were stolen and sold in this way. The thieves worked at their leisure. It is not thought necessary to say more at present or to mention names.

"Corroboration of the go-between's story of three years ago lay in his return of some of the correspondence at the time. The production of stolen letters by Mr. Hearst is further corroboration now. Obviously, among such a coterie, authenticity of their output is not to be lightly accepted. The opportunities for falsification, suppressing of context, distortion of passages, are many."

Ex-Senator McLaurin has arrived in New York and last night gave out a signed statement regarding the correspondence between himself and Archbold, as recently made public by W. R. Hearst, in which he says:

"An effort has been made to create a political sensation by the publication of certain correspondence between John D. Archbold and myself. For that correspondence I have no apologies to make. At the time the letters were written I had the honor to enjoy and am proud still to possess the friendship of Mr. Archbold, for whom I have the highest regard. At the time the letters were written I was engaged in a bitter struggle in which was involved not only my own political future, but the economic and political principles for which I stood, and which, stated briefly, meant the emancipation of the south from the ignorant prejudice of bourbonism and the 'bloody shirt' into the freedom of an enlightened self-interest and the progress of an intelligent industrialism.

"In the support of these principles and the hope of this progress I saw then no impropriety in enlisting, if practicable, the assistance of the most progressively administered and the most intelligently officered corporation that human intelligence has yet produced. Nor has the enormous body of statutory crime since created or the hypocritical affectation of morality assumed by some of our legislatures and congress in any wise changed my point of view or quickened my conscience of expediency, as seems to have been the case with some of my former colleagues and associates.

"The constituencies that they represent do not hesitate to take Mr. Carnegie's trust-produced and tariff-protected money for their churches and libraries, or to accept Mr. Rockefeller's largess for the education of the negro whom they have disfranchised.

"If political campaigns are to be run without money and political progress is to be achieved without financial expenditure, it is high time that both parties should be apprised of the arrival of that Utopian era, but until that period has arrived I can see no reason why I, when battling for what I conceived to be the right, should refuse to seek or decline to accept the support, whether financial or personal, of which I stood in need. Men may die, but right principles persist and in the end they will triumph.

"I believe that the south, and especially the state of South Carolina, is today throttled in its natural progress and its intelligent exercise of the right of self-government by an oligarchy which keeps alive the prejudices of a past generation through the perpetuation of ignorance and the fertilization of corruption, and I shall welcome the day when the educational propaganda, which can only be spread by the use of money, whether it be Standard Oil or railroad money, or any other money save that derived from the governmental sale of whisky, will enable the people to see more clearly their own best interests and cast out these leaders whose hypocritical morality and ill-disguised selfishness is responsible for the fact that in the south illiteracy is greater and the increase of population and wealth is lower than in any other great section of the Union.

"It is the fashion of present day political hypocrisy to decry the corporation, to abhor the trust and to pretend in public life to prescribe the influence of wealth; but in this country and this age wealth is, and must be, the reward of intelligence. I am not willing to be considered amongst those cowardly enough to deny the influence which intelligence has always exercised under every government thus far devised. Of a government of ignorance I have had enough in my native state. I hope for, and shall continue to work, for a government of intelligence."

Mr. McLaurin said he had nothing to say beyond what was contained in the foregoing signed statement.

Prouty's Substantial Lead

Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 30.—Official returns of the recent election in this state for governor were made public last night by Secretary of State Fleetwood.

GEORGE H. PROUTY.

The total vote cast was 64,530 and gives Governor-Elect George H. Prouty (Republican) a majority of 26,692 and a plurality of 29,611. James E. Burke, the Democratic candidate, polled 15,950 votes.

Taft Gets Back His Voice

Sioux City, Ia., Sept. 30.—Tariff revision, mostly downward, but in some instances upward, notably on pottery, was the keynote of Candidate Taft's ten speeches yesterday. In none of them did he forget to "go after" his Nebraska opponent. The Ohioan's campaign through South Dakota terminated here with an address to a tremendous audience. Of the day Taft said: "I have enjoyed every minute of it. Despite the tax on my voice, the speaking has been easy because I have felt a sympathetic inspiration from every audience." Taft's voice permitted him to be heard fairly well. His speaking assistant during the day was Representative Bede of Minnesota.

Bryan Travels Through Iowa

Rock Island, Ills., Sept. 30.—Having traveled all day through Iowa, W. J. Bryan arrived in Rock Island last night and spoke to a large assemblage at the baseball park. Although the route taken through Iowa was not generally known, large crowds gathered at several points and the Democratic candidate was called on for speeches. He gave encouragement to the Democrats by telling them he had good reports regarding the political situation in Iowa. The trusts, the tariff and publicity of campaign contributions were briefly discussed and both Taft and Roosevelt were scored in connection with their views on those subjects.

To Work an Hour Less a Day

Madison, Me., Sept. 30.—The 150 Italians employed at the Hollingsworth and Whitney dam, who struck for a shorter workday with more pay, returned to work this morning as the result of a compromise agreement. The men will on Oct. 15 obtain a nine-hour workday instead of ten hours, with the same pay, $1.50 a day.

Were In Real Battles

Boston, Sept. 30.—The annual convention of the Union War Union, composed of men under fire during the peninsula, Virginia and southern campaigns of the Civil war, was held in Boston. P. Hayes of Maine was elected commander-in-chief.

The Cowardly Guard

[Original.]

When I was in Colorado away back in the sixties I one morning left Denver for the south. It was the day of road agents, and I confess I felt somewhat nervous. I was told by the Wells-Fargo people that the coach would be guarded by one of their men, Dick Steele, whom they considered worth half a dozen ordinary men. This satisfied me, for from the time I entered the state I had heard of the brave deeds of this same Dick Steele.

When we were about to start and Steele was pointed out to me I was surprised. He was a little fellow about five feet five inches, and I couldn't see how he could terrify even a single robber, and there were often several in the parties who robbed coaches. However, he had an eye which, like his name, was steel, and a cold looking steel at that, and I put him down for one of those men in whom nerve takes the place of muscle.

I made the trip out and back with Steele, and there was no occasion for the Wells-Fargo man to show his mettle. When I left Denver for Cheyenne to take the Union Pacific railroad for the east Steele was again the guard. This time when we were midway on our journey we heard the cry ahead, "Hold up your hands!" and the coach came to a stop. A man came and stood on one side of the coach, holding us all covered with a brace of revolvers, while two others on the other side opened the stage door, threw down the steps and called to us to alight. Steele was in the middle seat and next person to the open door. We all expected him to suddenly bristle with weapons and kill the two men before they knew what hurt them. Instead of that he tumbled out with his hands in the air as nimbly as a young fawn.

Seeing that we had no protection from this vaunted hero, we all got out and stood in line while the road agents relieved us of everything about us of any value. Evidently they had never seen Steele before, for they treated him just like the rest of us. I thought perhaps he might stoop and pull a pair of revolvers from his boots; but, although he had no especial watching, he did not make the slightest movement. When the robbers were through with us they ordered us back into the coach and told the driver to move on.

As soon as we were free from the robbers there was a great outburst against Steele. "You're a pretty guard!" "Where did you get your reputation for bravery?" "The biggest coward in the coach!" These were some of the protests that were hurled against the man of much reputation. His conduct in bearing them convinced every one that he was not only not brave, but unusually cowardly. He did not resent a single one of these insulting reproaches. Indeed, he did not seem to hear them, keeping his eye out the window looking at the ground we passed over and watching for something.

Presently the road made a turn, and the coach passed around it and behind a clump of trees. Steele flung open the coach door, jumped out, unstrapped a Winchester from under the boot and started back, stooping among some bushes so as not to be seen.

I am not a brave man, but I am a very curious one. Seized with a desire to see the rest of the story for myself, I alighted and went after the guard. We had gone about half a mile from the spot where we had been robbed, and a third of this distance was a depression in the ground. Taking position in this depression, I could see all I wanted to see. I saw Steele dodging along a short distance ahead of me, and about the same distance beyond him were the robbers dividing the swag they had taken from us. Then from out a clump of sagebrush I saw a puff of smoke, heard the crack of Steele's Winchester, and a robber fell. Before I could have counted five there were another puff and crack, and another robber fell. The third man had only time to look wildly about him when he, too, went down.

Then Steele advanced cautiously. As he approached one of the robbers raised himself on his elbow and was about to fire at Steele when the guard dropped him, this time for good. Steele went to the place where the bodies lay, gathered up their spoil, turned and came slowly back. When he came up to me I remarked to him that he had been very lucky to find the robbers engaged, and he replied that they usually divided the plunder at once, so that each man could shift for himself without losing his share.

I went back with the little man to the coach, which was standing where we had left it, and Steele asked each person to pick out his belongings, which he was not slow in doing.

Then followed an apology from every one who had rated the guard for his cowardice. Some of those who had been most abusive looked a bit terror stricken, thinking that they might be called to account. But Steele paid no more attention to the apologies than he had paid to the abuse, merely remarking that a man who blustered up against another man's gun when the muzzle was toward him was a fool.

Quincy Locals Briefly Told

Miss Isabel Bill of Quincy spent Monday in Brockton with Miss Elsie Coffin.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Rowan of Oak street ,are receiving congratulations on the advent of a baby boy.

At the 83d annual fall meeting of the Norfolk Conference of Congregational churches held in Stoughton, Rev. A. R. Atwood discussed "The Church in the Community."

Several new rules have been introduced in the district court. In the future no smoking, loafing or loud talking will be allowed in the corridors at any time either during sessions or afterward.

At the wedding of Thomas E. Cuddily of Engine 14, Roxbury, to Miss Nellie Condry, today Fr. Grady of St. Mary's church West Quincy, a cousin of the groom, will assist in the ceremony.

Because of the limited quarters, it will be impossible to entertain all Republicans at the reception to Candidate Galvin, next Monday evening. It will be limited to the Republican City Committee.

A meeting of the executive board of the Quincy Women's club will be held at the club house tomorrow morning at ten o'clock and will mark the opening of the club season. First club meeting will be on Tuesday, Oct. 13th.

Those who have read "The Lightning Conductor" and "Through Holland on a House Boat" will enjoy reading the serial now running in the Ledger, by the same authors. They have a bright and interesting way of expressing themselves which appeals to lovers of good clean fiction.

Not in the business of trust busting, is what C. C. Hearn says in his ad today. That job he leaves to politicians. He further says he is offering no gold bricks for sale, but sells his goods to all customers at published prices. Reliable goods, low prices, and strict attention to business, are his mottoes.

The engagement of Mr. John L. McTiernan of West Quincy to Miss Mary L. Callanan of Milford has been announced. The ceremony will take place October 12 in St. Mary's church, Milford. Both young people are well-known and popular in their respective towns, Miss Callanan in musical circles of Milford and Mr. McTiernan in athletics in this vicinity. Mr. McTiernan is well known in social activities, being a member of the Elks, Knights of Columbus, St. Mary's Total Abstinence society and the Y. M. C. A.

ACCIDENT TO TEAMSTER.

A four horse drag of Fogg's Fore River Express company was struck Tuesday evening by an electric car on Hancock street, near the Atlantic railroad bridge. The driver was thrown to the ground and was unconscious for a short while. In the meantime a crowd of a few hundred gathered about the team, which held up the electric car traffic for nearly an hour. After the driver revived, the team was helped off the track by one of the cars and the crowd scattered, while the driver pluckily continued on his way.

Home Team Holds Down The Visitors But Could Not Score

The Quincy High school football team opened its home season Wednesday at Merrymount park, and went down to defeat 12-0, at the hands of the Everett High gridiron warriors. The Everett boys were superior in almost every department, but Quincy played a plucky game. They were outweighted almost in every position but did well to hold Everett to 12 points.

When it was time to start, Quincy chose to receive the kick, and Brickley at the blast of the referee's whistle booted the ball from the centre of the field to the goal posts. R. Bates took the kick but was down after going about five yards. Quincy then tried to find a weak spot in Everett's line, but was unable to do so, and the ball went to Everett on downs.

On the very next play there was holding in the Everett line, and the ball was taken back five yards as a penalty. Spurred on by this setback, as it were, Everett started to plug. She tore holes in the Quincy line at will, Brickley and Brock alternating at carrying the ball. Five minutes after the whistle blew, Brickley was sent over the line for the first touchdown. Brickley then kicked the goal.

It was Quincy's choice again, and she chose to let Everett kick. Howe got the ball and ran it back 15 yards, where Quincy was held for downs. The Everetts, by some clever work on the part of quarterback Lansing, brought the ball in front of the goal posts on the 25-yard line. Brickley tried for a goal from placement, but the ball went high.

This forced Quincy to kick to Everett from the 25-yard line, and Everett returned the kick. Howe got the kick and ran it back, by some clever dodging, 25 yards. It looked as if Quincy was going to do something at this point, for she started to plow right through Everett. But success brought overconfidence and on a fumble the ball went to an Everett man.

Everett immediately tried an onside kick, and Howe again caught the ball after it touched the ground. Quincy started to plow again, but were finally held for downs. Everett rushed Quincy for a few yards, and then tried an onside kick. Gore got the ball on Quincy's 10-yard line. Just as quarterback Gore was about to give his signals, the whistle blew and the first half was over. Score—Everett, 6; Quincy, 0.

LAST HALF.

The second half began with Quincy kicking to Everett. Brickley got the ball, but he couldn't get by Clapp. An onside kick was blocked, but Lansing got the ball, and rushed it about five yards, losing on this play about 10 yards altogether. They lost ten more then for offside play, and Bricyley was forced to punt. Gore ran back about 10 yards and then on a clever forward pass to Nash 10 more were netted. Everett then settled down and got the ball on downs.

Everett fumbled the ball on the next rush, but Lansing picked it up in time to get away for ten yards. Then on a quarterback run the same man got ten more. Lansing then punted, but Gore fumbled the kick and Everett got the ball. On a fake kick Brickley tore round right end for 15 yards, followed by Lansing with 5 yards on a quarterback run.

The umpire, at this junction, saw an Everett man offside, and the referee penalized them for five yards. Brickley, however, gained the five back on a skin tackle play, and the ball was landed on Quincy's 2 yd. line Here Quincy held for downs, and at this point the only objectionable feature of the game came in.

The play was naturally close and exciting on the 2-yard line, and the boys probably got excited. There was a mix-up between two of the of the players and this spread into a general fight, which was pretty hot for a few minutes. Nobody was hurt and finally the "scrappers" cooled off.

But right here it might be well to say, in the interest of the game, that if more than one policeman was engaged for the game, the field would be kept clear and all would have a chance to see the game, while the players would have a better chance to work. Another thing that might be done, would be to put ropes around, enclosing the playing surface. This is done on the Locust street grounds and has proved to be an excellent plan. A little fair consideration should be given these points by the management, and the results that could be gained from a trial of these would be, without a doubt, pleasing to all.

After the fight had been quelled, the game proceeded, Quincy having the ball on her own 2-yard line. For once Quincy fooled the visitors, for a punt would naturally be expected. But Clapp took the ball and went straight through the Everett line for a 25-yard gain. Here they were held and had to kick.

Everett started for touchdown and by steady plugging Brickley went over, and then kicked the goal.

Everett then kicked to Quipcy and Gore returned the kick. The visitors then took the ball to the 5-yard line, and then lost 5 for offside play. Quincy held for downs and received the ball on her own 2-yard line, when the whistle blew and the game was over.

Clapp and Howe seemed to be the mainstays of the home team, while Brickley, Lansing, and Brock were the stars for Everett. Brickley is one of the fastest schoolboy players in the game and certainly played a great game yesterday.

The summary:

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Banquet To Base Ball Champions

Monday evening at the Essex Hotel, the Atlantic Base Ball club were tendered a banquet by their enthusiastic supporters, in recognition of their title "The Champions." During a bounteous feast of fourteen courses the Waverley Orchestra furnished music. Thomas W. Clifford, the celebrated baritone rendered several vocal selections which were most favorably received.

After dinner speeches were made by Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, who, after congratulating them on their victory, told the "boys" some of "the advantages of base ball playing." Timothy B. Murnane, president of the New England League, gave a brief history of its work. In concluding Mr. Murnane said, the Atlantic base ball club will reflect credit on Atlantic wherever they are sent and ardently hoped and felt certain that in a very short time, he would greet all the players as members of the New England or other leagues as a bright future awaits them.

All present spent a most enjoyable evening and were given souvenir menu cards with the picture of the club as a frontispiece.

REAL ESTATE OUTLOOK.

It is not generally known that lumber of all commodities has dropped most in the recent panic. Nor is it known that as a result, just now is the best time to build. This is so from the fact that as soon as business resumes its normal proportions prices will go soaring again. And our forest fires of this summer will not help to keep prices down this coming winter and spring.

The Boston Evening Transcript on Saturday Oct. 3 will publish three important articles on this subject:

Real Estate Outlook for various sections of Boston and vicinity.

Review of Realty Conditions during the year.

Some of the Important Real Estate Transactions of 1908.

These will make interesting reading for everybody, especially for those who have in mind the subject of owning their own home some day.

Incidentally this issue will, as a consequence, be well patronized by real estate advertisers.
